[2] Court Has Broad Discretion to Decide Motion For Relief from Waiver

[3] Factors Court Should Consider In Exercise of Discretion to Grant Relief from Waiver

[a] No Particular Factors Controlling

[b] Suitability of Issues for Jury Trial

[c] Prejudice to Other Parties

[d] Administrative Time and Expense

[e] Delay in Seeking Relief from Waiver

[f] Excuse for Failure of Counsel to Make Valid Demand

[g] Amendment of Pleading

[h] Preference for Single Trier of Fact

[i] Pro Se Plaintiff

[j] Objection of Opposition Party

§§ 22.49through 22.59 [Reserved]

§ 22.60 Docketing of Case as Jury Trial

[1] Effect of Docketing by Clerk

[2] Reliance on Demand and Docketing of Case for Trial by Jury

§ 22.61 Single Trial of Both Jury and Nonjury Claims

[1] General Procedure for Trial With Both Legal and Equitable Claims

[2] Sequence of Trial When There Is Combination of Jury and Nonjury Claims

§ 22.62 Jury Trial by Stipulation or Consent of Parties

[1] Discretion of Court to Hold Jury Trial on Nonjury Issues When Parties Consent

[a] Discretion of Trial Court

[b] Jury by Consent Rule Not Applicable in Actions Against United States

[2] Consent Required

[3] Effect of Consent Is That Jury Not Merely Advisory

§ 22.63 Use of Advisory Jury

[1] Discretion of Court to Utilize Advisory Jury

[2] Factors Considered in Decision to Use Advisory Jury

[3] Use of Advisory Jury Does Not Satisfy Party's Seventh Amendment Right to Jury

[4] Effect of Verdict Given By Advisory Jury

[a] Purpose is Merely to Assist Court

[b] Verdict of Advisory Jury is Not Binding on Court

[c] Decision and Findings Required by Court

§ 22.64 Number of Jurors Required

[1] Minimum Number of Jurors

[2] Agreement of Parties on Jury Size or Verdict Requirements

§ 22.65 Selection of Jurors

[1] Qualification of Person for Jury Service

[a] Minimum Requirements for Jury Service

[b] Exemption and Excuse From Jury Service

[2] Challenge to Selection of Jury Panels

[a] Required Method of Selection

[b] Challenge to Method of Selection

[3] Voir Dire

[a] Purpose of Voir Dire

[b] Discretion of District to Conduct of Voir Dire

[c] Court's Duty to Question for Prejudice or Bias

[d] Effect of Lie or Failure to Disclose in Prospective Juror's Answer

[4] Challenge for Cause

[a] Nature of Challenge for Cause

[b] Court's Grant of Challenge for Cause When Actual Bias is Shown

[5] Peremptory Challenge

[a] Purpose and Scope of Use of Peremptory Challenge

[b] Discretion of Trial Court Regarding Peremptory Challenges

[i] Discretion to Set Number

[ii] Discretion to Establish Peremptory Challenge Procedure

[c] Prohibition Against Discriminatory Peremptory Challenges

[i] Substance of Prohibition

[ii] Procedure to Contest Discriminatory Use of Peremptory Challenge

[iii] Court's Determination of Discrimination Claim

§ 22.66 Dismissal of Jurors

[1] Discretion of Court to Dismiss Juror for Cause

[2] Grounds for Dismissal of Juror for Cause

[3] Hearing Required to Dismiss Juror for Misconduct

[a] Requirement of Hearing

[b] Suggested Procedure for Hearing

§ 22.67 Statutory Juror Daily Attendance Fees

§ 22.68 Court's Instructions to Jury

[1] Purpose and Scope of Jury Instructions

[a] Function of Jury Instructions

[b] Procedural Rule Governs Final Jury Instructions

[c] Jury Instruction Purposes Promoted by Procedural Rule

[2] Parties May Request Particular Jury Instructions

[a] Right of Each Party to Request Jury Instructions

[b] Time for Completion of Request

[c] Content and Form of Request

[i] Requirement of Writing

[ii] Request for Statement of Law

[iii] Language of Request

[d] Procedure for Making Request

[3] Court's Obligations Regarding Instruction of Jury

[a] Court Must Instruct Jury to Decide Facts Pursuant to Relevant Law

[b] District Court Has Considerable Discretion in Formulating Instructions

[c] State Law Controls Content in Diversity Cases

[d] Procedure and Time for Instructing Jury

[e] Method of Instructing Jury

[f] Duty to Inform Parties of Substance of Instructions Before Giving Charge

[g] Duty to Allow Parties to Object to Rulings on Request and Proposed Charge

[4] Party's Objection to Jury Instructions Necessary to Preserve Appellate Review

[a] Preservation of Appeal by Objection Related to Instructions

[b] Contents of Objection

[c] Timing of Objection

[d] Exceptions to Requirement of Objection

[5] Appellate Review of Jury Instruction Rulings

[a] Prior Objection Determines Scope of Review

[b] Standard of Review for Preserved Error

[i] Statement of Standard of Review

[ii] Application of Standard of Review

[c] Limited Standard of Review for Plain Error When Party Has Not Preserved Error

§ 22.69 Vote Required for Verdict

§ 22.70 Special Verdicts and Written Questions

[1] Comparison of General Verdict with Alternatives to General Verdict

[a] Nature of General Verdict

[b] Rules Provide Two Alternatives to General Verdict

[c] Alternatives to General Verdict Treat Inconsistent Verdicts Differently

[2] Special Verdict

[a] Purpose of Special Verdict

[b] Trial Court Has Broad Discretion in Use of Special Verdict

[c] Time for Submission of Special Verdict to Jury

[d] Court's Obligation to Reconcile Inconsistent Answers

[e] Court's Discretion to Supply Omitted Finding

[f] Effect of Party's Failure to Object to Questions

[3] General Verdict With Answers to Written Questions

[a] Purpose of General Verdict Requiring Answers to Written Questions

[b] Distinguished from Special Verdict

[c] Court's Discretion on Use of General Verdict with Written Questions

[d] Failure to Object to Written Questions

[e] Effect of Inconsistencies Among Answers to Written Questions

[f] Effect of Inconsistencies Between Answers to Written Questions and General Verdict

§ 22.71 Judgment As Matter of Law

[1] Nature of Judgment as Matter of Law

[a] Purpose and Use of Judgment as Matter of Law

[b] Judgment as Matter of Law Compared With Judgment on Partial Findings

[c] Judgment as Matter of Law Compared With Grant of New Trial

[d] Judgment as Matter of Law Compared With Summary Judgment

[2] Grounds for Grant of Judgment As Matter of Law

[a] Basis for Grant of Judgment

[b] Considerations in Determination

[c] Controlling Law in Motions for Judgment as Matter of Law

[d] Losing Party in Judgment May Move for New Trial

[3] Contents Required in Motion

[4] Time for Making Motion for Judgment As Matter of Law

[a] Preverdict Motion

[b] Postverdict Renewal of Motion

[i] Renewal of Motion for Judgment as Matter of Law

[ii] Alternative Request for New Trial

[iii] Time for Renewed Motion

[5] Ruling on Renewed Motion for Judgment as Matter of Law

[6] Effect of Joinder of Motion for Judgment as Matter of Law With Motion for New Trial

[7] Appellate Review Is De Novo and Applies Same Standards as Trial Court

[a] Standard of Review

[b] Grounds for Reversal

[c] Relief Provided by Appellate Court on Reversal

[i] Grant of Motion for New Trial

[ii] Directed Judgment or Dismissal by Court of Appeals

2 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART I. RIGHT TO JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.01

§ 22.01 Seventh Amendment Right to Jury Trialn*

[1] Nature and Purpose of Seventh Amendment Right

Amendment VII of the United States Constitution preserves the right of a party to have claims at common law decided by a jury trial. n1 It provides that no fact decided by a jury may be reexamined in any federal court except according to the rules of the common law. n2 The Seventh Amendment itself did not create a right to jury trial, but preserved that right in the federal courts as it existed prior to ratification of the Amendment. n3 The right to a jury trial that was preserved by the Seventh Amendment is a fundamental constitutional right, n4 and the right is held in the highest legal regard as are all of the Bill of Rights. n5 The Supreme Court has stated that the continuation of the jury as a fact finding entity is of such importance and occupies such an established tool in our jurisprudence that any attempt at curtailment of the right to a jury trial should be scrutinized with the utmost care. n6

The strong federal policy in favor of jury trials requires that in questionable cases a court should decide in favor of the right to a jury trial. Thus, the right to a jury trial must be liberally construed. n7 The court's discretion regarding the right is very limited and must be exercised to preserve a jury trial whenever possible. n8 The right to a jury trial may not be curtailed merely because of time constraints, concerns over the congestion of the federal docket, n9 or increases in the expense of litigation. n10

[2] Seventh Amendment Right Restricted to Common-Law Suits

The Seventh Amendment applies only to suits at common law. n1 The common law referred to in the Amendment is the common law as of 1791, when the Amendment was adopted. Thus, the Seventh Amendment applies to all common-law forms of action recognized in 1791. n2 There is a three-pronged test for determining whether a suit is one "at common law" within this amendment: whether (1) the issue is legal rather than equitable under the custom of courts of law at the time; (2) the remedy is legal; and (3) the issue is triable to a jury, given the jurors' practical abilities and limitations. n3 An action for a tort such as personal injury or fraud is an action at law in which a party is entitled to a jury trial. An action at law is one in which the parties are litigating the questions of liability and the extent of the injury by an assessment of damages, and a party is entitled to have a jury properly determine the questions. n4 Another typical case at law contesting liability and damages issues required to be decided by a jury is an action for breach of contract. n5

The fact that the Seventh Amendment applies to common-law forms of action that were recognized in 1791 does not mean that the Amendment applies only to such forms of action. Thus, the Seventh Amendment right to a jury trial is also applicable to newly created rights of a legal nature, if the new right is of the type that could have been enforced in a common-law suit under the common-law principles of 1791. n6 In this regard, to determine whether the Seventh Amendment right to a jury trial applies to a particular claim created after 1791, the court considers what is known as the "historical test." n7 Under this test, there is a right to jury trial if: (1) the claim for relief at issue is analogous to a claim that was a legal (as opposed to equitable) matter in 1791, and (2) a jury decision at trial is necessary to preserve the substance of the common-law right as it existed in 1791. n8

[3] Exclusion of Certain Claims from Right to Jury Trial

[a] Equitable Claims n*

Prior to the adoption of the Seventh Amendment, a jury trial was available in suits brought in the English law courts, but not in the English equitable courts. Under the current federal rules, a jury trial is required in suits that are analogous to English suits at common law but not in suits that are analogous to English equity cases. n1 In general, legal remedies traditionally involve money damages while equitable remedies are typically coercive and enforceable directly against the person or thing to which they are directed. n2 Usually, monetary claims for relief, such as claims for actual or punitive damages are legal in nature, rather than equitable. n3 However, when a monetary claim is made in a context historically allowed in equity rather than at law, there is no right to a jury trial. n4 For example, a claim for restitution is equitable in nature, although a party making it may be requesting monetary relief. In this regard, a party does not have a right to a jury trial for a claim for disgorgement of improper profits. n5 In diversity cases, even though the substantive rights asserted in a claim arise under state law, n6 the characterization of that state-created claim as either legal or equitable for purposes of whether a right to jury trial exists is determined by federal law. n7

Examples of claims that are traditionally considered equitable and, therefore, triable to a court without a jury include claims such as the following: a claim for rescission or reformation of a contract or other instrument; n8 a claim for specific performance; n9 a claim for injunctive relief; n10 and a claim to pierce the corporate veil to allow for liability on an individual basis. n11

If a party or parties has made both legal and equitable claims in the same action, the court must preserve the Seventh Amendment right to jury trial by first trying the legal claims to the jury, or by simultaneously trying the legal claims with the equitable claims. Then, if there are any common questions of fact, the court must apply the jury's common factual findings to the court's decision on the equitable claims. n12

[b] Admiralty Claims n*

If a case or claim is within the admiralty jurisdiction of the federal courts, there is no constitutional right of trial by jury, n13 even if the claim is of a type typically tried to a jury, such as an action for personal injury. n14 Historically, actions for personal injury brought in the federal admiralty jurisdiction under general maritime law have not entitled the injured plaintiff to a jury trial, unless the claimant establishes an independent jurisdictional basis for such a trial. n15 Furthermore, Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 38(e) expressly states that the rules are not to be construed to create a right to a jury trial of issues in an admiralty or maritime claim within the meaning of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 9(h). n16 Consequently, when a claimant designates a claim as one in admiralty under Rule 9(h)(1), or when the claim is only cognizable in admiralty, whether so designated by the plaintiff or not, there is no constitutional jury trial right as to that claim. n17

Even though there is generally no constitutional right to a jury trial in admiralty cases, the plaintiff has a right to a jury trial when expressly provided by statute. Thus, for example, the Jones Act gives an injured seaman or the personal representative of a deceased seaman the right to maintain an action for damages at law with a right of trial by jury. n18

However, the Jones Act does not confer the right to demand a jury trial on the defendant, n19 and the plaintiff may withdraw a previous jury demand without the defendant's consent. n20

In another example, the "saving to suitors" clause of the admiralty and maritime jurisdiction statute n21 allows a claimant to bring an action at law rather than under admiralty or maritime, provided that the requisite diversity and jurisdictional amount are present. n22 Suits that would otherwise be entitled to jury trials, but that arise in a maritime context may, therefore, be brought in state court or in federal court under the court's diversity jurisdiction. n23 Also, a defendant in an admiralty case is entitled under the Seventh Amendment and the "saving to suitors" clause to a jury trial of its compulsory counterclaims, when such a counterclaim is based on the non-admiralty jurisdictional ground of diversity of citizenship. n24

If a party properly joins a legal claim with an admiralty claim, the party may be entitled to a jury trial of all claims. Thus, for example, if a claim at law and a claim in admiralty arise out of a single accident, they may be combined in a single complaint for damages, and the plaintiff is entitled to a jury trial. n25

[c] Administrative Cases n*

Generally, the Seventh Amendment does not apply to administrative proceedings, because as noted by the Supreme Court, jury trials would be incompatible with the whole concept of administrative adjudication and would substantially interfere with an administrative agency's efficient enforcement of regulations. n26 The Supreme Court has also held that when Congress creates new statutory public rights (as opposed to private rights), n27 it may assign their adjudication to an administrative agency, and that jury trials would be incompatible with administrative enforcement. n28 Furthermore, the fact that a monetary award may be made by the administrative agency does not make the case a suit at common law for jury trial purposes, or the equivalent of such a suit. Thus, an award of back pay made by the National Labor Relations Board, as authorized under the Act, was not a violation of the defendant employer's Seventh Amendment rights. n29

[4] Courts Subject to Seventh Amendment n*

The Seventh Amendment applies only to United States federal courts located in the United States, the District of Columbia, and in the United States Territories. n1 Although it does not apply in state court proceedings, n2 it does apply when federal courts determine state claims, n3 even if the same claim would not entitle the party to a jury trial in state court. n4

While the Seventh Amendment applies to proceedings in federal court, it does not apply to all federal court proceedings. Thus, for purposes of the Amendment, courts of the United States do not include military adjudicatory proceedings, n5 or tax court. n6 On the other hand jury trials are available under limited circumstances in bankruptcy courts. Thus, under the Bankruptcy Amendments and Federal Judgeship Act of 1984, Congress placed a number of types of proceedings under the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court, n7 but did not specifically authorize bankruptcy courts to preside over jury trials. Consequently, the courts of appeal have split on whether jury trials may be held in bankruptcy courts. n8 The 1984 Act does provide that if the right to a jury trial applies in a proceeding that may be heard by a bankruptcy judge, the bankruptcy judge may conduct the jury trial if specially designated to exercise such jurisdiction by the district court and with the express consent of all the parties. n9

[5] Seventh Amendment Procedural Considerations n*

[a] Judge's Authority Over Questions of Law

The Seventh Amendment right to a jury trial generally does not mean that the jury is allowed to decide matters related to procedure or practice. n1 Therefore, even though many procedural mechanisms in litigation may have the effect of limiting or even diminishing the jury's choices, they are constitutionally permissible, provided that the court adheres to the standards specified in the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and formed by court decisions that limit the authority of the court to encroach on the province of the jury. Thus, the substance of the right of trial by jury, as guaranteed by the Seventh Amendment, means a trial to a jury presided over by a judge with authority to rule on questions of law. n2 The province of the jury is to determine disputed questions of fact, and the jury trial right does not extend to issues of law. n3 However, if an issue of procedure is intertwined with the substantive rights of a party on the merits of the case, the right to jury is applicable to the issue. n4

[b] Subject Matter Jurisdiction

[i] Diversity Cases

A defendant may present the defense of a lack of subject matter or personal jurisdiction in the answer or by motion before trial. n5 Consequently, the issue may arise whether the jury should decide facts related to jurisdiction. For example, the question of whether there is diversity jurisdiction may depend on contested facts such as the location of a party's domicile n6 or principal place of business. n7 Since in diversity cases the type of factual jurisdictional issues that may arise are clearly separate from the factual issues that may arise on the merits of the case, the jurisdictional fact issues concern exclusively the limits of the judicial power of the federal courts under Article III of the Constitution. For this reason, courts have consistently held that the court must decide the factual question of diversity jurisdiction; the court may not refer the question to a jury. n8

Courts have also generally held that the trial court should not dismiss before trial a case in which jurisdiction is predicated on a minimum amount in controversy n9 for lack of the required jurisdictional amount if the claim is for an unliquidated sum. n10 Furthermore, the court should not dismiss an issue regarding the amount in controversy when it is inseparable from the merits of the case. n11 The test for the amount in controversy is not the amount ultimately recovered, but the amount claimed by the plaintiff in good faith. n12

[ii] Federal Question Cases

Although the factual issue of whether diversity jurisdiction exists is a question for the court, n13 for cases arising under the Constitution, laws and treaties of the United States, n14 the determination of federal question jurisdiction is complicated by the interaction between jurisdictional facts and facts that go to the merits of the case. Thus, when the determination of federal question jurisdiction depends on a determination of the merits, a district court may not dismiss the case for lack of jurisdiction without first trying the merits. In such circumstances, the court must retain jurisdiction and proceed to trial. n15 A summary dismissal in such a case is a violation of the parties' Seventh Amendment rights. n16

In actions under the antitrust laws when there must be a showing of conspiracy, effect on commerce, and damages, courts have noted that a safe practice is not to separate the subject matter jurisdiction issue for separate trial in cases where the factual merits of the case must be considered in deciding the separated issue. n17 In another antitrust case, the Fifth Circuit held that while the trial court could, under appropriate circumstances, decide the jurisdictional question in advance of trial under Rule 12(d), the court could not do so when the factual and jurisdictional issues are intermeshed. n18 However, dismissal for lack of subject matter jurisdiction has in other antitrust cases been held to be a proper exercise of the court's authority, and not a violation of the Seventh Amendment. n19

Under the Jones Act, the plaintiff's qualification as a "seaman" is a question for the jury, even though a finding that the plaintiff lacked seaman status would go to the court's jurisdiction to hear the case. n20 In a civil rights actions under section 1983, however, the court may determine, on a motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction, whether there has been sufficient involvement by state officials under color of state law. n21

[c] Personal Jurisdiction

Personal jurisdiction issues may also involve jury right issues, because the question of whether service has been properly made pursuant to a state's long arm statute may decide an ultimate issue in the merits of the case. For example, if jurisdiction over the person of the defendant is predicated on the commission of a tort within the state, or the commission of a tort outside the state having impact within the state, the court in deciding the jurisdictional issue, should not determine that the acts alleged in the complaint were not tortious, because that would resolving the question of negligence, which probably would be the central disputed issue in the case in chief. n22 One court has noted the conflict between the possible prejudice of denying the defendants a determination on the service issue before they were put to the expense of a complete trial, on one hand, and the prejudice to the plaintiff in foreclosing contested issues on the merits without a jury, on the other hand. As a compromise, the court ordered the parties to submit affidavits on the issue of the alleged tortious acts, and required the plaintiff to identify the persons and acts alleged. After considering the affidavits, the court stated that it would decide after a hearing whether the issue would be held for the trial on the merits. n23

[d] Venue

The issue of where proper venue is located is generally separate from the merits, and may be disposed of as a preliminary matter by the court on motion under Rule 12. The court's determination generally does not implicate Seventh Amendment rights. However, in the unlikely event that the issue of venue is intermeshed with the merits of the case, the court may be required to submit the matter to the jury. n24

[e] Choice of Law

If the case involves an issue of the choice of law to be applied, it may be necessary to decide where the situs of defendant's alleged acts occurred. For example, choice of law may determine whether the plaintiff has a cause of action, n25 or whether the court should grant dismissal on the grounds of forum non conveniens. n26 If the facts regarding choice of law are not intermeshed with the merits, the court may determine the issue. n27 On the other hand, if the issue is factually intermeshed with the merits of the case, and its resolution by the court would deprive a party of trial on the merits, it has been held that the question should be tried to the jury. n28

[f] Default

Under Rule 55, the clerk may enter judgment by default against a defendant (other than an infant or incompetent) who has failed to appear, when the plaintiff's claim is for a sum certain, or for a sum which by computation may be made certain. n29 In all other cases, the plaintiff may obtain a default by application to the court. If it is necessary to take an account, determine the amount of damages, establish the truth of any allegation by evidence, or make an investigation of any other matter, the court may conduct hearings or order references as it deems proper. In so doing, the court must accord a right of trial by jury to the parties when and as required by the statutes of the United States. n30 Thus, Rule 55 requires a jury trial on the amount of damages after default when there is a statutory jury trial right. However, the rule does not preserve the right to a jury trial after default based on the Seventh Amendment, and the courts have held that there is no constitutional jury trial right on the assessment of damages after a default. Even if a jury demand was duly made prior to a default, in a proper case in which legal issues were present, neither party has a constitutional right to a jury trial of the damages issue after the default. n31 While there is no constitutional right to a jury trial, several courts have held that it is nevertheless within the discretion of the trial court to grant a jury trial as to damages after a default judgment has been entered. n32

[g] Joined Parties

[i] Interpleader

Before the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure merged law and equity, interpleader actions lay only in equity, and therefore parties had no right to a jury even on issues that otherwise would have been tried to a jury. n33 This position continued until after the merger; then cases adopted the position that while there is no jury trial right in the first stage of interpleader in which the stakeholder shows entitlement to discharge; in the second stage, in which claims are made against the stake, the courts held that parties are entitled to a jury trial of legal issues, but not equitable issues. n34 Thus, interpleader should be viewed primarily as a device for the joinder of parties and claims which justice and judicial economy demand be tried together, and the device should not work to sacrifice a jury right available if the causes were tried separately. n35

[ii] Intervention

Once a party has qualified for the right to intervene under the provisions of Rule 24, n36 the intervenor has a right to a jury trial on any legal claim the intervenor makes. In a common example, an insurer that is permitted to intervene in a tort action against its insured after the insured entered into an agreement with the plaintiff, is entitled to demand a jury trial. n37 For purposes of determining the timeliness of a jury demand, the answer to an intervenor's complaint is considered the last pleading directed to the triable issues under Rule 38(b)(1). If an intervenor makes a demand within 14 days of service of that answer, the intervenor is entitled to a jury trial, n38 even though the right may previously have been waived by the original parties with respect to their original pleadings in the litigation, because they failed to make a timely demand after service of those pleadings. n38.1

[iii] Class Actions

Generally, class action plaintiffs have a Seventh Amendment right to obtain a jury trial on any legal issues they present. n39 Before the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure merged law and equity, class actions were generally considered a device of equity, and there was no right to a jury even on issues that might otherwise have been triable to a jury. n40 However, with the adoption of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and the merger of law and equity, there is no longer any procedural obstacle to a jury trial of legal rights, regardless of how a party may have acquired standing to assert those rights. n41 Furthermore, Rule 23 n42 was expressly intended by the drafters to be applicable to all civil actions whether formerly designated as legal or equitable. n43 Therefore, if a claim in a class action is legal, there is a right to a jury trial; n44 and when a claim is equitable, there is no jury trial right. n45

[iv] Shareholder Derivative Actions

Shareholder derivative suits were previously tried to the court, because shareholders had no legal right to bring suit, and the threshold question of standing was under the equitable jurisdiction of the court. After the merger of law and equity, a court may rule on the standing issue and then permit the underlying cause of action to be tried to a jury, if the underlying cause of action would be afforded that right. n46 Rule 23.1 provides that a derivative action may not be maintained if it appears that the plaintiff does not fairly and adequately represent the interests of the shareholders or members similarly situated in enforcing the right of the corporation or association. n47 The issue of standing to sue continues to be considered equitable in nature, and a stockholder is not entitled to a jury trial of that issue. n48

[h] Summary Judgment n*

A party is entitled to a jury trial only when there are triable issues of fact. n49 Consequently, if no genuine issue of material fact exists, the court may grant summary judgment, n50 and in doing so does not infringe on the parties' right to a jury trial. n51 However if the court grants partial summary judgment, specifying facts deemed not to be in dispute, the right to a jury trial remains with respect to facts that remain in issue, and is unaffected by the summary judgment order. n52

[i] Court's Instructions to Jury and Commentary on Evidence n*

The court's instructions to the jury, either before or after argument, n53 do not constitute a usurpation of the jury's function. n54 Furthermore, the fact that a trial court has had to correct an erroneous instruction, and has allowed the jury to deliberate a second time on the plaintiff's claim for compensatory damages, was not a violation of the defendants' Seventh Amendment right to a jury trial. n55

While Rule 51 does not expressly provide that the federal judge may comment on the evidence, that right was recognized by the common law and has been preserved to the present. n56 Thus, the trial judge is not limited to instructions of an abstract sort, but may assist the jury to arrive at a just conclusion by explaining and commenting on the evidence, by drawing their attention to the parts of it the judge thinks important, and by expressing an opinion on the facts, provided that the judge makes it clear to the jury that all matters of fact are submitted for their determination. n57 However, to preserve the right to a jury trial, this privilege has its inherent limitations. The judge's discretion is not arbitrary and uncontrolled but must be exercised in conformity with the standards governing the judicial office. In commenting on testimony, the judge may not assume the role of a witness. The judge may analyze and dissect the evidence but may not either distort it or add to it. n58 Thus, comments on the evidence may not remove from the jury its critical task of assigning weight to the evidence presented. n59

[j] Special Verdicts or Interrogatories Permitted

The court may require a jury to return a special verdict, in the form of special written findings on each issue of fact, as authorized under Rule 49(a), n60 or to require answers to interrogatories together with a general verdict, as authorized under Rule 49(b), n61 and courts have held that both procedures are permissible under the Seventh Amendment. n62 However, once the court uses a special verdict or interrogatories under Rule 49, it is a violation of the Seventh Amendment right to a jury trial for the court to disregard the jury's findings. n63 If a jury's special verdict appears to be in conflict, the court has a duty under the Seventh Amendment to attempt to harmonize the answers, n63.1 if at all possible under a fair reading. n64 Similarly, the Seventh Amendment requires that if there is view of case that makes the jury's answers to special interrogatories consistent, the court must adopt that view and enter judgment accordingly. n65

[k] Court's Grant of Judgment as Matter of Law

A party has a right to a jury trial in an action at law but not to a jury verdict. n66 Thus, a party need not obtain a verdict, and a court may set a verdict aside under common-law principles incorporated into the Constitution when there is no fact issue for the jury to decide. If the court finds that a reasonable jury would not have a legally sufficient evidentiary basis to find for the party on that issue, the court may resolve the issue against the party; n67 and grant a motion for judgment as a matter of law against the party on any claim or defense that, under the controlling law, can be maintained or defeated only with a favorable finding on that issue. n68

If the court does not grant a motion for judgment as a matter of law made prior to submission of the case to the jury, n68.1 the court is deemed to have submitted the action to the jury subject to the court's later deciding the legal questions raised by the motion. The moving party may file a renewed motion for judgment as a matter of law no later than 28 days after the entry of judgment, or if the motion addresses a jury issue not decided by a verdict, no later than 28 days after the jury was discharged. n68.2 The moving party also has the option to move for a new trial under Rule 59. n68.3 In ruling on the renewed motion, the court may choose one of three options: allow judgment on the verdict, if the jury returned a verdict; n68.4 order a new trial; n68.5 or direct the entry of judgment as a matter of law. n68.6

Arguably, a court's setting aside of a verdict and entry of judgment under Rule 50(b)(1)(C) could be considered to raise a Seventh Amendment jury right problem because a court is not permitted to reexamine the facts tried by a jury, other than according to common-law rules. n69 However, the federal rules have been structured to avoid the jury right question, because when it decides a renewal motion for judgment as a matter of law, the trial court is not technically setting aside the jury's verdict but is, in effect, withdrawing the case from the jury's consideration on permissible common-law grounds. n70

To avoid a constitutional challenge related to Rule 50, the trial court must view the evidence most favorably towards the non-moving party and must find that there is only one reasonable conclusion as to the proper verdict. When the trial court usurps the jury's function by weighing the credibility of witnesses or considering the evidence in a light favorable to the movant, the entry of judgment under Rule 50(a) or (b) constitutes an improper denial of the non-moving party's right to a jury trial under the Seventh Amendment. n71

[l] Court's Grant of New Trial

Under Rule 59, the court may grant a motion for new trial on the grounds that the verdict is against the weight of the evidence. The grant of the motion is based on the sound discretion of the court, which may set aside the verdict and direct a new trial. The granting of a new trial under Rule 59 has withstood constitutional challenge because the Seventh Amendment only prohibits re-examination of facts tried by a jury that is in derogation of the common law, and it has been held that the grant of a new trial is permissible when made according to common-law principles. n72

A court may also adjust an award of damages using a conditional grant of a new trial. Thus, if excessive damages have been awarded to a party, the court may order remittitur or a new trial, at the option of the party that has been awarded damages by the jury. Remittitur is permissible under the Seventh Amendment only when the verdict cannot be justified on the evidence, n73 and a remittitur may only be granted if the option of a new trial is offered by the court. If the court reduces a jury's damage award through remittitur without offering plaintiff the option of new trial on damages, the court has effectively denied the plaintiff his or her constitutional right to a jury trial. n74 However, if the court deems punitive damages excessive and that the amount set by the jury is in violation of due process clause as a matter of law, the Seventh Amendment's prohibition on reexamination of jury verdict does not prevent the court from entering a judgment in a reduced amount, even if the court does not afford the plaintiff the plaintiffs opportunity for new trial. n75

An order of additur, which increases a damage award when the court deems it is insufficient, is a violation of the Seventh Amendment, and is impermissible. n76

[m] Attorney's Fees

[i] Generally No Right to Jury on Issue of Fees

Whether to grant attorney's fees is generally for the court, because the granting of attorney's fees was an equitable issue at common law, and therefore the Seventh Amendment is not implicated. n77 Thus, courts have held that the threshold question of whether to grant attorney's fees is not necessarily a question for the jury. For example, it has been held that the Seventh Amendment is not implicated by 28 U.S.C. section 1927, n78 which allows the shifting of attorney's fees for unreasonably and vexatiously multiplying of proceedings in any federal court, n79 or for improper conduct under Rule 11, n80 which permits shifting of attorney's fees, among other sanctions, for frivolous and dilatory pleading designed to harass and delay. n81 The Supreme Court has also held that the district court judge must determine whether the plaintiffs are the "prevailing parties" such that plaintiffs may recover attorney's fees under 42 U.S.C. section 1988, n82 commenting that a request for attorney's fees should not result in a second major litigation. n83 It should also be noted that while there is generally no constitutional right to a jury trial as to the granting of attorney's fees, there is no requirement of a bench trial on the issue, and the court has discretion to allow the jury, as a trier of fact, to determine the issue. n84

[ii] Contractual Attorney's Fees May Create Right to Jury Trial

While there generally is no right to a jury trial to determine issues regarding attorney's fees, n85 when a contract calls for an award of attorney's fees, the issue as to whether such fees are recoverable is a traditional common-law contract issue and must be tried to a jury. n86 If the jury determines that the party may recover attorney's fees, and if the determination of the amount presents equitable issues, then a determination of the amount is for the judge. n87 Equitable issues include assessment of reasonableness, time and labor reasonably required by the case, skill demanded by novelty and complexity of the issues, burdensomeness of fees, incentive effects on future cases, and fairness to parties. These are all collateral issues that do not present the kind of common-law questions for which the Seventh Amendment preserves jury trials. n88

[6] Number of Jurors for Verdict n*

The constitutional jury trial right does not require a particular number of members to constitute a jury. Therefore, although 12 jurors are common for most juries, the Supreme Court held that a local court rule, providing for a six-person jury in the trial of civil cases, was valid and not a violation of the Seventh Amendment. n1 Recognizing the generality of juries of less than 12 members, Rule 48 provides that the court must seat a jury of not fewer than six and not more than 12 members, absent stipulation by the parties. n2 All jurors must participate in the verdict unless excused from service by the court, n3 unless the parties stipulate otherwise the verdict must be unanimous, n4 and the court may not take a verdict from a jury that has fewer than six members. n5

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury TrialConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsTrial by Jury in Civil Actions

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 38.10 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. U.S. Const. Amend. VII; see Osborn v. Haley, 549 U.S. 225, 252, 127 S. Ct. 881, 166 L. Ed. 2d 819 (2007) (no constitutional right for claims based on statute; jury trial right for such claims must be created by Congress).

(n3)Footnote 2. U.S. Const. Amend. VII.

(n4)Footnote 3. Curtis v. Loether, 415 U.S. 189, 193, 94 S. Ct. 1005, 39 L. Ed. 2d 260 (1974) ; United States v. Pelullo, 14 F.3d 881, 895 (3d Cir. 1994) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Bellmore v. Mobil Oil Corp., 783 F.2d 300, 306 (2d Cir. 1986) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Beesley v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 723 F. Supp. 635, 638 (N.D. Ala. 1989) .

(n7)Footnote 6. Beacon Theatres, Inc. v. Westover, 359 U.S. 500, 501, 79 S. Ct. 948, 3 L. Ed. 2d 988 (1959) .

(n8)Footnote 7. See Walker v. Ryan's Family Steak Houses, Inc., 289 F. Supp. 2d 916, 936 (M.D. Tenn. 2003) (federal policy in favor of jury trial stronger than federal policy in favor of arbitration).

(n9)Footnote 8. Danjaq LLC v. Sony Corp., 263 F.3d 942, 962 (9th Cir. 2001) ; Breedlove v. Cabou, 296 F. Supp. 2d 253, 277 (N.D.N.Y. 2003) .

(n10)Footnote 9. Reiner v. New Jersey, 732 F. Supp. 530, 533 (D. N.J. 1990) .

(n11)Footnote 10. Armster v. United States Dist. Court, 792 F.2d 1423, 1430 (9th Cir. 1986) .

(n12)Footnote 1. Lytle v. Household Mfg., Inc., 494 U.S. 545, 550, 110 S. Ct. 1331, 108 L. Ed. 2d 504 (1990) .

(n13)Footnote 2. Washington Int'l Ins. Co. v. United States, 863 F.2d 877, 878-879 (Fed Cir. 1988) ; Goar v. Compania Peruana de Vapores, 688 F.2d 417, 427 (5th Cir. 1982) .

(n14)Footnote 3. Ross v. Bernhard, 396 U.S. 531, 538 n.10, 90 S. Ct. 733, 24 L. Ed. 2d 729 (1970) ; Pons v. Lorillard, 549 F.2d 950, 953 (4th Cir. 1977) , aff'd, 434 U.S. 575 (1978) .

(n15)Footnote 4. *Haynes Trane Serv. Agency v. Am. Std., Inc., 2009 U.S. App. LEXIS 14924, at *44-45 (10th Cir. July 6, 2009) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n16)Footnote 5. Simplot v. Chevron Pipeline Co., 563 F.3d 1102, 1115 (10th Cir. 2009) .

(n17)Footnote 6. See Taylor Corp. v. Four Seasons Greetings, LLC, 403 F.3d 958, 969 (8th Cir. 2005) .

(n18)Footnote 7. See Snider v. Commercial Fin. Servs. (In re Commercial Fin. Servs.), 252 B.R. 516, 522 fn 3 (D. Okla. 2002) .

(n19)Footnote 8. City of Monterey v. Del Monte Dunes, 526 U.S. 687, 708-709, 119 S. Ct. 1624, 143 L. Ed. 2d 882 (1999) ; Central States, Southeast & Southwest Areas Pension Fund v. Brumm, 264 F. Supp. 2d 697, 699 (N.D. Ill. 2003) .

(n20)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 38.31 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n21)Footnote 1. Tull v. United States, 481 U.S. 412, 417, 107 S. Ct. 1831, 95 L. Ed. 2d 365 (1987) ; see [2], above.

(n22)Footnote 2. International Fin. Servs. Corp. v. Chromas Techs. Can., Inc., 356 F.3d 731, 736 (7th Cir. 2004) .

(n23)Footnote 3. *Haynes Trane Serv. Agency v. Am. Std., Inc., 2009 U.S. App. LEXIS 14924, at *44-45 (10th Cir. July 6, 2009) (actions that determine liability and money damages).

(n24)Footnote 4. AstenJohnson, Inc. v. Columbia Cas. Co., 562 F.3d 213, 223 (3d Cir. 2009) (citing Moore's Federal Practice; action for specific performance in conveyance of particular realty, without a claim for damages, is purely equitable and historically has always been tried to court).

(n25)Footnote 5. Waldrop v. Southern Co. Servs., Inc., 24 F.3d 152, 157 (11th Cir. 1994) .

(n26)Footnote 6. International Fin. Servs. Corp. v. Chromas Techs. Can., Inc., 356 F.3d 731, 737 (7th Cir. 2004) .

(n27)Footnote 7. Mile High Indus. v. Cohen, No., 222 F.3d 845, 856 (10th Cir. 2000) .

(n28)Footnote 8. Scheurenbrand v. Wood Gundy Corp., 8 F.3d 1547, 1551 (11th Cir. 1993) .

(n29)Footnote 9. See Leary v. Daeschner, 349 F.3d 888, 911 (6th Cir. 2004) .

(n30)Footnote 10. Taylor Corp. v. Four Seasons Greetings, LLC, 403 F.3d 958, 969 (8th Cir. 2005) .

(n31)Footnote 11. International Fin. Servs. Corp. v. Chromas Techs. Can., Inc., 356 F.3d 731, 737 (7th Cir. 2004) .

(n32)Footnote 12. Colorado Visionary Acad. v. Medtronic, Inc., 397 F.3d 867, 875 (10th Cir. 2005) .

(n33)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 38.32 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n34)Footnote 13. Granfinanciera, S.A. v. Nordberg, 492 U.S. 33, 41-42, 109 S. Ct. 2782, 106 L. Ed. 2d 26 (1989) ; Curtis v. Loether, 415 U.S. 189, 193, 94 S. Ct. 1005, 39 L. Ed. 2d 260 (1974) .

(n35)Footnote 14. Insurance Co. of N. Am. v. Virgilio, 574 F. Supp. 48, 50 (S.D. Cal. 1983) .

(n36)Footnote 15. See Mayer v. Cornell Univ., 909 F. Supp. 81, 85 (N.D.N.Y. 1995) .

(n37)Footnote 16. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(e).

(n38)Footnote 17. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Lago Canyon, Inc., 561 F.3d 1181, 1187-1189 (11th Cir. 2009) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 9(h)(1).

(n39)Footnote 18. 46 U.S.C. § 30104; see Stewart v. Dutra Constr. Co., 543 U.S. 481, 487-488, 125 S. Ct. 1118, 160 L. Ed. 2d 932 (2005) .

(n40)Footnote 19. Craig v. Atlantic Richfield Co., 19 F.3d 472, 475-476 (9th Cir. 1994) .

(n41)Footnote 20. Rachal v. Ingram Corp., 795 F.2d 1210, 1217 (5th Cir. 1986) .

(n42)Footnote 21. See 28 U.S.C. § 1333.

(n43)Footnote 22. Blancq v. Hapag-Lloyd A.G., 986 F. Supp. 376, 384 (E.D. La. 1997) .

(n44)Footnote 23. Penton v. Pompano Constr. Co., 976 F.2d 636, 638-639 (11th Cir. 1992) .

(n45)Footnote 24. Sphere Drake Ins. PLC v. J. Shree Corp, 184 F.R.D. 258 (S.D.N.Y. 1999) .

(n46)Footnote 25. Fitzgerald v. United States Lines, 374 U.S. 16, 21, 83 S. Ct. 1646, 10 L. Ed. 2d 720 (1963) ; Vodusek v. Bayliner Marine Corp., 71 F.3d 148, 153 (4th Cir. 1995) .

(n47)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 38.10[3][c] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n48)Footnote 26. Curtis v. Loether, 415 U.S. 189, 194, 94 S. Ct. 1005, 39 L. Ed. 2d 260 (1974) ; Losey v. Roberts, 677 F. Supp. 101, 106 (N.D.N.Y. 1986) .

(n49)Footnote 27. Granfinanciera, S.A. v. Nordberg, 492 U.S. 33, 51-52, 109 S. Ct. 2782, 2795, 106 L. Ed. 2d 26 (1989) .

(n50)Footnote 28. Connors v. Ryan's Coal Co., 923 F.2d 1461, 1465 (11th Cir. 1991) (authority to adjudicate claims based on congressionally created statutory public rights may be relegated to nonjudicial adjudication).

(n51)Footnote 29. NLRB v. Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., 301 U.S. 1, 48-49, 57 S. Ct. 615, 81 L. Ed. 893 (1937) .

(n52)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 38.11 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n53)Footnote 1. Vera-Lozano v. International Broadcasting, 50 F.3d 67, 71 (1st Cir. 1995) (parties in Puerto Rico federal courts afforded jury trial rights, although Puerto Rican Constitution does not allow jury trials in civil cases).

(n54)Footnote 2. Elliott v. City of Wheat Ridge, 49 F.3d 1458, 1459-1460 (10th Cir. 1995) .

(n55)Footnote 3. Byrd v. Blue Ridge Rural Electric Coop, 356 U.S. 525, 537-538, 78 S. Ct. 893, 2 L. Ed. 2d 953 (1958) .

(n56)Footnote 4. Fahy v. Nationwide Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 885 F. Supp. 678, 680 (M.D. Pa.1995) ; Welcker v. Smithkline Beckman, 746 F. Supp. 576, 582 (E.D. Pa. 1990) .

(n57)Footnote 5. Northern Pipeline Constr. Co. v. Marathon Pipe Line Co., 458 U.S. 50, 66, 102 S. Ct. 2858, 73 L. Ed. 2d 598 (1982) .

(n58)Footnote 6. Coleman v. C.I.R., 791 F.2d 68, 71 (7th Cir. 1986) .

(n59)Footnote 7. 28 U.S.C. § 157(b).

(n60)Footnote 8. In re Grabill Corp., 967 F.2d 1152, 1159-1160 (7th Cir. 1992) .

(n61)Footnote 9. 28 U.S.C. § 157(e).

(n62)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 38.34 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n63)Footnote 1. Galloway v. United States, 319 U.S. 372, 390-392, 63 S. Ct. 1077, 87 L. Ed. 1458 (1943) (purpose of Seventh Amendment is not to preserve jury decision for matters of form and procedure but for matters of substance).

(n64)Footnote 2. Winslow v. Lehr, 646 F. Supp. 242, 243-244 (D. Colo. 1986) .

(n65)Footnote 3. Rhea v. Massey-Ferguson, Inc., 767 F.2d 266, 268-269 (6th Cir. 1985) .

(n66)Footnote 4. Simplot v. Chevron Pipeline Co., 563 F.3d 1102, 1116 (10th Cir. 2009) (although ordinarily a procedural determination of court, party has right to jury determination of attorney fees as element of damages when fees are based on contract).

(n67)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(d).

(n68)Footnote 6. See 28 U.S.C. § 1332(a).

(n69)Footnote 7. See 28 U.S.C. § 1332(c).

(n70)Footnote 8. Williamson v. Tucker, 645 F.2d 404, 413 (5th Cir.) , cert. denied, 454 U.S. 897 (1981) ; Munro v. Doherr, 156 F. Supp. 723, 724 (D. Mass. 1957) .

(n71)Footnote 9. See 28 U.S.C. § 1332.

(n72)Footnote 10. Deutsch v. Hewes Street Realty Corp., 359 F.2d 96, 100 (2d Cir. 1966) .

(n73)Footnote 11. Jones v. Landry, 387 F.2d 102, 106 (5th Cir. 1967) .

(n74)Footnote 12. Deutsch v. Hewes Street Realty Corp., 359 F.2d 96, 100 (2d Cir. 1966) .

(n75)Footnote 13. See [i], above.

(n76)Footnote 14. See 28 U.S.C. § 1331(a).

(n77)Footnote 15. Land v. Dollar, 330 U.S. 731, 735-739, 67 S. Ct. 1009, 1010-1012, 91 L. Ed. 1209 (1947) .

(n78)Footnote 16. Marks Food Corp. v. Barbara Ann Baking Co., 274 F.2d 934, 936 (9th Cir. 1960) (trial court reversed when it decided on jurisdictional grounds that defendants' business was not shown to affect interstate commerce, because court invaded jury's province to determine basic issue in case).

(n79)Footnote 17. Marks Food Corp. v. Barbara Ann Baking Co., 274 F.2d 934, 936 (9th Cir. 1960) .

(n80)Footnote 18. McBeath v. Inter-American Citizens for Decency, 374 F.2d 359, 363 (5th Cir. 1967) , cert. denied, 389 U.S. 896 (1967) .

(n81)Footnote 19. Rosemound Sand & Gravel Co. v. Lambert Sand & Gravel Co., 469 F.2d 416, 418 (5th Cir. 1972) .

(n82)Footnote 20. Grimes v. Raymond Concrete Pile Co., 356 U.S. 252, 253, 78 S. Ct. 687, 688, 2 L. Ed. 2d 737 (1958) .

(n83)Footnote 21. Menchaca v. Chrysler Credit Corp., 613 F.2d 507, 512 (5th Cir. 1980) , cert. denied, 449 U.S. 953 (1980) .

(n84)Footnote 22. Andreas v. Imperial Airlines, Inc., 211 F. Supp. 311, 313 (E.D. Pa. 1962) .

(n85)Footnote 23. Unicon Mgmt. Corp. v. Koppers Co., 38 F.R.D. 474, 475-477 (S.D.N.Y. 1965) .

(n86)Footnote 24. Kierulff Assocs. v. Luria Bros. & Co., 240 F. Supp. 640, 642 (S.D.N.Y. 1965) (when venue and merits of action are intermeshed, issue should wait until trial, when full presentation of issue can be made, rather than rule preliminarily on a motion to dismiss for lack of proper venue).

(n87)Footnote 25. Marra v. Bushee, 447 F.2d 1282, 1284 (2d Cir. 1971) .

(n88)Footnote 26. Vaz Borralho v. Keydril Co., 696 F.2d 379, 386 (5th Cir. 1983) .

(n89)Footnote 27. Vaz Borralho v. Keydril Co., 696 F.2d 379, 387 (5th Cir. 1983) .

(n90)Footnote 28. Marra v. Bushee, 447 F.2d 1282, 1284 (2d Cir. 1971) (because plaintiff made a general demand for jury trial, defendant was entitled to the jury's consideration of every issue properly triable to jury, which included of the situs of defendant's conduct, a factual determination which would determine choice of law).

(n91)Footnote 29. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(1).

(n92)Footnote 30. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(2).

(n93)Footnote 31. Adriana Int'l Corp. v. Thoeren, 913 F.2d 1406, 1414 (9th Cir. 1990) , cert. denied, 498 U.S. 1109 (1991) ; Frankart Distributors, Inc. v. Levitz, 796 F. Supp. 75, 76 (E.D.N.Y. 1992) .

(n94)Footnote 32. Kormes v. Weis, Voisin & Co., 61 F.R.D. 608, 610 (E.D. Pa. 1974) (court granted jury trial on issue of damages).

(n95)Footnote 33. Ross v. Bernhard, 396 U.S. 531, 541 n.15, 90 S. Ct. 733, 24 L. Ed. 2d 729 (1970) .

(n96)Footnote 34. Hyde Properties v. McCoy, 507 F.2d 301, 305-306 (6th Cir. 1974) ; Jefferson Standard Ins. Co. v. Craven, 365 F. Supp. 861, 863-864 (M.D. Pa. 1973) .

(n97)Footnote 35. Jefferson Standard Ins. Co. v. Craven, 365 F. Supp. 861, 864 (M.D. Pa. 1973) .

(n98)Footnote 36. Fed. R. Civ. P. 24.

(n99)Footnote 37. Ross v. Bernhard, 396 U.S. 531, 541 n.15, 90 S. Ct. 733, 24 L. Ed. 2d 729 (1970) .

(n100)Footnote 38. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(b)(1); Trustees of the Constr. Indus. & Laborers Health & Welfare Trust v. Desert Valley Landscape & Maint., Inc., 156 F. Supp. 2d 1170, 1173 (D. Nev. 2001) .

(n101)Footnote 38.1. United States v. Country Club Garden Owners Ass'n, 159 F.R.D. 400, 405-406 (E.D.N.Y. 1995) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(d) (waiver of jury right).

(n102)Footnote 39. Ortiz v. Fibreboard Corp., 527 U.S. 815, 846, 119 S. Ct. 2295, 144 L. Ed. 2d 715 (1999) .

(n103)Footnote 40. Ross v. Bernhard, 396 U.S. 531, 540, 90 S. Ct. 733, 24 L. Ed. 2d 729 (1970) .

(n104)Footnote 41. Ross v. Bernhard, 396 U.S. 531, 540, 90 S. Ct. 733, 24 L. Ed. 2d 729 (1970) .

(n105)Footnote 42. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 23.

(n106)Footnote 43. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23, 1937 Committee Note.

(n107)Footnote 44. Syres v. Oil Workers International Union, 257 F.2d 479, 481 (5th Cir. 1958) (class action against union for damages for racial discrimination).

(n108)Footnote 45. Williams v. Travenol Labs., Inc., 344 F. Supp. 163, 165 (N.D. Miss. 1972) (class action seeking injunction against unlawful employment practices as well as back pay, promotions and compensatory seniority).

(n109)Footnote 46. Ross v. Bernhard, 396 U.S. 531, 538, 90 S. Ct. 733, 24 L. Ed. 2d 729 (1970) .

(n110)Footnote 47. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 23.

(n111)Footnote 48. Lewis v. Anderson, 615 F.2d 778, 784 (9th Cir. 1979) , cert. denied, 449 U.S. 869 (1980) .

(n112)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 38.12[3][a] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n113)Footnote 49. Matter of Texas Gen. Petroleum Corp., 52 F.3d 1330, 1339 (5th Cir. 1995) .

(n114)Footnote 50. Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c)(2).

(n115)Footnote 51. In re Slatkin, 525 F.3d 805, 811 (9th Cir. 2008) .

(n116)Footnote 52. Leasing Serv. Corp. v. Graham, 646 F. Supp. 1410, 1414 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) .

(n117)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 38.12[2][b] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n118)Footnote 53. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51.

(n119)Footnote 54. Dagnello v. Long Island R.R. Co., 289 F.2d 797, 799 (2d Cir. 1961) .

(n120)Footnote 55. Bonner v. Guccione, 178 F.3d 581, 587 (2d Cir. 1998) (resubmitting employment discrimination plaintiff's claim for compensatory damages to the jury, after discovering that jury had been improperly instructed, did not violate defendants' Seventh Amendment right to a jury trial because there is no constitutional impediment to resubmission of civil case for purposes of correcting erroneous legal instruction).

(n121)Footnote 56. Kerr-McGee Corp. v. Ma-Ju Marine Servs., Inc., 830 F.2d 1332, 1345 (5th Cir. 1987) .

(n122)Footnote 57. Quercia v. United States, 289 U.S. 466, 469, 53 S. Ct. 698, 77 L. Ed. 1321 (1933) .

(n123)Footnote 58. Quercia v. United States, 289 U.S. 466, 470, 53 S. Ct. 698, 77 L. Ed. 1321 (1933) .

(n124)Footnote 59. Hardin v. Ski Venture, Inc., 50 F.3d 1291, 1294 (4th Cir. 1995) .

(n125)Footnote 60. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(a).

(n126)Footnote 61. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(b).

(n127)Footnote 62. MCI Telecommunications Corp. v. Wanzer, 897 F.2d 703, 707 (4th Cir. 1990) ; Springborn v. American Commercial Barge Lines, Inc., 767 F.2d 89, 92 (5th Cir. 1985) .

(n128)Footnote 63. Floyd v. Laws, 929 F.2d 1390, 1397 (9th Cir. 1991) .

(n129)Footnote 63.1. See L & W, Inc. v. Shertech, Inc., 471 F.3d 1311, 1319 (Fed. Cir. 2006) (whether special verdict containing written factual findings pursuant to Rule 49(a) or general verdict accompanied by responses to factual interrogatories pursuant to Rule 49(b), trial court must give original jury opportunity to resolve any inconsistency in its responses).

(n130)Footnote 64. MCI Telecommunications Corp. v. Wanzer, 897 F.2d 703, 707-708 (4th Cir. 1990) .

(n131)Footnote 65. Springborn v. American Commercial Barge Lines, Inc., 767 F.2d 89, 92 (5th Cir. 1985) .

(n132)Footnote 66. Newell Cos., Inc. v. Kenney Mfg. Co., 864 F.2d 757, 763 (Fed. Cir. 1988) , cert. denied, 493 U.S. 814 (1989) .

(n133)Footnote 67. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(a)(1)(A).

(n134)Footnote 68. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(a)(1)(B).

(n135)Footnote 68.1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(a)(2).

(n136)Footnote 68.2. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(b); Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(b).

(n137)Footnote 68.3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(b).

(n138)Footnote 68.4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(b)(1).

(n139)Footnote 68.5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(b)(2).

(n140)Footnote 68.6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(b)(3).

(n141)Footnote 69. See Nelson v. Production Credit Association, 930 F.2d 599, 602 (8th Cir. 1991) .

(n142)Footnote 70. See Unitherm Food Sys. v. Swift-Eckrich, Inc., 546 U.S. 394 ,; 126 S. Ct. 980, 163 L. Ed. 2d 974, 984 (2006) .

(n143)Footnote 71. Gibson v. City of Cranston, 37 F.3d 731, 735 (1st Cir. 1994) .

(n144)Footnote 72. Cone v. West Virginia Pulp & Paper Co., 330 U.S. 212, 215-216, 67 S. Ct. 752, 91 L. Ed. 849 (1947) .

(n145)Footnote 73. Boyd v. Bulala, 672 F. Supp. 915, 921 (W.D. Va. 1987) , rev'd in part on other grounds, 877 F.2d 1191 (4th Cir. 1989) .

(n146)Footnote 74. Lightfoot v. Union Carbide Corp., 110 F.3d 898, 902 (2d Cir. 1997) .

(n147)Footnote 75. Johansen v. Combustion Eng'g, Inc., 170 F.3d 1320, 1328 (11th Cir. 1999) .

(n148)Footnote 76. Waldorf v. Shuta, 916 F. Supp. 423, 427 (D. N.J. 1996) , aff'd on other grounds, 142 F.3d 601 (3d Cir. 1998) (in order to avoid constitutional impediment to additur, personal injury plaintiff could not waive Seventh Amendment right to a jury trial, which he originally exercised when he filed his complaint, because defendants did not consent to such waiver, and permitting additur would negate defendants' right to jury trial).

(n149)Footnote 77. Columbus Mills, Inc. v. Freeland, 918 F.2d 1575, 1578 (11th Cir. 1990) .

(n150)Footnote 78. 28 U.S.C. § 1927.

(n151)Footnote 79. In re Itel Sec. Litig., 791 F.2d 672, 675-676 (9th Cir. 1986) , cert. denied, sub nom., Bader v. Itel Corp., 479 U.S. 1033 (1987) .

(n152)Footnote 80. Fed. R. Civ. P. 11.

(n153)Footnote 81. Donaldson v. Clark, 819 F.2d 1551, 1560-1561 (11th Cir. 1987) .

(n154)Footnote 82. 42 U.S.C. § 1988.

(n155)Footnote 83. Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 433-437, 103 S. Ct. 1933, 76 L. Ed. 2d 40 (1983) .

(n156)Footnote 84. Resolution Trust Corp. v. Marshall, 939 F.2d 274, 279 (5th Cir. 1991) .

(n157)Footnote 85. See [i], above.

(n158)Footnote 86. F.H. Krear & Co. v. Nineteen Named Trustees, 776 F.2d 1563, 1564 (2d Cir. 1985) .

(n159)Footnote 87. McGuire v. Russell Miller, Inc., 1 F.3d 1306, 1314-1316 (2d Cir. 1993) .

(n160)Footnote 88. McGuire v. Russell Miller, Inc., 1 F.3d 1306, 1315 (2d Cir. 1993) .

(n161)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 38.12[4] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n162)Footnote 1. Colgrove v. Battin, 413 U.S. 149, 158-159, 93 S. Ct. 2448, 37 L. Ed. 2d 522 (1973) .

(n163)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 48.

(n164)Footnote 3. Mason v. Texaco, Inc., 741 F. Supp. 1472, 1476, (D. Kan. 1990) , aff'd on other grounds, 948 F.2d 1546 (10th Cir. 1990) , cert. denied, 504 U.S. 910 (1992) .

(n165)Footnote 4. Johnson v. Louisiana, 406 U.S. 356, 369-370, 370 n.5, 92 S. Ct. 1620, 32 L. Ed. 2d 152 (1972) ; Murray v. Laborers Union Local No. 324, 55 F.3d 1445, 1451 (9th Cir. 1995) , cert. denied, 517 U.S. 1219 (1996) .

(n166)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 48.

3 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART I. RIGHT TO JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.02

§ 22.02 Right to Jury Trial in Actions Created by Federal Statutesn*

[1] Intellectual Property

[a] General Considerations

Certain general principles with respect to the right to a jury trial apply to all suits seeking relief from infringement of an intellectual property right, whether the right being protected is by patent, copyright, or trademark. If a party seeks injunctive relief alone, the remedy is clearly deemed equitable, and there is no right to a jury trial. n1 If the party is praying for damages only, the remedy is legal and there is a jury trial right. n2 The rules for the right to a jury question become more complicated when both legal and equitable issues are involved. The Supreme Court has established the principles to guide courts with regard to infringement litigation generally:

> 1. If a party is claiming damages, characterizing the claim as one for an equitable accounting will not deprive the parties of a right to a jury trial. It is the nature and substance of the relief sought and not the language used in the pleading that is controlling. n3 Similarly, if the plaintiff seeks damages for infringement, the legal claim is not defeated by characterizing it as incidental to equitable claims in the case. Thus, a damage claim entitles the party to a jury trial, even though the party is also requesting an accounting for lost profits and an injunction to prevent further infringement. n4
>
> 2. The court must arrange the sequence of the trial so that questions of fact that are common to both the legal and equitable claims will be tried first to the jury and then the equitable claims decided by the court on the basis of the jury's determinations. It would violate the parties' jury trial right to have the court decide the common questions, because the jury would then be estopped from reconsidering those questions. n5
>
> 3. A plaintiff may maintain a suit for an equitable accounting only when the plaintiff can show that the accounts between the parties are of such a complex nature that only a court of equity can satisfactorily unravel them. In view of the court's power to appoint a special master to aid the jury in such circumstances, it is rare that a plaintiff will be able to meet such a burden. n6

[b] Patent Infringement

In a claim for patent infringement, the Patent Act provides for a single action n7 in which the plaintiff may seek an injunction, n8 recovery of damages, n9 or both. n10 When an injunction alone is sought, there is no jury trial right; when damages are sought, the parties are entitled to a jury trial on demand; and if both are sought, any common issues are triable to the jury. n11

If a potential infringer brings an action for a declaratory judgment challenging the validity of a patent, it appears that the patentee is entitled to a jury trial of the validity issue because the Supreme Court has held that a party may not be deprived of its jury trial right simply because its adversary took advantage of the availability of declaratory relief and sued first. Thus, if the defendant in the declaratory judgment action would have had a right to a jury trial had it brought the action as plaintiff, then it is entitled to demand a jury trial in the "inverted" lawsuit. n12 An infringement action contains two parts, the first to determine the meaning and scope of the patent claims alleged to have been infringed and the second to compare the properly construed claims to the device that is alleged to be an infringement.

The Supreme Court has held that the first part--interpretation and construction of patent claims, which define the scope of the patentee's rights under the patent--is a matter of law exclusively for the court. In making its determination, the Court consulted existing precedent and considered both the relative interpretive skills of judge and jury, and the statutory policies to be furthered by the allocation between judge and jury. Modern authority clearly indicated that construction of the patent is a question of law for the court. n13

If the defendant in an action for patent infringement asserts the defense that the patentee failed to make full disclosure to the Patent and Trademark Office in the patent application process, and therefore the patent is invalid and unenforceable, the issue is equitable, and is not triable of right by a jury. n14 The issue of inequitable conduct may properly be tried by the court separately from, and prior to, the jury trial of the issues of invalidity and infringement, when there are no common questions of fact and the claims are not intertwined. n15 In cases in which there are common questions between an invalidity claim and a claim of inequitable conduct, the court need not submit both claims to the jury, but the common questions must be tried first to the jury before the court decides the equitable issues. n16

[c] Copyright Infringement

The statutory remedies for copyright infringement permit a copyright owner to seek an injunction to restrain the infringement, n17 to sue for damages and profits, n18 or to join both remedies in a single action. n19 When actual damages and profits are sought, the parties are entitled to a jury trial on that issue. n20 However, the copyright statute provides the copyright owner with an election between two forms of monetary recovery from a copyright infringer. As in ordinary tort cases, the copyright owner is entitled to prove and recover its actual damages and profits. n21 In addition, the statute grants an alternative form of recovery available to the copyright owner: the copyright owner may elect, at any time before final judgment is rendered, to recover, instead of actual damages and profits, an award of statutory damages for all infringements involved in the action.

Statutory damages, with respect to any one work for which any one infringer is liable individually, or for which any two or more infringers are liable jointly and severally, permit recovery of a sum of not less than $500 or more than $20,000 as the court considers just. This amount may be increased to a sum of not more than $100,000, if the copyright owner proves and the court finds, that infringement was committed willfully. n22

In cases in which statutory damages are sought under section 504(c), rather than actual damages, the Supreme Court has held that although the statute is silent concerning the statutory right to a jury trial, the Seventh Amendment provides a right to a jury trial on all issues pertinent to an award of copyright statutory damages, including the amount of damages to be awarded to the copyright owner. n23

[d] Trademark Infringement

A trademark infringement case will be deemed equitable in nature with no right to a jury trial, if only an injunction is sought, and legal in nature with the right to a jury on demand, if damages are sought. n24 In Dairy Queen, the Supreme Court held that merely characterizing the relief sought as an accounting did not deprive the parties of the right to a jury trial, when the true nature of the relief was a suit for damages. n25 However, subsequent cases have held that this rule is limited to circumstances where there is a contractual relationship between the parties. Absent such a relationship in an action to enjoin trademark infringement and for an equitable accounting, it has been held that a request for an accounting is an equitable remedy, and that the parties were not entitled to a jury trial. n26

[2] Condemnation

There is no Seventh Amendment right to a jury trial in a condemnation action. n1 However, the Federal Rules provide that any party may demand a jury trial in a condemnation case to determine the issue of just compensation, unless a tribunal has been specially constituted for that purpose by statute, n2 or unless the court, in its discretion, appoints a three-person commission to determine the compensation issue. n3 Thus, subject to the exceptions to the special tribunal or the commission, the general method of trial of that issue must be by jury if a party demands it within the time set to answer or set by the court; n4 otherwise, the issue of just compensation, as well as all other issues, must be tried by the court. n4.1

The requirement of a jury trial under Rule 71.1(h) is limited to traditional condemnation proceedings, initiated by government, and not to inverse condemnation actions, which are actions initiated by a private party to obtain compensation for a government taking. It has been held that although the concept of just compensation is the same in both traditional and inverse condemnation proceedings, the actions are sufficiently different that procedures applicable to one do not necessarily apply to the other. If it were Congress' intent to provide for jury trial in this context, the right should have been clearly expressed in the relevant legislation. n5

[3] Antitrust and Trade Regulation

There are two types of federal civil antitrust litigation: actions by the United States and actions by persons injured in their business or property by antitrust violations. The sole civil relief available to the United States is an action for injunction, to prevent and restrain violations of the antitrust laws. Such an action is expressly designated in the statute as an "equity" action, n1 and consequently there is no right to a jury trial. n2

When a person has been injured in business or property on account of a violation of the antitrust laws, the person may sue for treble damages under Section 4 of the Clayton Act, n3 and the courts have recognized that an action for treble damages under the antitrust laws is an action at law and therefore the parties are entitled to a jury trial of right. n4 The Clayton Act also provides that a person threatened with loss or damage by reason of an antitrust violation may sue for injunctive relief. n5

If an action is brought seeking injunctive relief alone, there is no right to a jury trial, because such relief is equitable in nature. However, if a complaint seeks damages as well as injunctive relief, the claims may be joined under Rule 18, with the issues pertaining to the equitable claim tried to the court and the legal issues tried to the jury. n6 Similarly, if damages are sought in a counterclaim in an action for injunctive or declaratory relief, the damages claim is triable to a jury. n7 If legal and equitable claims are raised in an antitrust action, common questions must be tried first to the jury, because the parties will be collaterally estopped from relitigating those issues once a fact finder has determined them. n8

[4] Declaratory Judgments

The Declaratory Judgment Act provides that in all cases of actual controversy when there is federal jurisdiction, the district courts may entertain actions for the declaration of rights and other legal relations between parties. n1 The right to a jury trial in declaratory judgment actions is made subject to the provisions of Rules 38 and 39 by Rule 57. n2 Therefore, any right of jury trial is waived by failure to make timely demand, and if waived, the action must be tried to the court. n3 Because declaratory relief actions are subject to the federal rules regarding jury trials, the right to a jury trial is preserved only when it exists, depending on the basic nature of the underlying issues, whether legal or equitable. n4 A party may not convert an equity action into a legal action or vice versa by merely including a claim for a declaratory judgment. n5

[5] Employment Discrimination

[a] Racial and Sexual Discrimination

The Civil Rights Act of 1991 n1 expressly created a right to trial by jury and also provided for the award of compensatory and punitive damages, n2 in addition to the back pay remedy that was formerly available under the Act. The Act does not apply retroactively, however, to conduct occurring before it was enacted. n3 On the other hand, in cases in which some of the conduct complained of occurred after the enactment of the Act, the right to a jury trial has been permitted as to both pre-enactment and post-enactment conduct, on a theory of continuing violation. n4

The courts have held that section 1981 and section 1983 claims are to be treated as equitable claims to be tried by the bench when only back pay and reinstatement are sought, because these are equitable remedies. n5 When both back pay and compensatory damages are sought, the courts have held that the issue of back pay should also be determined by the jury. n6

[b] Age Discrimination

The Age Discrimination in Employment Act (ADEA) n7 provides that a person is entitled to a trial by jury of any issue of fact in any action for recovery of amounts owing as a result of a violation of the ADEA, regardless of whether any party to the action is seeking equitable relief. n8 This section has been interpreted to mean that parties have a right to a jury trial on the legal claims but not on the equitable claims. n9

It has been held that if a party seeks an award of back pay under the ADEA, the party is seeking a legal remedy, n10 because the ADEA incorporates provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act into its enforcement section, and claims for back pay under FLSA are clearly legal in nature and uniformly accorded the right to a jury trial. n11 Similarly, a party asking for liquidated damages in an ADEA case is seeking legal relief, entitling the party to a jury trial. n12

On the other hand, requests for an injunction and reinstatement have been deemed requests for equitable relief under the ADEA, and claimants seeking such relief are not entitled to a jury trial as of right. n13 Furthermore, a request for an award of "front pay" in an ADEA suit is considered equitable relief, because it is in lieu of the equitable remedy of reinstatement, and therefore there is no right to a jury trial on the issue of front pay. n14

A party does not have a right to a jury trial in an ADEA age discrimination suit when the defendant is the federal government. It has been held that the language in the ADEA authorizing legal relief does not create a jury trial right against the government, but only implies applicability of the Seventh Amendment in suits between private parties, because any waiver of sovereign immunity, including the method of trial, is strictly construed. n15

[c] Discrimination on Account of Disability

A person who sues for a violation of the employment discrimination provisions (Title I) of the Americans With Disabilities Act is entitled to the remedies available to employees under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended by the Civil Rights Act of 1991. n16 The 1991 Act provides that employees who prevail on their claims may recover compensatory and punitive damages, and a party who prays for compensatory and punitive damages may demand and receive a trial by jury. n17 Therefore, plaintiffs who initiate employment discrimination claims under the ADA n18 are entitled to jury trials when they have sought something more than the traditionally equitable remedies of back pay and reinstatement. If a claim is made for compensatory or punitive damages, a jury trial demand will be granted. n19 However, equitable remedies under the ADA, such as reinstatement, back pay, and front pay, must be determined by the court. n20 If a complaint contains both legal and equitable claims, the underlying issue of liability for disability discrimination is decided by the jury. n21

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury TrialCopyright LawCivil Infringement ActionsGeneral OverviewPatent LawInfringement ActionsGeneral OverviewReal Property LawEminent Domain ProceedingsProcedureTrademark LawInfringement ActionsFederal Jury Trials

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 38.33 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Chappell & Co., Inc. v. Pumpernickel Pub, Inc., 79 F.R.D. 528, 531 (D. Conn. 1977) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Oiness v. Walgreen Co., 838 F. Supp. 1420, 1421 (D. Colo. 1993) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Dairy Queen, Inc. v. Wood, 369 U.S. 469, 477-479, 82 S. Ct. 894, 8 L. Ed. 2d 44 (1962) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Dairy Queen, Inc. v. Wood, 369 U.S. 469, 473, 82 S. Ct. 894, 8 L. Ed. 2d 44 (1962) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Dairy Queen, Inc. v. Wood, 369 U.S. 469, 472-473, 82 S. Ct. 894, 8 L. Ed. 2d 44 (1962) .

(n7)Footnote 6. Dairy Queen, Inc. v. Wood, 369 U.S. 469, 473, 82 S. Ct. 894, 8 L. Ed. 2d 44 (1962) .

(n8)Footnote 7. 35 U.S.C. § 281.

(n9)Footnote 8. 35 U.S.C. § 283.

(n10)Footnote 9. 35 U.S.C. § 284.

(n11)Footnote 10. Activated Sludge v. City of Fort Worth, 89 F.2d 278, 279 (5th Cir. 1937) , cert. denied, 302 U.S. 701 (1937) .

(n12)Footnote 11. In re Lockwood, 50 F.3d 966, 975 (Fed. Cir.) , vacated on other grounds, 115 S. Ct. 2274, 132 L. Ed. 2d 279 (1995) .

(n13)Footnote 12. Beacon Theatres, Inc. v. Westover, 359 U.S. 500, 504, 79 S. Ct. 948, 3 L. Ed. 2d 988 (1959) .

(n14)Footnote 13. Markman v. Westview Instruments, Inc., 517 U.S. 370, 384-386, 116 S. Ct. 1384, 134 L. Ed. 2d 577 (1996) .

(n15)Footnote 14. Paragon Podiatry Lab, Inc. v. KLM Labs., Inc., 984 F.2d 1182, 1190 (Fed. Cir. 1993) .

(n16)Footnote 15. Gardco Mfg., Inc. v. Herst Lighting Co., 820 F.2d 1209, 1213 (Fed. Cir. 1987) .

(n17)Footnote 16. Avco Corp. v. PPG Indus., Inc., 867 F. Supp. 84, 98 (D. Mass. 1994) .

(n18)Footnote 17. 17 U.S.C. § 502(a).

(n19)Footnote 18. 17 U.S.C. § 504(b).

(n20)Footnote 19. Sony Corp. of America v. Universal City Studios, Inc., 464 U.S. 417, 433-434, 104 S. Ct. 774, 78 L. Ed. 2d 574 (1984) .

(n21)Footnote 20. McMahon v. Prentice-Hall, Inc., 486 F. Supp. 1296, 1299 (E.D. Mo. 1980) .

(n22)Footnote 21. 17 U.S.C. § 504(b).

(n23)Footnote 22. 17 U.S.C. § 504(c).

(n24)Footnote 23. Feltner v. Columbia Pictures Television, Inc., 523 U.S. 340, 118 S. Ct. 1279, 1284, 140 L. Ed. 2d 438 (1998) .

(n25)Footnote 24. Dairy Queen, Inc. v. Wood, 369 U.S. 469, 478, 82 S. Ct. 894, 8 L. Ed. 2d 44 (1962) ; see Ringling Bros.-Barnum & Bailey Combined Shows, Inc. v. Utah Div. of Travel Dev., 170 F.3d 449, 465 (4th Cir. 1999) (on claim of trademark dilution under Lanham Act, plaintiff has right to a jury trial only on issue of willfulness of violation and damages; if violation is not willful, only remedy available is injunction).

(n26)Footnote 25. Dairy Queen, Inc. v. Wood, 369 U.S. 469, 477-479, 82 S. Ct. 894, 8 L. Ed. 2d 44 (1962) .

(n27)Footnote 26. Ferrari S.P.A. Esercizio v. Roberts, 944 F.2d 1235, 1248 (6th Cir. 1991) , cert. denied, 505 U.S. 1219 (1992) ; Coca-Cola Co. v. Wright, 55 F.R.D. 11, 12 (W.D. Tenn. 1971) .

(n28)Footnote 1. United States v. 4. 0 Acres of Land, 175 F.3d 1133, 1139-1140 (9th Cir. 1999) .

(n29)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 71.1(h)(1)(A).

(n30)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 71.1(h)(1)(B); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 71.1(h)(2)(A).

(n31)Footnote 4. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 71.1(h)(1)(B).

(n32)Footnote 4.1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 71.1(h)(1).

(n33)Footnote 5. KLK, Inc. v. United States Dep't of the Interior, 35 F.3d 454, 456-457 (9th Cir. 1994) .

(n34)Footnote 1. 15 U.S.C. § 4.

(n35)Footnote 2. United States v. Lima News, 244 F. Supp. 592, 593-594 (N.D. Ohio 1965) .

(n36)Footnote 3. 15 U.S.C. § 15.

(n37)Footnote 4. Calnetics Corp. v. Volkswagen of America, Inc., 532 F.2d 674, 690 (9th Cir. 1976) , cert. denied, 429 U.S. 940 (1976) .

(n38)Footnote 5. 15 U.S.C. § 26.

(n39)Footnote 6. Ring v. Spina, 166 F.2d 546, 550 (2d Cir. 1948) , cert. denied, 335 U.S. 813 (1948) .

(n40)Footnote 7. Beacon Theatres, Inc. v. Westover, 359 U.S. 500, 508, 79 S. Ct. 948, 3 L. Ed. 2d 988 (1959) .

(n41)Footnote 8. Beacon Theatres, Inc. v. Westover, 359 U.S. 500, 510-511, 79 S. Ct. 948, 3 L. Ed. 2d 988 (1959) .

(n42)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. §§ 2201, 2202.

(n43)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 57.

(n44)Footnote 3. Firemen's Ins. Co. of Newark v. Smith, 180 F.2d 371, 374 (8th Cir. 1950) , cert. denied, 339 U.S. 980 (1950) .

(n45)Footnote 4. Golden v. Kelsey-Hayes Co., 73 F.3d 648, 661 (6th Cir. 1996) (when plaintiffs claimed breach of collective bargaining agreement, sought declaration of their rights under Declaratory Judgment Act, and also sought injunction and incidental damages, court held that relief sought was equitable and that damages were intertwined with and part of equitable relief).

(n46)Footnote 5. Golden v. Kelsey-Hayes Co., 73 F.3d 648, 662 (6th Cir. 1996) (could not convert equity action into legal action); Beacon Theatres, Inc. v. Westover, 359 U.S. 500, 504, 79 S. Ct. 948, 3 L. Ed. 2d 988 (1959) (could not convert legal action into equity action).

(n47)Footnote 1. 42 U.S.C. §§ 1981, 1981a and 2000e-17.

(n48)Footnote 2. 42 U.S.C. § 1981a(c).

(n49)Footnote 3. Landgraf v. USI Film Prods., 511 U.S. 244, 285-286, 114 S. Ct. 1483, 1508, 128 L. Ed. 2d 229 (1994) ; Waterson v. Plank Road Motel Corp., 43 F. Supp. 2d 284, 286 (N.D.N.Y. 1999).

(n50)Footnote 4. Mills v. Amoco Performance Prods., Inc., 872 F. Supp. 975, 986 (S.D. Ga. 1994) (fact that plaintiffs may recover only equitable relief for pre-enactment conduct does not bar jury trial of their claims based on pre-enactment conduct).

(n51)Footnote 5. Sullivan v. School Bd. of Pinellas Co., 773 F.2d 1182, 1187 (11th Cir. 1985) (reinstatement, back pay and reimbursement for lost professional benefits are all equitable).

(n52)Footnote 6. Santiago-Negron v. Castro-Davila, 865 F.2d 431, 441 (1st Cir. 1989) .

(n53)Footnote 7. See 29 U.S.C. §§ 621-634.

(n54)Footnote 8. 29 U.S.C. § 626(c)(2).

(n55)Footnote 9. Duke v. Uniroyal, Inc., 928 F.2d 1413, 1422 (4th Cir.) , cert. denied, 502 U.S. 963 (1991) (when party seeks both legal and equitable remedies, appropriate procedure requires court to submit case first to the jury to resolve liability and all legal damages, and then court conducts trial in equity to resolve all issues of equitable relief); Tomasello v. Rubin, 167 F.3d 612, 619 (D.C. Cir. 1999) (however, federal employee is not entitled to a jury trial on ADEA claims, and there is no Seventh Amendment issue in such cases under ADEA; Congress did not provide right to trial by jury when it waived sovereign immunity of United States).

(n56)Footnote 10. Sailor v. Hubbell, Inc., 4 F.3d 323, 325-326 (4th Cir. 1993) .

(n57)Footnote 11. Lorillard v. Pons, 434 U.S. 575, 98 S. Ct. 866, 55 L. Ed. 2d 40 (1978) .

(n58)Footnote 12. Lindsey v. American Cast Iron Pipe Co., 810 F.2d 1094, 1097 n.3 (11th Cir. 1987) .

(n59)Footnote 13. Duke v. Uniroyal, Inc., 928 F.2d 1413, 1424 (4th Cir.) , cert. denied, 502 U.S. 963 (1991) .

(n60)Footnote 14. Fortino v. Quasar Co., 950 F.2d 389, 398 (7th Cir. 1991) .

(n61)Footnote 15. Lehman v. Nakshian, 453 U.S. 156, 161, 101 S. Ct. 2698, 69 L. Ed. 2d 548 (1981) .

(n62)Footnote 16. See 42 U.S.C. § 12117.

(n63)Footnote 17. 42 U.S.C. § 1981a(c)(1); see [a], above.

(n64)Footnote 18. 42 U.S.C. § 12101.

(n65)Footnote 19. Howell v. Michelin Tire Corp., 860 F. Supp. 1488, 1494 (M.D. Ala. 1994) ; Braverman v. Penobscot Shoe Co., 859 F. Supp. 596, 605-606 (D. Me. 1994) .

(n66)Footnote 20. Braverman v. Penobscot Shoe Co., 859 F. Supp. 596, 606 (D. Me. 1994) .

(n67)Footnote 21. Curtis v. Loether, 415 U.S. 189, 196 n.11, 94 S. Ct. 1005, 1009, 39 L. Ed. 2d 260 (1974) (jury trial right remains on common-law issues in joined claim).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART I. RIGHT TO JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.03

§ 22.03 Federal Law Determines Right to Jury Trial in Federal Courtn*

The right to a jury trial in the federal courts must be determined as a matter of federal law in diversity actions as well as other actions, n1 because the Supreme Court has stated that only by application of the federal law may the uniformity required by the Seventh Amendment be achieved. n2 In diversity cases, although the substantive aspect of the claim is governed by state law, n3 the characterization of that state-created claim as legal or equitable for purposes of determining whether a right to a jury trial is indicated, must be made by recourse to federal law. n4 Thus, even when the source of the substantive claim is in state law, federal law will determine the right to a jury trial. n5

As noted above, when state law does not provide for a jury trial of right, but federal law requires one, the federal policy controls. n6 It is important to realize that even when the situation is reversed, and the state would grant a jury trial but the federal law would not, the courts have also held that federal law applies, and the demand for jury trial must be denied. n7

Federal law also governs with respect to the unanimity requirement of the right to a jury trial. Thus, Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 48 requires a unanimous verdict unless the parties stipulate otherwise. This is not the rule in all states, and therefore conflicts have sometimes arisen in diversity actions when a party has argued that a less than unanimous majority verdict should suffice in federal court because it is permissible under state law. The courts have disagreed, and held that the federal rule applies, because while the interest in a unanimous verdict does not rise to constitutional dimensions, it is cloaked in a strong tradition, and trial management of the federal courts is an important concern of the federal judiciary. n8

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury Trial

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 38.14 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Johansen v. Combustion Eng'g, Inc., 170 F.3d 1320, 1328 (11th Cir. 1999) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Simler v. Conner, 372 U.S. 221, 222, 83 S. Ct. 609, 9 L. Ed. 2d 691 (1963) (holding that federal law should apply because of the strong federal policy against allowing state rules to disrupt the judge-jury relationship in the federal courts); see also Phoenix Leasing, Inc. v. Sure Broadcasting, Inc., 843 F. Supp. 1379, 1384 (D. Nev. 1994) (federal law governs validity of jury waiver).

(n4)Footnote 3. Erie R. Co. v. Tompkins, 304 U.S. 64, 78-80, 58 S. Ct. 817, 82 L. Ed. 1188 (1938) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Amoco Oil Co. v. Torcomian, 722 F.2d 1099, 1103 (3d Cir. 1983) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Fahy v. Nationwide Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 885 F. Supp. 678, 680 (M.D. Pa. 1995) (right to jury trial in federal court on state statutory claim is determined as matter of federal law).

(n7)Footnote 6. Simler v. Conner, 372 U.S. 221, 222, 83 S. Ct. 609, 9 L. Ed. 2d 691 (1963) ; Byrd v. Blue Ridge Rural Elec. Coop., 356 U.S. 525, 538, 78 S. Ct. 893, 2 L. Ed. 2d 953 (1958) .

(n8)Footnote 7. Goar v. Compania Peruana de Vapores, 688 F.2d 417, 423-424 (5th Cir. 1982) .

(n9)Footnote 8. Masino v. Outboard Marine Corp., 652 F.2d 330, 331-332 (3d Cir. 1981) , cert. denied, 454 U.S. 1055 (1981) .

5 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART I. RIGHT TO JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.04

§ 22.04 Effect of Federal Rules on Right to Jury Trialn*

Rule 38(a) preserves the right of jury trial in those cases in which the right is protected by the Seventh Amendment to the Constitution or is provided by federal statute. n1 The rule does not change the substantive principles regarding the right to a jury trial. The rule contains no affirmative grant and neither enlarges nor restricts the right to a jury trial that existed before the federal rules were adopted. n2 This means that issues that have been historically triable by jury as of right are still triable by jury as of right, while actions historically triable by the court, because a right of trial by jury did not exist under the Constitution or statutes of the United States, are still triable by the court. n3

The purpose of the language of Rule 38(a) is to ensure that the unification of law and equity does not intend to alter the fundamental right to a jury trial. n4 In other words, while Rule 2 creates one form of action, known as a civil action, which took the place of the former separate suits at law and in equity, the drafters wanted to maintain the historical distinction for purposes of the Seventh Amendment. Thus, even though claims and defenses formerly cognizable either at law or equity have been merged into one action, Rule 38(a) makes it clear that the federal rules in their entirety have neither enlarged nor diminished the right to either a jury or court trial. n5 However, while it is clear that the federal rules created no new jury trial rights, the simplification of procedures provided by the rules has had a net effect of broadening the class of cases triable by a jury as of right. n6 Liberal joinder provisions permit legal and equitable causes to be brought and resolved in one civil action, thereby eliminating the need for the former practice of equity courts trying legal issues as incidental to equitable causes. Similarly, the role of injunction and other equitable remedies has been affected by the availability of declaratory relief. n7

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury Trial

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 38.03 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Granfinanciera, S.A. v. Nordberg, 492 U.S. 33, 40-41 n.3, 109 S. Ct. 2782, 106 L. Ed. 2d 26

(1989) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(d).

(n3)Footnote 2. Rachal v. Ingram Corp., 795 F.2d 1210, 1214 (5th Cir. 1986) ; In re Zweibon, 565 F.2d 742, 748 (D.C. Cir. 1977) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Fitzpatrick v. Sun Life Assur. Co. of Canada, 1 F.R.D. 713, 715 (D.C. N.J. 1941) ; see Bynum v. Prudential Life Ins. Co. of Am., 7 F.R.D. 585, 586 (E.D. S.C. 1947) .

(n5)Footnote 4. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(a).

(n6)Footnote 5. Dixon v. Northwestern Nat'l Bank of Minneapolis, 297 F. Supp. 485, 488 (D. Minn. 1969) ; Dewey Electronics Corp. v. Montage, Inc., 117 F.R.D. 73, 74 (M.D. Pa. 1987) .

(n7)Footnote 6. See Bruckman v. Hollzer, 152 F.2d 730, 733 (9th Cir. 1946) .

(n8)Footnote 7. See Beacon Theatres, Inc. v. Westover, 359 U.S. 500, 509, 79 S. Ct. 948, 3 L. Ed. 2d 988 (1959) .

6 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART I. RIGHT TO JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.05

§ 22.05 Right to Jury Trial and Collateral Estoppeln*

The doctrine of offensive collateral estoppel generally provides that once a court has decided an issue that has been completely and fairly litigated that determination may be relied on in subsequent proceedings. Because of the collateral estoppel effect, when legal and equitable claims are raised in a single action, common questions must be tried first to a jury, because the jury trial right must not be impaired through prior determination of equitable claims. n1 This rule applies whether the legal issues are characterized as incidental to the equitable issues or not. n2

If a court determines issues of fact in an equitable action, that determination may have a collateral estoppel effect on a subsequent law action involving the same issues. Furthermore, a plaintiff who did not participate in the earlier action may be permitted to offensively use the determination under appropriate circumstances, and the fact that there was not an identity of the parties does not violate the Seventh Amendment right to a jury trial of the defendant in the second action. n3

However, there are limitations on the offensive use of collateral estoppel. It is not permitted in cases in which a private plaintiff could have joined in the original action but elected not to do so in order to benefit from rulings adverse to the defendant; cases in which the defendant did not have an incentive to vigorously defend the original suit; cases in which the prior judgment against the defendant was inconsistent with other previous judgments; and cases in which the second action gave the defendant procedural opportunities not present in the prior action. n4 Offensive use of collateral estoppel is also prohibited in any case in which plaintiff's legal claims were erroneously dismissed in the prior action, and the court proceeded to resolve the common issues without a jury. n5

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury TrialCivil ProcedureJudgmentsPreclusion & Effect of JudgmentsEstoppelCollateral Estoppel

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 38.13 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Beacon Theatres, Inc. v. Westover, 359 U.S. 500, 510, 79 S. Ct. 948, 3 L. Ed. 2d 988 (1959) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Curtis v. Loether, 415 U.S. 189, 196, 94 S. Ct. 1005, 39 L. Ed. 2d 260 (1974) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Parklane Hosiery Co. v. Shore, 439 U.S. 322, 335, 99 S. Ct. 645, 58 L. Ed. 2d 552 (1979) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Parklane Hosiery Co. v. Shore, 439 U.S. 322, 329-331, 99 S. Ct. 645, 58 L. Ed. 2d 552 (1979) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Lytle v. Household Mfg., Inc., 494 U.S. 545, 551-553, 110 S. Ct. 1331, 108 L. Ed. 2d 504 (1990)
.

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART I. RIGHT TO JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.06

§ 22.06 Jury Right When Federal Government is Partyn*

[1] United States Claimant

When an action is brought by or on behalf of the United States, the right to a jury trial is protected by the Seventh Amendment and is governed by the same rules that apply to actions by any other plaintiff, n1 provided that the action is to adjudicate a private right by the government against a private party. This means that there is a right to a jury trial if the suit might give rise to liability on the part of individual to pay the government. n2 Thus, when the United States or its agency is the initiator of a suit, legal issues are triable to a jury, n3 but equitable issues are triable without a jury. n4

The question of sovereign immunity is not implicated because the government is the party bringing the suit, except with respect to counterclaims or cross-claims against the United States. n5 The right to a jury trial for private actions applies to any party who is defending a claim instituted by the government, including a third-party defendant; for example, a third-party defendant impleaded by the government for contribution or indemnity, may obtain a jury trial of legal issues in the suit. n6

[2] United States Defendant

[a] No General Right to Jury in Action Against Government

In contrast to cases when the federal government has initiated a suit, n1 the Seventh Amendment right to a jury trial does not apply in actions when the federal government is the defendant, n2 because there was no right to sue the sovereign at common law, and therefore the Seventh Amendment's preservation of the jury trial right in suits at common law does not apply. n3 Under the Federal Tort Claims Act, the district courts have exclusive jurisdiction over civil actions against the United States for money damages for injury to or loss of property, personal injury, or wrongful death, n4 and any suit under the Act must be tried by the court without a jury. n5

The United States as sovereign is immune from suit, except to the extent that it consents to be sued, and the terms of its consent to be sued in any court define that court's jurisdiction to entertain the suit. n6 Therefore, once the government waives immunity from suit, the plaintiff has a right to a trial by jury against the government only if that right is one of the express terms of the government's consent to be sued. n7 If the government does not expressly give up its right to a trial by the court, a party's right to a jury trial against the government will not be implied. n8

[b] Statutory Right to Jury in Action Against Government in Tax Case

The district courts have original jurisdiction, concurrent with the Court of Federal Claims, over any civil action against the United States for the recovery of any internal-revenue tax alleged to have been erroneously or illegally assessed or collected, or any penalty claimed to have been collected without authority or any sum that is excessive or has in any manner wrongfully been collected under the internal-revenue laws. n9 When a party brings an action against the United States under this tax provision, either party may request that the case be tried by the jury. n10 If the taxpayer brings suit in the tax court, the taxpayer has no right, statutory or constitutional, to a jury trial. n11 In order to obtain a jury trial, the taxpayer must pay the tax allegedly owed and then sue for a refund in the district court. n12

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury TrialGovernmentsFederal GovernmentClaims By & Against

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 38.40 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Damsky v. Zavatt, 289 F.2d 46, 51 (2d Cir. 1961) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Austin v. Shalala, 994 F.2d 1170, 1175 (5th Cir. 1993) (right to jury trial when suit might give rise to liability of individual for overpayment by government of social security widow's benefits).

(n4)Footnote 3. United States v. J.B. Williams Co., 498 F.2d 414, 430 (2d Cir. 1974) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Wirtz v. National Maritime Union, 399 F.2d 544, 547 (2d Cir. 1968) (action by Secretary of Labor for court order setting aside union election and ordering new election).

(n6)Footnote 5. Cf. In re Young, 869 F.2d 158, 160 (2d Cir. 1989) .

(n7)Footnote 6. Barron v. United States, 654 F.2d 644, 650 (9th Cir. 1981) .

(n8)Footnote 1. See [1], above.

(n9)Footnote 2. Lehman v. Nakshian, 453 U.S. 156, 160, 101 S. Ct. 2698, 2701, 69 L. Ed. 2d 548 (1981) .

(n10)Footnote 3. Glidden Co. v. Zdanok, 370 U.S. 530, 572, 82 S. Ct. 1459, 1484, 8 L. Ed. 2d 671 (1962) ; Washington Int'l Ins. Co. v. United States, 863 F.2d 877, 878-879 (Fed. Cir.) , cert. denied, 490 U.S. 1106 (1988) ; Austin v. Shalala, 994 F.2d 1170, 1175 (5th Cir. 1993) .

(n11)Footnote 4. 28 U.S.C. § 1346(b).

(n12)Footnote 5. 28 U.S.C. § 2402.

(n13)Footnote 6. United States v. Testan, 424 U.S. 392, 399, 96 S. Ct. 948, 953, 47 L. Ed. 2d 114 (1976) .

(n14)Footnote 7. In re Young, 869 F.2d 158, 159 (2d Cir. 1989) .

(n15)Footnote 8. Berman v. American Nat'l Red Cross, 834 F. Supp. 286, 288-292 (N.D. Ind. 1993) .

(n16)Footnote 9. 28 U.S.C. § 1346(a)(1).

(n17)Footnote 10. 28 U.S.C. § 2402.

(n18)Footnote 11. Parker v. Commissioner, 724 F.2d 469, 472 (5th Cir. 1984) .

(n19)Footnote 12. Thomas v. United States, 695 F. Supp. 1021, 1022-1023 (E.D. Mo. 1988) (deposit of funds with IRS in an amount equal to the disputed increase in tax liability pending determination of the dispute was deemed insufficient to entitle taxpayer to jury trial under statute).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART I. RIGHT TO JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.07

§ 22.07 Jury Right When Foreign Nation is Partyn*

[1] Foreign Nation Claimant

There is no statutory authority granting a right to jury trial in actions by a foreign state, nor is there any such authority denying the right. Therefore, the availability of a jury trial in these cases is dependent on whether there is a constitutional right under the Seventh Amendment. n1 The federal district courts have diversity jurisdiction over suits meeting the monetary threshold in which a foreign state is plaintiff, and citizens of a state, or of different states, are defendants. n2 A "foreign state" is defined in the statute as including a political subdivision of a foreign state, or an agency or instrumentality of a foreign state. n3 An "agency or instrumentality of a foreign state" is defined as including a corporation or similar entity, a majority of whose shares are owned by a foreign state. n4

As discussed above in § 22.06[1], when an action is brought by, or on behalf of, the United States to adjudicate private rights, the right to a jury trial is protected by the Seventh Amendment, and is governed by the same rules that apply to actions by other plaintiffs. This same rule applies also to actions by foreign states. n5 Sovereign immunity extends only to actions against the sovereign. When an action is brought by the sovereign, the defendant is clothed in the protection of the Seventh Amendment. n6

[2] Foreign Nation Defendant

Congress has established a uniform statutory system for federal suits against foreign states which prohibits the use of the jury trial. Under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (FSIA), Congress has affirmatively provided for trial without a jury grant in its grant of original jurisdiction to the district courts n1 and in the provision for actions removed from state courts. n2 Under the Act a "foreign state" is defined in the statute as including a political subdivision of a foreign state, or an agency or instrumentality of a foreign state. An "agency or instrumentality of a foreign state" is defined as (1) an entity which is a separate legal person, whether corporate or other type of entity, that is (2) an organ of a foreign state or its political subdivisions, or a majority of whose shares are owned by a foreign state or its political subdivisions, and that is (3) neither a citizen of one of the United States nor created under the laws of a third country. n3

When Congress granted original jurisdiction to the district courts under the FSIA it referred to the FSIA as applying to any nonjury civil action against a foreign state. n4 The courts have interpreted this language as Congress' intention to preclude jury trial in all cases against foreign states n5 and have uniformly denied the right to a jury trial in such cases. n6 Furthermore, the jurisdiction provided by FSIA is the sole source of federal jurisdiction in suits against foreign states. n7 That exclusive jurisdiction, and its accompanying trial without a jury, may not be circumvented by bringing a case within diversity or federal question jurisdiction. n8

In addition to actions initiated against a foreign state, the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act provides that any counterclaims that may be brought against a foreign sovereign are not triable to a jury. n9 This position, which restricts federal court jurisdiction to non-jury counterclaims, reflects the strong policy expressed by Congress and recognized by the courts that favors uniformity of decision in cases involving foreign sovereigns, and that policy is best served by trial without a jury. n10

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury Trial

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 38.41 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Goar v. Compania Peruana de Vapores, 688 F.2d 417, 423-424 (5th Cir. 1982) .

(n3)Footnote 2. 28 U.S.C. § 1332(4).

(n4)Footnote 3. 28 U.S.C. § 1603(a).

(n5)Footnote 4. 28 U.S.C. § 1603(b).

(n6)Footnote 5. National Iranian Oil Co. v. Ashland Oil, Inc., 716 F. Supp. 268, 270 (S.D. Miss. 1989) .

(n7)Footnote 6. See In re Aircrash Disaster Near Roselawn, Indiana, 909 F. Supp. 1083, 1086 (N.D. Ill. 1995) .

(n8)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 1330(a).

(n9)Footnote 2. 28 U.S.C. § 1441(d); see Eichler v. Lufthansa German Airlines, 794 F. Supp. 127, 130 (S.D.N.Y. 1992) (airline passenger was found to have no right to a jury trial in action under Warsaw Convention for injuries sustained while boarding airplane, after airline, which was instrumentality of foreign state, removed action to federal court).

(n10)Footnote 3. 28 U.S.C. § 1603(b).

(n11)Footnote 4. 28 U.S.C. § 1330(a).

(n12)Footnote 5. Houston v. Murmansk Shipping Co., 667 F.2d 1151, 1154 (4th Cir. 1982) .

(n13)Footnote 6. Universal Consol. Cos. v. Bank of China, 35 F.3d 243, 246 (6th Cir. 1994) ; Burke v. Compagnie Nationale Air France, 699 F. Supp. 1016, 1019 (D. P.R. 1988) .

(n14)Footnote 7. Arango v. Guzman Travel Advisors, 761 F.2d 1527, 1532-1533 (11th Cir.) , cert. denied, 474 U.S. 995 (1985) .

(n15)Footnote 8. Arango v. Guzman Travel Advisors, 761 F.2d 1527, 1532-1533 (11th Cir.) , cert. denied, 474 U.S. 995 (1985) ; Rex v. Cia. Pervana de Vapores, S. A., 660 F.2d 61, 64-65 (3d Cir. 1981) , cert. denied, 456 U.S. 926 (1982) .

(n16)Footnote 9. National Iranian Oil Co. v. Ashland Oil, Inc., 716 F. Supp. 268, 272 (D. Miss. 1989) .

(n17)Footnote 10. Goar v. Compania Peruana de Vapores, 688 F.2d 417, 428 (5th Cir. 1982) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART I. RIGHT TO JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.08

§ 22.08 Jury Trial Right Determined by Claimant's Choice of Remediesn*

The right to a jury trial is dependant on the remedy requested, as determined from the pleadings in the case. A claimant has a right to pray for a particular remedy or remedies from all of those that may be available, and the jury trial right will flow from the claims asserted and the remedies sought. Consequently, in a case in which a plaintiff elects to demand damages, the choice will give rise to a right to a jury trial, even though the plaintiff may also have elected to obtain an injunction, which does not give the right to a jury. n1 Similarly, when a legal claim, such as a claim for damages, is combined with an equitable claim, the parties have a right to a jury trial on the damages claim. n2

In making its determination regarding the jury trial right, a court must consider all of the pleadings, including claims, defenses, counterclaims and third-party pleadings. n3 However, while the right to a jury trial is determined from the pleadings, the form or designation of the plaintiff's complaint does not control the characterization of the action as either equitable or legal. n4 It is the nature and substance of the relief sought, and not the language used in the pleading that is controlling. n5

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury TrialCivil ProcedureRemediesGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 38.42 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Robine v. Ryan, 310 F.2d 797, 798-799 (2d Cir. 1962) .

(n3)Footnote 2. In re Jensen, 946 F.2d 369, 371-373 (5th Cir. 1991) (plaintiffs asserted claims for breach of fiduciary duty, fraud and conspiracy, and sought actual and exemplary damages, as well as a constructive trust and an accounting).

(n4)Footnote 3. Beacon Theatres, Inc. v. Westover, 359 U.S. 500, 508, 79 S. Ct. 948, 955, 3 L. Ed. 2d 988 (1959) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Bugher v. Feightner, 722 F.2d 1356, 1357 (7th Cir. 1983) , cert. denied, 469 U.S. 822 (1984) (even though complaint requested only equitable remedies of accounting and grant of specific performance, it alleged in essence breach of contract, traditionally action at law, and thus there was a jury right).

(n6)Footnote 5. Dairy Queen, Inc. v. Wood, 369 U.S. 469, 478, 82 S. Ct. 894, 900, 8 L. Ed. 2d 44 (1962) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART I. RIGHT TO JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.09

§ 22.09 Effect of Joinder or Separation of Legal and Equitable Claimsn*

[1] Joinder Does Not Affect Jury Trial Right Under Liberal Joinder Rules

The fact that the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure permit the presentation of all issues, legal, equitable and maritime, that pertain to a single claim within a single action, n1 and compel joinder with regard to counterclaims, n2 does not affect a party's Seventh Amendment right to a jury trial. n3 Likewise, a jury trial is not waived by the fact that the rules permit joinder of wholly unrelated legal, equitable, and maritime claims that may be asserted against opposing parties. n4 Thus, a party does not waive a jury trial as the result of the joinder of legal and equitable claims or issues, n5 whether the issues relate to one cause of action, or to two or more separate and distinct causes of action. n6 Furthermore, joinder of legal and admiralty claims in a single action does not bar the parties' right to a jury trial of the legal claims. n7

[2] Trial and Jury Decision When Legal and Equitable Claims Have Common Factual Issues

In order to preserve the right to a jury trial in cases in which there is overlap in the factual questions relating to legal and equitable claims, the jury must not only decide the legal claims but must also decide all questions common to both claims, and the court, in a later ruling on the equitable claims, will be bound by the findings of fact of the jury with respect to those common issues. n1 The Supreme Court has held that if legal and equitable claims containing common issues are bifurcated for trial, absent extraordinary circumstances, the legal claims must be tried first, in order to avoid depriving the parties of their jury trial right with respect to the common questions. n2 The Supreme Court has also held that this rule applies regardless of whether the legal issues are characterized as incidental to the equitable issues. n3

When legal and equitable issues do not arise from a common question, and the determination of the equitable issues by the court will not have a preemptive effect on the jury's determination of legal issues, the trial court has discretion to establish the sequence of trial, and may do so on considerations of administrative convenience. n4 Furthermore, it has been held that when disposition of an equitable claim would make consideration of a legal claim unnecessary, the equitable claim may be determined first. n5

When a jury verdict has been set aside or vacated, the issue may arise as to the effect the setting aside has on the determinations of the jury. It has been held that in such cases the trial judge continues to be bound by a jury's findings even after the verdict is vacated, provided that the reason it was set aside was not because the underlying factfinding was faulty. n6 However, when the reason for vacating the verdict calls into question the accuracy of the findings, the ex-verdict may not govern determination of issues tried to the court. n7

[3] Incidental Damages in Equity Actions

The Supreme Court has consistently held that a district court may not deny a party a jury trial on legal issues by characterizing those issues as merely "incidental to" or "insignificant" in comparison with equitable issues. Courts have stated that, once a court determines that a case involves legal issues, the parties have a right to a jury trial on those issues, regardless of how insignificant they may appear in relation to equitable issues. n1

On the other hand, while it is widely accepted that a monetary award is generally an indication of "legal" relief, it is not true that any award of monetary relief is necessarily legal relief. n2 Entirely equitable relief may include monetary relief when required to afford complete relief. Trust law remedies, for example, are equitable in nature yet include provisions for monetary damages, n3 and monetary restitution may be awarded in connection with injunctive relief. n4 Thus, it was proper for a court to deny a jury trial when the monetary award was intertwined with equitable relief; the court would err, however, if it denied a jury trial because of its determination that legal issues in the case are merely incidental to equitable ones. n5

[4] Pleadings Subsequent to Complaint

If a civil action as specified in the complaint is essentially equitable, and a defendant interposes a legal counterclaim, whether compulsory or permissive, there is a right to jury trial on the counterclaim. n1 Similarly, the court must also order a jury trial when demanded for a counterclaim that seeks both legal and equitable relief. n2

When a counterclaim raises legal issues that are intertwined with the equitable issues raised in a main action, common questions must be tried to the jury, so that the jury trial right will be preserved. n3 Additionally, the issues may be so intertwined that the entire case may need to be tried to the jury. Thus, in an injunction action with a counterclaim for damages, the trial court ordered a jury trial on all issues raised in complaint and the answer and counterclaim because all of the issues arose from the same factual circumstances. n4

Similarly, in an insurance case, the court held that the insured was entitled to a jury trial on all questions of fact common to an insurance company's action seeking a declaration that an insurance policy issued by the company to the insured was void, and also on the insured's counterclaim seeking damages and a declaration that the company was obligated to pay under the policy. n5

[5] Bifurcation

In a manner similar to joinder of claims, the court is allowed to separate or bifurcate claims into separate trials without violating the Seventh Amendment, provided that the bifurcation does not prejudice a party. When a court bifurcates a case, the Seventh Amendment requires that the court must divide issues between separate trials in such a way that the same issue is not reexamined by different juries. n1 While both juries may examine overlapping evidence, they may not decide factual issues that are common to both trials and essential to the outcome. n2

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJoinder of Claims & RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJoinder of Claims & RemediesClaimsCivil ProcedureJoinder of Claims & RemediesLiberal JoinderCivil ProcedureJoinder of Claims & RemediesRemediesCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury Trial

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 38.43 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 18(a).

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 13(a).

(n4)Footnote 3. Dairy Queen, Inc. v. Wood, 369 U.S. 469, 473, 82 S. Ct. 894, 897, 8 L. Ed. 2d 44 (1962) (in action seeking injunctive relief and damages, defendant could not be deprived of its right to a jury trial on damages issue).

(n5)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 18(a).

(n6)Footnote 5. Tull v. United States, 481 U.S. 412, 418, 107 S. Ct. 1831, 1835-1836, 95 L. Ed. 2d 365 (1987) .

(n7)Footnote 6. Brownlee v. Yellow Freight System, Inc., 921 F.2d 745, 749 (8th Cir. 1990) .

(n8)Footnote 7. Wilmington Trust v. United States Dist. Court, 934 F.2d 1026, 1030-1032 (9th Cir. 1991) .

(n9)Footnote 1. Lytle v. Household Mfg., Inc., 494 U.S. 545, 551-553, 110 S. Ct. 1331, 1336, 108 L. Ed. 2d 504 (1990) ; see Moltan Co. v. Eagle-Picher Indus., Inc., 55 F.3d 1171, 1174-1175 (6th Cir. 1995) (when claims at law and in equity are joined and legal claims are tried separately by jury, jury's verdict operates as finding of fact binding on trial court in its determination of equitable claims); Abbott v. Bragdon, 882 F. Supp. 181, 183 (D. Me. 1995) (when court determined claim for civil penalties under state human rights law was for legal relief, while ADA claims were equitable, jury would determine liability as to all claims, and then court would award penalty and determine whether to grant any equitable relief).

(n10)Footnote 2. Dairy Queen, Inc. v. Wood, 369 U.S. 469, 479, 82 S. Ct. 894, 900, 8 L. Ed. 2d 44 (1962) ; Wade v. Orange Co. Sheriff's Office, 844 F.2d 951, 954 (2d Cir. 1988) .

(n11)Footnote 3. Dairy Queen, Inc. v. Wood, 369 U.S. 469, 473, 82 S. Ct. 894, 897, 8 L. Ed. 2d 44 (1962) .

(n12)Footnote 4. West v. Devitt, 311 F.2d 787, 788 (8th Cir. 1963) (mandamus proceeding on question of laches).

(n13)Footnote 5. Holiday Inns of America, Inc. v. Lussi, 42 F.R.D. 27, 32 (N.D.N.Y. 1967) .

(n14)Footnote 6. Artis v. Hitachi Zosen Clearing, Inc., 967 F.2d 1132, 1138 (7th Cir. 1992) .

(n15)Footnote 7. Dranchak v. Akzo Nobel, Inc., 88 F.3d 457, 458-459 (7th Cir. 1996) (when events during trial and improper omissions from jury instructions contributed to reasons for setting aside verdict, verdict's factual accuracy was impugned, and it was rendered unreliable; consequently, verdict could have no implications for court's analysis of non-jury issues).

(n16)Footnote 1. Dairy Queen, Inc. v. Wood, 369 U.S. 469, 473, n.8, 82 S. Ct. 894, 897, 8 L. Ed. 2d 44 (1962) ; Golden v. Kelsey-Hayes Co., 73 F.3d 648, 660 (6th Cir. 1996) .

(n17)Footnote 2. Golden v. Kelsey-Hayes Co., 73 F.3d 648, 661 (6th Cir. 1996) .

(n18)Footnote 3. Massachusetts Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Russell, 473 U.S. 134, 154 n.10, 105 S. Ct. 3085, 3090, 87 L. Ed. 2d 96 (1985) .

(n19)Footnote 4. Tull v. United States, 481 U.S. 412, 424, 107 S. Ct. 1831, 1838-1839, 95 L. Ed. 2d 365 (1987) .

(n20)Footnote 5. Golden v. Kelsey-Hayes Co., 73 F.3d 648, 661 (6th Cir. 1996) .

(n21)Footnote 1. Progressive Northern Ins. Co. v. Bachmann, 314 F. Supp. 2d 820, 833 (W.D. Wis. 2004) .

(n22)Footnote 2. Amoco Oil Co. v. Torcomian, 722 F.2d 1099, 1102-1104 (3d Cir. 1983) .

(n23)Footnote 3. Shenandoah Life Ins. Co. v. Hawes, 256 F. Supp. 366, 369 (E.D.N.C. 1966) .

(n24)Footnote 4. Lee Pharmaceuticals v. Mishler, 526 F.2d 1115, 1117 (2d Cir. 1975) .

(n25)Footnote 5. Provident Life & Accident Ins. Co. v. Adie, 982 F. Supp. 1269, 1271-1272 (E.D. Mich. 1997) .

(n26)Footnote 1. Olden v. Lafarge Corp., 383 F.3d 495, 509 fn 6 (6th Cir. 2004) .

(n27)Footnote 2. Houseman v. United States Aviation Underwriters, 171 F.3d 1117, 1126-1127 (7th Cir. 1999) (in personal injury suit arising from airplane crash, trial court's bifurcation of passenger's claims against airplane pilot and manufacturer of air filter did not violate Seventh Amendment's jury guarantee because, although both juries would be examining cause of crash, juries would be asked to decide distinct questions, and second jury would not reexamine conclusions of first).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART I. RIGHT TO JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 22.10through 22.19

[Reserved]

§§ 22.10[Reserved]

12 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART II. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL AND WAIVER OF RIGHT TO JURY
A. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.20

§ 22.20 Requirement of Demandn*

Courts do not assume that a party will exercise its right to a jury trial. Consequently, a party must demand a jury trial pursuant to the provisions of Rule 38. n1 A party that fails to make a timely demand waives the right. n2

Any party may demand a jury trial of any issue triable by a jury. The party must serve a written demand on the other parties at any time after commencement of the action, but not later than 14 days after service of the last pleading directed to the issue. n3 The party making the demand must also file the demand with the court within a reasonable time after service, and include a certificate of service with the filing. n4 A demand may be included in a pleading of the party. n5

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJury Demands

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 38.50 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. DeWitt v. Hutchins, 309 F. Supp. 2d 743, 754 (M.D.N.C. 2004) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(b).

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(d); Thompson v. Mahre, 110 F.3d 716, 719 (9th Cir. 1997) , cert. denied, 522 U.S. 967 (1998) ; see also § 22.40 et seq. for a complete discussion of waiver.

(n4)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(b)(1); Unidev, L.L.C. v. Housing Auth. of New Orleans, 250 F.R.D. 268, 271 (E.D. La. 2008) (last pleading directed to issue is not pleading that raises issue, but pleading that contests issue, which is usually answer or reply; construing former time periods).

(n5)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(b)(2); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 5(d).

(n6)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(b)(1).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART II. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL AND WAIVER OF RIGHT TO JURY
A. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.21

§ 22.21 Specification of Issues in Demand

[1] Effect of Specification of Issues

In its demand for jury trial, a party may specify those issues it wishes to have tried by a jury. Absent specification, the party will be deemed to have demanded a jury trial on all issues triable by a jury. n1 If a party specifies only some issues in the demand, any other party may demand a trial by jury of any other or all issues triable by a jury in the action. A party may do so by serving a demand within 14 days after service of the original demand on it, or within any lesser time that the court may order. n2 If issues are specified in a demand, other parties may rely on that demand as to those specified issues, and need not make their own demands for jury trial of those issues, n3 but a party desiring jury trial of an issue not specified must make its own demand with regard to that particular issue. n4 If a party does make a demand, the opposition may rely on the demand for the issues covered by the demand, n5 and the demanding party may not withdraw the demand. n6

The practical effect of these provisions is that if the attorney determines the party would benefit from a jury trial, the party should make a general demand, which makes all of the issues triable to a jury. n7 If the party wants to avoid a jury trial for particular issues, the party should, instead, demand a jury trial only for those issues. n8

[2] Failure to Specify Constitutes Demand as to All Issues

When a general demand for jury trial is made without specifying particular issues, the demand is deemed to be a demand for jury trial of all issues in the case that are triable by a jury. n1 A general demand for jury trial also covers all issues raised in subsequent pleadings which affect the party that made the general demand. n2 Consequently, the advantage of a general demand is that when issues are added, or initially not recognized as triable to a jury, they are automatically included in the demand. n3 The disadvantage is that once a general demand is made, the party may not withdraw any issues included in the demand, even is it becomes apparent that a jury trial on that issue is not advisable for the party. n4

If a party makes a timely general demand, the clerk will designate the case on the docket as a jury case; n5 however, if the court on motion or its own initiative finds that some of the issues are not triable as of right to a jury, it will limit jury trial to the other issues that are properly triable to a jury. n6

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJury DemandsCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury Trial

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(c); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 39(a)(2) (party's demand effective only for those issues to which there is federal right to jury); Lutz v. Glendale Union High Sch., Dist. No. 205, 403 F.3d 1061, 1064 (9th Cir. 2005) (citing Moore's Federal Practice); see also [2], below.

(n2)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(c).

(n3)Footnote 3. Southland Reship, Inc. v. Flegel, 534 F.2d 639, 643 (5th Cir. 1976) (opposing party may rely on demand).

(n4)Footnote 4. Rosen v. Dick, 639 F.2d 82, 91-92 (2d Cir. 1980) (if first demand does not cover issues pertinent to second party, second party may not rely reasonably on first demand).

(n5)Footnote 5. Collins v. Government of V.I., 366 F.2d 279, 284 (3d Cir. 1966) , cert. denied, 386 U.S. 958 (1967) (defendant may rely on demand of co-defendant to extent of issues embraced by demand).

(n6)Footnote 6. Cram v. Sun Ins. Office, Ltd., 375 F.2d 670, 675 (4th Cir. 1967) .

(n7)Footnote 7. Lutz v. Glendale Union High Sch., Dist. No. 205, 403 F.3d 1061, 1064 (9th Cir. 2005) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n8)Footnote 8. See YJR Enters., Inc. v. Twin County Grocers, Inc., 709 F. Supp. 499, 501 (S.D.N.Y. 1989) (reliance is limited to the issues embraced by the demand); Cram v. Sun Ins. Office, Ltd., 375 F.2d 670, 675 (4th Cir. 1967) (once a demand has been made, demanding party may not withdraw issues encompassed by demand without consent of other parties).

(n9)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(c); see Horwitz v. Alloy Automotive Co., 677 F. Supp. 564, 566 (N.D. Ill. 1988) (once general demand is timely asserted, second demand need not be made as to counterclaim).

(n10)Footnote 2. Lutz v. Glendale Union High Sch., Dist. No. 205, 403 F.3d 1061, 1064 (9th Cir. 2005) (citing Moore's Federal Practice); see [2], below.

(n11)Footnote 3. YJR Enters., Inc. v. Twin County Grocers, Inc., 709 F. Supp. 499, 501 (S.D.N.Y. 1989) .

(n12)Footnote 4. Cram v. Sun Ins. Office, Ltd., 375 F.2d 670, 675 (4th Cir. 1967) (once a demand has been made, demanding party may not withdraw issues encompassed by demand without consent of other parties).

(n13)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 39(a).

(n14)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 39(a)(2); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(a); see also § 22.01 et seq. (issues triable to jury in federal litigation).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART II. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL AND WAIVER OF RIGHT TO JURY
A. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.22

§ 22.22 Procedural Requirements for Demand

[1] Persons Entitled to Make Demand

Any party to an action may make a demand for a jury trial with respect to any issue triable to a jury. n1 Thus, if a party files a cross-claim, the third-party defendant may make a demand with respect to the issues related to the cross-claim. n2 Similarly, when a court grants permission for a party to intervene in an action, the intervenor may be entitled to demand a jury trial for issues related to its claim. n3 Parties to interpleader actions are also entitled to demand a jury trial when the interpleader claim is one that is subject to a right to jury trial. For example, in an interpleader action to adjudicate the competing interests to proceeds from the sale of a partnership, the alleged fraudulent nature of a transfer of a partnership interest is a legal issue triable to a jury trial. n4

A person who has been added as a party plaintiff or defendant also has the right to demand a jury trial when it is otherwise appropriate. For example, when a prison employee was added as a party defendant in a civil rights action by the plaintiff inmates, after dismissal of the employee originally named in the complaint, the new defendant could demand a jury trial, notwithstanding that a jury trial had been waived by the original defendant. n5

A party may rely on another party's demand for a jury trial, which essentially means that the party that made the demand may not withdraw the demand for the issues encompassed by it. n6 Thus, a party may rely on another party's general demand for all issues triable to a jury that may arise in the action but may rely on an itemized demand only for those issues encompassed by the demand. n7

[2] Time for Demand

[a] Time Limits

A party may make a demand for a jury at any time after the commencement of the action, provided that the demand is made not later than 14 days after the service of the last pleading related to the issue that is the subject of the demand for jury. n1 This 14-day time period for a timely jury demand is controlled by the provisions of Rule 6, n2 which specifies the manner of computing time periods in federal civil litigation, including the extension of time for good cause or excusable neglect under Rule 6(b)(1) n3 and to the provision of Rule 6(d) for the addition of 3 days to the period prescribed or allowed in the rules when service is accomplished by any means other than by hand delivery. n4 For a complete discussion of the computation of time periods for motions under Rule 6, see Ch. 9, Pleadings and Motions in General.

The jury demand may be included in a pleading. n5 For example, a plaintiff may make a demand for jury trial immediately on the commencement of the action by including the demand in the original complaint. n6

If a party fails to properly serve and file a jury trial demand within the 14-day time limit, the party generally waives the right to have the issue tried by a jury, n7 and it will be tried to the court. However, on proper motion of the party, n8 the court has discretion to order a jury trial of any or all issues even if the demand time limit has not been met. n9 Furthermore, the court may give special consideration in cases when the party who failed to file a timely jury demand has been hailed into federal court against the party's will, or when the party is proceeding pro se. However, the court's discretion is not unlimited, and a court may not grant relief without any justification nor when the failure to make a timely demand results merely from an oversight or inadvertence. n10 In this regard, a good faith mistake of law is no different than inadvertence or oversight, and an untimely jury demand due to legal mistake by the attorney does not broaden the district court's narrow discretion to grant the demand. n11 It is also important to note that although a general demand may be made, a demand made with respect to a specific issue, or a demand made with respect to particular parties, may be timely only in regard to those issues or parties, and the court may bifurcate a trial to hold a jury trial only for those issues for which the moving party made a timely Rule 38(b) demand. n12

[b] Service of Last Pleading Directed to Issue

The jury demand must be made not later than 14 days after service of the last pleading directed to the issue for which a jury trial is demanded. n13 The question of what constitutes a "pleading" for purposes of Rule 38 is governed by the express text of Rule 7(a). n14 Thus, when the defendant in response to a claim filed "special reports" pursuant to a court order, the reports were not "pleadings" under Rule 38 and did not begin the running of the 14-day period. n15 Similarly, neither a motion to dismiss n16 nor a motion for summary judgment constitutes a pleading within the meaning of Rule 38, causing the 14-day limit to begin to run. n17 It also has been held that a memorandum in opposition to a summary judgment motion is not a pleading for Rule 38(b) purposes, n18 nor is a notice giving names and addresses of prior users in a patent suit. n19

The 14-day period begins to run with service of the last pleading directed to the issue. Until such a pleading is served, the 14 days does not begin to run. n20 If a responsive pleading does not address the issue for which the demand is made, the pleading does not start the period. n21 Furthermore, a delay in filing the last pleading responsive to the issue delays the commencement of the 14-day period. n22

[c] Period Runs From Last Responsive Pleading

The "last pleading directed to the issue" within the meaning of the Rule 38(b)(1) is a responsive pleading which contests the issue, rather than raises the issue. Consequently, the last pleading is usually the answer to the complaint filed in the federal court that contests the particular issue under consideration. n23 However, the "last pleading" need not always be the answer to a complaint; it may be any responsive pleading that contests the issue, n24 such as an answer to a crossclaim or a third party complaint, n25 or a reply to an answer. n26 If there are multiple defendants, the fact that one defendant has served its answer does not begin the running of the 14 day period as against the plaintiff with respect to any issues that are also alleged against a second defendant, if the second defendant has not yet served its answer. A jury demand is timely if served within 14 days after the last defendant has served its answer. n27 However, if the defendants are jointly liable with respect to a claim containing an issue on which there is a right to a jury trial, the "last pleading directed at the issue" is the last pleading required to be filed as between the plaintiff and any of the jointly liable defendants. n28

When the trial court authorizes intervention in a case, the answer to the intervenor complaint, rather than the answer to the original complaint, is considered the last pleading directed to the triable issues under Rule 38(b). Demand made within 14 days of service of such an answer entitles the party to a jury trial, even though the right may previously have been waived by the original parties with respect to the original complaint. n29

[3] Format Requirements of Demand

[a] Requirement of Writing

A demand for jury trial must be in writing. n1 A demand may be general, such as "plaintiff demands trial by jury in this action," or may be more specific, for example, stating that "the defendant demands trial by jury of the issues raised by the defendant's counterclaim and plaintiff's reply to defendant's counterclaim." n2 If the demand is made in a separate paper, it should be properly captioned n3 and must clearly indicate the substance and extent of the demand. n4 However, it is not necessary to make the demand on a separate paper; the demand may be included in a pleading of the party, n5 such as by an indorsement on the pleading. n6

[b] Indorsement on Pleading

A jury demand may be included in a party's pleading itself. n7 Courts have held that a simple notation such as "Jury Demanded" placed beneath the docket number on a complaint has been deemed sufficient to place the opposing party on notice that the party was demanding a jury trial. n8 Similarly, a demand made on the last page of the defendant's answer, although not in the preferred style on the outside of the pleading, was deemed to be in compliance with the requirements of Rule 38(b). n9 Another court has honored a demand for jury contained in the body of a pleading. n10

A notation or indorsement on a pleading constitutes a sufficient demand for jury only if it is contained in the actual pleading itself and not on an attachment or paper incorporated by reference to the pleading. n11 Consequently, some courts have held that merely checking a "Yes" box on a civil cover sheet next to "Jury Demand" does not necessarily constitute an indorsement on the pleadings, and is insufficient for a valid demand for jury trial because it does not give notice to the opposition of the demand. n12 However, it is sufficient demand if the cover sheet actually accompanies pleadings served on parties, gives opposing parties notice of the jury trial request, and is deemed to constitute a part of the pleading. n13

[c] Federal Rules Prevail Over Local Rules

The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure prevail over local rules with regard to the adequacy of a demand for a jury trial. n14 Furthermore, a local rule is invalid if inconsistent with a federal rule. n15 Thus, when a party failed to list the demand in the caption of a pleading, as required by a local procedural rule, the failure did not invalidate the demand that otherwise met the requirements of Rule 38. n16 Similarly, a court has held that although the federal bankruptcy rules do not specifically incorporate the provision of Rule 38 requiring jury demand within 10 days (now 14 days) of the last pleading, the courts should borrow the provisions of the rule to determine when a valid jury demand has been made in a bankruptcy case. n17 Furthermore, when a party failed to fulfill an additional requirement of a local rule to place a notation to that effect in the title, the failure did not constitute a waiver of a trial by jury; the court held that the right to a jury trial is fundamental, and courts should indulge every reasonable presumption against waiver. n18

However, counsel may not ignore local rules with respect to the demand. Counsel should always check for any local rules that specify the method required for endorsement of a jury demand because the method specified by the local rule will control whether an effective demand has been made, unless the local rule imposes requirements additional to, or in conflict with, those required by Rule 38(b). n19

[4] Service of Demand

If a party fails to serve the other parties with a jury trial demand, the party waives the right to a jury trial. n1 The rationale behind this rule is that if a party files a jury demand but fails to serve it on the other parties, it would be manifestly unfair to say that the party was entitled to a jury trial without providing notice. n2 Rule 38(b) requires that the demand be served on the other parties, n3 which means all the other parties to the action that are not making the demand. n4 If a demand is endorsed on a pleading, service of the pleading necessarily embraces the demand. The original complaint, and therefore the demand if indorsed on the complaint, is served with the summons. Other pleadings and a demand for jury when made in a separate paper must be served in accordance with Rule 5(b). n5

Attorneys should be aware that the time of the completion of service may be crucial to the timeliness of the demand. n6 For example, when a case is removed to federal court Rule 81(c) provides that if at the time of removal all necessary pleadings have been served, a party entitled to trial by jury must serve the party's demand for jury trial within 14 days after service on the party of the notice of removal. n7 Thus, service, rather than filing, must be complete within the 14-day period. n8 Also note that serving an otherwise ineffective demand may be a contributing factor in its acceptance as a valid demand. Thus, courts will not usually consider merely checking the "Yes" box on the civil cover sheet next to "Jury Demand" as a valid demand for jury trial. However, the checking of the box may deemed sufficient if coupled with service on the adversaries. n9

[5] Filing of Demand

When a party has a right to a jury, the party must file a demand for the jury trial by filing the demand in court with proof of service, in accordance with Rule 5(d). n1 Failure to properly file may constitute a waiver of the right to a jury trial. n2 Prompt filing of the demand is important so that the clerk may properly docket the case and place the case on the trial calendar as either a jury or a court action. n3 Prudent practice indicates that both service and filing of the demand should be made within the applicable 14-day time period. However, it suffices if service of the demand alone occurs within that time period, provided that filing occurs within a reasonable time after service. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJury Demands

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. Lutz v. Glendale Union High Sch., Dist. No. 205, 403 F.3d 1061, 1064 (9th Cir. 2005) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(b).

(n2)Footnote 2. Blommer Chocolate Co. v. Bongards Creameries, Inc., 635 F. Supp. 919, 926 (N.D. Ill. 1986) .

(n3)Footnote 3. Campbell v. Plank, 133 F.R.D. 175, 176 (D. Kan. 1990) .

(n4)Footnote 4. In re Larsen, 172 B.R. 988, 991 (Bankr. D. Utah 1993) .

(n5)Footnote 5. Butterfield v. Crist, 52 F.R.D. 489, 490 (E.D. Wis. 1971) .

(n6)Footnote 6. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(d).

(n7)Footnote 7. California Scents v. Surco Prods., 406 F.3d 1102, 1107 (9th Cir. 2005) ; see § 22.21.

(n8)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(b)(1); see Andrews v. Columbia Gas Transmission Corp., 544 F.3d 618, 632-633 (6th Cir. 2008) (party waives jury trial unless jury demand is properly served and filed within period specified in rule); see also [b] below.

(n9)Footnote 2. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 6; Seabrook v. City of New York, 236 F.R.D. 123, 127 (E.D.N.Y. 2006) .

(n10)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(b).

(n11)Footnote 4. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(d); see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 5(b)(2)(B)-(F).

(n12)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(b)(1).

(n13)Footnote 6. Solis v. Los Angeles, 514 F.3d 946, 954 (9th Cir. 2008) .

(n14)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(d).

(n15)Footnote 8. Bogosian v. Woloohojian Realty Corp., 323 F.3d 55, 62-63 (1st Cir. 2003) .

(n16)Footnote 9. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 39(b).

(n17)Footnote 10. Andrews v. Columbia Gas Transmission Corp., 544 F.3d 618, 632-633 (6th Cir. 2008) .

(n18)Footnote 11. Pacific Fisheries Corp. v. HIH Cas. & Gen. Ins., Ltd, 239 F.3d 1000, 1002-1003 (9th Cir. 2001) , cert. denied, 534 U.S. 944 (2001) (party not entitled to jury trial under Rule 39(b) after it failed to make timely demand under Rule 38(b), merely because counsel misinterpreted local rules); see also § 22.48 (discussion of factors court should consider in granting relief from untimely filing of jury trial demand).

(n19)Footnote 12. Dill v. City of Edmond, Oklahoma, 155 F.3d 1193, 1200 (10th Cir. 1998) .

(n20)Footnote 13. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(b)(1); see Andrews v. Columbia Gas Transmission Corp., 544 F.3d 618, 632-633 (6th Cir. 2008) (construing former time periods).

(n21)Footnote 14. Fed. R. Civ. P. 7(a) (complete list of "pleadings").

(n22)Footnote 15. See Burns v. Lawther, 53 F.3d 1237, 1241 (11th Cir. 1995) (construing former time periods).

(n23)Footnote 16. See United States v. Anderson, 584 F.2d 369, 372 (10th Cir. 1978) (construing former time periods).

(n24)Footnote 17. See Burns v. Lawther, 53 F.3d 1237, 1241 (11th Cir. 1995) (construing former time periods).

(n25)Footnote 18. Molinaro v. Watkins--Johnson CEI Div., 359 F. Supp. 467, 474 (D. Md. 1973) .

(n26)Footnote 19. General Tire & Rubber Co. v. Watkins, 331 F.2d 192, 195-196 (4th Cir. 1964) , cert. denied, 377 U.S. 952 (1964) .

(n27)Footnote 20. See Stewart v. RCA Corp., 790 F.2d 624, 629 (7th Cir. 1986) (construing former time periods).

(n28)Footnote 21. Vanguard Military Equip. Corp. v. David B. Finestone Co., Inc., 6 F. Supp. 2d 488, 494-495 (E.D. Va. 1997) (jury demand was timely with respect to fraud claim when amended complaint containing jury demand was filed before defendant filed pleading that responded to allegations of fraud count; construing former time periods).

(n29)Footnote 22. See In re Texas Gen. Petroleum Corp., 52 F.3d 1330, 1339 (5th Cir. 1995) (construing former time periods).

(n30)Footnote 23. Unidev, L.L.C. v. Housing Auth. of New Orleans, 250 F.R.D. 268, 271 (E.D. La. 2008) .

(n31)Footnote 24. In re Kaiser Steel Corp., 911 F.2d 380, 388 (10th Cir. 1990) .

(n32)Footnote 25. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 7(a)(3), (4).

(n33)Footnote 26. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 7(a)(7).

(n34)Footnote 27. See In re Kaiser Steel Corp., 911 F.2d 380, 388 (10th Cir. 1990) (construing former time periods).

(n35)Footnote 28. Frost v. Agnos, 152 F.3d 1124, 1131 (9th Cir. 1998) ; Bentler v. Bank of Am. Nat'l Trust, 959 F.2d 138, 140 (9th Cir. 1992) .

(n36)Footnote 29. See United States v. California Mobile Home Park Mgmt. Co., 107 F.3d 1374, 1378-1379 (9th Cir. 1997) (construing former time periods); Trustees of the Constr. Indus. & Laborers Health & Welfare Trust v. Desert Valley Landscape & Maint., Inc., 156 F. Supp. 2d 1170, 1173 (D. Nev. 2001) (construing former time periods).

(n37)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(b)(1); see Solis v. Los Angeles, 514 F.3d 946, 954, n.11 (9th Cir. 2008) .

(n38)Footnote 2. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(c).

(n39)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 7(b)(2).

(n40)Footnote 4. Spear v. Dayton's, 771 F.2d 1140, 1144 (8th Cir. 1985) (despite pro se plaintiff's contention that he requested jury trial in his claim to Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and that EEOC claim was attached to and incorporated in his complaint, trial court found no jury demand in plaintiff's pleadings).

(n41)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(b)(1).

(n42)Footnote 6. see Solis v. Los Angeles, 514 F.3d 946, 954 (9th Cir. 2008) .

(n43)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(b)(1).

(n44)Footnote 8. Hupp v. Siroflex of Am., Inc., 159 F.R.D. 29, 30 (S.D. Tex. 1994) ; Kahn v. Head, 114 F.R.D. 20, 21 (D. Md. 1987) .

(n45)Footnote 9. Gargiulo v. Delsole, 769 F.2d 77, 78-79 (2d Cir. 1985) (although obscure placement caused clerk to overlook it, court deemed demand on last page sufficient).

(n46)Footnote 10. Allstate Ins. Co. v. Cross, 2 F.R.D. 120, 123 (E.D. Pa. 1941) .

(n47)Footnote 11. See Ruiz v. Rodriguez, 206 F.R.D. 501, 505 n.4 (E.D. Cal. 2002) (noting cases holding that notation on civil cover sheet may not substitute for proper service of jury demand under Rule 38(b), because cover sheet is not part of pleading).

(n48)Footnote 12. Favors v. Coughlin, 877 F.2d 219, 220 (2d Cir. 1989) (because cover sheet was merely administrative aid to clerk, it was not part of pleadings, and demand was ineffective when not served on adversary).

(n49)Footnote 13. Winant v. Carefree Pools, 118 F.R.D. 28, 29 (E.D.N.Y. 1988) ; see [4], below.

(n50)Footnote 14. Solis v. Los Angeles, 514 F.3d 946, 955 (9th Cir. 2008) (if demand for jury trial has been properly made under Rule 38(b), failure to fulfill additional requirement of any local rule does not constitute waiver of trial by jury); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 83(a)(2) (local rule is invalid if it imposes requirement of form that is enforced in way that causes any party to lose any right because of nonwillful failure to comply).

(n51)Footnote 15. Fed. R. Civ. P. 83(a)(1).

(n52)Footnote 16. Partee v. Buch, 28 F.3d 636, 638 (7th Cir. 1994) .

(n53)Footnote 17. In re Andrews, 189 B.R. 380, 381 (Bankr. E.D. Va. 1995) (construing former time periods).

(n54)Footnote 18. Pradier v. Elespuru, 641 F.2d 808, 811 (9th Cir. 1981) .

(n55)Footnote 19. Partee v. Buch, 28 F.3d 636, 637-638 (7th Cir. 1994) (court erred in denying demand for jury trial, despite fact that demand did not use precise language in caption of pleading as required by local rule, when demand was in compliance with Rule 38(b)).

(n56)Footnote 1. Omawale v. WBZ, 610 F.2d 20, 21-22 (1st Cir. 1979) .

(n57)Footnote 2. Rosen v. Dick, 639 F.2d 82, 90 (2d Cir. 1980) .

(n58)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(b)(1); see Westchester Day Sch. v. Vill. of Mamaroneck, 504 F.3d 338, 356 (2d Cir. 2007) (failure to serve demand for jury constitutes waiver of right to jury).

(n59)Footnote 4. Rosen v. Dick, 639 F.2d 82, 90 (2d Cir. 1980) .

(n60)Footnote 5. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 5(b).

(n61)Footnote 6. Golden Nugget, Inc. v. Chesapeake Bay Fishing Co., L.L.C., 232 F. Supp. 2d 631, 632-634 (E.D. Va. 2002) .

(n62)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 81(c).

(n63)Footnote 8. See Golden Nugget, Inc. v. Chesapeake Bay Fishing Co., L.L.C., 232 F. Supp. 2d 631, 632 (E.D. Va. 2002) (construing former time periods); Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(b)(1), (2).

(n64)Footnote 9. Winant v. Carefree Pools, 118 F.R.D. 28, 29 (E.D.N.Y. 1988) ; see [3][b], above.

(n65)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(b)(2); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 5(d).

(n66)Footnote 2. Early v. Bankers Life & Casualty Co., 853 F. Supp. 268, 271 (N.D. Ill. 1994) .

(n67)Footnote 3. Cf. Rosen v. Dick, 639 F.2d 82 (2d Cir. 1980) .

(n68)Footnote 4. Compare Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(b)(1) with Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(b)(2). Rule 38(d) provides the failure of a party to serve a demand as required by Rule 38, and to file it as required by Rule 5(d), constitutes a waiver by the party of trial by jury; Fed. R. Civ. P. 5(d) provides that all papers after the complaint required to be served on a party must be filed with the court either before service or within a reasonable time after service.

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART II. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL AND WAIVER OF RIGHT TO JURY
A. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.23

§ 22.23 Effect of Amended or Supplemental Pleadings

[1] Amendment Raising New Issue

When an amended pleading raises new issues by asserting new facts, a jury trial may be demanded with regard to those new issues, even if the right had been waived with regard to issues raised in the original pleading. n1 If a pleading is amended by the addition of new parties, the amendment may or may not revive a waived right to jury trial, depending on the circumstances of the change. When the addition of parties alters the claims or nature of relief sought, the right to demand a jury trial will revive. n2 On the other hand, when the addition does not alter the claims or add new issues to the case, the right will not revive. n3 However, even if a party is entitled to the right to a jury trial with regard to new issues raised in an amended pleading, the new issues do not affect a waiver of issues raised in the original pleading. n4 A party must make a demand for a jury trial with regard to issues raised in an amended pleading within 14 days of service of the last pleading directed at those issues. n5

[2] Amendment That Only Changes Theory

If a party amends a complaint to merely assert a new theory of recovery, but the amendment is based on the same facts as the original complaint, the amendment does not revive the party's right to demand a jury trial when the right had been waived as to the original complaint. n1 Only new issues asserted in the amended pleading will generate a new right to make the demand. The term issue means something more than the evidence offered and the legal theories pursued. One must ask whether the ultimate issue for decision is different. n2 New facts that merely clarify the same general issues raised in the original complaint do not create new issues of fact on which to assert a jury demand, n3 and the mere submission of more detailed statements of previously submitted claims does not revive the right to a jury trial. Amendments to pleadings thus may contain new facts which do not create new issues triable by a jury. n4

[3] Amendment That Requests Only Different Relief

If an amended pleading does not raise any new issues, n1 but merely seeks additional relief, it is insufficient to revive the right to demand a jury trial. For example, when a defendant originally sought an injunction and a declaratory judgment in its counterclaim, but later amended to seek damages, the court denied the defendant's jury trial demand on its damage claim, holding that defendant waived its jury trial right when it failed to seek damages in its original counterclaim. n2 However, if new factual issues arise that allow additional relief in the form of money damages, a jury demand made at the time of the amended complaint will revive a waived right to jury. n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAmended PleadingsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsSupplemental PleadingsCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury Trial

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. LaMarca v. Turner, 995 F.2d 1526, 1545 (11th Cir. 1993) , cert. denied, 510 U.S. 1164 (1994) (waiver does not apply to amended complaints); First Wis. Nat'l Bank v. Klapmeier, 526 F.2d 77, 80 (8th Cir. 1975) (amendment to answer for the first time asserted fraud in the inducement of personal guarantee on corporate indebtedness).

(n2)Footnote 2. LaMarca v. Turner, 995 F.2d 1526, 1545-1546 (11th Cir. 1993) , cert. denied, 510 U.S. 1164 (1994) (amended complaint added new plaintiffs who alleged new incidents of civil rights violations).

(n3)Footnote 3. Daniel Int'l Corp. v. Fischbach & Moore, Inc., 916 F.2d 1061, 1063-1064 (5th Cir. 1990) ; Pennsylvania ex rel. Feiling v. Sincavage, 439 F.2d 1133, 1134 (3d Cir. 1971) .

(n4)Footnote 4. Walton v. Eaton Corp., 563 F.2d 66, 71 (3d Cir. 1977) (if original pleadings in action waive trial by jury, right to jury trial of all matters contained in those pleadings may not be revived by amending the original pleadings).

(n5)Footnote 5. See United States v. Jones, 158 F.R.D. 309, 312 (D.N.J. 1994) (construing former time periods).

(n6)Footnote 1. Richardson v. Henry, 902 F.2d 414, 416 (5th Cir. 1990) , cert. denied, 498 U.S. 1069 (1991) (additional theories of recovery pose no new issues of fact); Irvin v. Airco Carbide, 837 F.2d 724, 727 (6th Cir. 1987) (no new issues of fact introduced).

(n7)Footnote 2. Rosen v. Dick, 639 F.2d 82, 94 (2d Cir. 1980) .

(n8)Footnote 3. LaMarca v. Turner, 995 F.2d 1526, 1545 (11th Cir. 1993) , cert. denied, 510 U.S. 1164 (1994) .

(n9)Footnote 4. Clement v. American Greetings Corp., 636 F. Supp. 1326, 1334 (S.D. Cal. 1986) .

(n10)Footnote 1. See [1], above.

(n11)Footnote 2. American Home Prods. Corp. v. Johnson & Johnson, 111 F.R.D. 448, 453 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) .

(n12)Footnote 3. Local 783, Allied Indus. Workers of America, AFL-CIO v. General Elec. Co., 471 F.2d 751, 756 (6th Cir. 1973) , cert. denied, 414 U.S. 822 (1973) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART II. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL AND WAIVER OF RIGHT TO JURY
A. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.24

§ 22.24 Effect of Counterclaim

[1] New Demand May Need to Be Made as to New Issues Raised in Counterclaim

If a jury trial has already been demanded with respect to issues raised in the complaint, that demand will be effective with respect to any claims raised as counterclaims that are directed to the same issues in the complaint. n1 With respect to issues raised for the first time in a counterclaim, a new demand may need to be made. It has been held that the failure to demand a jury trial on new issues raised in the counterclaim waives the right as to those issues, even if a general demand was made with regard to the issues in the complaint. n2 Other courts have held that a general demand made with respect to the issues in the complaint will cover all issues raised in the counterclaim, even if they are unrelated. n3

If a counterclaim raises the same issues as those raised in the answer, a jury demand within 14 days of the reply to the counterclaim will be effective for all issues raised by both the answer and counterclaim; however, if the issues raised in the counterclaim are new issues, not those raised in the answer, a demand within 14 days of the reply will only be effective as to those new issues, and not as to issues addressed in the complaint and the answer. n4

[2] Jury Demand on Compulsory Counterclaim

The rule on compulsory counterclaims generally requires that a pleading state, as a counterclaim, any claim which at the time of serving the pleading the pleader has against any opposing party, if it arises out of the transaction or occurrence that is the subject matter of the opposing party's claim, and does not require the presence of inaccessible third parties. n1 The test for determining whether a demand for a jury on a counterclaim entitles a party to a jury trial on the complaint is whether the counterclaim is compulsory, that is, whether it arises out of the subject matter of the plaintiff's legal claim. Because a compulsory counterclaim by definition relates to the issues raised in the complaint, the demand brings those issues before the jury. By contrast, a counterclaim which is not compulsory but permissive, under Rule 13(b), brings new issues before the court. A jury trial demand on such a counterclaim would therefore not relieve a party of its waiver regarding the issues raised in the complaint. n2

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsCounterclaimsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJury Demands

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. Marvel Entertainment Group, Inc. v. Arp Films, Inc., 116 F.R.D. 86, 89-90 (S.D.N.Y. 1987) (with respect to issues already in action that are raised again by counterclaim, jury demand in amended answer merely replaced timely demand in original answer).

(n2)Footnote 2. Mount Everest Ski Shops, Inc. v. Ski Barn, Inc., 736 F. Supp. 531, 532-533 (D. Vt. 1989) (plaintiff's request for jury trial on each and every count of complaint in contract case did not extend to provide jury trial right with respect to counterclaim for attorney's fees, which court considered different issue); Sound Video Unlimited, Inc. v. Video Shack Inc., 700 F. Supp. 127, 145 (S.D.N.Y. 1988) (new issues not related to primary lawsuit and outside scope of original demand require new demand).

(n3)Footnote 3. Horwitz v. Alloy Automotive Co., 677 F. Supp. 564, 566 (N.D. Ill. 1988) (once party asserts general demand in timely manner, second demand need not be made with respect to counterclaim).

(n4)Footnote 4. See Whirlpool Financial Corp. v. Sevaux, 866 F. Supp. 1102, 1105 (N.D. Ill. 1994) (construing former time periods).

(n5)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 13(a).

(n6)Footnote 2. See Park Club, Inc. v. Resolution Trust Corp., 967 F.2d 1053, 1057 (5th Cir. 1992) (demand by plaintiffs not timely as to complaint, but timely as to counterclaim and both complaint and counterclaim tried to jury so that jury would hear essentially same facts with respect to claims and counterclaim.

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART II. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL AND WAIVER OF RIGHT TO JURY
A. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.25

§ 22.25 Effect of Removal

[1] Demand Not Made in State Court

Rule 81(c) governs a demand for jury trial when a case is removed from state to federal court and all of the necessary pleadings have already been filed in state court as of the date of removal; if all pleadings have not been filed, the time in which to demand a jury is governed by Rule 38(b), rather than Rule 81(c)(3). n1

Rule 81(c) provides that if a party expressly demanded a jury trial in accordance with state law, the party need not renew the demand after removal. n2 When an action is removed from state to federal court and a jury trial demand has not already been made in a state court that requires a demand, a jury trial must be requested within 14 days after filing the removal petition, if the party making the demand is the petitioner. n3 If the party making the demand is not the petitioner, the demand must be made within 14 days after the party is served a notice of removal petition. n4 If no demand is required in the state court, the requirement is also excused in federal court, unless the court orders otherwise. A failure by a party to make a demand when one is required constitutes a waiver of the jury trial right. n5

[2] When Demand Has Been Made in State Court

If a demand is duly made in state court, it will be honored in federal court, even if it would not have satisfied the federal timing requirements if the action had initially been brought in federal court. n1 As is the case with a demand under the federal rules, once a demand has been made under state law, other parties may rely on the demand, and need not make their own demand on removal. For example, when a patient sued health care workers in a medical malpractice action, the patient did not waive her right to jury trial although her state complaint requested a non-jury trial, because the defendants had demanded a jury trial in state court, and the plaintiff was entitled to rely on that demand after removal. n2

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemovalGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJury Demands

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote 1. Ajnoha v. JC Penney Life Ins. Co., 480 F. Supp. 2d 663 (E.D.N.Y. 2007) .

(n2)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 81(c)(3)(A).

(n3)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 81(c)(3)(B)(i).

(n4)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 81(c)(3)(B)(ii).

(n5)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 81(c)(3)(A).

(n6)Footnote 1. Aligheri v. Long Island R.R., 156 F.R.D. 55, 57 (S.D.N.Y. 1994) (jury request was made before action was removed, and state law did not impose any time requirements).

(n7)Footnote 2. Marcella v. Brandywine Hosp., 47 F.3d 618, 625 (3d Cir. 1995) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART II. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL AND WAIVER OF RIGHT TO JURY
A. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.26

§ 22.26 Withdrawal of Demand

[1] Withdrawal Generally Permitted Only With Consent

A party may generally not withdraw a demand for jury trial made under the provisions of Rule 38 without the consent of the parties. n1 Thus, if a demand is made by a party who later attempts to withdraw it, the adverse party has the opportunity to either consent or object to the withdrawal. Consent to withdraw may be made by a written stipulation filed with the court or an oral stipulation entered on the record. n2 Exceptions are discussed in [2], below.

[2] Exceptions to Requirement of Consent

[a] No Consent Required From Party that Opposed or Waived Jury Trial

A party that has in the past opposed a jury trial demand has, in effect, not relied on the demand, and therefore the consent of such a party is not needed for a valid withdrawal of the demand. n1 However, this exception ceases to apply once trial has begun, because in that situation a defendant is relying on the jury trial, even if it initially opposed the demand. Thus, a party may not allow a jury trial to proceed and then unilaterally withdraw its jury demand, merely because the other party initially opposed the demand. n2

A party may also waive its right to consent to withdrawal of a jury demand. Thus, consent is only required to the extent that a particular party would have been entitled to rely on the demand, that is, to the extent the demand covered that party's jury issues. If a party is unaffected by a demand as to certain issues, or if the party has already waived its jury trial right as to those issues, its consent to withdrawal is not required. n3

[b] Maritime Suits

Although withdrawal of a jury demand without the consent of all parties affected by the demand is impermissible, n4 the same effect may be accomplished indirectly in a maritime suit if a party that has made a jury demand later elects to pursue a non-jury remedy only under the admiralty jurisdiction of the court. In one case, the court of appeals held that a defendant that had originally labeled its third-party claim as one in admiralty and at law was permitted at a pretrial conference to elect to pursue only a claim in admiralty. This had the effect of withdrawing defendant's jury demand without the consent of the third-party defendant. The court stated that when a claim is cognizable either at law or in admiralty, the pleader may elect to proceed in admiralty without a jury by filing an identifying statement under Rule 9(h), and that such an election need not be made in the original pleading. Furthermore, Rule 9(h) allows a party to amend a pleading to add or withdraw the identifying statement in accordance with Rule 15. n5 Other courts have held that an amendment under Rule 9(h) may not be used as a device to unilaterally withdraw a jury demand, n6 unless the adverse parties had no right to rely on the demand or had indirectly given consent to the withdrawal. n7

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJury Demands

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(d); see, e.g., In Re Passodelis, 234 B.R. 52, 66 (Bankr. W.D. Pa. 1999) ; Fuller v. City of Oakland, 47 F.3d 1522, 1532 (9th Cir. 1995) ; Gargiulo v. Delsole, 769 F.2d 77, 79 (2d Cir. 1985) ; Cram v. Sun Ins. Office, Ltd., 375 F.2d 670, 675 (4th Cir. 1967) .

(n2)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 39(a).

(n3)Footnote 1. Reid Bros. Logging Co. v. Ketchikan Pulp Co., 699 F.2d 1292, 1304 (9th Cir. 1983) , cert. denied, 464 U.S. 916 (1984) (defendant that attempted repeatedly to defeat plaintiff's jury demand demonstrated that it was not relying on that demand).

(n4)Footnote 2. Fuller v. City of Oakland, 47 F.3d 1522, 1531-1532 (9th Cir. 1995) .

(n5)Footnote 3. Rosen v. Dick, 639 F.2d 82, 92 (2d Cir. 1980) (if party has already waived jury trial right with respect to particular issues, party will not be relieved of that waiver by withholding consent to withdrawal of jury demand concerning issues with which party is not related).

(n6)Footnote 4. See [1], above

(n7)Footnote 5. Emerson G.M. Diesel, Inc. v. Alaskan Enter., 732 F.2d 1468, 1471 (9th Cir. 1984) .

(n8)Footnote 6. Johnson v. Penrod Drilling Co., 469 F.2d 897, 902-903 (5th Cir. 1972) .

(n9)Footnote 7. Moser v. Texas Trailer Corp., 623 F.2d 1006, 1011 (5th Cir. 1980) (when defendants gave their consent to amendment for admiralty election, they could not later complain that their jury trial rights were abrogated).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART II. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL AND WAIVER OF RIGHT TO JURY
A. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 22.27through 22.39

[Reserved]

§§ 22.27[Reserved]

20 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART II. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL AND WAIVER OF RIGHT TO JURY
B. WAIVER OF RIGHT TO DEMAND JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.40

§ 22.40 Waiver of Jury Right Despite Presumption Against Waiver

The Seventh Amendment right to a jury is fundamental, n1 and there is a strong presumption against waiver of that right. n2 However, despite the presumption, the right to a jury trial may be waived in several ways. n3 The right to jury trial may be waived by failure to assert the right in a timely manner, n4 by agreement or stipulation of the parties, n5 or by a party's conduct. n6 Although an express waiver will be upheld, n7 a waiver need not be express but may be implied. n8 For example, a waiver will be implied when a contract provision calls for alternative dispute resolution, n9 or under an arbitration agreement. n10

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury Trial

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. Morgan Guar. Trust Co. of New York v. Crane, 36 F. Supp. 2d 602, 603-604 (S.D.N.Y. 1999.

(n2)Footnote 2. Collins v. Government of Virgin Islands, 366 F.2d 279, 284 (3d Cir. 1966) , cert. denied, 386 U.S. 958 (1967) (courts indulge every reasonable presumption against waiver); Christenson v. Diversified Builders, Inc., 331 F.2d 992, 994 (10th Cir. 1964) (every reasonable presumption against waiver).

(n3)Footnote 3. Preferred RX, Inc. v. American Prescription Plan, Inc., 46 F.3d 535, 548 (6th Cir. 1995) (although based in constitution, jury trial right may be waived); Bonfield v. Aamco Transmissions, Inc., 717 F. Supp. 589, 594 (N.D. Ill. 1989) (although Seventh Amendment guarantees right to jury trial in civil cases, that right is waiveable like most other constitutional rights).

(n4)Footnote 4. See § 22.42.

(n5)Footnote 5. See § 22.43.

(n6)Footnote 6. See § 22.44.

(n7)Footnote 7. Charpentier v. Fluor Ocean Servs., 613 F.2d 81, 86 (5th Cir. 1980) (plaintiff and his attorney at beginning of trial expressly stated that they would waive jury and permit court to be trier of fact regarding issue in question).

(n8)Footnote 8. Seaboard Lumber Co. v. United States, 903 F.2d 1560, 1563 (Fed. Cir. 1990) , cert. denied, 499 U.S. 919 (1991) .

(n9)Footnote 9. Northwest Airlines, Inc. v. Air Line Pilots Ass'n Int'l, 373 F.2d 136, 142 (8th Cir.) , cert. denied, 389 U.S. 827 (1967) (disputes settled by private board).

(n10)Footnote 10. Shankle v. B-G Maintenance Mgmt. of Colorado, Inc., 163 F.3d 1230, 1232 (10th Cir. 1999) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART II. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL AND WAIVER OF RIGHT TO JURY
B. WAIVER OF RIGHT TO DEMAND JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.41

§ 22.41 Test for Waiver is Not Stringent

Although there is no clear test to determine whether a party has waived the right to jury, the courts have indicated that the test is not as stringent as the "intentional relinquishment or abandonment of known right or privilege" test applicable to other constitutional rights n1 because the right to jury may be waived by a mere failure to act. n2 Furthermore, there has been no definitive statement as to who bears the burden of proving waiver. It has been held that the party seeking to enforce the waiver has the burden. n3 Other courts have held that the burden is on the party seeking to avoid the waiver. n4 Some courts have expressly avoided the issue of which party has the burden. n5

Some courts have held that in the interest of fairness and judicial economy, the waiver rule should be applied to pro se parties in the same manner that it is applied to parties who are represented by counsel. n6 In several cases, however, courts have held that a stricter standard applies to pro se parties and have found no waiver. n7 In one recent case, the court of appeals stated that the right to a jury trial is too important for the courts to find a knowing and voluntary relinquishment of that right in a doubtful situation where a pro se party is involved. When a trial court disregards a demand for a jury trial and conducts a bench trial instead, the mere participation without objection of a pro se party does not constitute an unquestionable knowing and voluntary waiver of the right to a jury trial. The court acknowledged that had the plaintiff been represented by counsel, the circumstances of the case may have constituted a knowing and voluntary waiver. n8

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury Trial

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. Barber v. Page, 390 U.S. 719, 725, 88 S. Ct. 1318, 1322, 20 L. Ed. 2d 255 (1968) (test for waiver of right to cross-examine witnesses).

(n2)Footnote 2. Early v. Bankers Life & Casualty Co., 853 F. Supp. 268, 271 (N.D. Ill. 1994) .

(n3)Footnote 3. Sullivan v. Ajax Navigation Corp., 881 F. Supp. 906, 910 (S.D.N.Y. 1995) .

(n4)Footnote 4. K.M.C. Co. v. Irving Trust Co., 757 F.2d 752, 755-758 (6th Cir. 1985) .

(n5)Footnote 5. Whirlpool Fin. Corp. v. Sevaux, 866 F. Supp. 1102, 1105 (N.D. Ill. 1994) ; Connecticut Nat'l Bank v. Smith, 826 F. Supp. 57, 59-60 (D.R.I. 1993) .

(n6)Footnote 6. See, e.g., Lovelace v. Dall, 820 F.2d 223, 228 (7th Cir. 1987) (pro se plaintiff waived jury right when he participated without objection in bench trial after agreeing at pretrial conference that demand for jury would be withdrawn).

(n7)Footnote 7. See, e.g., Chapman v. Kleindienst, 507 F.2d 1246, 1253 (7th Cir. 1974) .

(n8)Footnote 8. Jennings v. McCormick, 154 F.3d 542, 545 (5th Cir. 1998) (pro se prisoner did not waive right to jury trial by signing form indicating consent to determination by a United States magistrate judge, which included waiver of right to jury trial, because language of form did not unquestionably demonstrate knowing and voluntary relinquishment).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART II. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL AND WAIVER OF RIGHT TO JURY
B. WAIVER OF RIGHT TO DEMAND JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.42

§ 22.42 Failure to Timely Serve and File Demand

[1] Failure Generally Constitutes Waiver of Jury Right

If a party fails to serve and file a demand as required by Rule 38, the failure generally constitutes a waiver of the right to a jury trial. n1 A plaintiff may not defeat its previous waiver by voluntarily dismissing the action without prejudice and then refiling and making the demand. n2 One court of appeals cited a number of district court decisions denying leave to dismiss in these circumstances, and concluded that such decisions denying leave to dismiss for the sole purpose of overcoming inadvertent failure to make a timely jury demand are in accord with the policies of Rule 38(a) insisting on promptness, and of Rule 41(a) limiting the former freedom of dismissal of plaintiffs in actions at law. Furthermore, to allow leave to discontinue without prejudice solely for this purpose would work a discrimination in favor of plaintiffs whose attorneys had been guilty of inadvertent neglect in demanding a jury trial, as against defendants who were similarly situated. n3

[2] Effect of Demand Filed by Other Party

If one party files a timely demand for jury, there is no waiver when another party fails to make a demand for jury trial, with respect to the issues covered by the filed demand. This rule is the result of the doctrine that once one party files a jury demand, other parties are entitled to rely on that demand for the issues it covers, n1 and need not file their own demands. n2 The demand may be made by any other party, provided that it is directed to the issue in question. Therefore, for example, a defendant may rely on a demand by a cross-claim defendant, or by another defendant who later obtains a dismissal of the claim against it. n3

Whether reliance on another party's jury demand is effective depends on whether issues have been raised that are beyond the scope of those encompassed in the demand. If so, a party may not rely on the previous demand as to those additional issues. n4 Thus, a third-party plaintiff whose claim raises new issues not addressed in the original complaint may not rely on the demand of the plaintiff with regard to the third-party claim. n5 Similarly, a plaintiff may not rely on the jury demand of a first defendant to preserve its jury trial right with respect to its claims against a second defendant if the claim against the second deals with factual issues not implicated in the claims against the first defendant. n6

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJury Demands

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(d); see Reich v. Tiller Helicopter Servs., Inc., 8 F.3d 1018, 1032 (5th Cir. 1993) (jury trial right is neither exclusive nor mandatory and may be waived if not demanded); Noddings Inv. Group, Inc. v. Kelley, 881 F. Supp. 335, 336-337 (N.D. Ill. 1995) (waiver due to untimely jury demand by defendants).

(n2)Footnote 2. Paturzo v. Home Life Ins. Co., 503 F.2d 333, 336 (4th Cir. 1974) ; McNeilab, Inc. v. American Home Prods. Corp., 683 F. Supp. 332, 337 (S.D.N.Y. 1987) .

(n3)Footnote 3. Noonan v. Cunard S.S. Co., 375 F.2d 69, 71-72 (2d Cir. 1967) .

(n4)Footnote 1. Dell'Orfano v. Romano, 962 F.2d 199, 202 (2d Cir. 1998) .

(n5)Footnote 2. Fuller v. City of Oakland, 47 F.3d 1522, 1531 (9th Cir. 1995) .

(n6)Footnote 3. Mid Kan. Fed. Savings & Loan Ass'n v. Orpheum Theater Co., 810 F. Supp. 1184, 1190 (D. Kan. 1992) .

(n7)Footnote 4. Davidson Pipe Co. v. Laventhol & Horwath, 125 F.R.D. 363, 367 (S.D.N.Y. 1989) .

(n8)Footnote 5. Espinosa v. Van Dorn Plastic Mach. Co., 813 F. Supp. 252, 253-254 (S.D.N.Y. 1993) (jury demand made by plaintiff in products liability action did not encompass defendant's third-party complaint for contribution and indemnification because third-party claim raised issues not addressed in complaint).

(n9)Footnote 6. Indeca v. Continental Ill. Nat'l Bank, 675 F. Supp. 1515, 1517-1518 (N.D. Ill. 1987) , aff'd on other grounds, 858 F.2d 1264 (7th Cir. 1988) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART II. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL AND WAIVER OF RIGHT TO JURY
B. WAIVER OF RIGHT TO DEMAND JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.43

§ 22.43 Waiver by Agreement

[1] Waiver by Agreement Permissible

A person may waive the right to a jury trial by an agreement, including by the terms and provisions of a contract, n1 provided that the person has entered into the contractual arrangement knowingly and voluntarily. n2 Such an agreement is neither illegal nor contrary to public policy. n3 However, even though a contractual waiver of the right to a jury trial is permitted, because the jury trial right is a fundamental one, there is a presumption against its waiver. n4 Therefore, contract provisions waiving the right are strictly and narrowly construed, n5 and the requirement of knowing, voluntary, intentional waiver strictly applied. n6 Jury trial waivers are common in loan agreements and loan guarantees, and these are regularly enforced provided that they meet the "knowing and voluntary" test. n7

[2] Factors to Determine Whether Waiver is Knowing and Voluntary

Courts consider all of the following in determining whether a contractual waiver of a jury trial right was entered into knowingly and voluntarily: n1

1. Negotiability of contract terms and negotiations between the parties concerning the waiver provision.

2. Conspicuousness of the provision in the contract.

3. The relative bargaining power of the parties.

4. Business acumen of the party opposing waiver.

5. Whether counsel for the party opposing waiver had an opportunity to review the agreement.

Thus, a contractual waiver of jury trial right was upheld in a case when (1) there was no indication that the terms of the note were actually not negotiable; (2) the jury waiver provision was quite conspicuous, in that it was written in all capital letters in the sole paragraph on the signature page itself; (3) although there was clearly a difference in bargaining power between the sides, the plaintiffs were not financial neophytes, and they had established relationships with a number of defendant officials over approximately one year, and had previously negotiated changes to agreements made with the defendant; (4) the plaintiffs were experienced business people; and (5) it was arguable that the plaintiffs had an opportunity to review the document and have their counsel review it. n2

On the other hand, a contractual jury waiver in a promissory note was not enforced because the waiver was not made knowingly and voluntarily by the promisor when (1) the provision was never discussed; (2) the terms were drafted by promisee's counsel and mailed to the promisor; (3) the provision was not conspicuous; and (4) the promisor was not represented by counsel. n3

A party seeking to enforce a contractual waiver of the right to a jury trial may prepare to meet that burden by carefully drafting the provision waiving the right, presenting the provision conspicuously in the contract, and preparing a record to show that the provision was explained and reviewed, for example by requiring that the provision be initialed. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury Trial

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. Herman Miller, Inc. v. Thom Rock Realty Co., 46 F.3d 183, 189 (2d Cir. 1995) (court enforced jury waiver provision in commercial lease).

(n2)Footnote 2. Leasing Serv. Corp. v. Crane, 804 F.2d 828, 832 (4th Cir. 1986) ; see [b], below.

(n3)Footnote 3. Phoenix Leasing, Inc. v. Sure Broadcasting, Inc., 843 F. Supp. 1379, 1384 (D. Nev. 1994) .

(n4)Footnote 4. Morgan Guar. Trust Co. of New York v. Crane, 36 F. Supp. 2d 602, 603-604 (S.D.N.Y. 1999; Wauhop v. Allied Humble Bank, 926 F.2d 454, 455 (5th Cir. 1991) .

(n5)Footnote 5. Hulsey v. West, 966 F.2d 579, 581-582 (10th Cir. 1992) (guarantor of loan agreement was not bound by jury waiver provision in amendment to agreement, even though he had executed agreement as president of borrower, because he did not sign in his individual capacity, and amendment was made four years after his personal guaranty was executed).

(n6)Footnote 6. K.M.C. Co. v. Irving Trust Co., 757 F.2d 752, 755-758 (6th Cir. 1985) (when defendant's representatives had assured plaintiff that waiver provisions would not be enforced absent fraud, waiver was neither knowing nor voluntary).

(n7)Footnote 7. Cooperative Fin. Ass'n, Inc. v. Garst, 871 F. Supp. 1168, 1171 (N.D. Iowa 1995) ; see [2], below.

(n8)Footnote 1. Morgan Guar. Trust Co. of New York v. Crane, 36 F. Supp. 2d 602, 603-604 (S.D.N.Y. 1999; Whirlpool Fin. Corp. v. Sevaux, 866 F. Supp. 1102, 1105 (N.D. Ill. 1994) .

(n9)Footnote 2. Morgan Guar. Trust Co. of New York v. Crane, 36 F. Supp. 2d 602, 604 (S.D.N.Y. 1999) ; see Cooperative Fin. Ass'n, Inc. v. Garst, 871 F. Supp. 1168, 1172-1173 (N.D. Iowa 1995) (waiver enforceable against borrower when terms were clear and comprehensive, provision was set off in its own paragraph just above signatures with warning to read the entire document, there was no inequality in bargaining power, in that borrower was experienced and could have sought financing elsewhere).

(n10)Footnote 3. Whirlpool Fin. Corp. v. Sevaux, 866 F. Supp. 1102, 1105 (N.D. Ill. 1994) ; see National Equip. Rental v. Hendrix, 565 F.2d 255, 258 (2d Cir. 1977) (waiver provision set forth deeply and inconspicuously in body of contract; defendant had no choice but to accept the conditions to obtain badly needed funds; inequality in bargaining power suggested waiver was neither intentional nor knowing).

(n11)Footnote 4. Cooperative Fin. Ass'n, Inc. v. Garst, 871 F. Supp. 1168, 1172, n.2 (N.D. Iowa 1995) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART II. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL AND WAIVER OF RIGHT TO JURY
B. WAIVER OF RIGHT TO DEMAND JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.44

§ 22.44 Waiver by Conduct

There are several ways that a party may waive the right to a jury trial by conduct, including the following:

1. Failure to appear at trial. In an action in federal district court by a plaintiff to recover wages, for example, the defendant waived his right to trial by jury by failing to appear at the time set for trial, even though he had made a demand for jury trial under Rule 38. n1

2. Participation in a bench trial. If a party knowingly participates in a bench trial without objection, the party waives the right to a jury trial despite a previous timely jury demand. Particularly, a party's vigorous participation in a bench trial without making any reference to a jury is an indication that the waiver has not been the result of mere inadvertence but may only be presumed to be a knowing relinquishment of the prior jury demand. n2

3. Failure to object to an order specifying a bench trial. A party may waive its right to jury trial, even after making a timely demand, by failing to object to a district court's pretrial order providing for a bench trial. n3 However, the failure to object to a withdrawal of a jury trial demand or to an informal direction that the trial is to be held without a jury will not constitute a waiver if circumstances are such that the intent to waive the jury trial is not clear. n4

4. Acceptance of discharge of jury. If the attorney for a party accepts without objection the discharge of the jury, it will constitute a waiver of the jury trial right. For example, when counsel for a plaintiff made a statement that he was finished with the jury and expressed agreement that the jury could be discharged, combined with counsel's knowledge that the jury was being discharged and a continued discussion with the court after discharge, it was deemed consent sufficient to constitute a waiver. n5

5. Failure to submit issue to jury or to object to failure to submit issue. When a party has requested a special verdict, a party waives its right to have a jury trial of any issue if it neglects to request that the issue be submitted to the jury, n6 or fails to object when the issue is not presented. n7 This principle has also been applied to the failure to submit an issue in interrogatories presented to the jury, n8 and to the failure to object when interrogatories are submitted that do not contain the particular issue. n9

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury Trial

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. Olsen v. International Supply Co, 22 F.R.D. 221, 223 (D.C. Alaska 1958) .

(n2)Footnote 2. Cooper v. Loper, 923 F.2d 1045, 1049 (3d Cir. 1991) ; Royal Am. Managers, Inc. v. IRC Holding Corp., 885 F.2d 1011, 1018 (2d Cir. 1989) .

(n3)Footnote 3. See Lovelace v. Dall, 820 F.2d 223, 228 (7th Cir. 1987) .

(n4)Footnote 4. Heyman v. Kline, 456 F.2d 123, 129-130 (2d Cir.) , cert. denied, 409 U.S. 847 (1972) (absent party's consent or consent of counsel, there may be no effective waiver; failure to object to casual remark by trial judge that trial would be non-jury which was made before time to answer had expired was not waiver); Hupp v. Siroflex of Am., Inc., 159 F.R.D. 29, 30-31 (S.D. Tex. 1994) (even though plaintiff withdrew demand in open court and defendant failed to object, ambiguity raised reasonable presumption against waiver when defendant demanded jury in its answer, trial had not yet taken place, and defendant reserved right to object).

(n5)Footnote 5. Pope v. Savings Bank of Puget Sound, 850 F.2d 1345, 1355 (9th Cir. 1988) (counsel's confusion regarding discharge was unreasonable).

(n6)Footnote 6. Rose Confections, Inc. v. Ambrosia Chocolate Co., 816 F.2d 381, 389 (8th Cir. 1987) (failure to request district court to submit question on competitive injury in special verdict).

(n7)Footnote 7. Kavanaugh v. Greenlee Tool Co., 944 F.2d 7, 11-12 (1st Cir. 1991) (jury trial right waived as to issues omitted from special verdict form when party delayed until after jury was discharged before objecting to omissions).

(n8)Footnote 8. Bruno v. Western Elec. Co., 829 F.2d 957, 961-962 (10th Cir. 1987) (jury trial right was waived on issue of employer's continuing violation in ADEA suit when both parties failed to submit the question as part of special interrogatories given to jury).

(n9)Footnote 9. Eastern Mt. Platform Tennis v. Sherwin-Williams Co., 40 F.3d 492, 501 (1st Cir. 1994) , cert. denied, 515 U.S. 1103 (1995) (party failed to request in interrogatories a determination of portion of damages flowing from consumer protection claim; by failing to object to damages interrogatory, parties permitted the court to determine this issue).

25 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART II. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL AND WAIVER OF RIGHT TO JURY
B. WAIVER OF RIGHT TO DEMAND JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.45

§ 22.45 Waiver Made by Filing Claim Against Debtor in Bankruptcy

If a creditor files a claim in bankruptcy against a debtor, the general rule is that the creditor waives trial by jury of that claim. Determination of the claim is part of the process of allowance and disallowance of claims integral to restructuring of the debtor-creditor relationship, which is a public right, and therefore is triable without a jury by the bankruptcy court. n1 One court has concluded that neither precedent nor logic supports the proposition that either the creditor or the debtor automatically waives all right to a jury trial whenever a proof of claim is filed. For a waiver to occur, the dispute must be part of the claims-allowance process or must affect the hierarchical reordering of creditors' claims. In that case, the right to a jury trial is lost not so much because it is waived, but because the legal dispute has been transformed into an equitable issue. n2

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury Trial

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. Granfinanciera, S.A. v. Nordberg, 492 U.S. 33, 57-59, 109 S. Ct. 2782, 106 L. Ed. 2d 26 (1989) .

(n2)Footnote 2. Germain v. Connecticut Nat'l Bank, 988 F.2d 1323, 1330 (2d Cir. 1993) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART II. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL AND WAIVER OF RIGHT TO JURY
B. WAIVER OF RIGHT TO DEMAND JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.46

§ 22.46 Effect of Subsequent Trial

[1] Effect of Subsequent Trial on Waiver

When a party waives the right to a jury trial in the original case by a failure to make a timely demand, or by an affirmative withdrawal of a demand, the right is not revived if the court orders a new trial. n1 For example, when the plaintiff in an action for wrongful discharge withdrew a jury demand based on an assertion that the court erroneously excluded evidence, and the evidentiary ruling was reversed on post-trial motion, the plaintiff's demand for a jury in the new trial was denied because the plaintiff's earlier unequivocal withdrawal precluded a new demand. n2 However, a party who wishes to obtain a jury trial on remand after waiver may move under Rule 39 for relief in the court's discretion. n3

[2] Effect of Subsequent Trial on Proper Demand

As is the case with waiver, a valid demand is not affected by the necessity for a subsequent trial. Thus, If a demand for jury trial has been properly made in one action, that demand will be preserved with respect to the scope of the issues cover by the demand, if the case is remanded after appeal or consolidated with another case. n1 When an action is remanded for new trial and an issue not raised in the original action is newly introduced, it has been held that this has the effect of amending the pleadings, and therefore the parties have an opportunity to demand a jury trial on the newly introduced issue. n2

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury Trial

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. Roth v. Hyer, 142 F.2d 227, 228 (5th Cir.) , cert. denied, 323 U.S. 712 (1944) (right to make demand is not revived after waiver; however, either party may move under Rule 39 for the court to grant a jury trial in its discretion).

(n2)Footnote 2. Hanlon v. Providence College, 615 F.2d 535, 539 (1st Cir. 1980) .

(n3)Footnote 3. McGowan v. United States, 296 F.2d 252, 256 (5th Cir. 1961) ; see § 22.48 (motion for relief from waiver).

(n4)Footnote 1. United States v. Nordbrock, 941 F.2d 947, 949-950 (9th Cir. 1991) .

(n5)Footnote 2. In re Zweibon, 565 F.2d 742, 746-748 (D.C. Cir. 1977) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART II. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL AND WAIVER OF RIGHT TO JURY
B. WAIVER OF RIGHT TO DEMAND JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.47

§ 22.47 Practical Effect of Waiver

If there is a waiver of the right to jury for an issue, the issue will generally be tried by the court n1 because Rule 38 states that a failure to make a timely demand results in the waiver of a the right to a jury trial. n2 However, there are several exceptions to this general rule: n3

1. If the party seeking a jury trial makes a motion, the court may relieve the party of its waiver and order a jury trial, provided that the party would otherwise have been entitled to a jury. n4

2. Except in cases against the United States when a statute provides for a nonjury trial, a jury trial may be ordered if all parties consent and the court agrees. n5

3. On motion of a party or on its own initiative, the court may try any issue with an advisory jury. n6

These exceptions recognize that there is no such thing as a constitutional right to be free of a jury trial (or to have trial by the court), and there is no general prohibition against a court submitting issues to a jury for which there is no constitutional or statutory jury trial right. n7 However, a court does not have unlimited discretion to order a jury trial. A court may not order a jury trial when there is no statutory or constitutional right to jury trial, and there are no special circumstances, such as intermeshing of jury and nonjury claims based on the same facts that require the exercise of the court's discretion. n8 Furthermore, the trial court may not order a jury trial on its own initiative if none of the parties have demanded a jury trial, n9 except that a court may order an advisory jury sua sponte. n10

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury Trial

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 39(b).

(n2)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(d).

(n3)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 39(b), (c).

(n4)Footnote 4. See § 22.48.

(n5)Footnote 5. See § 22.62.

(n6)Footnote 6. See § 22.63.

(n7)Footnote 7. Beacon Theatres, Inc. v. Westover, 359 U.S. 500, 510, 79 S. Ct. 948, 3 L. Ed. 2d 988 (1959) .

(n8)Footnote 8. New Hampshire Fire Ins. Co. v. Perkins, 28 F.R.D. 588, 592 (D. Del. 1961) .

(n9)Footnote 9. Moores v. Greenberg, 834 F.2d 1105, 1108-1109 (1st Cir. 1987) (Rule 39(b) intent is to prevent judge from acting sua sponte).

(n10)Footnote 10. Fed. R. Civ. P. 39(c).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART II. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL AND WAIVER OF RIGHT TO JURY
B. WAIVER OF RIGHT TO DEMAND JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.48

§ 22.48 Relief From Waiver of Right to Jury Trial

[1] Motion by Party For Relief from Waiver

If a party makes a motion requesting relief, a court has discretion to order a jury trial of any or all issues in any action in which a demand for trial by jury could have been made of right, notwithstanding the fact that the party failed to make a timely jury demand. n1 However, the court may not order a jury trial on its own initiative, even if there is a constitutional or statutory right to a jury trial of the issues. n2 This rule often raises the question as to what action by a party qualifies as a "motion for relief." The language of Rule 39(b) indicates that the filing of a formal, written motion for a jury trial is the best procedure to follow to obtain relief from a waiver of a jury trial right. However, case precedents make it clear that a formal, written motion is not always required. Courts have deemed a variety of other actions and informal applications to satisfy the requirement of a "motion" within the meaning of Rule 39(b). These actions have included the following examples:

1. Late filing of a jury demand. Several courts have held that an untimely filing of a jury demand qualifies as a motion for relief from jury waiver and as a motion for a jury trial. n3

2. Amendment of a pleading. If a party attempts to amend a complaint to include a demand for a jury trial, the court may construe it as a motion for relief from waiver. n4

3. Nunc pro tunc filing of demand. A motion for leave to file a jury demand nunc pro tunc has been treated as a motion for relief from waiver. n5

4. Request for jury in memorandum. It has been held that a request appearing in a pre-trial memorandum satisfied the requirements for a motion for relief from waiver. n6

5. Informal discussion. A party's discussion of the need for a jury trial has been found to satisfy the motion for relief requirement. n7

6. Letter from counsel. A mere letter from a party's counsel requesting that the case be set on the jury docket has been construed as a Rule 39(b) "motion for relief from waiver." n8

Although reliance on this type of informal conduct to satisfy the motion requirement of Rule 39(b) is generally not good practice, and these motions may not be recognized in the discretion of the court, n9 a party opposing a jury trial will have a difficult time convincing a court that such informal conduct does not satisfy the motion requirement of Rule 39(b). This is because there are no precise formalities for a Rule 39(b) motion. The language and history of the rule indicate that the requirement was inserted by the draftsmen simply as a means of preventing the district court from acting sua sponte when the parties were unanimous in their preference for a bench trial, and almost any cognizable affirmation of a party's intent to avail itself of a jury trial may qualify. n10

[2] Court Has Broad Discretion to Decide Motion For Relief from Waiver

The court has broad discretion under Rule 39(b) in making its determination whether to relieve a party from the waiver of jury trial. n1 Thus, courts have used several standards for the exercise of discretion on these motions. As a practical matter, however, regardless of what standard for the exercise of discretion is expressed, appellate courts tend to affirm the decisions of trial courts on motions for a jury trial. Appellate courts are very reluctant to interfere with the rulings that are committed to the discretion of the trial judge, who is in the best position to understand the facts of the case. n2 In other words, even courts that follow a standard that relief should not be granted without a clear showing of good cause, in actuality rarely reverse a grant of a jury trial. n3

Similarly, those courts using the standard that a Rule 39(b) motion for relief should be granted unless there is a good reason shown for not granting the motion, also rarely reverse trial court rulings denying a jury trial. n4

However, all courts agree that a district court considering a Rule 39(b) relief from waiver motion will be reversed if the court acts arbitrarily or capriciously. n5 This typically means that the district court may not totally ignore the types of evidentiary factors that the court should consider in making a Rule 39(b) motion, as discussed in [3], below. It also refers to the fact that a court may not grant a jury trial for claims that are not triable by a jury. For example, a court does not have discretion to grant a Rule 39(b) motion for relief with respect to claims in equity. n6

[3] Factors Court Should Consider In Exercise of Discretion to Grant Relief from Waiver

[a] No Particular Factors Controlling

There are many factors that the trial court should consider in the exercise of discretion in deciding a motion for jury trial. It is the totality of these factors that must be considered in evaluating the court's exercise of discretion. n1 Thus, courts should be concerned with the cumulative effect of the various facts and circumstances established by the parties in making and opposing Rule 39(b) motions for jury trials. n2 Although there are almost an infinite number of facts and circumstances that a court could consider on Rule 39(b) motions, the cases establish that motions usually turn on the factors discussed in detail in [b]-[j], below. n3

[b] Suitability of Issues for Jury Trial

Courts have ruled that it is proper to deny a motion for a jury trial on grounds that the issues in the case are highly technical or complex, or otherwise not well suited for consideration by a jury. Many types of cases have been found unsuitable for trial by jury, including: patent litigation; n4 actions regarding audits and accountings; n5 antitrust actions; n6

Typically, claims or issues in a case in which the law is reasonably clear and straightforward, and that are likely to turn on questions of fact, are considered more suitably tried to a jury than to the court. n7 Cases that will turn on questions of the credibility of witnesses are also most suitable for trial by jury, because what to believe and whom to believe are at the very heart of what might be considered the province of the jury and are questions that lend themselves to the collective judgment of individuals with appropriate guidance from the court. n8 On the other hand, if the issues presented in a case are predominantly questions of law, rather than questions of fact, the court is more likely to refuse to exercise its discretion and grant a motion for a jury trial under Rule 39(b). Questions of law are for the court, and if legal questions predominate, it may be more convenient and efficient for the court to try the case. n9

[c] Prejudice to Other Parties

The degree of prejudice to nonmoving parties is a very important factor in granting or denying a motion for a jury trial under Rule 39(b). n10 Thus, a court will almost always deny relief from waiver when prejudice is shown. When, for example, the adverse party had developed its case on the assumption that the issue would be tried to the bench, and had refrained from hiring an expert on the basis of that assumption, a jury trial was properly denied. n11 A party objecting to a motion for a jury trial on grounds of prejudice should show specific instances of the ways in which granting a jury trial would be prejudicial. n12 This showing will usually take the form of an affidavit. n13

A court also has the alternative to grant a motion for a jury trial on conditions that lessen or eliminate prejudice to the nonmoving parties. Whenever a court has available conditions or affirmative steps it may take to alleviate any prejudice from the granting of a late demand for jury trial, such as continuing the trial or granting additional time for discovery, the availability of such remedial actions may be considered by the court in weighing whether to grant the motion for a jury trial. n14

[d] Administrative Time and Expense

Several courts have cited the additional time and expense of a jury trial in denying a motion for jury trial. n15 Courts have also noted the overcrowded condition of the jury trial dockets. n16 Whenever granting a motion for a jury trial will disrupt the court's planning in this way, the court may properly deny the motion. n17 The timing of the motion for a jury trial will determine how much of an adverse effect the granting of the motion will have. The earlier the motion is made, the less likely it will affect the court's docket or other caseload management plans. If a motion for a jury trial is made early enough so that it does not affect the court's plans, add to the cost of the trial, or create other adverse effects to the system, and there is no prejudice to the adverse party, the court may grant a jury trial. n18

Not all courts agree that jury trials will involve more expense and take more time, at least not in all situations. Thus, one court has held that an action for recovery of death benefits, for example, is likely to consume more judicial resources as a trial to the court than as a jury trial. The preparation of the detailed findings of fact and conclusions of law required by Rule 52 typically requires more time and attention than the preparation of jury instructions. Also, probably most trial lawyers would agree that preparation of proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law generally consumes more lawyer time than drafting proposed jury instructions for the same case. The court further noted that in short cases, the choice between jury and nonjury trial does not significantly affect or delay the trial date. Furthermore, the parties are more likely to receive a very prompt final disposition on a jury's verdict than in a case tried to the court. n19

[e] Delay in Seeking Relief from Waiver

The length of any delay that a party takes in applying to the court for relief under Rule 39(b) is an important factor in the court's determination of whether to grant a jury trial. Courts generally will not excuse long delays. n20 The court will be more willing to excuse a brief delay, n21 especially if a satisfactory reason for the delay is shown beyond mere inadvertence. n22

The length of delay becomes more significant as the trial date approaches. Motions for relief from a jury trial waiver that are made on the eve of trial are viewed with disfavor because they disrupt the court's docket, delay trial, and prejudice the opposing party, who has invariably prepared for a bench trial. n23 Thus, it would be proper to deny a motion that was made only a few days before the final docket call, when plaintiff had prepared its case to be tried to the bench rather than a jury trial. To grant a jury trial motion at such a late date would force the plaintiff to change its trial strategy on such short notice that it would have worked a substantial hardship. n24

On the other hand, when there is sufficient time for the parties to prepare for trial, the court may be more tolerant of a delay in making a jury trial motion. However, the fact that the trial is still a number of months away will not necessarily result in a grant of relief if no other justification for the tardy demand is given. n25

[f] Excuse for Failure of Counsel to Make Valid Demand

The reason that counsel failed to make a proper demand is an important factor in the decision of whether to grant relief. Mere inadvertence, oversight, or lack of diligence by counsel will not persuade a court to relieve a party of its failure to timely demand a jury trial. n26 Furthermore, counsel's inexperience, unfamiliarity with particular rules or with federal procedure in general, or an erroneous reading of the legal requirements will not generally justify relief. n27 On the other hand, inadvertence combined with other factors may well justify relief from the waiver of a jury trial. Most commonly, inadvertence combined with a showing that a jury trial would not prejudice the rights of other parties to the suit has sometimes justified granting the motion. n28

There are two reasons for failure that courts have held to be excusable. First, counsel's illness may be a valid excuse for a failure to timely file a jury trial demand, depending on the circumstances of each particular case. A serious injury leading to disability and a resulting case backlog may constitute a sufficient excuse justifying a motion for a jury trial if the motion is promptly filed once counsel recovers, and there is no prejudice to opposing parties. n29 Second, substitution of counsel may be grounds for relief if combined with other factors. Thus, if other persuasive elements are present in combination with substitution, such as, appropriateness of a jury trial, lack of opposition by the other party, and prompt action by replacement counsel, the court may grant relief. n30 In any event, if original counsel did not timely file a jury demand, it is imperative for substitute counsel to seek relief as promptly as possible. Courts will not be impressed by a substitution of counsel if the substituted counsel does not act promptly. n31

[g] Amendment of Pleading

A plaintiff who has failed to make a timely demand for a jury trial under Rule 38(b) may not, by amendment of the complaint, become entitled to make a jury demand of right. The mere assertion of additional theories of recovery based on the same facts presented in the original complaint does not re-open the period during which a jury demand may be filed. Only an amendment that raises a truly new issue will create a new period for filing a jury demand as to the newly raised issue. n32 Similarly, an amendment that does not present new issues will not ordinarily serve as a basis for a discretionary grant of a jury trial pursuant to a Rule 39(b) motion after the right to a jury has been waived. n33 However, when an amendment to a complaint does raise a new issue and when a jury trial is duly demanded as to the newly-raised issue, the court in its discretion may order a jury trial of the original issues also. n34

[h] Preference for Single Trier of Fact

If a party has made a timely jury trial demand with respect to some claims, but not as to others, the court may consider that fact in deciding whether to grant a motion for a jury trial as to all claims in the interest of justice, convenience, and economy. n35 This rule is particularly appropriate when the claims are factually and legally intertwined. n36 This rule is based in the principle that, when possible, only one trier of fact should be used for the trial of what is essentially one lawsuit to settle one claim split conceptually into separate parts because of historical developments. n37

[i] Pro Se Plaintiff

Courts have shown greater leniency towards pro se parties in granting relief from waiver of a jury trial under Rule 39(b). For example, in a prisoner's civil rights action brought pro se, one circuit court of appeals found that the district court had abused its discretion in denying the plaintiff's request for a jury trial. Although untimely, the request for a jury had been made four months before trial. The court of appeals stated that, absent strong and compelling reasons to the contrary, relief should be granted. The court of appeals then established a rule for pro se parties that when a Rule 39(b) motion is denied, the district court should articulate on the record the strong and compelling reasons that prompted the court to deny the motion. n38

Another circuit similarly held that strong and compelling reasons had to exist to justify denial of a jury trial. In particular, the court found that the convenience of the district court did not constitute the kind of strong and compelling reason required to warrant a denial of relief. n39

[j] Objection of Opposition Party

One of the most crucial factors in deciding the Rule 39(b) motion for a jury trial is whether the nonmoving party opposes the motion or not. The opposition's failure to object to the motion has been cited as an important factor to be considered in granting relief. n40 Conversely, if a motion for relief from waiver is met with strong opposition, it is an important factor militating against the granting of a jury trial. n41

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury Trial

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 39(b).

(n2)Footnote 2. Mesa Petroleum Co. v. Coniglio, 629 F.2d 1022, 1028-1029 (5th Cir. 1980) .

(n3)Footnote 3. See, e.g., Merritt v. Faulkner, 697 F.2d 761, 767 (7th Cir. 1983) , cert. denied, 464 U.S. 986 (1983) ; Swofford v. B & W, Inc., 336 F.2d 406, 409 (5th Cir. 1964) .

(n4)Footnote 4. Davis v. Elkins, 69 F.R.D. 705, 706 (E.D. Tenn. 1975) .

(n5)Footnote 5. Buggeln & Smith, Inc. v. Standard Brands, Inc., 27 F. Supp. 399, 399 (S.D.N.Y. 1939) .

(n6)Footnote 6. Federal Deposit Ins. Corp. v. Palermo, 815 F.2d 1329, 1333-1334 (10th Cir. 1987) .

(n7)Footnote 7. Jackson v. Airways Parking Co., 297 F. Supp. 1366, 1384 (N.D. Ga. 1969) .

(n8)Footnote 8. Moores v. Greenberg, 834 F.2d 1105, 1108-1109 (1st Cir. 1987) .

(n9)Footnote 9. Pyramid Co. of Holyoke v. Homeplace Stores Two, Inc. 175 F.R.D. 415, 421 (D. Mass. 1997) (district court declined to consider request for relief from waiver of jury trial as "motion," when it was raised in reply brief in support of motion to amend answer to add counterclaims and jury demand).

(n10)Footnote 10. Moore's v. Greenberg, 834 F.2d 1105, 1108 (1st Cir. 1987) .

(n11)Footnote 1. Swofford v. B & W, Inc., 336 F.2d 406, 409 (5th Cir.) , cert. denied, 379 U.S. 962 (1964) .

(n12)Footnote 2. Rutledge v. Electric Hose & Rubber Co., 511 F.2d 668, 675 (9th Cir. 1975) (quoting Moore's Federal Practice, absent abuse of judicial discretion, denial of a Rule 39(b) motion should be sustained).

(n13)Footnote 3. See Kitchen v. Chippewa Valley Schools, 825 F.2d 1004, 1013 (6th Cir. 1987) .

(n14)Footnote 4. Nissan Motor Corp. v. Burciaga, 982 F.2d 408, 409 (10th Cir. 1992) .

(n15)Footnote 5. Block v. Fishman, 610 F. Supp. 282, 284 (E.D. Wis. 1985) .

(n16)Footnote 6. Coates v. Union Oil Co., 176 F. Supp. 713, 715 (D. Colo. 1959) (when all issues are equitable, jury trial may not be ordered under Rule 39(b)).

(n17)Footnote 1. Federal Deposit Ins. Corp. v. Palermo, 815 F.2d 1329, 1334 (10th Cir. 1987) .

(n18)Footnote 2. Rodriguez v. Schweiger, 534 F. Supp. 229, 231-232 (N.D. Ill. 1982) .

(n19)Footnote 3. See Parrott v. Wilson, 707 F.2d 1262, 1267 (11th Cir.) , cert. denied, 464 U.S. 936 (1983) .

(n20)Footnote 4. General Tire & Rubber Co. v. Watkins, 331 F.2d 192, 197-198 (4th Cir.) , cert. denied, 377 U.S. 952 (1964) (courts have generally considered issues arising in patent litigation to be too complex for juries to easily understand, and have shown a preference for bench trials in this specialty).

(n21)Footnote 5. Paramount Pictures Corp. v. Thompson Theatres, Inc., 621 F.2d 1088, 1090-1091 (10th Cir. 1980) (audits and accountings are considered tedious and technical, requiring more attention to intricate details than jury is qualified to consider).

(n22)Footnote 6. Davis-Watkins Co. v. Service Merch. Co., 500 F. Supp. 1244, 1251-1252 (M.D. Tenn. 1980) (long trials, as well as need to review massive quantities of documents, to hear and understand expert testimony on technical issues, and to absorb and comprehend lengthy jury instructions dealing with complex questions have all been cited as reasons for denying motions for jury trials in antitrust cases).

(n23)Footnote 7. Washington County Ins. Co. v. Wilkinson, 19 F.R.D. 177, 178 (D. Md. 1956) .

(n24)Footnote 8. Tavoulareas v. Piro, 93 F.R.D. 11, 15 (D.D.C. 1981) .

(n25)Footnote 9. See Hawkinson v. Blandin Paper Co., 54 F.R.D. 517, 519 (D. Minn. 1972) .

(n26)Footnote 10. United States v. Unum, Inc., 658 F.2d 300, 303 (5th Cir. 1981) (motion for jury made on eve of trial is too prejudicial to those who have prepared for bench trial).

(n27)Footnote 11. Espinosa v. Van Dorn Plastic Machinery Co., 813 F. Supp. 252, 254 (S.D.N.Y. 1993) .

(n28)Footnote 12. Unger v. Cunard Line, Inc., 100 F.R.D. 472, 473-474 (S.D.N.Y. 1984) .

(n29)Footnote 13. Credit Bureau of Council Bluffs, Inc. v. Credit Bureau Data Centers Inc., 143 F.R.D. 206, 213 (S.D. Iowa 1992) .

(n30)Footnote 14. Wysowski v. Sitmar Cruises, 127 F.R.D. 446, 449 (D. Conn. 1989) .

(n31)Footnote 15. Wilson v. Corning Glass Works, 195 F.2d 825, 827 (9th Cir. 1952) .

(n32)Footnote 16. Segal v. American Casualty Co. of Reading, Pa., 250 F. Supp. 936, 940 (D. Md. 1966) (citing large number of similar cases waiting to be tried and additional expense of a jury trial).

(n33)Footnote 17. New Creation Contact Lenses, Inc. v. Continuous Curve Contact Lens, Inc., 100 F.R.D. 75, 78 (W.D. Ark. 1983) .

(n34)Footnote 18. Rodriguez v. Schweiger, 534 F. Supp. 229, 232 (N.D. Ill. 1982) .

(n35)Footnote 19. Pawlak v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 87 F.R.D. 717, 720 (D. Mass. 1980) .

(n36)Footnote 20. Parrott v. Wilson, 707 F.2d 1262, 1267 (11th Cir.) , cert. denied, 464 U.S. 936 (1983) .

(n37)Footnote 21. C. Albert Sauter Co. v. Richard S. Sauter Co., 57 F.R.D. 537, 538 (E.D. Pa. 1972) .

(n38)Footnote 22. Board of Educ. v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 48 F.R.D. 402, 402-403 (S.D.N.Y. 1969) .

(n39)Footnote 23. Mesa Petroleum Co. v. Coniglio, 629 F.2d 1022, 1029 (5th Cir. 1980) .

(n40)Footnote 24. United States v. Unum, Inc., 658 F.2d 300, 303 (5th Cir. 1981) .

(n41)Footnote 25. Scaramucci v. Dresser Indus., Inc., 427 F.2d 1309, 1318 (10th Cir. 1970) .

(n42)Footnote 26. Rhodes v. Amarillo Hospital Dist., 654 F.2d 1148, 1154 (5th Cir. 1981) ; Pyramid Co. of Holyoke v. Homeplace Stores Two, Inc. 175 F.R.D. 415, 421 (D. Mass. 1997) .

(n43)Footnote 27. Noonan v. Cunard S.S. Co., 375 F.2d 69, 70 (2d Cir. 1967) .

(n44)Footnote 28. See Rodriguez v. Schweiger, 534 F. Supp. 229, 231-232 (N.D. Ill. 1982) .

(n45)Footnote 29. Board of Educ. v. Aetna Casualty & Sur. Co., 48 F.R.D. 402, 403 (S.D.N.Y. 1969) .

(n46)Footnote 30. Ford v. Breier, 71 F.R.D. 195, 197 (E.D. Wis. 1976) .

(n47)Footnote 31. Ma v. Community Bank, 686 F.2d 459, 470 (7th Cir. 1982) , cert. denied, 459 U.S. 962 (1982) .

(n48)Footnote 32. Daniel Int'l Corp. v. Fischbach & Moore, Inc., 916 F.2d 1061, 1063-1064 (5th Cir. 1990) .

(n49)Footnote 33. Lanza v. Drexel & Co., 479 F.2d 1277, 1310 (2d Cir. 1973) .

(n50)Footnote 34. Cataldo v. E.I. Du Pont de Nemours & Co., 39 F.R.D. 305, 308 (S.D.N.Y. 1966) .

(n51)Footnote 35. Horwitz v. Alloy Automotive Co., 677 F. Supp. 564, 567 (N.D. Ill. 1988) .

(n52)Footnote 36. Federal Deposit Ins. Corp. v. Cafritz, 770 F. Supp. 28, 30 (D.D.C. 1991) (allowing jury to hear evidence on all counts would avoid confusion as issues were legally and factually intermeshed).

(n53)Footnote 37. Fitzgerald v. United States Lines Co., 374 U.S. 16, 21, 83 S. Ct. 1646, 10 L. Ed. 2d 720 (1963) .

(n54)Footnote 38. Lewis v. Thigpen, 767 F.2d 252, 259 (5th Cir. 1985) .

(n55)Footnote 39. Merritt v. Faulkner, 697 F.2d 761, 767 (7th Cir. 1983) , cert. denied, 464 U.S. 986 (1984) (mere convenience of bench trial not strong and compelling reason).

(n56)Footnote 40. Ford v. Breier, 71 F.R.D. 195, 197 (E.D. Wis. 1976) .

(n57)Footnote 41. Molinaro v. Watkins--Johnson CEI Div., 60 F.R.D. 410, 413 (D. Md. 1973) ; Hawkinson v. Blandin Paper Co., 54 F.R.D. 517, 519 (D. Minn. 1972) .

29 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART II. DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL AND WAIVER OF RIGHT TO JURY
B. WAIVER OF RIGHT TO DEMAND JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 22.49through 22.59

[Reserved]

§§ 22.49[Reserved]

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART III. CONDUCT OF JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.60

§ 22.60 Docketing of Case as Jury Trialn*

[1] Effect of Docketing by Clerk

When a party properly demands a jury trial under Rule 38, n1 the clerk must designate the action on the court's docket as a jury action. n2 This requirement is part of the clerk's duty to keep a "civil docket book" for the docketing of all civil actions before the court. n3 and part of the clerk's duty to establish calendars of all actions ready for trial that distinguish between actions triable by jury or triable by the court. n4

These requirements that the clerk docket a matter as a jury trial when a proper and timely jury demand has been made have the practical effect of scheduling the case for a jury trial. n5 Consequently, if the clerk makes an error in docketing a jury case as a nonjury case, or docketing a nonjury case as a jury case, the error does not control the right of a party to a jury trial. In other words, a party has no right to a jury trial when the party has not made a timely demand, even if there is an indication on the docket setting the matter for jury trial. n6

Conversely, a right to a jury may not be lost merely because the clerk fails to properly mark the docket book when a party has made a timely demand. n7 In this regard, the federal rules require that if a timely demand for a jury trial has been made, all issues within the demand must be tried by a jury. The rules provide for only two situations in which the court may order a court trial after a timely jury demand has been made: when the parties stipulate to trial of the action or specified issues by the court; or when the court determines that the parties have no right to a jury trial. n8 In all other situations, the action must be tried to a jury. n9

[2] Reliance on Demand and Docketing of Case for Trial by Jury

After a party has made a timely demand for a jury and after the case is designated by the clerk as a jury case on the court's docket, n1 other parties to the action may rely on the demand. n2 In other words, once one party has made a jury demand, there would be no purpose for the court to require that other parties make a jury demand because the first demand remains effective unless removed by stipulation of the parties or by order of the court. n3 The usual situation occurs when a defendant relies on a demand made by a plaintiff. n4 However, plaintiffs who fail to make a jury demand may rely on later jury demands made by defendants. n5 Furthermore, a party may rely on a co-party's demand. For example, in multiple defendant cases, one defendant may rely on the demand of a co-defendant. n6 However, reliance on a demand is limited to the issues embraced by the original demand. n7

A party's right to rely on the jury demand of another party is limited to the issues embraced by that demand, and if new issues are raised in subsequent pleadings, a new jury demand must be made with regard to those issues. n8 Furthermore, if a party has waived a jury trial by not making a timely demand for one with respect to an issue, n9 the filing of additional pleadings does not automatically revive the opportunity for demanding a jury.

A party may have a new opportunity to demand a jury when additional pleadings are filed, but only as to genuinely new issues raised by the additional pleadings. Additional pleadings that contain merely "artful rephrasings" of existing issues do not affect a previously-filed demand for a jury or any prior waiver of a jury that resulted from the failure to file a timely jury demand. n10 The principle of reliance on a previously-filed jury demand is limited to those instances when reliance is reasonable. n11 This means that a party is not entitled to rely on a jury trial demand of another party if the other party who made the demand had no right to a jury trial. n12 For further discussion of a party's reliance on a demand made by another party, see §§ 22.21, 22.22, 22.42.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 39.10-39.13 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See § 22.20 et seq.

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 39(a).

(n4)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 79(a).

(n5)Footnote 4. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 79(c).

(n6)Footnote 5. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 39(a).

(n7)Footnote 6. O'Malley v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co., 776 F.2d 494, 502 (5th Cir. 1985) (no jury right for party who made late demand, even though magistrate incorrectly honored late demand for jury made orally at status conference).

(n8)Footnote 7. Rosen v. Dick, 639 F.2d 82, 88-89 (2d Cir. 1980) (even though clerk failed to mark docket sheet for jury trial, that failure was not enough of defect to enforce waiver against party who had otherwise complied with Rule 38).

(n9)Footnote 8. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 39(a).

(n10)Footnote 9. Mihara v. Dean Witter & Co., 619 F.2d 814, 823 (9th Cir. 1980) .

(n11)Footnote 1. See [1], above.

(n12)Footnote 2. Taylor v. Gulf States Utilities Co., 375 F.2d 949, 950 (5th Cir. 1967) ; In Re Passodelis, 234 B.R. 52, 65 (W.D. Pa. 1999) .

(n13)Footnote 3. See [1], above.

(n14)Footnote 4. Patterson v. Coughlin, 905 F.2d 564, 570 (2d Cir. 1990) (defendants entitled to rely on plaintiff's request to preserve their own jury trial right.

(n15)Footnote 5. Dell'Orfano v. Romano, 962 F.2d 199, 202 (2d Cir. 1992) (prisoner who brought pro se civil rights action against prison officials was entitled to jury trial, even though he neglected to make a jury demand, when defendants made one in their answer).

(n16)Footnote 6. Mid Kansas Federal Savings & Loan v. Orpheum Theatre Co., 810 F. Supp. 1184, 1190 (D. Kan. 1992) .

(n17)Footnote 7. YJR Enters., Inc. v. Twin County Grocers, Inc., 709 F. Supp. 499, 501 (S.D.N.Y. 1989) .

(n18)Footnote 8. Rosen v. Dick, 639 F.2d 82, 93-96 (2d Cir. 1980) .

(n19)Footnote 9. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(d).

(n20)Footnote 10. Rosen v. Dick, 639 F.2d 82, 93-96 (2d Cir. 1980) .

(n21)Footnote 11. In re N-500L Cases, 691 F.2d 15, 22 (1st Cir. 1982) .

(n22)Footnote 12. Craig v. Atlantic Richfield Co., 19 F.3d 472, 477 (9th Cir. 1994) , cert. denied, 513 U.S. 875 (1994) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART III. CONDUCT OF JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.61

§ 22.61 n* Single Trial of Both Jury and Nonjury Claims

[1] General Procedure for Trial With Both Legal and Equitable Claims

The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure allow legal, equitable, and maritime claims to be liberally joined in a single action. n1 Also, the right to a jury trial under Rule 38 extends to individual claims in a case rather than to entire actions. n2 Consequently, it is commonplace for the court to combine jury and nonjury claims in a single trial in which the legal claims are submitted to a jury, while the equitable or maritime claims are submitted to the court. n3 The federal rules provide for such combined actions by providing that when there is a jury demand, the court may put on the jury docket for jury trial all issues so demanded, while providing that issues not demanded for trial by jury will be tried by the court. n4 The original Committee Note to Rule 39 stated that when certain of the issues are to be tried by jury and others by the court, the court may determine the sequence in which such issues shall be tried. n5 Due to constitutional considerations, the sequence of trial is now governed by case law. n6

[2] Sequence of Trial When There Is Combination of Jury and Nonjury Claims

When the parties present jury and nonjury claims in the same action, any common questions of fact must be tried to the jury first, unless imperative circumstances require otherwise. This rule was decided on the grounds that the right to a jury trial may not be impaired through a prior determination of factual issues by a court. n1 In combined jury and nonjury trials, this "jury first" rule means that the jury's decisions on the common factual questions are binding on the court. n2 However, the court is not bound by the jury's verdict in two situations. If the court (1) decides that a jury determination of factual issues is defective because it is without legally sufficient evidentiary support to the extent that a judgment as a matter of law would be justified, n3 or (2) determines that there are grounds for ordering a new trial, n4 the court may make contrary factual decisions without violating the jury first rule or otherwise denying a party's right to a jury trial. n5

The jury first rule applies regardless of whether the issues triable by jury may be characterized as merely "incidental" to the issues not triable by jury. n6 Even though a court is entitled to examine further than the pleadings to strike a jury demand when there is no genuine issue on which the parties may be entitled to a jury trial, a court may not characterize a genuine legal claim (which is triable by jury) as "incidental" to nonjury claims for equitable relief, such as claims for an accounting, and strike a jury demand based on that manner of characterization. n7

However, the "jury first" rule applies only to claims brought simultaneously. The constitutional right to a jury trial does not allow a party to relitigate issues before a jury if those issues have already been properly determined by a court in an earlier, separate action. Thus, the determination of issues of fact by the court in a nonjury action may have collateral estoppel effect on a subsequent jury action involving the same issues. For example, when defendants lost on the factual issues in an injunction action brought by the Securities and Exchange Commission, the defendants could not in a subsequent suit by investors relitigate those same factual issues. The defendants were not entitled to a second trial on those factual issues, even though the defendants would have otherwise been entitled to a jury in the second action, and not in the first. n8

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsActions in Equity

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 39.14 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 2, 18.

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38.

(n4)Footnote 3. Kunkel v. Topmaster Int'l, Inc., 906 F.2d 693, 696 (Fed. Cir. 1990) ; Blake v. Hall, 668 F.2d 52, 54 (1st Cir. 1981) , cert. denied, 456 U.S. 983 (1982) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 39(b).

(n6)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 39, Advisory Committee Note.

(n7)Footnote 6. See [2], below.

(n8)Footnote 1. Beacon Theatres, Inc. v. Westover, 359 U.S. 500, 510, 79 S. Ct. 948, 3 L. Ed. 2d 988 (1959) (common questions must be tried first to jury and that to do otherwise would impermissibly impair constitutional right to jury trial).

(n9)Footnote 2. Skinner v. Total Petroleum, Inc., 859 F.2d 1439, 1443 (10th Cir. 1988) (court is bound by jury's determination of factual issues common to both legal and equitable claims).

(n10)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(a).

(n11)Footnote 4. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(a).

(n12)Footnote 5. Swentek v. USAIR, Inc., 830 F.2d 552, 559 (4th Cir. 1987) ; see Johns Hopkins Univ. v. Datascope Corp., 543 F.3d 1342, 1344-1345 (Fed. Cir. 2008) .

(n13)Footnote 6. Dairy Queen, Inc. v. Wood, 369 U.S. 469, 473, 82 S. Ct. 894, 8 L. Ed. 2d 44 (1962) (jury first rule applies even if trial judge characterizes legal issues as "incidental" to equitable claim).

(n14)Footnote 7. Dairy Queen, Inc. v. Wood, 369 U.S. 469, 476-478, 82 S. Ct. 894, 8 L. Ed. 2d 44 (1962) .

(n15)Footnote 8. Parklane Hosiery Co. v. Shore, 439 U.S. 322, 335, 99 S. Ct. 645, 58 L. Ed. 2d 552 (1979) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART III. CONDUCT OF JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.62

§ 22.62 Jury Trial by Stipulation or Consent of Partiesn*

[1] Discretion of Court to Hold Jury Trial on Nonjury Issues When Parties Consent

[a] Discretion of Trial Court

If all of the parties to an action consent, the court may order a jury trial even on those issues that are not triable of right by a jury. n1 However, the court's decision is discretionary, and is not required merely because the parties consent to a jury trial. n1.1 Once the parties consent to a jury trial and a court orders one, the court does not have unlimited discretion to change its decision. n2 It has generally been held that the court's authority to change its decision about a jury trial is limited to circumstances in which the court makes a decision before trial and gives the parties notice of its final decision in time that the decision does not negatively affect their trial preparation.

One appellate court observed that the parties are entitled to know at the outset of the trial whether the decision will be made by the judge or the jury. n3 Another decided that it was an abuse of discretion for the trial court to change its mind on the eve of trial. n4 However, this rule is not absolute, and other courts have stated that, while advance notice is preferred, it is not expressly required by Rule 39(c) and, absent some demonstrable prejudice to the complaining party, it is not an abuse of discretion for the trial judge to originally agree with the parties and order a jury trial, and then to declare that the jury will be advisory only. n5 Similarly, the Fifth Circuit has held that when circumstances change to the extent that the parties are no longer entitled to a jury trial, the court may deem an already empaneled jury as merely advisory. n6

The only absolute rule in this regard is that once the court submits the case to the jury and the jury renders a verdict, the jury's verdict is binding, and the court has no power to change its mind regarding a jury trial, even though the parties may not have been legally entitled to a jury but for their consent and the court's order. n7 When a court orders a jury trial pursuant to the consent of the parties, its verdict has the same effect as if trial by jury had been a matter of right. n8

[b] Jury by Consent Rule Not Applicable in Actions Against United States

The federal rule allowing jury trial by consent of the parties does not apply in actions against the United States when there is a federal statute that provides for a bench trial only. n9 Most actions allowed against the United States are the subject of a statute that forbids a jury trial, such as the Federal Tort Claims Act. n10 Furthermore, as a sovereign the United States is immune from suit unless it expressly waives immunity, and it may waive its immunity and consent to be sued on any conditions that it wishes to impose, n11 including the condition that the court hold a bench trial rather than a jury trial.

Congress usually conditions waiver of sovereign immunity on a plaintiff's relinquishing the right to a jury trial. n12 Consequently, if a party files an action against the United States in which the party has no right to a jury trial, the verdict is only advisory, even if the United States fails to object to submission of issues to the jury. n13

[2] Consent Required

Consent to a jury trial under Rule 39(c) may be sufficient even if it is not an express consent. Thus, a party may agree to a jury trial by implied consent. n1 For example, if a party fails to object to the submission of any issues to a jury, the court may consider the failure as a consent to the trial by jury of those issues. n2 Thus, the fact that there is no constitutional or statutory right to a jury trial of a particular issue, such as an equitable issue, does not prevent the court from holding a jury trial for that issue if there is no objection from any party. n3

[3] Effect of Consent Is That Jury Not Merely Advisory

When a case is tried to a jury because the parties have consented to a jury trial, the court must treat the jury's verdict with the same effect as if the trial by jury had been a matter of right. n1 The court may not use the verdict as merely an advisory jury verdict. n1.1 Even in cases when the jury is present only because of the consent of the parties, and no party has a constitutional or statutory right to a jury trial, it is reversible error for a court to treat the jury verdict as if were merely advisory. n2 Thus, the district court may not without proper grounds set the verdict aside n3 or rule that the verdict is advisory after the jury has already returned the verdict. n4 The only grounds for setting aside or ignoring verdicts of nonadvisory juries are those grounds specified in Rule 50 regarding judgment as matter of law, n5 and Rule 59, regarding a grant of a new trial or an amendment of judgment. n6

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsActions in Equity

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 39.15 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 39(c)(2).

(n3)Footnote 1.1. Kramer v. Banc of Am. Sec., LLC, 355 F.3d 961, 968 (7th Cir. 2004) (district court is not obligated to hold jury trial when one is not required even if both parties agree to use a jury; court has discretion to use jury when one is not required but parties consent).

(n4)Footnote 2. Hildebrand v. Board of Trustees, 607 F.2d 705, 710 (6th Cir. 1979) (district court does not have to go along with agreement of parties to have jury trial).

(n5)Footnote 3. Pradier v. Elespuru, 641 F.2d 808, 811 (9th Cir. 1981) .

(n6)Footnote 4. AMF Tuboscope, Inc. v. Cunningham, 352 F.2d 150, 155 (10th Cir. 1965) .

(n7)Footnote 5. Merex A.G. v. Fairchild Weston Sys., Inc., 29 F.3d 821, 826-827 (2d Cir. 1994) , cert. denied, 513 U.S. 1084 (1995) (citing Moore's Federal Practice, court upheld district court's decision that jury would be advisory only after plaintiff had rested).

(n8)Footnote 6. Armco, Inc. v. Armco Burglar Alarm Co., 693 F.2d 1155, 1158 (5th Cir. 1982) .

(n9)Footnote 7. Alcatel USA, Inc. v. DGI Techs., Inc., 166 F.3d 772, 795-796 (5th Cir. 1999) (once parties have consented to nonadvisory jury, court must provide them advance notice if it intends to regard verdict as advisory, and if it fails to do so must be bound by jury's verdict).

(n10)Footnote 8. Fed. R. Civ. P. 39(c)(2); see § 22.70 (jury verdicts).

(n11)Footnote 9. Fed. R. Civ. P. 39(c)(2); see Hamm v. Nasatka Barriers, 166 F.R.D. 1, 2 (D.D.C. 1996) (prohibition against regular jury trials, even when other party and United States consent, in actions against United States when statute provides for trial without jury).

(n12)Footnote 10. See 28 U.S.C. §§ 1346, 2402.

(n13)Footnote 11. United States v. Sherwood, 312 U.S. 584, 586, 61 S. Ct. 767, 85 L. Ed. 1058 (1941) .

(n14)Footnote 12. Lehman v. Nakshian, 453 U.S. 156, 161, 101 S. Ct. 2698, 69 L. Ed. 2d 548 (1981) .

(n15)Footnote 13. Bonn v. Puerto Rico Int'l Airlines, Inc., 518 F.2d 89, 94-95 (1st Cir. 1975) (provisions of statute waiving sovereign immunity are jurisdictional, government may not by consent confer jurisdiction on court to treat jury verdict against United States as other than advisory).

(n16)Footnote 1. Alcatel USA, Inc. v. DGI Techs., Inc., 166 F.3d 772, 795, 796 fn. 101 (5th Cir. 1999) (for example, if one party demands jury and other parties do not object, and court orders jury trial, this will be regarded as jury trial by implied consent).

(n17)Footnote 2. Whiting v. Jackson State Univ., 616 F.2d 116, 123 (5th Cir. 1980) (plaintiff requested jury trial and did not object to court's submission of equitable issues to jury).

(n18)Footnote 3. U.S. Philips Corp. v. Ferro Corp., 522 F.2d 1100, 1102 (6th Cir. 1975) .

(n19)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 39(c)(2).

(n20)Footnote 1.1. See Marra v. Phila. Hous. Auth., 497 F.3d 286, 313-314 (3d Cir. 2007) .

(n21)Footnote 2. Hildebrand v. Board of Trustees of Mich. S. Univ., 607 F.2d 705, 711 (6th Cir. 1979) (court erred in, on its own initiative, converting jury trial to bench trial part way through trial); Stockton v. Altman, 432 F.2d 946, 949-950 (5th Cir. 1970) , cert. denied, 401 U.S. 994 (1971) (complexity of case not grounds for denying binding effect of jury's verdict when both parties consented to jury trial).

(n22)Footnote 3. Thompson v. Parkes, 963 F.2d 885, 888-889 (6th Cir. 1992) .

(n23)Footnote 4. Bereda v. Pickering Creek Indus. Park, Inc., 865 F.2d 49, 52-53 (3d Cir. 1989) .

(n24)Footnote 5. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 50.

(n25)Footnote 6. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 59.

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART III. CONDUCT OF JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.63

§ 22.63 n* Use of Advisory Jury

[1] Discretion of Court to Utilize Advisory Jury

The court has discretion to try any issue with an advisory jury, either on its own initiative or on motion of a party. The court has the option to use advisory juries in any action not triable of right by a jury. n1 Although Rule 39(c) does not state whether a court has the power to order an advisory jury in the situation in which a party has waived a jury trial right, case law indicates that the court may use an advisory jury under such circumstances.

One circuit court of appeals has held that the use of an advisory jury was allowable despite the waiver by the parties of their jury trial rights, at least where the parties had agreed to submit a special question to the advisory jury. n2 The rationale behind such a rule is that there is at least as much justification for a trial court's use of an advisory jury for the trial of legal issues for which a jury trial has been waived as there is for a trial of equitable issues for which no jury right exists. n3 Furthermore, the use of a jury in an advisory capacity does not deprive the parties of what is in effect a court trial, because the jury acts merely as an aid to the court, and the court has the ultimate responsibility to make findings of fact. n4

A court's authority to use an advisory jury is discretionary. n5 Therefore, no party has a right to an advisory jury without the approval of the court, n6 and because the court's decision to use an advisory jury is discretionary, that decision has been held to be unreviewable on appeal. n7

[2] Factors Considered in Decision to Use Advisory Jury

As noted in [1], above, the court has discretion to use an advisory jury whenever its deems it appropriate. The courts have indicated several factors that tend to indicate that an advisory jury may be appropriate. Among the factors cited by the courts have been the following:

1. Whether the issues in the case are complex. The complexity of the issues to be resolved in a case may be a key factor in the court's decision regarding use of an advisory jury. If the issues in a case are too complex for the layperson, the court may decline to exercise its discretion to impanel an advisory jury. n1 Conversely, the lack of complex issues has been cited as a factor in deciding to use an advisory jury.

n2

2. Whether the case involves extraordinary or unique circumstances. Thus, a court will be considerably more likely to exercise its discretion to order a trial with an advisory jury when a case is extraordinary, peculiar, or unique, n3 or in exceptional cases with unique circumstances. n4

3. Whether the claims or issues have been traditionally considered particularly appropriate for jury resolution, such as claims of negligence, personal injury, or wrongful death, or actions that depend on the credibility of witnesses; courts have indicated that these types of claims may also be particularly suitable for the use of an advisory jury. n5

4. Whether the advisory jury would save judicial resources and expense. That a court trial could result in a saving of judicial resources and could eliminate the additional time and expense involved in presenting the case to a jury, have been cited as reasons for refraining from using an advisory jury. n6 On the other hand, at least one court has noted that use of an advisory jury itself could contribute to judicial economy, in that an advisory jury may foster settlement of the case. n7

[3] Use of Advisory Jury Does Not Satisfy Party's Seventh Amendment Right to Jury

A court's use of an advisory jury does not satisfy a party's constitutional right to a jury trial, n1 because the use of an advisory jury is essentially a court trial because the court is free to accept or reject the advice of the jury. n2 If a party is entitled to, and the court erroneously denies the right to, a jury trial, the use of an advisory jury does not cure the error; the judgment will be reversed on appeal, and the case remanded for a new jury trial even if the court accepted the advisory verdict. Trial before a jury that the parties assume will have only an advisory role does not give the parties an actual jury trial secured by the constitution or a statute. n3

[4] Effect of Verdict Given By Advisory Jury

[a] Purpose is Merely to Assist Court

The purpose of the advisory jury is only to provide guidance or give information to the trial court. n1 Consequently, an advisory jury does not replace the court as trier of fact of the advisory jury issues in the case. The responsibility for rendering a decision as the trier of fact remains with the trial court, even though an advisory jury is used. n2 This principle is reflected by the requirement of Rule 52(a) that the court must set forth factual findings and conclusions of law in all cases with an advisory jury, exactly in the same manner as for those cases tried to the court only. n3

[b] Verdict of Advisory Jury is Not Binding on Court

The verdict of an advisory jury has no binding effect on the court. n4 The court may accept the advisory verdict and make findings in accordance with it; or the court may reject the advisory verdict in whole or in part. n5 However, the rule that the court may reject the verdict of an advisory jury is subject to the qualification that when a jury is "advisory" only with respect to certain issues, the court's determination of claims is bound by the jury's determination of the factual issues common to the claims that the jury decides as of right and the claims that the court decides based on the jury's verdict in its advisory capacity. n6 On the other hand, this requirement does not necessarily mean that the court's conclusions on the claims tried by the jury only in an advisory capacity must conform precisely with the jury's verdict on the claims tried by the jury in a nonadvisory capacity. Provided that a party is granted a jury trial on the claims properly tried by a jury as of right, that party may not complain that the nonjury claims were disposed of by the court contrary to the nonbinding advice of the jury.

[c] Decision and Findings Required by Court

Whether it accepts or rejects the advisory verdict, Rule 52(a) requires the court as the true trier of fact, to make its own, independent findings of fact and conclusions of law. n7 The court may not simply enter judgment on the jury's verdict, as is the case when a nonadvisory jury is used. n8 On the other hand, findings of fact and conclusions of law need not be written but may instead be stated orally and recorded in open court. Furthermore, they need not include exhaustive detail or trace the claims issue by issue and witness by witness. The findings and conclusions need only be sufficient to permit meaningful appellate review, and when they do not, the appellate court may vacate and remand. n9 For a further discussion of the requirements and procedures governing findings of fact and conclusions of law, see Ch. 23, Trial to Court; Inability of Judge to Proceed.

Once a trial court has made its required findings and conclusions, n10 any motion challenging the judgment is not properly a motion to set aside the jury's verdict or the jury's answer to special interrogatories. Even if the court's findings are the same as the verdict of the advisory jury, it is not appropriate for a party to challenge the court's findings by a Rule 50 motion n11 for judgment as a matter of law. To test the accuracy or sufficiency of the court's findings, the challenging party must make a Rule 52(b) motion to amend the findings of the court, or to make additional findings. n12

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsBench TrialsCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 8 Moore's Federal Practice, § 39.15 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 39(c)(1).

(n3)Footnote 2. Lumbermens Mut. Cas. Co. v. Timms & Howard, Inc., 108 F.2d 497, 500 (2d Cir. 1939) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Computer Sys. Eng'g, Inc. v. Qantel Corp., 571 F. Supp. 1365, 1373 (D. Mass. 1983) , aff'd on other grounds, 740 F.2d 59 (1st Cir. 1984) (quoting Moore's Federal Practice to effect that advisory jury is likely more helpful on legal than equitable issues).

(n5)Footnote 4. Cudmore v. Smith, 260 F. Supp. 760, 760 (D. Conn. 1966) (advisory jury used by court after waiver of jury trial in personal injury action).

(n6)Footnote 5. McKinney v. Gannett Co., 817 F.2d 659, 674 (10th Cir. 1987) (advisory jury limited to cases not triable to jury as right); Delman v. Federal Prods. Corp., 251 F.2d 123, 126 n. 2 (1st Cir. 1958) (use of advisory jury on question of successor liability under mere continuation theory was matter reserved to trial court's discretion).

(n7)Footnote 6. United States v. Ellis Research Labs., Inc., 300 F.2d 550, 554 (7th Cir. 1962) .

(n8)Footnote 7. Cox v. Babcock & Wilcox Co., 471 F.2d 13, 14 (4th Cir. 1972) .

(n9)Footnote 1. Rosen v. Dick, 83 F.R.D. 540, 544 (S.D.N.Y. 1979) , rev'd on other grounds, 639 F.2d 82 (2d Cir. 1980) (involved complex issues of accounting practice).

(n10)Footnote 2. Coleman v. Kroger Co., 399 F. Supp. 724, 732 (W.D. Va. 1975) .

(n11)Footnote 3. Dixon v. Universal Atlas Cement Div., 437 F. Supp. 1071, 1074 (W.D. Pa. 1977) .

(n12)Footnote 4. Moss v. Lane Co., 471 F.2d 853, 855 (4th Cir. 1973) .

(n13)Footnote 5. Gragg v. City of Omaha, 20 F.3d 357, 358 (8th Cir. 1994) (personal injury case where right to jury trial was barred by law).

(n14)Footnote 6. Skoldberg v. Villani, 601 F. Supp. 981, 982 (S.D.N.Y. 1985) .

(n15)Footnote 7. Bozeman v. Sloss Indus. Corp., 138 F.R.D. 590, 592 (N.D. Ala. 1991) .

(n16)Footnote 1. Fischer Imaging Corp. v. General Electric Co., 187 F.3d 1165 (10th Cir. 1999) (citing Moore's Federal Practice); Pradier v. Elespuru, 641 F.2d 808, 811 (9th Cir. 1981) ; see Parklane Hosiery Co. v. Shore, 439 U.S. 322, 337 n.24, 99 S. Ct. 645, 58 L. Ed. 2d 552 (1979) (advisory jury would not in any event have been Seventh Amendment jury).

(n17)Footnote 2. Armco, Inc. v. Armco Burglar Alarm Co., 693 F.2d 1155, 1158 (5th Cir. 1982) .

(n18)Footnote 3. Pradier v. Elespuru, 641 F.2d 808, 811 (9th Cir. 1981) .

(n19)Footnote 1. Skoldberg v. Villani, 601 F. Supp. 981, 982 (S.D.N.Y. 1985) (whether to use advisory jury largely depends in part on whether there are special factors such that jury composed of members of community would provide court with valuable guidance).

(n20)Footnote 2. Wilson v. Prasse, 463 F.2d 109, 116 (3d Cir. 1972) (failure of advisory jury to complete interrogatories not reversible error, because trial court had ultimate responsibility for findings of fact); Frostie Co. v. Dr. Pepper Co., 361 F.2d 124, 126 (5th Cir. 1966) (rejecting appellant's claim that inadmissible evidence was presented to advisory jury, because appeal was from court's judgment only, as if no jury were present).

(n21)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a); see Ellis v. Diffie, 177 F.3d 503, 505-506 (6th Cir. 1999) ; see also [b], below.

(n22)Footnote 4. Greenwood v. Greenwood, 234 F.2d 276, 278 (3d Cir. 1956) .

(n23)Footnote 5. Tomasello v. Rubin, 167 F.3d 612, 617 (D.C. Cir. 1999) (some findings may be adopted and others rejected but all are as merely advisory).

(n24)Footnote 6. Dasler v. E.F. Hutton & Co., 694 F. Supp. 624, 627 (D. Minn. 1988) .

(n25)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a); Mazzeo v. Lenhart, 167 F.3d 139, 142 (2d Cir. 1999) ; Gragg v. City of Omaha, 20 F.3d 357, 358-359 (8th Cir. 1994) .

(n26)Footnote 8. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Stanford, 273 F.2d 150, 153 (5th Cir. 1959) .

(n27)Footnote 9. Mazzeo v. Lenhart, 167 F.3d 139, 142 (2d Cir. 1999) .

(n28)Footnote 10. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a).

(n29)Footnote 11. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50.

(n30)Footnote 12. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Paddock, 301 F.2d 807, 811 (5th Cir. 1962) (when court adopts findings of advisory jury, challenge to such findings is appeal from findings of court).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART III. CONDUCT OF JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.64

§ 22.64 Number of Jurors Requiredn*

[1] Minimum Number of Jurors

Federal civil juries must consist of no more than 12 and no fewer than six jurors. n1 Within these limits, the number of jurors in a case may be set by the court. n2 The court must provide for the specified minimum number of jurors in a case because that minimum has been held to preserve the right to a trial by jury, n3 which is one of the foremost guarantees in the American legal system. In civil matters, jury trials are guaranteed by the Seventh Amendment to the Constitution which provides that "[i]n suits at common law, the right of trial by jury is preserved in any case when the value in controversy shall exceed 20 dollars," n4 and by Rule 38 which provides that the right of trial by jury as declared by the Seventh Amendment to the Constitution or as given by a statute of the United States shall be preserved to the parties. n5 The right to jury trial is discussed further is § 22.01 et seq.

Although scientific study shows that jury results are statistically more reliable when reached by a larger group, n6 federal trials have employed fewer than the traditional 12 jurors for many years. In 1970, the United States Supreme Court held that a 12-person jury was not constitutionally needed in criminal cases. n7 In 1973, the Court upheld a Montana federal court local rule that required a civil jury of six persons, and noted that proper juror functioning was not compromised by the six person jury. n8

In 1991, Rule 48 was amended to reflect the adoption of local rules by numerous federal districts that had set the standard civil jury size at six persons. The 1991 amendment to Rule 48 thus replaced the anachronistic reference to a 12-member jury with the recognition that jury size will vary depending on local rule. However, while six is a permissible number of jurors, the seating of more than six is preferable in light of Rule 47(c), providing for the excuse of jurors from service by the court, and the abolition of alternate jurors. If at least six jurors remain following the dismissal of a juror or jurors for good cause, they can render a valid verdict.

Only the parties may agree to a jury of less than six. Furthermore, parties should be discouraged from waiving their right to a jury of six only in exceptional circumstances, not only because of the constitutional stature of the jury right, but also because smaller juries are more erratic and less effective in serving to distribute responsibility for the exercise of judicial power. n9

[2] Agreement of Parties on Jury Size or Verdict Requirements

The parties may stipulate to a jury size of less than six members, n1 and also to a less than unanimous verdict. n2 Agreements as to unanimity or jury size may even be made after the jury has commenced deliberations. For example, in one case the parties agreed, and the court instructed, that six of the eight jurors would suffice for a verdict. n3

However, because disputes often occur as to whether such a stipulation has been made, counsel should ensure that any agreement to change the jury size or verdict requirement should be written or clearly expressed on the record. n4 Disputes regarding requirements for jury size have arisen in situations where alternate jurors have been permitted to deliberate with the jury. Allowing alternates to deliberate has been held to be prejudicial. n5 Nevertheless, failure to timely object may constitute a waiver n6 or express agreement to allow alternates to deliberate. n7

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJurorsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 9 Moore's Federal Practice, § 48.02 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 48.

(n3)Footnote 2. Montiel v. City of Los Angeles, 2 F.3d 335 (9th Cir. 1993) (rejecting argument that court's decision to seat 12 jurors was prejudicial because it required larger unanimous verdict than would be the case with smaller jury).

(n4)Footnote 3. Krumwiede v. Mercer County Ambulance Service, Inc., 116 F.3d 361, 363 (8th Cir. 1997) .

(n5)Footnote 4. U.S. Const., Amend. VII.

(n6)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 38(a).

(n7)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 48, Advisory Committee Note to 1991 Amendment.

(n8)Footnote 7. Williams v. Florida, 399 U.S. 78, 86, 90 S. Ct. 1893, 1898, 26 L. Ed. 2d 446, 452 (1970) .

(n9)Footnote 8. Colgrove v. Battin, 413 U.S. 149, 163, 93 S. Ct. 2448, 2456, 37 L. Ed. 2d 522, 532 (1973) .

(n10)Footnote 9. Fed. R. Civ. P. 48, Advisory Committee Note to 1991 Amendment.

(n11)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 48; Hunter v. Allis-Chalmers Corp., Engine Div., 797 F.2d 1417, 1420-1421 (7th Cir. 1986) (parties stipulated to five-member jury under Rule 48); see Fletcher v. McCreary Tire & Rubber Co., 773 F.2d 666, 668-669 (5th Cir. 1985) (when parties agreed not to select alternates and one juror was later excused, deliberation and verdict by remaining 11 was upheld); SCFC ILC, Inc. v. Visa U.S.A., Inc., 819 F. Supp. 956, 966 n.7 (D. Utah 1993) , rev'd in part on other grounds, 36 F.3d 958 (10th Cir. 1994) (verdict by 11-member jury upheld pursuant to agreement of parties when one juror failed to appear).

(n12)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 48.

(n13)Footnote 3. Reynolds v. Green, 184 F.3d 589 (6th Cir. 1999) .

(n14)Footnote 4. Rideau v. Parkem Indus. Serv., Inc., 917 F.2d 892, 896 (5th Cir. 1990) (plaintiff waived any objection to district court's empanelling of two alternate jurors who participated in verdict).

(n15)Footnote 5. Cabral v. Sullivan, 961 F.2d 998, 1002 (1st Cir. 1992) (allowing alternates to deliberate over plaintiff's objection and in contravention of mandatory language in local district rule and former Rule 47 was clearly erroneous).

(n16)Footnote 6. Rideau v. Parkem Indus. Servs., Inc., 917 F.2d 892, 896 (5th Cir. 1990) .

(n17)Footnote 7. E.E.O.C. v. State of Delaware, DHSS, 865 F.2d 1408, 1420-1421 (3d Cir. 1989) (agreement to allow alternate juror to deliberate with six-member jury did not mean alternate would become part of jury).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART III. CONDUCT OF JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.65

§ 22.65 Selection of Jurorsn*

[1] Qualification of Person for Jury Service

[a] Minimum Requirements for Jury Service

The Jury Selection and Service Act declares that it is the policy of the United States that all parties in federal courts entitled to trial by jury must have the right to grand and petit juries selected at random from a fair cross section of the community in the district or division wherein the court convenes. n1 The Act specifically prohibits exclusion from service as a juror on account of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, or economic status. n2 Furthermore, the Act provides for broad qualifications for jury service, stating that all persons are qualified except for those in five categories. Thus, any person is qualified to serve as a juror unless the person has any of the following characteristics: n3

1. The person is not a citizen of the United States 18 years old who has resided for a period of one year within the judicial district.

2. The person is unable to read, write, and understand the English language with a degree of proficiency sufficient to fill out satisfactorily the juror qualification form.

3. The person is unable to speak the English language.

4. The person is incapable, by reason of mental or physical infirmity, to render satisfactory jury service.

5. The person has a charge pending against him for the commission of, or has been convicted in a state or federal court of record of, a crime punishable by imprisonment for more than one year and his or her civil rights have not been restored.

The chief judge of the district court, or such other district court judge as the plan may provide, must determine on the basis of information provided on the juror qualification form and other competent evidence whether a person is unqualified for jury service. n4

[b] Exemption and Excuse From Jury Service

Under the Jury Selection and Service Act, n5 the district court's juror selection plan must mandatorily exempt three classes of persons: (1) active members of the United States Armed Forces, (2) members of fire or police departments, (3) and public officers in the executive, legislative, or judicial branches of federal, state or local government, who are actively engaged in the performance of official duties. n6 The jury selection plan must also provide that on individual request voluntary safety personnel must be excused, n7 and must also specify any other groups or occupational classes whose members are to be excused on individual request. For any such designated group or class of persons, however, the district court must find, and the plan must state, that jury service by such class or group would entail undue hardship or extreme inconvenience to the members of the class or group, and excuse of such members would not be inconsistent with the provisions of the Act. n8

The court has discretion to exclude persons summoned for jury service under certain other circumstances: n9 (1) if they are unable to serve impartially or if their service would be likely to disrupt the trial, (2) on peremptory challenge or challenge for cause, n10 or (3) if their service "would be likely to threaten the secrecy of the proceedings, or otherwise adversely affect the integrity of jury deliberations." Prospective jurors may be temporarily excused from service on a showing of undue hardship or extreme inconvenience. n11

The clear intent of this provision is that such excuses should be given only in unusual cases and only for a limited period of time, after which an excused juror is to be recalled. Before a juror is excused, the court should inquire into the nature of the hardship or inconvenience claimed and satisfy itself that the excuse is warranted. n12 The decision to exempt or excuse a person from jury service must be made by the chief judge of the district court or by his or her designate solely on the basis of information provided on the juror qualification form. n13

[2] Challenge to Selection of Jury Panels

[a] Required Method of Selection

The Jury Selection and Service Act requires that each United States district court must have a plan for random selection of jurors that is consistent with the objectives of the Act n1 and provides the courts with guidance with respect to procedures for drawing names of prospective jurors from a master jury wheel n2 and for the selection and summoning of jury panels. n3 Under the Act, the district court must provide for a jury commission or must delegate to the clerk the task of preparing the list of names to be placed in the master jury wheel. n4

The primary source for names must be voter lists. Other sources may be used to foster the policy and secure the rights of fairness secured by the Act; in the case of the District of Columbia, the primary source may be the city directory. n5 In all districts, the plan must be made up under procedures designed to ensure the random selection of a fair cross section of the persons residing in the community in the district or division wherein the court convenes. Furthermore, it must reflect substantial proportional representation of the political subdivisions located in the district or division. n6 The number of names placed in the master jury wheel must be at least one-half of one percent of the total number of names on the lists used in its preparation unless such a number is believed to be cumbersome and unnecessary, but in no event less than 1,000. n7

The manner of drawing jurors is also governed by the Act. From the master jury wheel, the clerk or the judge must publicly draw at random the number of names necessary for jury service. The clerk or commission will mail to each a jury qualification form. n8 On the receipt of the completed forms, the chief judge or another judge, as the plan may provide, will determine which prospective jurors are not qualified, exempt, or excused. n9

The names of those qualified and not exempt or excused are then placed in a qualified jury wheel from which the jury commission or clerk must publicly draw at random the names of those needed for grand and petit jury panels. n10 In case of an unexpected shortage of names in the qualified jury wheel, provision is made for summoning petit jurors selected at random from the voter lists from which the master jury wheel was originally composed. n11

The Act requires that all records of these procedures be maintained for at least four years, and that they be made available for public inspection. n12

[b] Challenge to Method of Selection

Section 1867 provides the exclusive means by which the party may challenge a jury on the ground that the members were not selected in conformity with the provisions of the Act. n13 Any statutory challenge to the jury panel must be made before the voir dire examination begins, or within seven days after the party discovered, or could have discovered by the exercise of diligence, the grounds for the challenge, whichever is earlier. n14

[3] Voir Dire

[a] Purpose of Voir Dire

The Jury Selection and Service Act of 1968 confers on all federal parties entitled to a jury trial the broad right to a jury selected from a fair cross section of the community or district where the court convenes. n1 Rule 47(a) is designed to ensure that the jury selected to deliberate in a federal case is impartial and free to the furthest extent practicable from extraneous influences that may subvert the fact-finding process. n2 Therefore, one of the primary purposes of the examination on voir dire is to discover bias on the part of potential jurors. n3 Additionally, the voir dire examination must provide essential information so as to allow the intelligent exercise of jury challenges. n4

[b] Discretion of District to Conduct of Voir Dire

The trial court has wide discretion both as to the manner in which the voir dire is conducted and the scope of the questions asked. n5 The court may permit the parties or their attorneys to conduct the examination of prospective jurors or may itself conduct the examination. n6 However, the ultimate obligation to impanel an impartial jury lies with the trial judge, n7 who also has the duty to determine the question of actual bias on the part of the potential jurors. n8

Each federal judge has his or her own procedure for the selection of jurors. Rule 47(a) grants the court discretion to permit the parties or their attorneys to conduct directly the examination of prospective jurors. Few federal judges follow this procedure. The rule also provides that the court may conduct the examination, and most federal judges prefer to examine the prospective jurors themselves. When the judge conducts the voir dire examination, the parties are entitled to request to supplementation of the court's examination. Counsel should prepare to do this, and any written supplementation should be submitted to the court in advance of trial. n9

In view of the considerable discretion vested in the trial court, it is necessary for attorneys to lay a foundation for proposed questions by showing that the inquiry is reasonably calculated to discover a likely source of prejudice, n10 or to furnish the trial court with a list of questions that delineates the nature and scope of the requested examination. n11 However, when counsel requests supplementation, there is no requirement that the trial court put questions in any particular form, or ask any particular number of questions merely because a party requests it, n12 or allow counsel a particular amount of time for questions, n13 or give any opportunity at all to question prospective jurors. n14 Furthermore, the trial court need not pursue any specific line of inquiry, and any method of questioning is sufficient provided it is probative on the issue of impartiality. n15

Given the broad discretion allowed the court on voir dire, the district court's determination of issues concerning the scope of voir dire will be overturned only for an abuse of discretion. n16 Thus, a trial court's determination of the scope of voir dire will not be disturbed on appeal unless the voir dire was insufficient to elicit bias n17 or enable parties to intelligently exercise their right to challenge prospective jurors, n18 or if the trial court itself injected irrelevant and prejudicial material into the voir dire procedure. n19 In the absence of voir dire limitations that effectively preclude a party's ability to assess prospective jurors for partiality, bias, or prejudice, the trial court's determinations with respect to the conduct and scope of the voir dire will not be grounds for reversal on appeal. n20

[c] Court's Duty to Question for Prejudice or Bias

To provide a fair and impartial jury for the parties, the trial court has an affirmative obligation to pose questions designed to elicit information beyond merely that which would disqualify a juror for cause. Thus, voir dire must go beyond "stock questions" such as name, address, occupation, spouse's occupation, level of education, and acquaintance with parties and attorneys. n21 A court's questions on voir dire must be probing enough to reveal a prospective juror's prejudices to the extent that counsel can exercise challenges in a meaningful manner. The trial court should also attempt to propound questions that will assist counsel in the exercise of peremptory challenges and challenges for cause. n22 The inquiry must be designed to ensure that any bias or prejudice present will be discovered. n23 When relevant, the trial court must inquire as to possible racial bias of prospective jurors. n24 There is, however, no requirement that the court put questions in any particular form, or that a particular question be asked if the substance of the inquiry is covered by another question. n25 Indeed, the wide latitude afforded the trial court on voir dire demands only that the voir dire not be so general that it fails to probe adequately the possibility of bias and prejudice. n26

[d] Effect of Lie or Failure to Disclose in Prospective Juror's Answer

If prospective jurors fail to answer truthfully a material question posed on voir dire, the purpose of the voir dire examination to discern potential bias and prejudice in prospective jurors, and to enable parties to intelligently exercise peremptory challenges and challenges for cause would be defeated. Consequently, the trial judge should admonish the prospective jurors of the necessity that they be truthful in their responses to questions asked them; because a deliberately untruthful response on voir dire might indicate an attempt to conceal bias, it could also provide the basis for a cause challenge, n27 or lead to the exercise of a peremptory challenge. n28 In other words, the right of challenge to a juror includes the incidental right that information elicited on voir dire must be true. n29

Similarly, if a party presents a prima facie case that the right to challenge was impaired by a prospective juror's failure to disclose material information on voir dire, the trial court must hold an evidentiary hearing to determine the circumstances surrounding the nondisclosure. n30 The challenging party has the burden to show that the voir dire questions or the responses of other jurors, put the juror on notice that a particular answer was required, because jurors cannot be expected to disclose information that they were never asked to reveal. n31 Furthermore, if the basis for challenge might have been discovered earlier on voir dire, failure to exercise the challenge at the time the jury is empaneled constitutes waiver of the right to challenge nondisclosure. n32 Similarly, a party who has actual knowledge of undisclosed facts but fails to challenge a juror waives the right to relief. n33

Once the trial court determines that a party is entitled to an evidentiary hearing on a claim of nondisclosure, a case decided by the Supreme Court sets forth the standard for the inquiry and determination of whether to grant a new trial on the basis of an incorrect voir dire response. The Supreme Court held that a new trial should be granted only if the juror failed to answer honestly a material question and if a correct response would have provided a valid basis for a challenge for cause. Because the potential prejudice resulting from nondisclosure of material information exists regardless of whether the nondisclosure was deliberate or simply inadvertent, n34 the Supreme Court holding, which restricts relief only to cases of deliberate nondisclosure, reflects the importance placed on the concept of finality in a trial and recognizes that to invalidate a trial simply because of a juror's mistaken, though honest, response to a question, is to insist on something closer to perfection than our judicial system can be expected to provide. n35

[4] Challenge for Cause

[a] Nature of Challenge for Cause

The purpose of a challenge for cause of a juror is to allow a party to reject jurors on a narrowly specified, provable, and legally cognizable basis of partiality. n1 A challenge for cause is restricted to circumstances in which the likelihood of partiality of the prospective juror are admitted or presumed from the relationships, n2 pecuniary interests, n3 or clear biases of the prospective juror. n4 The party making the challenge for cause has the burden of persuading the court of partiality and excusableness of the juror, n5 and the courts disfavor per se rules of disqualification. n6

[b] Court's Grant of Challenge for Cause When Actual Bias is Shown

The trial court must grant a challenge for cause if a prospective juror shows actual bias or prejudice. n7 Furthermore, once the challenging party shows evidence of bias, the trial court should resolve doubts about the existence of actual bias against permitting the juror to serve. n8 However, the trial court's determination of impartiality is essentially one of credibility and is therefore largely one of demeanor and entitled to special deference; n9 thus, a trial court has broad discretion on rulings on challenges for cause, n10 and a trial court's determination will be reversed only for an abuse of discretion. n11

The central inquiry for a court's determination of a challenge for cause is whether the prospective juror holds a particular position, belief, or opinion that prevents or substantially impairs the impartial performance of the duties of a juror. n12 It should be noted, however, that when a juror falls into one of the narrowly confined circumstances in which partiality is presumed, such as a relationship with a party or pecuniary interest in the outcome of the trial, the prospective juror's assertion of impartiality is irrelevant. n13

On the other hand, in the absence of facts pointing to presumptive bias, a prospective juror is presumed to be impartial; neither the existence of a preconception n14 nor the juror's having a particular occupational background is sufficient to rebut the presumption of impartiality, provided it is shown that the prospective juror can render a verdict based solely on the evidence presented at trial. n15

[5] Peremptory Challenge

[a] Purpose and Scope of Use of Peremptory Challenge

Peremptory challenges are designed to remove jurors who, in the opinion of a party or counsel, have unacknowledged or unconscious biases. n1 Thus, the scope of a peremptory challenge is considerably more extensive than a challenge for cause, which must be based on actual bias of the prospective juror, rather than an opinion of counsel. n2 Subdivision (b) of Rule 47 provides that the court must allow the number of peremptory challenges provided by the Jury Selection and Service Act. n3 This text of Rule 47(b) reminds parties that the basis of the right to peremptory challenge is purely statutory, and not constitutional, a distinction that has a significant impact on the remedy to which a party is entitled if the right to peremptory is impaired or denied. n4

[b] Discretion of Trial Court Regarding Peremptory Challenges

[i] Discretion to Set Number

The Jury Selection and Service Act provides basically that each party is entitled to three peremptory challenges. However, it also provides that the court may consider several defendants or several plaintiffs as a single party for the purpose of making challenges, or that the court may allow additional peremptory challenges and permit them to be exercised either separately or jointly. n5 Courts have interpreted this statute to vest the trial court with considerable discretion in the number and assignment of peremptory challenges in cases of multiple parties. For example, in one case the court of appeals held that the district court properly exercised its discretion when it decided to treat multiple defendants as one party and to grant five peremptory challenges to the defendants to exercise jointly. n6

However, the trial court's "considerable" discretion is not unlimited; one court of appeals held that a trial court abused its discretion when it granted six peremptory challenges to two defendants who were represented by the same attorney and with identical interests, and only three peremptory challenges to the plaintiff. The appellate court found that the trial court should have limited the defendants' peremptories to three or increased plaintiff's peremptories. n7

Counsel should also remember that while the number of challenges allowed is specified by statute and rule, the actual procedure of exercising peremptory challenges is determined by local court rule n8 or is left to the discretion of the court. n9

[ii] Discretion to Establish Peremptory Challenge Procedure

Neither Rule 47(b) nor the Jury Selection and Service Act n10 describes the method that the parties must utilize in exercising peremptory challenges. Therefore, the district court has wide latitude in its management of peremptory challenges, which will only be reversed on appeal if the court's procedure prevents a party from using the statutorily mandated number of peremptory challenges against a person who becomes a member of the jury. n11 However, trial counsel should note that a party may not claim error with respect to the district court's denial of any number of peremptory challenges unless and until the party has exercise all of its available peremptories. n12

[c] Prohibition Against Discriminatory Peremptory Challenges

[i] Substance of Prohibition

In 1986, the Supreme Court held that a state prosecutor's systematic use of peremptory challenges to exclude members of the defendant's race from a criminal jury violated the Fourteenth Amendment's Equal Protection Clause. The Court articulated a three-part test for considering such claims: (1) The defendant must first make a prima facie showing that the prosecutor exercised the challenges on the basis of race; (2) the burden then shifts to the prosecutor to come forward with a race-neutral explanation for the challenges; and (3) the district court then evaluates whether the defendant has fulfilled the burden of proof in establishing purposeful discrimination. n13

In a subsequent case the Supreme Court extended the applicability of Batson to civil trials. Describing the statutory scheme responsible for the establishment of the jury trial system in general, and the peremptory challenge procedure in particular, the Supreme Court observed that without overt, significant participation of the government, the peremptory challenge system, as well as the jury trial system of which it is a part, simply could not exist. The Court's finding of state action then led it to apply the Batson prohibition against the discriminatory exercise of peremptory challenges to civil, as well as criminal trials. n14 The Court also held that a private civil party may raise the third-party equal protection claim of an excluded juror. n15

Finally, in a paternity suit in which the defendant challenged the state's use of peremptory challenges to exclude men from the jury, the Supreme Court extended the reach of Batson to claims of gender discrimination in the exercise of peremptory challenges, holding that gender, like race, is an unconstitutional proxy for jury competence and impartiality. n16

[ii] Procedure to Contest Discriminatory Use of Peremptory Challenge

A party must object when it perceives that a peremptory challenge is exercised on a discriminatory basis, n17 because although Batson requires a trial court to determine whether a party's exercise of peremptory challenges is discriminatory, in the absence of an objection, the trial court does not have a duty sua sponte to prevent the discriminatory exclusion of jurors. n18 If a prima facie showing of a discriminatory use of a peremptory challenge has been made, the burden shifts to the party who has exercised the challenge to come forward with a neutral explanation for challenging the juror. n19 The objecting party then has an opportunity to present rebuttal evidence. n20 The objecting party must set forth, on the record and before the trial judge, why the proffered reasons are merely pretextual, in order to preserve the Batson issue for appellate review. n21

The burden of persuasion remains on the objector; because of the great deference accorded a trial court's determination of a Batson objection appellate courts are reluctant to disturb a Batson ruling on appeal, at least in cases where a party claiming discriminatory exercise of peremptory challenges has failed to argue at trial that the striking party's allegedly neutral reasons were merely pretextual. n22

[iii] Court's Determination of Discrimination Claim

When a party makes a timely objection that the opposition party's exercise of peremptory challenges is discriminatory, the trial court must inquire as to the reasons for the opposition's peremptory challenges and determine whether, under the circumstances of the case, the proffered reason is neutral or merely pretextual. There is no requirement that the trial court articulate for the record the reasons underlying the Batson ruling, n23 or that the trial court's reasons proffered for the peremptory challenge be based on record evidence, although it is better practice for the trial court to follow these procedures. n24

Because the Batson issue arises in the context of the exercise of the peremptory challenge, which permits rejection of a prospective juror for a real or imagined partiality, n25 the determination of whether a proffered reason for a challenged peremptory strike is pretextual or neutral rests on many factors and is highly fact-sensitive. Consequently, the court must make its decision case-by-case in light of the totality of the circumstances, and a district court's ruling on a Batson objection is accorded great deference on appeal n26 and will be disturbed only on a showing of clear error. n27

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJurorsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJurorsSelectionGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 9 Moore's Federal Practice, § 47.03 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 1861.

(n3)Footnote 2. 28 U.S.C. § 1862.

(n4)Footnote 3. 28 U.S.C. § 1865(b).

(n5)Footnote 4. 28 U.S.C. § 1865(a).

(n6)Footnote 5. See 28 U.S.C. §§ 1861-1871.

(n7)Footnote 6. 28 U.S.C. § 1863(b)(6).

(n8)Footnote 7. 28 U.S.C. § 1863(b)(5)(B).

(n9)Footnote 8. 28 U.S.C. § 1863(b)(5)(B). Section 1862 expressly bars the exclusion of jurors on the basis of racial, religious or other discrimination, 28 U.S.C. § 1862; and 28 U.S.C. § 1861 also states that all citizens must have the opportunity to be considered for service on grand and petit juries in the district courts of the United States.

(n10)Footnote 9. 28 U.S.C. § 1866(c).

(n11)Footnote 10. See [4], [5], below.

(n12)Footnote 11. 28 U.S.C. § 1866(c).

(n13)Footnote 12. United States v. Barnette, 800 F.2d 1558 (11th Cir. 1986) , cert. denied, 480 U.S. 935 (1987) .

(n14)Footnote 13. 28 U.S.C. § 1865(a).

(n15)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 1863(a).

(n16)Footnote 2. 28 U.S.C. § 1864.

(n17)Footnote 3. 28 U.S.C. § 1866.

(n18)Footnote 4. 28 U.S.C. § 1863(b)(1).

(n19)Footnote 5. 28 U.S.C. § 1863(b)(2).

(n20)Footnote 6. 28 U.S.C. § 1863(b)(3).

(n21)Footnote 7. 28 U.S.C. § 1863(b)(4).

(n22)Footnote 8. 28 U.S.C. § 1864(a).

(n23)Footnote 9. 28 U.S.C. § 1865(a).

(n24)Footnote 10. 28 U.S.C. § 1866(a).

(n25)Footnote 11. 28 U.S.C. § 1866(f).

(n26)Footnote 12. 28 U.S.C. § 1868.

(n27)Footnote 13. 28 U.S.C. § 1867(e).

(n28)Footnote 14. 28 U.S.C. § 1867(c); see, e.g., Dawson v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 978 F.2d 205, 209 (5th Cir. 1992) (statutory challenge to jury make up must be presented prior to voir dire).

(n29)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 1861.

(n30)Footnote 2. Waldorf v. Shuta, 3 F.3d 705, 709 (3d Cir. 1993) .

(n31)Footnote 3. Swink v. City of Pagedale, 810 F.2d 791, 793-794 (8th Cir.) , cert. denied, 483 U.S. 1025 (1987) ; Art Press, Ltd. v. Western Printing Mach. Co., 791 F.2d 616, 618 (7th Cir. 1986) , rev'd in part on other grounds, 852 F.2d 276 (7th Cir. 1988) .

(n32)Footnote 4. Rainey v. Conerly, 973 F.2d 321, 325 (4th Cir. 1992) .

(n33)Footnote 5. Rosales-Lopez v. United States, 451 U.S. 182, 187, 101 S. Ct. 1629, 68 L. Ed. 2d 22 (1981) .

(n34)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 47(a).

(n35)Footnote 7. Rosales-Lopez v. United States, 451 U.S. 182, 187, 101 S. Ct. 1629, 68 L. Ed. 2d 22 (1981) .

(n36)Footnote 8. Photostat Corp. v. Ball, 338 F.2d 783, 786 (10th Cir. 1964) .

(n37)Footnote 9. Fed. R. Civ. P. 47(a); see Darbin v. Nourse, 664 F.2d 1109 (9th Cir. 1981) (although trial court need not subscribe to exact form of voir dire question requested by counsel or ask particular question if its substance is covered in another question or in inquiry as a whole, trial court abused its discretion by failing to probe bias of prospective jurors as requested by plaintiff).

(n38)Footnote 10. United States v. Robinson, 475 F.2d 376, 381 (D.C. Cir. 1973) .

(n39)Footnote 11. James v. Continental Ins. Co., 424 F.2d 1064, 1065 (3d Cir. 1970) .

(n40)Footnote 12. Swink v. City of Pagedale, 810 F.2d 791, 793 (8th Cir.) , cert. denied, 483 U.S. 1025 (1987) .

(n41)Footnote 13. Hicks v. Mickelson, 835 F.2d 721, 725 (8th Cir. 1987) (within court's discretion to limit counsel's voir dire to 15 minutes).

(n42)Footnote 14. James v. Continental Ins. Co., 424 F.2d 1064, 1065 (3d Cir. 1970) (within court's discretion to deny counsel's written request to interrogate jurors).

(n43)Footnote 15. Waldorf v. Shuta, 3 F.3d 705, 710 (3d Cir. 1993) .

(n44)Footnote 16. Kanekoa v. City of Honolulu, 879 F.2d 607, 614 (9th Cir. 1989) , cert. denied, 500 U.S. 933 (1991) ; Sandidge v. Salen Offshore Drilling Co., 764 F.2d 252, 257 (5th Cir. 1985) .

(n45)Footnote 17. Rainey v. Conerly, 973 F.2d 321, 325 (4th Cir. 1992) (in inmate's civil rights suit brought against prison guard in which primary jury issue consisted of credibility determination, court abused its discretion by refusing to question prospective jurors as to whether they would tend to credit testimony of law enforcement official over that of prisoner simply because of their respective positions).

(n46)Footnote 18. Fietzer v. Ford Motor Co., 622 F.2d 281, 285 (7th Cir. 1980) .

(n47)Footnote 19. Scott v. Lawrence, 36 F.3d 871, 874 (9th Cir. 1994) .

(n48)Footnote 20. Lewis v. Holden, 821 F.2d 291, 294 (5th Cir. 1987) .

(n49)Footnote 21. Fietzer v. Ford Motor Co., 622 F.2d 281, 285 (7th Cir. 1980) .

(n50)Footnote 22. Harold v. Corwin, 846 F.2d 1148, 1150 (8th Cir. 1988) .

(n51)Footnote 23. Art Press, Ltd. v. Western Printing Mach. Co., 791 F.2d 616, 618-619 (7th Cir. 1986) , rev'd in part on other grounds, 852 F.2d 276 (7th Cir. 1988) .

(n52)Footnote 24. Swink v. City of Pagedale, 810 F.2d 791, 793 (8th Cir.) , cert. denied, 483 U.S. 1025 (1987) (because plaintiff was permitted to ask whether presence of black plaintiff and white defendants would cause prospective jurors to be biased, denial of inquiry into jurors' definition of racism and extent of socializing with blacks was proper exercise of court's discretion).

(n53)Footnote 25. Darbin v. Nourse, 664 F.2d 1109, 1113 (9th Cir. 1981) .

(n54)Footnote 26. Waldorf v. Shuta, 3 F.3d 705, 710 (3d Cir. 1993) .

(n55)Footnote 27. Hard v. Burlington N. R. Co., 870 F.2d 1454, 1459 (9th Cir. 1989) .

(n56)Footnote 28. McCoy v. Goldston, 652 F.2d 654, 659 (6th Cir. 1981) (deliberate concealment or purposefully incorrect response during voir dire sufficient to show prejudicial impairment of right to exercise peremptory challenge).

(n57)Footnote 29. Photostat Corp. v. Ball, 338 F.2d 783, 786 (10th Cir. 1964) (primary purpose of voir dire examination is to develop entire truth concerning prospective juror's state of mind).

(n58)Footnote 30. McCoy v. Goldston, 652 F.2d 654, 657 (6th Cir. 1981) .

(n59)Footnote 31. Hard v. Burlington N. R. Co., 870 F.2d 1454, 1459 (9th Cir. 1989) (no deliberate failure to disclose former employment of juror by predecessor company to defendant company because jurors were not asked about employment by predecessor railroad).

(n60)Footnote 32. Robinson v. Monsanto Co., 758 F.2d 331, 335 (8th Cir. 1985) .

(n61)Footnote 33. Cunningham v. Sears, Roebuck & Co., 854 F.2d 914, 915 (6th Cir. 1988) .

(n62)Footnote 34. Photostat Corp. v. Ball, 338 F.2d 783, 787 (10th Cir. 1964) .

(n63)Footnote 35. McDonough Power Equip., Inc., v. Greenwood, 464 U.S. 548, 555, 104 S. Ct. 845, 849-850, 78 L. Ed. 2d 663 (1984) .

(n64)Footnote 1. Swain v. Alabama, 380 U.S. 202, 220, 85 S. Ct. 824, 836, 13 L. Ed. 2d 759, 772 (1965) (challenge based on race in rape conviction).

(n65)Footnote 2. Bailey v. Board of County Comm'rs of Alachua County, 956 F.2d 1112, 1128 (11th Cir.) , cert. denied, 506 U.S. 832 (1992) .

(n66)Footnote 3. Getter v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 66 F.3d 1119, 1122 (10th Cir.) , cert. denied, 516 U.S. 1146 (1995) (court should have excused for cause juror who owned stock in defendant corporation and whose wife was employed by defendant); Vasey v. Martin Marietta Corp., 29 F.3d 1460, 1468 (10th Cir. 1994) (bias presumed if prospective juror has direct financial interest in trial's outcome).

(n67)Footnote 4. Darbin v. Nourse, 664 F.2d 1109, 1113 (9th Cir. 1981) (bias in favor of law enforcement officers in suit by prisoner).

(n68)Footnote 5. Marks v. Shell Oil Co., 895 F.2d 1128, 1129 (6th Cir. 1990) .

(n69)Footnote 6. Depree v. Thomas, 946 F.2d 784, 787-788 (11th Cir. 1991) (no per se rule that court should disqualify jurors with law enforcement connections).

(n70)Footnote 7. Vasey v. Martin Marietta Corp., 29 F.3d 1460, 1466 (10th Cir. 1994) (consultant for defendant company).

(n71)Footnote 8. Bailey v. Board of County Comm'rs of Alachua County, 956 F.2d 1112, 1128 (11th Cir.) , cert. denied, 506 U.S. 832 (1992) (doubts about impartiality should be resolved against allowing juror to serve).

(n72)Footnote 9. Patton v. Yount, 467 U.S. 1025, 1038, 104 S. Ct. 2885, 2892, 81 L. Ed. 2d 847 (1984) .

(n73)Footnote 10. Poynter v. Ratcliff, 874 F.2d 219, 222 (4th Cir. 1989) .

(n74)Footnote 11. Kirk v. Raymark Indus., Inc. 61 F.3d 147, 154-155 (3d Cir.) , cert. denied, 516 U.S. 1145 (1996) .

(n75)Footnote 12. Bell v. Lynbaugh, 663 F. Supp. 405, 414 (E.D. Tex.) , aff'd on other grounds, 828 F.2d 1085 (5th Cir.) , cert. denied, 484 U.S. 933 (1987) .

(n76)Footnote 13. Getter v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 66 F.3d 1119, 1122 (10th Cir.) , cert. denied, 516 U.S. 1146 (1995) .

(n77)Footnote 14. Poynter v. Ratcliff, 874 F.2d 219, 221 (4th Cir. 1989) .

(n78)Footnote 15. See, e.g., Marks v. Shell Oil Co., 895 F.2d 1128, 1130 n.1 (6th Cir. 1990) (prospective juror not subject to challenge for cause merely because he had previously worked for oil company).

(n79)Footnote 1. Swain v. Alabama, 380 U.S. 202, 220, 13 L. Ed. 2d 759 (1965) (peremptory challenge permits rejection for real or imagined partiality).

(n80)Footnote 2. Darbin v. Nourse, 664 F.2d 1109, 1113 (9th Cir. 1981) (scope of peremptory challenges is broader than challenge for cause).

(n81)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 47(b); see 28 U.S.C. § 1870.

(n82)Footnote 4. See Ross v. Oklahoma, 487 U.S. 81, 88, 108 S. Ct. 2273, 2278, 101 L. Ed. 2d 80 (1988) (peremptory challenges are not of constitutional dimension).

(n83)Footnote 5. 28 U.S.C. § 1870.

(n84)Footnote 6. Stonewall Ins. Co. v. Asbestos Claims Mgmt. Corp., 73 F.3d 1178, 1219 (2d Cir. 1995) , modified on other grounds, 85 F.3d 49 (2d Cir. 1996) .

(n85)Footnote 7. Goldstein v. Kelleher, 728 F.2d 32, 37 (1st Cir. 1984) , cert. denied, 469 U.S. 852 (1984) (however, in absence of showing that prejudice resulted from abuse of discretion, error was not reversible).

(n86)Footnote 8. See Local Rule 245(2) for the Northern District of California.

(n87)Footnote 9. Landes Constr. Co. v. Royal Bank of Canada, 833 F.2d 1365, 1369 (9th Cir. 1987) (even though local rule of court provided that each acceptance of jury panel represented waiver by accepting party of one peremptory challenge, rule could not be applied to replacement juror who was not member of last panel accepted by plaintiff, and it was not error for court to grant parties one additional challenge).

(n88)Footnote 10. 28 U.S.C. § 1870.

(n89)Footnote 11. Medrano v. City of Los Angeles, 973 F.2d 1499, 1503 (9th Cir. 1992) , cert. denied, 508 U.S. 940 (1993) (district court procedure erroneously denied party right of peremptory challenge against newly seated prospective juror required automatic reversal); Olympia Hotels Corp. v. Johnson Wax Dev. Corp., 908 F.2d 1363, 1369 (7th Cir. 1990) (reversible error to deny peremptory challenges to which party is entitled).

(n90)Footnote 12. Mills v. GAF Corp., 20 F.3d 678, 680 (6th Cir. 1994) (because defendant had two unexercised peremptory strikes at time jury was seated, court rejected claim that district court's procedure with respect to exercise of peremptory challenges inhibited defendant's right to challenge).

(n91)Footnote 13. Batson v. Kentucky, 476 U.S. 79, 96-97 106 S. Ct. 1712, 90 L. Ed. 2d 69 (1986) .

(n92)Footnote 14. Edmonson v. Leesville Concrete Co., Inc. 500 U.S. 614, 622, 111 S. Ct. 2077, 2084, 114 L. Ed. 2d 660, 674 (1991) .

(n93)Footnote 15. Edmonson v. Leesville Concrete Co., Inc. 500 U.S. 614, 622, 111 S. Ct. 2077, 2088, 114 L. Ed. 2d 660, 674 (1991) (courts must entertain challenge to private party's racially discriminatory use of peremptory challenges in civil trial).

(n94)Footnote 16. J.E.B. v. Alabama ex rel. T.B., 511 U.S. 127, 114 S. Ct. 1419, 1429, 128 L. Ed. 2d 89, 97 (1994) ' see, e.g., Montanez v. Puerto Rico Police Dep't, 33 F. Supp. 2d 106, (D. P.R. 1999) (police department improperly discriminated in jury selection process on basis of gender).

(n95)Footnote 17. Dawson v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 978 F.2d 205, 210 (5th Cir. 1992) (post-trial Batson challenge untimely and barred); see, e.g., Montanez v. Puerto Rico Police Dep't, 33 F. Supp. 2d 106, (D. P.R. 1999) (department illegally discriminated in jury selection process on basis of gender, and plaintiff's objection was timely).

(n96)Footnote 18. Soler v. Waite, 989 F.2d 251, 254 (7th Cir. 1993) .

(n97)Footnote 19. Batson v. Kentucky, 476 U.S. 79, 97, 106 S. Ct. 1712, 90 L. Ed. 2d 69 (1986) .

(n98)Footnote 20. United States v. Roan Eagle, 867 F.2d 436, 441 (8th Cir.) , cert. denied, 490 U.S. 1028 (1989) .

(n99)Footnote 21. Davis v. Baltimore Gas & Elec. Co., 160 F.3d 1023, 1027-1028 (4th Cir. 1998) (objecting party who fails to present arguments as to why opposing party's proffered reasons are merely pretextual has failed to preserve Batson issue for appeal).

(n100)Footnote 22. Great Plains Equip. v. Koch Gathering Sys., 45 F.3d 962, 965 (5th Cir. 1995) .

(n101)Footnote 23. Hopson v. Fredericksen, 961 F.2d 1374, 1377 (8th Cir. 1992) (because Supreme Court did not formulate particular procedures to be followed on timely Batson objection, court of appeals declined to find error in trial court's failure to articulate on record reasons for overruling plaintiff's Batson challenge).

(n102)Footnote 24. Great Plains Equip. v. Koch Gathering Sys., 45 F.3d 962, 965 (5th Cir. 1995) (court properly accepted neutral reason even though it was not based on record evidence).

(n103)Footnote 25. Swain v. Alabama, 380 U.S. 202, 220, 13 L. Ed. 2d 759, 772 (1965) .

(n104)Footnote 26. Palmer v. Lares, 42 F.3d 975, 979 (5th Cir. 1995) (appeals court will interfere only if decision is clearly erroneous).

(n105)Footnote 27. Great Plains Equip. v. Koch Gathering Sys., 45 F.3d 962, 964 (5th Cir. 1995) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART III. CONDUCT OF JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.66

§ 22.66 Dismissal of Jurorsn*

[1] Discretion of Court to Dismiss Juror for Cause

The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure recognize that circumstances may arise after a jury has been selected that may require the dismissal of a juror or jurors. Rule 47 gives the district court authority to dismiss a juror from service for good cause, either during trial or during deliberation by the jury. n1 Furthermore, dismissal of a juror under appropriate circumstances is not grounds for a mistrial, because the right of all parties to the judgment of the jury is only a qualified one. n2 The demands of due process are met provided that at least six jurors, or a smaller number if the parties have so stipulated, remain to render a verdict. n3

The decision whether to dismiss a juror on application of a party is left to the court's discretion, which will be reversed by an appellate court only for abuse of discretion. n4 For example, in one case the court of appeals affirmed the trial court's refusal to excuse a juror who referred to the plaintiff's counsel as a "bastard," because the appellate court found that the juror's comment was not indicative of bias, but rather of dissatisfaction with the lawyer's courtroom demeanor. n5

In another case, it was not an abuse of discretion for the trial court to refuse to dismiss a juror when the juror commented to court personnel during the recess that the juror's service on an unrelated criminal case led the juror to believe that the accused might be involved in celebrated murder of six-year-old beauty contest winner, despite the claim that the juror's statement was so bizarre that it made manifest the juror's incompetency to sit in judgment of any case. The court of appeals held that the juror's remark, though peculiar, did not in and of itself evince an inability to form rational judgments, and the remark did not indicate any prejudice against the defendants; furthermore, as the trial court observed, the comment had no bearing whatever on the case at hand. n6

[2] Grounds for Dismissal of Juror for Cause

The text of Rule 47(c) does not reveal what constitutes "good cause" sufficient for removal. However, the committee note states that good cause means occurrences such as sickness and family emergencies. n1 As with subdivisions (a) and (b), subdivision (c) of Rule 47 confers wide discretion on the trial court. n2 Accordingly, it has been held that the court has broad authority to dismiss a juror whenever necessary to preserve the integrity of the judicial process. n3 For example, the court may exercise its discretion to excuse a juror so that the juror can take an important business trip, n4 or because of extreme stress threatening a juror's health during deliberations, n5 On the other hand, a court may not remove a juror simply because the juror refuses to join with the other jurors to reach a unanimous verdict. n6

[3] Hearing Required to Dismiss Juror for Misconduct

[a] Requirement of Hearing

Even though courts have broad discretion to remove jurors for good cause during trial or deliberation, n1 the United states Supreme Court has held that, with respect to dismissal based on allegations of juror misconduct, a trial court should not decide and take final action ex parte. Rather, the trial court should determine the circumstances and their impact on jurors, and whether or not it was prejudicial, in a hearing with all interested parties permitted to participate. n2 In the case, the Court vacated a judgment of conviction against the defendant when the district judge conducted an ex parte investigation of a juror regarding allegations of jury tampering; after being notified by a juror that an unknown person had communicated with the juror about the trial, the judge ordered the FBI to investigate and report. The Court vacated the judgment because the record did not show what transpired or whether the incidents were harmful or harmless, and the petitioner could not know this information in an ex parte proceeding. n3

This issue typically arises in disputes involving proceedings investigating the potential dismissal of a sitting juror who is the lone holdout. n4 Absent exigent circumstances, such proceedings must be conducted in the presence of the parties, and a record of the hearing must be made for the benefit of the parties and the reviewing court. n5 Failure to satisfy these requirements warrants reversal even without a showing of prejudice. n6

Although the trial judge ordinarily should not conduct any portion of the hearing ex parte, an ex parte dismissal may be upheld when the parties waive the hearing, the circumstances warrant, and fundamental fairness is not sacrificed. In one case, the Eighth Circuit found no plain error in conducting a hearing outside the parties' presence to investigate allegations of jury tampering when both parties knew about the hearing in advance, declined to participate, and raised no objection; under these circumstances, the court of appeals held that the trial court substantially complied with the Remmer requirements. n7

[b] Suggested Procedure for Hearing

Good cause for dismissal of a juror may encompass juror misconduct that could be grounds for a mistrial; therefore, a mistrial case may demonstrate the proper method of investigation of juror misconduct. In one such case, the court stated that when a trial court becomes aware that a member of the jury may have learned extrajudicial information that could adversely affect the jury's ability to decide the case impartially on the record evidence alone, the court must determine whether the impartiality of the juror has been compromised. The appropriate method for inquiry into possible prejudice of a juror is voir dire of the juror. n8 The method of conducting the voir dire is in the discretion of the court; any method is sufficient provided it is probative of the issue of impartiality. n9 However, the court's voir dire must be sufficiently thorough to ascertain whether there is a substantial likelihood of partiality. n10 When the exposure to extrajudicial information has been substantial, the court's determination of partiality should be made based on objective criteria rather than on the juror's own subjective assessment of continued impartiality, since the effect of extrajudicial information may be prejudicial even if not so perceived by the juror. n11

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJurorsRemovals

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 9 Moore's Federal Practice, § 47.40 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 47(c).

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 47, Advisory Committee Note to 1991 Amendments.

(n4)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 48; see § 22.64[1].

(n5)Footnote 4. Murray v. Laborers Union Local No. 324, 55 F.3d 1445, 1451 (9th Cir. 1995) , cert. denied, 517 U.S. 1219 (1996) (court of appeals not entitled to second guess trial court).

(n6)Footnote 5. King v. Emerson Elec. Co., 837 F. Supp. 1096, 1100 (D. Kan. 1993) , aff'd without op., 69 F.3d 548 (10th Cir. 1995) .

(n7)Footnote 6. Williams v. Drake, 146 F.3d 44, 49-50 (1st Cir. 1998) .

(n8)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 39, Advisory Committee Note.

(n9)Footnote 2. Williams v. Drake, 146 F.3d 44, 49-50 (1st Cir. 1998) .

(n10)Footnote 3. Bondie v. Bic Corp., 947 F.2d 1531, 1535 (6th Cir. 1991) .

(n11)Footnote 4. Interpool Ltd. v. Patterson, 874 F. Supp. 616, 618 (S.D.N.Y. 1995) (juror was excused on seventh day of trial; juror had disclosed prior commitment during voir dire but was not removed for cause or by peremptory challenge because parties thought trial would end before date of trip).

(n12)Footnote 5. Mason v. Texaco, Inc., 948 F.2d 1546, 1558 (10th Cir.) , cert. denied, 504 U.S. 910 (1991) (juror with acute nervous reaction excused after six days of deliberations).

(n13)Footnote 6. Murray v. Laborers Union Local No. 324, 55 F.3d 1445, 1451-1452 (9th Cir. 1995) , cert. denied, 517 U.S. 1219 (1996) .

(n14)Footnote 1. See [1] and [2], above.

(n15)Footnote 2. Remmer v. United States, 347 U.S. 227, 228-229, 74 S. Ct. 450, 98 L. Ed. 654 (1954) (proceeding should not have been ex parte); Harris v. Folk Constr. Co., 138 F.3d 365, 371-372 (8th Cir. 1998) (magistrate judge may not, without hearing, dismiss lone holdout who sent note to court indicating fear for her safety in jury room).

(n16)Footnote 3. Remmer v. United States, 347 U.S. 227, 228-229, 74 S. Ct. 450, 98 L. Ed. 654 (1954) (judgment vacated due to absence of hearing and inadequate record).

(n17)Footnote 4. See Harris v. Folk Constr. Co., 138 F.3d 365, 371-372 (8th Cir. 1998) (lone holdout who sent note to court indicating fear for her safety was impermissibly dismissed without notice and hearing; parties had no notice of hearing, hearing was not conducted on record or with witnesses, and juror was never placed under oath).

(n18)Footnote 5. Remmer v. United States, 347 U.S. 227, 228, 74 S. Ct. 450, 98 L. Ed. 654 (1954) (judgment vacated due to absence of hearing and inadequate record).

(n19)Footnote 6. See Harris v. Folk Constr. Co., 138 F.3d 365, 371-372 (8th Cir. 1998) (hearing is important for dismissal determination, because, just like for voir dire selection of jurors, dismissal of juror pursuant to Rule 47(c) calls for scrutiny of not only spoken words, but also gestures and attitudes to ensure jury's impartiality and competence).

(n20)Footnote 7. United States v. Behler, 14 F.3d 1264, 1267-1268 (8th Cir. 1994) , cert. denied, 513 U.S. 960

(1994) .

(n21)Footnote 8. Waldorf v. Shuta, 3 F.3d 705, 709-710 (3d Cir. 1993) ; see Harris v. Folk Constr. Co., 138 F.3d 365, 371 (8th Cir. 1998) .

(n22)Footnote 9. Waldorf v. Shuta, 3 F.3d 705, 710 (3d Cir. 1993) .

(n23)Footnote 10. Waldorf v. Shuta, 3 F.3d 705, 711, 713 (3d Cir. 1993) .

(n24)Footnote 11. Silverthorne v. United States, 400 F.2d 627, 638 (9th Cir. 1968) , cert. denied, 400 U.S. 1022 (1971) (absent examination designed to elicit answers providing objective basis for evaluation, merely obtaining jurors' assurances of impartiality is insufficient).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART III. CONDUCT OF JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.67

§ 22.67 Statutory Juror Daily Attendance Fees

The Jury Selection and Service Act provides that the district courts pay jurors a daily attendance fee for actual attendance at the place of hearing or trial. n1 The statute also provides that the court pay an additional fee not in excess of $10 more than the attendance fee, for each day "in excess of thirty days" on which the petit juror is required to hear a case. n2 The Act also provides for reimbursement of a juror's travel expenses and for a subsistence allowance, when applicable. n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJurorsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 1871(a), (b)(1).

(n2)Footnote 2. 28 U.S.C. § 1871(b)(2).

(n3)Footnote 3. 28 U.S.C. § 1871(c), (d).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART III. CONDUCT OF JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.68

§ 22.68 Court's Instructions to Juryn*

[1] Purpose and Scope of Jury Instructions

[a] Function of Jury Instructions

There are several purposes for jury instructions. One of the primary purposes is for the court to provide the jury with specific information on the law necessary to decide the factual issues of the case presented to the jury. n1 Jury instructions also provide proper guidance and assistance to the jury so that it may reach a verdict. n2 In that regard, jury instructions must clarify issues for the jury and educate the jury about what factors are probative of only those issues. n3 Additionally, jury instructions are used by the court to prevent the jury from engaging in prohibited conduct or considering impermissible issues. For example, carefully constructed instructions can effectively thwart the potential for bias by jury members. n4

[b] Procedural Rule Governs Final Jury Instructions

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 51 n5 governs the procedure that the trial court must follow to explain to the jury the substantive law related to the issues in the case that the jury must decide, and also how the jury must arrive at its verdict. Many courts refer to these jury instructions as the "jury charge." n6 The requirements of Rule 51 apply not only to the trial court's explanation of the law and the verdict procedure themselves but also to special verdicts n7 and to written interrogatories submitted to the jury on one or more issues of fact. n8

However, it should be noted that Rule 51 does not govern all directives that the court may give to the jury. For example, Rule 51 requirements do not apply to an "instruction" by the court which directs the jury that particular evidence is admitted only for a limited purpose, or against only one party and that the jury is to consider the evidence only for that limited purpose. n9 Also, Rule 51 does not apply when the court directs the jury not to consider evidence that has been improperly admitted; n10 such an "instruction" is used only to cure the improper admission of evidence. n11

[c] Jury Instruction Purposes Promoted by Procedural Rule

As noted in the previous subsection, n12 jury instructions are governed by Rule 51 of the Federal Rules of Civil

Procedure. n13 The primary purpose of Rule 51 is to ensure that the jury receives proper instructions by providing that each party may inform the trial court of any inaccuracies or deficiencies in proposed jury instructions before they are actually given. n14 This procedure gives the court an opportunity to correct errors in the jury instructions before the jurors retire to consider their verdict. n15 However, the rule requires a party to make a distinct and timely objection to an instruction or failure to give an instruction to preserve the party's right to appeal the trial court's decision regarding a jury instruction. n16 This provision requiring a specific objection is designed to preserve scarce judicial resources n17 and to reduce the burden on appellate courts by diminishing the number of trial rulings that have to be reviewed. n18

Other purposes of Rule 51 are:

1. To promote orderliness and finality in litigation, n19 by preventing a party from remaining silent in the face of an incorrect instruction, planning to obtain a favorable verdict despite the error, and planning to use the error to seek a new trial in the event of an unfavorable verdict. n20

2. To ensure that the trial court correctly instructs the jury on the relevant law and applicable theories of recovery or defenses n21 by allowing the parties to request that specified jury instructions be given by the trial court. n22

3. To allow the trial attorneys to prepare for closing arguments by requiring the district court to inform them of the proposed instructions and its decisions on requested instructions before arguments are made to the jury. n23 Thus, the attorneys can present arguments to the jury that anticipate the court's instructions and direct the jury's attention to evidence that will be explained by the court's instructions. n24

[2] Parties May Request Particular Jury Instructions

[a] Right of Each Party to Request Jury Instructions

Each party has a right to file and furnish to every other party written requests that the court instruct the jury on the law as specified in the requests. n25 The attorney representing each party should always request jury instructions tailored to that party's theory of the case, n26 provided that the issue has reasonably been raised by the evidence. n27 A request is required under the federal rules because, unless it would constitute a plain error, the trial court is not required without a request to include an instruction related to every item of evidence introduced at trial, n28 and a failure to request specific jury instructions precludes review of the trial court's decision not to include such an instruction. n29

[b] Time for Completion of Request

A party must generally file requests and furnish them to every other party at the close of the evidence or at an earlier reasonable time that the court directs, n30 such as before or during the trial. n31 However, a party may file requests after the close of the evidence with respect to those issues that could not reasonably have been anticipated at the close of evidence or earlier time for requests set by the court. n32

Also, the court has discretion to give a party permission to file untimely requests for instructions on any issue. n33 In its decision whether to allow an untimely request, the primary consideration is the importance of the issue to the case. Therefore, the more likely the court's decision to not allow an instruction would be plain error, the more compelling is the reason to allow an instruction. Another factor the court should consider is the degree of the requesting party's fault in failing to make a timely request. n34 In any event, the court will not consider requests for instruction after the jury has retired to deliberate. n35

[c] Content and Form of Request

[i] Requirement of Writing

All requests for jury instructions must be in writing and must specify the requested instructions on the law. n36 No particular format is required for requested instructions, except that they should be designated in some way, such as "plaintiff's proposed instruction number 1," so that the court can refer to each instruction in its analysis and disposition of the requests. n37 As expressly required in Rule 51, attorneys should always make requests for instructions in writing. However, because the purpose of this requirement is to ensure that trial courts have adequate and timely notice of instruction requests, several courts have indicated that they do not hold parties to that strict requirement, provided that the trial court was precisely notified of the request. n38

[ii] Request for Statement of Law

A party's request for jury instructions must ask that the court instruct the jury on the law as specified in the request. n39 This requirement means that the request must correctly state the law relevant to the issue, must fairly and adequately cover the legal issue presented, and must not be misleading. n40 Additionally, the request should cite legal authority that supports each legal statement. n41 However, even though a jury instruction may not be given by the court if it is incorrect, a technically incorrect request is sufficient to require that the court correctly instruct on that issue, when the issue is necessary for determination of the case. n42 Furthermore, even if an erroneous instruction is given to a civil jury, the instruction does not require reversal if the error is more probably than not harmless. n43 Because, the purpose of jury instructions is to give the jury a clear and concise statement of the law that is necessary for the jury to decide the case, a party may request an instruction only if the instruction is based on evidence admitted at trial. n44 However, a party need not present a compelling amount of evidence to support a request for a particular instruction. n45 All that is necessary is that the party present some evidence on the issue that supports the party's theory of case. n46

[iii] Language of Request

Provided that a request for jury instructions states the substance of the law, a party need not use particular language or a particular format. Additionally, although they are useful as tools in making requests, a party need not adopt the language of pattern jury instructions in its request. In this regard, pattern instructions should not be automatically followed verbatim; when necessary, pattern jury instructions should be modified carefully for use in particular cases to address the precise issues presented to the jury. n47

Another important consideration about the language of a request is that a party is not entitled to have the court instruct the jury in the precise language the party has proposed, provided that the jury charge covers the substance of the requested instructions. n48 This axiom is based of the principle that the trial court has considerable discretion to formulate instructions to meet the requirements of each particular case. n49

[d] Procedure for Making Request

To complete requests for jury instructions, the party must file the requests with the court and must furnish a copy to every other party. n50 Although not specified in Rule 51, the requests should be formally served on the other parties, n51 in the same manner as other papers are served under Rule 5. n52

In addition to the requirements for the submission of requests for jury instructions specified in Rule 51, local court rules may impose additional requirements, provided that the local rules are consistent with federal statutes and rules. n53 For example, local rules may specify that the requested instructions must be filed with a particular pretrial document such as a joint pretrial report. n54 Similarly, a district court judge or magistrate judge may issue a standing or general order which specifies a requirement for requesting jury instructions, provided that the order is consistent with federal statutes and rules, and local rules. n55

[3] Court's Obligations Regarding Instruction of Jury

[a] Court Must Instruct Jury to Decide Facts Pursuant to Relevant Law

With its instructions to the jury, the court must provide the jury with information on the law that is necessary for the jury to decide the factual issues of the case. Thus, jury instructions must provide enough guidance and assistance for the jury to reach a verdict n56 and must inform the jury of all of the permissible ways to resolve the issues in the case. n57 Additionally, jury instructions must clarify factual issues and inform the jury about what factors are probative of only those issues, because the jury may decide the case based only on evidence presented at trial. n58

[b] District Court Has Considerable Discretion in Formulating Instructions

The district court trial judge has considerable discretion in drafting a jury instruction for each issue in the case, n59 subject to the requirement that the instructions taken as a whole must provide the jury with information on the law necessary to decide the factual issues of the case and guide the jury's deliberations in a proper and meaningful manner. n60 Therefore, the district court is not required to use the exact words used in a party's requested instructions, n61 nor is it necessary for the court to give every instruction submitted by parties merely because the instruction is correct. n62 Furthermore, a court need not give a redundant instruction, n63 nor is it necessary for the court to adhere to the forum state's pattern instructions. n64

A court's considerable discretion regarding instructions allows the court during instructions to comment on evidence presented at trial, provided that the comments help clarify the issues in the case. n65 However, if it comments on the evidence, the court has a duty to do so impartially, n67 and the trial court must exercise caution when commenting on the evidence so that the court does not to mislead or improperly influence the jury. n68

[c] State Law Controls Content in Diversity Cases

In diversity cases, the court must instruct the jury on the substantive state law applicable to an issue, and the instructions when read as a whole must fairly and adequately present the state law relevant to the state law issues that the jury must decide. n69 On the other hand, the form of the instructions is governed by federal law. Federal law also governs the procedure for the determination of which instructions to give the jury, n70 including whether the federal trial court properly exercised discretion in granting or denying use of requested state law instructions. n71 For example, federal law governs the standard of review for determining whether a particular state law jury instruction is prejudicial in the particular case. n72

If an issue is based on federal law, federal law governs both substantive and procedural aspects of jury instructions for that federal issue, even if the court has jurisdiction based on diversity of the parties, and thus other issues in the case are substantively controlled by state law. n73

[d] Procedure and Time for Instructing Jury

The court may give the jury its final instructions at any time after trial begins and before the jury is discharged. n74 However, final instructions may be given only after the following steps have occurred:

1. The court has given the parties a deadline to submit any requests they have for jury instructions; n75

2. The court informs the parties of rulings on such requests, and gives the parties a statement of the court's own proposed instructions; n76

3. The parties have an opportunity to object to rulings on requests and the court's own proposed instructions. n77

After consideration of any such objections, the court will give final instructions to the jury. n78 Ultimately, if a party loses on a jury instruction issue after it has objected, the party may raise the issue on appeal. n79

[e] Method of Instructing Jury

The court must set out its instructions in writing; however, the court must actually give the instructions by reading them to the jury. After the reading, the court should give the jury a written version of the instructions as read, so that the jury may refer to them during their deliberations. Most courts have found that the juries comprehend better when they initially hear material verbally and then have the opportunity to review a written version. It appears that juries will follow the law if they are properly instructed and afforded the opportunity to read those instructions during their deliberations; alternatively, the court may give the jury a tape recorded version. n80 Some courts also find that it is helpful for each juror to have his or her own set of the instructions, so that during deliberations the jurors can review the instructions at the same time together. n81

[f] Duty to Inform Parties of Substance of Instructions Before Giving Charge

Before it actually instructs the jury and the parties deliver their closing arguments, the district court must inform the parties of its proposed instructions and proposed action on any requests for instructions made by the parties. n82 The court must also give the parties an opportunity to object to the proposed instructions and actions on requests for instructions. n83 In the context of jury instructions, closing arguments on a particular issue may occur before the close of the entire trial, as in a bifurcated trial or other sequenced trial. In such situations, the court must inform the parties of its proposed instructions and action on requests for each segment of the trial before final closing arguments on the issues involved in that segment. n84

Although not specified by the rule, the trial court typically discusses extensively the proposed instructions and objections to the court's rulings at what is known as the "jury charge conference." During the conference, the court and the parties attempt to resolve any disputes regarding jury instructions. n85 However, a failure of the district court to meet with parties to discuss instructions prior to closing argument does not constitute error; n86 the trial court complies with Rule 51 when the parties have the opportunity to communicate their jury instruction positions through requests and objections, n87 and the trial court notifies the parties of its proposed instructions before actually giving the instructions and before closing argument. n88 Furthermore, the rule does not require that the district court furnish parties with the precise language of the proposed instructions; this part of Rule 51 is satisfied provided that the parties have advance notice of the substance of the court's charge. n89

[g] Duty to Allow Parties to Object to Rulings on Request and Proposed Charge

The court must give the parties an opportunity before the instructions and closing arguments are delivered to object on the record and out of the presence of the jury to both the court's actions on requests and the court's proposed instructions. n90 The court must allow objection out of the hearing of the jury so that the jury is not improperly influenced by argument of the attorneys regarding the matters of asserted instructional error. n91 Therefore, if the court requires a party to state its objection in the presence of the jury, a new trial may result if the wronged party demonstrates that it is reasonable to conclude that objecting in the presence of the jury was prejudicial. n92

[4] Party's Objection to Jury Instructions Necessary to Preserve Appellate Review

[a] Preservation of Appeal by Objection Related to Instructions

In the absence of a timely objection, a party is precluded from obtaining the complete scope of appellate review of any error asserted regarding jury instructions. n93 Thus, if a party fails to object to the court's decision on requested jury instructions or to the court's proposed jury instructions, an appellate court may review only for plain error. n94 The appellate court will reverse under the plain error standard only if the error prejudices the party's substantial rights and would result in a miscarriage of justice if left uncorrected. n95 If a party has made a proper request for a jury instruction, n96 the party may preserve error on the trial court's refusal of the request only by objecting to the refusal, unless the trial court has previously made a definitive ruling on the record that rejected the request. n97

The objection requirement for jury instructions is strictly enforced, n98 and a party that has failed to object to jury instructions or failure to give jury instructions has waived the right to contest those jury instruction rulings except for plain error. n99 The requirement is binding on all parties and the district court, and except in certain limited circumstances, n100 a party's failure to object to an error related to the jury charge results in forfeiture of the claim on appeal. n101 Each party has the obligation to objection to the jury instruction errors asserted by that party. Therefore, a party in a multi-party suit may not rely on an objection made by a co-party unless the party expressly adopts the co-party's objection. n102

[b] Contents of Objection

A party must make an objection to a jury instruction or the court's failure to give an instruction on the record, and must state distinctly the matter objected to and the grounds of the objection. n103 This means that objections to jury instructions must be sufficiently specific to bring into focus the precise nature of the alleged error. A vague or general objection to the propriety of a given instruction is not sufficient to preserve the issue for appeal. n104

The purpose of Rule 51 and the requirement of a distinct objection is to expose potential errors while there is still time to correct them without incurring the expense and delay and expenditure of judicial resources occasioned by retrials. n105 Therefore, to satisfy Rule 51, a party must object on grounds that are sufficiently precise to alert the district court not only that the instruction is defective, n106 but that it is defective based on a particular provision of the United States or a state constitution or a particular federal or state statute. n107 The objection also must be sufficiently specific to enable the court to correct the claimed error. n108 However, to comply with the objection requirement it is not necessary that a party use the words "object" or "objection." It is sufficient that the party specify to the district court the instruction that is the subject of the objection, and the reason that the party asserts the instruction is erroneous. n109

On the other hand, a party does not sufficiently object merely by submitting a proposed instruction that is different from the instruction actually given. The party must state the grounds why the given instruction is erroneous. n110 An attorney objecting to the court's charge also must take care that the court is aware that the attorney is stating an objection to the charge, and not merely a preference for a different instruction, which is insufficient. n111 A global objection on unspecified grounds to everything in the jury charge other than what had been proposed by the objecting party is also not sufficiently distinct. n112 Similarly, a party's general reference to cases that might support an objection to a jury instruction is not sufficiently specific to give the district court notice of potential errors in the instruction. n113

[c] Timing of Objection

Rule 51 requires that a party must make an objection only to instructions that the court intends to give or to instructions that are requested but refused by the court. Consequently, the rule does not require a party to make an objection to another party's requested instruction unless and until the court decides to give that instruction. n114 Therefore, whether a particular party makes a timely objection depends on whether the party making the objection has been previously informed by the court of an instruction or action on a request. n115 Thus, an objection is timely only in either of the following situations:

1. If the party has been informed by the court of a proposed instruction or action on a request before the jury is instructed and before final jury arguments, n116 the party makes the objection at the opportunity for objection provided by the court under Rule 51(b)(2). n117

2. If the party has not been informed by the court of a proposed instruction or action on a request before the opportunity for objection provided by the court under Rule 51(b)(2), the party makes the objection promptly after learning that the proposed instruction or request will be, or has been, given or refused. n118

When taken together, these time limits mean that an objection made on the record at the time provided by the court need not be repeated after the jury is instructed. n119 An objection is required after the court has actually instructed the jury only if the court has not informed the objecting party or provided an opportunity to object before actually giving the instruction. n120 However, in any event, objections should be made before the jury begins deliberation. n121

[d] Exceptions to Requirement of Objection

A party is excused from complying with the strict objection requirement of Rule 51 in either of the following two situations:

1. If there has been an intervening change in the controlling law during the pendency of an appeal, the appellate court may review a faulty jury instruction despite a party's failure to object at trial. On direct review, an appellate court must apply the law in effect at the time it renders its decision. n122 Because the purpose of the Rule 51 objection is to alert the trial court to instruction errors, a party is not required to anticipate a change in the law and object to an instruction that was correct when given but was rendered incorrect by a subsequent change in the controlling law. n123 Therefore, any change in the controlling law during the pendency of an appeal excuses strict compliance with the objection requirement, n124 and permits a challenge to the instruction, despite the absence of objection at the trial court level. n125 However, this exception to the objection requirement applies only to intervening decisions that provide for a substantial departure from a previous rule of law, and intervening decisions that merely clarify the law as it existed at trial do not excuse a failure to object at trial. n126

2. A failure to object to a jury instruction on a particular issue precludes review only of jury instructions regarding that issue and does not prevent review of the issue for all purposes. n127 Thus, while unobjected to jury instructions generally become the law of the case, the Supreme Court has held that the failure to object to an instruction does not render the instruction the law of the case for purpose of appellate review of the denial of a directed verdict or judgment notwithstanding the verdict. n128 Consequently, a party's failure to object to an erroneous instruction on a particular issue does not preclude review of unsuccessful motions with respect to that issue for summary judgment, directed verdict, or for judgment as a matter of law, which must be reviewed under the correct legal standard for such motions. n129

[5] Appellate Review of Jury Instruction Rulings

[a] Prior Objection Determines Scope of Review

A party qualifies for the complete scope of appellate review n130 for an asserted error related to jury instructions only if the party makes a timely objection to the asserted error n131 and therefore "preserves" the error. n132

To preserve for appeal an asserted error in a jury instruction that the court has actually given, a party must have made a proper and timely objection to the instruction. n133

To preserve for appeal an asserted error in the court's failure to give an instruction, a party must have completed two steps: n134 the party must have made a proper request for the instruction, n135 and must have made a proper objection to the court's failure to give the instruction, n136 unless the court made a definitive ruling on the record rejecting the request. n137

In the absence of a properly preserved error, appellate review is limited to a determination of whether the trial court has made a plain error. n138

[b] Standard of Review for Preserved Error

[i] Statement of Standard of Review

If a party has by timely objection preserved an error asserted to have been made regarding jury instructions, the party is entitled to appellate review. n139

If the party asserts that the court has committed error by stating incorrect substantive law or misleading the jury in a jury instruction, the claimed error is a question of law that is reviewed de novo by the court of appeals. n140 However, if the party is claiming error in the court's formulation of the instructions or the particular choice of language, the appellate court reviews under the more deferential abuse of discretion standard. n141

If the party asserts that the trial court has erred by failing to give a properly requested instruction, n142 the appellate court will reverse the district court if the district court has abused its discretion. Under this standard, an appellate court will set aside the verdict only if an omitted jury instruction was (1) correct as a matter of substantive law, (2) not substantially covered in the charge as a whole, and (3) integral to an important point in the case. n143

[ii] Application of Standard of Review

When reviewing a jury instruction matter, the court of appeals must apply the law in effect at the time the appellate court renders its ruling, and not the law as it existed at the time of the trial court's decision. n144 An appellate court may not consider a claimed jury instruction error in isolation; it must be analyzed in the context of the entire jury charge, as part of an integrated whole. n145

[c] Limited Standard of Review for Plain Error When Party Has Not Preserved Error

If a party has not preserved a claimed jury instruction error by making a timely objection, and in the case of a refused instruction, a proper request, n146 the party may prevail on appeal only if the appellate court finds that the trial court committed a plain error. n147

Reversal on the grounds of plain error requires four showings: (1) that an error occurred (2) which was clear or obvious and which not only (3) affected the party's substantial rights, but also (4) seriously impaired the fairness, integrity, or public reputation of judicial proceedings. n148 Thus, reversal on the grounds of plain error is limited to the exceptional case when the error has resulted in a miscarriage of justice. n149

For example, the appellate court may find plain error when the error deprived the reviewing court of helpful factfinding; the issue is one of constitutional magnitude; the omitted argument is highly persuasive; the opponent would suffer special prejudice; and most importantly, the issue is of great importance to the public. n150 In civil cases, the plain error standard of review is applied in a stringent manner. n151 Probably the most important factor in applying the plain error standard of review in civil cases is the obviousness of the mistake. The importance of the error is the second major factor. The costs of correcting an error reflect a third factor. n152

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJury InstructionsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 9 Moore's Federal Practice, § 51.10 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Dembowski v. N.J. Transit Rail Operations, Inc., 221 F. Supp. 2d 504, 512 (D.N.J. 2002) ; see Christopher v. Cutter Lab., 53 F.3d 1184, 1194 (11th Cir. 1995) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Christopher v. Cutter Lab., 53 F.3d 1184, 1194 (11th Cir. 1995) ; see Thornton v. First State Bank of Joplin, 4 F.3d 650, 652 (8th Cir. 1993) (one purpose of jury instructions is to inform jury of various permissible ways of resolving issues in case).

(n4)Footnote 3. Humphrey v. Staszak, 148 F.3d 719, 724 (7th Cir. 1998) (jury instructions wholly unrelated to any of issues raised during course of trial are generally improper; therefore, when party never raised any claim of entrapment at any point in proceedings, it was improper issue for jury instruction).

(n5)Footnote 4. Dembowski v. N.J. Transit Rail Operations, Inc., 221 F. Supp. 2d 504, 512 (D.N.J. 2002) .

(n6)Footnote 5. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 51.

(n7)Footnote 6. *See Taita Chem. Co., Ltd. v. Westlake Styrene, 351 F.3d 663, 2003 U.S. App. LEXIS 23671, 11 (5th Cir. 2003) .

(n8)Footnote 7. Play Time, Inc. v. LDDS Metromedia Communications, Inc., 123 F.3d 23, 29 n.6 (1st Cir. 1997) (Rule 51 applies to the jury charge and any special verdict form); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(a).

(n9)Footnote 8. Matei v. Cessna Aircraft Co., 35 F.3d 1142, 1146 (7th Cir. 1994) ; Phav v. Trueblood, Inc., 915 F.2d 764, 769 (1st Cir. 1990) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(b).

(n10)Footnote 9. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51, Committee Note to 2003 Amendments; see Fed. R. Evid. 105; United States v. Mark, 943 F.2d 444, 449 (4th Cir. 1991) .

(n11)Footnote 10. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51, Committee Note to 2003 Amendments.

(n12)Footnote 11. Doe, By & Through G.S. v. Johnson, 52 F.3d 1448, 1458 (7th Cir. 1995) ; see Fed. R. Evid. 103(c).

(n13)Footnote 12. See [b], above.

(n14)Footnote 13. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 51.

(n15)Footnote 14. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(b).

(n16)Footnote 15. Gordon v. Degelmann, 29 F.3d 295, 298 (7th Cir. 1994) .

(n17)Footnote 16. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(c), (d).

(n18)Footnote 17. Elder v. Holloway, 984 F.2d 991, 998 (9th Cir. 1993) ; see Palmer v. Hoffman, 318 U.S. 109, 119, 63 S. Ct. 477, 483, 87 L. Ed. 645, 653 (1943) (Rule 51 requires that party bring into focus precise nature of alleged error).

(n19)Footnote 18. McAdam v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc., 896 F.2d 750, 769 n.29 (3d Cir. 1990) .

(n20)Footnote 19. Highlands Ins. Co. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co., 27 F.3d 1027, 1032 (5th Cir. 1994) , cert. denied, 513 U.S. 1112 (1995) .

(n21)Footnote 20. Glaros v. H. H. Robertson Co., 797 F.2d 1564, 1572 n.10 (Fed. Cir. 1986) , cert. denied, 479 U.S. 1072 (1987) .

(n22)Footnote 21. See Thornton v. First State Bank of Joplin, 4 F.3d 650, 652 (8th Cir. 1993) .

(n23)Footnote 22. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(a).

(n24)Footnote 23. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(b)(1).

(n25)Footnote 24. See Howard v. Antilla, 294 F.3d 244, 251 (1st Cir. 2002) (noting that opening statements, parties' presentation of evidence and questioning of witnesses, closing arguments, and final jury instructions should be predicated on theory of case).

(n26)Footnote 25. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(a)(1).

(n27)Footnote 26. See Howard v. Antilla, 294 F.3d 244, 251 (1st Cir. 2002) .

(n28)Footnote 27. Spiller v. Brady, 169 F.3d 1064, 1066 (7th Cir. 1999) .

(n29)Footnote 28. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51, Committee Note to 2003 Amendments.

(n30)Footnote 29. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(d)(1)(B), (2); see Fite v. Digital Equip. Corp., 232 F.3d 3, 7 (1st Cir. 2000) .

(n31)Footnote 30. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(a)(1).

(n32)Footnote 31. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(a).

(n33)Footnote 32. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(a)(2)(A), Committee Note to 2003 Amendments (if court establishes pretrial deadline for requesting jury instructions, court may be required to take additional requests after trial when actual evidence at trial raises new issues or alters issues from how issues stood before trial).

(n34)Footnote 33. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(a)(2)(B).

(n35)Footnote 34. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51, Committee Note to 2003 Amendments.

(n36)Footnote 35. See Estes v Georgetown Univ. 231 F. Supp. 2d 279, 283 (D.D.C. 2002) .

(n37)Footnote 36. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(a)(1).

(n38)Footnote 37. See, e.g., Greenleaf v. Garlock, Inc., 174 F.3d 352, 365 n.10 (3rd Cir. 2003) .

(n39)Footnote 38. Katch v Speidel, Div. of Textron, Inc., 746 F.2d 1136, 1139 (6th Cir. 1984) ; see Wood v. Spring Hill College, 978 F.2d 1214, 1222 (11th Cir. 1992) (when trial court was orally informed of requested instruction, failure to submit written instruction did not preclude appellate review of refusal to give instruction).

(n40)Footnote 39. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(a)(1).

(n41)Footnote 40. See Duran v. City of Maywood, 221 F.3d 1127, 1130 (9th Cir. 2000) .

(n42)Footnote 41. Fernandez v. Corporacion Insual de Seguros, 79 F.3d 207, 211 (1st Cir. 1996) .

(n43)Footnote 42. Bueno v City of Donna, 714 F.2d 484, 490 (5th Cir. 1983) (even though trial court is not required to correct defective request, if inadequate or incorrect request is sufficient to direct court's attention to a particular legal issue, that request is sufficient to notify court that correct instruction is required).

(n44)Footnote 43. Swinton v. Potomac Corp., 270 F.3d 794, 805 (9th Cir. 2001) .

(n45)Footnote 44. Spiller v. Brady, 169 F.3d 1064, 1066 (7th Cir. 1999) .

(n46)Footnote 45. Carvel Corp. v. Diversified Mgmt. Group, Inc., 930 F.2d 228, 230 (2d Cir. 1991) .

(n47)Footnote 46. BA II Banking Corp., v. UPG, Inc. 985 F.2d 685, 695 (2d Cir. 1993) .

(n48)Footnote 47. See McDowell v. Calderon, 130 F.3d 833, 841 (9th Cir. 1997) .

(n49)Footnote 48. Riverwoods Chappaqua Corp. v. Marine Midland Bank, N.A., 30 F.3d 339, 346 (2d Cir. 1994) .

(n50)Footnote 49. See Jones v. Swanson, 341 F.3d 723, 734 (8th Cir. 2003) ; Stuart Park Assocs. Ltd. Partnership v. Ameritech Pension Trust, 51 F.3d 1319, 1323 (7th Cir. 1995) .

(n51)Footnote 50. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(a)(1).

(n52)Footnote 51. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(a).

(n53)Footnote 52. See Ch. 9, Pleadings and Motions in General.

(n54)Footnote 53. Fed. R. Civ. P. 83(a).

(n55)Footnote 54. Hutchison v. Amateur Elecs. Supply, 840 F. Supp. 612, 616 (E.D. Wis. 1993) , rev'd in part on other grounds, 42 F.3d 1037 (7th Cir. 1994) .

(n56)Footnote 55. Fed. R. Civ. P. 83(b).

(n57)Footnote 56. Christopher v. Cutter Lab., 53 F.3d 1184, 1194 (11th Cir. 1995) .

(n58)Footnote 57. See Thornton v. First State Bank of Joplin, 4 F.3d 650, 652 (8th Cir. 1993) (one purpose of jury instructions is to inform jury of various permissible ways of resolving issues in case).

(n59)Footnote 58. Humphrey v. Staszak, 148 F.3d 719, 724 (7th Cir. 1998) .

(n60)Footnote 59. Cooper Distrib. Co. v. Amana Refrigeration, Inc., 180 F.3d 542, 549 (3d Cir. 1999) .

(n61)Footnote 60. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(a) (court must instruct jury on law); see also [a], above.

(n62)Footnote 61. Rolscreen Co. v. Pella Prods. of St. Louis, Inc., 64 F.3d 1202, 1211 (8th Cir. 1995) (provided that instruction as whole fairly and adequately covers relevant law, court need not give any particular form of instruction).

(n63)Footnote 62. Adams v. Sewell, 946 F.2d 757, 767-768 (11th Cir. 1991) (failure to give requested instruction error only if instruction is correct, not adequately covered by instructions actually given, and concerns a matter so important that failure to give instruction prejudices party's ability to present effective case).

(n64)Footnote 63. Trademark Research Corp. v. Maxwell Online, Inc., 995 F.2d 326, 340 (2d Cir. 1993) .

(n65)Footnote 64. Kansas City Power & Light Co. v. Ford Motor Credit Co., 995 F.2d 1422, 1430 (8th Cir. 1993) (district court need not give instruction contained in form contained in state's approved instruction manual).

(n66)Footnote 65. See Sims v. ANR Freight Sys., 77 F.3d 846, 849 (5th Cir. 1996) ; Kerr-McGee Corp. v. Ma-Ju Marine Servs., Inc. 830 F.2d 1332, 1345 (5th Cir. 1987) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n67)Footnote 67. Rush v. Smith, 56 F.3d 918, 921 (8th Cir. 1995) (because comments from court may be perceived as official sanction, court must be especially careful when commenting to jury).

(n68)Footnote 68. See Mems v. City of St. Paul, Dep't of Fire & Safety Servs., 327 F.3d 771, 782-783 (8th Cir. 2003) .

(n69)Footnote 69. Jones v. Swanson, 341 F.3d 723, 734 (8th Cir. 2003) .

(n70)Footnote 70. Life Plus Int'l v. Brown, 317 F.3d 799, 805 (8th Cir. 2003) .

(n71)Footnote 71. Kudabeck v. Kroger Co., 338 F.3d 856, 863 (8th Cir. 2003) .

(n72)Footnote 72. Barnes v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., 201 F.3d 815, 821-822 (6th Cir. 2000) .

(n73)Footnote 73. Everett v. Carnival Cruise Lines, 912 F.2d 1355, 1358 (11th Cir. 1990) .

(n74)Footnote 74. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(b)(3).

(n75)Footnote 75. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(b)(1); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(a); see also [2], above.

(n76)Footnote 76. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(b)(1).

(n77)Footnote 77. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(b)(2); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(c); see also [4], below.

(n78)Footnote 78. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(b)(3).

(n79)Footnote 79. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(d); see also [4], below.

(n80)Footnote 80. United States v. Massey, 89 F.3d 1433, 1442-1443 (11th Cir. 1996) .

(n81)Footnote 81. *See, e.g., Prieman v. Al/Jon United, Inc., 1994 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 17564, 10-11 (E.D. Pa. 1994) .

(n82)Footnote 82. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(a)(1); see [2], above (requests by parties).

(n83)Footnote 83. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(b)(2); see [4], below.

(n84)Footnote 84. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(b), Committee Note to 2003 Amendments.

(n85)Footnote 85. Industrias Magromer Cueros Y Pieles S.A. v. La. Bayou Furs, 293 F.3d 912, 925 (5th Cir. 2002) .

(n86)Footnote 86. Siddiqi v. Leak, 880 F.2d 904, 910-912 (7th Cir. 1989) .

(n87)Footnote 87. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(a), (c).

(n88)Footnote 88. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(b).

(n89)Footnote 89. Jones v. Southern Pac. R.R., 962 F.2d 447, 451 (5th Cir. 1992) .

(n90)Footnote 90. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(b)(2); see [4], below (requirements for party to object to instruction rulings or proposed instructions by court).

(n91)Footnote 91. Bertrand v. Southern Pacific Co., 282 F.2d 569, 571 (9th Cir. 1960) .

(n92)Footnote 92. Swain v. Boeing Airplane Co., 337 F.2d 940, 942-943 (2d Cir. 1964) .

(n93)Footnote 93. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(d)(2); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(d)(1).

(n94)Footnote 94. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(d)(2).

(n95)Footnote 95. Day v. Toman, 266 F.3d 831, 837 (8th Cir. 2001) ; see [5], below.

(n96)Footnote 96. See [2], above.

(n97)Footnote 97. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(d)(1)(B).

(n98)Footnote 98. Zhang v. American Gem Seafoods, Inc., 339 F.3d 1020, 1030 (9th Cir. 2003) ; see Drohan v. Vaughn, 176 F.3d 17, 21 (1st Cir. 1999) (plain error standard is at its strictest when appellate court is reviewing jury instructions as to which there was no timely objection).

(n99)Footnote 99. Hollowell v. Orleans Reg'l Hosp. LLC, 217 F.3d 379, 389 (5th Cir. 2000) ; Coastal Fuels of Puerto Rico Inc. v. Caribbean Petroleum Corp., 79 F.3d 182, 189 n.4 (1st Cir. 1996) , cert. denied, 519 U.S. 927 (1996) .

(n100)Footnote 100. See [d], below.

(n101)Footnote 101. Heinrich v. Sweet, 308 F.3d 48, 60 (1st Cir. 2002) .

(n102)Footnote 102. Osterneck v. E.T. Barwick Indus., Inc., 825 F.2d 1521, 1532 (11th Cir. 1987) , aff'd on other grounds, 489 U.S. 169 (1989) .

(n103)Footnote 103. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(d)(1).

(n104)Footnote 104. *Garrett v. Hibler, 2003 U.S. App. LEXIS 22416, 11 (10th Cir. 2003) .

(n105)Footnote 105. Reed v. Landstar Ligon, Inc., 314 F.3d 447, 453 (10th Cir. 2002) .

(n106)Footnote 106. Zhang v. American Gem Seafoods, Inc., 339 F.3d 1020, 1030-1031 (9th Cir. 2003) .

(n107)Footnote 107. Voohries-Larson v. Cessna Aircraft Co., 241 F.3d 707, 713-714 (9th Cir. 2001) (objections did not satisfy Rule 51 because, despite repeated opportunities to specify grounds of objection to jury instructions, objections presented in both oral argument and written memoranda related only to sufficiency of evidence and alleged incomplete statement of law).

(n108)Footnote 108. Estate of Keatinge v. Biddle, 316 F.3d 7, 15 (1st Cir. 2002) .

(n109)Footnote 109. Orix Credit Alliance, Inc. v. Taylor Mach. Works, Inc., 125 F.3d 468, 477-478 (7th Cir. 1997) (use of particular words not necessary).

(n110)Footnote 110. Kelly v. Boeing Petroleum Servs., Inc., 61 F.3d 350, 361 (5th Cir. 1995) .

(n111)Footnote 111. United States v. Parsons Corp., 1 F.3d 944, 945 (9th Cir. 1993) (claim of error waived because, even though party specified that it would like different instruction, party did not inform court that failure to adopt party's instruction would constitute error).

(n112)Footnote 112. Dotson v. Scotty's Contr., 86 F.3d 613, 616 (6th Cir. 1996) .

(n113)Footnote 113. Drohan v. Vaughn, 176 F.3d 17, 21 n.1 (1st Cir. 1999) .

(n114)Footnote 114. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(c)(1).

(n115)Footnote 115. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(c)(2).

(n116)Footnote 116. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(b)(1).

(n117)Footnote 117. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(c)(2)(A); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(b)(2).

(n118)Footnote 118. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(c)(2)(B).

(n119)Footnote 119. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(c)(2)(A), (d)(1).

(n120)Footnote 120. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(c)(2)(B), (d)(1).

(n121)Footnote 121. Moba v. Diamond Automation, 325 F.3d 1306, 1314 (Fed. Cir. 2003) ; Greene v. Safeway Stores, Inc., 210 F.3d 1237, 1245 (10th Cir. 2000) ; see Voohries-Larson v. Cessna Aircraft Co., 241 F.3d 707, 713-714 (9th Cir. 2001) (important purpose of Rule 51 objection requirement is to ensure that potential errors in instructions are brought to the trial court's attention before jury begins to deliberate).

(n122)Footnote 122. Hegger v. Green, 646 F.2d 22, 26 (2d Cir. 1981) .

(n123)Footnote 123. Phillips v. Cameron Tool Corp., 950 F.2d 488, 491 (7th Cir. 1991) .

(n124)Footnote 124. Brown v. M&M/Mars, 883 F.2d 505, 512-513 (7th Cir. 1989) (law changed by Supreme Court during appeal permits review).

(n125)Footnote 125. Phillips v. Cameron Tool Corp., 950 F.2d 488, 491 (7th Cir. 1991) .

(n126)Footnote 126. Castrignano v. E. R. Squibb & Sons, Inc., 900 F.2d 455, 460 (1st Cir. 1990) .

(n127)Footnote 127. Air-Sea Forwarders, Inc. v. Air Asia Co., 880 F.2d 176, 182 (9th Cir. 1989) , cert. denied, 493 U.S. 1058 (1990) .

(n128)Footnote 128. City of St. Louis v. Praprotnik, 485 U.S. 112, 120, 108 S. Ct. 915, 99 L. Ed. 2d 107 (1988) .

(n129)Footnote 129. Geldermann, Inc. v. Financial Mgmt. Consultants, Inc., 27 F.3d 307, 312 (7th Cir. 1994) .

(n130)Footnote 130. See [b], below.

(n131)Footnote 131. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(d)(1); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(c).

(n132)Footnote 132. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(d)(2).

(n133)Footnote 133. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(d)(1)(A); see [4] above.

(n134)Footnote 134. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(d)(1)(B).

(n135)Footnote 135. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(a); see also [2], above.

(n136)Footnote 136. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(c); see also [4], above.

(n137)Footnote 137. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(d)(1)(B); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(c), Committee Note to 2003 Amendments (because purpose of objection requirement is to ensure that trial court has sufficiently considered request, court's definitive rejection of request on record makes it unnecessary to make separate objection).

(n138)Footnote 138. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(d)(2).

(n139)Footnote 139. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(d)(1).

(n140)Footnote 140. Min Jin v. Metro. Life Ins. Co., 310 F.3d 84, 91 (2nd Cir. 2002) .

(n141)Footnote 141. Pavon v. Swift Transp. Co., 192 F.3d 902, 907-908 (9th Cir. 1999) .

(n142)Footnote 142. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(d)(1)(B); see also [a], above.

(n143)Footnote 143. Zimmerman v. Direct Fed. Credit Union, 262 F.3d 70, 78-79 (1st Cir. 2001) .

(n144)Footnote 144. Hegger v. Green, 646 F.2d 22, 26 (2d Cir. 1981) (current law must be applied on appeal, unless doing so would cause manifest injustice).

(n145)Footnote 145. Mayo v. Borden, Inc., 784 F.2d 671, 673 (5th Cir. 1986) .

(n146)Footnote 146. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(d)(2); [a], above.

(n147)Footnote 147. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(d)(2).

(n148)Footnote 148. Gomez v. Rivera Rodriguez, 344 F.3d 103, 118-119 (1st Cir. 2003) .

(n149)Footnote 149. Life Plus Int'l v. Brown, 317 F.3d 799, 805 (8th Cir. 2003) .

(n150)Footnote 150. Trull v. Volkswagen of Am., Inc., 320 F.3d 1, 5-6 (1st Cir. 2002) .

(n151)Footnote 151. Trull v. Volkswagen of Am., Inc., 320 F.3d 1, 5-6 (1st Cir. 2002) .

(n152)Footnote 152. Fed. R. Civ. P. 51(d), Committee Note to 2003 Amendments.

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART III. CONDUCT OF JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.69

§ 22.69 Vote Required for Verdictn*

All jurors of the six to 12 members seated by the court must participate in the verdict unless excused from service by the court pursuant to Rule 47(c). Unless the parties otherwise stipulate, (1) the verdict must be unanimous and (2) no verdict may be taken from a jury reduced in size to fewer than six members. n1 This rule is different than at common law, in which a trial jury always consisted of exactly 12 jurors who had to reach a unanimous verdict. n2 In 1991, Rule 48 was amended to reflect the practice prevailing in many districts of seating fewer than 12 jurors in civil actions. n3

With respect to unanimity, the federal courts consistently followed the common-law rule, even if a different rule prevailed in the state in which they were sitting. Rule 48 has not changed the general federal practice in that respect. n4 The current version of Rule 48 does, however, permit the parties to stipulate that a verdict may be rendered by a majority rather than through unanimity. n5 The rule also states that if the jury is reduced to fewer than six members, the parties may stipulate to a verdict rendered by such a jury. In the absence of such a stipulation, a new trial will be required if the jury is reduced to fewer than six members. n6

Unanimity provides greater certainty in the result and reinforces each juror's agreement with the verdict, and therefore it is generally considered that unanimity protects the parties and the jury. While counsel should be careful about stipulating to a non-unanimous verdict, such a stipulation may be helpful in avoiding a mistrial. n7 Prior to the 1991 revision of Rule 48, courts disputed whether a federal jury verdict must be unanimous absent a stipulation by the parties. n8 The current version of the rule makes clear that the verdict must be unanimous unless the parties stipulate to the contrary. n9

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJury DeliberationsCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsVerdictsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 9 Moore's Federal Practice, § 48.02 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 48.

(n3)Footnote 2. Patton v. United States, 281 U.S. 276, 298, 50 S. Ct. 253, 74 L. Ed. 854 (1930) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 48, Advisory Committee Note to 1991 Amendment; see Montiel v. City of Los Angeles, 2 F.3d 335, 338 (9th Cir. 1993) (court rejected argument that 12-member jury was prejudicial since it required larger unanimous verdict than would be case with small jury).

(n5)Footnote 4. Bledsoe v. Garcia, 742 F.2d 1237, 1241 (10th Cir. 1984) (in absence of stipulation under Rule 48, plaintiffs had no basis for requesting a less than unanimous verdict, and it was not error for trial court to instruct jury that unanimous verdict was required).

(n6)Footnote 5. Fox v. United States, 417 F.2d 84, 89 (5th Cir. 1969) .

(n7)Footnote 6. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 48, Advisory Committee Note to 1991 Amendment.

(n8)Footnote 7. See, e.g., Reynolds v. Green, 184 F.3d 589, 594 (6th Cir. 1999) (after stalemate in deliberations, parties agreed and court instructed that six of eight jurors would suffice for verdict).

(n9)Footnote 8. Compare Masino v. Outboard Marine Corp., 652 F.2d 330-332 (3d Cir. 1981) , cert. denied, 454 U.S. 1055 (1981) with Wieser v. Chrysler Motors Corp., 69 F.R.D. 97, 98-101 (E.D.N.Y. 1975) .

(n10)Footnote 9. Fed. R. Civ. P. 48.

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART III. CONDUCT OF JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.70

§ 22.70 Special Verdicts and Written Questionsn*

[1] Comparison of General Verdict with Alternatives to General Verdict

[a] Nature of General Verdict

A general verdict is one that either finds in favor of the defendant or finds in favor of the plaintiff against the defendant and assesses damages in a stated sum. n1 A general verdict has the advantages of certainty and simplicity but has the disadvantage of being either all wrong or all right, because it is an "inseparable unit." n2 Therefore, if a court commits error on any one of several issues, either in the admission of evidence or in the jury instructions given by the court, the verdict may not be upheld on appeal, because the appellate court will not be able to determine if the jury based its general verdict on the erroneous admission or instruction. n3

However, a general verdict does not mandate reversal in all circumstances. The courts have specifically recognized the possibility of applying harmless error analysis when appropriate to avoid the usual course of reversal and new trial. Harmless error applies only when the court is confident that the verdict was not influenced by any error in the trial court. n4

[b] Rules Provide Two Alternatives to General Verdict

Rule 49 provides two practical alternatives to the disadvantages that are inherent in the basic general verdict: n5 the special verdict n6 and the general verdict accompanied by answers to written questions. n7

A special verdict is a verdict submitted to the jury that requires the jurors to provide written answers to specific questions of fact. n8 A special verdict is returned in lieu of a general verdict and contains factual findings on all of the material issues in the case. n9 The trial court then applies the law to those answers and enters judgment accordingly. n10 By removing from the jury the consideration or application of the law, which a general verdict requires through application of the court's instructions, the special verdict avoids those two sources of possible error in the general verdict. n11 For a complete discussion of the special verdict, see [2], below.

The second alternative to a general verdict is provided by Rule 49(b), which allows the jury, after receiving its instructions, to return a general verdict together with answers to written questions. n12 Rule 49(b) essentially combines the two other types of verdicts, the general verdict and the special verdict. If the answers to the written questions do not contradict the general verdict, the trial court enters judgment on the verdict. n13

Special interrogatories are directed to particular issues of fact and the answers should support, rather than take the place of, the general verdict. Thus, the Rule 49(b) verdict has been described as taking a middle course between the simple general verdict and the Rule 49(a) special verdict in that it focuses the jury's attention on the controlling points at issue, and the interrogatory answers provide a check on the propriety of the general verdict. n14 For a complete discussion of the general verdict with written questions, see [3], below.

[c] Alternatives to General Verdict Treat Inconsistent Verdicts Differently

Courts do not always make the distinction between the procedures prescribed by Rule 49(a) and those prescribed by Rule 49(b). n15 The most important distinction between Rule 49(a) and Rule 49(b) is in the effect of inconsistencies in the jury's special verdicts. Rule 49(a) contains no provision for this situation, while Rule 49(b) provides that when the answers to written questions are inconsistent with each other and one or more is likewise inconsistent with the general verdict, judgment may not be entered, but the court must return the jury for further consideration of its answers and verdict or must order a new trial. n16 Thus, under Rule 49(b) the general verdict and the special answers to interrogatories must not conflict, for if they do conflict and the jury cannot resolve the conflict, both are extinguished. On the other hand under Civil rule 49(a), the jury instructions are melded with the juries' answers to questions, which are controlling. n17

[2] Special Verdict n*

[a] Purpose of Special Verdict

Rule 49(a) was promulgated in response to the disadvantages of the general verdict rule n1 and the limitations of the common-law special verdict. The rule was established to provide a procedure to allow the jury to render a verdict based on agreed questions. n2 In essence, the rule established a procedure that allows a district court to make a finding consistent with the judgment if the questions omit a material factual issue.

Furthermore, if the trial court fails to make an express finding, the court must be deemed to have made a finding in accord with the judgment. n3 This improvement over the common-law special verdict has allowed courts much greater flexibility in utilizing the procedure and has revitalized the special verdict since its common-law origins. n4

A special verdict also accomplishes the following three practical purposes:

1. The special verdict was designed to identify the bases on which the jury rendered its verdict. n5 This identification process avoids the need for additional proceedings and appellate uncertainty, n6 and promotes judicial efficiency by reducing the likelihood of new trials. n7 Special verdicts are especially helpful in complicateD cases involving multiple, alternative theories of recovery because they eliminate the uncertainty as to whether the verdict was based wholly on an improper theory requiring a retrial of the case. n8 For example, trial courts have found that special verdicts are particularly suited to patent cases by reducing the number of retrials. n9 Thus, the special verdict reveals the whole case for what it is, both fact and law, for the complete and final acceptance of the correct legal theory by the reviewing court. n10

2. The special verdict helps focus the jury's attention by identifying the issues in complex cases. n11 Special verdicts are helpful to a jury because they can reduce an otherwise complex trial with a mass of subtle issues to its simplest and most important form. The genuine issues are also distilled. n12 This simplification of issues also has the effect of simplifying the court's jury instructions. n13

3. When a verdict contains one or more errors or inconsistencies, the special verdict permits the trial judge to grant a retrial on a limited issue while the rest of the verdict may be saved. n14 For example, in one case it was held that there was no need for a retrial because the district court's submission of a fraud claim to the jury was harmless error because the jury also specifically found by special verdict that negligence was a basis for liability. n15

[b] Trial Court Has Broad Discretion in Use of Special Verdict

The trial judge has sole discretion to implement a special verdict and the manner in which it should be implemented. n16 The broad discretion given to the trial court extends to the nature, form, and scope of the issues n17 and the composition and utilization of special verdict forms. n18

In its discretion, the court may require a jury to return only a special verdict in the form of a special written finding on each issue of fact. n19 The court may do so by: submitting written questions susceptible of a categorical or other brief answer; n20 submitting written forms of the special findings that might properly be made under the pleadings and evidence; n21 or using any other method that the court considers appropriate. n21.1 When using a special verdict, the court must give the instructions and explanations necessary to enable the jury to make its findings on each submitted issue. n21.2

If the court uses a special verdict a party waives the right to a jury trial on any issue of fact raised by the pleadings or evidence but not submitted to the jury unless, before the jury retires, the party demands its submission to the jury. If the party does not demand submission, the court may make a finding on that issue. If the court makes no finding, it is considered to have made a finding consistent with its judgment on the special verdict. n21.3

Questions submitted to the jury must be clear and unambiguous. n22 A court of appeals will reverse a judgment if the trial court enters a judgment on answers to interrogatories which mislead or confuse the jury n23 or which inaccurately frame the issues to be resolved by the jury.

Each question submitted to the jury should be limited to a single issue. n24 However, a single question may combine elements of one claim, provided that the question is fair and does not combine two issues disjunctively. n25 The district court is allowed to "mix and match" types of verdicts, because Rule 49(a) expressly authorizes the court to use such methods of submitting issues as it deems most appropriate. n26

Because the trial court has broad discretion in the use and composition of Rule 49(a) special verdicts, an appellate court's review is limited to whether the form of the interrogatories is an abuse of discretion. n27 For example, it has been held that the trial court abused its discretion by imposing in a special verdict an element of proof not required by law. n28

There are several factors in determining whether a court has abused its discretion with regard to the form of special verdict questions: (1) whether when read as a whole and in conjunction with the general charge the questions adequately presented the contested issues to the jury, (2) whether the submission of the issues to the jury was "fair," and (iii) whether the "ultimate questions of fact" were clearly submitted to the jury. n29 Additionally, once a court has decided to use a Rule 49(a) special verdict, it must submit all material issues raised by the pleadings and evidence, n30 and a failure to submit to the jury special verdict interrogatories on all material issues in the case is an abuse of discretion. n31

[c] Time for Submission of Special Verdict to Jury

A district court may submit special verdict questions to a jury within two time periods. The first is when the jury receives the case for its deliberations; the second is after deliberations but before the jury is discharged. n32 First, Rule 49(a) authorizes the trial court to submit special verdict written questions before the jury's deliberations, at the same time it gives instructions to the jury, so that the jury may make findings on each issue. n33 Answers to these questions must be consistent with each other in order to form the basis of a valid judgment. n34

The second time period in which the trial court may submit special verdict questions occurs after the jury has deliberated but before it is discharged, following the jury's returning inconsistent answers. n35 Rule 49(a) is silent as to the procedure to be followed in the event that the jury makes inconsistent findings. However, it is well established that trial courts are required to attempt to reconcile apparent inconsistencies in the special verdict if at all possible. n36 For the court to refuse to attempt to reconcile could violate the Seventh Amendment right to a jury trial.

When a special verdict presents unresolvable inconsistencies or ambiguities which the judge has been unable to harmonize, the court may consult with the jury for assistance in reconciling the interrogatory answers. Although Rule 49(a) is silent as to whether it is proper to resubmit the questions that have resulted in inconsistent answers for further deliberations by the jury, it has consistently been held proper by the courts, provided there is no danger of coercing the jury by resubmitting the special questions, which would violate the Seventh Amendment.

To avoid giving the jury the impression that the court is making an improper suggestion as to the outcome of a case by resubmitting it to the jury, the trial judge should explain that no inference should be drawn concerning the ultimate decision reached by the jury merely from the resubmission. n37 In the absence of improper influence or coercion, it is proper for the court to allow the jury to reconsider its inconsistent answers. n38

In addition to the court's discretion in resubmitting the special verdict interrogatories to the jury, the court also may submit additional questions to aid the jury in reconciling inconsistencies or ambiguities. These questions are submitted to the jury after the original questions have been answered. n39 Another situation in which the court may submit questions after the jury has deliberated occurs when the jury is deadlocked, because although Rule 49 does not specifically address the submission of questions to a jury after a deadlock, neither does it expressly preclude this practice. n40

[d] Court's Obligation to Reconcile Inconsistent Answers

One of the disadvantages of the submission of special verdict questions is that the jury may provide inconsistent answers. Consequently, it has been held that a trial court must render a judgment that makes the jury's answers consistent if such a construction is possible. n41 A district court has considerable latitude in attempting to reconcile a jury's apparently inconsistent responses to special interrogatories, because a trial judge is in the best position to analyze the jury's intention. Thus, a district court may properly exercise its discretion by adopting a view of the case that makes the jury's answers consistent in light of the surrounding circumstances, including the instructions of the court. n42 Note, however that a court may not reform a jury's verdict in its effort to reconcile inconsistencies. n43

On review of a trial court's attempt to reconcile apparently inconsistent or ambiguous responses to special verdict questions, if the appellate court determines that there is no way to view the case in which the special verdict can be seen as supporting the judgment, the appellate court must reverse and remand for a new trial. This rule is consistent with efficient judicial management, because providing notice to the trial court gives the district judge the opportunity to resubmit questions to the jury before it has been discharged. n44

In attempting to reconcile inconsistent verdicts, the reviewing court must consider the court's instructions as well as the questions themselves. n45 Thus, the appellate court should review the entire record in order to ascertain whether the reconciliation of apparently inconsistent verdicts by the trial court represents a fair and reasonable view of the case. n46

It has been held that parties should be afforded a meaningful opportunity to read the verdict answers to determine if there are any inconsistencies, although the courts of appeals disagree as to the amount of prior notice counsel should be given regarding the special interrogatories and instructions which will be submitted to the jury. Thus, the Sixth Circuit requires only that the trial judge give counsel the substance, and not the exact wording of the questions, n47 while the Second Circuit has determined that the trial court has discretion whether to show the text of the special verdict before submitting it to the jury. n48

[e] Court's Discretion to Supply Omitted Finding

Under Rule 49(a), a court may supply an omitted finding that would complete the jury's verdict. n49 Thus, when a party fails to request that an issue be submitted and if the court fails to make an express finding, Rule 49(a) permits a judgment by implying findings necessary to support it. Furthermore, courts have recognized that partially completed special verdict forms are sufficient, provided that the answered questions support the verdict and the unanswered questions, if answered in favor of the non-prevailing party, would not render the judgment erroneous. n50

If a jury fails to answer all the questions submitted in a special verdict, the verdict may be accepted for those issues that are resolved. n51 The court's legal rulings and the jury's factual findings may be combined to complete the jury's verdict. n52 However, in the absence of any jury verdict, a court may not determine the ultimate liability of a party, because that would violate the party's right to jury trial. n53 When a court does make a finding on a factual issue that has been omitted from the special verdict questions, the trial court's finding is reviewable under the clearly erroneous standard of Rule 52(a). n54

[f] Effect of Party's Failure to Object to Questions

If the court omits any issue of fact raised by the pleadings or by the evidence when the court is required to do so in its submission of questions to the jury, each party waives the party's right to a trial by jury of the issue so omitted unless, before the jury retires, the party demands its submission to the jury. n55 The waiver rule does not apply in situations where the omitted issue was not raised by the pleadings or the evidence. n56 It must also be remembered that waiver provision of Rule 49(a) applies only to questions under a special verdict and is inapplicable to cases in which the court requests only a general verdict. Consequently, if a court omits a particular issue regarding a general verdict, the party does not waive a jury trial regarding that issue. For example, if the court asks the jury if it finds that the defendant constructively discharged the plaintiff without just cause in violation of a particular statute because of the plaintiff's age, that question asks for a general verdict. The parties do not waive jury trial rights to any factual issues on grounds they have failed to ask the court to put a particular question to the jury--the waiver provision under Rule 49(a) does not apply. n56.1

A party's failure to object to the omission of a material issue of fact from a Rule 49(a) verdict before a jury retires constitutes a waiver of jury trial as to that issue. n57 A party must use methods which are sufficient to inform the court of the issues that are missing in the special interrogatories. n58

[3] General Verdict With Answers to Written Questions n*

[a] Purpose of General Verdict Requiring Answers to Written Questions

A general verdict with written questions under Rule 49(b) is a method for submitting particular written questions to a jury concerning selected issues of fact, and to have the jury give its answers with respect to a general verdict. Using this method, the court may submit to the jury forms for a general verdict, together with written questions on one or more issues of fact that the jury must decide. The court must give the instructions and explanations necessary to enable the jury to render a general verdict and answer the questions in writing, and must direct the jury to do both. n1 This verdict combines some aspects of both the general and special verdicts and has been described as a middle ground between the general and the special verdict. n2

In contrast to the basic general verdict, the Rule 49(b) verdict is very helpful in complex cases involving numerous theories of recovery. n3 Judicial economy is served through the use of a general verdict with written questions because the necessity of retrials lessens when the answers to written questions help indicate the jury's analysis. n4

Written questions are also useful to test the jury's verdict by providing a check on the application of the law to the facts. n5 Thus, the use of Rule 49(b) fact questions is strongly preferred as a mechanism to guide a jury and thus increasing the reliability of its verdict and facilitating appellate review. n6

[b] Distinguished from Special Verdict

Appellate courts often have difficulty in identifying whether a verdict represents a Rule 49(a) special verdict or a Rule 49(b) general verdict with answers to written questions. n7 The label given a verdict is not necessarily dispositive and often is inaccurate. n8 The primary distinction is that a Rule 49(a) special verdict is employed where the written questions require the jury to make findings on all issues of material fact and the court applies the law.

On the other hand, a Rule 49(b) submission utilizes questions which may not cover all of the issues presented in a case but may, instead, focus on one or two. Thus, in one case the court held that the written questions on only one special issue in the case did not constitute a special verdict; rather it was a Rule 49(b) verdict. n9

Two other indicators help to distinguish a Rule 49(b) from a Rule 49(a) verdict form. With a Rule 49(b) submission, the jury will also invariably be instructed on the law. n10 The jury is not necessary instructed under Rule 49(a) special verdicts, where the jury's role is limited to fact-finding n11 and the court applies the law. n12

Furthermore, a Rule 49(b) submission will always be accompanied by a general verdict. n13 If a party is uncertain whether a case is being submitted under Rule 49(a) or (b), the party should inquire of the court because of the different waiver of objections rules for the two types of verdicts. n14

[c] Court's Discretion on Use of General Verdict with Written Questions

The decision whether or not to submit written questions in connection with a general verdict is within the discretion of the trial court. n15 Furthermore, the form of the questions are also within the discretion of the court, n16 including determinations as to the number and wording of the questions. n17 Such decisions will not be overturned absent an abuse of discretion. n18

A court should make the decision to use written questions with a general verdict, if at all, before the case is submitted to the jury. Counsel may request the submission of questions, which the court in its discretion may allow or reject. However, the court should notify the attorneys that Rule 49(b) will be used and should give them an opportunity to review the questions. n19 If the jury sends back inconsistent answers to questions that are submitted, the judge may submit additional questions to the jury to clarify issues. n20

Additional written questions may not be submitted to a jury after it has reached a clear and unambiguous verdict. To do so invites inconsistency, as the jury may give different answers to post-verdict questions than it did originally; post-verdict questions may also give the jury an impression that the jury's verdict is unjustified. n21

[d] Failure to Object to Written Questions

If a party wants to object to the form or content of written questions that accompany a general verdict, the objection must be made before the jury is discharged. n22 Otherwise, the objections may be considered waived on appeal. n22.1

One case offers a good example of the danger involved in failing to make timely objections to written questions. The plaintiff in the case initially claimed that the district court had submitted an improper verdict form which conformed to neither Rule 49(a) nor 49(b). The district court overruled plaintiff's objection. After closing argument, the court afforded plaintiff another opportunity to object to the form of the verdict; plaintiff declined to do so. Judgment was entered for defendant and plaintiff appealed. The appellate court dismissed the appeal, holding that plaintiff couldn't raise an objection to the form of the verdict or to the overemphasis of a particular issue for the first time on appeal, and that the plaintiff should, therefore, have inquired what type of verdict form was being submitted to the jury. n23

[e] Effect of Inconsistencies Among Answers to Written Questions

When the general verdict and all of the answers are consistent, the court must approve for entry under Rule 58 an appropriate judgment on the verdict and answers. n24 However, when the answers are inconsistent with each other and one or more is also inconsistent with the general verdict, the court must not enter judgment; rather, the court must direct the jury to further consider its answers and verdict, or must order a new trial. n25

The circuits are not uniform as to the effect of a failure to object to inconsistencies, but most of the circuit courts that have considered the issue have held there is a waiver of objections not timely made. It is important to note that in nearly all of the cases where waiver has been invoked, the trial court had given counsel an opportunity to object to the jury's verdict before the jury was discharged and counsel raised no objection until appeal. n26 The waiver doctrine promotes the fair and expeditious correction of error while avoiding the need to present evidence to a new jury. n27 In addition, waiver promotes court efficiency in the management of its caseload. n28

A minority of circuits have taken a different position to the inconsistency objection issue. For example, the Ninth Circuit has taken the opposite position in holding that the failure to object to an inconsistency in answers to questions does not result in a waiver of the argument that the court erred in entering judgment on the general verdict. n29 As a result, a party may challenge the consistency of a verdict for the first time on a post-trial motion. n30

[f] Effect of Inconsistencies Between Answers to Written Questions and General Verdict

When a general verdict and the answers to written questions are consistent, the court must approve for entry under Rule 58 an appropriate judgment on the verdict and answers. n31 When the answers are consistent with each other but one or more is inconsistent with the general verdict, the court must make one of three choices; it may: (1) approve for entry under Rule 58 an appropriate judgment according to the answers, notwithstanding the general verdict; n32 (2) direct the jury to further consider its answers and verdict; n33 or (3) order a new trial. n34

1. The first option a court has when presented with inconsistent general verdict and answers to written questions is to enter judgment according to the answers notwithstanding the general verdict. n34.1 The court has a duty to reconcile and harmonize the jury's answers to written questions to support the judgment, if that is possible. n35 The test in reconciling inconsistencies is whether the answers represent a logical and probable decision on the relevant issues as submitted. n36

2. The second option for a court is to return the jury for further consideration of its answers and verdict. n36.1 Under this option, the trial court has the power to permit a jury to correct mistakes in the verdict before it is discharged. n37 To have the jury correct its mistakes, the court may resubmit the special written questions that resulted in inconsistent answers, or may submit supplemental written questions to the jury that are designed to correct the mistakes. n38 A party who wants to challenge an inconsistency must always make a formal objection to the inconsistency, because the party's right to a new trial is waived if no objection to an alleged inconsistency or motion for resubmission of the verdict is made before the jury is discharged. n39

3. The third and final option for the court is to order a new trial. n39.1 Trial courts have broad discretion in considering whether to grant a new trial. n40 The grant of a new trial may be in effect a refusal to accept a jury's inconsistent answers to written questions. n41 Thus, vacating a verdict and ordering a new trial does not violate a party's Seventh Amendment rights when the verdict is confused and impossible to understand. n42 However, the trial court must exhaust its efforts to harmonize the answers and the verdict before ordering a new trial. n43

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsVerdictsSpecial Verdicts

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 9 Moore's Federal Practice, § 49.02 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Porter v. Eckert, 465 F.2d 1307, 1309 (5th Cir. 1972) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Sunderland, Verdicts, General and Special, 29 Yale L.J. 253, 259 (1920).

(n4)Footnote 3. Sunkist Growers, Inc. v. Winckler & Smith Citrus Prods. Co., 370 U.S. 19, 29-30, 82 S. Ct. 1130, 8 L. Ed. 2d 305 (1962) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Bruneau v. South Kortright Cent. Sch. Dist., 163 F.3d 749, 759-760 (1st Cir. 1998) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Hay v. Irving, 893 F.2d 796, 799 (5th Cir. 1990) (general verdict must ordinarily be reversed when one or more claims was improperly submitted to jury, because it is not possible to tell whether verdict was based on the erroneously submitted claim); see [a], above.

(n7)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(a); see Guidry v. Kem Mfg. Co., 598 F.2d 402, 405 (5th Cir. 1979) , cert. denied, 445 U.S. 929 (1980) (special verdict permitted by Rule 49(a) is splendid device for focusing juror's attention on disputed facts).

(n8)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(b).

(n9)Footnote 8. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(a).

(n10)Footnote 9. Quaker City Gear Works, Inc. v. Skil Corp., 747 F.2d 1446, 1453 (Fed. Cir. 1984) , cert. denied, 471 U.S. 1136 (1985) .

(n11)Footnote 10. Lattimore v. Polaroid Corp., 99 F.3d 456, 468 (1st Cir. 1996) .

(n12)Footnote 11. Portage II v. Bryant Petroleum Corp., 899 F.2d 1514, 1520 (6th Cir. 1990) (special verdict avoids errors stemming from consideration of questions of law and application of law to facts).

(n13)Footnote 12. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(b).

(n14)Footnote 13. Lavoie v. Pacific Press & Shear Co., 975 F.2d 48, 53 (2d Cir. 1992) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n15)Footnote 14. Allen Organ Co. v. Kimball Int'l, Inc., 839 F.2d 1556, 1561-1562 (Fed. Cir. 1988) , cert. denied, 488 U.S. 850 (1988) .

(n16)Footnote 15. Commercial Contractors, Inc. v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co., 524 F.2d 944, 956 n. 2 (5th Cir. 1975) (concurring opinion, noting that distinction should be made).

(n17)Footnote 16. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(b).

(n18)Footnote 17. Commercial Contractors, Inc. v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co., 524 F.2d 944, 956 n.2 (5th Cir. 1975) (concurring opinion).

(n19)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 9 Moore's Federal Practice, § 49.10 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n20)Footnote 1. See [1], above.

(n21)Footnote 2. Anderson v. Cryovac, Inc., 862 F.2d 910, 915 (1st Cir. 1988) (unlike common law, Rule 49 does not require jury determinations on every material issue in case).

(n22)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(a).

(n23)Footnote 4. See Watkins v. Fibreboard Corp., 994 F.2d 253, 258 (5th Cir. 1993) .

(n24)Footnote 5. Stewart & Stevenson Servs., Inc. v. Pickard, 749 F.2d 635, 644-645 (11th Cir. 1984) (despite court's error in submitting fraud claim to jury, fact that jury also returned special verdicts as to claims of negligence and gross negligence avoided need for retrial).

(n25)Footnote 6. Ware v. Reed, 709 F.2d 345, 355 (5th Cir. 1983) (appellate court aided by distillation of issues).

(n26)Footnote 7. Portage II v. Bryant Petroleum Corp., 899 F.2d 1514, 1520 (6th Cir. 1990) (with special verdict court can easily determine where the jury erred, and the impact of jury's answer on ultimate decision).

(n27)Footnote 8. Mueller v. Hubbard Milling Co., 573 F.2d 1029, 1038-1039 (8th Cir. 1978) , cert. denied, 439 U.S. 865 (1978) (citing Moore's Federal Practice); Workman v. Frito-Lay, Inc., 165 F.3d 460, 465 (6th Cir. 1999) (court noted that special interrogatories probably could shed light on how jury reached its verdict as it made its way through Americans with Disabilities Act law, for instance, which prong of "disability" applied, and thereby could have aided district court and appellate court in reviewing verdict).

(n28)Footnote 9. American Hoist & Derrick Co. v. Sowa & Sons, Inc., 725 F.2d 1350, 1361 (Fed Cir.) , cert. denied, 469 U.S. 821 (1984) (especially in patent cases, use of special verdicts frees court from having to survey every possible basis for jury's decision).

(n29)Footnote 10. Commercial Contractors, Inc. v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co., 524 F.2d 944, 956-957 (5th Cir. 1975) (concurring opinion).

(n30)Footnote 11. Workman v. Frito-lay, Inc., 165 F.3d 460, 465 (6th Cir. 1999) (court noted that complicated nature of Americans with Disabilities Act claims makes special interrogatories worth consideration by district courts, because special interrogatories probably could shed light on how jury reached its verdict as it made its way through ADA law, for instance, which prong of "disability" applied).

(n31)Footnote 12. Ware v. Reed, 709 F.2d 345, 355 (5th Cir. 1983) .

(n32)Footnote 13. Structural Rubber Prods., Co. v. Park Rubber, Co., 749 F.2d 707, 723-724 (Fed. Cir. 1984) .

(n33)Footnote 14. Mendenhall v. Cedarapids, 5 F.3d 1557, 1563 (Fed. Cir. 1993) , cert. denied, 511 U.S. 1031 (1993) (one advantage of use of separate verdicts is that some may be accepted for those issues that are resolved according to evidence and law, and others need not be relied on or may even be rejected outright).

(n34)Footnote 15. See Stewart & Stevenson Servs., Inc. v. Pickard, 749 F.2d 635, 644-645 (11th Cir. 1984) .

(n35)Footnote 16. Bills v. Aseltine, 52 F.3d 596, 605 (6th Cir.) , cert. denied, 516 U.S. 865 (1995) (court has discretion whether to use special or general verdict, and also has discretion to determine content and form of any interrogatories it chooses to submit); Garwood v. International Paper Co., 666 F.2d 217, 222 (5th Cir. 1982) (citing Moore's Federal Practice for proposition that court did not abuse discretion in denying of use of special verdict, even though requested by both parties).

(n36)Footnote 17. Stewart & Stevenson Servs., Inc. v. Pickard, 749 F.2d 635, 643 (11th Cir. 1984) (although trial court has discretion over nature and scope of issue, court must submit all material issues raised by pleadings and evidence).

(n37)Footnote 18. Barton's Disposal Servs., Inc. v. Tiger Corp., 886 F.2d 1430, 1434 (5th Cir. 1989) (court afforded broad latitude in composition and structure of special interrogatories used in antitrust action).

(n38)Footnote 19. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(a)(1).

(n39)Footnote 20. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(a)(1)(A).

(n40)Footnote 21. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(a)(1)(B).

(n41)Footnote 21.1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(a)(1)(C).

(n42)Footnote 21.2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(a)(2).

(n43)Footnote 21.3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(a)(3).

(n44)Footnote 22. Menne v. Celotex Corp., 861 F.2d 1453, 1455 (10th Cir. 1988) (new trial required when special interrogatories and instructions were ambiguous regarding which side bore burden of proof as to causation).

(n45)Footnote 23. Petes v. Hayes, 664 F.2d 523, 525 (5th Cir. 1981) .

(n46)Footnote 24. Dobbs v. Gulf Oil Co., 759 F.2d 1213, 1216 (5th Cir. 1985) .

(n47)Footnote 25. United States v. Pforzheimer, 826 F.2d 200, 204 (2d Cir. 1987) .

(n48)Footnote 26. Vieau v. Japax, Inc., 823 F.2d 1510, 1514 (Fed. Cir. 1987) (no abuse of discretion to implement general verdict questions to conform to multiple claims and devices at issue in patent case).

(n49)Footnote 27. Cutlass Productions, Inc. v. Bregman, 682 F.2d 323, 325 (2d Cir. 1982) (abuse of discretion for trial court to withdraw valid theory of defense on which sufficient evidence was produced); Ortiz v. New York City Hous. Auth., 22 F. Supp. 2d 15, 26 (E.D.N.Y. 1998) (because district courts have broad discretion under Rule 49(a) to formulate special interrogatories, court did not abuse its discretion in failing to provide jury with separate special interrogatory on issue that was adequately covered in jury instructions).

(n50)Footnote 28. Deadwyler v. Volkswagen of Am., Inc., 884 F.2d 779, 782 (4th Cir. 1989) , cert. denied, 493 U.S. 1078 (1990) .

(n51)Footnote 29. Dreiling v. General Electric Co., 511 F.2d 768, 774 (5th Cir. 1975) (finding no abuse of discretion in trial court's withholding certain questions from jury in products liability action).

(n52)Footnote 30. Martinez v. Union P.R. Co., 714 F.2d 1028, 1033 (10th Cir. 1983) (when trial court failed to submit to jury special interrogatory concerning driver of car at time of accident, a material issue in personal injury action against railroad, trial court abused its discretion).

(n53)Footnote 31. Nance v. Gulf Oil Corp., 817 F.2d 1176, 1180-1181 (5th Cir. 1987) (refusal to submit special interrogatory concerning a nonparty's comparative negligence constituted abuse of discretion, because it was material issue).

(n54)Footnote 32. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(a).

(n55)Footnote 33. Karl v. Burlington N. R. Co., 880 F.2d 68, 72 (8th Cir. 1989) .

(n56)Footnote 34. Auwood v. Harry Brandt Booking Office, Inc., 850 F.2d 884, 890 (2d Cir. 1988) (because jury's answers are basis for ultimate resolution of case, answers must be consistent).

(n57)Footnote 35. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(a).

(n58)Footnote 36. Gallick v. B & O R.R., 372 U.S. 108, 119, 83 S. Ct. 659, 9 L. Ed. 2d 618 (1963) (duty of courts to attempt to harmonize answers to special interrogatories if it is possible under fair reading of them).

(n59)Footnote 37. Nance v. Gulf Oil Corp., 817 F.2d 1176, 1179 (5th Cir. 1987) (resubmission of verdict form was not coercive where accompanied by an explanation that judge was not suggesting that particular verdict should be reached).

(n60)Footnote 38. Santiago-Negron v. Castro-Davila, 865 F.2d 431, 444 (1st Cir. 1989) .

(n61)Footnote 39. Skillin v. Kimball, 643 F.2d 19, 19-20 (1st Cir. 1981) .

(n62)Footnote 40. Thorpe v. Mutual of Omaha Ins. Co., 984 F.2d 541, 544-545 (1st Cir. 1993) (judgment as matter of law followed jury's answers to questions posed to it by court after being notified of jury deadlock).

(n63)Footnote 41. Loughman v. Consol-Pennsylvania Coal Co., 6 F.3d 88, 104 (3d Cir. 1993) (district court must render judgment that makes jury's answers consistent if such construction is possible).

(n64)Footnote 42. United States v. $9,041,598.68, 163 F.3d 238, 249 (5th Cir. 1998) .

(n65)Footnote 43. Gaia Techs. Inc. v. Recycled Prods. Corp., 175 F.3d 365, 371 (5th Cir. 1999) (district court not permitted to reform jury's decision on issues submitted to jury on special verdict, and thus could not hold individual defendants liable on state law claims of tortious interference with prospective contractual relations and misappropriation of trade secrets, when jury had expressly found that plaintiff failed to prove any elements of those claims as to the individual defendants).

(n66)Footnote 44. Riley v. K Mart Corp., 864 F.2d 1049, 1054-1055 (3d Cir. 1988) .

(n67)Footnote 45. Putnam Resources v. Pateman, 958 F.2d 448, 455 (1st Cir. 1992) .

(n68)Footnote 46. McGuire v. Russell Miller, Inc., 1 F.3d 1306, 1311-1312 (2d Cir. 1993) (when considering district court's reconciliation of inconsistent verdicts, appellate court must review record completely).

(n69)Footnote 47. Sakamoto v. N.A.B. Trucking Co., 717 F.2d 1000, 1006 (6th Cir. 1983) .

(n70)Footnote 48. Cutlass Prods., Inc. v. Bregman, 682 F.2d 323, 330 (2d Cir. 1982) (while holding that trial court abused its discretion and prejudiced defendants by not supplying special interrogatories to counsel prior to summation, appellate court noted that decision to provide special interrogatories before summation is generally "within a district court's broad discretion").

(n71)Footnote 49. Watkins v. Fibreboard Corp., 994 F.2d 253, 257-258 (5th Cir. 1993) (causation found by court in accordance with special verdict even though omitted in questions submitted to jury; ability of a court to fill in gap consistent with jury's findings is essential to viability of modern special verdict).

(n72)Footnote 50. Bristol Steel & Iron Works v. Bethlehem Steel Corp., 41 F.3d 182, 190 (4th Cir. 1994) .

(n73)Footnote 51. Quaker City Gear Works Inc. v. Skil Corp., 747 F.2d 1446, 1453 (Fed. Cir. 1984) .

(n74)Footnote 52. Simms v. Village of Albion, 115 F.3d 1098, 1105-1106 (2d Cir. 1997) (jury's failure to answer one interrogatory was inconsequential based on its answers to five other interrogatories and judge's prior legal rulings on summary judgment motion).

(n75)Footnote 53. Kinnel v. Mid-Atlantic Mausoleums, Inc., 850 F.2d 958, 965 (3d Cir. 1988) (new trial ordered where interrogatories omitted reference to individual defendant, which effectively deprived defendant of jury trial).

(n76)Footnote 54. Taherzadeh v. Clements, 781 F.2d 1093, 1100 (5th Cir. 1986) (trial court's findings that defendants were not liable for conversion is reviewable under clearly erroneous standard).

(n77)Footnote 55. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(a)(3).

(n78)Footnote 56. Union Planters Nat'l Bank v. Commercial Credit Business Loans, Inc., 651 F.2d 1174, 1188 (6th Cir.) , cert. denied, 454 U.S. 1124 (1981) (because issue of common-law fraud was not raised by pleadings or evidence, it could not be "omitted" from special verdict).

(n79)Footnote 56.1. Ramos v. Davis & Geck, Inc., 224 F.3d 30, 32-33 (1st Cir. 2000) .

(n80)Footnote 57. Matei v. Cessna Aircraft Co., 35 F.3d 1142, 1144-1146 (7th Cir. 1994) (substantive objections to interrogatories were waived where not raised in trial court); Bradway v. Gonzales, 26 F.3d 313, 316-318 (2d Cir. 1994) (general objection to fact that interrogatories were to be submitted was insufficient to preserve substantive objections to interrogatories, and objections deemed waived).

(n81)Footnote 58. Stewart & Stevenson Servs., Inc. v. Pickard, 749 F.2d 635, 641 (11th Cir. 1984) (when plaintiff's proposed special verdict questions were rejected, it was sufficient to preserve objection for appeal that plaintiff objected to joint special verdict form as lacking elements of all causes of action).

(n82)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 9 Moore's Federal Practice, § 49.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n83)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(b)(1).

(n84)Footnote 2. Portage II v. Bryant Petroleum Corp., 899 F.2d 1514, 1520 (6th Cir. 1990) ; Allen Organ Co. v. Kimball Int'l, Inc., 839 F.2d 1556, 1561-1562 (Fed. Cir.) , cert. denied, 488 U.S. 850 (1988) .

(n85)Footnote 3. Royal Typewriter Co. v. Xerographic Supplies Corp., 719 F.2d 1092, 1098 (11th Cir. 1983) (when general verdict is utilized in multiple issue action, appellee bears burden of supporting each theory of liability submitted to jury).

(n86)Footnote 4. Austin-Westshore Constr. Co., Inc. v. Federated Dep't Stores, Inc., 934 F.2d 1217, 1220 (11th Cir. 1991) (special interrogatories allow court and parties insight into jury's reasoning in reaching its verdict).

(n87)Footnote 5. Allen Organ Co. v. Kimball Int., Inc., 839 F.2d 1556, 1562 (Fed. Cir.) , cert. denied, 488 U.S. 850 (1988) .

(n88)Footnote 6. Railroad Dynamics, Inc. v. A. Stucki Co., 727 F.2d 1506, 1515-1516 (Fed. Cir.) , cert. denied, 469 U.S. 871 (1984) .

(n89)Footnote 7. Bills v. Aseltine, 52 F.3d 596, 604-605 (6th Cir.) , cert. denied, 516 U.S. 865 (1995) (interrogatory answers constituted special interrogatory answers under Rule 49(b) rather than special verdicts under Rule 49(a).

(n90)Footnote 8. Manes v. Metro N.C. Railroad, 801 F. Supp. 954, 957 (D. Conn. 1992) .

(n91)Footnote 9. Portage II v. Bryant Petroleum Corp., 899 F.2d 1514, 1520-1522 (6th Cir. 1990) .

(n92)Footnote 10. Lavoie v. Pacific Press, 975 F.2d 48, 53 (2d Cir. 1992) (distinction between these two types of verdict forms is that under Rule 49(a), jury answers primarily factual questions for benefit of trial court; which then applies law to those answers; under Rule 49(b), jury is fully instructed, and after answering interrogatories, renders general verdict and trial court enters judgment on jury's verdict.").

(n93)Footnote 11. Portage II v. Bryant Petroleum Corp., 899 F.2d 1514, 1521 (6th Cir. 1990) .

(n94)Footnote 12. Bills v. Aseltine, 52 F.3d 596, 605 (6th Cir.) , cert. denied, 516 U.S. 865 (1995) (when special verdicts are involved, jury's sole function is to determine facts; therefore, neither instruction on law nor summary concerning their role in relation to law was necessary).

(n95)Footnote 13. Lavoie v. Pacific Press, 975 F.2d 48, 53 (2d Cir. 1992) (Rule 49 distinguished by use of general verdict as well as special questions to jury).

(n96)Footnote 14. See [4] below.

(n97)Footnote 15. Moody v. FMC Corp., 995 F.2d 63, 66 (5th Cir. 1993) .

(n98)Footnote 16. Bills v. Aseltine, 52 F.3d 596, 605 (6th Cir.) , cert. denied, 516 U.S. 865 (1995) (content and form of any interrogatories trial court chooses to submit is within discretion of trial court).

(n99)Footnote 17. Aetna Cas. Sur. Co. v. P & B Autobody, 43 F.3d 1546, 1555 (lst Cir. 1994) (number); Piper v. Goodwin, 20 F.3d 216, 221 (6th Cir. 1994) (although wording of interrogatory could have been better, submission of interrogatory upheld when jury was not misled).

(n100)Footnote 18. Lummus Indus., Inc. v. D.M. & E. Corp., 862 F.2d 267, 272 (Fed. Cir. 1988) .

(n101)Footnote 19. Portage II v. Bryant Petroleum Corp., 899 F.2d 1514, 1520 (6th Cir. 1990) (counsel should be notified in advance so that they may determine all issues that must be submitted, prepare requested charges and plan effective closing argument).

(n102)Footnote 20. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(b)(2)(B).

(n103)Footnote 21. Jacobs Mfg. Co. v. Sam Brown Co., 19 F.3d 1259, 1267 (8th Cir. 1994) , cert. denied, 513 U.S. 989 (1994) .

(n104)Footnote 22. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(b)(1).

(n105)Footnote 22.1. Stancill v. McKenzie Tank Lines, Inc., 497 F.2d 529, 535 (5th Cir. 1974) .

(n106)Footnote 23. Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints v. United States Gypsum Co., 882 F.2d 335, 338 (8th Cir. 1989) (defendant waived right to object to verdict form by failing to raise objection before trial court).

(n107)Footnote 24. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(b)(2).

(n108)Footnote 25. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(b)(4).

(n109)Footnote 26. White v. Celotex Corp., 878 F.2d 144, 146 (4th Cir.) , cert. denied, 493 U.S. 964 (1989) ; Diamond Shamrock Corp. v. Zinke & Trumbo, Ltd., 791 F.2d 1416, 1422-1423 (10th Cir.) , cert. denied, 479 U.S. 1007 (1986) ; Fernandez v. Chardon, 681 F.2d 42, 58 (1st Cir. 1982) , aff'd on other grounds, 462 U.S. 650 (1983) .

(n110)Footnote 27. White v. Celotex Corp., 878 F.2d 144, 146 (4th Cir.) , cert. denied, 493 U.S. 964 (1989) (purpose of rule is to promote efficiency by allowing original jury to reconcile inconsistencies without need for another presentation of evidence before new trier of fact).

(n111)Footnote 28. Strauss v. Stratojac Corp., 810 F.2d 679, 683 (7th Cir. 1987) .

(n112)Footnote 29. Grosvenor Properties, Ltd. v. Southmark Corp., 896 F.2d 1149, 1151 (9th Cir. 1990) .

(n113)Footnote 30. Los Angeles Nut House v. Holiday Hardware Corp., 825 F.2d 1351, 1354 (9th Cir. 1987) .

(n114)Footnote 31. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(b)(2).

(n115)Footnote 32. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(b)(3)(A).

(n116)Footnote 33. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(b)(3)(B).

(n117)Footnote 34. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(b)(3)(C).

(n118)Footnote 34.1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(b)(3)(A).

(n119)Footnote 35. Cool Light Co. v. GTE Prods. Corp., 973 F.2d 31, 34 (1st Cir. 1992) , cert. denied, 507 U.S. 973 (1993) .

(n120)Footnote 36. White v. Grinfas, 809 F.2d 1157, 1161 (5th Cir. 1987)) (affirming district court's reconciliation of general verdict and special interrogatory answers in action for breach of implied warranty and fraud.

(n121)Footnote 36.1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(b)(3)(B).

(n122)Footnote 37. Rowe Int., Inc. v. J-B Enterprises, Inc., 647 F.2d 830, 835 (8th Cir. 1981) (district court did not err in sending jury back for further deliberations to correct inconsistency in its verdict).

(n123)Footnote 38. McLaughlin v. Fellows Gear Shaper Co., 786 F.2d 592, 596 (3d Cir. 1986) .

(n124)Footnote 39. Brode v. Cohn, 966 F.2d 1237, 1239 (8th Cir. 1992) (court suggested that plaintiff may have waived right to new trial by failing either to object to inconsistencies between verdicts and interrogatories or to move for resubmission of inconsistent verdict).

(n125)Footnote 39.1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(b)(3)(C).

(n126)Footnote 40. MacQuarrie v. Howard Johnson Co., 877 F.2d 126, 131 (1st Cir. 1989) .

(n127)Footnote 41. Atlantic Tubing & Rubber Co. v. International Engraving Co., 528 F.2d 1272, 1276 (1st Cir. 1976) .

(n128)Footnote 42. Cool Light Co. v. GTE Prods. Corp., 973 F.2d 31, 35-36 (1st Cir. 1992) .

(n129)Footnote 43. Harvey v. General Motors Corp., 873 F.2d 1343, 1348 (10th Cir. 1989) (motion for new trial properly denied when court could have reconciled verdict of no damages with answers to interrogatories that found defective design in vehicle and defendant's negligence).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 22 Trial by Jury
PART III. CONDUCT OF JURY TRIAL

3-22 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 22.71

§ 22.71 Judgment As Matter of Lawn*

[1] Nature of Judgment as Matter of Law

[a] Purpose and Use of Judgment as Matter of Law

A "judgment as a matter of law" is a judgment that a trial court has discretion to enter in favor of either party to a civil jury trial when the opposition party has failed to make a sufficient showing of an essential element of a case to which the opposition party has the burden of proof. Rule 50 specifies the procedural requirements for challenging the sufficiency of the evidence in a jury trial, and establishes two stages for such challenges: n1 prior to submission of the case to the jury, and after the verdict and entry of judgment. Rule 50(a) allows a party to challenge the sufficiency of the evidence prior to submission of the case to the jury and authorizes a district court to grant such motions at the court's discretion. n2 If the Rule 50(a) motion is not granted, and the jury subsequently decides against that party, the party may renew its motion for a judgment as a matter of law pursuant to Rule 50(b). n2.1 The Rule 50(a) motion is referred to as a preverdict motion for judgment as a matter of law, and the Rule 50(b) motion is referred to as postverdict motion for judgment as a matter of law. n2.2 Under former terminology, these were a motion for directed verdict and a motion for judgment notwithstanding the verdict (JNOV), respectively. n2.3 By its terms, Rule 50 only applies to jury trials, and therefore does not apply to cases tried to the court or cases involving merely advisory juries. n3 A judgment as a matter of law may be rendered for or against any party, regardless of which party submits the motion. n4 Furthermore, a court may grant a judgment as a matter of law on its own initiative. n5

[b] Judgment as Matter of Law Compared With Judgment on Partial Findings

A motion for a judgment as a matter of law differs from a motion for a judgment on partial findings, although the purpose of both motions is to challenge the merits of the opponent's case. First, while a motion for judgment as a matter of law applies only in cases involving a jury, a motion for judgment on partial findings is applicable only in cases which do not involve juries. n6 The second major difference is that, unlike a motion for a judgment as a matter of law, a judge reviewing a motion for a judgment on partial findings may assess the credibility of witnesses and weigh the merits of the evidence presented at trial. n7

[c] Judgment as Matter of Law Compared With Grant of New Trial

A motion for judgment as a matter of law differs from a motion for a new trial. The primary distinction between the two motions is that if a motion for a judgment as a matter of law is granted, a decision is made in favor of one party and the action ceases, while the granting of a motion for a new trial merely discards the decision in the previous trial and restarts the trial process. n7.1

There are other distinctions. A court assessing a motion for a new trial may weigh the evidence presented at trial and judge the credibility of trial witnesses, and need not view it in the light most favorable to the verdict winner. n8 In contrast, a judge ruling on a motion for judgment as a matter of law may not weigh the evidence presented at trial or judge the credibility of trial witnesses. n9 Furthermore, because its consequences are more severe, the standard for granting judgment as a matter of law is more stringent than the applicable standard for granting a motion for new trial. n9.1

Judgment as a matter of law may be granted only when no reasonable jury could find for the nonmovant, but a motion for new trial may be granted as long as the judge has the firm conviction that the verdict is incorrect. n10 Furthermore, courts assessing new trial motions need not view the evidence in the light most favorable to the verdict winner or afford that party the benefit of all reasonable inferences that the jury might have drawn in its favor from the evidence, as is required for motions for judgment as a matter of law. n11 Consequently, when a party moves jointly under Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 50(b) and 59(a), the court must rule separately on each motion. n12

[d] Judgment as Matter of Law Compared With Summary Judgment

The standard for assessing a motion for judgment as a matter of law is the same as the standard for a motion for summary judgment: n12.1 whether the evidence adduced at trial could lead a reasonable fact-finder to only one conclusion. n13 However, while a motion for summary judgment is a mechanism for a party to obtain a pre-trial dismissal of an action, a motion for judgment as a matter of law is a mechanism for the court to enter a judgment after evidence has been presented, when it is apparent that either party is unable to carry a burden of proof required of that party. n14 Thus, when considering either a motion for judgment as a matter of law or a summary judgment motion, the court must review all of the evidence in the record and must draw all reasonable inferences in favor of the nonmoving party, but must make no credibility determinations or weigh any evidence, because such determinations are for the jury and not the court. Although the court should review the record as a whole, it must disregard all evidence favorable to the moving party that the jury is not required to believe. n15

[2] Grounds for Grant of Judgment As Matter of Law

[a] Basis for Grant of Judgment

A court may enter a judgment as a matter of law only if there is no legally sufficient evidentiary basis for a reasonable jury to find for a party on an issue. n1 In its consideration of a motion for judgment as a matter of law, the court should review all of the evidence in the record, n1.1 but, in doing so, must draw all reasonable inferences in favor of the nonmoving party and may not make credibility determinations or weigh the evidence. The court must disregard all evidence favorable to the moving party that the jury is not required to believe. This means that the court should give credence to the evidence favoring the nonmovant as well as that evidence supporting the moving party that is uncontradicted and unimpeached, at least to the extent that evidence comes from disinterested witnesses. n1.2 Therefore, a court may render a judgment as a matter of law if a party fails to present any evidence on a material issue, n2 and it is generally held that a mere scintilla of evidence is insufficient to present a question for the jury. n3 Additionally, a court may render judgment as a matter of law if at the time a motion is presented there is no material issue of fact that could be submitted to a jury because no reasonable jurors could differ about the outcome. n4 Essentially, a court may grant a motion for judgment as a matter of law if it determines that a reasonable jury could draw inferences from the evidence to support a finding in favor only of one party. n5

On the other hand, if reasonable jurors could differ as to the inferences that may be drawn from the evidence adduced at trial, such a motion should be denied. n6 In order to counter a motion for judgment as a matter of law, the non-moving party must present sufficient evidence in support of a material issue. n7

[b] Considerations in Determination

When the trial court evaluates a motion for a judgment as a matter of law, the court must consider all of the evidence adduced at trial in a light most favorable to the party against whom the motion was made. n8 The trial court does not have the power to weigh evidence and must issue a ruling of law. n9

The court may not assess the credibility of witnesses, resolve conflicting evidence, or substitute its conclusions for that of the jury, because credibility determinations, the weighing of evidence, and the drawing of legitimate inferences from the facts are functions of the jury rather than the judge. n9.1 The district court improperly invades the province of the jury when the court finds one witness' testimony more credible than others. For example, in one case, it was held that the trial court erred in disbelieving allegations in a witness' letter and drew inferences from facts when finding the letter false. Therefore, judgment as a matter of law was improper. n10

[c] Controlling Law in Motions for Judgment as Matter of Law

There is a conflict among the circuits on the issue of whether federal or state law governs the standard for judgments as a matter of law in diversity actions. Most circuits have expressly held that federal law controls motions for judgments as a matter of law in diversity actions. n11 These courts reason that the Rules Enabling Act, n12 provides that the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure supersede conflicting state law when the rules only incidentally impact on state substantive rights and that this result is necessary to the maintenance of the procedural integrity of the rules. n13

However, the Sixth and Eighth Circuits have held that state-law standards govern motions for judgment as a matter of law in diversity cases. n14 The Second Circuit has avoided the conflict by determining that state and federal standards are the same either in language or in application. As of present, the Supreme Court has not resolved the disagreement, indicating in the cases it has considered that state and federal laws essentially apply the same standard for motions for judgments as a matter of law. n15

[d] Losing Party in Judgment May Move for New Trial

When a judgment as a matter of law is rendered against a party, that party may file a motion for a new trial within 28 days of entry of the judgment. n16

A verdict winner may apply to the trial court for a new trial pursuant to Rule 59 after the judgment as a matter of law has been entered against the verdict winner. In arguing to the trial court in opposition to the motion for judgment as a matter of law, the verdict winner often will contend that he or she, at the least, is entitled to a new trial. The trial court then has a range of discretion to grant a new trial or, if the plaintiff won the verdict, to order a dismissal of the action without prejudice, or to grant judgment as a matter of law. n17

Rule 50(d) is a reminder that the verdict winner is entitled, even after entry of a judgment as a matter of law against him or her, to move for a new trial in the usual course, provided it is done within the 28-day time limit. n18 If in these circumstances the motion is granted, the judgment is superseded. n19

[3] Contents Required in Motion

A motion for judgment as a matter of law must be supported with specific law and facts used as a basis for the judgment. n1 Thus, at a minimum, the motion must identify the specific element that the party contends is insufficiently supported. n2 The purposes of the specificity requirement are twofold: (1) to assure that the trial court has an adequate basis for its decision; and (2) to afford the adverse party the opportunity to correct any possible infirmities in the proof required. n3

If the purposes of the specificity requirement are otherwise satisfied, however, a party's failure to technically comply with the specificity requirement may be excused. n4 For example, lack of specificity may be excused when the court brings up the factual and legal details of the issue in the hearing on the motion, and all of the parties become aware of the issue. n5

The specificity requirement will also not be enforced on appeal if the opposition does not object in the trial court. For example, the defendant in one case moved at the close of plaintiff's case for a judgment as a matter of law on each of the plaintiff's claims, without further comment. After the verdict, the defendant sought to renew the motion, but the trial court denied it. On appeal, the plaintiff argued that the motion for judgment as a matter of law was deficient in that it failed to articulate the grounds with sufficient specificity. The defendant countered that although it did not identify the legal or factual basis for its motion the basis for the motion was known by the parties and court in that similar motions had been made before. The appellate court held that the plaintiff's objection was deemed waived and did not reach the issue of whether or not the defendant violated Rule 50(a)(2)'s specificity requirement. n6

[4] Time for Making Motion for Judgment As Matter of Law

[a] Preverdict Motion

A party may make a motion for judgment as a matter of law at any time prior to the submission of the case to the jury. n1 Furthermore, the party may make the motion at the conclusion of its opponent's case. n2 However, a court may not grant a judgment as a matter of law against a party that has not rested its case because such an action would prevent the non-moving party from presenting evidence that may be sufficient to establish a material issue of fact for the jury to assess. n3

When a party moves for judgment as a matter of law at the close of its opponent's case and the motion is denied, the party may proffer evidence in support of its own case. n4 In some instances, a trial court may defer issuing a ruling on a motion for judgment as a matter of law which was submitted at the close of one party's case until the close of all evidence because a court may wish to first hear all the evidence that each side intends to present at trial. n5

If the court does not grant a motion for judgment as a matter of law made prior to submission of the case to the jury, n6 the court is deemed to have submitted the action to the jury subject to the court's later deciding the legal questions raised by the motion. Consequently, the moving party may renew its motion for judgment as a matter of law by filing a motion after the entry of judgment. n7 Rule 49(b) has been amended to remove the previous requirement that a party had to renew a motion for judgment as a matter of law at the close of all evidence. n8

[b] Postverdict Renewal of Motion

[i] Renewal of Motion for Judgment as Matter of Law

If the court does not grant a "preverdict" motion for judgment as a matter of law made prior to submission of the case to the jury, n9 the court is deemed to have submitted the action to the jury subject to the court's later deciding the legal questions raised by the motion. Therefore, if it loses the jury verdict, the moving party may then renew its motion by filing a "postverdict" motion for judgment as a matter of law no later than 28 days after the entry of judgment or, if the motion pertains to a jury issue which was not decided by the verdict, no later than 28 days after the jury was discharged. n10 The moving party also has the option to move for a new trial under Rule 59. n11

Under the two-stage procedure of Rule 50 for challenges to the sufficiency of the evidence in a jury trial, if the Rule

50(a) preverdict motion is not granted, and the jury subsequently decides against that party, the party must renew its motion after the verdict by filing a postverdict motion pursuant to Rule 50(b). n11 However, a party that fails to make a preverdict motion for judgment as a matter of law may not file a post-verdict renewal motion. n12 Furthermore, if a party has not made a postverdict renewal motion under Rule 50(b), the circuit court of appeals may not review the trial court decision regarding the challenge to the sufficiency of the evidence. A postverdict motion is necessary to preserve appellate review because a determination of whether a new trial should be granted or a judgment entered under Rule 50(b) calls for the judgment in the first instance of the trial judge who saw and heard the witnesses and has the feel for the case, which no appellate printed transcript can provide. n13 The majority of courts hold that the grounds for the renewed motion are limited to those asserted in the earlier Rule 50(a) motion. In other words, the movant may not use a Rule 50(b) motion as a vehicle to introduce a legal theory not distinctly articulated in the motion for judgment as a matter of law at the close of evidence. n14 However, some circuits have held that an issue raised for the first time in a post-verdict motion is preserved for appellate review if the nonmoving party failed to argue in opposition to the motion that the moving party waived the right to raise the issue by not first raising it in a pre-verdict motion. n15

[ii] Alternative Request for New Trial

When a party makes a motion for judgment as a matter of law, the party may alternatively request a new trial or joinder of a motion for judgment as a matter of law and a motion for a new trial under Rule 59. n16 If a motion for a new trial is joined with a motion for a post-verdict judgment as a matter of law, both motions must be timely filed; timely filing one motion does not satisfy the filing requirement for the other motion. n17

[iii] Time for Renewed Motion

The moving party must renew its preverdict motion for judgment as a matter of law by filing a postverdict motion no later than 28 days after the entry of judgment or, if the motion pertains to a jury issue which was not decided by the verdict, no later than 28 days after the jury was discharged. n18 Rule 6 expressly prohibits the district court from extending the 28-day period to submit a renewed motion for judgment as a matter of law. n19 If a party fails to move for a post-verdict judgment as a matter of law in a timely fashion, it is precluded from seeking an appellate order to enter such a judgment. n20

[5] Ruling on Renewed Motion for Judgment as Matter of Law

In its determination of a renewed motion for judgment as a matter of law, the court may choose one of three options: (1) if the jury returned a verdict, the court may allow judgment on the verdict; n1 (2) the court may order a new trial; n2 or (3) the court may direct the entry of judgment as a matter of law. n3

A trial court may not grant judgment as a matter of law solely on the basis of an internal inconsistency in the jury's verdict. The appropriate remedy in that case is to order a new trial. n4 The standard for assessing whether to grant a new trial is broader and, in general, more lenient than the standard for evaluating a motion for a judgment as a matter of law. n5 However, a court may grant a motion for judgment as a matter of law and deny a motion for a new trial, because a denial of a motion for new trial does not automatically constitute an abuse of discretion when a judgment as a matter of law has been granted. n6

A court may grant a new trial if the jury's verdict clearly was against the evidence presented at trial, n7 although some circuits additionally require that the trial court also consider whether the verdict would effect a miscarriage of justice. n8 In ruling on a motion for judgment as a matter of law, the court must inquire whether there is a legally sufficient evidentiary basis for a reasonable jury to find for the opponent of the motion. n9 The court should not consider in making that decision any inadmissible evidence, because such evidence contributes nothing to a "legally sufficient evidentiary basis." n10 Furthermore, a court of appeals may order entry of judgment as a matter of law on sufficiency-of-the-evidence grounds without violating the Seventh Amendment. n11

[6] Effect of Joinder of Motion for Judgment as Matter of Law With Motion for New Trial

If a party has joined a renewed motion for a judgment as a matter of law with a motion for a new trial, n1 and the court grants the motion for judgment as a matter of law, the court must also conditionally rule on any motion for a new trial by determining whether a new trial should be granted if the judgment is later vacated or reversed. The court must state the grounds for conditionally granting or denying the motion for a new trial. n2 Such a conditional grant of the motion for a new trial does not affect the judgment's finality; if the judgment is reversed, the new trial must proceed unless the appellate court orders otherwise. If the motion for a new trial is conditionally denied, the appellee may assert error in that denial; if the judgment is reversed, the case must proceed as the appellate court orders. n3

As noted above, if a moving party joins a renewed motion for judgment as a matter of law with a motion for a new trial, and the court grants the renewed motion for judgment as a matter of law, the court also must consider the motion for a new trial. n4 However, the ruling on a motion for a new trial is applicable only if the trial court's judgment was vacated or reversed. n5 The granting of a motion for a new trial does not affect the finality of the judgment. n6 If a motion for a new trial is granted and the judgment of the action is reversed on appeal, a new trial must commence unless otherwise ordered by the appellate court. n7

[7] Appellate Review Is De Novo and Applies Same Standards as Trial Court

[a] Standard of Review

A trial court's grant or denial of a motion for judgment as a matter of law made under Rule 50 is reviewed by the appellate court de novo, using the same standards as those to be employed by the trial court. n1 In conducting its appellate review, the circuit court determines whether there is (1) such a complete absence of evidence supporting the verdict that the jury's findings could only have been the result of sheer surmise and conjecture, or (2) such overwhelming evidence in favor of the movant that reasonable and fair-minded persons could not arrive at a verdict against the movant. n2

The appellate court views the evidence and all reasonable inferences from the evidence in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party. n3 Thus, when the jury has returned a verdict, the appellate court reviews the entire trial record and determines whether the evidence sufficiently supports the jury's verdict for the prevailing party. n4 However, a mere scintilla of evidence is not sufficient for the appellate court to uphold a jury verdict. n5

The appellate court must assume that the jury resolved all conflicts in favor of the prevailing party and assumes as proved all facts the prevailing party's evidence tended to prove. n6 The appellate court may not weigh conflicting evidence, judge the credibility of trial witnesses, or substitute its determination for that of the jury. n7

[b] Grounds for Reversal

An appellate court may reverse a denial of a motion for judgment as a matter of law only if it concludes that the trial court erred because the evidence adduced at trial supports a finding only in appellant's favor. n8 Therefore, the appellate court must reverse a district court ruling denying a motion for judgment as a matter of law if the evidence adduced at trial is insufficient for a reasonable juror to find in favor of the party against whom the motion was made. n9 On appeal of a denial of a motion for judgment as a matter of law, the appellate court reviews the evidence in the light most favorable to the prevailing party and resolves ambiguities in favor of the prevailing party. n10

To reverse a grant of a judgment as a matter of law, the circuit court must draw all reasonable inferences and resolve all credibility determinations in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party, and then reverse only if no reasonable jury would have arrived at its verdict. n11 On the other hand, the circuit court must affirm a judgment as a matter of law under its de novo review only when all evidence points in one direction and is susceptible to no reasonable interpretation supporting the jury verdict. n12

[c] Relief Provided by Appellate Court on Reversal

[i] Grant of Motion for New Trial

When the trial court denies a motion for judgment as a matter of law, the prevailing party as the appellee may assert grounds entitling it to a new trial should the appellate court conclude that the trial court erred in denying the motion. If the appellate court reverses the judgment, it may (1) order a new trial, (2) direct the trial court to determine whether a new trial should be granted, or (3) direct the entry of judgment. n13

The appellate court may find it particularly appropriate to grant appellee a new trial, rather than remand to the district court for that determination, when the new trial issues are ones with which the district court has no special skill or competence and a full record has been presented, as is common when the appeal is based on sufficiency of the evidence. n14 If the appellate court does not remand the case for a new trial after reversing the trial court, the appellee's failure to secure a remand for consideration of an alternative theory does not prohibit seeking a new trial from the district court on the alternative theory. n15

If the appellate court reverses the denial of a motion for judgment as a matter of law, in appropriate cases the appellate court may direct judgment for the appellant. n16 However, the relief available to the appellant from the appellate court is limited to the possible ordering of a new trial when the appellant has not strictly complied with the procedural requirements of Rule 50(b) and has made no post-trial motion for judgment as a matter of law or motion for a new trial. n17 This rule applies because the appellate court may not issue a ruling as a matter of law that contradicts the trial court's determination where the appellant did not first give the trial court an opportunity to correct its own error. n18

[ii] Directed Judgment or Dismissal by Court of Appeals

In appropriate cases, the appellate court may direct judgment against the appellee without permitting the appellee to seek a new trial from the district court. n19 For example, a court of appeals may properly enter judgment when the appellant shows a defect in subject matter jurisdiction or entitlement on a dispositive issue of law. The court may enter judgment even when the appeal is based on the sufficiency of the evidence, particularly when the appellee suggests no grounds for a new trial either on appeal or on a petition for rehearing. n20 Thus, the court of appeals may enter judgment as matter of law for the verdict loser on appeal, either when the plaintiff failed to produce enough evidence to warrant a jury verdict or when proof introduced at trial became insufficient because the court of appeals determined that certain evidence should not have been admitted and that the remaining, properly admitted evidence was insufficient to even submit the case to the jury. n21

On the other hand, the appellate court may not direct judgment for the appellant when the appellant has not strictly complied with the procedural requirements of Rule 50(b). It may not direct judgment against the appellee when the record reveals a new trial issue that has not been resolved, such as an alternative theory of liability that had not been particularly decided by the jury. n22

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJudgment as Matter of LawGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureTrialsJudgment as Matter of LawDirected VerdictsCivil ProcedureTrialsJudgment as Matter of LawJudgments Notwithstanding VerdictsCivil ProcedureTrialsJudgment as Matter of LawPostverdict JudgmentsCivil ProcedureTrialsJudgment as Matter of LawPreverdict Judgments

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 9 Moore's Federal Practice, § 50.02 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Unitherm Food Sys. v. Swift-Eckrich, Inc., 546 U.S. 394, 126 S. Ct. 980, 163 L. Ed. 2d 974 (2006) .

(n3)Footnote 2. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(a).

(n4)Footnote 2.1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(b).

(n5)Footnote 2.2. Unitherm Food Sys. v. Swift-Eckrich, Inc., 546 U.S. 394, 126 S. Ct. 980, 163 L. Ed. 2d 974 (2006) .

(n6)Footnote 2.3. Starceski v. Westinghouse Elec. Corp., 54 F.3d 1089, 1093 n.1 (3d Cir. 1995) . Note that some of the opinions in cases cited in this section may use the former terminology, and some courts still use that terminology.

(n7)Footnote 3. Schlitt v. Florida, 749 F.2d 1482, 1482-1483 (11th Cir. 1985) .

(n8)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(a)(1), Advisory Committee Note to 1993 Amendments.

(n9)Footnote 5. Norton v. Snapper Power Equip., Div. of Fuqua Indus., 806 F.2d 1545, 1547 (11th Cir.) (district court properly entered judgment notwithstanding verdict even though losing party did not enter specific motion).

(n10)Footnote 6. Compare Fed R. Civ. P. 50(a) with Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(c).

(n11)Footnote 7. Cox v. C.H. Masland & Sons, Inc. 607 F.2d 138, 144 fn.8 (5th Cir. 1979) .

(n12)Footnote 7.1. See Brown v. Parker Drilling Offshore Corp., 410 F.3d 166, 173-182 (5th Cir. 2005) .

(n13)Footnote 8. Song v. Ives Labs., 957 F.2d 1041, 1047 (2d Cir. 1992) ; Poynter v. Ratcliff, 874 F.2d 219, 222-223 (4th Cir. 1989) ; Peterson v. County of Nassau, 995 F. Supp. 305, 318 (E.D.N.Y. 1998) .

(n14)Footnote 9. Caruso v. Forslund, 47 F.3d 27, 32 (2d Cir. 1995) (court may not rule on witness credibility or weight of evidence when ruling on Rule 50 motion).

(n15)Footnote 9.1. See Kelly v. Armstrong, 206 F.3d 794, 797-798 (8th Cir. 2000) .

(n16)Footnote 10. In re Asbestos Litig., 986 F. Supp. 761, 765 (S.D.N.Y. 1997) (standard for judgment as a matter of law more stringent than standard for new trial).

(n17)Footnote 11. Holzapfel v. Town of Newburgh, 950 F. Supp. 1267, 1272 (S.D.N.Y. 1997) , rev'd in part on other grounds, 145 F.3d 516 (2d Cir. 1998) .

(n18)Footnote 12. In re Asbestos Litig., 986 F. Supp. 761, 765 (S.D.N.Y. 1997) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(b), 59(a).

(n19)Footnote 12.1. Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 253-257, 106 S. Ct. 2505, 2513-2514, 91 L. Ed. 2d 202, 214-217 (1986) ; see McSherry v. City of Long Beach, 423 F.3d 1015, 1020 (9th Cir. 2005) (standard is essentially identical to summary judgment standard).

(n20)Footnote 13. Save Our Health Org. v. Recomp of Minn., Inc., 37 F.3d 1334, 1336-1337 (8th Cir. 1994) .

(n21)Footnote 14. McSherry v. City of Long Beach, 423 F.3d 1015, 1019-1020 (9th Cir. 2005) .

(n22)Footnote 15. Reeves v. Sanderson Plumbing Products, Inc., 530 U.S. 133, 150-151, 120 S. Ct. 2097, 147 L.

Ed. 2d 105 (2000) (standard for granting summary judgment "mirrors" standard for judgment as matter of law, such that inquiry under each motion is same); see [2][a], below.

(n23)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(a)(1).

(n24)Footnote 1.1. See [b], below.

(n25)Footnote 1.2. Reeves v. Sanderson Plumbing Products, Inc., 530 U.S. 133, 151-152, 120 S. Ct. 2097, 147 L. Ed. 2d 105 (2000) (defendant was not entitled to judgment as matter of law in age discrimination case, because in addition to establishing prima facie case of discrimination and creating jury issue as to falsity of employer's explanation, plaintiff introduced additional evidence that his superior was motivated by age-based animus, and was principally responsible for discharge of plaintiff).

(n26)Footnote 2. Daniel J. Hartwig Assoc., Inc. v. Kanner, 913 F.2d 1213, 1221 (7th Cir. 1990) (district court correctly directed verdict in plaintiff's favor because defendant failed to present any evidence to support claim).

(n27)Footnote 3. Gaia Techs. Inc. v. Recycled Prods. Corp., 175 F.3d 365, 374-375 (5th Cir. 1999) (there must be conflict in substantial evidence to create jury question, and consequently, mere scintilla of evidence is insufficient to present question for jury); La Montagne v. American Convenience Prods., Inc., 750 F.2d 1405, 1410 (7th Cir. 1984) (mere scintilla of evidence is insufficient to present question for jury).

(n28)Footnote 4. Falco Lime v. Tide Towing Co., 29 F.3d 362, 365-366 (8th Cir. 1994) (judgment as matter of law properly granted because no unresolved questions of fact remained).

(n29)Footnote 5. Burch v. Coca-Cola Co., 119 F.3d 305, 314-317 (5th Cir. 1997) , cert. denied, 522 U.S. 1084 (1998) (in action with jury verdict for plaintiff for violation of Americans With Disabilities Act, appellate court reversed denial of judgment as matter of law because insufficient evidence to support jury finding that plaintiff was qualified individual with disability and that he requested reasonable accommodation from employer); Duquesne Light Co. v. Westinghouse Elec. Corp., 66 F.3d 604, 613-614 (3d Cir. 1995) (judgment as matter of law properly granted on contract claim because contract unambiguous and thus, no reasonable jury could find liability).

(n30)Footnote 6. Shetterly v. Raymark Indus., Inc. 117 F.3d 776, 781 (4th Cir. 1997) (reversing judgment as matter of law at close of plaintiffs' evidence because jury could have found that defendant's asbestos cloth was substantial factor in plaintiffs' injuries, when evidence was taken in light most favorable to plaintiffs); GNB Battery Techs., Inc. v. Exide Corp., 876 F. Supp. 582 (D. Del. 1995) (in patent infringement action, motion for judgment as matter of law, reviewing court must apply reasonable jury standard).

(n31)Footnote 7. See Bond v. Morton Bldgs., Inc., 815 F. Supp. 944, 945-946 (S.D. W. Va. 1993) (judgment as matter of law granted because court could not allow jury to speculate and evidence presented was insufficient).

(n32)Footnote 8. Information Commun. Corp. v. Unisys Corp., 181 F.3d 629, 632-633 (5th Cir. 1999) (in ruling on motion for judgment as matter of law based on sufficiency of evidence, Court of Appeals considers all of evidence, not just that evidence which supports the non-mover's case); Focus Inv. Assocs. v. American Title Ins. Co., 992 F.2d 1231, 1235-1237 (1st Cir. 1993) (motion for judgment as matter of law properly granted in negligence in title searching action because no duty to search title existed).

(n33)Footnote 9. Barna v. City of Perth Amboy, 42 F.3d 809, 819 (3d Cir. 1994) (district court properly granted judgment as matter of law in assault claim because jury could not reasonably find that assault occurred under color of state law).

(n34)Footnote 9.1. See Miller v. Auto. Club of New Mexico, Inc., 420 F.3d 1098, 1131 (10th Cir. 2005) .

(n35)Footnote 10. Payne v. Milwaukee County, 146 F.3d 430, 433 (7th Cir. 1998) (when case turns on credibility, neither side is entitled to judgment as matter of law unless objective evidence shows that it would be unreasonable to believe critical witness for one side).

(n36)Footnote 11. Deimer v. Cincinnati Sub-Zero Prods., 58 F.3d 341, 343 (7th Cir. 1995) ; Romero v. International Harvester Co., 979 F.2d 1444, 1448-1449 (10th Cir. 1992) ; Mattison v. Dallas Carrier Corp., 947 F.2d 95, 107 (4th Cir. 1991) ; Roboserve, Ltd. v. Tom's Foods, Inc., 940 F.2d 1441, 1448 (11th Cir. 1991) .

(n37)Footnote 12. 28 U.S.C. § 2072.

(n38)Footnote 13. Burlington Northern R.R. v. Woods, 480 U.S. 1987) .

(n39)Footnote 14. Morris v. Union Pac. R.R., 373 F.3d 896, 899 (8th Cir. 2004) ; Preceptron, Inc. v. Sensor Adaptive Machines, Inc., 221 F.3d 913, 918 (6th Cir. 2000) .

(n40)Footnote 15. See, e.g., Mercer v. Theriot, 377 U.S. 152, 156, 84 S. Ct. 1157, 12 L. Ed. 2d 206 (1964) (Supreme Court found evidence was sufficient under any standard that could possibly be applied, whether state or federal); see also Weisgram v. Marley Co., 528 U.S. 440, 448-449, 120 S. Ct. 1011, 145 L. Ed. 2d 958 (2000) (in diversity case, Supreme Court did not discuss whether state or federal standard should apply).

(n41)Footnote 16. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(d).

(n42)Footnote 17. See Weisgram v. Marley Co., 528 U.S. 440, 451-452, 120 S. Ct. 1011, 145 L. Ed. 2d 958 (2000) ; Cone v. West Virginia Pulp & Paper Co., 330 U.S. 212, 218, 67 S. Ct. 755, 91 L. Ed. 849 (1947) .

(n43)Footnote 18. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(d).

(n44)Footnote 19. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50, Committee Note to 1963 Amendment.

(n45)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(a)(2); see Lightning Lube v. Witco Corp., 4 F.3d 1153, 1173 (3d Cir. 1993) (motion for judgment as matter of law must be preceded by motion sufficiently specific to afford opposing party opportunity to cure defects in proof).

(n46)Footnote 2. Wimmer v. Suffolk County Police Dep't, 176 F.3d 125, 136 (2d Cir. 1999) (in motion in § 1983 discrimination employment discharge case, defense motion clearly stated that plaintiff had failed to satisfy first element of a prima facie case of retaliation).

(n47)Footnote 3. Gordon v. County of Rockland, 110 F.3d 886, 887 n.2 (2d Cir. 1997) , cert. denied, 522 U.S. 820 (1997) (citing Moore's Federal Practice for purposes of specificity requirement); see Atchley v. The Nordam Group, Inc., 180 F.3d 1143, 1147-1148 (10th Cir. 1999) .

(n48)Footnote 4. Junker v. Eddings, 396 F.3d 1359, 1363 (Fed. Cir. 2005) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n49)Footnote 5. Gordon v. County of Rockland, 110 F.3d 886, 887 n.2 (2d Cir. 1997) , cert. denied, 522 U.S. 820 (1997) .

(n50)Footnote 6. Marfia v. T.C. Ziraat Bankasi, 147 F.3d 83, 87 (2d Cir. 1998) (argument that Rule 50 motion must be articulated with sufficient specificity is waived on appeal absent objection in district court).

(n51)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(a)(2).

(n52)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(a)(2); see Pro Football Weekly, Inc. v. Gannett Co., 988 F.2d 723, 725-726 (7th Cir. 1993) ; see also Nobelpharma AB v. Implant Innovations, Inc. 141 F.3d 1059, 1065 (Fed. Cir. 1998) (court could enter judgment as matter of law against plaintiff at conclusion of plaintiff's case, even though defendant had burden of proof on affirmative defense, when admission by plaintiff's witness was sufficient proof on that issue).

(n53)Footnote 3. McSherry v. City of Long Beach, 423 F.3d 1015, 1020-1021 (9th Cir. 2005) .

(n54)Footnote 4. International Union, United Auto. v. Mack Trucks, Inc., 917 F.2d 107, 110-111 (3d Cir. 1990) , cert. denied, 499 U.S. 921 (1991) (defendant maintained right to present case following its motion for directed verdict).

(n55)Footnote 5. Kelley Metal Trading Co. v. Al-Jon/United, 877 F. Supp. 1478, 1483-1484 (D. Kan. 1995) (although plaintiff claimed that delay would confuse jury, court did not err by deferring ruling on motion for judgment as matter of law until after close of all evidence).

(n56)Footnote 6. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(a).

(n57)Footnote 7. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(b); Unitherm Food Sys. v. Swift-Eckrich, Inc., 546 U.S. 394, 126 S. Ct. 980, 163 L. Ed. 2d 974, 982-983 (2006) (Rule 50 establishes two stages for challenges to sufficiency of evidence in jury trial and specifies procedural requirements for each stage); see also [b], below.

(n58)Footnote 8. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(b), Committee Note to 2006 Amendments.

(n59)Footnote 9. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(a); [a], above.

(n60)Footnote 10. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(b).

(n61)Footnote 11. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(b); Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(b); see also [ii], below.

(n62)Footnote 11. Unitherm Food Sys. v. Swift-Eckrich, Inc., 546 U.S. 394, 126 S. Ct. 980, 163 L. Ed. 2d 974, 982-984 (2006) .

(n63)Footnote 12. Jackson v. City of Cookeville, 31 F.3d 1354, 1357-1358 (6th Cir. 1994) .

(n64)Footnote 13. Unitherm Food Sys. v. Swift-Eckrich, Inc., 546 U.S. 394, 126 S. Ct. 980, 163 L. Ed. 2d 974, 986-987 (2006) .

(n65)Footnote 14. Conseco Fin. Servicing Corp. v. N. Am. Mortg. Co., 381 F.3d 811, 821 (8th Cir. 2004) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n66)Footnote 15. See, e.g., Thompson & Wallace, Inc. v. Falconwood Corp., 100 F.3d 429, 435 (5th Cir. 1996) ; Gibeau v. Nellis, 18 F.3d 107, 109 (2d Cir. 1994) .

(n67)Footnote 16. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(b); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(a); see, e.g., Information Commun. Corp. v. Unisys Corp., 181 F.3d 629, 631 (5th Cir. 1999) (in breach of contract case, after verdict in favor of plaintiff in amount of $2.7 million defendant moved for judgment as matter of law or, alternatively, for remittitur of damage award.).

(n68)Footnote 17. Bass v. Spitz, 522 F. Supp. 1343, 1346-1347 (E.D. Mich. 1981) .

(n69)Footnote 18. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(b), 59(b).

(n70)Footnote 19. Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(b)(2).

(n71)Footnote 20. United States v. Valdosta-Lowndes County Hospital Auth., 696 F.2d 911, 912-913 (11th Cir. 1983) .

(n72)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(b)(1).

(n73)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(b)(2); see Quintel Corp., N.V. v. Citibank, 606 F. Supp. 898, 905-906 (S.D.N.Y. 1985) (new trial may be granted in interests of justice when judgment as legal matter is not warranted under circumstances of case).

(n74)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(b)(3).

(n75)Footnote 4. Mosley v. Wilson, 102 F.3d 85, 89-91 (3d Cir. 1996) .

(n76)Footnote 5. Lang v. Birch Shipping Co., 523 F. Supp. 1112, 1114 (S.D.N.Y. 1981) (new trial may be granted if verdict against weight of evidence while judgment as matter of law requires legal conclusion that moving party entitled to judgment regardless of witness credibility).

(n77)Footnote 6. Stone v. First Wyoming Bank, N.A., 625 F.2d 332, 350-351 (10th Cir. 1980) .

(n78)Footnote 7. United States v. Tobias, 899 F.2d 1375, 1380-1381 (4th Cir. 1990) (order granting new trial vacated because district court did not justify decision and record revealed no reason to justify it).

(n79)Footnote 8. Union Carbide Chems. & Plastics Tech. Corp. v. Shell Oil Co., 308 F.3d 1167, 1185 (Fed. Cir. 2002) (applying 3d Circuit precedent); Sheridan v. E.I. DuPont de Nemours & Co., 100 F.3d 1061, 1075-1076 (3d Cir. 1996) , cert. denied, 521 U.S. 1129 (1997) .

(n80)Footnote 9. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(a)(1).

(n81)Footnote 10. Weisgram v. Marley Co., 528 U.S. 440, 453, 120 S. Ct. 1011, 145 L. Ed. 2d 958 (2000) .

(n82)Footnote 11. Weisgram v. Marley Co., 528 U.S. 440, 454-456, 120 S. Ct. 1011, 145 L. Ed. 2d 958 (2000) (court of appeals did not abuse its discretion by directing entry of judgment for verdict loser, rather than remanding case to district court for new trial, when, after holding verdict winner's expert testimony inadmissible, court found properly admitted evidence insufficient to support verdict).

(n83)Footnote 1. See [4][b][ii], above.

(n84)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(c)(1).

(n85)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(c)(2); see [7], below.

(n86)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(c).

(n87)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(c)(1); Gilbrook v. City of Westminster; 177 F.3d 839, 852 (9th Cir. 1999) (in this civil rights case, district court entered judgment as matter of law in favor of defendants on plaintiffs' equal protection claims, but conditionally granted new trial on ground that it had given jury erroneous instruction on equal protection claim.).

(n88)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(c); see Cook v. Carolina Freight Carriers Corp., 867 F.2d 1266, 1267-1268 (11th Cir. 1989) (grant of new trial in civil case ordinarily appealable only after verdict in new trial).

(n89)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(c)(1).

(n90)Footnote 1. King v. Ames, 179 F.3d 370, 373 (5th Cir. 1999) .

(n91)Footnote 2. Weisgram v. Marley Co., 528 U.S. 440, 454, 120 S. Ct. 1011, 145 L. Ed. 2d 958 (2000) .

(n92)Footnote 3. Shetterly v. Raymark Indus., Inc., 117 F.3d 776, 781 (4th Cir. 1997) (reversing directed verdict at close of plaintiffs' evidence on claims of asbestos-related personal injuries).

(n93)Footnote 4. Advantor Capital Corp. v. Yeary, 136 F.3d 1259, 1263 (10th Cir. 1998) .

(n94)Footnote 5. Jones v. Bessemer Carraway Med. Ctr., 137 F.3d 1306, 1310 (11th Cir. 1998) (nonmoving party must provide more than scintilla of evidence to survive motion for judgment as matter of law; substantial conflict in evidence to support jury question required).

(n95)Footnote 6. Vetter v. Farmland Indus., Inc., 120 F.3d 749, 751-752 (8th Cir. 1997) (trial court erred in granting judgment as matter of law to plaintiff following jury verdict because evidence conflicted and prevailing party's evidence was sufficient to support verdict).

(n96)Footnote 7. Jones v. Bessemer Carraway Med. Ctr., 137 F.3d 1306, 1310 (11th Cir. 1998) (court may not weigh evidence or decide credibility of witnesses).

(n97)Footnote 8. Considine v. Newspaper Agency Corp., 43 F.3d 1349, 1363-1365 (10th Cir. 1994) (district court correctly denied plaintiff's Rule 50 motion in age discrimination action).

(n98)Footnote 9. See, e.g., Hahn v. Atlantic Richfield Co., 625 F.2d 1095, 1098-1099 (3d Cir.) , cert. denied, 450 U.S. 981 (1980) (district court erred by not granting judgment as matter of law because record insufficient as matter of law to support verdict in favor of plaintiff).

(n99)Footnote 10. De Kwiatkowski v. Bear, Stearns & Co., Inc., 306 F.3d 1293, 1296 (2d Cir. 2002) .

(n100)Footnote 11. Cozzo v. Tangipahoa Parish Council, 279 F.3d 273, 280 (5th Cir. 2002) ; Union Oil Co. v. Atlantic Richfield Co., 208 F.3d 989, 994 (Fed. Cir. 2000) , cert. denied, 531 U.S. 1183 (2001) (under required de novo standard of review, circuit court will reverse grant of judgment as a matter of law only if, after considering evidence in light most favorable to nonmoving party, it finds that reasonable persons could not reach verdict returned by jury).

(n101)Footnote 12. Frazier v. Iowa Beef Processors, Inc., 200 F.3d 1190, 1194-1195 (8th Cir. 2000) .

(n102)Footnote 13. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(e).

(n103)Footnote 14. Exxon Chem. Patents, Inc. v. Lubrizol Corp., 137 F.3d 1475, 1481 (Fed. Cir. 1998) , cert. denied, 525 U.S. 877 (1998) .

(n104)Footnote 15. See Exxon Chem. Patents, Inc. v. Lubrizol Corp., 137 F.3d 1475, 1477-1479, 1480-1483 (Fed. Cir. 1998) , cert. denied, 525 U.S. 877 (1998) (appellee need not raise doctrine of equivalents in first appeal to seek new trial on that theory in district court, because that theory constituted alternative theory that had not been passed on by jury and might justify new trial); Pentax Corp. v. Robison, 135 F.3d 760, 762 (Fed. Cir. 1998) (new arguments to appellate court may ordinarily not be raised by rehearing petitions).

(n105)Footnote 16. See [ii], below.

(n106)Footnote 17. Lenard v. Argento, 699 F.2d 874, 888 (7th Cir. 1983) , cert. denied, 464 U.S. 815 (1983) (citing Moore's Federal Practice, appellate court could not grant cross-appellant's request for judgment where cross-appellant failed to move for judgment as matter of law or new trial in trial court).

(n107)Footnote 18. Fortier v. Dona Anna Plaza Partners, 747 F.2d 1324, 1334 (10th Cir. 1984) .

(n108)Footnote 19. Neely v. Martin K. Eby Constr. Co., 386 U.S. 317, 322, 324, 326-329, 87 S. Ct. 1072, 18 L. Ed. 2d 75 (1967) (appellate court may direct entry of judgment or order dismissal rather than remanding case for consideration of merits of granting new trial when court can make informed judgment based on record).

(n109)Footnote 20. Exxon Chem. Patents, Inc. v. Lubrizol Corp., 137 F.3d 1475, 1481 (Fed. Cir. 1998) (Supreme Court in Neely explicitly tied exercise of appellate authority to direct entry of final judgment against verdict winner to court's ability to make informed judgment based on record).

(n110)Footnote 21. Weisgram v. Marley Co., 528 U.S. 440, 454, 120 S. Ct. 1011, 145 L. Ed. 2d 958 (2000) .

(n111)Footnote 22. Neely v. Martin K. Eby Constr. Co., 386 U.S. 317, 325, 87 S. Ct. 1072, 18 L. Ed. 2d 75 (1967) .

42 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 23 TRIAL TO COURT; INABILITY OF JUDGE TO PROCEED

3-23 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure 23.syn

§ 23.syn Synopsis to Chapter 23: TRIAL TO COURT; INABILITY OF JUDGE TO PROCEED

§ 23.01 Use and Purpose of Findings by Court

[1] Nature and Purpose of Findings

[2] Scope of Rule Requiring Findings and Conclusions

§ 23.02 Cases When Findings Are Mandatory

[1] Non-jury Trial or Trial With Advisory Jury

[2] Injunctions

[a] Interlocutory Injunctions

[b] Temporary Restraining Orders

[c] Permanent Injunctions

[3] Motion for Partial Findings

§ 23.03 Cases When Court is not Required to Make Findings

[1] Absence of Factual Dispute

[2] Consent Decree

[3] Motions

[a] Findings Generally Not Required

[b] Motions for Summary Judgment

[c] Motions to Dismiss

[d] Other Motions

§ 23.04 Effect of Court's Failure to Make Required Findings

[1] Failure is Not Jurisdictional Bar to Appeal

[2] Appellate Court May Require Remand or Retrial

§ 23.05 Methods for Trial Court to Make Findings

[1] Findings in Writing

[a] Findings Either in Opinion or in Separate Document

[b] Particular Format Not Essential

[2] Verbal Findings

[3] Findings Made Only on Record

[4] Adoption of Findings Made by Special Master

[5] Adoption of Findings Made by Parties

[a] Trial Court's Request for Proposed Findings

[b] Obligation to Prepare Proposed Findings When Requested by Court

[c] Court's Use of Party's Proposed Findings

[d] Trial Court's Verbatim Use of Party's Proposed Findings Tolerated

[i] Verbatim Adoptions Permitted

[ii] Criticisms of Verbatim Adoptions

§ 23.06 Sufficiency of Findings

[1] Distinction Between Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law

[2] Findings of Fact

[a] Adequacy of Findings

[b] Discussion of Evidence In Findings

[c] No Distinction Required Between Ultimate and Subsidiary Facts

[3] Conclusions of Law Must State Reasons for Legal Determinations

§ 23.07 Time for Trial Court to Make Findings

§ 23.08 Appellate Review

[1] Requests for Findings Not Prerequisite to Appeal

[2] Appellate Review of Findings of Fact

[a] Clearly Erroneous Standard

[b] Deference Accorded Trial Courts Findings

[c] Findings of Master

[d] Standard in Cases With Advisory Jury

[3] Appellate Review of Conclusions of Law

[a] Standard of Review is De Novo

[b] Imprecise Distinction Between Law and Fact

[4] Appellate Review of Mixed Determinations of Law and Fact

[a] Characterization as Mixed Question of Law and Fact

[b] Standard of Review

§ 23.09 Amendment of Findings

[1] Trial Court Has Discretion to Amend Findings and Conclusions on Motion of Either Party

[2] Purpose of Amendment

[3] Grounds for Amendment

[a] Supplement or Expand Findings

[b] Correction of Error

[c] Discovery of New Evidence

[4] Time for Filing Motion

[a] Time Period for Filing

[b] Untimely Motion for Amendment May be Used as Other Motion

[5] Effect of Motion on Judgment and Appeal

[a] Motion Destroys Finality of Judgment

[b] New Notice of Appeal Must Be Filed After Disposition

§ 23.10 Judgment on Partial Findings

[1] Discretion of Trial Court to Enter Judgment on Partial Findings

[2] Grounds for Judgment on Partial Findings

[3] Timing of Judgment

[4] Judgment on Partial Findings Compared to Judgment As Matter of Law

[5] Appellate Review of Judgment on Partial Findings

[a] Clearly Erroneous Standard Applies

[b] Procedure Following Reversal on Appeal

§§ 23.11through 23.29 [Reserved]

§ 23.30 Scope of Rule Governing Inability of a Judge to Proceed

[1] Purpose of Allowing Successor Judge to Proceed

[2] Successor May Take Over at Any Time During Trial

[3] Applicability of Rule to Special Masters and Magistrate Judges

§ 23.31 Extent of Judge's Inability to Proceed for Purposes of Rule

§ 23.32 Disqualification of Judge for Bias

[1] Nature of Partiality

[a] Extent of Partiality

[b] Extrajudicial Source of Partiality

[2] Objective Standard Controls Questions of Impartiality

[a] Test Based on Perception of Reasonable Person

[b] Appearance of Partiality Not Affected by Judge's Awareness

[3] Effect of Judge's Bias Toward Party's Attorney

[4] Presumption of Impartiality

[5] Waiver of Partiality as Grounds for Disqualification

[a] Waiver of Disqualification Permitted

[b] Requirement of Full Disclosure on Record

§ 23.33 Disqualification of Judge Based on Judge's Involvement or Interest

[1] Judge's Previous Involvement With Matter in Controversy

[2] Financial Interest of Judge or Immediate Family

[a] Disqualification Because of Financial Interest

[b] Scope of Financial Interest

[c] Knowledge Required on Part of Judge

[3] Status or Other Nonfinancial Interest of Judge, Spouse, or Relative

[4] Judge's Interest or Expertise in Particular Specialty of Law

§ 23.34 Procedure for Disqualification

[1] Initiation of Disqualification Request

[a] Recusal Initiated by Disqualified Judge

[b] Recusal Initiated by Party

[2] Requirements of Motion for Disqualification

[3] District Court May Rule on Motion or May Refer it to Another Judge

[4] Documentation and Effect of Ruling

[5] Appellate Review of Ruling on Disqualification

[a] Grant of Disqualification

[b] Denial of Disqualification

[c] Remedy on Reversal of Denial of Recusal

§ 23.35 Certification of Successor Judge

§ 23.36 General Procedure for Replacement of Judge Unable to Proceed

§ 23.37 Authority and Powers of Successor Judge

[1] Change or Modify Predecessor Judge's Orders and Findings

[2] Issue New Orders and Findings on Existing Record

[3] Recall Witnesses

[4] Order New Trial

[5] Enter Judgment

[6] Rule on Post-Trial Motions

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 23 TRIAL TO COURT; INABILITY OF JUDGE TO PROCEED
PART I. FINDINGS BY THE TRIAL COURT

3-23 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 23.01

§ 23.01 Use and Purpose of Findings by Courtn*

[1] Nature and Purpose of Findings

The trial court must make specific findings of fact and conclusions of law in all non-jury trials or in trials with an advisory jury. n1 The primary purposes of this requirement is to provide an adequate and precise record for an appellant in the event the judgment of the trial court is appealed, and to aid the trial court in considering and adjudicating the facts. n2 With respect to possible appeal, the question of whether the trial court has made adequate findings is based on whether the findings afford a reviewing court a clear understanding of the basis of the trial court's decision. n2.1 However, to accomplish this goal, the trial court does not have to make specific findings on all facts but only on the ultimate facts necessary to reach a decision. n3 The trial court must express the findings it does make with sufficient particularity to enable the appellate court to follow the district court's reasoning and to determine whether the law has been applied correctly without having to resort to speculation. Thus, if a particular issue or claim includes a number of elements or factors the district court should make findings for each element or factor necessary to reach the decision made by the court. n3.1 The trial court should not make conclusory findings, because they do not supply the reviewing court with adequate information to render a decision. n4

Findings of fact and conclusions of law also ensure that the trial court has carefully reviewed the evidence presented in the case. n5 Thus, the mere act of preparing findings prompts the trial court to carefully ascertain the facts of the case. n6 Thus, as every judge is aware, to set down in precise words the facts as the judge finds them is the best way to avoid carelessness in the discharge of that duty; and often a strong first impression that on the basis of the evidence the facts give one result can give way to another after the judge has expressed that impression on paper. n7

The third fundamental purpose for the requirement of findings and conclusions is that it assists in the application of the doctrines of collateral estoppel and res judicata in future litigation. Thus, for courts in future cases to apply the principles of estoppel and res judicata, the trial court in each must make definite findings with respect to all factual and legal issues. n8 The final purpose of requiring clear and complete findings is to enable the parties to assess the appealability of the case. n9

[2] Scope of Rule Requiring Findings and Conclusions

Rule 52(a) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure governs the requirements for findings in civil cases. n1 Rule 52(a) requires the trial court to make findings of fact and conclusions of law in all actions tried on the facts without a jury or with an advisory jury, n2 and in granting or refusing interlocutory injunctions. n3 Because of the important purpose of findings, a court of appeals may remand to the district court when inadequate findings by the district court would substantially hinder the court of appeals' review. n4 In contrast, Rule 52(a) provides that findings of fact and conclusions of law are not required for most motions, including motions under Rule 12 (motions to dismiss) or Rule 56 (motions for summary judgment). n4.1 Rule 52(a) also does not require findings of fact for judgments entered pursuant to a consent decree, n5 or for default judgments, except with respect to damages. n6

Rule 52 is of such importance that a party does not need to request or move for findings for purposes of review. The court is automatically required to make findings in all non-jury trials. n7 Furthermore, a motion or request for findings regarding a particular fact is not a prerequisite to preserving an issue for appellate review; a party may later question the sufficiency of the evidence supporting the findings, whether or not the party requested any findings, objected to them, moved to amend them, or moved for partial findings. n8 A motion is required, however, if a party wants to request the court to amend findings or make additional findings, once the court has made the findings. n9 Rule 52 requires the district court in a non-jury case to make findings of fact and state separately its conclusions of law, compliance with the rule is not a jurisdictional requirement for appeal. n10 In other words, the circuit court may proceed with appellate review despite inadequate findings whenever the circuit court is able to discern enough solid facts from the record to permit the circuit court to render a decision. n11

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsBench Trials

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 9 Moore's Federal Practice, § 52.02 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(1).

(n3)Footnote 2. Freeland v. Enodis Corp., 540 F.3d 721, 739 (7th Cir. 2008) .

(n4)Footnote 2.1. Alleyne v. N.Y. State Educ. Dep't, 516 F.3d 96, 101 (2d Cir. 2008) .

(n5)Footnote 3. Reich v. Newspapers of New England, Inc., 44 F.3d 1060, 1079 (1st Cir. 1995) .

(n6)Footnote 3.1. Kos Pharms., Inc. v. Andrx Corp., 369 F.3d 700, 711-712 (3d Cir. 2004) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n7)Footnote 4. Self v. Great Lakes Dredge & Dock Co., 832 F.2d 1540, 1549 (11th Cir. 1987) , cert. denied, 486 U.S. 1033 (1988) (although district court's opinion was generally careful and thorough, failure to supply sufficient findings on damages made adequate review of this issue impossible); see Eirhart v. Libbey-Owens-Ford Co., 996 F.2d 837, 841-842 (7th Cir. 1993) (district court's findings were adequate despite fact they were adopted from findings offered by plaintiff).

(n8)Footnote 5. Kaspar Wire Works, Inc. v. Leco Engineering & Mach., 575 F.2d 530, 543 (5th Cir.1978) (district court's findings reflected careful review despite fact that court adopted one party's language).

(n9)Footnote 6. Chandler v. City of Dallas, 958 F.2d 85, 88 (5th Cir. 1992) , cert. denied, 511 U.S. 1011 (1994) (detailed findings of fact as required by Rule 52(a) serve to aid the trial court's adjudication process by engendering care by court in determining facts).

(n10)Footnote 7. United States v. Forness, 125 F.2d 928, 942 (2d Cir. 1942) (suit to enforce cancellation of lease for failure to pay rent).

(n11)Footnote 8. Wattleton v. International Bhd. of Boiler Makers, 686 F.2d 586, 591 (7th Cir. 1982) , cert. denied, 459 U.S. 1208 (1983) ; In re Texas Extrusion Corp., 836 F.2d 217, 220 (5th Cir. 1988) , cert. denied, 488 U.S. 926 (1988) .

(n12)Footnote 9. Inverness Corp. v. Whitehall Labs., 819 F.2d 48, 50 (2d Cir. 1987) (clear understanding of basis of trial court's decision is necessary for a party to properly exercise the party's appellate rights and options).

(n13)Footnote 1. United States v. City of Yonkers, 181 F.3d 301, 321-323 (2nd Cir. 1999) .

(n14)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(1).

(n15)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(2).

(n16)Footnote 4. See, e.g., Samuel-Bassett v. Kia Motors Am., Inc., 357 F.3d 392, 394 (3d Cir. 2004) .

(n17)Footnote 4.1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(3).

(n18)Footnote 5. United States v. Scholnick, 606 F.2d 160 (6th Cir. 1979) (Rule 52(a) requires findings of fact only when action is tried on facts without jury; therefore, findings of fact are not required on judgments entered pursuant to consent decree, because judgment does not follow trial on facts but rather incorporates terms of consent decree).

(n19)Footnote 6. Adriana Int'l Corp. v. Thoeren, 913 F.2d 1406, 1412-1413 (9th Cir. 1990) In re Uranium Antitrust Litig., 473 F. Supp. 382, 387 (N.D. Ill. 1979) (Rule 52(a) does not impose findings requirement on default judgments except as to damages, because rule requires findings of fact only in actions tried on the facts).

(n20)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(1),(2) (court must make findings).

(n21)Footnote 8. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(5).

(n22)Footnote 9. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(b).

(n23)Footnote 10. Stetson v. Howard D. Wolf & Assoc., 955 F.2d 847, 850 (2d Cir. 1992) (appellate court has power to decide cases on appeal if facts in record adequately support result).

(n24)Footnote 11. United States v. City of Yonkers, 181 F.3d 301, 313 (2nd Cir. 1999) (absent good reason to remand, court of appeals may decide appeal on record before it); see § 23.08.

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 23 TRIAL TO COURT; INABILITY OF JUDGE TO PROCEED
PART I. FINDINGS BY THE TRIAL COURT

3-23 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 23.02

§ 23.02 Cases When Findings Are Mandatoryn*

[1] Non-jury Trial or Trial With Advisory Jury

A district court must make findings of fact specially and separately state its conclusions of law in all civil actions tried on the facts without a jury or with an advisory jury. n1 A party need not make a request or motion for findings to impel the court's compliance with the requirement, n2 and the obligation of the court to make findings may not be waived by the parties. n3 The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure are applicable to all civil actions, whether they would formerly have been actions at law or suits in equity, and also to suits in admiralty. n4 Consequently, findings are required in all general categories of civil litigation, both in cases between private parties and in cases brought by the United States n5 or brought against the United States. n6 Thus, for example, the court must make findings in all of the following types of cases:

1. Bankruptcy cases. n7

2. Tax Court cases. n8

3. Habeas corpus proceedings. n9

4. Civil contempt proceedings. n10

5. Cases of forfeiture of property for violation of federal law. n11

[2] Injunctions

[a] Interlocutory Injunctions

In any case in which the district court grants or denies an interlocutory injunction, the court must state the factual findings and conclusions of law that support its action, in the same manner as it states findings and conclusions in other civil cases. n1 The United States Supreme Court has stated that compliance with the findings requirement in cases seeking an interlocutory injunction is especially important because of the immediate effect of such injunctions. n2 As with findings in non-jury trials, the findings must be sufficient to allow the appellate court the opportunity to conduct a meaningful review. n2.1

Requiring trial courts to explain their interlocutory injunction orders serves at least three important purposes. First, it allows the parties to better understand the reasons for the court's actions. Second, a written explanation of the district court's reasoning permits an appellate court to meaningfully review that decision. n3 Third, the requirement that the district court write out its findings and conclusions in granting or refusing interlocutory injunctions encourages the trial judge to ascertain the facts with due care and render a decision in accord with the evidence and the law. What is adequate to serve the purposes of the findings requirements depends on the importance and complexity of a given issue, the depth and nature of the evidence presented, and similar factors that may vary from case to case. n4

When making its findings and conclusions for its decision on a motion for an interlocutory injunction, the court should not make findings on the substantive issues of the case. In this regard, the trial court should limit the findings to issues relating directly to the injunction motion. These include the four factors for granting a preliminary injunction: the moving party's likelihood of success on the merits; the risk of irreparable injury to the moving party; whether the threatened injury to the moving party outweighs the threatened harm to the opposing party; and the public interest. n4.1 To require findings of fact on substantive issues at this stage of a case would require conjecture rather than an informed judgment, because some issues of fact may not fairly be determined on affidavits or even at a preliminary hearing. n5 For this reason, findings of fact made in an action on a motion for a preliminary injunction are not controlling at any subsequent hearing for a permanent injunction, and parties at the later hearing must retry the issues. n6

Findings are not required when there is no issue of fact involved in the grant or denial of the injunction. n7 It has also been held that, in contrast to when the interlocutory injunction is issued, findings are not required on a motion to dissolve an injunction. n8

In general, the fact that the district court failed to make findings in a case seeking an interlocutory injunction does not deprive the appellate court of jurisdiction over the case. An appellate court may review the order in the absence of findings if the entire record provides a sufficient basis for the district court's decision. n9 If the appellate court concludes that the findings are not adequate for review, the court may vacate and remand to the district court for further findings. n10 Alternatively, the appellate court may choose to vacate and remand to the lower court for a further evidentiary hearing, if it does not appear that the trial court could make adequate findings on the basis of the evidence heard by the trial court. n11

[b] Temporary Restraining Orders

Rule 52 generally does not require findings of fact and conclusions of law for temporary restraining orders, because such orders are issued in emergency circumstances to prevent irreparable harm and are usually of limited duration and therefore exempt from appellate review. n12 When a temporary restraining order is continued beyond the statutory time limits without the consent of the party against whom it was issued in contravention of Rule 65(b), however, the order in effect becomes an interlocutory injunction. As discussed above, the court is then required to make findings of facts and conclusions of law, and if the court does not make the findings and conclusions, the temporary restraining order becomes invalid. n13 However, even when findings are required for a temporary restraining order, the requirement is not jurisdictional and remand by the appellate court may not be necessary. If the entire record contains sufficient evidence to support injunctive relief, the reviewing court may examine the record even in the absence of findings of fact and conclusions of law. n14

[c] Permanent Injunctions

Because Rule 52(a)(2) expressly refers only to interlocutory injunctions, n15 courts have indicated that Rule 52(a)(2) is inapplicable to permanent injunctions. n16 However, because Rule 52(a)(1) extends to all actions tried on the facts without a jury, that provision does extend to actions seeking permanent injunctions, n17 which must be decided without a jury. Therefore, a court must make findings of fact and conclusions of law in all cases when a permanent injunction is granted or denied. n18 As is the case with an interlocutory injunction, a court must make findings with respect to the four factors that govern issuance of a permanent injunction. The four factors for issuing a permanent or interlocutory injunction are essentially the same except for one key difference. A permanent injunction requires the moving party to show actual success on the merits, rather than the fair chance of prevailing on the merits required for an interlocutory injunction. n19

[3] Motion for Partial Findings

In a non-jury trial, Rule 52(c) requires findings of fact and conclusions of law in order for the court to enter a judgment on partial findings, n1 which is a judgment against a party with respect to a particular claim or defense after the party has been fully heard on that issue. n2 Consequently, the court must make findings of fact and conclusions of law that support any decision the court makes on a motion for partial findings. n3 On the other hand, findings of fact and conclusions of law are not required to accompany decisions on any other motion. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsBench TrialsCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSanctionsContemptCivil Contempt

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For further discussion, see 9 Moore's Federal Practice, § 52.10 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(1). For a discussion of the procedures followed in a case with an advisory jury, see Ch. 22, Trial by Jury.

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(1) (court must make findings).

(n4)Footnote 3. Inverness Corp. v. Whitehall Laboratories, 819 F.2d 48, 50 (2d Cir. 1987) (requirement of Rule 52(a) is mandatory and may not be waived); see United States v. City of Yonkers, 181 F.3d 301, 325 (2d Cir.) , vacated, 197 F.3d 41 (2d Cir. 1999) (appellate court requires findings from district court, not stipulation of parties regarding what findings should be).

(n5)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 1.; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 81(a)(1) (exceptions); see also McAllister v. United States, 348 U.S. 19, 20, 75 S. Ct. 6, 99 L. Ed. 20 (1954) (United States Supreme Court resolved conflict in case law by ruling that Rule 52 was applicable to admiralty cases).

(n6)Footnote 5. United States v. Yellow Cab Co., 338 U.S. 338, 341-342, 94 L. Ed. 150 (1949) (Rule 52 applies to appeals by Government as well as to those of other parties).

(n7)Footnote 6. Dempsey v. United States, 32 F.3d 1490, 1493 (11th Cir. 1994) (Federal Trade Commission Act action against United States).

(n8)Footnote 7. Fellows v. Colonial Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 19 F.3d 245, 246 (5th Cir. 1994) ; In re X-Cel, Inc., 776 F.2d 130,132-133 (7th Cir. 1985) .

(n9)Footnote 8. Laney v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 674 F.2d 342, 345 (5th Cir. 1982) (Tax Court's findings of fact, like those of district court, are subject to requirements of Rule 52(a)); see 26 U.S.C. § 7482; Commissioner v. Duberstein, 363 U.S. 278, 291, 80 S. Ct 1190, 4 L. Ed. 2d 1218 (1960) (under IRC § 7482(a), decisions by Tax Court must be reviewed in same manner and to the same extent as decisions of district court in civil actions tried without jury).

(n10)Footnote 9. Mason v. Vasquez, 5 F.3d 1220, 1224-1225 (9th Cir. 1993) ; United States v. Cruz, 581 F.2d 535, 540-541 (5th Cir. 1978) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n11)Footnote 10. Sanders v. Monsanto Co., 574 F.2d 198, 200 (5th Cir. 1978) (Rule 52(a) applies to civil contempt actions because of factual nature of these actions).

(n12)Footnote 11. United States v. One 1964 Cadillac 2-Door Coupe, 458 F.2d 391, 392 (9th Cir. 1972) (district court's factual findings that automobile was not used to facilitate transportation of contraband in forfeiture proceeding were not clearly erroneous); Utley Wholesale Co. v. United States, 308 F.2d 157, 159 (5th Cir. 1962) (in forfeiture case, factual findings that vehicles were used in violation of internal revenue law were not clearly erroneous).

(n13)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(2); see Chaplaincy of Full Gospel Churches v. England, 454 F.3d 290, 304-305 (D.C. Cir. 2006) .

(n14)Footnote 2. Mayo v. Lakeland Highlands Canning Co., 309 U.S. 310, 316, 60 S. Ct. 517, 84 L. Ed. 774 (1940) .

(n15)Footnote 2.1. Alleyne v. N.Y. State Educ. Dep't, 516 F.3d 96, 101 (2d Cir. 2008) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 65(d)(1)(A).

(n16)Footnote 3. Hoechst Diafoil Co. v. Nan Ya Plastics Corp., 174 F.3d 411, 423 (4th Cir. 1999) .

(n17)Footnote 4. Davis v. New York City Housing Auth., 166 F.3d 432, 435 (2d Cir. 1999) .

(n18)Footnote 4.1. See Coalition to Defend Affirmative Action v. Granholm, 473 F.3d 237, 244 (6th Cir. 2006) ; see also Ridgely v. FEMA, 512 F.3d 727, 734 (5th Cir. 2008) (statement of four factors).

(n19)Footnote 5. Bose Corp. v. Linear Design Labs., Inc., 467 F.2d 304, 311 (2d Cir. 1972) (court of appeals affirmed denial of preliminary injunction in patent infringement action with modification to maintain status quo).

(n20)Footnote 6. Imperial Chem. Indus., Ltd. v. National Distillers & Chem. Corp., 354 F.2d 459, 463 (2d Cir. 1965) (court of appeals affirmed denial of preliminary injunction against disclosure of trade secrets and remanded case to trial court where parties were free to retry same issues at hearing for permanent injunction).

(n21)Footnote 7. Urbain v. Knapp Bros. Mfg. Co., 217 F.2d 810, 816 (6th Cir. 1954) , cert. denied, 349 U.S. 930 (1955) ; see § 23.03[1].

(n22)Footnote 8. Baltimore & O. R.R. Co. v. Chicago River & Ind. R.R. Co., 170 F.2d 654, 659 (7th Cir. 1948) .

(n23)Footnote 9. San Filippo v. United Bhd. of Carpenters & Joiners, 525 F.2d 508, 511 (2d Cir. 1975) (because decision was based on pleadings and affidavits, court was able to render decision based on record).

(n24)Footnote 10. Davis v. United States, 422 F.2d 1139, 1141-1142 (5th Cir. 1970) (citing Moore's Federal Practice, court remanded because facts were hotly disputed, and court could not reach full understanding of issues in absence of findings by trial court).

(n25)Footnote 11. Landmark Land Co. v. Office of Thrift Supervision, 990 F.2d 807, 811 (5th Cir. 1993) (record revealed several disputes of material fact which had to be resolved at evidentiary hearing).

(n26)Footnote 12. See Romer v. Green Point Sav. Bank, 27 F.3d 12, 16 (2d Cir. 1994) (in class action by depositors challenging conversion plan of savings bank into public stock company, it was error to issue temporary restraining order disposing of all that was at stake in litigation without findings of fact and conclusions of law even if not required by Rule 52(a)).

(n27)Footnote 13. Granny Goose Foods, Inc. v. Brotherhood of Teamsters & Auto Truck Drivers, 415 U.S. 423, 443, 94 S. Ct. 1113, 39 L. Ed. 2d 435 (1974) (proper procedure where preliminary injunction hearing has been held after issuance of temporary restraining order is not to simply continue order in effect, but rather to issue preliminary injunction accompanied by necessary findings of fact and conclusions of law).

(n28)Footnote 14. Sampson v. Murray, 415 U.S. 61, 87 n.58, 94 S. Ct. 937, 39 L. Ed. 2d 166 (1974) (Supreme Court examined district court's record to determine if sufficient allegations or evidence supported issuance of injunctive relief, even though district court did not comply with requirements of Rule 52(a)).

(n29)Footnote 15. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(2).

(n30)Footnote 16. Dresser-Rand Co. v. Virtual Automation, Inc., 361 F.3d 831, 847 (5th Cir. 2004) .

(n31)Footnote 17. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(1).

(n32)Footnote 18. See Gibson Guitar Corp. v. Paul Reed Smith Guitars, LP, 423 F.3d 539, 546 (6th Cir. 2005) .

(n33)Footnote 19. Oglala Sioux Tribe v. C & W Enters., 542 F.3d 224, 229 (8th Cir. 2008) .

(n34)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(c); see Bowen v. Celotex Corp., 292 F.3d 565, 566 (8th Cir. 2002) ; see also Nieto v. Kapoor, 268 F.3d 1208, 1217-1218 (10th Cir. 2001) (motion for judgment made in trial to court at close of the plaintiff's evidence is governed by Rule 52(c), which requires court to make findings of fact and conclusions of law if it grants motion).

(n35)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(c); see § 23.10 (complete discussion of judgment on partial findings).

(n36)Footnote 3. Bd. of Trs. New Orleans Emplrs. Int'l Longshoremen's Ass'n v. Gabriel, 529 F.3d 506, 509 (5th Cir. 2008) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(c).

(n37)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(3); see § 23.03[3].

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 23 TRIAL TO COURT; INABILITY OF JUDGE TO PROCEED
PART I. FINDINGS BY THE TRIAL COURT

3-23 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 23.03

§ 23.03 Cases When Court is not Required to Make Findingsn*

[1] Absence of Factual Dispute

The courts have generally held that findings of fact need not be made in a case when the parties are not disputing the facts. n1 Findings need not be included in the record for review because the appellate court will not need to resolve issues related to the facts. However, even when there are no disputed facts, findings of fact may be required in those cases when the trier of fact could reasonably draw different inferences from the stipulated facts. n2

[2] Consent Decree

A consent decree, also known as a consent judgment or settlement judgment, n1 is a judgment of the court that incorporates a settlement agreement of the parties. n2 A consent decree does not generally require the trial court to make findings of fact because the consent decree does not result from a trial on the facts and the parties generally may not attack the decree on appeal. If a party is authorized to take an appeal, however, the district court may have to make and file findings of fact and conclusions of law. n3

[3] Motions

[a] Findings Generally Not Required

Generally, the court is not required to make findings of fact and conclusions of law with respect to motions. In particular, findings and conclusions are not mandatory for decisions made on two types of motions: n1 motions for summary judgment, n2 and motions to dismiss under Rule 12. n3 Additionally, findings and conclusions are not required for any other types of motions made to the court unless the federal rule controlling the particular rule requires them. n4 However, there is an important exception to this rule for motions for partial findings, as discussed in § 23.02[3].

[b] Motions for Summary Judgment

When the trial court grants or denies a motion for summary judgment, the court is not required to make findings of fact.

n5 Two important reasons for this rule are that the court is not permitted to judge the evidence on a summary judgment motion, n5.1 and, by definition, a summary judgment is granted because there are no triable issues of fact. n6 Even though they are not required to do so, most district judges, when ruling on a motion for summary judgment, include a brief statement containing the reasons for their conclusions; n7 furthermore, many appellate courts have noted that when a court issues an order either granting or denying a motion for summary judgment, it is very helpful to the appellate court when the trial court does indicate those material facts as to which the court determined that a genuine issue of fact does or does not exist. n8

While not technically requiring formal findings of fact, some appellate courts have reversed summary judgment orders on the grounds that the district court failed to provide an adequate explanation of the basis of its decision. n9 Thus, an appellate court may require that district courts accompany summary judgment orders with some articulation of the reasoning for the order. A brief explanation by the trial court does not impose a serious burden, would assist parties in crafting appellate briefs responsive to dispositive issues, and would clearly facilitate appellate review. n9.1 Such courts rationalize this requirement on grounds that they are only requiring an explanation of the legal basis of the lower court's order, not a finding of fact. n10

[c] Motions to Dismiss

A trial court does not need to state findings of fact nor conclusions of law when ruling on a Rule 12 motion to dismiss. n11 The first five defenses enumerated in Rule 12(b), which may be asserted by motion and do not require findings under Rule 52 are: lack of jurisdiction over the subject matter; lack of jurisdiction over the person; improper venue; insufficiency of process; and insufficiency of service of process. Generally, a motion raising one of these defenses involves only undisputed facts and questions of law, and findings of fact would not be helpful because the reviewing court will not be concerned with the factual issues. n12

Unlike motions for summary judgment, which by definition do not involve conflicting sets of facts, some motions made under Rule 12 are not limited to questions of law, and disposition of these motions may require a determination of factual questions. Therefore, some courts have suggested that the district court should make factual findings whenever factual determinations are necessary for a motion, n13 or when findings and conclusions would be helpful for the appellate court to review the determination of a motion. n14

[d] Other Motions

For any other motion, a trial court does not need to state findings of fact nor conclusions of law, except when expressly required by a federal rule governing a particular motion. n15 For example, findings and conclusions are explicitly required for motions regarding the following: n15.1 Rules 23(e); n15.2 23(h); n15.3 and 54(d)(2)(C). n15.4 are not required, for example, on a motion for judgment as a matter of law; n16 a motion seeking dismissal for want of prosecution; n17 or a motion to quash service of process. n18 Rule 52 does not forbid a court from making findings on these motions, and an explanation of the court's conclusions may be helpful to the reviewing court. n19 Furthermore, when a motion involves conflicting positions of factual substance, several appellate courts have concluded that findings are desirable and should be made. n20

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureSummary JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureTrialsBench TrialsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 9 Moore's Federal Practice, § 52.11 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. James Burrough, Ltd. v. Sign of Beefeater, Inc., 540 F.2d 266, 273 (7th Cir. 1976) (because facts were not disputed in trademark infringement action, and there was no need for resolution of conflicts in testimony, Rule 52(a) was inapplicable).

(n3)Footnote 2. Weissbaum v. Hannon, 439 F. Supp. 873, 876 n.2 (N.D. Ill. 1977) (citing Moore's Federal Practice in action for monetary and injunctive relief for termination of employment in violation of First and Fourteenth amendment rights).

(n4)Footnote 1. See United States v. IBM, 163 F.3d 737 (2d Cir. 1998) .

(n5)Footnote 2. United States v. Sforza, 326 F.3d 107, 115-116 (2d Cir. 2003) (consent decree requires court approval of the parties' settlement agreement, which means that court must make determination that settlement agreement is appropriate to be accorded status of judicially enforceable decree).

(n6)Footnote 3. See United States v. American Cyanamid, 20 F. Supp. 2d 326, 338-339 (D.R.I. 1998) ; Fortin v. Commissioner of Mass. Dep't of Pub. Welfare, 692 F.2d 790 (1st Cir. 1982) ; United States v. Institute of Carpet Mfrs., Ltd., 1 F.R.D. 636, 637-638 (S.D.N.Y. 1941) .

(n7)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(3).

(n8)Footnote 2. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 56; see [b], below.

(n9)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 12; see [c], below.

(n10)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(3); see [d], below.

(n11)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(3); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 56.

(n12)Footnote 5.1. Patton v. MFS/Sun Life Fin. Distribs., 480 F.3d 478, 484 (7th Cir. 2007) .

(n13)Footnote 6. Gaines v. Haughton, 645 F.2d 761, 768 n.13 (9th Cir. 1981) , cert. denied, 454 U.S. 1145 (1982) (citing Moore's Federal Practice, summary judgment granted in action for breach of fiduciary duty and for wasting corporate assets in favor of defendants, because there were no genuine issues of material fact).

(n14)Footnote 7. Mallary v. United States, 238 F. Supp. 87, 88 (M.D. Ga. 1965) .

(n15)Footnote 8. Pasquino v. Prather, 13 F.3d 1049, 1051 (7th Cir. 1994) (in reviewing order denying summary judgment, circuit court did not say that explanation was desirable in all cases; however, because issue was relatively close question, trial court should have isolated genuine issues of material fact rather than merely stating that such facts existed).

(n16)Footnote 9. [Reserved]

(n17)Footnote 9.1. Forbes v. Twp. of Lower Merion, 313 F.3d 144, 148-149 (3d Cir. 2002) (requiring courts in circuit to accompany decision on summary judgment with explanation sufficient to permit parties and court to understand legal premise for court's order).

(n18)Footnote 10. See Vadino v. A. Valey Eng'rs, 903 F.2d 253, 258-259 (3d Cir. 1990) .

(n19)Footnote 11. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(3); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 12; Cal. Pro-Life Council, Inc. v. Randolph, 507 F.3d 1172, 1177 (9th Cir. 2007) .

(n20)Footnote 12. Cal. Pro-Life Council, Inc. v. Randolph, 507 F.3d 1172, 1177 (9th Cir. 2007) ; Huckeby v.

Frozen Food Express, 555 F.2d 542, 545 (5th Cir. 1977) .

(n21)Footnote 13. Francis v. Goodman, 81 F.3d 5, 7-8 (1st Cir. 1996) (remanding for findings of fact and conclusions of law concerning motion to remand for lack of diversity jurisdiction, when facts were in issue, and reviewing court could not determine facts or theory relied on by trial court).

(n22)Footnote 14. Societe de Conditionnement en Aluminum v. Hunter Engineering Co., 655 F.2d 938, 942 (9th Cir. 1981) (when district court dismissed case for lack of subject matter jurisdiction, it would have been helpful to reviewing court if district court had provided findings of fact and conclusions of law).

(n23)Footnote 15. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(3).

(n24)Footnote 15.1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 55, Committee Notes to 2007 Amendments.

(n25)Footnote 15.2. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(e) (class action settlement, dismissal or compromise).

(n26)Footnote 15.3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h) (class action attorney's fees and costs).

(n27)Footnote 15.4. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2)(C) (attorney's fees on judgment).

(n28)Footnote 16. Weir v. Chicago Plastering Inst., 272 F.2d 883, 888 (7th Cir. 1959) .

(n29)Footnote 17. Esteva v. House of Seagram, Inc., 314 F.2d 827, 830 (7th Cir. 1963) , cert. denied, 375 U.S. 826 (1963) .

(n30)Footnote 18. Republic Supply Corp. v. Lewyt Corp., 160 F. Supp. 949, 950 (E.D. Mich. 1958) .

(n31)Footnote 19. Cody v. Hillard, 139 F.3d 1197, 1200 (8th Cir. 1998) (although Rule 52 does not require district court to make findings of fact and conclusions of law for rulings on motions, circuit court may remand case for findings and conclusions if appellate review would be hindered without them).

(n32)Footnote 20. Sanders v. Monsanto Co., 574 F.2d 198, 200 (5th Cir. 1978) (civil contempt order proceeding); Interpace Corp. v. City of Philadelphia, 438 F.2d 401, 404 (3d Cir. 1971) (decision on certification of class action).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 23 TRIAL TO COURT; INABILITY OF JUDGE TO PROCEED
PART I. FINDINGS BY THE TRIAL COURT

3-23 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 23.04

§ 23.04 Effect of Court's Failure to Make Required Findingsn*

[1] Failure is Not Jurisdictional Bar to Appeal

Although Rule 52 requires the district court in a non-jury case to make findings of fact and state separately its conclusions of law, compliance with the rule is not a jurisdictional requirement for appeal. This means that the circuit court may proceed with appellate review despite inadequate findings whenever the circuit court is able to discern enough solid facts from the record to permit the court to render a decision. n1 If the appellate court can discern enough substantial facts from the record as a whole to enable it to render a decision, it may proceed to review the trial court order, n1.1 despite the fact that the findings are themselves inadequate. n2 Thus, the appellate court is not required to remand n3 if the court will be able to get a complete understanding of the issues without the aid of separate findings. n4 In this regard, if the trial court's decision did not turn on the facts, n5 or if the facts of the case are undisputed, n6 remand is not usually necessary unless different inferences may be drawn from the facts in the record. n7

[2] Appellate Court May Require Remand or Retrial

In the event that the trial court completely fails to make the necessary findings of fact, or fails to make findings on a material issue, the appellate court should vacate the judgment and remand the action to the district court for the district court to make the required findings and conclusions. n1 The court of appeals may also vacate the judgment and remand if the district court makes findings that are otherwise inadequate, for example, if the district court makes only partial or conclusory factual findings or fails to state its conclusions of law. n2 n3

However, in some cases the appellate court may require additional evidence, rather than merely remanding for findings alone, if the appellate court determines that the trial court failed to hear testimony on a material issue. n4 In such cases, the appellate court may remand and instruct the district court to hear additional evidence, n5 instead of merely remanding for further findings. Another alternative available to the appellate court is to remand the case and require the trial court determine whether it can make additional findings based on the existing record, or whether it will need to hear additional evidence in order to prepare sufficient findings. n6

In some circumstances, the appellate court may deem it necessary to order a retrial, n7 for example, when a significant period of time has elapsed since the trial, and the appellate court determines that the record might not be fresh in the trial judge's mind. n8 Also, the appellate court may itself review the findings and conclusions of the district court and the factual assertions and contentions of the parties in light of the controlling legal principles, to determine whether the facts and law compel a particular result and, if so, remand to the district court to enter an order with that result. n8.1

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsBench TrialsCivil ProcedureAppealsRemands

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 9 Moore's Federal Practice, § 52.12 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. LGS Architects, Inc. v. Concordia Homes, 434 F.3d 1150, 1155 (9th Cir. 2006) (absence of conclusions of law did not preclude court of appeals from undertaking meaningful appellate review of legal interpretation of parties' agreement).

(n3)Footnote 1.1. FTC v. Enforma Natural Prods., 362 F.3d 1204, 1212 (9th Cir. 2004) (failure to comply with Rule 52(a) does not require reversal unless complete understanding of question is not possible without aid of separate findings or conclusions).

(n4)Footnote 2. Boatmen's First Nat'l Bank v. Kansas Pub. Employees Retirement Sys., 57 F.3d 638, 640 n.5 (8th Cir. 1995) (appellate review absent specific findings and conclusions from district court may proceed when record itself sufficiently informs court of basis for decision on material issues).

(n5)Footnote 3. See [2], below.

(n6)Footnote 4. Magna Weld Sales Co. v. Magna Alloys & Research Pty., 545 F.2d 668, 671 (9th Cir. 1976) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n7)Footnote 5. Spray-Bilt, Inc. v. Ingersoll-Rand World Trade, Ltd., 350 F.2d 99, 103 (5th Cir. 1965) .

(n8)Footnote 6. Yanish v. Barber, 232 F.2d 939, 947 (9th Cir. 1956) (citing Moore's Federal Practice and holding that because of lack of dispute or contradiction in record, case did not have to be remanded for further findings).

(n9)Footnote 7. Rothenberg v. Security Management Co., 736 F.2d 1470, 1472 (11th Cir. 1984) (case remanded to district court for factual findings supporting its conclusion that appellants' derivative actions were brought as leverage for their personal claims).

(n10)Footnote 1. Amadeo v. Zant, 486 U.S. 214, 228, 108 S. Ct. 1771, 100 L. Ed. 2d 249 (1988) (district court's lack of findings does not allow court of appeals to engage in impermissible appellate factfinding); Pullman Standard, Div. of Pullman, Inc. v. Swint, 456 U.S. 273, 291, 102 S. Ct. 1781, 72 L. Ed. 2d 66 (1982) , vacated, 493 U.S. 929, 110 S. Ct. 316, 107 L. Ed. 2d 307 (1989) (citing Moore's Federal Practice; if district court has failed to make findings because of an erroneous view of law, usual rule is that appellate court should remand for further proceedings for trial court to make missing findings).

(n11)Footnote 2. Kos Pharms., Inc. v. Andrx Corp., 369 F.3d 700, 711-712 (3d Cir. 2004) (citing Moore's Federal Practice); see Duffie v. Deere & Co., 111 F.3d 70, 73-74 (8th Cir. 1997) (remand for additional findings was appropriate where district court made only one conclusory finding).

(n12)Footnote 3. [Reserved]

(n13)Footnote 4. Plemer v. Parsons-Gilbane, 713 F.2d 1127, 1138 (5th Cir. 1983) .

(n14)Footnote 5. Plemer v. Parsons-Gilbane, 713 F.2d 1127, 1138 (5th Cir. 1983) (in discrimination case, district court erred in refusing to consider statistical evidence; therefore, appellate court remanded case for additional review of evidence and new findings); Girard Trust Co. v. Windt, 178 F.2d 359, 360 (2d Cir. 1949) .

(n15)Footnote 6. Monarch Beverage Co. v. Tyfield Importers, Inc., 823 F.2d 1187, 1192 (7th Cir. 1987) (remanded case for more precise findings of fact and conclusions of law, and instructed trial court to decide whether additional evidence would have to be received).

(n16)Footnote 7. Andre v. Bendix Corp., 774 F.2d 786, 801 (7th Cir. 1985) , cert. denied, 488 U.S. 855 (1988) .

(n17)Footnote 8. Rucker v. Higher Educational Aids Bd., 669 F.2d 1179, 1184 (7th Cir. 1982) (trial ended more than one year prior to appeal, so record might be stale in trial judge's mind).

(n18)Footnote 8.1. Kos Pharms., Inc. v. Andrx Corp., 369 F.3d 700, 711-712 (3d Cir. 2004) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 23 TRIAL TO COURT; INABILITY OF JUDGE TO PROCEED
PART I. FINDINGS BY THE TRIAL COURT

3-23 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 23.05

§ 23.05 Methods for Trial Court to Make Findingsn*

[1] Findings in Writing

[a] Findings Either in Opinion or in Separate Document

The court must make findings of facts specially and state its conclusions of law separately. The findings and conclusions may appear in written form in an opinion or a memorandum of decision filed by the court or may be stated on the record after the close of the evidence. n1 When in written form, the court has three choices. The court may: n1.1 (1) place them in a separate document as formal findings; (2) draft them as part of the court's opinion; or (3) prepare both formal findings and an opinion to provide the appellate court with a more thorough understanding of the issues before the trial court. n2 The appellate court will interpret the trial judge's opinion liberally and will find the information in the opinion to contain adequate findings if at all possible. n3

If the opinion conflicts with the formal findings, the formal findings will be controlling. n4 Similarly, a court's statements from the bench will not be considered controlling, and will not cause error if they do not support or amplify formal findings made by the court. n5 The appellate court may consider additional findings in the district court's opinion only to the extent that they are direct, clear, and consistent with the district court's formal findings. n6

[b] Particular Format Not Essential

The district court need not use any particular format for the court's findings of fact and conclusions of law. n7 However, local court rules may contain more specific requirements. n8 Appellate courts also may tolerate or even approve particular methods for preparing findings. One court approved a procedure in which the district court first stated its findings in a rambling manner and then methodically reviewed every item, using as a framework a list of disputed facts submitted by each party before the trial. With respect to each relevant contention, the court then stated whether the contention was proven or not proven, by rewording or adding to the party's statement of the factual contention, to clarify the precise extent of the finding. The court of appeals concluded that this method would result in a detailed, annotated list of findings that would leave no doubt about what the court found with respect to each relevant factual element of the case, or that the trial court had taken considerable care and attention in reaching its findings. n9

[2] Verbal Findings

Rule 52 expressly allows trial judges to make their findings verbally, provided the findings are stated on the record in open court following the close of the evidence. n1 Even before the federal rule expressly authorized the use of verbal findings, this practice was commonly used by district judges. n2 The amendment to Rule 52 confirmed the propriety of this practice for the purpose of reducing the burden on trial judges in non-jury trials. n3 Thus, in certain circumstances oral opinions are often the most efficient and economical method of meeting the requirements of Rule 52. n4 Of course, oral findings must contain sufficient information to provide the appellate court with a clear understanding of the lower court's reasoning, and must meet all the requirements of clarity and completeness that are applicable to written findings. n5 However, oral findings may be particularly inappropriate in a complex case. A judge who attempts to make findings orally may fail to identify and resolve all existing issues, and thus fail to provide the appellate court with an inadequate record for review. n6 Courts have been required in such cases to prepare written findings at least with respect to the most important issues presented. n7

[3] Findings Made Only on Record

Findings of the trial court may be based on a written record, and is no requirement for an evidentiary hearing. n1 For example, the district court may base findings of fact only on depositions and documents, and such findings are reviewed by the appellate court under the "clearly erroneous" test. n2 Of course, the appellate court may not give such findings the special weight normally accorded findings when the trial court has observed the demeanor of live witnesses. n3

[4] Adoption of Findings Made by Special Master

A district court may adopt the findings of a master designated to the case, and these findings are deemed to be the findings of the court itself. n1 A trial court may appoint a master to hold trial proceedings and make or recommend findings of fact on issues to be decided without a jury provided that appointment is warranted by some exceptional condition, n2 or the need to perform an accounting or resolve a difficult computation of damages. n3 The trial court must decide de novo all objections to findings of fact made or recommended by a master, unless the parties, with the court's approval, stipulate that the findings will be reviewed for clear error. n4 The court must decide de novo all objections to conclusions of law made or recommended by a master. n5

If a master dies after the close of testimony but before findings are made, the district court may, if possible, make findings of fact and conclusions of law based on the transcript. If the record is not sufficiently clear for the district judge to make findings, a new hearing must be held, and the district court must make new findings and conclusions. n6

[5] Adoption of Findings Made by Parties

[a] Trial Court's Request for Proposed Findings

The trial judge may request assistance in preparing findings by asking counsel for both parties to submit proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law. Local rules of court may require submission of proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law as part of final preparations for trial of a case. However, submission of proposed findings is not required under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Therefore, it is not error for the trial judge to proceed without proposed findings. n1

A request for proposed findings from the parties is particularly useful in very complex cases or in cases containing highly technical scientific issues, such as patent cases. It has even been suggested that proposed findings prepared by an expert are highly desirable in these cases to avoid inadvertently committing a serious technological or scientific error. n2

[b] Obligation to Prepare Proposed Findings When Requested by Court

When requested by the court or directed by a local rule of court, the attorney has an affirmative obligation to assist the court by preparing and filing proposed findings. The attorney should take care to ensure that the proposed findings are sufficient to form a proper factual basis for the ultimate conclusions of the court. n3 A party that does not provide proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law is at a disadvantage when attempting to argue later that the court adopted the findings submitted by opposing counsel, n4 or to argue that the final findings and conclusions are inadequate or incomplete. If a local rule of court requires parties to prepare and file proposed findings in non-jury cases, and this is not done, such failure may subject the party to risk of sanctions or an adverse ruling.

[c] Court's Use of Party's Proposed Findings

In using proposed findings, the judge should carefully consider and independently determine the accuracy of the parties' proposed findings, and adopt only those proposed findings that are supported by the other items which must be reviewed by the court in the case, including the evidence presented at trial, the testimony of the witnesses at trial, the parties' trial briefs, the other documents and evidence in the record, and the applicable law. n5 The trial court may adopt any reasonable methods it considers appropriate for using the proposed findings. For example, in some jurisdictions it is common for the court to make a decision and then request that only the prevailing party submit proposed findings. While this practice has been criticized, it is an acceptable procedure. n6

The final findings submitted by the trial court must be sufficiently detailed to provide the appellate court with an adequate record for review, and an appellate court will use only findings that are the result of a careful and thoughtful review of the evidence, rather than just a reiteration of the party's point of view.

A number of trial courts have employed procedures that have used proposed findings of the parties effectively and these have gained the approval of appellate court. For example, in one case, the trial court had the parties exchange proposals and object to the counter proposals with appropriate fact and legal references, with the court then deciding on which proposals to incorporate in its findings. n7

[d] Trial Court's Verbatim Use of Party's Proposed Findings Tolerated

[i] Verbatim Adoptions Permitted

Rule 52 does not forbid the practice of verbatim adoption of the proposed findings or portions of the proposed findings of a party. The United States Supreme Court has held that even findings made by verbatim adoption may not be rejected out-of-hand, and the appellate court should let them stand if supported by the evidence. n8 Consequently, while the practice is usually viewed with disfavor, n9 appellate courts may accept verbatim proposed findings unless they are shown to be clearly erroneous. n10 If certain factors are present, an appellate court is generally more amenable to the verbatim adoption of proposed findings with more favor. For example, the practice has been accepted if the facts of a case are very technical or complex. n11 Similarly, a reviewing court is more likely to approve of verbatim findings if the proposed findings of the parties are skillfully and intelligently drafted. n12

Appellate courts also have approved the use of findings proposed by one party, although not verbatim, in cases in which the trial court carefully reviewed the proposed findings, removed those that were incorrect, and otherwise edited the content and the language of the findings to ensure that they reflected his or her own conclusions regarding the evidence. n13 However, while these factors make an appellate court more likely to adopt findings, they are not required as a prerequisite for approval. Appellate courts recognize that district courts are under great time pressure, n14 and reviewing courts have refused to set aside verbatim findings found to be supported by the record even though they incorporated, for example, the same typographical errors as those contained in the findings proposed by counsel. n15

[ii] Criticisms of Verbatim Adoptions

Appellate courts do not generally approve of the practice of verbatim adoptions of party's proposed findings, n15.1 even though the appellate courts will accept them in certain circumstances, as described in [i], above. Many courts have expressed their criticism with the practice, even though they may uphold the findings, except when a party can demonstrate that the process by which the judge adopted them was fundamentally unfair. n15.2 In fact, many courts have expressed their criticism with the practice, even as they may uphold the findings. n16 Among the reasons given for criticizing verbatim or mechanical adoption of findings are:

1. Findings prepared by the court are as a general rule more helpful to the appellate court. n17

2. Verbatim findings tend not to accomplish one of the most important purposes of findings, which is to promote care on the part of the trial judge in examining the facts of the case. n18

3. Verbatim findings may create doubt as to whether the district court has discharged its duty to review the evidence for itself and reached its own evaluation of the evidence rather than that of an advocate. n19

4. The use of verbatim findings may cause the losing parties to conclude that they did not receive a fair hearing from the court. Therefore, it diminishes the perception that the courts decide cases carefully and impartially. n20

For all these reasons, the use of such findings may cause the reviewing court to give them a closer and harder look, despite the fact that the appellate courts are required to apply the clearly erroneous test to mechanical and verbatim findings.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsBench Trials

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 9 Moore's Federal Practice, § 52.13, § 52.14 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(1); see [2], below (verbal findings).

(n3)Footnote 1.1. See In re Cendant Corp. Secs. Litig., 454 F.3d 235, 243 (3d Cir. 2006) (noting that findings and conclusions should not appear in Rule 58(a) "judgment").

(n4)Footnote 2. Safeway Stores, Inc., v. Safeway Quality Foods, Inc., 433 F.2d 99, 102 (7th Cir. 1970) .

(n5)Footnote 3. Goode v. Herman Miller, Inc., 811 F.2d 866, 871 (5th Cir. 1987) (appeals court read trial court's findings liberally to conclude that plaintiff's use of product was normal use of product).

(n6)Footnote 4. EEOC v. Exxon Shipping Co., 745 F.2d 967, 974 (5th Cir. 1984) (appellate court would not imply from isolated language in opinion that trial court applied erroneous standard when findings and conclusions established that court properly allocated burden of proof and made sufficient findings to support judgment).

(n7)Footnote 5. Hong v. United States, 363 F.2d 116, 120 (9th Cir. 1966) (because district court made formal and detailed findings, appellate court "need not and should not" review conflicting oral statements).

(n8)Footnote 6. Kimbro v. Atlantic Richfield Co., 889 F.2d 869, 878 (9th Cir. 1989) , cert. denied, 498 U.S. 814 (1990) .

(n9)Footnote 7. Okaw Drainage Dist. v. National Distillers & Chem. Corp., 882 F.2d 1241, 1244 (7th Cir. 1989) (Rule 52(a) does not prescribe any format for judge's findings and conclusions).

(n10)Footnote 8. Nuelsen v. Sorensen, 293 F.2d 454, 459 (9th Cir. 1961) .

(n11)Footnote 9. Stock Equip. Co. v. Tennessee Valley Auth., 906 F.2d 583, 592-593 (11th Cir. 1990) (claim that district court damages award was erroneous because court's findings were both contradictory and inadequate as a matter of law rejected by appellate court, which found that district court's findings were adequate).

(n12)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(1).

(n13)Footnote 2. See, e.g., Mims v. Board of Education, 523 F.2d 711, 713 (7th Cir. 1975) .

(n14)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a), Committee Note to 1983 Amendments; see also Lansford-Coaldale Joint Water Auth. v. Tonolli Corp., 4 F.3d 1209, 1214 (3d Cir. 1993) (in 1983, Rule 52(a) was amended explicitly to sanction use of oral findings in bench trials).

(n15)Footnote 4. Okaw Drainage Dist. v. National Distillers & Chem. Corp., 882 F.2d 1241, 1244 (7th Cir. 1989) .

(n16)Footnote 5. In re Mazzeo, 167 F.3d 139, 142-143 (2nd Cir. 1999) ; Chandler v. City of Dallas, 958 F.2d 85, 88-90 (5th Cir. 1992) , cert. denied, 511 U.S. 1011 (1994) .

(n17)Footnote 6. In re Mazzeo, 167 F.3d 139, 142-143 (2nd Cir. 1999) .

(n18)Footnote 7. Bartsh v. Northwest Airlines, Inc., 831 F.2d 1297, 1305 (7th Cir. 1987) (in complex age discrimination case, transcribed findings of eight and one half pages could have been more complete, but they dealt with critical issues and were not clearly erroneous).

(n19)Footnote 1. Eirhart v. Libbey-Owens-Ford Co., 996 F.2d 837, 840-841 (7th Cir. 1993) (district court findings in class action were sufficient although based solely on written record); SMP Sales Management, Inc. v. Fleet Credit Corp., 960 F.2d 557, 559 (5th Cir. 1992) (in case claiming tortious interference with contract, trial court's findings based on depositions and stipulation were entitle to same standard of review that they would receive if based on oral testimony).

(n20)Footnote 2. SMP Sales Management, Inc. v. Fleet Credit Corp., 960 F.2d 557, 559 (5th Cir. 1992) .

(n21)Footnote 3. Edwards v. United States Postal Serv., 909 F.2d 320, 322 (8th Cir. 1990) .

(n22)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(4).

(n23)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 53(a)(1)(B)(i).

(n24)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 53(a)(1)(B)(ii).

(n25)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 53(f)(3); see Summers v. Howard Univ., 374 F.3d 1188, 1195 (D.C. Cir. 2004) .

(n26)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 53(f)(4).

(n27)Footnote 6. Smith v. Dental Products Co., 168 F.2d 516, 518-519 (7th Cir. 1948) .

(n28)Footnote 1. Hodgson v. Humphries, 454 F.2d 1279, 1282 (10th Cir. 1972) .

(n29)Footnote 2. Nyyssonen v. Bendix Corp., 342 F.2d 531, 532 (1st Cir. 1965) (trial court in patent infringement action properly based its decision that there was no infringement on defendant's proposed findings of fact and on defendant's expert witness' testimony).

(n30)Footnote 3. Desch v. United States, 186 F.2d 623, 626 (7th Cir. 1951) (while burden and responsibility to make findings of fact and state conclusions of law are primarily and ultimately on trial court, counsel for parties, especially prevailing party, have an obligation to assist it in performance of its duty in this regard).

(n31)Footnote 4. Bright v. Land O'Lakes, Inc., 844 F.2d 436, 440 (7th Cir. 1988) (in action for unlawful cancellation of distribution agreement, district court adopted findings proposed by defendant because plaintiff failed to submit findings on this issue as requested by district court).

(n32)Footnote 5. Selman v. Cobb County Sch. Dist., 449 F.3d 1320, 1326-1327 (11th Cir. 2006) .

(n33)Footnote 6. Schnell v. Allbright-Nell Co., 348 F.2d 444, 446 (7th Cir. 1965) , cert. denied, 383 U.S. 934 (1966) (district court adopted prevailing party's findings of fact supported by evidence); Roberts v. Ross, 344 F.2d 747, 751-752 (3rd Cir. 1965) (prior to Supreme Court's decision that permitted trial court to adopt party's findings verbatim, third circuit frowned on trial court's dependency on prevailing party's formulation of findings).

(n34)Footnote 7. Heterochemical Corp. v. United States Rubber Co., 368 F.2d 169, 172 (7th Cir. 1966) .

(n35)Footnote 8. United States v. El Paso Natural Gas Co., 376 U.S. 651, 656, 84 S. Ct. 1044, 12 L. Ed. 2d 12 (1964) .

(n36)Footnote 9. In re Jess, 169 F.3d 1204, 1209-1210 (9th Cir. 1999) (circuit has frequently criticized trial court's wholesale adoption of party's proposed findings.

(n37)Footnote 10. Dole Fresh Fruit Co. v. United Banana Co., 821 F.2d 106, 109 (2d Cir. 1987) (court adopted by reference findings of fact proposed by plaintiff).

(n38)Footnote 11. Photo Elecs. Corp. v. England, 581 F.2d 772, 777 (9th Cir. 1978) (adoption may be permissible in patent cases and in cases with complex scientific problems).

(n39)Footnote 12. PepsiCo, Inc. v. Redmond, 54 F.3d 1262, 1267 & n.4 (7th Cir. 1995) (when under time deadline pressures of preliminary injunction, it was acceptable for court to adopt many or most of parties' proposed findings, particularly if skillfully and wisely crafted).

(n40)Footnote 13. James v. Stockham Valves & Fittings Co., 559 F.2d 310, 314 & n.1 (5th Cir. 1977) , cert. denied, 434 U.S. 1034 (1978) .

(n41)Footnote 14. Eirhart v. Libbey-Owens-Ford Co., 996 F.2d 837, 842 (7th Cir. 1993) .

(n42)Footnote 15. PepsiCo, Inc. v. Redmond, 54 F.3d 1262, 1267 n.4 (7th Cir. 1995) .

(n43)Footnote 15.1. Silver v. Exec. Car Leasing Long Term Disability Plan, 466 F.3d 727, 733-734 (9th Cir. 2006) .

(n44)Footnote 15.2. In re Dixie Broadcasting, Inc., 871 F.2d 1023, 1030 (11th Cir. 1989) .

(n45)Footnote 16. In re Jess, 169 F.3d 1204, 1209-1210 (9th Cir. 1999) (although verbatim adoption of findings proposed by party might be permissible way for trial court to make findings, circuit has frequently criticized trial court's wholesale adoption of party's proposed findings).

(n46)Footnote 17. Edward Valves, Inc. v. Cameron Iron Works, Inc., 289 F.2d 355, 356 (5th Cir. 1961) , cert.

denied, 368 U.S. 833 (1961) (trial court's independent judicial labors and study are far more helpful to appellate courts than mechanical adoption of successful attorney's proposed findings).

(n47)Footnote 18. United States v. Forness, 125 F.2d 928, 942 (2d Cir. 1942) (it is better practice to file opinion with findings by trial judge, as opposed to those proposed by parties because it requires more care exercised by trial judge).

(n48)Footnote 19. Falcon Constr. Co. v. Economy Forms Corp., 805 F.2d 1229, 1232 (5th Cir. 1986) ; Andre v. Bendix Corp., 774 F.2d 786, 800 (7th Cir. 1985) , cert. denied, 488 U.S. 855 (1988) .

(n49)Footnote 20. Walton v. United Consumers Club, Inc., 786 F.2d 303, 313-314 (7th Cir. 1986) (wholesale adoption of party's proposed findings obscures reasoning process of judge).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 23 TRIAL TO COURT; INABILITY OF JUDGE TO PROCEED
PART I. FINDINGS BY THE TRIAL COURT

3-23 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 23.06

§ 23.06 Sufficiency of Findingsn*

[1] Distinction Between Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law

Rule 52 expressly provides that the trial court must find the facts specially and state separately its conclusions of law. n1 However, the rule does not instruct the court or the parties the method how to distinguish between factual findings and legal conclusions. As a general matter, a finding of fact is an examination and determination regarding the existence of circumstances related to the claim in the case. n1.1 A conclusion of law is an application of those factual circumstances to make a determination according to the correct legal standard or principle as set out in statutes, cases, and regulations. n1.2

The importance of the distinction between law and fact is that the standards of review for findings of fact and conclusions of law are different. Findings of fact may not be reversed on appeal unless they are clearly erroneous. On the other hand, the court of appeals may review conclusions de novo. Thus, the distinction between law and fact is important, but the attempt of separating findings of fact from conclusions of law may be difficult because there is no bright line between the two.

The United States Supreme Court has recognized this difficulty, and has explained that the point at which the line is drawn between law and fact varies according to the nature of the substantive law at issue. n2 Consequently, circuits often do not have uniform positions as to whether certain determinations are properly characterized as legal or factual. For example, a finding of negligence is considered by the Second Circuit as a legal conclusion because it involves a specific rule of conduct, that of reasonable care under the particular circumstances. n3 However, other circuits consider a finding of negligence to be a question of fact because the application of the standard is so fact specific. n4

[2] Findings of Fact

[a] Adequacy of Findings

The trial court must state its findings in terms sufficient to allow the appellate court the opportunity to conduct a meaningful review. n1 A district court may not merely state its findings in conclusory terms. The findings, whether written or oral, must be sufficiently detailed to disclose the steps by which the court reached its ultimate conclusions on factual issues. n1.1 The ultimate question with respect to the adequacy of findings of fact is whether the findings are sufficiently comprehensive and detailed to provide the appellate court with a clear understanding of the basis of the district court's decision. n2

There is no single test that will indicate in every case whether findings are sufficient. The degree of specificity that will be necessary to meet the requirement of sufficiency will vary from case to case. n3 Nonetheless, when a conclusion of law on a particular issue or claim requires a determination of a number of elements or factors, the district court should state the factual basis of its decision on each of the elements or factors. n3.1 The fact that the record of a case may be voluminous and the issues complicated, making the task of articulating findings more difficult, does not excuse the trial judge from making detailed findings. The appellate court needs even more detailed information to perform an adequate review in a complex case. n4 However, even where the district court's findings are poorly done and do not articulate specific factual bases for the decision, there is no Rule 52(a) defect when the basis for the decision is clear, and the record gives substantial and unequivocal support for the ultimate conclusion. n5

The trial court need not make findings on undisputed or stipulated facts, n6 unless different inferences may be drawn from the undisputed facts. n7 The court also does not need to make findings on issues that are not decisive or material to the case. For example, the court need not make findings on allegations relating to damages when the court would enter judgment for the defendant. n8

[b] Discussion of Evidence In Findings

The court of appeals will liberally construe the findings of the trial court to support a judgment or order. Consequently, if facts can be inferred from those specified in the findings, the appellate court will deem that the trial court has drawn such inferences. n9 While the court's findings must be clear, coherent, and complete on all material issues, they should avoid an unnecessarily elaborate review of the evidence. n10

As a general rule, the district court is not required to make findings on every detail, to discuss all evidence that supports each finding made, or to respond individually to each evidentiary or factual contention made by a party. n11 A decision between the positions of two parties necessarily rejects contentions made by one or the other. The trial court's failure to discuss each party's contentions does not make the findings inadequate or suggest that the court failed to understand the propositions. n12 Furthermore, the trial court may disbelieve the testimony of witnesses without giving specific reasons for doing so, provided that the record supports the conclusion that the court made adequate credibility determinations. n13

On the other hand, if substantial evidence exists to support a contrary conclusion to the one reached, the trial court should discuss that evidence and explain its conclusions. n14 The trial court is not, however, required to assert the negative of rejected propositions. n15 The appellate court will presume that the judge considered all the evidence and relied on the evidence that supported the findings, and rejected the evidence that did not support the findings, unless the trial court has stated otherwise. n16

[c] No Distinction Required Between Ultimate and Subsidiary Facts

The Supreme Court has disapproved of prior case-law distinctions between "ultimate facts" on one hand, and "preliminary," "subsidiary," or "subordinate" facts on the other. The Supreme Court noted that Rule 52(a) does not divide facts into categories and that the trial court should include a statement of all facts in its findings. n17 However, these distinctions may still be important to show how the trial court made its ultimate factual decision when the court's findings on one set of facts are necessary to form the basis of other findings. For example, a district court must state its "subordinate" factual findings in support of its "ultimate" findings, so that the court of appeals can ascertain what evidence the district judge accepted as credible and what evidence was rejected. n18 Thus, the trial court should include enough of the underlying or subsidiary facts to allow a reviewing court to follow the steps that were taken by the trial court to arrive at its conclusion on each factual issue. If the trial court fails to do so, the appellate court may rule that the findings of fact are inadequate. n19 If, however, subsidiary facts are inherent in or obvious from the findings of ultimate facts, the appellate court may not remand for further findings. n20

[3] Conclusions of Law Must State Reasons for Legal Determinations

As with the findings of fact, n1 the conclusions of law must carefully state and clearly explain the trial court's resolution of questions of law, so that the appellate court is able to conduct a just and orderly review of the rights of the parties. n2 A trial court's carefully prepared discussion of the legal issues becomes particularly important in cases that involve complex legal issues. When the district court carefully states the steps it took in its resolution of questions of law, the appellate court can then conclude that it has thoughtfully and diligently decided the legal issues. n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsBench TrialsCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewClearly Erroneous ReviewCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewDe Novo ReviewCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewFact & Law Issues

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 9 Moore's Federal Practice, § 52.15 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(1).

(n3)Footnote 1.1. Janis v. Comm'r, 461 F.3d 1080, 1084 (9th Cir. 2006) .

(n4)Footnote 1.2. See Westefer v. Snyder, 422 F.3d 570, 583 (7th Cir. 2005) .

(n5)Footnote 2. Bose Corp. v. Consumers, Inc., 466 U.S. 485, 501 n.17, 104 S. Ct. 1949, 80 L. Ed.2d 502 (1984) (determination of actual malice in defamation suit is question of law held to de novo review and not to clearly erroneous standard for factual finding under Rule 52(a)).

(n6)Footnote 3. Cleary v. United States Lines Co., 411 F.2d 1009, 1010 (2d Cir. 1969) .

(n7)Footnote 4. See, e.g., Keefe v. Bahama Cruise Line, Inc., 867 F.2d 1318, 1321 (11th Cir. 1989) (issue of whether shipowner negligently maintained ship's dance floor was a question of fact).

(n8)Footnote 1. Collins v. Henderson, 180 F.3d 988, 990 (8th Cir. 1999) ; Hoechst Diafoil Co. v. Nan Ya Plastics Corp., 174 F.3d 411, 423 (4th Cir. 1999) .

(n9)Footnote 1.1. Kos Pharms., Inc. v. Andrx Corp., 369 F.3d 700, 711-712 (3d Cir. 2004) (citing Moore's Federal Practice; findings inadequate when court considered only two of eight factors and failed to properly weigh factors).

(n10)Footnote 2. League of United Latin Am. Citizens v. Roscoe Indep. Sch. Dist., 123 F.3d 843, 846 (5th Cir. 1997) (trial court need not expressly mention all evidence in its decision, so long as court specifically identifies evidence found credible, states reasons for court's conclusions, and discusses all substantial evidence contrary to its decision).

(n11)Footnote 3. Kelley v. Everglades Drainage Dist., 319 U.S. 415, 419, 63 S. Ct. 1141, 87 L. Ed. 1485 , reh'g denied, 320 U.S. 214 (1943) .

(n12)Footnote 3.1. Kos Pharms., Inc. v. Andrx Corp., 369 F.3d 700, 711-712 (3d Cir. 2004) .

(n13)Footnote 4. Davis v. New York City Hous. Auth., 166 F.3d 432, 435 (2d Cir. 1999) (whether findings are adequate depends on importance and complexity of given issue, and depth and nature of evidence presented).

(n14)Footnote 5. Reich v. Newspapers of New England, Inc., 44 F.3d 1060, 1079 (1st Cir. 1995) (anemic factual findings are not fatal to decision so long as complete understanding of issues may be had from record); see [b], below.

(n15)Footnote 6. James Burrough, Ltd. v. Sign of Beefeater, Inc., 540 F.2d 266, 273 (7th Cir. 1976) (when there was no dispute of facts, findings were not required); Nuelsen v. Sorensen, 293 F.2d 454, 459 (9th Cir. 1961) (findings not required as to undisputed allegations).

(n16)Footnote 7. Weissbaum v. Hannon, 439 F. Supp. 873, 876 n.1 (N.D. Ill. 1977) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n17)Footnote 8. Nuelsen v. Sorensen, 293 F.2d 454, 459 (9th Cir. 1961) .

(n18)Footnote 9. Triangle Conduit & Cable Co. v. FTC, 168 F.2d 175, 179 (7th Cir. 1948) , aff'd on other grounds, 336 U.S. 956 (1949) ; see Century Marine Inc. v. United States, 153 F.3d 225, 231 (9th Cir. 1998) (if district court fails to make specific finding of particular fact, circuit court may assume that district court impliedly made finding consistent with its general holding, provided that implied finding is supported by evidence).

(n19)Footnote 10. See Reich v. Lancaster, 55 F.3d 1034, 1045 (5th Cir. 1995) (if trial judge fails to make specific finding on particular fact, appellate court may assume that court made finding consistent with general holding, so long as implied holding is supported by evidence).

(n20)Footnote 11. Addamax Corp. v. Open Software Found., Inc., 152 F.3d 48, 55 (1st Cir. 1998) (in antitrust case, district court's findings were sufficient because they included explicit intermediate findings, such as existence of competition, and strengths and weaknesses of plaintiff's product, and it was possible for circuit court to discern evidence underlying these key findings).

(n21)Footnote 12. ViCon, Inc. v. CMI Corp., 657 F.2d 768, 772 (5th Cir. 1981) (master's acceptance of findings of one party and rejection of other's does not indicate that master failed to perform judicial function).

(n22)Footnote 13. Krieger v. Gold Bond Bldg. Prods., 863 F.2d 1091, 1097 (2d Cir. 1988) (trial court's findings were not inadequate merely because they failed to refer to defendant's expert evidence that indicated that plaintiff's job performance was not satisfactory).

(n23)Footnote 14. McIntosh County Branch of NAACP v. Darien, 605 F.2d 753, 757 (5th Cir. 1979) (remand required because judge failed to discuss substantial evidence supporting contrary conclusion in complex voting rights case, where it was important for trial court to meticulously comply with Rule 52(a)).

(n24)Footnote 15. Stock Equip. Co. v. Tennessee Valley Auth., 906 F.2d 583, 592-593 (11th Cir. 1990) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n25)Footnote 16. Western Pac. Fisheries, Inc. v. SS President Grant, 730 F.2d 1280, 1285 (9th Cir. 1984) (court not required to recite every item of evidence and either adopt it or reject it).

(n26)Footnote 17. See Pullman-Standard v. Swint, 456 U.S. 273, 288, 102 S. Ct. 1781, 72 L. Ed. 2d 66 (1982) .

(n27)Footnote 18. Edwards v. Wyatt, 335 F.3d 261, 275 (3d Cir. 2003) (trial court must not leave subordinate findings unarticulated; when they actually were reached in process of arriving at ultimate factual conclusion, they must be stated).

(n28)Footnote 19. Monarch Beverage Co. v. Tyfield Importers, Inc., 823 F.2d 1187, 1192 (7th Cir. 1987)

(findings must disclose the steps by which ultimate conclusion was reached); Lettsome v. United States, 434 F.2d 907, 909 (5th Cir. 1970) (case remanded for findings of fact and conclusions of law in case in which district court held plaintiff was not contributorily negligent, because court did not enter any subsidiary findings of fact).

(n29)Footnote 20. Brown v. Lykes Bros. S.S. Co., 484 F.2d 61, 62 n.4 (5th Cir. 1973) , cert. denied, 414 U.S. 1158 (1974) .

(n30)Footnote 1. See [2], above.

(n31)Footnote 2. *Kos Pharms., Inc. v. Andrx Corp., 2004 U.S. App. LEXIS 10165, at 27 (3d Cir. May 24, 2004) (citing Moore's Federal Practice; conclusions of law must carefully enunciate and explain trial court's resolution of each question of law, including statement explaining each factor or element that forms basis of particular claim or cause of action); Monarch Beverage Co. v. Tyfield Importers, Inc., 823 F.2d 1187, 1192 (7th Cir. 1987) (district court's statement merely that law was with defendant was inadequate as legal conclusion).

(n32)Footnote 3. Chandler v. City of Dallas, 958 F.2d 85, 90 (5th Cir. 1992) , cert. denied, 511 U.S. 1011 (1994) (court was unable to determine district court's reasons for deciding legal issue in First Amendment analysis of whether speech involved matters of public concern).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 23 TRIAL TO COURT; INABILITY OF JUDGE TO PROCEED
PART I. FINDINGS BY THE TRIAL COURT

3-23 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 23.07

§ 23.07 Time for Trial Court to Make Findingsn*

The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure do not specify any particular time for the trial court to issue its findings. Rule 52(a) merely states that the court shall find the facts specially and state separately its conclusions of law on the findings of fact, and judgment shall be entered pursuant to Rule 58. n1 It has been held that the federal rules do not require the issuance of findings and conclusions before or at the same time as the order or judgment. Therefore, the court may issue its findings and conclusions after the time of judgment. n2 When the court is ruling on a motion for an injunction, for example, a requirement that findings and conclusions be issued simultaneously with the order might prevent necessary immediate action on the injunction. n3

However, in cases that do not require emergency or immediate action, it has been held that the best practice for the trial court is to prepare findings after the evidence presented by all parties has been heard and analyzed n4 but before or contemporaneously with the announcement of the decision. n5 This timing is preferred because preparation of the findings promotes thoroughness and accuracy and enables the trier of fact to clarify the issues. n6

Although the rule itself does not specify a deadline for filing findings, it apparently contemplates that findings will be filed with the judgment or shortly after judgment. This intent is apparent by the fact that Rule 52 expressly provides that a party must make any motion to amend or add to findings no later than 28 days after the entry of the judgment, n7 and this deadline may not be extended. n8

The importance of filing findings expeditiously may be affected by the circumstances of a particular case. For example, in a bifurcated trial where the damages phase of trial is held separately from the liability phase, it is helpful for the trial court to issue the findings before trial of the damages phase to enable the parties to plan their cases accordingly. Filing of findings after entry of judgment will not be deemed reversible error if the timing does not prejudice the appellant. n9

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsBench TrialsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 9 Moore's Federal Practice, § 52.16 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a).

(n3)Footnote 2. See Parcel 49C Ltd. P'ship v. United States, 31 F.3d 1147, 1150 (Fed. Cir. 1994) (findings and conclusions issued two weeks after injunctive order).

(n4)Footnote 3. Parcel 49C Ltd. P'ship v. United States, 31 F.3d 1147, 1150 (Fed. Cir. 1994) (issuance of findings and conclusions two weeks after injunctive order was not error because neither party suffered prejudice from interval between order and supportive factual and legal reasoning).

(n5)Footnote 4. Jackson v. DeSoto Parish School Board, 585 F.2d 726, 730 (5th Cir. 1978) (due process requires that findings should be made only after evidentiary hearing at which both sides have opportunity to be heard); United States v. Mills, 372 F.2d 693, 697 (10th Cir. 1966) (findings should not have been made on controverted issues at time court was deciding motion for summary judgment, such findings must await evidentiary hearing at which all parties may be heard).

(n6)Footnote 5. Gibbs v. Buck, 307 U.S. 66, 78, 59 S. Ct. 725, 83 L. Ed. 1111 (1939) (filing of findings of facts and conclusions of law should occur before or contemporaneously with the order or decree); see Lapeyrouse v. Texaco, Inc., 670 F.2d 503, 504 (5th Cir. 1982) (findings issued at time of order dismissing party for lack of in personam jurisdiction).

(n7)Footnote 6. Roberts v. Ross, 344 F.2d 747, 751-752 (3d Cir. 1965) .

(n8)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(b).

(n9)Footnote 8. Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(b)(2); Empresa Cubana Del Tabaco v. Culbro Corp., 478 F. Supp. 2d 513, 518 (S.D.N.Y. 2007) .

(n10)Footnote 9. Parcel 49C Ltd. Partnership v. United States, 31 F.3d 1147, 1150 (Fed. Cir. 1994) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 23 TRIAL TO COURT; INABILITY OF JUDGE TO PROCEED
PART I. FINDINGS BY THE TRIAL COURT

3-23 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 23.08

§ 23.08 Appellate Reviewn*

[1] Requests for Findings Not Prerequisite to Appeal

Because the trial court has a mandatory, automatic obligation to make findings and conclusions, n1 a party may on appeal question the sufficiency of evidence supporting the findings, even if the party has not made any prior request for the findings, objected to them, moved to amend them, or moved for partial findings. n2 However, rather than wait for an appeal and seeking a remand, courts have suggested that it may be advisable for a party to seek in the district court a post-judgment amendment of the findings under Rule 52(b). n3

[2] Appellate Review of Findings of Fact

[a] Clearly Erroneous Standard

An appellate court may not set aside findings of fact by the district court, whether based on oral testimony or other evidence, unless the findings are clearly erroneous. n1 However, the precise meaning of the term "clearly erroneous finding" is not stated in the rule, and it has been developed by case-law precedent. n2 The Supreme Court has provided a guiding definition: a finding is "clearly erroneous" when the reviewing court on the entire evidence is left with the definite and firm conviction that a mistake has been committed, even though there may be some evidence to support the finding. n3

If the district court's account of the evidence is plausible in light of the record viewed in its entirety, n4 the appellate court may not reverse even though it is convinced that it would have weighed the evidence differently and arrived at a different result if it had been sitting as the trier of fact. n5 In other words, a choice between two plausible views of the evidence may not be clearly erroneous. n6 The appellate court must be convinced that the decision is more than just a possibility or probability that it is wrong. n7

As examples of the clearly erroneous standard, appellate courts have determined findings to be clearly erroneous in the following cases: the finding is not supported by substantial evidence; n8 even though there is substantial evidence to support the finding, the reviewing court concludes that the finding is against the clear weight of the evidence; n9 the finding is based on the application of an incorrect legal standard; n10 and the finding is directly contrary to the only

testimony presented. n11

[b] Deference Accorded Trial Courts Findings

The Supreme Court has stated that the clearly erroneous standard of review by appellate courts is significantly deferential to a district court's findings, although not as deferential as the "reasonableness" standard of review. n12 Courts have reasoned that district judges are specialists in fact finding, n13 while the primary function of the appellate courts is to maintain the uniformity and coherence of the law. n14 Additionally, trial courts are entitled to deference on review because they have the advantage of direct experience of the testimony and evidence presented at trial. n15

However, the findings of the trial court in a non-jury trial are accorded less deference than the findings of the jury in a jury trial. n16 Under the Seventh Amendment, appellate review of the fact findings of a jury is prohibited, but this prohibition is not applicable to non-jury cases or to cases with an advisory jury. n17

The correct standard of review of the findings in a non-jury does not require an appellate court to view the evidence in a light most favorable to the prevailing party. While the reviewing court must give great weight to the findings of the trial court, it is permitted to examine all the evidence in the record and discard those findings that it determines are clearly erroneous. n18

The usefulness of the clearly erroneous, deferential standard of review is most obvious when the evidence was largely testimonial and the district court has had the opportunity of observing witnesses and evaluating their credibility directly. n19 The United States Supreme Court has observed that only the trial judge can be aware of the variations in demeanor and tone of voice that bear heavily on the listener's understanding of and belief in what is said. Therefore when a trial judge's finding is based on his decision to credit the testimony of one of two or more witnesses, each of whom has told a coherent and plausible story that is not contradicted by extrinsic evidence, that finding may virtually never be overturned as clear error. n20 Consequently, if the district court disregards the testimony of witnesses it finds to be untruthful n21 or resolves issues by weighing the credibility of conflicting expert witnesses, the appellate court must give the resulting findings great deference. n22

On the other hand, an appellate court may determine that findings are clearly erroneous, even if based on the credibility of witnesses, because there are factors other than demeanor and inflection that go into a decision whether or not to believe a witness. For example, the appellate court may determine a finding based on credibility testimony is clearly erroneous when the testimony internally implausible or inconsistent. n23

It should be noted also that the clearly erroneous standard of review applies to the district court's findings of fact even if those findings are based wholly or mainly on documentary evidence rather than on the trial court's evaluation of primarily oral testimony. n24 Similarly, the clearly erroneous standard controls the review of findings which are based on other items reviewed by the trial court in which the credibility and demeanor of witnesses is not subject to direct evaluation of the trial court, such as stipulated or undisputed facts, depositions, n25 the parties' trial briefs, and the other documents and evidence in the record. n26

[c] Findings of Master

The trial court must decide de novo all objections to findings of fact made or recommended by a master, unless the parties, with the court's approval, stipulate that the findings will be reviewed for clear error. n27 The court must decide de novo all objections to conclusions of law made or recommended by a master. n28 When the trial judge adopts the findings of a master, they become the findings of the trial court. n29 Consequently, a reviewing court is in turn required to review these adopted findings by the clearly erroneous standard. n30 However, the rule is more complicated when the district court rejects the findings of the master and prepares new findings. Most circuits hold that if the trial court has discarded some or all of the master's findings, the reviewing court must disregard the district court's review of the master's findings, and apply the clearly erroneous test to the findings of the master. n31

A few circuits have held that a more deferential approach to the intermediate court is proper because there is a significant difference between "direct review" and "review of review." n32 These circuits rationalize that a trial court's decision holding a finding by the master clearly erroneous is not itself a finding of fact subject to the clearly erroneous rule. They first review the correctness of the district court's decision to reject the master's report, as a matter of law, without reference to the district court's own substituted factual findings. n33 Then, if the appellate court concludes that the master's findings were clearly erroneous, and that the district court made the correct decision, it will review any substituted or additional findings made by the district court under the clearly erroneous standard. n34

[d] Standard in Cases With Advisory Jury

When an appellate court reviews findings of fact in a case where the court used an advisory jury, the standard of review for the findings is the same as the standard employed in a non-jury case, which is that the findings may not be set aside unless they are clearly erroneous. n35 An advisory jury's verdict is not binding on the district court, which may adopt it in whole or in part, or totally disregard it. The ultimate decision is left to the trial judge. n36 However, the trial court must make findings of fact and conclusions of law irrespective of whether the verdict of the advisory jury is accepted or rejected. n37 Thus, when the trial judge adopts the findings of an advisory jury, those findings are reviewable for clear error. n38

When the trial court refuses to adopt the findings of the advisory jury, the court must make independent findings which provide the basis for subsequent review under the clearly erroneous standard. n39 The district court's decision to reject the advisory jury's verdict is not itself subject to review. n40

[3] Appellate Review of Conclusions of Law

[a] Standard of Review is De Novo

An appellate court reviews the trial court's conclusions of law under a de novo standard, n1 which means that it may substitute its own legal conclusions for those of the trial court. The de novo standard is in contrast to the clearly erroneous standard used for review of factual findings, n2 Under the de novo standard, the appellate court is not required to show deference to the trial court's legal analysis, and may freely overturn conclusions it considers erroneous. n3 De novo review is applicable to all conclusions of law, including determinations by the trial court that interpret federal or state law, n4 or the law of a foreign country. n5

There are several reasons for de novo review of conclusions of law. First, appellate judges can concentrate on legal questions because they are not burdened by the important but time-consuming process of hearing witnesses and evidence. Second, the judgment of at least three members of an appellate panel is applied to every case. Thus, it is logical to assume that the collaborative process of an appellate court reduces the risk of judicial error on questions of law and minimizes judicial error by assigning the primary responsibility to the court best positioned to decide the issue. n6

De novo review also serves to support the appellate function of announcing, clarifying, and conforming the rules of law. De novo review of questions of law is required in part because of the precedential effect of those questions on future parties. While findings of fact in a particular case bind only the parties to the action, determinations of legal issues affect the rights of future parties. n7

[b] Imprecise Distinction Between Law and Fact

Although conclusions of law are reviewed de novo, n8 the individual, underlying findings of fact that lead to a legal conclusion must be reviewed under the more restrictive clearly erroneous standard. n9 However, if the trial court's factual findings are themselves based on an erroneous view of the controlling law, the appellate court is not bound by the findings. n10 The appellate court may discard factual findings only if the legal error by the trial court actually affected the challenged findings. n11

While the important consequence of the standard for review is based on whether a finding is factual or legal, in many situations it may be difficult to distinguish between findings of fact and conclusions of law for the purpose of determining which standard should be applied. A number of courts have tried to clarify the distinction. One circuit court has suggested that a determination is a finding of fact if it concerns whether the evidence showed that something occurred or existed; in contrast, a determination is a conclusion of law if it is the result of the processes of legal reasoning from, or interpretation of, the legal significance of the evidentiary facts. n12 Another circuit has concluded that a finding of fact is one closely related to practical human experience, while a conclusion of law is based on the application of a legal standard. n13

Despite such attempts to solidify the distinction between law and fact, the difference between the two remains elusive, and the Supreme Court, after noting the difficultly concluded that the distinction between the two varies according to the nature of the substantive law at issue. n14 In any event, the label a trial court places on a determination as either a finding of fact or a conclusion of law is not controlling, and if the appellate court concludes that the trial court mislabeled a conclusion of law as a finding of fact, it may disregard the label and review the issue de novo. n15 Conversely, if a trial court incorrectly characterizes a finding of fact as a conclusion of law, the appellate court will review the determination under a clearly erroneous standard, as if it had been properly labeled a finding of fact. n16

[4] Appellate Review of Mixed Determinations of Law and Fact

[a] Characterization as Mixed Question of Law and Fact

Appellate courts usually apply a de novo standard of review to mixed questions of law and fact. n1 However, as the term "mixed question" indicates, the determination of whether a question fits in that category is not simple. An issue may be labeled a mixed question of law and fact in one circuit because the court interpreted the issue as a question of law. In another circuit the same issue may be classified as a pure question of fact because that court labeled the same underlying issue as a question of fact. n2

The United States Supreme Court has defined mixed questions of law and fact as those in which the historical facts are admitted or established, the rule of law is undisputed, and the issue is whether the facts satisfy the relevant statutory or constitutional standard; in other words, whether the rule of law as applied to the established facts has or has not been violated. In this definition, the rule of law is correct; it is the application of the law to the facts that is at issue. n3

[b] Standard of Review

There has long been much litigation and dispute over the proper standard of review for trial court determinations of mixed questions of law and fact. n4 Many courts have ruled that determinations by the trial court that involve mixed questions of law and fact are not subject to the clearly erroneous test and may be reviewed de novo. n5 Some courts have held that determinations based on mixed questions of law and fact should be given deference and reviewed under the clearly erroneous test. n6 Other courts have circumvented the issue by reviewing the underlying facts under the clearly erroneous standard, while reviewing the legal conclusions that flow from the facts de novo. n7

The United States Supreme Court has not conclusively resolved the issue of whether, or in what circumstances, an appellate court can review mixed questions of law and fact free of the clearly erroneous standard. The Supreme Court, while reserving decision on the issue, n8 has suggested that deference to the trial court's determination of mixed questions of law and fact is warranted when it appears that the trial court is better situated than the appellate court to decide the issue in question or that probing appellate scrutiny will not contribute to the clarity of legal doctrine. n9

When a circuit does not rigidly apply either the clearly erroneous or de novo test, the circuits have developed two similar, hybrid tests:

The first test reviews findings of issues containing mixed questions of fact and law based on where the findings fall along the degree of deference continuum: the more fact dominated the question, the more likely it is that the trier's resolution of it will be accepted unless shown to be clearly erroneous. n10 For example, questions of negligence, including professional negligence, are fact intensive; therefore, a court-tried finding of negligence is ordinarily reviewed for clear error. n11

The second test uses a two step approach for deciding the appropriate standard of review for a trial court's application of law to fact: (a) use the clearly erroneous test if the application of the law to the facts requires an inquiry that is essentially factual, that is, if it relies on the trial court's experience with the principles of human conduct; and (b) use de novo review if the question requires significant consideration of legal concepts in the mix of fact and law. This test generally favors de novo review because the application of law usually requires the consideration of legal concepts and involves the exercise of judgment about the values underlying legal principles. n12

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsBench TrialsCivil ProcedureAppealsReviewabilityPreservation for ReviewCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewClearly Erroneous ReviewCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewDe Novo ReviewCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewFact & Law Issues

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 9 Moore's Federal Practice, § 52.30 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. United States v. City of Yonkers, 181 F.3d 301, 321-323 (2d Cir. 1999) , vacated, 197 F.3d 41 (2d Cir. 1999) (Rule 52(a) requirement is mandatory and may not be waived).

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(5).

(n4)Footnote 3. Amadeo v. Zant, 486 U.S. 214, 223-228, 108 S. Ct. 1771, 100 L. Ed. 2d 249 (1988) ; Glaverbel Societe Anonyme v. Northlake Mktg. & Supply, 45 F.3d 1550, 1555 (Fed. Cir. 1995) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(b); see also § 23.09.

(n5)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(6).

(n6)Footnote 2. See Ellis v. Grant Thornton LLP, 530 F.3d 280, 286-287 (4th Cir. 2008) .

(n7)Footnote 3. Anderson v. Bessemer City, 470 U.S. 564, 573, 105 S. Ct. 1504, 84 L. Ed. 2d 518 (1985) .

(n8)Footnote 4. United States v. Brown, 561 F.3d 420, 432 (5th Cir. 2009) .

(n9)Footnote 5. Amadeo v. Zant, 486 U.S. 214, 223-228, 108 S. Ct. 1771, 100 L. Ed. 2d 249 (1988) (court of appeals erred in merely expressing disagreement and substituting its own factual findings for those of district court).

(n10)Footnote 6. United States v. Yellow Cab Co., 338 U.S. 338, 342, 94 L. Ed. 150 (1949) .

(n11)Footnote 7. Parts & Elec. Motors, Inc. v. Sterling Elec., Inc., 866 F.2d 228, 233 (7th Cir. 1988) , cert. denied, 493 U.S. 847 (1989) .

(n12)Footnote 8. Blohm v. Commissioner, 994 F.2d 1542, 1548 (11th Cir. 1993) .

(n13)Footnote 9. Barrett v. United States, 51 F.3d 475, 479 (5th Cir. 1995) .

(n14)Footnote 10. Weissmann v. Freeman, 868 F.2d 1313, 1317 (2d Cir. 1989) , cert. denied, 493 U.S. 883 (1989) .

(n15)Footnote 11. Trans-Orient Marine Corp. v. Star Trading & Marine, Inc., 925 F.2d 566, 571 (2d Cir. 1991) .

(n16)Footnote 12. Concrete Pipe & Prods., Inc., v. Construction Laborers Pension Trust, 508 U.S. 602, 623, 113 S. Ct. 2264, 124 L. Ed. 2d 539 (1993) (clearly erroneous standard requires a definite and firm conviction that mistake has been committed).

(n17)Footnote 13. Ellis v. Grant Thornton LLP, 530 F.3d 280, 286-287 (4th Cir. 2008) (appellate court must give due regard to the opportunity of the district court to judge the credibility of the witnesses).

(n18)Footnote 14. Inwood Laboratories, Inc. v. Ives Laboratories, Inc., 456 U.S. 844, 856-858, 102 S. Ct. 2182, 72 L. Ed. 2d 606 (1982) (determining weight and credibility of evidence is special province of trier of fact).

(n19)Footnote 15. Reich v. Lancaster, 55 F.3d 1034, 1045 (5th Cir. 1995) (trial judge's unique perspective to evaluate witnesses and to consider entire context of evidence must be respected).

(n20)Footnote 16. United States v. Aluminum Co. of America, 148 F.2d 416, 433 (2d Cir. 1945) .

(n21)Footnote 17. United States v. United States Gypsum Co., 333 U.S. 364, 395, 68 S. Ct. 525, 92 L. Ed. 746 (1948) .

(n22)Footnote 18. EEOC v. Clear Lake Dodge, 25 F.3d 265, 270 (5th Cir. 1994) , aff'd without op., 108 F.3d 332 (5th Cir. 1997) (appellate court will overturn district court where there is only one permissible view of weight of evidence).

(n23)Footnote 19. Ellis v. Grant Thornton LLP, 530 F.3d 280, 287 (4th Cir. 2008) .

(n24)Footnote 20. Anderson v. City of Bessemer, 470 U.S. 564, 575, 105 S. Ct. 1504, 84 L. Ed. 2d 518 (1985) .

(n25)Footnote 21. Tyson v. Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., 958 F.2d 756, 760 (7th Cir. 1992) (district court may disregard testimony of any witness when he or she is satisfied that witness is not telling truth).

(n26)Footnote 22. Gulf Consol. Servs., Inc. v. Corinth Pipeworks, S.A., 898 F.2d 1071, 1076-1077 (5th Cir. 1990) , cert. denied, 498 U.S. 900 (1990) (in non-jury trial, credibility choices between conflicting experts are within province of trial court, subject only to clearly erroneous standard).

(n27)Footnote 23. Bennett v. Local Union No. 66, 958 F.2d 1429, 1433 (7th Cir. 1992) (if trial court relies on testimony that is itself implausible, illogical, or internally inconsistent, finding of clear error may be made even in absence of contradictory extrinsic evidence).

(n28)Footnote 24. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(6) (clearly erroneous standard applies to both oral and other evidence).

(n29)Footnote 25. SMP Sales Management, Inc. v. Fleet Credit Corp., 960 F.2d 557, 559 (5th Cir. 1992) .

(n30)Footnote 26. See Selman v. Cobb County Sch. Dist., 449 F.3d 1320, 1326 (11th Cir. 2006) .

(n31)Footnote 27. Fed. R. Civ. P. 53(f)(3).

(n32)Footnote 28. Fed. R. Civ. P. 53(f)(4).

(n33)Footnote 29. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(4).

(n34)Footnote 30. See Summers v. Howard Univ., 374 F.3d 1188, 1195 (D.C. Cir. 2004) .

(n35)Footnote 31. See, e.g., Gottlieb v. Barry, 43 F.3d 474, 480 (10th Cir. 1994) (under majority view, district court should not have rejected master's conclusion regarding method for calculating attorney fees, when master's use of this method was not clearly erroneous).

(n36)Footnote 32. Stone v. Commissioner, 865 F.2d 342, 348 (D.C. Cir. 1989) .

(n37)Footnote 33. Milliken Research Corp. v. Dan River, Inc., 739 F.2d 587, 592-593 (Fed. Cir. 1984) .

(n38)Footnote 34. Martin v. University of South Alabama, 911 F.2d 604, 608 (11th Cir. 1990) .

(n39)Footnote 35. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(1),(6).

(n40)Footnote 36. Wynn Oil Co. v. Purolator Chem. Corp., 536 F.2d 84, 86 (5th Cir. 1976) (district court's decision to accept advisory jury's findings was not error); see Ch. 22, Trial by Jury.

(n41)Footnote 37. McKnight v. General Motors Corp., 908 F.2d 104, 113 (7th Cir. 1990) , cert. denied, 499 U.S. 919 (1991) (findings by jury were far too sparse to satisfy Rule 52(a), and therefore district court judge had duty under that rule to make findings of fact and conclusions of law).

(n42)Footnote 38. Taylor Corp. v. Four Seasons Greetings, LLC, 403 F.3d 958, 965 (8th Cir. 2005) .

(n43)Footnote 39. Reachi v. Edmond, 277 F.2d 850, 852 (9th Cir. 1960) .

(n44)Footnote 40. Interstate Commerce Comm'n. v. Southwest Marketing Ass'n, 315 F. Supp. 805, 807 (N.D. Tex. 1970) (when trial court does not accept jury's advice, trial court may proceed to make its own independent findings of fact and conclusions of law, and its rejection of advisory verdict is not subject to appellate review).

(n45)Footnote 1. Pullman-Standard v. Swint, 456 U.S. 273, 290 n.19, 102 S. Ct. 1781, 72 L. Ed. 2d 66 (1982) .

(n46)Footnote 2. Sabah Shipyard v. M/V Harbel Tapper, 178 F.3d 400, 404-405 (5th Cir. 1999) .

(n47)Footnote 3. Ringling Bros.-Barnum & Bailey Combined Shows, Inc. v. Utah Division of Travel Development, 170 F.3d 449, 453-454 (4th Cir. 1997) (appellate court may disagree completely or partially with district court's conclusions of law, and adjust judgment accordingly).

(n48)Footnote 4. Salve Regina College v. Russell, 499 U.S. 225, 232-233, 111 S. Ct. 1217, 113 L. Ed. 2d 190 (1991) (federal court of appeals is required to review de novo district court's determinations of state law).

(n49)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 44.1.

(n50)Footnote 6. Salve Regina College v. Russell, 499 U.S. 225, 232-233, 111 S. Ct. 1217, 113 L. Ed. 2d 190 (1991) (federal court of appeals is required to review de novo district court's determinations because independent judicial review of legal issues by multi-judge appellate panels best serves the goals of doctrinal coherence and judicial economy).

(n51)Footnote 7. See In re McLinn, 739 F.2d 1395, 1401 (9th Cir. 1984) (federal court determinations of state law have precedential importance).

(n52)Footnote 8. Sabah Shipyard v. M/V Harbel Tapper, 178 F.3d 400, 404 (5th Cir. 1999) .

(n53)Footnote 9. Detroit Police Officers' Ass'n v. Young, 608 F.2d 671, 686 (6th Cir. 1979) , cert. denied, 452 U.S. 938 (1981) (whether discrimination occurred was conclusion of law based on underlying findings of fact, that were subject to clear error standard).

(n54)Footnote 10. North Miss. Communications, Inc. v. Jones, 951 F.2d 652, 657 (5th Cir. 1992) , cert. denied, 506 U.S. 863 (1992) (when trial court has made fact finding on erroneous view of law, factual findings lose validity and remand is required).

(n55)Footnote 11. Lincoln v. Board of Regents, 697 F.2d 928, 939 n.13 (11th Cir. 1983) , cert. denied, 464 U.S. 826 (1983) (appellate court should not depart from the clear error standard when application of wrong legal standard did not "taint or infect" district court's factual findings).

(n56)Footnote 12. Poyner v. Lear Siegler, Inc., 542 F.2d 955, 959 (6th Cir. 1976) , cert. denied, 430 U.S. 969 (1977) .

(n57)Footnote 13. McCrary's Farm Supply, Inc., 705 F.2d 330, 332 (8th Cir. 1983) .

(n58)Footnote 14. Bose Corp. v. Consumers Union, 466 U.S. 485, 501, 104 S. Ct. 1949, 80 L. Ed. 2d 502 (1984) (determination of "actual malice" in defamation suit is held to de novo review and not to clearly erroneous standard of Rule 52(a)).

(n59)Footnote 15. Poyner v. Lear Siegler, Inc., 542 F.2d 955, 959 (6th Cir. 1976) , cert. denied, 430 U.S. 969 (1977) (labeling determinations as findings does not make them so if they are really conclusions of law).

(n60)Footnote 16. Mentor Ins. Co. (U.K.) v. Brannkasse, 996 F.2d 506, 513 (2d Cir. 1993) (special master's determinations as to custom and usage of reinsurance that were labeled as conclusions of law were actually findings of fact, and therefore would not be set aside unless clearly erroneous).

(n61)Footnote 1. See United States v. City of Yonkers, 181 F.3d 301, 321-323 (2nd Cir. 1999) .

(n62)Footnote 2. Miller v. Fenton, 474 U.S. 104, 113-114, 106 S. Ct. 445, 88 L. Ed.2d 405 (1985) (labeling issue as law, fact, or mixed question of law and fact is sometimes difficult).

(n63)Footnote 3. Pullman-Standard v. Swint, 456 U.S. 273, 289 n.19, 102 S. Ct. 1781, 72 L. Ed. 2d 66 (1982) .

(n64)Footnote 4. Pullman-Standard v. Swint, 456 U.S. 273, 289-290 n.19, 102 S. Ct. 1781, 72 L. Ed. 2d 66 (1982) (substantial authority in circuits on both sides of question); United States v. McCombs, 30 F.3d 310, 317 (2d Cir. 1994) (stating that degree to which Rule 52(a) governs appellate review of mixed questions of law and fact has been subject of battle for over century).

(n65)Footnote 5. See, e.g., United States v. City of Yonkers, 181 F.3d 301, 321-323 (2nd Cir. 1999) ; Scribner v. Summers, 84 F.3d 554, 557 (2d Cir. 1996) .

(n66)Footnote 6. Roper v. Peabody Coal Co., 47 F.3d 925, 927 (7th Cir. 1995) .

(n67)Footnote 7. Reich v. Lancaster, 55 F.3d 1034, 1044-1045 (5th Cir. 1995) .

(n68)Footnote 8. Pullman-Standard v. Swint, 456 U.S. 273, 289 n.19 102 S. Ct. 1781, 72 L. Ed. 2d 66 (1982) .

(n69)Footnote 9. Salve Regina College v. Russell, 499 U.S. 225, 233, 111 S. Ct. 1217, 113 L. Ed. 2d 190 (1991) .

(n70)Footnote 10. AIDS Action Comm. v. Massachusetts Bay Transp. Auth., 42 F.3d 1, 7 (1st Cir. 1994) .

(n71)Footnote 11. Sierra Fria Corp. v. Donald J. Evans, P.C., 127 F.3d 175, 181 (1st Cir. 1997) .

(n72)Footnote 12. United States v. McConney, 728 F.2d 1195, 1202 (9th Cir. 1984) , cert. denied, 469 U.S. 824 (1984) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 23 TRIAL TO COURT; INABILITY OF JUDGE TO PROCEED
PART I. FINDINGS BY THE TRIAL COURT

3-23 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 23.09

§ 23.09 Amendment of Findingsn*

[1] Trial Court Has Discretion to Amend Findings and Conclusions on Motion of Either Party

Any party may file a motion no later than 28 days after the entry of judgment for the court to amend its findings or make additional findings. When it amends or adds findings, the court may also amend its judgment accordingly. n1 even to the extent of a reversal of judgment. n2 A motion to amend findings may accompany a motion for a new trial under Rule 59(a), n3 or a motion to amend the judgment under Rule 59(e). n4

The district court has considerable discretion whether to grant or deny a motion to amend its findings of fact or conclusions of law, and a review of that decision is for abuse of discretion. n4 The district court also has the discretion to review and amend any of its findings and conclusions on its own initiative. n5

[2] Purpose of Amendment

The primary purpose for allowing the parties to make a motion for amendment of the findings is to correct, clarify, or expand the findings so that the appellate court will be able to arrive at a thorough understanding of the factual basis of the trial court's decision. n1 On the other hand, a motion to amend findings or conclusions may not be used to relitigate old matters nor may the motion be used by the parties to present claims under new theories of law. n2 Consequently, a party may not use the motion to amend the findings in order to advance new theories or secure a rehearing on the merits. n3

Rule 52(b) is generally not used to preserve an appeal. Thus, when a non-jury case is appealed, a party may question the sufficiency of the evidence supporting the findings even if that party has previously failed to question or object to the findings n4 or to file a motion for amendment. Thus, a party may attack an erroneous finding on appeal, even if the party has failed to make a motion to amend or a motion for partial findings. n5 However, even though a party that does not make a motion to amend or add to the findings may later attack an erroneous finding or a finding unsupported by the evidence on appeal, it is sound practice for the party to make challenges relating to the completeness of the findings of fact by motion to the trial court. n6 As one court advised, attorneys should not simply ignore the rule and head off to the appellate court to seek a remand for the making of those same findings. n7

[3] Grounds for Amendment

[a] Supplement or Expand Findings

A court may grant a motion to amend to supplement or expand the findings, when such additional or expanded findings would give the appellate court a more thorough understanding of the facts that formed the basis of the trial court's decision. n1 However, a motion to amend findings to obtain a complete wholesale revision of findings merely to make them more favorable to the movant will be denied. n2 Furthermore, if amendments requested do not serve to clarify the issues for review granting the motion runs counter to the interest in finality of judgments. n3 For this reason, a district court should not grant a motion to amend the findings merely because the requested amendment does not prejudice the opposing party. n4

[b] Correction of Error

Any party may move the court to amend or supplement the findings to correct a manifest error in the court's findings of fact or conclusions of law. n5 The court is not required to amend the findings, however, if the errors alleged would not in any way affect the decision in the case. n6

The party making the motion to amend the findings has the burden of showing that a harmful error has been made. n7 This burden is particularly strong because the court is being requested to reconsider its decision. n8 The party requesting the change must therefore articulate and demonstrate some substantial reason why the court should modify its prior decision and also must set forth facts or law that are strong and convincing. n9

When making a determination whether to amend the findings on the basis of manifest error, the trial court considers only the evidence contained in the record. n10 To require that the court look outside the record would defeat the compelling interest in the finality of litigation. n11

In exceptional circumstances, a change in the law may necessitate an amendment of the findings of fact or conclusions of law. n12 However, the court will not grant an amendment on this basis merely to relitigate old issues, rehear the merits of a case, or to advance new theories, unless the new theory is based on the change in the law. n13

[c] Discovery of New Evidence

A motion to amend also may be based on newly discovered evidence, n14 with an important qualification: the moving party may not introduce evidence that was available at trial but not proffered. n15 Similarly, it is improper for a party to move to amend to advance new theories based on evidence that was already proffered at trial, or to reassert arguments already rejected by the court. n16

[4] Time for Filing Motion

[a] Time Period for Filing

A motion by a party for the court to amend or make additional findings must be filed with the court no later than 28 days after the entry of judgment. n1 The triggering event for the time period is filing, because the time of filing can be determined with certainty from court records. n2

It should be noted that a party may file a motion for amendment before the actual entry of judgment, because the rule requires that the motion be filed "no later than" 28 days after judgment rather than "within 28 days." n3 Also, Rule 6(b) provides that the time period for making motions to amend or add findings may not be extended by the trial court. n4 The court has no discretion in this matter, because the court's jurisdiction to hear the motion is terminated after the statutory period has run. n5 However, the untimely motion may be effective for another purpose, as discussed in [b], below.

[b] Untimely Motion for Amendment May be Used as Other Motion

Although the time for filing the motion may not be extended, n6 all is not necessarily lost for the moving party. If the motion for amendment states proper grounds, an untimely motion to amend the findings may be treated as a motion for relief from a judgment or order under Rule 60, n7 which is not subject to the strict time limitations of Rule 6(b). n8 Rule 60 permits correction of clerical and other errors made by district judges, including errors of both fact and law, and the broad scope of Rule 60 empowers a district judge to do justice in the particular circumstances of each case. n9 Rule 60(a) has no time limit for correcting clerical errors. n10 There are two limits for Rule 60(b) motions. First, any Rule 60(b) motion must be made "within a reasonable time." Second, a motion under Rules 60(b)(1), 60(b)(2), and 60(b)(3), that is, because of mistake, inadvertence, etc.; newly discovered evidence; or fraud, must be made within a year after entry of the judgment or order. n11

[5] Effect of Motion on Judgment and Appeal

[a] Motion Destroys Finality of Judgment

If a party timely files in the district court a motion to amend or make additional factual findings under Rule 52(b), the time to file an appeal for the motion runs for all parties from the entry of the order disposing of the motion, or other similar types of post-judgment motions, n1 whether or not granting the motion would alter the judgment. n2 In other words, when the Rule 52(b) motion is filed, the complete time to appeal begins to run anew from entry of the order disposing of the motion. n3 Thus, a party may not deprive the opposition of the right to have the district court fully consider a timely motion to amend or add to the findings by filing a hurried notice of appeal before the court's disposition of the motion, n4 because the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure expressly provide that a notice of appeal filed before the disposition of a timely motion to amend or add to the findings is ineffective to appeal the judgment or order. The motion automatically revives the jurisdiction of the district court without the necessity of remand by the appellate court. n5

The rule regarding the finality of judgments is not limited to appeals made from a district court to the court of appeals. The same principles apply to direct appeals to the Supreme Court. A post-judgment motion that has the potential to modify or set aside the judgment destroys its finality for purposes of review by the Supreme Court until the motion is decided by the court that rendered the judgment. n6

[b] New Notice of Appeal Must Be Filed After Disposition

If a notice of appeal has been filed before the disposition of a motion to amend the findings, the notice is premature and ineffective and a new notice of appeal must be filed after the disposition of all post trial motions. The Supreme Court has held that an appellate court may not waive the defect of a premature notice of appeal, because a premature notice of appeal is not merely defective, it is a nullity. n7 A notice of appeal filed before a motion to amend findings is decided is ineffective even if filed after the filing of the motion to amend the findings, and a new notice of appeal is required after the final disposition of all the post-trial motions. n8

Appellate courts tend to be imprecise in their determinations of what constitutes "disposition" of a motion. For example, in one case the trial court did not file any findings with the judgment. A motion for findings of fact and conclusions of law was timely filed on the same day the trial court entered its order which contained findings and conclusions. The Fifth Circuit Court held that the trial court's inclusion of the findings and conclusions in its order effectively granted the appellant's request for findings, and constituted a disposition of the motion. Because the notice of appeal was filed two days after these events took place, the court concluded that no second notice of appeal was required. n9

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsBench TrialsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & Amend

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 9 Moore's Federal Practice, § 52.60 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(b).

(n3)Footnote 2. Fontenot v. Mesa Petroleum Co., 791 F.2d 1207, 1219 (5th Cir. 1986) ; see Diebitz v. Arreola, 834 F. Supp. 298, 302 (E.D. Wis. 1993) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(b).

(n5)Footnote 4. Herman v. RSR Security Services Ltd., 172 F.3d 132, 138 (2d Cir. 1999) .

(n6)Footnote 4. Golden Blount, Inc. v. Robert H. Peterson Co., 438 F.3d 1354, 1358 (Fed. Cir. 2006) .

(n7)Footnote 5. Boone v. United States, 743 F. Supp. 1367, 1371 n.1 (D. Haw. 1990) , aff'd on other grounds, 944 F.2d 1489 (9th Cir. 1991) ; Daly v. Harris, 209 F.R.D. 180, 198 (D. Haw. 2002) .

(n8)Footnote 1. United States v. Local 1804-1, International Longshoremen's Assn., 831 F. Supp. 167, 169 (S.D.N.Y. 1993) .

(n9)Footnote 2. Pro Edge L.P. v. Gue, 377 F. Supp. 2d 694, 698 (N.D. Iowa 2005) .

(n10)Footnote 3. Weatherchem Corp. v. J.L. Clark, Inc., 163 F.3d 1326, 1336 (Fed. Cir. 1998) (district court properly denied motion to amend findings when moving party's proposed amended findings were merely attempt to get district court to reverse itself); Diebitz v. Arreola, 834 F. Supp. 298, 302 (E.D. Wis. 1993) (Rule 52(b) motion is not intended to allow parties to relitigate old issues, to advance new theories, or to rehear merits of case); Davis v. Mathews, 450 F. Supp. 308, 318 (E.D. Cal. 1978) (Rule 52(b) motion is not intended to serve as vehicle for rehearing).

(n11)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(b) (sufficiency of findings always assertable on appeal); Michael-Regan Co. v. Lindell, 527 F.2d 653, 660 (9th Cir. 1975) (question raising issue of sufficiency of evidence could be raised for first time on appeal).

(n12)Footnote 5. Evans v. Suntreat Growers & Shippers, Inc., 531 F.2d 568, 570 (Ct. App. 1976) .

(n13)Footnote 6. Hollinger v. United States, 651 F.2d 636, 640-641 (9th Cir. 1981) (in tort action, defendant could not complain of lack of specificity in district court's finding that plaintiff was totally disabled from pursuing all normal courses of employment, because defendant failed to move district court to amend or make additional findings).

(n14)Footnote 7. Consolidated Aluminum Corp. v. Foseco Int'l, Ltd., 910 F.2d 804, 814 n.9 (Fed. Cir. 1990) .

(n15)Footnote 1. United States v. Anderson, 591 F. Supp. 1, 6 (E.D. Wash. 1982) (in water law case, party was entitled to amended factual findings regarding creek's drainage system, although those findings merely supplemented and did not contradict court's original findings).

(n16)Footnote 2. De Gidio v. Pung, 125 F.R.D. 503, 505 (D. Minn. 1989) , aff'd on other grounds, 920 F.2d 525 (8th Cir. 1990) .

(n17)Footnote 3. Filner v. Shapiro, 83 F.R.D. 630, 631 (S.D.N.Y. 1979) (court denied amendment to findings that would have blurred rather than clarified record).

(n18)Footnote 4. Filner v. Shapiro, 83 F.R.D. 630, 631 (S.D.N.Y. 1979) (Rule 52(b) motion denied even though plaintiff would not suffer prejudice if suggested alterations were made).

(n19)Footnote 5. Fontenot v. Mesa Petroleum Co., 791 F.2d 1207, 1219 (5th Cir. 1986) (Rule 52(b) allows parties to petition court to amend its findings of fact in order to correct manifest errors of law or fact).

(n20)Footnote 6. Lyons v. Jefferson Bank & Trust, 793 F. Supp. 989, 991 (D. Colo. 1992) , rev'd in part on other grounds, 994 F.2d 716 (1993) (motion to amend may not be granted when proposed additional findings of fact are not material to district court's conclusions).

(n21)Footnote 7. United States v. Anderson, 591 F. Supp. 1, 4 (E.D. Wash. 1982) (burden of showing harmful error rests on party seeking to amend findings).

(n22)Footnote 8. Cayuga Indian Nation of N.Y. v. Pataki, 188 F. Supp. 2d 223, 236 (N.D.N.Y. 2002) ; see Smith v. Northeastern Ill. Univ., 388 F.3d 559, 569 (7th Cir. 2004) .

(n23)Footnote 9. Dale and Selby Superette & Deli v. United States Dep't of Agric., 838 F. Supp. 1346, 1347 (D. Minn. 1993) .

(n24)Footnote 10. *See Shaw v. Broadcast.com, Inc., 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 34553, at *4-6 (N.D. Tex. 2005) .

(n25)Footnote 11. Fontenot v. Mesa Petroleum Co., 791 F.2d 1207, 1220 (5th Cir. 1986) (helicopter company was not entitled to amend findings that found it was partly responsible for injuries to passenger, because it had opportunity to present evidence itself before determination was made).

(n26)Footnote 12. Dow Chem. Pac., Ltd. v. Rascator Maritime S.A., 609 F. Supp. 451, 453 (S.D.N.Y. 1984) , rev'd on other grounds, 782 F.2d 329, (2d Cir. 1986) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n27)Footnote 13. Diebitz v. Arreola, 834 F. Supp. 298, 302 (E.D. Wis. 1993) .

(n28)Footnote 14. Dow Chem. Pac., Ltd. v. Rascator Maritime S.A., 609 F. Supp. 451, 452-453 (S.D.N.Y. 1984) .

(n29)Footnote 15. Fontenot v. Mesa Petroleum Co., 791 F.2d 1207, 1219-1220 (5th Cir. 1986) (Rule 52(b) allows parties to petition court to amend its findings of fact in order to present newly discovered evidence, but petition may not be based on evidence that was available at trial but was not proffered, as party attempted to do in this case).

(n30)Footnote 16. Davis v. Mathews, 450 F. Supp. 308, 318 (E.D. Cal 1978) (Rule 52(b) motion is not intended to serve as vehicle for rehearing).

(n31)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(b).

(n32)Footnote 2. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(b); Committee Note to 1995 Amendments.

(n33)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(b); Committee Note to 1995 Amendments.

(n34)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(b)(2).

(n35)Footnote 5. Gribble v. Harris, 625 F.2d 1173, 1174 (5th Cir. 1980) .

(n36)Footnote 6. See [a], above.

(n37)Footnote 7. Lee v. Gruel, 248 F. Supp. 2d 413, 416 (D.V.I. 2003) .

(n38)Footnote 8. Halicki v. Louisiana Casino Cruises, 151 F.3d 465, 470-471 (5th Cir. 1998) (district court could properly consider employee's untimely motion to alter or amend judgment under Rule 52 as motion for relief from judgment under Rule 60 when grounds asserted supported Rule 60 motion for relief from judgment).

(n39)Footnote 9. See Ch. 26, Post-Judgment Procedures.

(n40)Footnote 10. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a).

(n41)Footnote 11. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(c)(1).

(n42)Footnote 1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 4(a)(4)(A)(i)-(vi).

(n43)Footnote 2. Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4)(A)(ii).

(n44)Footnote 3. Glass v. Seaboard C. L. R. Co., 714 F.2d 1107, 1109 (11th Cir. 1983) .

(n45)Footnote 4. Baker Indus., Inc. v. Howard Elec. & Mechanical, Inc., 794 F.2d 965, 967 (5th Cir. 1986) , cert. denied, 479 U.S. 931 (1986) (notice of appeal filed before disposition of motion for additional findings of fact under Rule 52(b) is nullity).

(n46)Footnote 5. Fed. R. App. Proc. 4(a)(4), Committee Note to 1979 Amendments.

(n47)Footnote 6. Leishman v. Associated Wholesale Elec. Co., 318 U.S. 203, 205-206, 63 S. Ct. 543, 87 L. Ed. 714 (1943) .

(n48)Footnote 7. Griggs v. Provident Consumer Discount Co., 459 U.S. 56, 61, 103 S. Ct. 400, 74 L. Ed. 2d 225 (1982) (overturning Third Circuit decision that appellate court could waive defect).

(n49)Footnote 8. Lapeyrouse v. Texaco, Inc., 670 F.2d 503, 504 (5th Cir. 1982) (when party files timely post-trial motion and district court grants or denies it after notice of appeal is filed, Rule 4(a)(4) requires filing of second notice of appeal).

(n50)Footnote 9. Lapeyrouse v. Texaco, Inc., 670 F.2d 503, 505 (5th Cir. 1982) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 23 TRIAL TO COURT; INABILITY OF JUDGE TO PROCEED
PART I. FINDINGS BY THE TRIAL COURT

3-23 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 23.10

§ 23.10 Judgment on Partial Findingsn*

[1] Discretion of Trial Court to Enter Judgment on Partial Findings

Before the end of a non-jury trial on any claim, the district judge has discretion to enter a judgment as a matter of law against a party on any claim, counterclaim, cross-claim, third party claim, or defense, provided that: the court has decided against the party as to a particular issue; the claim may not be maintained or defeated absent a favorable finding on that issue; and the party has been fully heard with respect to that issue. n1

The trial court may enter judgment on partial findings against either a claiming party or a defending party with respect to issues that may or may not be wholly dispositive of a claim or defense. n2

[2] Grounds for Judgment on Partial Findings

The trial court may render a judgment on partial findings when: (1) the party making the claim has not established the elements of the claim either in fact or in law; or (2) the evidence of the party making the claim has established one of the opposing party's defenses as a matter of fact or law. n1 The failure of a party to establish an essential issue justifies the immediate termination of the case or claim. The judgment on partial findings conserves time and resources by making it unnecessary for the court to hear evidence on additional facts when the result would not be different even if those additional facts were established. Unless the court directs otherwise, a Rule 52 dismissal operates as an adjudication on the merits. n2

When the court makes a decision to enter a judgment on partial findings, the decision must be supported by findings of fact and conclusions of law. n3 These findings are subject to all the requirements of clarity and completeness that are applicable to the findings that are required in any non-jury trial. n4

[3] Timing of Judgment

A court may enter judgment at any time after the losing party has been fully heard with respect to the issue. The court does not need to wait until the conclusion of that party's case. Furthermore, the court in its discretion may enter a judgment on a claim after all the evidence on the critical issue is heard, or the court may wait and render a judgment at the close of all the evidence. n1 The court may enter judgment on its own motion or following a motion by a party. A trial court that decides to wait until all the evidence has been heard does not abuse its discretion. n2

[4] Judgment on Partial Findings Compared to Judgment As Matter of Law

A trial court's evaluation of a motion for judgment on partial findings in a non-jury case or a case with an advisory jury is controlled by a different standard than the standard for a judgment as a matter of law in a jury trial. In particular, a court may properly enter a judgment for a party under a Rule 52(c) judgment on partial findings that could not be justified under a Rule 50(a) judgment as a matter of law because the court may resolve disputed factual questions under the former but not the latter. n1 Furthermore, when entering a judgment on partial findings, the trial court is notrequired to draw any special inferences in favor of the nonmoving party. n2

The judge may sustain a motion for judgment on partial findings even when the moving party has established a prima facie case. However, the court usually will not sustain the motion unless the prima facie case has been challenged in some way. n3 A trial judge who is deciding whether to order a judgment on partial findings must evaluate and weigh all the evidence, make determinations regarding credibility, and resolve the case on the basis of the preponderance of the evidence. n4

[5] Appellate Review of Judgment on Partial Findings

[a] Clearly Erroneous Standard Applies

A district court's findings in support of a judgment on partial findings are reviewed in the same manner as the findings made in any other non-jury case. Thus, because a district court entering a judgment on partial findings under Rule 52(c) may resolve disputed factual questions, the court of appeals reviews district court's findings of fact for clear error. This means that the appellate court may not reverse the judgment unless its review of the evidence leaves the appellate court with a firm belief that a mistake has been made. n1 The appellate court reviews the conclusions of law in a judgment on partial findings de novo. n2

[b] Procedure Following Reversal on Appeal

If a judgment on partial findings is reversed on appeal, the court of appeals will usually remand the matter to the trial court for further proceedings. The trial court then may hear any evidence that was not heard before the judgment on partial findings was entered. n3 In most circumstances, it is not necessary to repeat the evidence that was heard before the judgment, although the party against whom the judgment was entered may supplement the evidence already supplied with any evidence that would have been admissible at the first trial. n4 In other words, the trial court may proceed with the case as if the judgment had not been entered. In unusual circumstances, such as the death of the original judge or a protracted delay following the original proceedings, a complete retrial may be warranted, particularly if much of the evidence was based on witnesses' testimony. n5

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsBench TrialsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 9 Moore's Federal Practice, § 52.50 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(c); Premier Capital Funding, Inc. v. Earle (In re Earle), 307 B.R. 276, 289 (Bankr. S.D. Ala. 2002) (judgment pursuant to Rule 52(c) operates as decision on merits in favor of moving party).

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(c); see LaMarca v. United States, 31 F. Supp. 2d 110, 123-124 (E.D.N.Y. 1998) (although Rule 52(c) motions are typically made by defendant at close of plaintiff's case, judgments on partial findings are available against both plaintiffs and defendants); see, e.g., Pannebecker v. Liberty Life Assur. Co., 542 F.3d 1213, 1217 (9th Cir. 2008) (motion made by plaintiff).

(n4)Footnote 1. Eberhardt v. Comerica Bank, 171 B.R. 239, 243 (E.D. Mich. 1994) ; see Schoedinger v. United Healthcare of the Midwest, Inc., 557 F.3d 872, 877 (8th Cir. 2009) (however, judgment on partial findings is not related to standard controlling "judgment as matter of law"; see [4], below).

(n5)Footnote 2. See Matis v. United States, 236 B.R. 562, 569-570 (E.D.N.Y. 1999) (in connection with motion for judgment on partial findings, district court acts as both judge and jury, weighing evidence, resolving any conflicts, and deciding where preponderance lies).

(n6)Footnote 3. Martinez v. United States Sugar Corp., 880 F. Supp. 773, 775 (M.D. Fla. 1995) , aff'd without op., 77 F.3d 497 (11th Cir. 1996) (district court must weigh all evidence presented and set forth findings of fact and conclusions of law).

(n7)Footnote 4. Gibbs v. King, 779 F.2d 1040, 1046 (5th Cir. 1986) (district court must enter findings on order of dismissal, and unclear or incomplete findings may require reversal).

(n8)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(c); see Hyde v. Midland Credit Mgmt., Inc., 567 F.3d 1137, 1139 (9th Cir. 2009) (at the close of plaintiff's case, two defendants moved for judgment on partial findings; court granted motion in part, dismissing all claims against one defendant and some claims against other defendant, and trial then continued on plaintiff's remaining claims against remaining defendant).

(n9)Footnote 2. International Union of Operating Eng'rs, Local Union 103 v. Indiana Constr. Corp., 13 F.3d 253, 257 (7th Cir. 1994) (trial court's decision to reserve ruling until close of all evidence was not abuse of discretion).

(n10)Footnote 1. Schoedinger v. United Healthcare of the Midwest, Inc., 557 F.3d 872, 878 (8th Cir. 2009) (Rule 52(c) was amended in 2007 to delete prior reference to judgment as matter of law because standards that govern judgment as matter of law in jury case have no bearing on decision for judgment on partial findings); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(c).

(n11)Footnote 2. Matis v. United States, 236 B.R. 562, 569-570 (E.D.N.Y. 1999) ; Geddes v. Northwest Mo. State Univ., 49 F.3d 426, 429 n.7 (8th Cir. 1995) .

(n12)Footnote 3. Martinez v. United States Sugar Corp., 880 F. Supp. 773, 775 (M.D. Fla. 1995) , aff'd without op., 77 F.3d 497 (11th Cir. 1996) ; see Matis v. United States, 236 B.R. 562, 569-570 (E.D.N.Y. 1999) (judgment on partial findings pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure operates as decision on merits in favor of moving party and should be granted when, despite plaintiff's establishment of prima facie case, court determines that preponderance of evidence goes against plaintiff's claim).

(n13)Footnote 4. International Union of Operating Eng'rs, Local Union 103 v. Indiana Constr. Corp., 13 F.3d 253, 257 (7th Cir. 1994) ; Matis v. United States, 236 B.R. 562, 569-570 (E.D.N.Y. 1999) .

(n14)Footnote 1. Schoedinger v. United Healthcare of the Midwest, Inc., 557 F.3d 872, 878 (8th Cir. Mo. 2009) (citing Moore's Federal Practice); see § 23.08[2][a].

(n15)Footnote 2. Rego v. ARC Water Treatment Co., 181 F.3d 396, 400 (3rd Cir. 1999) ; see § 23.08[3][a].

(n16)Footnote 3. Riegel Fiber Corp. v. Anderson Gin Co., 512 F.2d 784, 793 (5th Cir. 1975) (citing Moore's Federal Practice for proposition that defendant must be allowed to present evidence).

(n17)Footnote 4. Riegel Fiber Corp. v. Anderson Gin Co., 512 F.2d 784, 793 (5th Cir. 1975) (citing Moore's Federal Practice, district court need not compel plaintiff to offer again evidence it had already introduced; nevertheless, plaintiff should be allowed to supplement record in chief or by rebuttal).

(n18)Footnote 5. See Mergentime Corp. v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority, 166 F.3d 1257, 1260 (D.C. Cir. 1999) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 23 TRIAL TO COURT; INABILITY OF JUDGE TO PROCEED
PART I. FINDINGS BY THE TRIAL COURT

3-23 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 23.11through 23.29

[Reserved]

§§ 23.11[Reserved]

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 23 TRIAL TO COURT; INABILITY OF JUDGE TO PROCEED
PART II. REPLACEMENT OF TRIAL COURT JUDGE

3-23 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 23.30

§ 23.30 Scope of Rule Governing Inability of a Judge to Proceedn*

[1] Purpose of Allowing Successor Judge to Proceed

Rule 63 provides the authority for replacing a trial judge who is unable to proceed in a trial or other proceeding, with the purpose of enabling an ongoing civil trial or hearing to continue without the original judge. n1 Because the growing length of federal trials increased the likelihood that the inability of a judge to continue would interrupt a trial before verdict or judgment, Rule 63 was substantially broadened in 1991 to allow successor judges to take over at any point after trial begins, thus creating a more "efficient mechanism" for completing interrupted trials without causing "unnecessary expense and delay." n2

The term "inability to proceed" as used in Rule 63 is broader than the term "disability." Thus, the rule is applicable whether the judge's inability to proceed is the result of death, disability, sickness, or disqualification. n3

[2] Successor May Take Over at Any Time During Trial

Rule 63 is applicable at any time after a trial or hearing in a civil suit has commenced. n1 Rule 63 allows successor judges to take over at any point after trial begins, thus creating a more efficient procedure for completing interrupted trials without causing expense and delay. n2 However, recognizing that injustice may result if the substitute judge proceeds despite unfamiliarity with the action, Rule 63 also imposes additional responsibilities on successor judges, such as certifying familiarity with the record in the case. n3 The prior version of Rule 63 made no provision for a judge becoming unable to proceed during a trial, and where an original judge became unavailable at any point prior to return of a verdict in a jury trial or the filing of findings of fact and conclusions of law in a bench trial, courts interpreted Rule 63 to require complete retrial. n4

[3] Applicability of Rule to Special Masters and Magistrate Judges

According to its express terms, Rule 63 applies only to judges, not to magistrate judges or special masters appointed pursuant to Rule 53. n1 However, because no federal rule addresses the inability of a master or magistrate judge to proceed, n2 some courts have applied the function of Rule 63 and the cases decided under it to situations involving the substitution of one master or magistrate judge for another. n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesSuccessors

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 63.02 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 63; Mergentime Corp. v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority, 166 F.3d 1257, 1262 (D.C. Cir. 1999) (Rule 63, which governs proceedings by successor judges, allows successor judge to avoid retrial, but only to the extent successor ensures that successor stands in shoes of predecessor).

(n3)Footnote 2. Mergentime Corp. v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority, 166 F.3d 1257, 1262 (D.C. Cir. 1999) .

(n4)Footnote 3. See Jackson v. Ala. State Tenure Comm'n, 405 F.3d 1276, 1286 (11th Cir. 2005) ; Canseco v. United States, 97 F.3d 1224, 1226 (9th Cir. 1996) .

(n5)Footnote 1. Canseco v. United States, 97 F.3d 1224, 1226 (9th Cir. 1996) (Rule 63 applies after trial or hearing begins and trial judge becomes unable to proceed; fact that trial judge entered judgment does not affect application because successor judge must certify familiarity with record).

(n6)Footnote 2. See Jackson v. Ala. State Tenure Comm'n, 405 F.3d 1276, 1286-1287 (11th Cir. 2005) .

(n7)Footnote 3. Mergentime Corp. v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority, 166 F.3d 1257, 1262 (D.C. Cir. 1999) .

(n8)Footnote 4. Mergentime Corp. v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority, 166 F.3d 1257, 1262 (D.C. Cir. 1999) .

(n9)Footnote 1. Henry A. Knott Co. v. Chesapeake & Potomac Tel. Co., 772 F.2d 78, 82 (4th Cir. 1985) (when master dies or is disqualified before issuing findings of fact and conclusions of law, new trial must be granted if case involves disputed issues of fact).

(n10)Footnote 2. Henry A. Knott Co. v. Chesapeake & Potomac Tel. Co., 772 F.2d 78, 82 n.6 (4th Cir. 1985) .

(n11)Footnote 3. Anaya v. Romero, 627 F.2d 226, 227-228 (10th Cir. 1980) (applying theory of rule to magistrate judges).

55 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 23 TRIAL TO COURT; INABILITY OF JUDGE TO PROCEED
PART II. REPLACEMENT OF TRIAL COURT JUDGE

3-23 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 23.31

§ 23.31 Extent of Judge's Inability to Proceed for Purposes of Rulen*

The trial court or party will typically invoke Rule 63 when it is necessary to appoint a successor judge because of the death, n1 illness, or other disability of the original judge in a proceeding. n2

However, the expression "inability to proceed" is not limited merely to a judge's physical or mental incapability to continue. Thus, the rule is also applicable when a trial judge retires n3 or resigns. n4 Furthermore, the rule applies whenever a judge is precluded from proceeding due to recusal for disqualification. n5 The most common basis for disqualification is the appearance of partiality. n6

Before it is applicable, Rule 63 does require that there be a compelling reason for a judge's discontinuing participation in an ongoing trial or proceeding. The rule is not intended to authorize the replacement or substitution of judges merely for the personal convenience of the court. n7 Furthermore, the reason for the sitting judge's inability to proceed should be stated on the record. n8

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesSuccessors

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 63.03 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Thompson v. Sawyer, 678 F.2d 257, 268-270 (D.C. Cir. 1982) (no abuse of discretion to order new trial based on death of predecessor judge).

(n3)Footnote 2. Berry v. School Dist. of Benton Harbor, 494 F. Supp. 118, 119 (W.D. Mich. 1980) (motion for new trial lies with discretion of successor trial judge when original trial judge becomes unable to preside due to death, sickness, or other disability).

(n4)Footnote 3. Canseco v. United States, 97 F.3d 1224, 1226 (9th Cir. 1996) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Gaddy v. Abex Corp., 884 F.2d 312, 314-316 (7th Cir. 1989) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 63, Committee Note to 1991 Amendments; see 28 U.S.C. § 144; see also § 23.32.

(n7)Footnote 6. In the Matter of Huntington Commons Assocs., 21 F.3d 157, 158 (7th Cir. 1994) ; see § 23.32[1].

(n8)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 63, Committee Note to 1991 Amendments; see United States v. Lane, 708 F.2d 1394, 1395-1397 (9th Cir. 1983) .

(n9)Footnote 8. Fed. R. Civ. P. 63, Committee Note to 1991 Amendments.

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 23 TRIAL TO COURT; INABILITY OF JUDGE TO PROCEED
PART II. REPLACEMENT OF TRIAL COURT JUDGE

3-23 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 23.32

§ 23.32 Disqualification of Judge for Biasn*

[1] Nature of Partiality

[a] Extent of Partiality

A federal judge may be disqualified in any proceeding in which his or her impartiality might reasonably be questioned. n1 A judge is also subject to disqualification if he or she has a personal bias or prejudice either against or in favor of a party, or personal knowledge of disputed evidentiary facts concerning the proceeding. n2 The basis for the disqualification requirements for judges on the grounds of partiality or bias are: the requirement of the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment that every litigant is entitled to a fair trial before a fair and impartial judge, n3 and the two statutes that control the United States judiciary and judicial procedure. n4 As used in the recusal statutes, "partiality" refers only to favoritism to one party or another that is wrongful or inappropriate. Thus, a judge is acting with partiality if the judge makes a favorable or unfavorable disposition or opinion that is somehow wrongful or inappropriate, either because it rests upon knowledge that the judge ought not possess or because it is excessive in degree. n5

The statutory requirement that a judge whose impartiality is in question must disqualify himself or herself and allow another judge to preside over the case n6 is designed to promote public confidence in the judicial process. The integrity of the judiciary is the ultimate concern of the statute, which is as much a protection for the public as it is for an individual party. n7 If the issue of whether the statute requires disqualification is a close one, the judge must be recused. On the other hand, a judge is as much obliged not to recuse himself or herself when it is not called for as he or she is obliged to when the law and facts do require recusal. n8 Judges must balance the duty to appear impartial against several practical considerations, including the availability of other judges, the cost in judicial resources of recusal and reassignment of a case to different judges, and the interest of the parties and the public in a expeditious resolution of the dispute. n9 The recusal statutes should not be construed so broadly that it becomes a presumption or to allow recusal based on unsubstantiated suggestions of personal bias or prejudice. n10 Furthermore, the statute is not intended to give litigants a veto power over a sitting judge or a vehicle for obtaining a judge of their choice. n11

[b] Extrajudicial Source of Partiality

The recusal statutes base disqualification of a jurist on partiality, bias, and prejudice. n12 However, the statutes use those terms in the pejorative sense. Consequently, it is only wrongful or inappropriate partiality or bias that requires disqualification. Not all unfavorable disposition towards a party is wrongful or inappropriate. For example, a judge may come to believe during a trial that a party is a thoroughly reprehensible person. However, the judge is not thereby recusable for bias or prejudice if his knowledge and the opinion it produced were properly and necessarily acquired in the course of the proceedings. n13 Under the "extrajudicial source doctrine," only facts learned by a judge outside of his or her direct judicial capacity regarding the parties before the court may be the basis for disqualification based on bias. n14 Wrongful bias or prejudice is only that learned from an "extrajudicial source," which is a source outside the current judicial proceeding or that learned from an earlier proceeding conducted by the same judge. n15

The extrajudicial factor doctrine recognizes that judges may not avoid forming opinions about the parties based on what they observe and hear from the bench. All judges inevitably develop opinions during the proceedings and must strive to rule impartially despite them. n16 Thus, expressions of impatience, dissatisfaction, annoyance, and anger do not normally establish bias or partiality, unless the feelings derive from an extrajudicial source. Even if a judge is stern and short-tempered, the judge's ordinary efforts at courtroom administration and admonitions to counsel and witnesses do not warrant recusal. n17 Even though a judge may become unfavorably disposed toward a party during trial, the judge is not recusable for bias or prejudice based on such feelings n18 unless they display a deep-seated favoritism or antagonism that would make fair judgment impossible. n19

There is an exception to the extrajudicial source doctrine, the "pervasive bias" exception. This exception applies when a judge's favorable or unfavorable predisposition toward a party, although based solely on the facts learned by the judge at trial, nonetheless becomes so extreme that it demonstrates the judge's clear inability to render a fair judgment. n20 However, mere friction between the court and attorney is not enough to demonstrate pervasive bias. n21 Thus, the pervasive bias exception is construed narrowly; bias stemming solely from facts gleaned during judicial proceedings must be particularly strong in order to justify disqualification. n22

[2] Objective Standard Controls Questions of Impartiality

[a] Test Based on Perception of Reasonable Person

Under both the U.S. Constitution and the recusal statutes, an objective test controls whether a judge is disqualified on the basis of partiality or bias. Under the due process constitutional standard, which sets the outer boundaries of qualification for both state and federal judges, the inquiry is whether the probability of bias on the part of the judge is too high to be constitutionally tolerable. In other words, the standard is whether the circumstances lead the reasonable person to believe the probability of actual bias on the part of the judge is too high to be constitutionally tolerable. n1

Under the federal recusal statutes applicable to federal judges, the standard for disqualification and recusal is whether a reasonable person, with knowledge and understanding of all the relevant facts, would conclude that the judge's impartiality might reasonably be questioned. n2 Thus, the recusal statutes require not only that a judge be subjectively confident of his or her ability to be unbiased, but also that an objective observer would not doubt the judge's impartiality. n3 In making a determination of partiality, the court may consider outward manifestations and reasonable inferences drawn from those manifestations. In other words, the recusal inquiry must be made from the perspective of a reasonable observer who is informed of all the surrounding facts and circumstances. n4 For example, the Supreme Court has held that a district judge was not required to be recused solely because, prior to his appointment to the bench, his name appeared erroneously on a motion to file an amicus brief in a similar suit against some of the same defendants, because if a reasonable person had knowledge of all of the circumstances, the person would not believe the judge had any interest or bias in the case. n5 Because the recusal statutes must apply to varied and unpredictable situations not subject to all reasonable legislative considerations and because each case involving a judge's disqualification is based on facts, it must be determined on its unique facts and circumstances, rather than by necessary comparison to factual situations in prior cases. n6

The objective standards governing disqualification are not concerned with whether there is actual partiality or bias. n7 Rather, a judge may be disqualified if there is a mere appearance of partiality or bias. n8 Consequently, the standard is whether a reasonable person observing all of the circumstances might reasonably question the neutrality of the judge. n9 The purpose of the objective standard to maintain public's confidence in judicial integrity justifies the standard, even if on occasion a judge without any actual bias is disqualified or removed from a particular case. n10

[b] Appearance of Partiality Not Affected by Judge's Awareness

A judge's lack of knowledge of a circumstance requiring his or her disqualification due to the appearance of partiality is immaterial, because scienter is not an element of the objective standard for partiality or bias under the recusal statutes. n11 Therefore, absence of knowledge by the judge of the circumstances creating an appearance of impropriety does not eliminate the risk that the judge's impartiality might reasonably be questioned by other persons. Furthermore, the advancement of the statute's purpose, promotion of public confidence in the integrity of the judicial process, does not depend on whether the judge actually had knowledge the circumstances. n12 Therefore, if a judge does not learn of the facts requiring disqualification until after the proceedings have begun, the judge must apply the recusal statute retroactively and take whatever steps are necessary to rectify the inadvertence. n13

[3] Effect of Judge's Bias Toward Party's Attorney

The recusal statutes generally are not concerned with whether a judge has bias or prejudice directed against a party's attorney, rather than the party itself. n1 Thus, a controversy between a judge and an attorney is insufficient in itself to justify disqualification of the judge and normally is not relevant in considering whether the judge is biased or prejudiced with respect to a party. n2 A judge's bias for or against an attorney may warrant recusal, however, if it results in material and identifiable harm to a party's case. Similarly, an attorney's past criticism of a judge does not ordinarily justify recusal of the judge. In any event, judges occasionally remove themselves from cases as a result of harsh criticism from attorneys if there is immediate danger of prejudice to a party. n3

[4] Presumption of Impartiality

Despite the objective standard applied to the question of partiality and the prohibition against even the appearance of partiality, n1 a judge is presumed to be impartial and unbiased. This presumption creates a substantial burden on the party seeking disqualification to prove otherwise. In order to establish bias or prejudice from a judge's conduct in the current proceedings, a party must show the judge had a disposition so extreme as to display a clear inability to render a fair judgment, or such a deep seated favoritism or antagonism that a fair judgment would be impossible. n2 If the bias is extra-judicial, the party need only establish that a reasonable person with knowledge and understanding of all the relevant facts would conclude that the judge's impartiality might be in question. n3 The recusal statutes were not intended to allow a party to compel disqualification simply on an unfounded aspersion concerning the judge's possible partiality. n4 Rather, the deprecatory connotation of the terms "bias" and "prejudice" demands that they be applied only to judicial predispositions that go beyond what is normal and acceptable. n5

The law presumes that judges are ordinarily capable of overcoming their prejudices and rendering equitable justice. Thus, the presumption is not met merely by a showing of threats or other attempts to intimidate the judge, n6 or a showing of public criticism of a judge or the judge's decisions. n7 However, even though the law places a substantial burden on a party seeking disqualification, if the question of whether to disqualify a judge is a close one, it should be resolved in favor of recusal. n8

[5] Waiver of Partiality as Grounds for Disqualification

[a] Waiver of Disqualification Permitted

Whether a ground for disqualification of a judge may be waived depends on the ground for disqualification. When the only ground for disqualification is that a judge's impartiality might reasonably be questioned (the objective test), all parties to the proceeding may waive the disqualification, provided that the judge makes full disclosure on the record of the basis for disqualification. n1 If the ground for disqualification is based on any of the grounds listed in Section 455(b), the disqualification may not be waived and the judge must be recused. n2

When the parties decide to waive a disqualification after full disclosure, the court has discretion to accept the waiver and continue in the trial or proceeding, but the court is not required to accept the waiver when the court determines that the appearance of bias is too great. n3 An attorney for a party may effectively waive disqualification on behalf of a party, even outside the party's presence if the party is not present at the time of the waiver. n4

[b] Requirement of Full Disclosure on Record

Before the parties may waive disqualification, the judge must fully disclose on the record all the facts relating to any alleged appearance of partiality. n5 After disclosure, the judge should leave it to the parties to decide whether or not to waive disqualification. Appellate courts have strictly applied the disclosure requirement when determining whether a waiver was adequate. n6 Only the disclosure itself and not the parties' waiver, must appear on the record. Thus, a party may waive disqualification by electing to proceed and failing to seek recusal after the judge has fully disclosed the ground on the record. n7

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsFederal JudgesCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsAppearance of ImproprietyCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsAppearance of PartialityCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsFinancial InterestsCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsPersonal Bias

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 63.20 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 455(a).

(n3)Footnote 2. 28 U.S.C. §§ 144, 455(b)(1); see § 23.33[1] (personal bias or prejudice of judge).

(n4)Footnote 3. Caperton v. A. T. Massey Coal Co., ___ U.S. ___, 129 S. Ct. 2252, 173 L. Ed. 2d 1208, 1217 (2009) .

(n5)Footnote 4. See 28 U.S.C. §§ 144, 455(a).

(n6)Footnote 5. Williams v. Anderson, 460 F.3d 789, 814 (6th Cir. 2006) .

(n7)Footnote 6. 28 U.S.C. § 455(a).

(n8)Footnote 7. United States v. Greenspan, 26 F.3d 1001, 1007 (10th Cir. 1994) ; see Liljeberg v. Health Services Acquisition Corp., 486 U.S. 847, 859-860, 108 S. Ct. 2194, 100 L. Ed. 2d 855 (1988) (purpose of statute is to promote public confidence in integrity of judicial process).

(n9)Footnote 8. Cheney v. United States Dist. Court, 541 U.S. 913, 915-916, 124 S. Ct. 1391, 158 L. Ed. 2d 225 (2004) (unnecessary recusals impair functioning of courts).

(n10)Footnote 9. Muchnick v. Thomson Corp. (In re Literary Works in Elec. Databases Copyright Litig.), 509 F.3d 136, 140 (2d Cir. 2007) .

(n11)Footnote 10. Am. Prairie Constr. Co. v. Hoich, 560 F.3d 780, 790 (8th Cir. 2009) (on contrary, judge is presumed to be impartial, and party seeking disqualification has substantial burden of proving otherwise).

(n12)Footnote 11. Bryce v. Episcopal Church in the Diocese of Colo., 289 F.3d 648, 659-660 (10th Cir. 2002) .

(n13)Footnote 12. See 28 U.S.C. §§ 144, 455(a), (b)(1).

(n14)Footnote 13. Liteky v. United States, 510 U.S. 540, 551, 114 S. Ct. 1147, 127 L. Ed. 2d 474 (1994) .

(n15)Footnote 14. Sentis Group, Inc. v. Shell Oil Co., 559 F.3d 888, 905-906 (8th Cir. 2009) .

(n16)Footnote 15. In re Charges of Judicial Misconduct, 465 F.3d 532, 551 (2d Cir. 2006) .

(n17)Footnote 16. In the Matter of Huntington Commons Assocs., 21 F.3d 157, 158 (7th Cir. 1994) .

(n18)Footnote 17. Bin-Wahad v. Coughlin, 853 F. Supp. 680, 683-684 (S.D.N.Y. 1994) (judge's comments and opinions solely based on evidence presented during trial are not sufficient to recuse).

(n19)Footnote 18. Liteky v. United States, 510 U.S. 540, 550-551, 114 S. Ct. 1147, 127 L. Ed. 2d 474 (1994) .

(n20)Footnote 19. United States v. Antar, 53 F.3d 568, 574 (3d Cir. 1995) (because beliefs or opinions that merit recusal must involve extrajudicial factor, bias stemming from facts gleaned during judicial proceedings must be particularly strong to merit recusal).

(n21)Footnote 20. Groden v. Random House Inc., 61 F.3d 1045, 1053 (2d Cir. 1995) .

(n22)Footnote 21. Thomas v. Tenneco Packaging Co., 293 F.3d 1306, 1330 (11th Cir. 2002) .

(n23)Footnote 22. In the Matter of Huntington Commons Assocs., 21 F.3d 157, 158 (7th Cir. 1994) (judge does not have to be impervious to impressions about parties; impatience, admonishments to defendant, adverse rulings, and vague reference to possible predisposition not sufficient to meet requirement of deep-seated and unequivocal antagonism that would render fair judgment impossible).

(n24)Footnote 1. Caperton v. A. T. Massey Coal Co., ___ U.S. ___, 129 S. Ct. 2252, 173 L. Ed. 2d 1208, 1217 (2009) (standard is whether there is an influence on the judge under all the circumstances that would offer a possible temptation to the average judge to lead him not to hold the judicial balance "nice, clear, and true").

(n25)Footnote 2. Pesnell v. Arsenault, 543 F.3d 1038, 1043 (9th Cir. 2008) .

(n26)Footnote 3. In re Bernard v. Coyne, 31 F.3d 842, 844 (9th Cir. 1994) .

(n27)Footnote 4. Cheney v. United States Dist. Court, 541 U.S. 913, 924, 124 S. Ct. 1391, 158 L. Ed. 2d 225 (2004) .

(n28)Footnote 5. Sao Paulo State of the Federative Republic of Brazil v. Am. Tobacco Co., 535 U.S. 229, 122 S. Ct. 1290, 1292, 152 L. Ed. 2d 346 (2002) (reasonable person would find no partiality if person knew facts that judge's name was added mistakenly and without his knowledge to motion to file amicus brief in prior case and that judge took no part in preparation or approval of the amicus brief).

(n29)Footnote 6. Nichols v. Alley, 71 F.3d 347, 351 (10th Cir. 1995) ; United States v. Jordan, 49 F.3d 152, 157 (5th Cir. 1995) .

(n30)Footnote 7. Liteky v. United States, 510 U.S. 540, 114 S. Ct. 1147, 127 L. Ed. 2d 474 (1994) ; see Caperton v. A. T. Massey Coal Co., ___ U.S. ___, 129 S. Ct. 2252, 173 L. Ed. 2d 1208, 1221-1222 (2009) (disqualification is based on objective rather than subjective findings of partiality and impropriety).

(n31)Footnote 8. Huber v. Taylor, 532 F.3d 237, 251 (3d Cir. 2008) .

(n32)Footnote 9. Muchnick v. Thomson Corp. (In re Literary Works in Elec. Databases Copyright Litig.), 509 F.3d 136, 140 (2d Cir. 2007) .

(n33)Footnote 10. Bryce v. Episcopal Church in the Diocese of Colo., 289 F.3d 648, 660 (10th Cir. 2002) .

(n34)Footnote 11. Moran v. Clarke, 296 F.3d 638, 648 (8th Cir. 2002) .

(n35)Footnote 12. Liljeberg v. Health Servs. Acquisition Corp., 486 U.S. 847, 859-860, 108 S. Ct. 2194, 100 L. Ed. 2d 855 (1988) (whether judge actually has knowledge of grounds requiring recusal is irrelevant).

(n36)Footnote 13. Liljeberg v. Health Services Acquisition Corp., 486 U.S. 847, 861, 108 S. Ct. 2194, 100 L. Ed. 2d 855 (1988) .

(n37)Footnote 1. Baldwin Hardware Corp. v. Franksu Enterprise Corp., 78 F.3d 550, 557 (Fed. Cir. 1996) (bias warrants disqualification only when directed against party, and bias directed against attorney will only merit recusal when it results in material and identifiable harm to party).

(n38)Footnote 2. A.J. by L.B. v. Kierst, 56 F.3d 849, 862 (8th Cir. 1995) .

(n39)Footnote 3. Standing Comm. v. Yagman, 55 F.3d 1430, 1444 (9th Cir. 1995) (substantial showing of jeopardy to party's interest required for judge to recuse self due to attorney's criticism of judge).

(n40)Footnote 1. See [2], above.

(n41)Footnote 2. Am. Prairie Constr. Co. v. Hoich, 560 F.3d 780, 790 (8th Cir. 2009) .

(n42)Footnote 3. Cotton v. Wash. Metro. Area Transit Auth., 264 F. Supp. 2d 39, 41-42 (D.D.C. 2003) ; see [2], above (objective standard).

(n43)Footnote 4. El Fenix de Puerto Rico v. The M/Y Johanny, 36 F.3d 136, 140 (1st Cir. 1994) (partiality must have some basis in fact).

(n44)Footnote 5. Liteky v. United States, 510 U.S. 540, 114 S. Ct. 1147, 1155, 127 L. Ed. 2d 474 (1994) (judge forming opinions as to parties during course of trial is not reason for recusal, since this is necessary to fulfill judge's role).

(n45)Footnote 6. United States v. Cooley, 1 F.3d 985, 993-994 (10th Cir. 1993) , cert. denied sub nom. Turner v. United States, 515 U.S. 1104 (1995) (threats or attempts to intimidate judge do not ordinarily satisfy disqualification requirements).

(n46)Footnote 7. Standing Comm. v. Yagman, 55 F.3d 1430, 1444-1445 (9th Cir. 1995) (federal judges have life tenure to shield them from public criticism).

(n47)Footnote 8. Nichols v. Alley, 71 F.3d 347, 352 (10th Cir. 1995) .

(n48)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 455(e); see [b], below.

(n49)Footnote 2. 28 U.S.C. § 455(e); see, e.g., Davis v. Jones, 506 F.3d 1325, 1332 (11th Cir. 2007) (parties may not waive disqualification of judge under 28 U.S.C. § 455(b)(5)(ii) when lawyer in proceeding is related within third degree to judge).

(n50)Footnote 3. See Moran v. Clarke, 296 F.3d 638, 648-649 (8th Cir. 2002) ; United States v. Pepper & Potter, Inc., 677 F. Supp. 123, 126 (E.D.N.Y. 1988) .

(n51)Footnote 4. Brody v. President & Fellows of Harvard College, 664 F.2d 10, 11-12 (1st Cir. 1981) .

(n52)Footnote 5. 28 U.S.C. § 455(e); Potashnick v. Port City Constr. Co., 609 F.2d 1101, 1110 (5th Cir. 1980) (waiver ineffective absent full disclosure of facts relating to business relationship with attorney); Brody v. President & Fellows of Harvard College, 664 F.2d 10, 11-12 (1st Cir. 1981) (discussion of procedure for partiality waiver).

(n53)Footnote 6. Potashnick v. Port City Constr. Co., 609 F.2d 1101, 1110 (5th Cir. 1980) (waiver ineffective absent full disclosure of facts relating to business relationship with attorney); Barksdale v. Emerick, 853 F.2d 1359, 1361-1362 (6th Cir. 1988) (lack of properly obtained waiver required remand to supplement and clarify record).

(n54)Footnote 7. United States v. Nobel, 696 F.2d 231, 236-237 (3d Cir. 1982) (party's election to proceed after full disclosure constituted waiver of disqualification).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 23 TRIAL TO COURT; INABILITY OF JUDGE TO PROCEED
PART II. REPLACEMENT OF TRIAL COURT JUDGE

3-23 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 23.33

§ 23.33 Disqualification of Judge Based on Judge's Involvement or Interestn*

[1] Judge's Previous Involvement With Matter in Controversy

The recusal statutes provide that a judge is disqualified in any circumstances in which the judge has actual bias or prejudice interest in the matter. n1 Thus, a judge must disqualify himself or herself in the following circumstances:

1. The judge has a personal bias or prejudice concerning a party, or personal knowledge of disputed evidentiary facts concerning the proceeding. n2 The bias must be personal in the sense that the bias is subjective from the perspective of the judge, rather than objective from the perspective of the reasonable person. n3

2. A judge is disqualified if the judge was a lawyer in private practice in the matter in controversy. A judge is also disqualified if a lawyer with whom he or she previously practiced law was involved as a lawyer in the matter during their association. n4 This requirement applies regardless of whether the judge or members of the judge's former firm represented either a named party in the suit or merely a nonparty interested in the matter. n5

3. A judge who has been a material witness concerning the matter in controversy may not hear a case relating to such matter. Similarly, a judge is disqualified if a lawyer with whom the judge previously practiced law has been a material witness in the matter in controversy. n6 Note that this disqualification applies only if the matter must have been under consideration by the firm while the judge and the lawyer were still associated with the firm. n7

4. A judge is disqualified if, while serving in governmental employment, the judge actively participated as counsel, adviser, or material witness concerning the proceeding. A judge is also disqualified if, while serving in that capacity, he or she expressed an opinion concerning the merits of the particular case in controversy. n8 This grounds for disqualification requires that the judge have personally served on the case to be disqualified. Therefore, this grounds is much less broad than the "associational" rule for disqualification based on prior law firm employment stated in under item 2, above. n9

[2] Financial Interest of Judge or Immediate Family

[a] Disqualification Because of Financial Interest

A judge who knows that he or she has a financial interest in the subject matter in controversy, or in a party to the proceeding, must be disqualified. This disqualification applies regardless of whether the interest is held by the judge individually or as a fiduciary; the rule of disqualification also applies if the interest is held by the judge's spouse or minor child residing in the judge's household. n1 Furthermore the rule applies regardless of how insubstantial the financial interest is, and regardless of whether or not the interest actually creates an appearance of impropriety. n2 However, the judge must have knowledge of the existence of the disqualifying financial interest. n3

[b] Scope of Financial Interest

A "financial interest in the subject matter in controversy for purposes of disqualification under Section 455(b)(4) means an investment or other asset whose value depends on the outcome of the controversy, or some other concrete, direct financial effect, such as how much property tax a judge pays. n4 A financial interest includes ownership of either a legal or equitable interest in any monetary amount, however insubstantial the interest may appear. n5 and whether or not the interest actually creates any appearance of partiality. n6 A "financial interest" also includes a relationship of the judge as director, adviser, or other active participant in the affairs of a party. n7

However, because the financial interest requirement originated in the due process clause of the constitution, n8 an interest is not disqualifying if is indirect or merely a remote, contingent, or speculative possibility. On the contrary, the disqualifying interest must be direct, personal, substantial, and pecuniary. n9

The recusal statutes provide several specific exceptions from the financial interest concept. The ownership in a mutual or common investment fund that holds securities is not a financial interest in the securities, for purposes of recusal, unless the judge participates in the management of the fund. n10 For purposes of the recusal statutes, an office in an educational, religious, charitable, fraternal, or civic organization is not a financial interest in the securities held by the organization. n11 The proprietary interest of a policy holder in a mutual insurance company, of a depositor in a mutual savings association, or similar proprietary interest does not constitute a financial interest in the organization unless the outcome of the proceeding could substantially affect the value of the interest. n12 The ownership of government securities is not a financial interest in the issuer unless the outcome of the proceeding could substantially affect the value of the interest. n13

[c] Knowledge Required on Part of Judge

Unlike the objective standard under Section 455(a), the Section 455(b)(4) financial interest disqualification contains a scienter requirement, an actual knowledge test regarding the disqualifying circumstances. n14 Before he or she becomes disqualified, the judge must have knowledge of the existence of the disqualifying financial interest. n15 However, judges have an affirmative obligation to stay informed about their personal and fiduciary financial interests, and are also required to make reasonable efforts to stay informed about the personal financial interests of their spouses and minor children residing in their households. n16 If the judge fails to keep informed, the failure itself may constitute a separate violation of the recusal statute. n17

If a judge obtains knowledge of a financial interest ground for disqualification only after substantial judicial time has been devoted to the matter, n18 and the interest is not one that could be substantially affected by the outcome of the proceeding, disqualification is not required provided that the judge or the judge's spouse or minor resident child divests himself or herself of the interest. n19 For example, a judge may avoid recusal by divestiture of a small financial interest in the subject matter of the litigation, or in a party to the proceeding, that would otherwise disqualify the judge if he or she did not divest. A curative divestment is generally available under Section 455(a) or 455(b) if a reasonable person would not have known the circumstances warranting recusal prior to his or her divestment of an offending interest. n20

[3] Status or Other Nonfinancial Interest of Judge, Spouse, or Relative

A judge may also be disqualified in several situations based merely on the status of the judge or a related person. Thus, a judge is disqualified from service if the judge, the judge's spouse, or a related party is a party to the proceeding, or an officer, director, or trustee of a party. "Related parties" include a person within the third degree of relationship to the judge or the judge's spouse, or the spouse of that relative. n21 A party proceeding under a fictitious business name or pseudonym should disclose his or her true name to district court, so that district judge may determine whether to recuse himself or herself from the case. When a case is being reviewed on appeal the same disclosure should be made to the circuit court of appeals. n22

The second ground for disqualification in this category occurs when if the judge, the judge's spouse, a person within the third degree of relationship to the judge or the judge's spouse, or the spouse of that relative is acting as a lawyer in the proceeding. n23 This disqualification rule applies whenever the related party is actively participating as a lawyer in the proceeding in question, either in pretrial participation, or when a lawyer is enrolled as counsel of record. n24 To prevent abuse of this rule, parties may not choose counsel solely or primarily for the purpose of disqualifying the assigned judge. n25

The third situation in this category that may disqualify a judge is any personal interest in the case, even if the interest is not financial. Thus, a judge is disqualified from service if the judge, the judge's spouse, or a related party is known to have an interest that could be substantially affected by the outcome of the proceeding. Related parties include any person within the third degree of relationship to the judge or the judge's spouse, or the spouse of that relative. n26 To require disqualification of a judge, the personal interest of the judge or person related to the judge must be direct and concrete, and not speculative or remote. n27

The final disqualifier based on status is that of material witness. Thus, a judge is disqualified from service if the judge, the judge's spouse, person within the third degree of relationship to the judge, judge's spouse, or the spouse of that relative is likely to be a material witness in the proceeding. n28 For the judge to be disqualified means that there must be a showing that the judge or related person will probably be called to testify to a material fact regarding a claim in the proceeding. n29 Recusal under Section 455(b)(5)(iv) is mandatory, which means that if the judge or a party determines that there is a probability the judge will need to testify, disqualification is automatic. The purpose of this mandatory disqualification provision is to prevent a judge from having to pass on the competence and veracity of the judge's testimony given with respect to the matter in controversy before him or her. n30

[4] Judge's Interest or Expertise in Particular Specialty of Law

A judge's academic interest or expertise in a particular area of law does not in itself constitute a ground for recusal. The rationale for this principle is that judges should not be reluctant to inform themselves on any legal subject, or participate in conferences concerning any area of the law, on the apprehension that their sources of information might later be assailed as one-sided. Furthermore, knowledge gained from scholarly sources does not constitute extrajudicial knowledge of disputed evidentiary facts. n1

Attendance at a conference that is sponsored or dominated by parties and attorneys representing one side of an issue, on the other hand, may justify recusal under extreme circumstances. For example, it was held in one case that a judge's attendance at pro-plaintiff conference on key issues in a nationwide products liability class action, which the judge attended at plaintiffs' expense out of a settlement fund deposited with the court, created the appearance of impropriety. n2

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsFinancial InterestsCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsPrior Involvements

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 63.30 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See 28 U.S.C. §§ 144, 455(b); Collins v. Illinois, 554 F.3d 693, 697 (7th Cir. 2009) .

(n3)Footnote 2. 28 U.S.C. § 455(b)(1).

(n4)Footnote 3. In re Syntax-Brillian Corp., 400 B.R. 21, 26 (D. Del. 2009) .

(n5)Footnote 4. 28 U.S.C. § 455(b)(2).

(n6)Footnote 5. Preston v. United States, 923 F.2d 731, 734-735 (9th Cir. 1991) .

(n7)Footnote 6. 28 U.S.C. § 455(b)(2).

(n8)Footnote 7. Rahman v. Johanns, 501 F. Supp. 2d 8, 14 (D.D.C. 2007) ; see Faulkner v. Nat'l Geographic Soc'y, 296 F. Supp. 2d 488, 491 (S.D.N.Y. 2003) (28 U.S.C. § 455(b)(2) is triggered only when lawyer with whom judge practiced was material witness during period in which judge and lawyer were associated).

(n9)Footnote 8. 28 U.S.C. § 455(b)(3).

(n10)Footnote 9. Baker & Hostetler LLP v. United States DOC, 471 F.3d 1355, 1357 (D.C. Cir. 2006) .

(n11)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 455(b)(4).

(n12)Footnote 2. Liljeberg v. Health Services Acquisition Corp., 486 U.S. 847, 859-860 n.8, 108 S. Ct. 2194, 100 L. Ed. 2d 855 (1988) (judge who was trustee of university should have disqualified self in action seeking declaration of ownership of corporation in which university had interest).

(n13)Footnote 3. Liljeberg v. Health Services Acquisition Corp., 486 U.S. 847, 859, 108 S. Ct. 2194, 100 L. Ed. 2d 855 (1988) (Congress intended scienter under § 455(b)(4)); see [3], below.

(n14)Footnote 4. Guardian Pipeline, L.L.C. v. 950. 80 Acres of Land, 525 F.3d 554, 557 (7th Cir. 2008) .

(n15)Footnote 5. 28 U.S.C. § 455(d)(4); see Berthelot v. Boh Bros. Constr. Co., L.L.C., 431 F. Supp. 2d 639, 648 (E.D. La. 2006) (judge would be disqualified by financial interest even if it were "small" interest of class member when class is seeking monetary relief).

(n16)Footnote 6. Liljeberg v. Health Services Acquisition Corp., 486 U.S. 847, 859-860 n.8, 108 S. Ct. 2194, 100 L. Ed. 2d 855 (1988) .

(n17)Footnote 7. 28 U.S.C. § 455(d)(4).

(n18)Footnote 8. Caperton v. A. T. Massey Coal Co., ___ U.S. ___, 129 S. Ct. 2252, 173 L. Ed. 2d 1208, 1218-1219 (2009) .

(n19)Footnote 9. Sensley v. Albritton, 385 F.3d 591, 600 (5th Cir. 2004) .

(n20)Footnote 10. 28 U.S.C. § 455(d)(4)(i); see New York Dev't Corp. v. Hart, 796 F.2d 976, 978-979 (7th Cir.

1986) .

(n21)Footnote 11. 28 U.S.C. § 455(d)(4)(i).

(n22)Footnote 12. 28 U.S.C. § 455(d)(4)(iii).

(n23)Footnote 13. 28 U.S.C. § 455(d)(4)(iv).

(n24)Footnote 14. Chase Manhattan Bank v. Affiliated FM Ins. Co., 343 F.3d 120, 127 (2d Cir. 2003) .

(n25)Footnote 15. See 28 U.S.C. § 455(b)(4); Liljeberg v. Health Services Acquisition Corp., 486 U.S. 847, 859, 108 S. Ct. 2194, 100 L. Ed. 2d 855 (1988) .

(n26)Footnote 16. 28 U.S.C. § 455(c); see In re Hussey, 391 B.R. 911, 919 (S.D. Fla. 2008) .

(n27)Footnote 17. Liljeberg v. Health Services Acquisition Corp., 486 U.S. 847, 867-868, 108 S. Ct. 2194, 100 L. Ed. 2d 855 (1988) .

(n28)Footnote 18. 28 U.S.C. § 455(f).

(n29)Footnote 19. 28 U.S.C. § 455(f).

(n30)Footnote 20. Muchnick v. Thomson Corp. (In re Literary Works in Elec. Databases Copyright Litig.), 509 F.3d 136, 142 (2d Cir. 2007) .

(n31)Footnote 21. 28 U.S.C. § 455(b)(5)(i); see Muchnick v. Thomson Corp. (In re Literary Works in Elec. Databases Copyright Litig.), 509 F.3d 136, 142 (2d Cir. 2007) (determination of effect of judge's status as "party" based on membership in class).

(n32)Footnote 22. Coe v. Cook County, 162 F.3d 491, 498 (7th Cir. 1998) .

(n33)Footnote 23. 28 U.S.C. § 455(b)(5)(ii).

(n34)Footnote 24. United States v. Vazquez Botet, 532 F.3d 37, 47 (1st Cir. 2008) (nature of active participation by lawyer).

(n35)Footnote 25. McCuin v. Texas Power & Light Co., 714 F.2d 1255, 1257, 1260-1263 (5th Cir. 1983) (if successor judge finds that sole and primary purpose for retaining relative of original judge as counsel is to disqualify judge, attorney must be disqualified).

(n36)Footnote 26. 28 U.S.C. § 455(b)(5)(iii).

(n37)Footnote 27. Microsoft Corp. v. United States, 530 U.S. 1301, 1302, 121 S. Ct. 25, 147 L. Ed. 2d 1048 (2000) (Supreme Court justice not disqualified in one antitrust case merely because his son's law firm represented same party in another antitrust case).

(n38)Footnote 28. 28 U.S.C. § 455(b)(5)(iv).

(n39)Footnote 29. Pesnell v. Arsenault, 543 F.3d 1038, 1044 (9th Cir. 2008) .

(n40)Footnote 30. Adrian v. Mesirow Fin. Structured Settlements, 588 F. Supp. 2d 216, 219 (D.P.R. 2008) .

(n41)Footnote 1. United States v. Bonds, 18 F.3d 1327, 1329-1331 (6th Cir. 1994) .

(n42)Footnote 2. In re School Asbestos Litig., 977 F.2d 764, 781-782 (3d Cir. 1992) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 23 TRIAL TO COURT; INABILITY OF JUDGE TO PROCEED
PART II. REPLACEMENT OF TRIAL COURT JUDGE

3-23 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 23.34

§ 23.34 Procedure for Disqualificationn*

[1] Initiation of Disqualification Request

[a] Recusal Initiated by Disqualified Judge

The initial decision of whether a judge should adjudicate a case rests with the individual judge assigned to the case. Every judicial officer must be satisfied that he or she is unbiased toward the parties, and that his or her impartiality is not reasonably subject to question. The statute providing the grounds for disqualification of a judge places the obligation to identify the existence of those grounds on the judge, rather than requiring disqualification only in response to a party's motion. n1 Thus, a judge has a continuing duty to examine grounds for disqualification at all stages of a proceeding: recusal is required before, during, or even after a proceeding if the judge concludes that sufficient factual grounds exist to cause an objective person reasonably to question the judge's impartiality. n2 As a practical matter, if a judge perceives any conflict in a case assigned to him or her, the judge usually recuses himself or herself even prior to the time the parties learn of the assignment. n3

However, a judge should not be precipitate in his or her decision. A judge's duty to hear a case when no legitimate reason for disqualification exists is as strong as the judge's duty to disqualify when there is a valid reason. n4 A judge should not recuse on unsupported, irrational, speculative, or highly tenuous grounds. n5 However, a judge faced with a close question on disqualification should err on the side of caution and disqualify himself or herself from the case. n6 n7

[b] Recusal Initiated by Party

If a party believes that a judge should have disqualified himself or herself but did not, the party may file a motion for disqualification n8 pursuant to one or more of the recusal statutes. n9 A motion to disqualify does not criticize the integrity of the judge whose impartiality is questioned. On the contrary, an attorney who believes a judge's impartiality is reasonably subject to question has not only a professional duty to his or her client to raise the matter, but also an independent obligation as an officer of the court to preserve public confidence in the judicial system. n10

If a motion for disqualification is made under Section 144, a party asserting the bias or prejudice of a judge must file an affidavit at least 10 days before the beginning of the term at which the proceeding is to be heard; n11 because terms of court have been abolished, courts have interpreted the statute to require a party to file an affidavit at the earliest moment after acquiring knowledge of the facts demonstrating the basis for disqualification. n12

If a motion for disqualification is made under Section 455 most circuit courts of appeal have held that the party's motion must be timely filed when a judge does not voluntarily recuse himself or herself. In general, a party seeking disqualification must do so at the earliest possible moment after obtaining knowledge of the facts demonstrating the basis for disqualification. n13 One court has applied a four-factor test to consider whether a disqualification motion is timely: (1) whether the movant has participated in a substantial manner in trial or pre-trial proceedings; (2) whether granting the motion would represent a waste of judicial resources; (3) whether the motion was made after the entry of judgment; and (4) whether the movant can demonstrate good cause for delay. n14

[2] Requirements of Motion for Disqualification

A party seeking the disqualification of a judge under Section 144 must file an affidavit stating that the judge before whom the matter is pending has a personal bias or prejudice either against the party or in favor of any adverse party. The affidavit must state the facts and reasons for the party's belief that bias or prejudice exists. n1 Specifically, the affidavit should identify and carefully specify the time, place, persons, occasions, and circumstances supporting the party's belief of bias or prejudice. n2 If the party is seeking recusal on the theory that the judge's bias against the party's attorney should be imputed to the party, the affidavit must allege facts suggesting that the alleged bias against the attorney might extend to the party. n3 If the affidavit of bias is based on an extrajudicial statement of the judge, the substance of that statement should be stated in the affidavit. n4

An affidavit made pursuant to Section 144 must be filed by a party to the proceeding and must state facts and reasons that are sufficient to convince a reasonable person that a bias or prejudice exists. n5 The affidavit must be personally signed by the party, not the party's attorney. n6 An affidavit filed pursuant to Section 144 must be accompanied by a certificate of counsel. n7 The certificate must be signed by a counsel of record and must state that the affidavit is made in good faith. n8

A party may assert disqualification of a judge under Section 455 by motion. n9 Unlike Section 144, Section 455 specifies no procedure for seeking recusal. However, courts have held that the motion should allege facts showing that a reasonable person would harbor doubts about the judge's impartiality. n10 Unlike Section 144, no affidavit is required in connection with a Section 455 motion. n11 In evaluating a Section 455 motion, a judge need not accept as true its factual assertions, but may weigh the evidence n12 and contradict the allegations with facts drawn from his or her personal knowledge. n13

[3] District Court May Rule on Motion or May Refer it to Another Judge

When a party seeks to disqualify an assigned judge, the judge has the discretion to either refer the recusal motion for determination by another judge or to rule on the motion himself or herself. n1 Although the recusal statutes do not require that the motion be heard and decided by another judge, n2 courts have recognized that determination of a recusal motion by the same judge whose impartiality is being questioned may create tension in the courtroom. n3 Furthermore, judges who are asked to recuse themselves may be reluctant to impugn their own impartiality. However, district court judges have broad discretion in determining whether or not disqualification is required and their decisions are reviewed for abuse of discretion. n4

[4] Documentation and Effect of Ruling

When a judge rules on a motion for disqualification, the judge must document the reasons for his or her decision. It is not a question of either party having the burden of proof. Rather, recusal is an action taken by a judge, and the judge must document the reasons for the decision so that it may be reviewed by an appellate court if necessary. n1 If the ground for disqualification is one that may be waived, the judge must place on the record all the facts relating to any alleged appearance of partiality. n2

Once a judge has been recused, the judge may ordinarily take no further action in the proceeding, except whatever ministerial acts are necessary to transfer the case to a successor judge. n3 Thus, a recused judge may not vacate his or her previously final judgment. n4 Furthermore, even absent a valid ground for recusal, it is not proper for the same judge who issued an order recusing himself or herself to reconsider the order and set it aside. n5

[5] Appellate Review of Ruling on Disqualification

[a] Grant of Disqualification

Most appeals arise in the context of a failure to recuse, n1 because as a general rule, an order granting recusal is not subject to appellate review. One circuit court concluded that the grant of the motion was not a final order, was not reviewable under the collateral order doctrine, and could not be reviewed by mandamus. The court rejected the party's challenge, which had argued that recusal was unnecessary under the circumstances and that permitting unnecessary recusals would prevent proper judicial administration. The court reasoned that even if true, no party could seek reversal because the interest being vindicated would be that of the public in the administration of justice, and not the interest of the particular party. n2

There are to exceptions to the general rule. First, when a basis for recusal would require the disqualification of every judge in a state or in a particular district, the rule of necessity provides that none of the justices is disqualified. n3 Second, in exceptional circumstances, such as when the parties will face significant costs and delay while a new judge is becoming familiar with the previous proceedings in the case, the parties have a protectable interest in continuing the case before the original judge. In such cases, the parties may challenge the recusal order by mandamus. n4 When review is allowed, the grant of recusal is reviewed for abuse of discretion. n5

[b] Denial of Disqualification

An order denying a motion to recuse is interlocutory and therefore not immediately appealable. n6 However, an order denying a motion to recuse is immediately appealable in conjunction with an otherwise appealable interlocutory order. n7 Thus, in the majority of cases, an order denying a motion to recuse is only fully reviewable on appeal from a final judgment. n8

Most circuit courts of appeal hold that a writ of mandamus is an appropriate vehicle by which to challenge a district court's denial of a recusal motion. n9 Rule 21 of the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure establishes the procedure for writs of mandamus. n10 Mandamus is available only on a showing of an indisputable right to relief or exceptional circumstances. An Applicant for mandamus relief must demonstrate a clear abuse of discretion, or conduct by the district court amounting to a usurpation of judicial authority. Petitioners must also show that they lack adequate alternative means to obtain the relief they seek; n11 because these criteria are difficult to satisfy, the majority of courts deny the writ. n12

When the issue of recusal is not raised at trial, some courts have held that the issue may not be addressed on appeal. n13 For courts that do permit review absent objection of a district court's failure to recuse, a plain error standard of review applies. n14 However, if the appellate court is reviewing a district court's order by means of mandamus, the higher standard dictated by that writ governs appellate review. n15 Facts not known at the time of the recusal motion may be considered in determining whether the judge should have been recused. n16 Furthermore, the recusal statutes may be applied retroactively to correct a lower court's oversight and take the steps necessary to maintain public confidence in the impartiality of the judiciary. n17

[c] Remedy on Reversal of Denial of Recusal

The failure to recuse constitutes reversible error only when the conflict of interest is readily apparent and the risk of impartiality is substantial. The judge's lack of knowledge of the disqualifying circumstance may bear on the selection of a remedy. n18 With respect to remedy, the court of appeals usual remedy on reversal is to order a new trial for improper failure to recuse. Not every improper failure to recuse requires a new trial. Rather, the factors to be balanced in determining whether the court is required to vacate the judgment include: the risk of injustice to the parties in the particular case; the risk that the denial of vacatur will lead to unjust results in other cases; and the risk of undermining the public's confidence in the judicial process. n19

On the other hand, when the failure to recuse rises to the level of a constitutional violation, a higher standard than the more restrictive statutory disqualification provisions, and the disqualified judge casts the deciding vote and authors the opinion, the appearance of partiality requires the court to vacate the judgment. n20 In determining whether vacatur of judgment is appropriate in a particular case, courts should consider the risk of injustice in the case, the risk that denial of relief will cause harm in other cases, and the risk of undermining public confidence in the federal judicial process. n21

When the facts relating to the issue of disqualification are not sufficiently apparent from the record, an appellate court may remand for an evidentiary hearing. n22

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsFederal Judges

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 63.60 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 455(a), (b); see Liteky v. United States, 510 U.S. 540, 548, 114 S. Ct. 1147, 127 L. Ed. 2d 474 (1994) (obligation to identify grounds for recusal are on judge, rather than party requesting disqualification).

(n3)Footnote 2. See Youn v. Track, Inc., 324 F.3d 409, 423 (6th Cir. 2003) .

(n4)Footnote 3. See, e.g., In re Bernard v. Coyne, 31 F.3d 842, 843 (9th Cir. 1994) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Cheney v. United States Dist. Court, 541 U.S. 913, 915-916, 124 S. Ct. 1391, 158 L. Ed. 2d 225 (2004) .

(n6)Footnote 5. In re American Ready Mix, Inc., 14 F.3d 1497, 1501 (10th Cir. 1994) .

(n7)Footnote 6. Nichols v. Alley, 71 F.3d 347, 352 (10th Cir. 1995) (if question is close, balance tips in favor of recusal).

(n8)Footnote 7. [RESERVED]

(n9)Footnote 8. In re Bernard v. Coyne, 31 F.3d 842, 843 (9th Cir. 1994) (motion to disqualify is decided by judge whom party wishes to disqualify).

(n10)Footnote 9. Lindsey v. City of Beaufort, 911 F. Supp. 962, 967 (D.S.C. 1995) (parties may move to disqualify judge under either 28 U.S.C. § 144 or 28 U.S.C. § 455).

(n11)Footnote 10. In re Bernard v. Coyne, 31 F.3d 842, 846-847 (9th Cir. 1994) .

(n12)Footnote 11. 28 U.S.C. § 144.

(n13)Footnote 12. United States v. Sykes, 7 F.3d 1331, 1339 (7th Cir. 1993) (affidavit not filed until two months after allegedly prejudicial statement was untimely).

(n14)Footnote 13. Gil Enters. v. Delvy, 79 F.3d 241, 247 (2d Cir. 1996) .

(n15)Footnote 14. United States v. Brinkworth, 68 F.3d 633, 639 (2d Cir. 1995) .

(n16)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 144.

(n17)Footnote 2. Travelers Ins. Co. v. St. Jude Medical Office Bldg., 843 F. Supp. 138, 143 (E.D. La. 1994) .

(n18)Footnote 3. United States v. Sykes, 7 F.3d 1331, 1339-1340 (7th Cir. 1993) .

(n19)Footnote 4. United States v. Professional Air Traffic Controllers Org., 527 F. Supp. 1344, 1358 (N.D. Ill. 1981) .

(n20)Footnote 5. Lindsey v. City of Beaufort, 911 F. Supp. 962, 965 (D.S.C. 1995) .

(n21)Footnote 6. Roberts v. Bailar, 625 F.2d 125, 128 (6th Cir. 1980) .

(n22)Footnote 7. 28 U.S.C. § 144.

(n23)Footnote 8. 28 U.S.C. § 144; see Lamborn v. Dittmer, 726 F. Supp. 510, 514-515 (S.D.N.Y. 1989) .

(n24)Footnote 9. 28 U.S.C. § 455.

(n25)Footnote 10. Lindsey v. City of Beaufort, 911 F. Supp. 962, 967 n.4 (D.S.C. 1995) (motion must state facts and reasons sufficient to convince reasonable person that bias or prejudice exists).

(n26)Footnote 11. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Liljeberg Enterprises, Inc., 38 F.3d 1404, 1411 (5th Cir. 1994) .

(n27)Footnote 12. United States v. Balistrieri, 779 F.2d 1191, 1203 (7th Cir. 1985) .

(n28)Footnote 13. Massachusetts Sch. of Law at Andover, Inc. v. American Bar Ass'n., 872 F. Supp. 1346, 1349 (E.D. Pa. 1994) (judge permitted to contradict allegations with facts drawn from his own personal knowledge).

(n29)Footnote 1. McCuin v. Texas Power & Light Co., 714 F.2d 1255, 1259-1260 (5th Cir. 1983) .

(n30)Footnote 2. El Fenix de Puerto Rico v. The M/Y Johanny, 36 F.3d 136, 142 n.8 (1st Cir. 1994) .

(n31)Footnote 3. In re Bernard v. Coyne, 31 F.3d 842, 843-845 (9th Cir. 1994) .

(n32)Footnote 4. Bannister v. Delo, 100 F.3d 610, 614 (8th Cir. 1996) , cert. denied sub nom. Bannister v. Bowersox, 521 U.S. 1126 (1997) .

(n33)Footnote 1. 1 Fenix de Puerto Rico v. The M/Y Johanny, 36 F.3d 136, 141 (1st Cir. 1994) ; United States v. Greenspan, 26 F.3d 1001, 1007 (10th Cir. 1994) .

(n34)Footnote 2. El Fenix de Puerto Rico v. The M/Y Johanny, 36 F.3d 136, 141 (1st Cir. 1994) (waiver of disqualification on grounds of partiality must be decision made by party).

(n35)Footnote 3. 28 U.S.C. § 144.

(n36)Footnote 4. El Fenix de Puerto Rico v. The M/Y Johanny, 36 F.3d 136, 142 (1st Cir. 1994) .

(n37)Footnote 5. El Fenix de Puerto Rico v. The M/Y Johanny, 36 F.3d 136, 141-142 (1st Cir. 1994) .

(n38)Footnote 1. See [b], below.

(n39)Footnote 2. Hampton v. City of Chicago, 643 F.2d 478, 479-480 (7th Cir. 1981) .

(n40)Footnote 3. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. LaVoie, 475 U.S. 813, 825, 106 S. Ct. 1580, 89 L. Ed. 2d 823 (1986) .

(n41)Footnote 4. Hampton v. City of Chicago, 643 F.2d 478, 479-480 (7th Cir. 1981) (court acknowledged possible exception to rule of nonreview for substantial cost or delay).

(n42)Footnote 5. In re Cement Antitrust Litig., 673 F.2d 1020, 1025 (9th Cir. 1982) .

(n43)Footnote 6. In re Corrugated Container Antitrust Litig., 614 F.2d 958, 961 (5th Cir. 1980) . Parties may attempt to remove a judge who has denied their recusal motion by seeking a writ of mandamus from the court of appeals, as discussed below. Nichols v. Alley, 71 F.3d 347, 350 (10th Cir. 1995)

(n44)Footnote 7. In re Federal Skywalk Cases, 680 F.2d 1175, 1183-1184 (8th Cir. 1982) .

(n45)Footnote 8. In re Continental Airlines, 981 F.2d 1450, 1463 (5th Cir. 1993) .

(n46)Footnote 9. Nichols v. Alley, 71 F.3d 347, 350 (10th Cir. 1995) .

(n47)Footnote 10. See Fed. R. App. P. 21.

(n48)Footnote 11. In re School Asbestos Litigation, 977 F.2d 764, 774-778 (3d Cir. 1992) .

(n49)Footnote 12. Union Carbide Corp. v. United States Cutting Service, Inc., 782 F.2d 710, 712-713 (7th Cir. 1986) .

(n50)Footnote 13. Ogala Sioux Tribe v. Homestake Mining Co., 722 F.2d 1407, 1414 (8th Cir. 1983) .

(n51)Footnote 14. Hamm v. Members of Bd. of Regents of State of Fla., 708 F.2d 647, 650 (11th Cir. 1983) .

(n52)Footnote 15. Nichols v. Alley, 71 F.3d 347, 350 (10th Cir. 1995) .

(n53)Footnote 16. Liljeberg v. Health Services Acquisition Corp., 486 U.S. 847, 861, 108 S. Ct. 2194, 100 L. Ed. 2d 855 (1988) .

(n54)Footnote 17. United States v. Jordan, 49 F.3d 152, 156 n.4 (5th Cir. 1995) .

(n55)Footnote 18. Liljeberg v. Health Services Acquisition Corp., 486 U.S. 847, 859-862, 108 S. Ct. 2194, 100 L. Ed. 2d 855 (1988) .

(n56)Footnote 19. Liljeberg v. Health Services Acquisition Corp., 486 U.S. 847, 864, 108 S. Ct. 2194, 100 L. Ed. 2d 855 (1988) .

(n57)Footnote 20. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. LaVoie, 475 U.S. 813, 827-828, 106 S. Ct. 1580, 89 L. Ed. 2d 823 (1986) .

(n58)Footnote 21. Cool Light Co., Inc. v. GTE Products Corp., 24 F.3d 349, 351-352 (1st Cir. 1994) , cert. denied, 513 U.S. 994 (1994) (Rule 60(b)(6) motion to vacate judgment based on ground that initial judge was prejudiced must be denied when initial judge granted new trial on breach of contract and fraud claims; even assuming prejudice, the party had already secured new trial before different judge).

(n59)Footnote 22. Health Services Acquisition Corp. v. Liljeberg, 796 F.2d 796, 798 (5th Cir. 1986) , aff'd on other grounds, 486 U.S. 847 (1988) (appellate court may remand for further evidentiary hearing).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 23 TRIAL TO COURT; INABILITY OF JUDGE TO PROCEED
PART II. REPLACEMENT OF TRIAL COURT JUDGE

3-23 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 23.35

§ 23.35 Certification of Successor Judgen*

Before succeeding a judge who is unable to proceed, a successor judge must certify familiarity with the record n1 and determine that the proceedings may be completed before the successor judge without prejudice to the parties. n2 To certify familiarity with the record, a successor judge must read and consider all relevant portions of the record. If the judge determines that sufficient evidence supports any findings actually made or other necessary findings, and the evidence does not depend on the testimony of a witness whose credibility is in question, the judge may conclude that the findings are supported by the evidence, make any necessary findings, and rule on post-trial motions. n3

These prerequisites ordinarily require the availability of a transcript or videotape of the proceedings before substitution. Further, in a long but incomplete jury trial, the prompt availability of the transcript or videotape is crucial to the effective use of Rule 63, because the jury may not be held for an extended period of time while an extensive transcript is prepared without resulting in prejudice to one or more parties. n4

It is not absolutely necessary for certification that the successor read all of the transcript. Successor judges need only certify their familiarity with those portions of the record that relate to the issues before them. The extent of a successor judge's obligation to certify familiarity with the record depends on the nature of the successor judge's role in a given case. Therefore, it has been held that a successor judge assigned to a contract dispute following the close of evidence in a bench trial did not violate the rule requiring a successor judges to certify familiarity with record: although he never expressly certified familiarity, he instructed parties that their briefs should highlight specific pages, specific exhibits, and specific pages in original judge's opinion in order for him to read those pertinent portions in order to meet the standard established for successor judges. n5

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesSuccessors

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 63.04[3] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 63; see Hoult v. Hoult, 57 F.3d 1, 8 (1st Cir. 1995) (successor judge adequately certified familiarity with record by stating in conference with counsel that judge would certify familiarity with record); Canseco v. United States, 97 F.3d 1224, 1225-1227 (9th Cir. 1996) (successor judge erred by refusing to certify record before ruling on post-trial motions, erroneously concluding that Rule 63 did not apply when previous trial judge had entered judgment; denial of motion for new trial vacated).

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 63; see Home Placement Serv., Inc. v. Providence Journal Co., 819 F.2d 1199, 1204 n.6 (1st Cir. 1987) (undue prejudice to parties might exist if determination to be made by successor judge turns substantially on credibility of witnesses whom judge did not have opportunity to observe in context of original trial).

(n4)Footnote 3. Canseco v. United States, 97 F.3d 1224, 1226 (9th Cir. 1996) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 63, Committee Note to 1991 Amendments.

(n6)Footnote 5. Mergentime Corp. v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority, 166 F.3d 1257, 1265 (D.C. Cir. 1999) (successor judge wisely entrusted parties to guide him through massive record and point him to material relevant to their arguments).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 23 TRIAL TO COURT; INABILITY OF JUDGE TO PROCEED
PART II. REPLACEMENT OF TRIAL COURT JUDGE

3-23 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 23.36

§ 23.36 General Procedure for Replacement of Judge Unable to Proceedn*

There are three steps for the substitution of a successor judge in the place of a judge who has an inability to proceed:

1. There must be a determination of the inability to proceed, which ultimately must be stated on the record. n1 Obviously, if the current judge dies or becomes ill or incurs a disability, the inability to proceed will be apparent. Otherwise, the current judge may recuse himself or herself, or one or more of the parties may raise the issue by motion. Rule 63 does not specifically address recusal procedure, but that matter is discussed in the substantive statutes; for example, affidavits setting forth the facts relating to disqualification must ordinarily accompany a recusal motion. The requirements applicable to affidavits under 28 U.S.C. Section 144 are discussed in § 23.34[2].

2. A successor judge must be selected who has the necessary qualifications. Thus, before being assigned to the case, a successor judge must certify familiarity with the record n2 and determine that the proceedings may be completed before the successor judge without prejudice to the parties. n3 For a complete discussion of these requirements, see § 23.33.

3. After the original judge is unable to proceed, the district court presiding judge or the court of appeals reassigns the case to the qualified successor judge; however, if the disqualification occurs after the commencement of a trial or hearing, the disqualified judge may not personally select the substitute judge. n4 Any other judge sitting in or assigned to that district court may take the case, n5 provided that the successor judge satisfies the prerequisites, discussed in § 23.33.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesSuccessors

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 63.04 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 63, Committee Note to 1991 Amendments.

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 63; see Hoult v. Hoult, 57 F.3d 1, 8 (1st Cir. 1995) (successor judge adequately certified familiarity with record by stating in conference with counsel that judge would certify familiarity with record).

(n4)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 63; see Home Placement Serv., Inc. v. Providence Journal Co., 819 F.2d 1199, 1204 n.6 (1st Cir. 1987) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Liteky v. United States, 510 U.S. 540, 548-549, 114 S. Ct. 1147, 1154, 127 L. Ed. 2d 474 (1994) (appellate authority to reassign case on remand rests on recusal and power to require further proceedings as justice requires); El Fenix de Puerto Rico v. The M/Y Johanny, 36 F.3d 136, 142 (1st Cir. 1994) (reassignment required on remand).

(n6)Footnote 5. 28 U.S.C. § 296.

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 23 TRIAL TO COURT; INABILITY OF JUDGE TO PROCEED
PART II. REPLACEMENT OF TRIAL COURT JUDGE

3-23 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 23.37

§ 23.37 Authority and Powers of Successor Judgen*

[1] Change or Modify Predecessor Judge's Orders and Findings

A successor judge has the power to reconsider the legal conclusions of a predecessor judge to the same extent that the predecessor could have, n1 either on the court's own initiative n2 or on a party's timely and proper motion to reconsider. n3 Thus, a court should not deny a party's right to try to persuade the court that it has erred simply because the judge who rendered the original decision is unavailable and may not be called on to reconsider the matter. n4 In such cases, the successor judge acquires full authority to reconsider the previous ruling and to revise or reverse, n5 if necessary, at any time before final disposition of the action. n6

The need for finality and conservation of judicial resources weighs against an inflexible rule automatically invalidating the original judge's actions. n7 Thus, to foster predictability and stability the successor should ordinarily defer to the original judge's findings n8 and should overrule his or her predecessor only on the basis of a sufficient reason. n9

[2] Issue New Orders and Findings on Existing Record

A successor judge may make new findings of fact and conclusions of law on the existing record. n1 In addition, the successor, in his or her discretion, may direct that the existing record be supplemented. n2 In fact the successor judge has an affirmative obligation to make findings and conclusions with respect to those issues that the original judge was not able make findings and conclusions. n3

When a determination of damages must be made, and the original judge is no longer available to hear the case, in appropriate circumstances the successor judge has the power to make new findings on damages without ordering a new trial. The exercise of this power is particularly appropriate when a retrial would be extremely time-consuming, when the credibility of witnesses' testimony is not central to the determination to be made on remand, and when an independent and impartial review of the evidence contained in a written record would be sufficient. n4

[3] Recall Witnesses

Either on a party's request or on its own initiative, Rule 63 expressly authorizes a successor judge to recall witnesses. n1

The rationale behind this rule is that the successor judge has not heard the witnesses at the trial and, therefore, may be hindered in the ability to resolve issues of credibility. n2 The recall of witnesses is of especially great importance in a bench trial, because the judge must make decisions as to which witnesses are more credible based on their live testimony and demeanor. n3 This concern is especially important in the context of complex litigation. Thus, Rule 63 does not require that a successor judge must enter judgment based on the predecessor judge's findings, because the successor judge may be unable to assess complex litigation with complete confidence. n4

In certain circumstances, a successor judge has an affirmative duty to recall a witness, as when all of the following five factors are present: n5

1. The hearing or trial is conducted without a jury.

2. A party requests recall of the witness.

3. The witness's testimony is material.

4. The witness's testimony is disputed.

5. The witness is presently available to testify without undue burden.

Thus, in the context of making new findings, the plain language of Rule 63 provides that if the party so requests, the successor judge must recall any witness whose testimony is material and disputed, and who is available to testify again without undue burden. n6

In situations other than when a recall of a witness is mandatory, the recall of any witness lies within the successor judge's discretion. n7 However, as pointed out in the committee notes, a successor judge who had no opportunity to observe the demeanor of witnesses at trial may be unable to resolve issues of credibility. Although Rule 63 authorizes a successor judge to make findings of fact at a bench trial based on evidence heard by the predecessor judge, a court would risk error by determining the credibility of a witness whose testimony was not heard by the successor and who is available for recall. n8

If the predecessor judge made both elaborate findings of fact and specific notes regarding his or her evaluation of the witnesses' credibility, the successor judge may be able to examine the record in a sufficiently discriminating manner to resolve credibility issues effectively. n9 Similarly, if a successor judge has reviewed a videotaped record of the trial, the successor judge may be justified in having greater confidence in his or her ability to proceed without recalling witnesses. n10

[4] Order New Trial

If a successor judge is satisfied that he or she may not perform the duties imposed by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure with respect to the particular case, the successor is empowered to, and must, order a new trial. n1 Although the changes brought about by the 1991 amendments to Rule 63 obviate the need for a new trial in most situations, a successor nonetheless must have sufficient confidence in the existing record to be able to resolve the case on a fair and intelligent basis. n2 The decision whether to hold a new trial is left to the discretion of the successor judge. n3 If the successor decides not to perform the tasks left unfinished by the predecessor judge, he or she must grant a new trial. n4

A successor judge is not required to re-litigate all issues decided by the predecessor judge. n5 Rule 63 is not an invitation to argue again the legal questions settled by the original judge. However, the law of the case doctrine applies only to an issue or issues that were actually decided by the prior judge. The doctrine does not apply to statements made by the court in passing, or stated as possible alternatives. n6

Parties may waive their right to a new trial under Rule 63 by their conduct, such as failing to appear at conferences required by the successor judge, by failing to respond to notice that the court intends to proceed under the existing record, otherwise neglecting to respond or communicate with the court, n7 or by acquiescing in the procedure established by the successor judge. n8

[5] Enter Judgment

A successor judge under Rule 63 has the power to enter judgment on all claims that have been tried. n1 However, the rule does not obligate the successor judge to enter judgment based on the predecessor's findings; that decision lies within the successor's discretion. n2 Similarly, a successor judge has the power to grant summary judgment based on the predecessor judge's findings of fact and conclusions of law. n3 The successor judge may examine the trial transcript as if it were supporting affidavits, for summary judgment purposes, and enter summary judgment if no credibility determinations are required. n4

[6] Rule on Post-Trial Motions

A successor judge has the power in the interest of judicial economy to dispose of post-trial motions if the original judge is unable to rule on them. n1 Thus, a successor has the same authority that the original judge had to grant or deny motions for judgment as a matter of law or for a new trial. n2 Furthermore, although a successor district court judge enjoys wide discretion to grant or deny post-trial motions, they may not refuse to exercise that discretion.

It has been held that when a successor judge was assigned to a contract case following the close of evidence in bench trial, and after the issuance of an opinion containing partial findings of fact and conclusions of law and the death of district court judge who had issued the opinion, the successor judge erred under Rule 63 when he refused to reconsider the original judge's findings pursuant to a party's timely post-trial motions. In that situation the successor judge assumed the original judge's obligation to exercise his discretion with respect to post-trial motions. Furthermore, after the successor judge erred in refusing to consider post-trial motions, the court of appeals remanded to the successor judge, rather than addressing merits of action; the successor judge's failure to consider recalling witnesses left a gap in the case that the appellate court could not fill, and the sheer number of witnesses in the case made it virtually inevitable that remand would be necessary to allow the successor judge to hear new testimony. n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesSuccessors

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 63.05 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. United States Gypsum Co. v. Schiavo Bros., Inc., 668 F.2d 172, 176 (3d Cir. 1981) (when successor judge is asked by motion to reconsider legal conclusions of unavailable predecessor, judge is empowered to reconsider those issues to the same extent that his or her predecessor could have).

(n3)Footnote 2. United States v. Young, 657 F.2d 246, 247 (10th Cir. 1980) (when original judge reserved final decision, successor judge acquired full authority to bring case to conclusion on its own initiative).

(n4)Footnote 3. United States Gypsum Co. v. Schiavo Bros., Inc., 668 F.2d 172, 176 (3d Cir. 1981) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Thompson v. Sawyer, 678 F.2d 257, 269 (D.C. Cir. 1982) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Rose Hall, Ltd. v. Chase Manhattan Overseas Banking Corp., 576 F. Supp. 107, 126 (D. Del.

1983) , aff'd on other grounds, 740 F.2d 956 (3d Cir. 1984) , cert. denied, 469 U.S. 1159 (1985) .

(n7)Footnote 6. Zand v. Commissioner, 143 F.3d 1393, 1396, 1400 (11th Cir. 1998) .

(n8)Footnote 7. El Fenix de Puerto Rico v. The M/Y Johanny, 36 F.3d 136, 142 (1st Cir. 1994) .

(n9)Footnote 8. Berry v. School Dist. of City of Benton Harbor, 494 F. Supp. 118, 120 (W.D. Mich. 1980) (court may not properly overrule decision of first judge in absence of special circumstances, and even if such circumstances exist, deference must be paid to original trial judge's findings).

(n10)Footnote 9. United States v. Desert Gold Mining Co., 433 F.2d 713, 715 (9th Cir. 1970) .

(n11)Footnote 1. Golf City, Inc. v. Wilson Sporting Goods Co., Inc., 555 F.2d 426, 438 n.20 (5th Cir. 1977) (successor judge may make new findings of fact and may supplement record); see Mergentime Corp. v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority, 166 F.3d 1257, 1259 (D.C. Cir. 1999) (when original judge became terminally ill after the close of evidence and could make only partial findings of fact and conclusions of law before he died, successor judge faced task of making findings and conclusions of his own regarding issues).

(n12)Footnote 2. Rewis v. United States, 445 F.2d 1303, 1306 (5th Cir. 1971) (judge to whom case assigned on remand may supplement record).

(n13)Footnote 3. Mergentime Corp. v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority, 166 F.3d 1257, 1262 (D.C. Cir. 1999) .

(n14)Footnote 4. Home Placement Serv., Inc. v. Providence Journal Co., 819 F.2d 1199, 1204 (1st Cir. 1987) .

(n15)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 63; see, e.g., Mergentime Corp. v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority, 166 F.3d 1257, 1262 (D.C. Cir. 1999) .

(n16)Footnote 2. Thompson v. Sawyer, 678 F.2d 257, 269-270 (D.C. Cir. 1982) (citing Moore's Federal Practice, appellate court stated that policy behind Rule 63 is that successor judge may be unable to resolve issues of witness credibility).

(n17)Footnote 3. Henry A. Knott Co. v. Chesapeake & Potomac Tel. Co., 772 F.2d 78, 83 (4th Cir. 1985) (successor judge may decide case based on transcript if credibility of witnesses is not at issue).

(n18)Footnote 4. Thompson v. Sawyer, 678 F.2d 257, 269-270 (D.C. Cir. 1982) .

(n19)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 63; see Canseco v. United States, 97 F.3d 1224, 1225-1226 (9th Cir. 1996)) (after reviewing record and certifying familiarity, successor judge must recall witness whose credibility is in question and credibility may not be determined by record, if witness is available without undue burden).

(n20)Footnote 6. Mergentime Corp. v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority, 166 F.3d 1257, 1265-1266 (D.C. Cir. 1999) (successor judge failed to comply with Rule 63, when nothing in record indicated that successor judge determined that party's damages expert was unavailable or that testimony was immaterial or undisputed--only permissible reasons for not recalling witnesses when making fresh findings; furthermore, successor judge never afforded party opportunity to suggest which additional witnesses they wished to recall).

(n21)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 63.

(n22)Footnote 8. Fed. R. Civ. P. 63, Committee Note to 1991 Amendments; see Mergentime Corp. v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority, 166 F.3d 1257, 1266-1267 (D.C. Cir. 1999) (that witness was unavailable or witness's testimony was immaterial or undisputed are only permissible reasons for not recalling witnesses when making new findings); Home Placement Serv., Inc. v. Providence Journal Co., 819 F.2d 1199, 1204 n.6 (1st Cir. 1987) (undue prejudice might exist if determination to be made by successor judge turns substantially on credibility of witnesses whom judge did not have opportunity to observe).

(n23)Footnote 9. Lever v. United States, 443 F.2d 350, 351 (2d Cir. 1971) .

(n24)Footnote 10. Fed. R. Civ. P. 63, Committee Note to 1991 Amendments.

(n25)Footnote 1. Gaddy v. Abex Corp., 884 F.2d 312, 314-316 (7th Cir. 1989) (successor judge did not abuse discretion in granting motion for new trial when successor did not observe parties and counsel at trial, findings of fact were inconsistent, and previous judge disclosed conflict of interest).

(n26)Footnote 2. Berry v. School Dist. of City of Benton Harbor, 494 F. Supp. 118, 120 (W.D. Mich. 1980) .

(n27)Footnote 3. Thompson v. Sawyer, 678 F.2d 257, 268-270 (D.C. Cir. 1982) .

(n28)Footnote 4. Rex Oil, Ltd. v. M/V Jacinth, 873 F.2d 82, 87 (5th Cir. 1989) , cert. denied sub nom. Transoil, Ltd. v. Rex Oil Ltd., 493 U.S. 1043 (1990) .

(n29)Footnote 5. Arrow-Hart, Inc. v. Philip Carey Co., 552 F.2d 711, 713 (6th Cir. 1977) (when retrial required after judge in non-jury trial died without making findings of fact and conclusions of law under Fed. R. Civ. P. 52, new judge had discretion to use transcripts as depositions when witnesses are unavailable).

(n30)Footnote 6. DeWeerth v. Baldinger, 38 F.3d 1266, 1271 (2d Cir. 1994) , cert. denied, 513 U.S. 1001 (1994) .

(n31)Footnote 7. Townsend v. Gray Line Bus Co., 767 F.2d 11, 18 (1st Cir. 1985) .

(n32)Footnote 8. In re Higginbotham, 917 F.2d 1130, 1133 (8th Cir. 1990) ; see Zand v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue Service, 143 F.3d 1393, 1401 (11th Cir. 1998) (although taxpayers objected to reassignment of case to successor judge after presiding judge retired on permanent disability, taxpayers waived their right to new trial, by failing to request one while at same time indicating that new trial would cause them hardship).

(n33)Footnote 1. Sweeney v. Resolution Trust Corp., 16 F.3d 1, 6 (1st Cir. 1994) , cert. denied, 513 U.S. 914 (1994) (no prejudice found in successor judge's entering judgments on jury verdicts).

(n34)Footnote 2. Thompson v. Sawyer, 678 F.2d 257, 269 (D.C. Cir. 1982) .

(n35)Footnote 3. Mesa Petroleum Co. v. Coniglio, 787 F.2d 1484, 1488 (11th Cir. 1986) , cert. denied sub nom. Locke v. Mesa Petroleum, 479 U.S. 1031 (1987) (successor judge may award summary judgment if there is no genuine issue as to material fact).

(n36)Footnote 4. Bromberg v. Moul, 275 F.2d 574, 576 (2d Cir. 1960) (successor judge may treat trial record as supporting affidavit under Rule 56(a) on motion for summary judgment when initial judge died before making findings and issuing decision).

(n37)Footnote 1. Bangor & Aroostook R. Co. v. Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen & Enginemen, 314 F. Supp. 352, 355-356 (D. D.C. 1970) , rev'd in part on other grounds, 442 F.2d 812 (D.C. Cir. 1971) (when judge died before ruling on postjudgment motions based on affidavits, briefs, and oral argument, successor could rule on motions based on same papers and transcript).

(n38)Footnote 2. Miller v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 161 F. Supp. 633, 636 (D.D.C. 1958) .

(n39)Footnote 3. Mergentime Corp. v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority, 166 F.3d 1257, 1267

(D.C. Cir. 1999) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure 24.syn

§ 24.syn Synopsis to Chapter 24: NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR

§ 24.01 Purpose of New Trial

§ 24.02 Rule Governing New Trial is Procedural Mechanism

§ 24.03 Effect on Right to Jury Trial

§ 24.04 Order for New Trial Compared With Judgment as Matter of Law

[1] Different Standards

[2] Procedures

§ 24.05 Motion for New Trial Filed With Motion for Amendment of Findings

§ 24.06 Principle of Harmless Error Applicable to Motion for New Trial

§ 24.07 Stay of Execution of Judgment

§§ 24.08through 24.19 [Reserved]

§ 24.20 General Grounds

§ 24.21 Grounds for New Trial in Case Tried to Jury

[1] Extraordinary Circumstances Required

[2] Problems With Verdict

[a] Verdict Must Be Improper or Unjust

[b] Weight of Evidence

[c] Inconsistency of Verdict

[i] General Standard

[ii] Inconsistency in General Verdict

[iii] Inconsistency Involving Special Verdict or Verdict Interrogatories

[d] Damages

[i] General Standard

[ii] Excessive Damages and Remittitur

[iii] Additur Only in Limited Circumstances

[3] Newly Discovered Evidence

[a] Three-Part Test

[b] Materiality of New Evidence

[c] Discovery of New Evidence After Trial

[d] New Evidence Not Merely Cumulative or for Impeachment

[4] Composition and Performance of Jury

[a] Jury Selection

[b] Bias or Disqualification of Juror

[c] Misconduct of Jury

[i] Misconduct Is Grounds for New Trial

[ii] Compromise or Voting Irregularity

[iii] Reference to Prohibited Sources of Information

[iv] Independent Investigation or External Influence

[5] Performance of Court

[a] Error of Law

[i] Effect of Error

[ii] Submission of Legal Issues to Jury

[iii] Jury Instructions

[iv] Rulings on Evidence

[b] Misconduct

[c] Inability of Judge to Continue

[6] Misconduct of Attorney

[7] Misconduct of Witness or Party

§ 24.22 Grounds for New Trial in Case Tried to Court

[1] General Grounds for New Trial in Case Tried to Court

[2] Inability of Judge to Continue

[3] Inadequate Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law

§ 24.23 Partial New Trial

[1] New Trial on Less Than All Issues

[a] Discretion of Court to Order New Trial On Some Issues

[b] Jury Trial

[c] Trial to Court

[2] New Trial for Less Than All Parties

§§ 24.24through 24.39 [Reserved]

§ 24.40 Requirements for Motion by Party

[1] Contents and Form of Motion

[2] Court's Discretion to Initiate or Define Scope of Motion

§ 24.41 Time Limitations Related to Motion for New Trial

[1] Computation of Time

[2] Time Limit for Motion for New Trial

[3] Time Limit for Court to Order New Trial on Its Own Initiative

[4] Treatment of Late Motion as One for Relief From Judgment

[5] Time Limits for Supporting Papers

[6] Effect on Time for Appeal by Filing Motion for New Trial

[a] Effect Depends on Timeliness of Motion

[b] Unique Circumstances Exception

§ 24.42 Amendment of Motion for New Trial

§ 24.43 Requirements of Notice and Hearing

§ 24.44 Order Regarding New Trial

[1] Contents of Order

[2] Effect of Order Granting or Denying Motion for New Trial

[3] Reconsideration of Order

§§ 24.45through 24.59 [Reserved]

§ 24.60 Appeal of Order Granting New Trial

[1] Order Generally Not Appealable

[2] Appeal of Original Judgment Postponed Until Final Judgment in New Trial

[3] Use of Extraordinary Writ to Hear Appeal

§ 24.61 Appeal of Order Denying New Trial

[1] Order Generally Not Appealable

[2] Time to Appeal Underlying Judgment

§ 24.62 Standard of Appellate Review

[1] Abuse of Discretion Standard in General

[2] Abuse of Discretion Standard Applied to Particular New Trial Orders

[a] Clear Weight of Evidence

[b] Excessive or Inadequate Damages

§ 24.63 Motion for New Trial Not Prerequisite to Appellate Review

§§ 24.64through 24.79 [Reserved]

§ 24.80 Function of Alteration or Amendment of Judgment

[1] Purpose

[2] Nature of Motion to Alter or Amend Judgment

[3] Use in Connection With Other Motions

[a] Motion to Amend Complaint After Judgment

[b] Motion to Amend or Add Findings in Court Actions

[c] Motion for Relief From Judgment

§ 24.81 Motion to Alter or Amend Judgment Must Be in Writing

§ 24.82 Grounds for Motion to Alter or Amend Judgment

§ 24.83 Time Limitations Related to Motion to Alter or Amend Judgment

[1] Time Limit for Motion to Alter or Amend Judgment

[2] Court May Not Extend Time Limitation

§ 24.84 Effects of Motion to Alter or Amend Judgment

§ 24.85 Sua Sponte Authority of Court to Alter or Amend Judgment

§ 24.86 Use of Affidavits in Support of Motion

§ 24.87 Court's Decision on Motion to Alter or Amend Judgment

§ 24.88 Effect of Order Granting or Denying Motion to Alter or Amend Judgment

§ 24.89 Principle of Harmless Error Applicable to Motion to Alter or Amend Judgment

§ 24.90 Appellate Review of Order Granting or Denying Motion to Alter or Amend Judgment

[1] Order Granting Alteration or Amendment of Judgment

[2] Order Denying Alteration or Amendment of Judgment

[3] Standard of Review

§§ 24.91through 24.99 [Reserved]

§ 24.100 Statement of Harmless Error Rule

§ 24.101 Applicability of Harmless Error Rule

§ 24.102 Raising Issue of Harmless Error

§§ 24.103through 24.119 [Reserved]

§ 24.120 Admission of Evidence

[1] Admission of Evidence

[2] Exclusion of Evidence

[3] Curative Instruction

[4] Availability of Evidence From Another Source

[5] Errors in Trial to Court

§ 24.121 Errors Regarding Jury

[1] Denial of Jury Trial

[2] Jury Selection

[3] Jury Instructions

§ 24.122 Errors in Procedural Rulings

§ 24.123 Court's Conduct of Trial

§ 24.124 Misconduct by Attorney

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
A. FUNCTION OF ORDER FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.01

§ 24.01 Purpose of New Trialn*

A party may file a motion for new trial, or the court may order a new trial on its on initiative, when the party or court wants to reopen issues after they have been tried, in whole or in part, and to retry those issues that have been resolved improperly at the first trial. Thus, the purpose of the federal civil rule governing new trials n1 is to provide the district court with a procedure to allow the parties to retry the case in a jury trial when the jury has reached a plainly erroneous result n2 or when the verdict is against the clear weight of the evidence, n3 and in other cases to avoid a miscarriage of justice. n4

The procedure of Rule 59, which allows the order for new trial, is based on the common-law principle that a trial court has inherent power to set aside a jury verdict and grant a new trial in order to ensure that justice is done in a particular case. n5 Rule 59 provides a motion for a new trial by any party in either a jury or a non-jury action, n6 an order for a new trial made on the district court's own initiative, or the grant of a motion for a new trial on any grounds that the district court deems appropriate after the issue has been raised by a moving party, even if such grounds have not been specified in the moving party's motion or supporting documents. n7

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions for New Trials

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.02 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(a).

(n3)Footnote 2. DLC Mgmt. Corp. v. Town of Hyde Park, 163 F.3d 124, 133-134 (2d Cir. 1998) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Whitehead v. Food Max, Inc., 163 F.3d 265, 269 (5th Cir. 1998) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Belk v. City of Eldon, 228 F.3d 872, 878 (8th Cir. 2000) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Lack Indus., Inc. v. Ralston Purina Co., 327 F.2d 266, 274 (2d Cir. 1964) (discussing origin of rule).

(n7)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(a).

(n8)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(d).

64 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
A. FUNCTION OF ORDER FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.02

§ 24.02 Rule Governing New Trial is Procedural Mechanismn*

Rule 59 is a procedural device that governs the grant or denial of a new trial in federal courts, regardless of whether jurisdiction is based on a federal question or diversity of citizenship. n1 Although the right to a new trial or to an amendment of a judgment may appear to be substantive, Rule 59 is a procedural device and is therefore generally applicable in all federal cases. However, in diversity actions, certain substantive issues, which often arise under Rule 59 motions, such as, the excessiveness of damages and remittitur, are governed by state law. n2

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions for New Trials

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.03 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Dawson v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 978 F.2d 205, 206 (5th Cir. 1992) (federal rules govern Rule 59 determination); Mattison v. Dallas Carrier Corp., 947 F.2d 95, 96 (4th Cir. 1991) (state procedures for post-trial reconsideration of damage awards are inapplicable in diversity action in federal court; federal court must apply Federal Rules of Civil Procedure).

(n3)Footnote 2. T.D.S. Inc. v. Shelby Mut. Ins. Co., 760 F.2d 1520, 1530 (11th Cir. 1985) (in diversity case, whether jury's verdict is excessive in amount is controlled by state substantive law; if excessive amount is found, then federal law determines if new trial should be granted); Datskow v. Teledyne Continental Motors Aircraft Prods., 826 F. Supp. 677, 690 (W.D.N.Y. 1993) (substantive issue in diversity case of excessiveness in amount of damage award is reviewed under state law).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
A. FUNCTION OF ORDER FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.03

§ 24.03 Effect on Right to Jury Trialn*

In jury trials, a district court's order for new trial may involve constitutional limitations because of the Seventh Amendment's prescriptions allocating the trial roles of the trial judge and the jury in federal court. n1 Thus, a party in federal court has a general right to a jury determination of all legal issues and all issues that are common to both legal and equitable claims, while the trial court is to determine all equitable issues. Therefore, the court may not completely disregard the jury's findings with regard to legal issues. n2

A grant of a new trial also involves the trial court's authority to review jury verdicts. n3 However, the Supreme Court has held that the Seventh Amendment's prohibition against a trial court's reexamination of a jury verdict does not limit the authority of a trial court to grant a new trial for any of the grounds for which new trials have been granted in federal courts under Rule 59. n4 A jury trial limitation that remains despite the district court's broad powers of reexamination is that if a district court grants a Rule 59 new trial in a trial for which the Seventh Amendment requires a jury trial, the retrial must also be before a jury. n5

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsProvince of Court & JuryCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury TrialCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions for New Trials

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.04 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. AG Servs. of Am., Inc. v. Nielsen, 231 F.3d 726 (10th Cir. 2000) (Seventh Amendment ensures that factual determinations made by jury are not later set aside by the court, except as permitted under common law; court may not substitute its judgment of facts for that of jury; it may only grant new trial if it concludes that jury's verdict was so against weight of evidence as to be unsupportable).

(n3)Footnote 2. Lytle v. Household Mfg., Inc., 494 U.S. 545, 552-553, 110 S. Ct. 1331, 108 L. Ed. 2d 504 (1990)

(reversing judgment based on trial judge's findings on equitable claims; when properly joined legal claims had been dismissed in error, entire judgment must be vacated and case retried with legal claims decided by jury so that party's right to jury trial is preserved); see U.S. Const., Amend. VII.

(n4)Footnote 3. See U.S. Const., Amend. VII (for issues at law, right to trial by jury must be preserved, and no fact tried by jury may be otherwise reexamined by federal court unless permitted by common law).

(n5)Footnote 4. Gasperini v. Center for Humanities, 518 U.S. 415, 433-435, 116 S. Ct. 2211, 135 L. Ed. 2d 659 (1996) (citing Moore's Federal Practice for proposition that under "re-examination" clause trial court in federal system has discretion to grant new trial if verdict appears to court to be against weight of evidence; this discretion includes overturning verdicts for excessiveness and either ordering new trial without qualification or ordering new trial conditioned on verdict winner's refusal to agree to remittitur in verdict); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(a) (grounds for grant of new trial).

(n6)Footnote 5. Slocum v. New York Life Ins. Co., 228 U.S. 364, 376, 33 S. Ct. 523, 57 L. Ed. 879 (1913) (when verdict is set aside, right of retrial by jury applied as in first instance).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
A. FUNCTION OF ORDER FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.04

§ 24.04 Order for New Trial Compared With Judgment as Matter of Lawn*

[1] Different Standards

Generally, the district court may order a new trial n1 when the court is firmly convinced that the jury has reached a plainly erroneous result or the verdict is a miscarriage of justice n2 or the verdict is against the clear weight of the evidence. n3 A motion for new trial is often made at the same time as a motion for judgment as a matter of law under Rule 50. n4 However, the standards applied by the trial court in considering the motion for a new trial and the motion for judgment as a matter of law differ significantly, with a more stringent standard applicable before the court may grant a motion for judgment as a matter of law. n5

A more lenient standard is applied to a motion for new trial than for a judgment as a matter of law because the motion for new trial merely returns the case to the trier of fact, and does not immediately put in place a new judgment. Thus, trial courts have considerable discretion to grant a new trial motion and may do so even when substantial evidence supports the jury's verdict. n6 The district court may weigh the evidence and need not view it in the light most favorable to the verdict winner. n7

On the other hand, for a motion for judgment as a matter of law, the district court may not weigh evidence nor consider credibility of witnesses. The court must view the evidence in the light most favorable to the opposing party, and ascertain that the evidence does not provide a reasonable jury with legally sufficient basis to find for the moving party on the issue. n8 Thus, judgment as a matter of law may be granted only if: (1) there is such a complete absence of evidence supporting the verdict that the jury's findings could only have been the result of sheer surmise and conjecture, or (2) there is such an overwhelming amount of evidence in favor of the moving party that reasonable and fair minded persons could not arrive at a verdict against it. n9

Finally, while the grant or denial of a new trial motion is reviewed solely for abuse of discretion, the grant or denial of a motion for judgment as a matter of law is reviewed de novo. n10

[2] Procedures

After a party has been fully heard on an issue during a jury trial, and the court finds that a reasonable jury would not have a legally sufficient evidentiary basis to find for the party on that issue, the court may resolve that issue against the party, n1 and grant a motion for judgment as a matter of law against the party on a claim or defense that depends on that issue. n2 A motion for judgment as a matter of law must be made at trial before the case is submitted to the jury and after a party has been fully heard on an issue and the opposition asserts that no legally sufficient evidentiary basis exists for a reasonable jury to find for that party on the issue that has been fully presented. n3

Rule 50 also provides a procedure for renewing a motion for judgment as a matter of law after trial, provided that a prior such motion was made before the close of evidence; the motion after trial must be filed no later than 28 days after entry of judgment and may alternatively request a new trial, or make a joint request for a new trial, pursuant to Rule 59(e). n4 If the court grants a renewed motion for judgment as a matter of law, the court must also rule on any motion for new trial, must determine whether a new trial should be granted in the event the judgment as a matter of law is later vacated or reversed, and must state the grounds for granting or denying the motion for new trial. n5

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJudgment as Matter of LawGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureTrialsJudgment as Matter of LawAlternative MotionsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions for New Trials

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.05 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See § 24.21[1].

(n3)Footnote 2. Belk v. City of Eldon, 228 F.3d 872, 878 (8th Cir. 2000) ; DLC Mgmt. Corp. v. Town of Hyde Park, 163 F.3d 124, 133-134 (2d Cir. 1998) .

(n4)Footnote 3. AG Servs. of Am., Inc. v. Nielsen, 231 F.3d 726 (10th Cir. 2000) (court may grant new trial only if it concludes that jury's verdict was so against weight of evidence as to be unsupportable); Whitehead v. Food Max, Inc., 163 F.3d 265, 269 (5th Cir. 1998) (new trial should not be granted unless verdict against great weight of evidence).

(n5)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(b) (moving party may file renewed motion for judgment as matter of law and may include alternative or joint request for new trial under Rule 59).

(n6)Footnote 5. Manley v. AmBase Corp., 337 F.3d 237, 244-245 (2d Cir. 2003) ; see Asa-Brandt, Inc. v. ADM Investor Servs., 344 F.3d 738, 744 (8th Cir. 2003) .

(n7)Footnote 6. Poynter v. Ratcliff, 874 F.2d 219, 222-223 (4th Cir. 1989) .

(n8)Footnote 7. Revolution Eyewear, Inc. v. Aspex Eyewear, Inc., 563 F.3d 1358, 1371 (Fed. Cir. 2009) .

(n9)Footnote 8. Poliner v. Tex. Health Sys., 537 F.3d 368, 376 (5th Cir. 2008) .

(n10)Footnote 9. Caruolo v. John Crane, Inc., 226 F.3d 46, 51 (2d Cir. 2000) .

(n11)Footnote 10. Whitehead v. Food Max, Inc., 163 F.3d 265, 269-271 (5th Cir. 1998) (court would not treat new trial motion as renewed motion for judgment as matter of law).

(n12)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(a)(1)(A).

(n13)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(a)(1)(B); see United States ex rel. Miller v. Bill Harbert Int'l Constr., Inc., 505 F. Supp. 2d 1, 5 (D.D.C. 2007) .

(n14)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(a)(2); Holmes v. United States, 85 F.3d 956, 961-962 (2d Cir. 1996) (motion may be renewed after verdict).

(n15)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(b), 59(e).

(n16)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(c)(1); Kowalski v. American S.S. Co., 954 F. Supp. 140, 142-143 (E.D. Mich. 1995) , aff'd without opinion, 103 F.3d 129 (E.D. Mich. 1995) (procedural requirements).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
A. FUNCTION OF ORDER FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.05

§ 24.05 Motion for New Trial Filed With Motion for Amendment of Findingsn*

A party must file a motion to have the court amend its findings or make additional findings of fact no later than 28 days after entry of judgment, and the court may amend its judgment accordingly. n1 A motion for the amendment of the court's findings, which must be made in all actions tried on the facts without a jury, n2 may accompany a motion for a new trial under Rule 59. n3 One court of appeals has noted, therefore, that Rule 52(b) and Rule 59 are both explicit sources of authority for a motion to amend a judgment in a nonjury case. n4 When findings of fact are made in actions tried without a jury, the sufficiency of the evidence supporting the findings may be later questioned, whether or not the party raising the question had earlier in the district court objected to the findings, moved to amend them, or moved for partial findings. n5

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsBench TrialsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions for New TrialsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & Amend

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.05 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(b).

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a)(1).

(n4)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(b).

(n5)Footnote 4. United States v. Martin, 226 F.3d 1042, 1047 (9th Cir. 2000) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(e); see also § 24.80 et seq.

(n6)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(b).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
A. FUNCTION OF ORDER FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.06

§ 24.06 Principle of Harmless Error Applicable to Motion for New Trialn*

Unless justice requires otherwise, no error by a party or the court, including an error in admitting or excluding evidence, is grounds for the court to grant a new trial or otherwise disturb a judgment or order. n1 Therefore, an error is not a sufficient ground for the trial court to grant a new trial under Rule 59 unless the court deems that its refusal to grant a new trial would be inconsistent with substantial justice. n2 Furthermore, if the party does not make a timely objection, even substantial errors are deemed waived and do not constitute grounds for a new trial unless a miscarriage of justice would result from the denial of a motion. n3 For discussion of the harmless error principle, as specified in Rule 61, see Part III. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions for New Trials

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.05 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 61; Armstrong v. Burdette Tomlin Mem'l Hosp., 438 F.3d 240, 246 (3d Cir. 2006) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 61; Falk v. Paluch, 163 F.R.D. 8, 9 (N.D. Ill. 1995) (wrongdoing amounts to harmless error unless it affects substantial rights).

(n4)Footnote 3. Caruolo v. John Crane, Inc., 226 F.3d 46, 51 (2d Cir. 2000) (there was no ground to grant new trial with respect to testimony about expert's study because party never objected to study on hearsay or prejudice grounds, thereby failing to preserve these arguments for appeal; therefore, court of appeal reviewed evidentiary ruling for plain error, that is, to determine if ruling resulted in miscarriage of justice, which was not present in this case); see also United States v. Hourihan, 66 F.3d 458, 463 (2d Cir. 1995) , cert. denied, 516 U.S. 1135 (1996) .

(n5)Footnote 4. See § 24.100 et seq.

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
A. FUNCTION OF ORDER FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.07

§ 24.07 Stay of Execution of Judgmentn*

Pending the disposition of a Rule 59 motion for a new trial or to alter or amend a judgment, n1 a court may stay the execution of a judgment or proceedings to enforce the judgment. n2 Rule 62(b) allows the court to enter the judgment immediately after trial, but allows the court to specify appropriate terms to provide protection to a party from the immediate execution of the judgment pending the determination of the post-trial motion for a new trial. n3 Whether to grant or deny a Rule 62(b) motion is entirely within the discretion of the district court n4 and subject to any proper conditions imposed by the court for the security of the adverse party. n5 For further discussion of motions under Rule 62, see Ch. 26, Post-Judgment Procedures.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsStays Pending AppealsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsStays of ProceedingsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsStays of ProceedingsAutomatic StaysCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions for New TrialsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & Amend

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.05[10] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(a)(1), (e).

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62(b)(3).

(n4)Footnote 3. Houben v. Telular Corp., 309 F.3d 1028, 1034 (7th Cir. 2002) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 62(b).

(n5)Footnote 4. Coastal Corp. v. Texas Eastern Corp., 869 F.2d 817, 820-821 (5th Cir. 1989) (court's power pursuant to Rule 62 should be exercised only to maintain status quo).

(n6)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62(c); Peacock v. Thomas, 516 U.S. 349, 354 n.7, 116 S. Ct. 862, 133 L. Ed. 2d 817 (1996) (noting that district court may stay execution of judgment pending disposition of post-trial motion for new trial only if court provides for security of judgment creditor; Rule 62(b) stay conditioned on security of adverse party as court deems proper).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
A. FUNCTION OF ORDER FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 24.08through 24.19

[Reserved]

§§ 24.08[Reserved]

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
B. GROUNDS FOR ORDER FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.20

§ 24.20 General Groundsn*

The determinations that a trial court must make in its decision whether to grant a motion for a new trial include whether a new trial is necessary to avoid a miscarriage of justice, or to rectify a serious error such as a verdict that is against the law or against the considerable weight of the credible evidence. n1 To determine whether to grant the motion for a new trial, the court asks different questions depending on the grounds that are asserted in the motion or brought up by the court on its own initiative. n2 Thus, the primary bases for the grant of a new trial are that the jury has reached a plainly erroneous result, n3 that the jury's verdict is against the clear weight of evidence, n4 that the damages are excessive, that the trial was not fair, or that substantial errors occurred in the admission or rejection of evidence or the giving or refusal of instructions. n5 On the other hand, a new trial may not be granted merely because the losing party may be able to present a better case in another trial. n6 The particular grounds for new trial are discussed in §§ 24.21 -24.23.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions for New Trials

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.13 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Crowe v. Marchand, 506 F.3d 13, 19 (1st Cir. 2007) ; Manley v. AmBase Corp., 337 F.3d 237, 244-245 (2d Cir. 2003) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Henry v. Hess Oil V.I. Corp., 163 F.R.D. 237, 242 (D.V.I. 1995) (test to decide Rule 59 motion depends on grounds asserted for new trial).

(n4)Footnote 3. DLC Mgmt. Corp. v. Town of Hyde Park, 163 F.3d 124, 133-134 (2d Cir. 1998) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Whitehead v. Food Max, Inc., 163 F.3d 265, 269 (5th Cir. 1998) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Montgomery Ward & Co. v. Duncan, 311 U.S. 243, 251, 61 S. Ct. 189, 85 L. Ed. 147 (1940) (nonexclusive list); Advanced Display Sys., Inc. v. Kent State Univ., 212 F.3d 1272, 1284 (Fed. Cir. 2000) (concealing material evidence throughout discovery and then revealing it late during trial deprives opposition of fair trial).

(n7)Footnote 6. Ball v. Interoceanica Corp., 71 F.3d 73, 76 (2d Cir. 1995) , cert. denied, 519 U.S. 863 (1996) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
B. GROUNDS FOR ORDER FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.21

§ 24.21 Grounds for New Trial in Case Tried to Juryn*

[1] Extraordinary Circumstances Required

In general, the district court may not set aside a jury verdict except in extraordinary circumstances, such as a case of manifest injustice or abuse of the jury's function. Courts will sustain jury verdicts if reasonable bases exist to uphold the verdict. n1 In ruling on a new trial motion, the court will search the record for evidence that could reasonably lead the jury to reach its verdict, drawing all reasonable inferences in favor of the verdict winner. n2 However, the fact that some substantial evidence exists in support of the verdict does not necessarily mean that there is a reasonable basis for the verdict. If a jury's verdict is against the great weight of evidence, the court may order a new trial, even if substantial evidence supports the verdict. n3 On the other hand, the district court may not grant a motion for new trial merely because the court would have come to different conclusion than the jury. n4

[2] Problems With Verdict

[a] Verdict Must Be Improper or Unjust

Generally, the court may grant a new trial based on impropriety in the jury's verdict only if there is no way the trial court may justify the verdict. n1 In other words, it is proper for the trial court to grant a new trial motion in a jury case only if the court is convinced that the jury has reached a seriously erroneous result n2 or the verdict is a miscarriage of justice. n3 The trial court has broad power to grant a new trial whenever it is necessary to set aside an unjust verdict. n4 When the power is wisely used, it prevents a miscarriage of justice and makes jury trials instruments of justice, provided that the court does not invade the common-law function of juries or the constitutional right of jury trial. n5

[b] Weight of Evidence

The district court may grant a new trial if it concludes that the jury's verdict was so against the weight of the evidence that the verdict is not supportable. n6 The trial court may grant a new trial motion even though substantial evidence supports the verdict. n7 However, this does not mean that the court may substitute its judgment of the facts for that of the jury when the weight of the evidence may fall either way. n8 When the district court determines that the verdict is against the clear weight of the evidence, the court has discretion to grant a new trial outright or to condition a new trial order on the verdict winner's refusal to accept a reduction in the amount of damages. n9

A jury verdict is against the weight of the evidence, such that a new trial is appropriate, if and only if the verdict is (1) seriously erroneous or (2) a miscarriage of justice. n9.1 Thus, in making a determination whether to grant a new trial, a court should determine whether the verdict is against the great weight of the evidence, in that it is seriously erroneous or a miscarriage of justice, based on all of the circumstances and events of trial. n10 The court must review the evidence, view all the evidence as a whole, and weigh the relative strengths and weaknesses of the evidence. Such a review must be done considering the credibility of the witnesses, conflicting testimony, and the strength of the evidence. n11

When a trial is of extended duration, complex, and involves subject matters outside the ordinary knowledge of jurors, the court should more closely scrutinize the verdict; on the other hand, when the subject matter of the trial is simple and easily comprehended by laypersons, the court should use less demanding scrutiny. n12 On a motion for new trial the trial court may make its own judgments regarding the credibility of witnesses, unlike the more stringent standard for a judgment as a matter of law, under which the trial court may not make credibility determinations. n13

[c] Inconsistency of Verdict

[i] General Standard

If it appears to the trial court that there is an inconsistency in a jury verdict, the trial judge must nevertheless uphold the verdict if there is any way to justify it. n14 Thus, a court should grant a new trial motion based on inconsistency only when the court is convinced that the jury has reached a significantly erroneous result or the verdict is a miscarriage of justice. n15 In connection with its general verdict of either nonliability or liability and imposition of damages, a court may also require a special verdict and verdict interrogatories. Inconsistencies between these verdicts are discussed below.

[ii] Inconsistency in General Verdict

If on its face a general verdict is inconsistent and reflects confusion on the part of the jury, the court has discretion to order a new trial. For example, when the jury's general verdict in a case differed in damage amounts with respect to two defendants to the extent that they indicated jury confusion as to liability, the court was justified in requiring a new trial. n16 The new trial should be granted only if the general verdict shows that the jury abused its power or otherwise conducted itself inappropriately. n17 However, a new trial in such circumstances is not necessary if the verdicts may be interpreted in any way that results in a consistent verdict. n18 Furthermore, if the jury has not been discharged, the court may return the verdicts to the jury for further deliberation in an effort to obtain a consistent verdict. n19

[iii] Inconsistency Involving Special Verdict or Verdict Interrogatories

A special verdict is one in which the court requires the jury to return the verdict in the form of special written findings on each issue of fact. n20 If such verdicts are inconsistent with one another, the court has discretion either to harmonize the inconsistent verdicts, viewing the case in any reasonable way that makes the verdicts consistent, n21 or, if that is not possible, to grant a new trial. n22

Instead of a special verdict, the trial court also has the option to submit written interrogatories to the jury and require the jury to return answers to the interrogatories together with a general verdict. n23 When the answers to interrogatories are inconsistent with each other or with the general verdict, a new trial may be warranted. However, the trial court should attempt to read the answers to the interrogatories consistently, if possible. If the answers to interrogatories may be read in a way that shows a verdict that makes sense and does not show an abuse of power or other misconduct by the jury, a new trial should not be required. n24 When the answers to the interrogatories are internally consistent but one or more is inconsistent with the general verdict, a judgment may be entered based on the answers, notwithstanding the general verdict, or the court may return the matter to the jury for reconsideration or order a new trial. n25 However, if the answers to the interrogatories are internally inconsistent and one or more is also inconsistent with the general verdict, the court must either resubmit the matter to the jury or order a new trial. n26

[d] Damages

[i] General Standard

The trial court may grant a motion for a new trial under Rule 59(a) on the issue of compensatory damages when the amount of the jury verdict is unreasonable to the extent that it is entirely disproportionate to the damages shown at trial based on the plaintiff's injury. n27 Similarly, if a verdict awards damages for pecuniary loss but not for pain and suffering, the court may order a new trial only if the jury's decision is unreasonable to the extent that it is entirely disproportionate to the injury suffered by the plaintiff. n28

A court's determination to grant or deny a new trial on the grounds of a compensatory damage award is within the sound discretion of the district court, and a refusal to grant a new trial on the grounds of disproportionate compensatory damages will not be overturned unless there has been a clear abuse of discretion. n29 On the other hand, the Supreme Court has held that an appellate court should apply a de novo standard when reviewing a district court's determination whether a punitive damages award was unconstitutional under the due process clause. n30 The Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment prohibits the imposition of grossly excessive or arbitrary punishments on a tortfeasor, because elementary notions of fairness enshrined in our constitutional jurisprudence dictate that a person receive fair notice not only of the conduct that will subject the person to punishment, but also of the severity of the penalty that a state may impose. To the extent an award is grossly excessive, it furthers no legitimate purpose and constitutes an arbitrary deprivation of property. n30.1 Thus, while a motion for new trial on the grounds of excessiveness or inadequacy of damages usually involves an error of fact with respect to compensatory damages, it may involve an error of law if it decides a constitutional punitive damages issue. n30.2

[ii] Excessive Damages and Remittitur

A jury award of excessive damages is grounds for the court to grant a motion for new trial. In a federal court, the substantive issue of whether or not damages are excessive depends on whether the case is based on federal question jurisdiction, which is controlled by federal law, or diversity jurisdiction, which is controlled by state law. n31 In a federal question case, a district court will ordinarily deem an award excessive if it shocks the judicial conscience. n32 For example, a court may grant a new trial if a punitive damages award is grossly excessive and violates the due process clause in that it goes beyond the interest that a punitive award is designed to serve. n33 Courts have also expressed the standard for excessiveness under federal law as when one's sense of justice is outraged. n34 The Supreme Court has held that in diversity cases state law controlling compensatory damages for excessiveness or inadequacy should be given effect and applied by the federal trial court judge in deciding whether to grant a new trial. Likewise, a federal appellate court must review the trial court's ruling regarding compensatory damages under the abuse of discretion standard. n35 However, the Supreme Court has expressly held that a court of appeals should apply a de novo standard when reviewing a district court's determination of the constitutionality of punitive damages awards and not the less demanding abuse of discretion standard. n35.1 With regard to punitive damages, the Supreme Court has held that the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment prohibits the imposition of grossly excessive or arbitrary punishments on a tortfeasor. To determine whether an award of punitive damages by a jury is excessive based on this constitutional limitation, the state or federal court must make a de novo determination of whether the award is reasonable based on: (1) the degree of reprehensibility of the defendant's misconduct; (2) the disparity between the actual or potential harm suffered by the plaintiff and the punitive damages award; and (3) the difference between the punitive damages awarded by the jury and the civil penalties authorized or imposed in comparable cases. The most important factor in the determination of the reasonableness is the degree of reprehensibility of the defendant's conduct. The court must determine the reprehensibility of a defendant by considering whether: the harm caused was physical, as opposed to economic; the tortious conduct evinced an indifference to, or a reckless disregard of, the health or safety of others; the target of the conduct had financial vulnerability; the conduct involved repeated actions or was an isolated incident; and the harm was the result of intentional malice, trickery, or deceit, or mere accident. However, the existence of any one of these factors weighing in favor of a plaintiff may not be sufficient to sustain a punitive damages award, and the absence of all of them renders any punitive award suspect. n35.2

As an alternative to an outright grant of a new trial when a damage award is excessive, the trial court may order a new trial conditioned on the verdict winner's refusal to accept a "remittitur." Remittitur is a process that a court may use to compel a plaintiff who has won on the liability issue to choose between either the reduction of the excessive verdict or an order for a new trial. n36 If the plaintiff rejects the specified reduction in the amount of damages, the court must grant a new trial; because of the plaintiff's right to a jury trial, the court does not have the option of entering judgment for the reduced amount without the plaintiff's consent. n37 To determine the amount of the remittitur that the court will propose to the plaintiff, the courts in some circuits use the "maximum recovery rule," which is a loosely defined standard that generally provides either that the remittitur amount should be based on the highest amount of damages a jury could properly have awarded n37.1 or that the remittitur amount should be set at the maximum recovery that does not shock the judicial conscience. n37.2 The purpose of the maximum recovery rule is to preserve the right to jury trial by preventing the appellate courts from merely replacing what a jury thought would make a plaintiff whole with what the appellate court thinks would make a plaintiff whole. Consequently, some courts further refine the maximum recovery rule by fixing the amount of the remittitur as that amount the court thinks reasonable and then tacking on a percentage addition to avoid supplanting the judgment of the jury. The total amount of the remittitur may also be limited by a comparison to the highest previous recovery in the relevant jurisdiction for a factually similar case. n37.3 As discussed above, the maximum recovery rule has as an ultimate cap for punitive damages the amount that is reasonable under the Due Process Clause of the Constitution. This amount is determined by the court based on the degree of reprehensibility of the defendant's misconduct, the difference between the actual or potential harm suffered by the plaintiff and the punitive damages award, and the difference between the punitive damages awarded by the jury and the civil penalties authorized or imposed in comparable cases. n37.4

[iii] Additur Only in Limited Circumstances

In contrast to remittitur, the use of the procedure of additur has generally been ruled unconstitutional. Additur is the practice of denying a plaintiff's motion for a new trial based on a claim of an insufficient amount of damages awarded by a jury, conditioned on the defendant's agreement to pay damages in an amount greater than the verdict returned by the jury. n38 Generally, additur is deemed impermissible under federal law because it is considered a violation of the Seventh Amendment right to a jury trial. n39 The Supreme Court has held that the additur procedure violates the Seventh Amendment's proscription against a court's reexamination of facts tried by a jury, in that the practice of additur did not exist at common law. n40 The rationale for the proscription against additur is that addition to a jury award constitutes a greater invasion of the jury's province than does reduction. In the case of additur, no jury has ever passed on the greater amount to be awarded by the court; on the other hand, in the case of remittitur, a jury has already specified an amount in its verdict; the court has merely decided to award a portion of that amount.

Although, the Supreme Court has rejected additur on constitutional grounds, the concept of additur may still be used when damages are incorrectly low as a matter of law, for example, in the following limited circumstances:

1. The increase in damages is required simply to correct a clerical error. n41

2. The increase in damages is required to correct an error in the trial court's instruction to the jury to credit the defendant a sum certain as a matter of law, when that instruction was an error as a matter of law. n42

3. The increase in damages is ordered when the amount of damages is not in issue or the increase reflects the amount that was stipulated by the parties. n43 In these circumstances, the addition to the amount of damages is not prohibited by the Seventh Amendment because the jury's error is one of law rather than fact, and the order does not technically involve additur, because the correct figure is prescribed as a matter of law; furthermore, the plaintiff is not compelled to choose between the increased damage award and a new trial. n44

[3] Newly Discovered Evidence

[a] Three-Part Test

A court may order a new trial when a party or the court procures newly discovered evidence. n1 In making its decision whether to grant a new trial based on newly discovered evidence, the court must ascertain whether all three of the following criteria are met: n2

1. The evidence discovered must be material, that is, it must be of a kind that would probably change the outcome of the case. n3

2. The newly discovered evidence must have been discovered after judgment and the moving party must have been excusably ignorant of the facts at the time of the trial despite due diligence to learn about the facts of the case. n4

3. The evidence must not be merely cumulative or impeaching. n5

The party making the Rule 59 motion has the burden of affirmatively proving that the evidence on which the motion is based existed at the time of the trial but was not discovered in time to use at the trial, although the party diligently prepared for trial. Additionally, the moving party must allege the nature of the evidence, showing that the evidence is admissible and probative, that it is not merely cumulative, and will not be used primarily for impeachment. Finally, the moving party must convince the court that, if the evidence had been introduced at the trial, a different result would have been reached. The moving party should supply whatever proof is available to support the motion, such as testimony, affidavits, and documentary evidence. n6

[b] Materiality of New Evidence

The court may not grant a new trial unless the newly discovered evidence is admissible, material, and probative. n7 Furthermore, the evidence must potentially affect the jury's verdict or the court's judgment. In other words, the evidence must be of such substantial probative value that a different result would have been attained if introduced at the original trial. n8 The party moving for the new trial based on newly discovered evidence must establish the probability that the new evidence would change the outcome of the case. n9 For example, in patent infringement litigation, the moving party may establish that the new evidence was probably outcome determinative if the evidence tended to show (or not show) that the claimed patented invention was invalid for "obviousness." n10

[c] Discovery of New Evidence After Trial

The court will grant a motion for new trial based on the ground of newly discovered evidence only if the evidence has been discovered after judgment. n11 Furthermore, courts require that the moving party must have been excusably ignorant of the facts at the time of the trial in spite of the party's due diligence in an effort to learn about the facts of the case. n12 For example, evidence qualifies as newly discovered if the opposition party has concealed material evidence throughout discovery and then reveals the evidence late in the trial. The moving party is considered to have "discovered it" after trial because even with due diligence the moving party could not possibly ascertain the full scope of the evidence until after the trial was over and the jury had retired to deliberate. n13 It should be noted that if facts are known to a party during the pendency of the trial, but not disclosed to counsel until after the trial, knowledge is imputed to counsel, and such facts are not considered to be newly discovered evidence for purposes of Rule 59. n14

[d] New Evidence Not Merely Cumulative or for Impeachment

To support a Rule 59 motion for a new trial based on newly discovered evidence, the new evidence must constitute something more than merely cumulative or impeachment evidence. n15 For example, a court in a patent case held that newly discovered deposition testimony was not merely cumulative or impeaching but contained a significant amount of additional material evidence about how the parties obtained the scientific formula in question and how that formula was used to duplicate material in its own device and also had an added admission that the device in question was essentially the same as the opposing party's. n16

[4] Composition and Performance of Jury

[a] Jury Selection

The court may grant a new trial if a party was improperly denied peremptory challenges, provided that the party establishes how the denial was prejudicial. n1 The systematic exclusion of a particular group from service on a jury is also grounds for a new trial. n2 Again, however, such a motion will not be granted by the court unless the error prejudiced the moving party and a timely objection was made. n3 It should be noted that the district court has wide latitude in its management of peremptory challenges, which will be reversed on appeal only if the court's procedure bars a party from using the statutorily mandated number of peremptory challenges against a person who becomes a member of the jury. n4 Additionally, a party may not claim error with respect to the district court's denial of any number of peremptory challenges unless all available peremptories have been exercised. n5

[b] Bias or Disqualification of Juror

The grant of a new trial is justified either by bias on the part of a juror or by failure of a juror to disclose information that would have justified disqualification for cause. To prevail on either basis, the moving party must show that (1) the juror failed to truthfully answer a material question during voir dire and (2) if that question had been answered truthfully, the answer would have constituted cause to challenge that juror. n6 If the first prong of the inquiry is satisfied, a motion for a new trial will not be granted merely because the untruthful answer deprived the moving party of the information necessary to intelligently exercise a peremptory challenge. To support the motion, the moving party must show that the withheld information would have supported a challenge for cause. n7 Thus, actual prejudice is required, a juror's motive for concealment is relevant but not dispositive, and only motives that affect impartiality or bias affect the fairness of the trial. n8

[c] Misconduct of Jury

[i] Misconduct Is Grounds for New Trial

A jury must perform its duties within the parameters specified by the court in its charge to the jury. The jury must make a decision based on the facts presented and proven at trial; otherwise, it commits misconduct that is grounds for a new trial. Thus, if a verdict is the result of mistake, passion, prejudice, compromise, or other improper motive the losing party has grounds for a motion for a new trial. n9

Federal law governs the determination of jury misconduct under Rule 59. n10 Therefore, it should be noted that a motion for a new trial based on juror misconduct is difficult to support because of the federal common-law rule prohibiting a juror from impeaching the verdict. Under this principle, appropriate proof of juror misconduct may be in the form of testimony by third parties or testimony of the jurors themselves. However, a juror's ability to impeach his or her own verdict is limited to evidence regarding the introduction of improper extraneous influences and may not concern those matters that arise exclusively among the jurors during deliberation. n11 This evidence rule distinguishes between impeachment concerning those matters that arise exclusively among the jurors, on the one hand, and the introduction of improper extraneous influences, on the other. n12

[ii] Compromise or Voting Irregularity

One of the most common grounds for grant of a new trial based on juror voting is because of a compromise used by the jury to reach its vote. The relevant factors in determining whether the verdict was a result of impermissible compromise, and therefore a justification for a new trial, include a grossly inadequate damage award, a close question of liability, and an unusual chronology of jury deliberations. n13 A new trial must also be granted when the record shows that the verdict was not unanimous or otherwise had the requisite number of votes; however, a juror that votes with the verdict when received by the court may not subsequently establish lack of agreement or coercion by fellow jurors. n14

When the trial judge determines that the verdict is a compromise, the court may order a new trial sua sponte, after setting aside the verdict. However, the trial court may not merely attempt to correct the compromise by making the court's own findings on an equitable basis, while leaving the jury's verdict intact. n15

[iii] Reference to Prohibited Sources of Information

When deliberating, a jury must consider only the evidence presented to the court, and a violation of this requirement may be grounds for a new trial. For example, a new trial is justified if the jury considers evidence not introduced at the trial, n16 or if one or more jurors discuss the case with a person other than a juror. n17 As with other types of error, an error involving juror reference to inappropriate information may be harmless. n18 Also, the failure to make a timely objection to contact between a juror and an outside party may constitute waiver of the objection. n19

[iv] Independent Investigation or External Influence

It is juror misconduct, and grounds for a new trial, if a juror conducted an independent investigation or was otherwise influenced by an outside source, if the influence was prejudicial under the harmless error rule. n20 The influence of an outside party or an independent investigation by the juror could be a very prejudicial error because the jury is required to base its decision only on the facts and evidence submitted and proven at trial. n21 A juror may also commit misconduct by relating to the other jurors particular facts or experiences from his or her past that relate to the facts presented at trial and influence the result of the deliberation. n22 However, it is not misconduct for a juror merely to call on his or her general experience or knowledge to make decisions in deliberation. n23

A jury's critical examination of the trial exhibits during deliberations is not grounds for a new trial, unless the court has placed in the jury's possession evidence that was not presented at trial. For example, when the jury in a personal injury performed an experiment to determine the strength of a cleaning solution allegedly ingested by the plaintiff, it was held not to constitute misconduct, because, in conducting the experiment, the jury used a coffee pot and carafe that were both exhibits at trial. The experiment utilized only evidence placed in the jury's possession that has been presented at trial; therefore, the experiment did not constitute jury misconduct justifying a new trial. n24

[5] Performance of Court

[a] Error of Law

[i] Effect of Error

An error of law committed by a court during the course of litigation, n1 is grounds for a new trial if the error is prejudicial. n2 However, a court's legal error may be waived if the party fails to make a demand or a timely objection. n3 Furthermore, an error of law is subject to the harmless error rule and is not grounds for a Rule 59 new trial motion if deemed harmless. n4

[ii] Submission of Legal Issues to Jury

If the district court in a jury trial denies a proper request to submit an issue to the jury, the denial, if prejudicial, is grounds for a new trial. On the other hand, a new trial is not justified if no issue of material fact is required to be submitted to and determined by a jury. n5 Thus, issues that are either erroneously submitted to or withdrawn from the jury's consideration may be grounds for a new trial. However, the proponent waives the submission of an issue to the jury if a demand for submission and a timely objection are not made before the jury retires for deliberation. n6 For discussion of the submission of issues to the jury, see Ch. 22, Trial by Jury.

[iii] Jury Instructions

If the district court issues incorrect jury instructions, or fails to give a properly requested jury instruction, the court may grant a new trial if the improper or omitted instruction impaired the deliberation process. n7 However, the district court has broad discretion in ruling on proffered jury instructions, and its decision is subject to reversal only if the instructions, viewed in their entirety, contained an error or errors that affected the substantial rights of the parties. n8 Provided that the charge as a whole adequately states the law, the district court has discretion over the "style and wording" of instructions. n9 Furthermore, the moving party must have made an appropriate objection, stating the grounds for the objection with particularity, before the commencement of jury deliberations. n10 For discussion of the requirements for jury instructions, see Ch. 22, Trial by Jury.

[iv] Rulings on Evidence

If the district court erroneously admits evidence at trial, the admission is grounds for a new trial when the evidence improperly admitted is deemed to be prejudicial. n11 A court's failure to admit highly probative evidence that is likely to have a profound impact on the outcome of the trial may also be grounds for a new trial. n12 However, the district court enjoys wide latitude in determining whether evidence is admissible at trial, and the appellate court reviews evidentiary rulings under a deferential abuse of discretion standard.

Additionally, even improperly admitted testimony is not grounds for a new trial unless the error has led to a seriously erroneous result or a miscarriage of justice; this is not the result when other, unchallenged testimony established the same facts. n13 Furthermore, a new trial motion based on either of these grounds requires a proper objection at trial and is limited to the basis of the objection argued when the evidence was offered for admission. n14 For a complete discussion about the standards for reviewing erroneous rulings that admit or exclude evidence, see 1 WEINSTEIN'S FEDERAL EVIDENCE, Ch. 103, Rulings on Evidence (Matthew Bender 2d ed.).

[b] Misconduct

The misconduct of a trial judge is grounds for a new trial provided that the judge's conduct is so improper that it calls into question the fairness of the trial or if the conduct has an adverse impact on the jury. n15 The moving party has a heavy burden to prove that the misconduct made the trial unfair. n16 Furthermore, a new trial motion based on the judge's alleged misconduct should be granted only if the conduct of the judge or other officer of the court is prejudicial, n17 and not if the misconduct is deemed harmless error. n18 An objection to the alleged misconduct is ordinarily required, either at the time of the misconduct or at the next available opportunity outside the jury's presence. n19

[c] Inability of Judge to Continue

When a judge becomes unable to proceed after the commencement of a case, any other judge may proceed with the case after certifying familiarity with the record and determining that the proceedings may be completed without prejudice to the parties. If a successor judge determines that he or she cannot preside over the remainder of the case for any reason, the judge may order a new trial. n20

In a jury trial, the death or disability of the judge during the trial but before the verdict is reached results in a mistrial, unless all of the parties consent to the substitution of another judge under Rule 63. n21 The replacement of a deceased or disabled trial judge after the verdict is returned is governed by Rule 63 and does not require the consent of the parties. n22 For complete discussion of Rule 63 motions, see Ch. 23, Trial to Court; Inability of Judge to Proceed.

[6] Misconduct of Attorney

Prejudicial misconduct of an attorney in a case is grounds for a new trial. As a general rule, the moving party must establish that the conduct complained of constitutes actual misconduct and not mere aggressive advocacy. Misconduct by counsel is sufficient grounds for a new trial if the misconduct affects the moving party's substantial rights, n1 or if the misconduct prevents the claim from being fully and fairly presented or the jury from considering the full extent of damages. n2 The test for determining whether or not to grant a motion for new trial is whether or not it is reasonably probable that the verdict was influenced by the misconduct of counsel. n3

The alleged misconduct must generally be objected to at the time it occurs. n4 However, the failure to make a timely objection does not foreclose a new trial if a miscarriage of justice results from the misconduct. n5 It should also be noted that the harm resulting from misconduct may in some cases be cured by prompt curative action by the court, including appropriate instructions to the jury. n6

[7] Misconduct of Witness or Party

The district court may grant a Rule 59 motion for a new trial when a witness makes a statement while on the witness stand that is both improper and prejudicial, provided that no curative instruction or measure by the court could adequately eliminate the effect of the statement on the jury. n1 Similarly, false testimony or perjury by a witness may be grounds for a new trial n2 provided that the falsity of the testimony can be established to the satisfaction of the court. n3

Ordinarily, the misconduct of a party is not considered as sufficiently disruptive to provide adequate grounds for a new trial. For example, courts have held that emotional outbursts by a party in open court n4 and loud accusations that a witness was lying in the presence of the jury do not provide grounds for a new trial. n5

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions for New Trials

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.13[2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Blum v. Witco Chem. Corp., 829 F.2d 367, 372 (3d Cir. 1987) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Nissim v. McNeil Consumer Prods. Co., 957 F. Supp. 600, 602-604 (E.D. Pa. 1997) , aff'd on other grounds, 135 F.3d 765 (3d Cir. 1997) (motion to set aside jury verdict denied because court could not conclude that verdict was inconsistent with evidence to extent in constituted manifest injustice).

(n4)Footnote 3. United States v. Landau, 155 F.3d 93, 104 (2d Cir. 1998) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Peterson v. Wilson, 141 F.3d 573, 577 (5th Cir. 1998) .

(n6)Footnote 1. Palmer v. City of Monticello, 31 F.3d 1499, 1505 (10th Cir. 1994) ; Zarow-Smith v. New Jersey

Transit Rail Operations, 953 F. Supp. 581, 591 (D.N.J. 1997) .

(n7)Footnote 2. DLC Mgmt. Corp. v. Town of Hyde Park, 163 F.3d 124, 133-134 (2d Cir. 1998) .

(n8)Footnote 3. Belk v. City of Eldon, 228 F.3d 872, 878 (8th Cir. 2000) ; Holzapfel v. Town of Newburgh, 950 F. Supp. 1267, 1272 (S.D.N.Y. 1997) , aff'd in part on other grounds and reversed in part on other grounds, 145 F.3d 516 (2d Cir. 1998) .

(n9)Footnote 4. Rice v. Community Health Ass'n, 203 F.3d 283, 285 (4th Cir. 2000) (court may on its own initiative grant new trial if miscarriage of justice otherwise would result, even despite lack of proper motion).

(n10)Footnote 5. Gasperini v. Center for Humanities, 518 U.S. 415, 433-435, 116 S. Ct. 2211, 135 L. Ed. 2d 659 (1996) ; see 24.03.

(n11)Footnote 6. AG Servs. of Am., Inc. v. Nielsen, 231 F.3d 726 (10th Cir. 2000) (court may grant new trial only if it concludes that jury's verdict was so against weight of evidence as to be unsupportable); Henry v. Hess Oil V.I. Corp., 163 F.R.D. 237, 242-243 (D.V.I. 1995) (court should grant new trial when record shows verdict cries out to be overturned or shocks conscience).

(n12)Footnote 7. United States v. Landau, 155 F.3d 93, 104 (2d Cir. 1998) ; Lama v. Borras, 16 F.3d 473, 477 (1st Cir. 1994) .

(n13)Footnote 8. Dunn v. HOVIC, 1 F.3d 1362, 1367 (3d Cir. 1993) , cert. denied, 510 U.S. 1031 (1993) ; Henry v. Hess Oil V.I. Corp., 163 F.R.D. 237, 242 (D.V.I. 1995) (court has power to overturn verdict when against weight of evidence but power is severely circumscribed).

(n14)Footnote 9. Gasperini v. Center for Humanities, 518 U.S. 415, 433-435, 116 S. Ct. 2211, 135 L. Ed. 2d 659 (1996) .

(n15)Footnote 9.1. Farrior v. Waterford Board of Educ., 277 F.3d 633, 635 (2d Cir. 2002) , cert. denied, 153 L. Ed. 2d 836 (2002) ; see Amorgianos v. AMTRAK, 303 F.3d 256, 261 (2d Cir. 2002) (trial court may grant new trial on basis that verdict is against weight of evidence if jury has reached seriously erroneous result or if verdict is miscarriage of justice).

(n16)Footnote 10. Henry v. Hess Oil V.I. Corp., 163 F.R.D. 237, 242-243 (D.V.I. 1995) (verdict must be plausible in light of full evidentiary record).

(n17)Footnote 11. Lincoln Carpet Mills, Inc. v. Singer Co., 549 F.2d 80, 82 (8th Cir. 1977) .

(n18)Footnote 12. Lind v. Schenley Indus., Inc., 278 F.2d 79, 89-91 (3d Cir. 1960) , cert. denied, 364 U.S. 835 (1960) .

(n19)Footnote 13. Henry v. Hess Oil V.I. Corp., 163 F.R.D. 237, 242-243 (D.V.I. 1995) .

(n20)Footnote 14. Palmer v. City of Monticello, 31 F.3d 1499, 1505 (10th Cir. 1994) .

(n21)Footnote 15. Holzapfel v. Town of Newburgh, 950 F. Supp. 1267, 1272 (S.D.N.Y. 1997) , aff'd in part on other grounds and reversed in part on other grounds, 145 F.3d 516 (2d Cir. 1998) .

(n22)Footnote 16. Wilkerson v. Sarver, 72 F.R.D. 605, 610 (E.D. Ark. 1976) .

(n23)Footnote 17. Hopkins v. Coen, 431 F.2d 1055, 1059-1060 (6th Cir. 1970) .

(n24)Footnote 18. Gallick v. B & O R.R., 372 U.S. 108, 119, 83 S. Ct. 659, 9 L. Ed. 2d 618 (1963) (verdicts should be harmonized if possible); First State Bank v. Jubie, 86 F.3d 755, 759 (8th Cir. 1996) (court must read verdicts consistently if possible).

(n25)Footnote 19. Rowe Intl., Inc. v. J-B Enter., Inc., 647 F.2d 830, 835 (8th Cir. 1981) .

(n26)Footnote 20. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(a).

(n27)Footnote 21. Floyd v. Laws, 929 F.2d 1390, 1394-1396 (9th Cir. 1991) (court should harmonize apparently inconsistent special verdicts if possible).

(n28)Footnote 22. Anheuser-Busch, Inc. v. John Labatt Ltd., 89 F.3d 1339, 1347 (8th Cir. 1996) , cert. denied, 519 U.S. 1109 (1997) .

(n29)Footnote 23. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(b).

(n30)Footnote 24. Gaia Techs., Inc. v. Recycled Prods. Corp., 175 F.3d 365, 372 (5th Cir. 1999) (jury's answers to special interrogatories should be considered inconsistent with each other or with verdict only if there is no way to reconcile them); Atlantic & Gulf Stevedores, Inc. v. Ellerman Lines, Ltd., 369 U.S. 355, 364, 82 S. Ct. 780, 7 L. Ed. 2d 798 (1962) (court must, if possible, read answers to special interrogatories in manner that makes them consistent).

(n31)Footnote 25. Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(b); see Harvey v. General Motors Corp., 873 F.2d 1343, 1346-1348 (10th Cir. 1989) (absent inconsistency in verdict, new trial is not mandatory, but remains in discretion of trial court).

(n32)Footnote 26. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(b), 59(a), 59(d); Turyna v. Martam Constr. Co., 83 F.3d 178 (7th Cir. 1996) (one option when jury returns factually inconsistent answers is to return matter to jury; after discharge, only option is new trial).

(n33)Footnote 27. See Eiland v. Westinghouse Elec. Corp., 58 F.3d 176, 183 (5th Cir. 1995) ; Starceski v. Westinghouse Elec. Corp., 54 F.3d 1089, 1100 (3d Cir. 1995) .

(n34)Footnote 28. Zarow-Smith v. New Jersey Transit Rail Operations, 953 F. Supp. 581, 590-591 (D.N.J. 1997) .

(n35)Footnote 29. Carter v. Decisionone Corp., 122 F.3d 997, 1005-1006 (11th Cir. 1997) (in age discrimination case, damage award for back pay determined by jury was within parameters supported by plaintiff's evidence and was apparently reduced to reflect plaintiff's failure to entirely mitigate damages; consequently, award was not excessive).

(n36)Footnote 30. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell, 538 U.S, 408, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585, 601 (2003) (punitive damages pose a greater danger of an arbitrary deprivation of property of the tortfeasor than compensatory damages); Cooper Indus., Inc. v. Leatherman Tool Group Inc., 532 U.S. 424, 121 S. Ct. 1678, 149 L. Ed. 2d 674 (2001) ; see [ii], below.

(n37)Footnote 30.1. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell, 538 U.S, 408, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585, 600-601 (2003) ; see [ii], below (discussion of constitutional standards).

(n38)Footnote 30.2. See Cooper Indus., Inc. v. Leatherman Tool Group Inc., 532 U.S. 424, 435-436, 121 S. Ct. 1678, 149 L. Ed. 2d 674 (2001) (because jury's award of punitive damages is not finding of "fact," appellate review of district court's determination that award is consistent with due process does not implicate Seventh Amendment concerns and appellate court must apply a de novo standard of review); DeLong Equip. Co. v. Washington Mills Electro Minerals Corp., 990 F.2d 1186, 1204-1205 (11th Cir. 1993) , cert. denied, 510 U.S. 1012 (1993) (new trial based on trial court's erroneous assumptions regarding basis of damages).

(n39)Footnote 31. See Gasperini v. Center for Humanities, 518 U.S. 415, 432-434, 116 S. Ct. 2211, 135 L. Ed.

2d 659 (1996) (discussing excessiveness and inadequacy of damages); see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(a)(1) (grounds for new trial).

(n40)Footnote 32. Henry v. Hess Oil V.I. Corp., 163 F.R.D. 237, 242-243 (D.V.I. 1995) ; Carter v. Decisionone Corp., 122 F.3d 997, 1005-1006 (11th Cir. 1997) (however, if jury's verdict is within bounds of possible awards supported by evidence, award should not be disturbed).

(n41)Footnote 33. BMW of N. Am. v. Gore, 517 U.S. 559, 568, 116 S. Ct. 1589, 134 L. Ed. 2d 809 (1996) .

(n42)Footnote 34. Dagnello v. Long Island R.R., 289 F.2d 797, 802, 806 (2d Cir. 1961) (although properly within province of jury to calculate damages, upper limit exists; whether that limit has been exceeded is question of law); Gorsalitz v. Olin Mathieson Chem. Corp., 429 F. 2d 1033, 1042 (5th Cir. 1970) (question is whether amount of damages found by jury is so excessive and exorbitant as to show passion and prejudice on part of jury).

(n43)Footnote 35. Gasperini v. Center for Humanities, 518 U.S. 415, 423-425, 116 S. Ct. 2211, 135 L. Ed. 2d 659 (1996) .

(n44)Footnote 35.1. Cooper Indus., Inc. v. Leatherman Tool Group Inc., 532 U.S. 424, 435-436, 121 S. Ct. 1678, 149 L. Ed. 2d 674 (2001) .

(n45)Footnote 35.2. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell, 538 U.S, 408, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585, 606-608 (2003) (when full amount of compensatory damages was $1 million, punitive damages award of $145 million was excessive and violated Due Process Clause of Fourteenth Amendment).

(n46)Footnote 36. Kazan v. Wolinski, 721 F.2d 911, 914-916 (3d Cir. 1983) .

(n47)Footnote 37. Cline v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 144 F.3d 294, 305-306 (4th Cir. 1998) (when it finds that jury's award of either compensatory or punitive damages is excessive, court may grant new trial conditioned on refusal of remittitur, giving plaintiff option of accepting remittitur or submitting to new trial; this procedure avoids conflict with Seventh Amendment, which precludes court from setting aside jury award and replacing it with one of court's own calculation).

(n48)Footnote 37.1. Thomas v. Texas Dep't of Crim. Justice, 297 F.3d 361, 368-369 (5th Cir. 2002) (out of deference to jury's right to decide damages amount, maximum recovery rule compels court to reduce damages under remittitur only to maximum amount jury could have awarded); Unisplay, S.A. v. American Electronic Sign Co., 69 F.3d 512, 519 (Fed. Cir. 1995) (applying maximum recovery rule which requires that remittitur amount be based on highest amount of damages jury could properly have awarded based on relevant evidence).

(n49)Footnote 37.2. Evans v. Port Auth. of N.Y. & N.J., 273 F.3d 346, 355 (3d Cir. 2002) (maximum recovery line is line between excessive jury award and maximum award that reasonable jury could impose in case).

(n50)Footnote 37.3. See Salinas v. O'Neill, 286 F.3d 827, 830-831 (5th Cir. 2002) .

(n51)Footnote 37.4. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell, 538 U.S, 408, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585, 601 (2003) .

(n52)Footnote 38. Zarow-Smith v. New Jersey Transit Rail Operations, 953 F. Supp. 581, 590-591 (D.N.J. 1997) .

(n53)Footnote 39. Dimick v. Schiedt, 293 U.S. 474, 486-487, 55 S. Ct. 296, 79 L. Ed. 603 (1935) ; Davis v. Naviera Aznar S.A., 37 F.R.D. 223, 225 (D. Md. 1965) .

(n54)Footnote 40. Dimick v. Schiedt, 293 U.S. 474, 482-483, 55 S. Ct. 296, 79 L. Ed. 603 (1935) .

(n55)Footnote 41. Zarow-Smith v. New Jersey Transit Rail Operations, 953 F. Supp. 581, 590-591 (D.N.J. 1997) (correction of clerical error does not constitute additur).

(n56)Footnote 42. Mumma v. Reading Co., 247 F. Supp. 252, 260 (E.D. Pa. 1965) (elimination of jury's unsupported reduction of damages did not constitute additur); see Taylor v. Green, 868 F.2d 162 (5th Cir. 1989) , cert. denied, 493 U.S. 841 (1989) (if court determines that verdict establishing liability is proper but that award of damages is inadequate, and there is no genuine factual issue regarding amount of recoverable damages, court may order that judgment be entered for that amount as matter of law, even though ordered amount exceeds verdict amount).

(n57)Footnote 43. Liriano v. Hobart Corp., 170 F.3d 264, 272-273 (2d Cir. 1999) (district court adjusted jury's damage award to include hospital bill that was undisputed and that manifestly should have been part of jury's damage calculations); Jones v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 870 F.2d 982, 985-986 (5th Cir. 1989) (when plaintiff stipulates to amount of damages, plaintiff waives right to jury verdict with respect to amount, and trial court's order of stipulated amount does not constitute additur).

(n58)Footnote 44. Cf. McCoy v. Wean United, Inc., 67 F.R.D. 495, 498 (D. Tenn. 1975) .

(n59)Footnote 1. Farm Credit Bank v. Guidry, 110 F.3d 1147, 1155 (5th Cir. 1997) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(a).

(n60)Footnote 2. Advanced Display Sys., Inc. v. Kent State Univ., 212 F.3d 1272, 1284-1287 (Fed. Cir. 2000) ; Morgan v. Labiak, 368 F.2d 338, 341 (10th Cir. 1966) .

(n61)Footnote 3. See [b], below.

(n62)Footnote 4. See [c], below.

(n63)Footnote 5. See [d], below.

(n64)Footnote 6. Morgan v. Labiak, 368 F.2d 338, 341 (10th Cir. 1966) .

(n65)Footnote 7. Farm Credit Bank v. Guidry, 110 F.3d 1147, 1154 (5th Cir. 1997) (new evidence must be outcome determinative); Morgan v. Labiak, 368 F.2d 338, 341 (10th Cir. 1966) (newly discovered evidence must have real probative value; evidence must be material and likely to cause new result).

(n66)Footnote 8. Superchi v. Town of Athol, 170 F.R.D. 3, 5-6 (D. Mass. 1996) (newly discovered evidence must be admissible and potentially affect jury's verdict or court judgment).

(n67)Footnote 9. LiButti v. United States, 178 F.3d 114, 119 (2d Cir. 1999) .

(n68)Footnote 10. Advanced Display Sys., Inc. v. Kent State Univ., 212 F.3d 1272, 1285 (Fed. Cir. 2000) .

(n69)Footnote 11. Lama v. Borras, 16 F.3d 473, 477 (1st Cir. 1994) (decision to grant or deny in trial court's discretion, and new trial is justified only if second jury could better determine issues); Coastal Transfer Co. v. Toyota Motor Sales, 833 F.2d 208, 210-212 (9th Cir. 1987) (new trial motion may not be based on evidence that was available during trial).

(n70)Footnote 12. Farm Credit Bank v. Guidry, 110 F.3d 1147, 1154 (5th Cir. 1997) .

(n71)Footnote 13. Advanced Display Sys., Inc. v. Kent State Univ., 212 F.3d 1272, 1286 (Fed. Cir. 2000) ; see also Duffy v. Clippinger, 857 F.2d 877 (1st Cir. 1988) (in personal injury action, defendant objected to testimony of previously undiscovered witness to accident, who was found only days before trial, on ground of surprise, trial proceeded without testimony, and the district court denied plaintiff's motion for new trial; court of appeals reversed, noting that, although witness had been found prior to trial, plaintiff could not be expected to utilize testimony on short notice, and other requirements for granting a new trial for newly discovered evidence had been met: plaintiff had been diligent, testimony was not merely cumulative, and it was likely to change result of trial).

(n72)Footnote 14. Farm Credit Bank v. Guidry, 110 F.3d 1147, 1154-1155 (5th Cir. 1997) .

(n73)Footnote 15. Farm Credit Bank v. Guidry, 110 F.3d 1147, 1154 (5th Cir. 1997) .

(n74)Footnote 16. Advanced Display Sys., Inc. v. Kent State Univ., 212 F.3d 1272 (Fed. Cir. 2000) .

(n75)Footnote 1. McDonough Power Equip., Inc. v. Greenwood, 464 U.S. 548, 555-556, 104 S. Ct. 845, 78 L. Ed. 2d 663 (1984) (when plaintiff was prevented from intelligently using peremptory challenges, plaintiff was not automatically entitled to new trial; plaintiff had to show prejudice and not merely possible removal of juror).

(n76)Footnote 2. Anglo-American Gen. Agents v. Jackson Nat'l Life Ins. Co., 83 F.R.D. 41, 43-44 (N.D. Cal. 1979) .

(n77)Footnote 3. McDonough Power Equip., Inc. v. Greenwood, 464 U.S. 548, 555-556, 104 S. Ct. 845, 78 L. Ed. 2d 663 (1984) .

(n78)Footnote 4. Medrano v. City of Los Angeles, 973 F.2d 1499, 1503 (9th Cir. 1992) , cert. denied, 113 S. Ct. 2415 (1993) .

(n79)Footnote 5. Goldstein v. Kelleher, 728 F.2d 32, 37-38 (1st Cir. 1984) , cert. denied, 469 U.S. 852 (1984) .

(n80)Footnote 6. McDonough Power Equip., Inc. v. Greenwood, 464 U.S. 548, 555-556, 104 S. Ct. 845, 78 L. Ed. 2d 663 (1984) .

(n81)Footnote 7. BankAtlantic v. Blythe Eastman Paine Webber, Inc., 955 F.2d 1467, 1473 (11th Cir. 1992) , cert. denied, 506 U.S. 1049 (1992) (on new trial motion based on juror's false responses in voir dire, court found that although responses were false, correct answers would not have constituted cause for excusing jurors in question).

(n82)Footnote 8. McDonough Power Equip., Inc. v. Greenwood, 464 U.S. 548, 555, 104 S. Ct. 845, 78 L. Ed. 2d 663 (1984) .

(n83)Footnote 9. See, e.g., Mekdeci v. Merrell Nat'l Labs., Div. of Richardson-Merrell, Inc., 711 F.2d 1510, 1513-1515 (11th Cir. 1983) (court has discretion to order new trial on all issues if it appears that jury's verdict is result of compromise).

(n84)Footnote 10. Thomas v. Peerless Mattress Co., 284 F.2d 721, 722 (4th Cir. 1960) (federal law determines juror misconduct in context of new trial).

(n85)Footnote 11. See Fed. R. Evid. 606(b).

(n86)Footnote 12. See Fed. R. Evid. 606(b); Peterson v. Wilson, 141 F.3d 573, 577-579 (5th Cir. 1998) (district court abused its discretion by meeting with jurors after verdict and granting new trial on basis of jurors' statements about their mental processes during deliberations, and their fidelity to court's instructions). For a complete discussion, see 3 WEINSTEIN'S FEDERAL EVIDENCE, Ch. 606, Competency of Juror as Witness (Matthew Bender 2d ed.)

(n87)Footnote 13. Carter v. Moore, 165 F.3d 1071, 1077-1078 (7th Cir. 1998) .

(n88)Footnote 14. Fox v. United States, 417 F.2d 84, 89 (5th Cir. 1969) (juror affidavit may not be used to impeach verdict announced in open court).

(n89)Footnote 15. AG Servs. of Am., Inc. v. Nielsen, 231 F.3d 726 (10th Cir. 2000) .

(n90)Footnote 16. Stephens v. South Atl. Canners, Inc. (Coca Cola Co.), 848 F.2d 484, 489 (4th Cir. 1988) , cert. denied, 488 U.S. 996 (1988) (new trial justified when exhibit examined by jury contained notations made by plaintiff's counsel and other additional information not introduced in evidence); Tetenes v. County of Rockland, 146 F.R.D. 82, 83 (S.D.N.Y. 1993) (improper alteration of documents or creation of erroneous inferences regarding their history is grounds for new trial if sufficient adverse impact shown).

(n91)Footnote 17. Thomas v. Peerless Mattress Co., 284 F.2d 721, 722 (4th Cir. 1960) (conversation between deputy marshal and juror in which marshal advised juror of party's right to appeal from adverse verdict was adequate basis for new trial because statement called into question role of jury and finality of its judgment).

(n92)Footnote 18. Gault v. Poor Sisters of St. Frances, etc., 375 F.2d 539, 549-551 (6th Cir. 1967) (new trial not justified because information provided to juror was type of information that any juror would have and bring to consideration of lawsuit).

(n93)Footnote 19. Cooper v. Dyke, 814 F.2d 941, 949 (4th Cir. 1987) (absent extraordinary circumstances that detract from integrity of proceedings, new trial should not be granted if moving party failed to raise timely objection to alleged impropriety).

(n94)Footnote 20. See § 24.100 et seq.

(n95)Footnote 21. See Kilgore v. Greyhound Corp., Southern Greyhound Lines, 30 F.R.D. 385, 387-389 (E.D. Tenn. 1962) (no prejudice found because juror's alleged independent investigation of accident scene, of types of vehicles involved in accident, and report of those findings to deliberating jury, did not contribute to outcome of verdict).

(n96)Footnote 22. Young v. Illinois C. G. R. Co., 618 F.2d 332, 336-337 (5th Cir. 1980) .

(n97)Footnote 23. Casey v. United States, 20 F.2d 752, 754 (9th Cir. 1927) , aff'd on other grounds, 276 U.S. 413 (1928); *see, e.g., Reed v. PST Vans, Inc., 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 17928, at 9-10 (6th Cir. July 31, 1998) (living expenses are within that category of matters as to which jurors may to some degree rely on their everyday experience and knowledge; where there is evidence as to life expectancy, health and habits, present living conditions and standards, all bearing on the manner and nature of person's present scale of living, it is not unreasonable to permit a jury to use this information in projecting future living expenses in order to reach verdict).

(n98)Footnote 24. Konkel v. Bob Evans Farms Inc., 165 F.3d 275, 282 (4th Cir. 1999) , cert. denied, 528 U.S. 877 (1999) .

(n99)Footnote 1. See [b]-[d], below.

(n100)Footnote 2. United States ex rel. Evergreen Pipeline Constr. Co. v. Merritt-Meridian Constr. Corp., 890 F. Supp. 1213, 1223 (S.D.N.Y. 1995) , rev'd in part on other grounds, 95 F.3d 153 (2d Cir. 1996) .

(n101)Footnote 3. Sector Ref., Inc. v. Enterprise Ref. Co., 771 F.2d 496, 505 (Temp. Emer. Ct. App. 1985) (proponent waives submission of an issue to jury if demand for submission and timely objection are not made before jury retires for deliberation; court refused to consider whether new trial was justified because of improper submission to jury, because movant had not objected to submission at trial).

(n102)Footnote 4. In re N-500L Cases, 691 F.2d 15, 25 (1st Cir. 1982) (failure to impanel jury on issue of tort liability erroneous, but harmless error, because court would have had to direct verdict on liability issue); King v. United Ben. Fire Ins. Co., 377 F.2d 728, 731-732 (10th Cir. 1967) , cert. denied, 389 U.S. 857 (1967) (when evidence established execution of contract as matter of law, failure to present issue to jury is harmless error).

(n103)Footnote 5. Deringer v. Columbia Transp. Div., Oglebay Norton Co., 866 F.2d 859, 862-864 (6th Cir. 1989) (because no jury was required in particular type of action, failure to impanel jury was not reversible error).

(n104)Footnote 6. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 49.

(n105)Footnote 7. Eastern Mt. Platform Tennis, Inc. v. Sherwin-Williams Co., 40 F.3d 492, 500-503 (1st Cir. 1994) , cert. denied, 515 U.S. 1103 (1995) .

(n106)Footnote 8. Horstmyer v. Black & Decker, 151 F.3d 765, 771 (8th Cir. 1998) .

(n107)Footnote 9. Belk v. City of Eldon, 228 F.3d 872, 881 (8th Cir. 2000) .

(n108)Footnote 10. Bateman v. Mnemonics, Inc., 79 F.3d 1532, 1543-1544 (11th Cir. 1996) (timely objection must be made before jury retires).

(n109)Footnote 11. Logan v. Dayton Hudson Corp., 865 F.2d 789, 790 (6th Cir. 1989) (after court determined on motion for new trial that medical evidence of need for back surgery was erroneously admitted, new trial on damages properly ordered).

(n110)Footnote 12. Dabney v. Montgomery Ward & Co., 692 F.2d 49, 51-53 (8th Cir. 1982) , cert. denied, 461 U.S. 957 (1983) .

(n111)Footnote 13. Caruolo v. John Crane, Inc., 226 F.3d 46, 54 (2d Cir. 2000) .

(n112)Footnote 14. Green v. Philadelphia Gas Works, 333 F. Supp. 1398, 1405 (D. Pa. 1971) , aff'd on other grounds, 478 F.2d 313 (3d Cir. 1973) .

(n113)Footnote 15. Santa Maria v. Metro-North Commuter R.R., 81 F.3d 265, 273-274 (2d Cir. 1996) (court's remarks went beyond mere judicial skepticism, and new trial was required, when comments and questioning of witnesses demonstrated clear antipathy to counsel and case).

(n114)Footnote 16. See Johnson v. Helmerich & Payne, 892 F.2d 422, 426 (5th Cir. 1990) (new trial was not required, even though trial judge repeatedly interrupted plaintiff's counsel during cross-examination, commented on testimony of defense witness, and instructed expert witnesses not to act as advocates for their respective sides; court of appeals, noting that bias will not lightly be inferred, ruled that any prejudice was cured by instruction to jury that it ignore court's remarks and be sole judge of facts).

(n115)Footnote 17. Rush v. Smith, 45 F.3d 1197, 1200 (8th Cir. 1995) (in civil rights suit initiated by black man, order denying a new trial was affirmed even though district court remarked in jury's presence that there is tendency for races to stick together; plaintiff's counsel did not object to this statement on record, and remark would be reviewed under plain error standard; because the remark did not disparage either party or indicate preference for any party, remark did not amount to plain error).

(n116)Footnote 18. Garrett v. Desa Indus., Inc., 705 F.2d 721, 723-724, 724 n.1 (4th Cir. 1983) .

(n117)Footnote 19. Fed. R. Evid. 614(c); see Datskow v. Teledyne Continental Motors Aircraft Prods., 826 F. Supp. 677, 691 (W.D.N.Y. 1993) .

(n118)Footnote 20. Fed. R. Civ. P. 63.

(n119)Footnote 21. Olle v. Henry & Wright Corp., 910 F.2d 357, 361 (6th Cir. 1990) (new trial order is proper if judge dies before preparing findings).

(n120)Footnote 22. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 63.

(n121)Footnote 1. Cleveland v. Peter Kiewit Sons' Co., 624 F.2d 749, 757-758 (6th Cir. 1980) (counsel's references to insurance policies or to defendant's wealth generally held to be prejudicial).

(n122)Footnote 2. Spurlock v. Lawson, 881 F. Supp. 436, 438-439 (E.D. Ark. 1995) (undisclosed medical testimony may lead to element of surprise requiring new trial order).

(n123)Footnote 3. Greate Bay Hotel & Casino v. Tose, 34 F.3d 1227, 1236 (3d Cir. 1994) .

(n124)Footnote 4. Coleman v. Quaker State Coca-Cola Bottling Co., 328 F. Supp. 314, 316-317 (D. Pa. 1971) .

(n125)Footnote 5. Curtis Publ'g Co. v. Butts, 351 F.2d 702, 713-714 (5th Cir. 1965) , aff'd on other grounds, 388 U.S. 130 (1967) (court has discretion regarding requirement of objection in cases where objection may magnify harm).

(n126)Footnote 6. Nunley v. Kloehn, 888 F. Supp. 1483, 1491-1493 (D. Wis. 1995) (improper statements in closing argument by patient's attorney in medical malpractice case not prejudicial when doctor rebutted statements, patient's statements related to issue rejected by jury, and court gave curative instructions).

(n127)Footnote 1. Beck v. Wings Field, Inc., 122 F.2d 114, 117 (3d Cir. 1941) .

(n128)Footnote 2. Stamps v. United States, 406 F.2d 925, 928-929 (9th Cir. 1969) .

(n129)Footnote 3. Phillips v. Crown Cent. Petroleum Corp., 556 F.2d 702, 705 (4th Cir. 1977) , cert. denied, 444 U.S. 1074 (1980) (abuse of discretion for court to consider witness' testimony after proof submitted that witness committed perjury, and court did not determine extent of perjury).

(n130)Footnote 4. Malandris v. Merrill Lynch, 703 F.2d 1152, 1178-1179 (10th Cir. 1981) .

(n131)Footnote 5. Garland Coal Mining Co., v. Few, 267 F.2d 785, 791-792 (10th Cir. 1959) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
B. GROUNDS FOR ORDER FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.22

§ 24.22 Grounds for New Trial in Case Tried to Courtn*

[1] General Grounds for New Trial in Case Tried to Court

On motion of any party after a nonjury trial, the court may grant a new trial on all or some of the issues for any of the reasons for which a court would grant a rehearing in suits in equity in the federal courts at common law. n1 There are three grounds for granting a new trial after a nonjury trial: (1) manifest error of law; (2) manifest error of fact; and (3) newly discovered evidence. n1.1 Some courts have stated that the harmless error rule n2 sets out a workable test for when to grant a new trial in a nonjury case. n3 Thus, no error is ground for granting a new trial in such a case unless refusal to take such action appears to the court inconsistent with substantial justice. n4 Therefore, the trial court should be most reluctant to set aside that which it has previously decided unless convinced that it was based on a mistake of fact or clear error of law, or that refusal to revisit the earlier decision would work a manifest injustice. n5 In any event, a trial court should not grant a new trial simply because the losing party may be able to present a better case if afforded another chance. It thus appears that a new trial in a nonjury case may be granted for the same grounds that it may be granted in a jury case. For example, newly discovered evidence constitutes a recognized ground for a new trial in a nonjury case. n6

When a party files a motion for a new trial in a nonjury case, the court has discretion to open the judgment, take additional testimony, amend findings of fact and conclusions of law or make new findings and conclusions, and direct the entry of a new judgment. n7

[2] Inability of Judge to Continue

When a judge becomes unable to proceed after the commencement of a case, any other judge may proceed with the case after certifying familiarity with the record and determining that the proceedings may be completed without prejudice to the parties. n1 If a successor judge determines that he or she cannot preside over a continuation of the original action for any reason, the successor judge has the option to order a new trial. If the original judge dies or becomes disabled after a bench trial is commenced, but before findings of fact and conclusions of law are rendered, a mistrial should be declared, unless the successor judge certifies that he or she can make findings and conclusions based on the written evidence and record in the action, or unless all of the parties consent to the substitution of the successor. n2 The successor also must grant a party's request to recall any witness whose testimony is material and disputed and who is available to testify again without undue burden. If a successor takes over after findings and conclusions have been made, there is no duty to recall witnesses. n3 For complete discussion of Rule 63 motions, see Ch. 23, Trial to Court; Inability of Judge to Proceed.

[3] Inadequate Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law

The trial court in a nonjury trial is required to make adequate findings of fact and conclusions of law, and if it fails to do so, an appellate court may order a new trial in exigent circumstances. n1 However, the appellate court does not ordinarily overturn the judgment of the trial court merely because of a lack of findings and conclusions. Usually, the appellate court will vacate a judgment with inadequate findings or conclusions and remand the case to give the judge an opportunity to make the necessary findings and conclusions. n2

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsBench TrialsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions for New Trials

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.13[3] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(a)(1)(B).

(n3)Footnote 1.1. In re Morris, 365 B.R. 613, 618 (Bankr. E.D. Va. 2007) .

(n4)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 61.

(n5)Footnote 3. LiButti v. United States 178 F.3d 114, 119 (2d Cir. 1999) .

(n6)Footnote 4. Ball v. Interoceanica Corp., 71 F.3d 73, 76 (2d Cir. 1995) , cert. denied, 519 U.S. 863 (1996) (in nonjury actions, reasons for granting motion must be substantial); Hager v. Paul Revere Life Ins. Co., 489 F. Supp. 317, 321 (E.D. Tenn. 1977) , aff'd without op., 615 F.2d 1360 (6th Cir. 1980) (substantial reasons required to set aside judgment in nonjury case).

(n7)Footnote 5. LiButti v. United States 178 F.3d 114, 119 (2d Cir. 1999) ; Arizona v. California, 460 U.S. 605, 618 n.8, 103 S. Ct. 1382, 75 L. Ed. 2d 318 (1983) .

(n8)Footnote 6. LiButti v. United States 178 F.3d 114, 119 (2d Cir. 1999) .

(n9)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(a)(2); see Halper v. Browning, King & Co., 325 F.2d 644, 645 (D.C. Cir. 1963) (when parties incorrectly proceeded on relative burdens of proof, court could open judgment to take new testimony and make new findings and conclusions).

(n10)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 63.

(n11)Footnote 2. Patelco Credit Union v. Sahni, 262 F.3d 897, 905-907 (9th Cir. 2001) .

(n12)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 63, Committee Notes to 1991 Amendments.

(n13)Footnote 1. Olle v. Henry & Wright Corp., 910 F.2d 357, 361 (6th Cir. 1990) (new trial order is proper when judge dies before preparing findings of fact); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 63; see also [3], above.

(n14)Footnote 2. Campbell v. Hewitt, Coleman & Assocs., Inc., 21 F.3d 52, 55-56 (4th Cir. 1994) (district court ordered to make its findings and conclusions on remand).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
B. GROUNDS FOR ORDER FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.23

§ 24.23 Partial New Trialn*

[1] New Trial on Less Than All Issues

[a] Discretion of Court to Order New Trial On Some Issues

After entry of judgment, a trial court has discretion on motion of a party to grant a new trial on some of the issues in the same manner and on the same grounds for which a complete new trial could be granted. n1 The court may order a retrial on a particular issue when it clearly appears that (1) the issue is sufficiently distinct and separable from the other issues and (2) the retrial of that issue alone may be held without injustice. n2 Thus, the court may order a partial new trial on a single, distinct issue that comprises one of the elements necessary to establish liability. For example, in patent infringement litigation, the court ordered a new trial on the issue of "obviousness," which is a crucial element of whether the claimed invention was validly patented or not. n3 On the other hand, the court may not order a partial new trial on an issue that is interdependent, rather than independent, of the other issues in a case. n4 When a party makes a motion for a partial new trial on one or more issues involved in an action, the motion tolls the appeal period for all issues in the case. n5

[b] Jury Trial

The federal rules give the trial court discretion to order a partial new trial on some of the legal issues after a jury verdict on any of the grounds for which a complete new trial may be granted. n6 A partial new trial is typically ordered in a jury case when the liability of the defendant has been properly determined by the jury but grounds for a retrial arise with regard to the award of damages. In that case, the court must determine whether the issue of damages is sufficiently separate and distinct to warrant a partial new trial solely on the issue of damages. n7

A partial new trial may be granted solely on the issue of damages only when the court is satisfied that liability has been properly determined. n8 However, when the jury appears to have made an improper damage award because of problems with the liability issue, the court should grant a new trial on both liability and damages issues. n9

The court may not grant a partial new trial merely to afford the plaintiff the opportunity to argue for the liability of the defendant based on a new legal theory involving different facts and amounting in effect to a new cause of action. n10 A plaintiff wishing to address a new theory for liability must move to amend the complaint to allege the new claim for relief. n11

[c] Trial to Court

The federal rules give the trial court discretion to order a partial new trial on some of the equitable issues after a bench trial on any of the grounds for which a complete new trial may be granted. n12 On motion for a partial new bench trial, the court may open the judgment if one has been entered, take additional testimony, amend findings of fact and conclusions of law or make new ones, and direct the entry of a new judgment. n12.1 For example, in one case the court ordered a partial new trial to allow the parties to present evidence relevant to the measure of damages when neither party had anticipated that the trial court would use that measure to calculate damages at the end of the bench trial. n13

[2] New Trial for Less Than All Parties

The federal rules give the trial court discretion to order a partial new trial with respect to less than all of the parties. n1 Therefore, in an action with multiple parties, the trial court has the discretion to grant a new trial to some but not all of the parties, as required by the interests of justice. When a court does grant a new trial for less than all parties, the judgment or verdict stands as to the unaffected parties. Thus, it is not error for a court to grant a new trial to those defendants found liable while allowing the verdict to stand as to another defendant found not liable. n2 However, a new trial may be granted only to a party prejudiced by the judgment or verdict. n3 In making a determination whether to grant a new trial with respect to less than all parties, the court must determine if the liability of each party is independent or interrelated. Only if one party's case is separable from, or is not intertwined with, those of other parties does basic fairness allow that a new trial may be granted as to less than all parties. n4 The court may not grant a new trial to less than all parties when liability is so interrelated that it is impossible to separate. n5

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions for New Trials

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.14 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(a)(1); Gasoline Prods. Co. v. Champlin Ref. Co., 283 U.S. 494, 500, 51 S. Ct. 513, 75 L. Ed. 1188 (1931) ; see Foraker v. Chaffinch, 501 F.3d 231, 244 (3d Cir. 2007) (party should have moved for partial new trial due to change in law affecting less than all issues).

(n3)Footnote 2. Armstrong v. Burdette Tomlin Mem'l Hosp., 438 F.3d 240, 253 (3d Cir. 2006) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Advanced Display Sys., Inc. v. Kent State Univ., 212 F.3d 1272, 1287 (Fed. Cir. 2000) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Kuehne & Nagel, Co. v. Geosource, Inc., 874 F.2d 283, 293 (5th Cir. 1989) (issues were too interdependent for partial new trial because of corporate "alter ego" issue).

(n6)Footnote 5. Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4)(A)(v); see Washington v. Confederated Tribes of Colville Indian Reservation, 447 U.S. 134, 150, 100 S. Ct. 2069, 65 L. Ed. 2d 10 (1980) (appeal of all issues in case was timely when appeal was filed within 60 days of denial of motion for new trial, even though moving party had moved for new trial of only one issue).

(n7)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(a)(1)(A); see McCabe v. Mais, 580 F. Supp. 2d 815, 830 (N.D. Iowa 2008) (partial new trial solely on issue of damages).

(n8)Footnote 7. Boucher v. United States Suzuki Motor Corp., 73 F.3d 18, 23 (2d Cir. 1996) (partial trial regarding past and future lost earnings was appropriate because issues were distinct and separable from others at trial).

(n9)Footnote 8. Ajax Hardware Mfg. Corp. v. Industrial Plants Corp., 569 F.2d 181, 185 (2d Cir. 1977) (new trial solely on damages appropriate if court is satisfied that liability has been established).

(n10)Footnote 9. See Wharf v. Burlington N. R.R., 60 F.3d 631, 638 (9th Cir. 1995) (court may order new trial on issue of liability when new trial on damages alone would result in injustice).

(n11)Footnote 10. Popovitch v. Kasperlik, 76 F. Supp. 233, 237-239 (W.D. Pa. 1947) .

(n12)Footnote 11. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 15, discussed in Ch. 9, Pleadings and Motions in General.

(n13)Footnote 12. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(a)(1)(B).

(n14)Footnote 12.1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(a)(2); Defenders of Wildlife v. Bernal, 204 F.3d 920, 928-929 (9th Cir. 1999) .

(n15)Footnote 13. Sequa Corp. v. GBJ Corp., 156 F.3d 136, 144-145 (2d Cir. 1998) .

(n16)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(a); see Foraker v. Chaffinch, 501 F.3d 231, 244 (3d Cir. 2007) .

(n17)Footnote 2. Ward v. Hickey, 996 F.2d 448, 452 fn.5 (1st Cir. 1993) ; Channel 20, Inc. v. World Wide Towers Servs., 607 F. Supp. 551, 558 (S.D. Tex. 1985) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n18)Footnote 3. Somerville v. Capital Transit Co., 192 F.2d 413, 415 (D.C. Cir. 1951) , cert. denied, 342 U.S. 941 (1952) .

(n19)Footnote 4. Lowery v. Clouse, 348 F.2d 252, 256 (8th Cir. 1965) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n20)Footnote 5. Continental Cas. Co., v. United States, 167 F.2d 107, 109 (9th Cir. 1948) , cert. denied, 337 U.S. 940 (1949) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
B. GROUNDS FOR ORDER FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 24.24through 24.39

[Reserved]

§§ 24.24[Reserved]

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
C. PROCEDURES FOR MOTION AND ORDER FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.40

§ 24.40 Requirements for Motion by Partyn*

[1] Contents and Form of Motion

A party must file a motion for a new trial no later than 28 days after the entry of the judgment. n1 The use of the term "file" was used by the drafters to make it clear that post judgment motions for relief under Rules 50, 52, and 59 must be filed, rather than merely served, during the 28 day period after entry of judgment. The term "file" was also used because the date of filing may be determined with certainty from court records. n2

With respect to content, a motion for new trial must state with particularity the grounds for the motion and the relief or order sought. n3 Thus a party's grounds in its motion for a new trial must be reasonably specific in order to comply with the particularity requirement imposed by Rule 7. n4 This rule has been designed to provide the court and the opposing party with notice of the substance of the basis for the requested order, and the rule does not require formalistic, technical, or ritualistic detail. n5 However, if the particularity requirement is not met to the court's satisfaction, the court should deny the motion. n6 Furthermore, if counsel decides to make an oral motion, which is not advised, the motion must contain the substantive grounds and the relief requested, and it must be made a part of the record. n7

[2] Court's Discretion to Initiate or Define Scope of Motion

The authority of the court to order a new trial is not restricted to the parameters specified in a motion by one or more of the parties. First, the trial court may order a new trial on its own initiative for any reason that would justify granting a new trial on a party's motion. n1 Second, when a motion for new trial is made by one party, the court must consider the grounds made in the motion but may also consider any other grounds or issues related to a new trial that have been made by any party. n2 However, before the court may order a new trial for reasons not stated in a motion by a party, the court must give the parties notice and an opportunity to be heard on the new trial issues. n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeContent & FormCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From

JudgmentMotions for New Trials

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.14 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(b).

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(b), Advisory Committee Note to 1995 Amendments.

(n4)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 7(b)(1); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(a)(1).

(n5)Footnote 4. Intera Corp. v. Henderson, 428 F.3d 605, 612 (6th Cir. 2005) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Registration Control Sys., Inc. v. Compusystems, Inc., 922 F.2d 805, 807-808 (Fed. Cir. 1990) (citing Moore's Federal Practice for proposition that particularity requirement of Rule 7 is flexible, and even arguably non-particularized motions permitted when opposition knew or had notice of grounds relied on in motion).

(n7)Footnote 6. Snellman v. Ricoh Co., 836 F.2d 528, 532 (Fed. Cir. 1987) (issues not adequately specific to seek new trial on counterclaim).

(n8)Footnote 7. Witt v. Merrill, 208 F.2d 285, 286 (4th Cir. 1953) (new trial motion sufficient when made in open court and entered on record immediately after rendition of verdict).

(n9)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(d); see Rice v. Community Health Ass'n, 203 F.3d 283, 285 (4th Cir. 2000) (court may on its own initiative grant new trial if miscarriage of justice otherwise would result, even despite lack of proper motion); Oltz v. St. Peter's Community Hosp., 861 F.2d 1440, 1452 (9th Cir. 1988) (excessive damage award; order for new trial was within court's discretion).

(n10)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(d), Advisory Committee Note to 1993 Amendments; Varley v. Tampax, Inc., 855 F.2d 696, 699 (10th Cir. 1988) (motion opens earlier judgment and permits court to enlarge on issues specified by motion).

(n11)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(d); Valtrol, Inc. v. General Connectors Corp., 884 F.2d 149, 155 (4th Cir. 1989) (when court grants new trial on counterclaim not mentioned in motion, court must give opposition notice of reconsideration of counterclaim and opportunity to address sufficiency or appropriateness of verdict).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
C. PROCEDURES FOR MOTION AND ORDER FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.41

§ 24.41 Time Limitations Related to Motion for New Trialn*

[1] Computation of Time

The 28-day time period for making a motion for new trial n1 is generally governed by the Rule 6 provisions for computation of time periods. n2 Thus, intermediate Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays are now counted in the 28-day period n3 unless the last day falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday; if so, the period continues to run until the end of the next day that is not a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday. n4 Rule 6(b) expressly prohibits the district court from extending the 28 day filing period of a Rule 59 motion for new trial and also the period in which the court may act on its own motion to order a new trial. n5 Additionally, the provision of Rule 6(d), providing a three day extension under Rule 6 when service is by other than had delivery, n6 does not apply to a Rule 59 motion for new trial, and does not enlarge the 28-day period, because the time period for the motion is not triggered by service, but by entry of judgment. n7 For a complete discussion of the computation of time periods for motions under Rule 6, see Ch. 9, Pleadings and Motions in General.

[2] Time Limit for Motion for New Trial

A motion for a new trial must be filed no later than 28 days after the entry of judgment. n1 For time calculation purposes, a judgment is a decree or any order that is appealable, n2 and the judgment becomes effective only when set out on a separate document and entered in the civil docket in the manner prescribed by Rule 79(a). n3 The date of entry of the judgment triggers the deadline regardless of when, or if, the parties received notice of the entry of the judgment. n4 Additionally, the time of the "filing" of the motion controls whether the 28-day deadline is satisfied because Rule 59 was amended in 1995 to clarify that the date of service does not control. n5

The 28-day filing period is mandatory and jurisdictional, which means that the court may not enter an order for new trial in response to a late motion and that the period may not be extended by the court or by stipulation or waiver of the parties. n6 However, in certain circumstances, the court may treat a late motion for a new trial as a Rule 60 motion for relief from judgment. n7 It should be noted that a party may file a motion for new trial before the actual entry of judgment, because the rule requires that the motion be filed "no later than" 28 days after judgment, rather than "within" 28 days of judgment. n8

[3] Time Limit for Court to Order New Trial on Its Own Initiative

On its own initiative, the court may order a new trial for any reason that would justify granting one on a party's motion, provided the court makes the order no later than 28 days after the entry of judgment. n1 This time period is jurisdictional and may not be extended by the court. n2 However, if a motion for new trial is already pending, the court may grant the motion beyond the 28-day period, even for reasons not stated in the motion, provided that the motion was timely and the court gives the parties notice and an opportunity to be heard. n3 Additionally, when the court grants a new trial for reasons not stated in the motion of a party, the court must specify in its order the grounds for granting the motion. n4

[4] Treatment of Late Motion as One for Relief From Judgment

When the facts of a particular new trial motion qualify, a court may treat an untimely motion under Rule 59 as a motion under Rule 60(a) to correct clerical mistakes in judgments, orders, or other parts of the record, or to correct errors arising from oversight or omission. n1 Additionally, a motion under Rule 59 that is filed more than 28 days after entry of judgment may be treated as a Rule 60(b) motion for relief from judgment. n2

However, a party may not characterize a motion as one under Rule 60 to avoid the strict time limitations of Rule 59 if the motion is substantively one that should properly be made under Rule 59. n3 Furthermore, a Rule 60(b) motion to vacate a judgment is an extraordinary remedy and may be granted only in exceptional circumstances. n4 Unlike timely Rule 59 motions, Rule 60 motions do not have any tolling effect on the right to appeal from the challenged judgment. Therefore, the time to appeal continues to run from the entry of the judgment that the Rule 60 motion challenges. n5

[5] Time Limits for Supporting Papers

Rule 59 does not specify a time limit for the filing of briefs in support of a motion for a new trial. Consequently, the court may approve a briefing schedule that allows the moving party to file a brief after the 28-day period for filing the motion for new trial itself, provided that the notice of motion states the grounds for the motion with particularity sufficient to notify the opposition of the new trial motion and the grounds for that motion. Such a briefing schedule may be necessary to enable the parties to review the trial transcript. n1

When a motion for new trial is based on affidavits, they must be filed with the motion. n2 A court has discretion for good cause shown to extend the period for filing affidavits under Rule 6(b): (1) if the request for extension is made at the time of filing the motion for new trial, the court may order an extension with or without motion or notice; and (2) if the request is made after the filing of the motion, the court may, on motion, order an extension, provided that the failure to act was the product of excusable neglect. n3 The rationale for allowing extensions is that, because a motion for a new trial is pending, the judgment is no longer final and thus an extension does not disrupt the finality of a judgment. If the court grants the moving party an extension of time within which to serve supporting affidavits, fairness requires that the opponent should also have additional time after being served with those affidavits within which to serve opposing affidavits. n4

The opposing party has 14 days after the party is served with the motion for new to file opposing affidavits. n5 The filing period may be further enlarged under Rule 6(b), n6 based on the reasoning that, once a motion for a new trial is made, the extension of time does not disturb finality, because the judgment is no longer final. If the court grants the moving party an extension of time within which to serve supporting affidavits, fairness dictates that the opponent should have additional time after being served with the supporting affidavits within which to serve opposing affidavits. n7 Finally, although not required, the court may permit the filing of reply affidavits. n8 Rule 59 does not prescribe a time limit for the filing of a reply, but the court may set time limits, and may subsequently enlarge those time limits. n9

[6] Effect on Time for Appeal by Filing Motion for New Trial

[a] Effect Depends on Timeliness of Motion

A timely filed motion for new trial under Rule 59 destroys the finality of the judgment and tolls the time for filing an appeal. n1 Furthermore, the filing of a timely new trial motion nullifies any notice of appeal filed before the disposition of the motion for new trial. n2 On the other hand, if a party files an untimely motion for a new trial under Rule 59, the motion has no effect on the time for appeal. Even if the untimely new trial motion is treated as a Rule 60(b) motion for relief from judgment, the motion does not have any tolling effect on the right to appeal from that judgment. n3 However, there is an exception to this rule under the "unique circumstances" doctrine. n4

[b] Unique Circumstances Exception

Under the "doctrine of unique circumstances," enforcement of the strict federal deadlines that apply to appeal to the circuit court may be relaxed in the unique circumstance in which a party has performed an act which, if properly done, would postpone the deadline for filing its appeal and has received specific assurance by a judicial officer that this act has been properly done. n5 This doctrine may apply to permit an untimely Rule 59 motion for new trial to extend the time for filing an appeal when the district court has erroneously but in good faith enlarged the filing period for the motion against the prohibition against enlargement specified in Rule 6(b). The doctrine applies if (1) a party performs an act that, when properly performed, would extend the deadline for filing an appeal, and (2) the party reasonably relies on the district court's conclusion that the act was properly performed. n6

However, the doctrine may not be used to extend the initial deadline for filing the new trial motion in the district court. n7 Thus, the exception for unique circumstances applies only to situations in which the late filing of an appeal is at issue, and the filing would have been timely if the period in which to file the appeal had been tolled or suspended by a properly made motion for new trial. n8 However, the appellate court may extend a deadline if the court finds that the failure to file a timely notice of appeal resulted from excusable neglect. n9

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeTime LimitationsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions for New Trials

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.11 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(b); see [2], below.

(n3)Footnote 2. See Hart v. Sheahan, 396 F.3d 887, 889 (7th Cir. 2004) (former version of Rule 6); see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(a).

(n4)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(a)(1)(B).

(n5)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(a)(1)(C).

(n6)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(b)(2), 59(d); see Weissman v. Dawn Joy Fashions, Inc., 214 F.3d 224, 230 (2d Cir. 2000) (construing former version of Rule 6).

(n7)Footnote 6. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(d).

(n8)Footnote 7. Parker v. Board of Pub. Utils., 77 F.3d 1289, 1291 (10th Cir. 1996) (construing former version of Rule 6); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(d).

(n9)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(b).

(n10)Footnote 2. See Wendy's Int'l v. Nu-Cape Constr., 169 F.R.D. 680, 685 (M.D. Fla. 1996) .

(n11)Footnote 3. Atlantic Richfield Co. v. Monarch Leasing Co., 84 F.3d 204, 206-207 (6th Cir. 1996) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 58, 79(a). For discussion of Rule 58, and the entry of judgments, see Ch. 25, Judgment.

(n12)Footnote 4. Shults v. Henderson, 110 F.R.D. 102, 104B105 (W.D.N.Y. 1986) .

(n13)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(b), Advisory Committee Note to 1995 Amendments.

(n14)Footnote 6. Weissman v. Dawn Joy Fashions, Inc., 214 F.3d 224, 230 (2d Cir. 2000) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(b)(2); see also [1], above.

(n15)Footnote 7. See [4], below.

(n16)Footnote 8. See Larez v. Los Angeles, 946 F.2d 630, 636 (9th Cir. 1991) (citing Moore's Federal Practice); Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(b); Committee Note to 1995 Amendments.

(n17)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(d).

(n18)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(b)(1); see AG Servs. of Am., Inc. v. Nielsen, 231 F.3d 726 (10th Cir. 2000) ; Weissman v. Dawn Joy Fashions, Inc., 214 F.3d 224, 230 (2d Cir. 2000) .

(n19)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(d); see § 24.43.

(n20)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(d).

(n21)Footnote 1. United States v. Kellogg (In re W. Tex. Mktg. Corp.), 12 F.3d 497, 503 (5th Cir. 1994) ; Boston Car Co. v. Acura Auto. Div. American Honda Motor Co., 971 F.2d 811, 814-815 (1st Cir. 1992) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a).

(n22)Footnote 2. United States v. Martin, 226 F.3d 1042, 1048 n.8 (9th Cir. 2000) (construing former time periods).

(n23)Footnote 3. United States v. Contents of Accounts Nos. 3034504504 & 144-07143, 971 F.2d 974, 987 (3d Cir. 1992) .

(n24)Footnote 4. Rutledge v. United States, 230 F.3d 1041, 1052 (7th Cir. 2000) .

(n25)Footnote 5. Helm v. Resolution Trust Corp., 43 F.3d 1163, 1166-1167 (7th Cir. 1995) .

(n26)Footnote 1. Parojcic v. Bethlehem Steel Corp., 170 F.R.D. 14, 14-15 (N.D. Ind. 1996) , rev'd on other grounds, 128 F.3d 601 (7th Cir. 1997) .

(n27)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(c).

(n28)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(b)(1).

(n29)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(b), Advisory Committee Note to 1946 Amendments.

(n30)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(c).

(n31)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(b).

(n32)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(b), Advisory Committee Note to 1946 Amendments.

(n33)Footnote 8. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(c).

(n34)Footnote 9. Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(b), Advisory Committee Note to 1946 Amendments.

(n35)Footnote 1. Stone v. INS, 514 U.S. 386, 402-403, 115 S. Ct. 1537, 131 L. Ed. 2d 465 (1995) ; Osterneck v. Ernst & Whinney, 489 U.S. 169, 175, 178-179, 109 S. Ct. 987, 103 L. Ed. 2d 146 (1989) .

(n36)Footnote 2. Fed. Rule App. P. 4(a)(4)(v); see Osterneck v. Ernst & Whinney, 489 U.S. 169, 177-179, 109 S. Ct. 987, 103 L. Ed. 2d 146 (1989) (Rule 4(a)(4) provides that, when any party files Rule 59 motion, any notice of appeal filed before disposition of motion has no effect).

(n37)Footnote 3. Helm v. Resolution Trust Corp., 43 F.3d 1163, 1166-1167 (7th Cir. 1995) .

(n38)Footnote 4. See [b], below.

(n39)Footnote 5. Osterneck v. Ernst & Whinney, 489 U.S. 169, 178-179, 109 S. Ct. 987, 103 L. Ed. 2d 146 (1989) .

(n40)Footnote 6. Mendes Junior Int'l Co. v. Banco Do Brasil, S.A., 215 F.3d 306, 315 (2d Cir. 2000) .

(n41)Footnote 7. See Mendes Junior Int'l Co. v. Banco Do Brasil, S.A., 215 F.3d 306, 315 (2d Cir. 2000) ; Bailey v. Sharp, 782 F.2d 1366, 1368-1374 (7th Cir. 1986) , modified on other grounds, 811 F.2d 366 (7th Cir. 1987) .

(n42)Footnote 8. Long Island Radio Co. v. NLRB, 841 F.2d 474, 478-479 (2d Cir. 1988) (district court may not extend 10-day period or enlarge its own jurisdiction).

(n43)Footnote 9. Varhol v. National R.R. Passenger Corp., 909 F.2d 1557, 1563-1564 (7th Cir. 1990) .

78 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
C. PROCEDURES FOR MOTION AND ORDER FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.42

§ 24.42 Amendment of Motion for New Trialn*

Courts generally permit the amendment of a timely Rule 59 motion for new trial within the 28-day filing period of Rule 59(b). n1 However, courts have split on whether or not to permit amendment after the 28-day period. Some courts have held that a timely Rule 59 motion may be amended after the expiration of the 28-day initial filing period, n2 using the rationale that a timely motion suspends the finality of the judgment, and therefore the district court has discretion to determine whether justice requires the consideration of an amendment to a timely motion. n3 Some circuits have held that if the motion is timely, an amendment that expands on the original grounds for a new trial is allowable. n4 On the other hand, some circuits have held that the district court may not grant a new trial for any grounds presented to the district court after the expiration of the 28-day initial period. n5

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions for New Trials

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.16 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See Roy v. Volkswagenwerk Aktiengesellschaft, 781 F.2d 670, 671 (9th Cir. 1985) (construing former time periods); Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(b).

(n3)Footnote 2. See Meriwether v. Coughlin, 879 F.2d 1037, 1040-1042 (2d Cir. 1989) (construing former time periods); Pate v. Seaboard R.R., Inc., 819 F.2d 1074, 1085-1086 (11th Cir. 1987) (citing Moore's Federal Practice; construing former time periods).

(n4)Footnote 3. See Pate v. Seaboard R.R., Inc., 819 F.2d 1074, 1085-1086 (11th Cir. 1987) (construing former time periods).

(n5)Footnote 4. See Roy v. Volkswagenwerk Aktiengesellschaft, 781 F.2d 670, 671 (9th Cir. 1985) (construing former time periods).

(n6)Footnote 5. Conrad v. Graf. Bros., Inc. 412 F.2d 135, 137 (1st Cir. 1969) , cert. denied, 396 U.S. 902 (1964) (construing former time periods).

79 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
C. PROCEDURES FOR MOTION AND ORDER FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.43

§ 24.43 Requirements of Notice and Hearingn*

A motion for a new trial must be noticed and set for hearing in the ordinary manner. n1 With respect to contents, a motion for new trial must state with particularity the grounds for the motion n2 and the relief or order sought. n3 This rule is followed to provide the court and the opposing party with notice of the substance of the basis for the requested new trial. n4

When a court grants a new trial on its own motion, or on a ground not stated in a timely motion, the court must give the parties notice and an opportunity to be heard. n5 On motion for a new trial after a nonjury trial, the court may: n6 open the judgment even if one has already been entered, take additional testimony, amend findings of fact and conclusions of law or make new ones, n7 and direct the entry of a new judgment. n8

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions for New Trials

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.17 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(c), (d).

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 7(b)(1)(B).

(n4)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 7(b)(1)(C).

(n5)Footnote 4. Registration Control Sys. v. Compusystems, Inc., 922 F.2d 805, 807-808 (Fed. Cir. 1990) (citing Moore's Federal Practice for proposition that particularity requirement of Rule 7 is flexible and even arguably non-particularized motions permitted when opposition knew or had notice of grounds relied on in motion).

(n6)Footnote 5. Valtrol, Inc. v. General Connectors Corp., 884 F.2d 149, 156 (4th Cir. 1989) (citing Moore's Federal Practice and reversing new trial order because district court did not give notice or opportunity to be heard).

(n7)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(a)(2) GenCorp, Inc. v. Olin Corp., 477 F.3d 368, 372 (6th Cir. 2007) (options after judgment).

(n8)Footnote 7. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(b).

(n9)Footnote 8. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(a)(2).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
C. PROCEDURES FOR MOTION AND ORDER FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.44

§ 24.44 Order Regarding New Trialn*

[1] Contents of Order

When the district court enters an order granting a new trial which is based on the grounds and issues expressed in a motion for new trial, the grounds for the motion may be ascertainable. However, the trial court should nevertheless clearly state its reasons for granting the motion n1 because appellate review is more readily facilitated, even if the parties are already on notice of the basis of the court's order for new trial. n2 This is especially important when the motion for new trial is combined with another motion, such as a motion for judgment as a matter of law, in the event the decision on the other motion is later vacated or reversed. n3

When the district court orders a new trial on the court's own initiative or grants a motion for a new trial for a reason not stated in the motion for new trial, the court must precisely specify the grounds for granting the new trial in its order. n4 When the court acts on its own initiative in either situation, the parties may not know the grounds for the court's order. Therefore, this disclosure requirement provides necessary information to the parties. n5 Courts have split on whether a trial court's failure to specify the grounds for granting a new trial in the order is merely a procedural matter n6 or rather is jurisdictional and may result in vacation of the order. n7

[2] Effect of Order Granting or Denying Motion for New Trial

When a district court grants a Rule 59 new trial motion, the judgment previously entered becomes ineffective, and the new ruling supercedes that judgment. However, to grant a new trial, the court must enter a separate, written order. n1 The court and the parties may not waive this requirement. Thus, until it enters an order granting a new trial, the court has no jurisdiction to proceed with a retrial of the case. n2

On the other hand, when a court denies a Rule 59 new trial motion, the previously entered judgment is not affected, and the court is not required to issue a new judgment or enter a separate, written order. n3 For discussion of appellate review of new trial orders, see § 24.60 et seq.

[3] Reconsideration of Order

When a court enters an order that grants a new trial, the order is interlocutory and destroys the finality of the judgment; therefore, the judgment may not be appealed. n1 A district court has plenary power to reconsider, revise, alter, or amend an interlocutory order, and therefore the court has the power to take any action with respect to an order granting a new trial, including the reconsideration of the order. n2

When a party files a timely motion for new trial under Rule 59, the filing destroys the finality of the judgment, and tolls the time for filing an appeal. n3 However, when a trial court denies a motion for a new trial, the finality of the judgment is restored and the appeal time begins to run from the date the order is entered. n4 If a party files a motion for reconsideration within the 10-day period following the original order, the court may hear the motion for reconsideration. When the 10-day period has expired after the court has denied the motion for new trial, a motion to reconsider the denial is inappropriate. n5 However, the court may make an exception if the order denying a new trial was inadvertent and may be corrected under Rule 60(a). n6

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions for New Trials

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.18 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(d).

(n3)Footnote 2. See Cerqueira v. Am. Airlines, Inc., 520 F.3d 1, 17-18 (1st Cir. 2008) .

(n4)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(c) (conditional grant or denial of new trial).

(n5)Footnote 4. Pate v. Seaboard R.R., Inc., 819 F.2d 1074, 1086 (11th Cir. 1987) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(d).

(n7)Footnote 6. Cherokee Labs., Inc. v. Pierson, 415 F.2d 85, 91 (10th Cir. 1969) , cert. denied, 396 U.S. 1059 (1970) (failure to specify grounds is not sufficient basis to set aside judgment after new trial).

(n8)Footnote 7. Central Microfilm Serv. Corp. v. Basic/Four Corp., 688 F.2d 1206, 1211 (8th Cir. 1982) , cert. denied, 459 U.S. 1204 (1983) (order that does not specify grounds may be reversed).

(n9)Footnote 1. Marre v. United States, 38 F.3d 823, 825 (5th Cir. 1994) (grant of new trial requires entry of new order).

(n10)Footnote 2. Copper v. City of Fargo, 184 F.3d 994, 997-998 (8th Cir. 1999) , cert. denied, 529 U.S. 1017 (2000) (once it has entered final judgment, district court has no jurisdiction to relitigate case unless court first issues order for new trial).

(n11)Footnote 3. Copper v. City of Fargo, 184 F.3d 994, 998 (8th Cir. 1999) (previous judgment is unaffected by denial of new trial, and district court need not enter new judgment or separate written order denying new trial); Marre v. United States, 38 F.3d 823, 825 (5th Cir. 1994) (denial of new trial does not require entry of new order).

(n12)Footnote 1. Stone v. INS, 514 U.S. 386, 402-403, 115 S. Ct 1537, 131 L. Ed. 2d 465 (1995) .

(n13)Footnote 2. Hardin v. Hayes, 52 F.3d 934, 938 (11th Cir. 1995) ; Gallimore v. Missouri P. R. Co., 635 F.2d

1165, 1171 (5th Cir. 1981) .

(n14)Footnote 3. Stone v. INS, 514 U.S. 386, 402-403, 115 S. Ct 1537, 131 L. Ed. 2d 465 (1995) .

(n15)Footnote 4. Larez v. Los Angeles, 946 F.2d 630, 636 (9th Cir. 1991) (appeal from denial of motion filed within 30 days was timely).

(n16)Footnote 5. Otto v. Variable Annuity Life Ins. Co., 814 F.2d 1127, 1139 (7th Cir. 1986) , cert. denied, 486 U.S. 1026 (1988) (motion for reconsideration made more than 10 days after judgment is untimely).

(n17)Footnote 6. Burnam v. Amoco Container Co., 738 F.2d 1230, 1231-1232 (11th Cir. 1984) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
C. PROCEDURES FOR MOTION AND ORDER FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 24.45through 24.59

[Reserved]

§§ 24.45[Reserved]

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
D. APPELLATE REVIEW OF ORDERS FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.60

§ 24.60 Appeal of Order Granting New Trialn*

[1] Order Generally Not Appealable

An order granting a motion for new trial is interlocutory and, because it destroys the finality of the judgment, is generally not appealable. n1 Also, an order that conditionally grants a new trial, on condition that the plaintiff rejects a remittitur, is a nonappealable interlocutory order if the plaintiff rejects the remittitur, requiring a new trial on damages. In such a case, neither party ordinarily may appeal until after a final judgment is entered on retrial. n2 However, in some circumstances courts have deemed the grant of a new trial as a final appealable order when the court's authority to issue the new trial order is questioned. n3 This line of authority undermines the concept of finality, however, and it appears that the better view is that appellate review should be available, if at all, only through an extraordinary writ, if the losing party does not wish to wait for the subsequent entry of a final judgment. An extraordinary writ enables the appellate court to review orders granting a new trial that are not appealable, as discussed in [3], below.

If a trial court vacates its order granting a new trial, the vacating order is the equivalent of a denial and restores the finality of the judgment; furthermore, the time to appeal runs from the date of the entry of the order vacating the order for a new trial. n4

[2] Appeal of Original Judgment Postponed Until Final Judgment in New Trial

When the district court enters an order granting a motion for new trial, the order may be reviewed when the final judgment is entered following the new trial. n1 However, under older authority, an order granting a new trial is appealable if the district court lacked the jurisdiction to grant it. n2 Furthermore, in unusual circumstances, the appellate court may grant an extraordinary writ to hear an appeal when the court exceeds its authority to grant a new trial. n3

[3] Use of Extraordinary Writ to Hear Appeal

An appellate court may use an extraordinary writ to hear an appeal of an order granting a new trial that is not otherwise appealable. n1 As it name suggests, the writ is proper only in exceptional circumstances and is rarely granted. n2 However, the appellate court may use an extraordinary writ if the district court exceeded its authority in granting a new trial. n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions for New TrialsCivil ProcedureAppealsReviewabilityGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.50 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Stone v. INS, 514 U.S. 386, 115 S. Ct 1537, 1548, 131 L. Ed. 2d 465 (1995) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Ortiz-Del Valle v. NBA, 190 F.3d 598, 599-600 (2d Cir. 1999) (conditional grant is effectively grant of new trial if plaintiff rejects remittitur).

(n4)Footnote 3. National Passenger R.R. Corp. v. Maylie, 910 F.2d 1181, 1182-1183 (3d Cir. 1990) (grant of new trial that exceeds district court's jurisdiction because it was made after deadline should be treated as final for purposes of appeal because new trial is challenged as beyond district court's authority).

(n5)Footnote 4. See Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4)(A) (if any party files a timely motion for a new trial, time for appeal for all parties runs from entry of order disposing of last such motion outstanding); cf. Varhol v. National R.R. Passenger Corp., 909 F.2d 1557, 1561-1562 (7th Cir. 1990) (time for filing appeal begins to run when court enters judgment denying Rule 59 motion); see also § 24.61[2].

(n6)Footnote 1. Richardson v. Communications Workers of Am., 469 F.2d, 333, 334 (8th Cir. 1972) , cert. denied, 414 U.S. 818 (1973) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n7)Footnote 2. See National Passenger R.R. Corp. v. Maylie, 910 F.2d 1181, 1182-1183 (3d Cir. 1990) .

(n8)Footnote 3. See [3], below.

(n9)Footnote 1. See 28 U.S.C. § 1651.

(n10)Footnote 2. Allied Chem. Corp. v. Daiflon, Inc., 449 U.S. 33, 34, 101 S. Ct. 188, 66 L. Ed. 2d 193 (1980) .

(n11)Footnote 3. Bailey v. Sharp, 782 F.2d 1366, 1367 (7th Cir. 1986) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
D. APPELLATE REVIEW OF ORDERS FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.61

§ 24.61 Appeal of Order Denying New Trialn*

[1] Order Generally Not Appealable

Generally, a district court's denial of a motion for a new trial under Rule 59(a) is not appealable. n1 Thus, rather than appealing the denial of new trial, the party may appeal from the underlying final judgment. n2 However, even though the denial of a motion for new trial is not ordinarily subject to appeal, the denial is immediately appealable when the motion is based on new matters that have arisen after the entry of judgment, for example if grounds for the motion for new trial are newly discovered evidence. n3

[2] Time to Appeal Underlying Judgment

A timely motion for a new trial tolls the deadline for appealing the underlying judgment until the motion is decided. n1 If the new trial motion is denied, the time to appeal runs from the entry of the order denying the motion for new trial. n2 The time to appeal is not tolled again by a motion to reconsider or vacate the order. n3

After a party has filed a Rule 59 motion for new trial, counsel should wait for the court's determination of that motion, and then file a notice of appeal within the allowable time measured from the date the motion was decided. If a notice of appeal is filed before the motion for new trial is decided, or even while the motion is pending, the notice is a nullity. n4 Further, a premature notice of appeal has no effect. A new notice of appeal must be filed after the disposition of a motion for new trial if the notice of appeal is to be effective. n5 If a party files a timely Rule 59 motion for new trial after the notice of appeal is filed, the underlying judgment loses its finality and the appellate court loses its jurisdiction. n6

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions for New TrialsCivil ProcedureAppealsReviewabilityGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsReviewabilityTime Limitations

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.50 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Government Fin. Servs. v. Peyton Place, 62 F.3d 767, 774 (5th Cir. 1995) .

(n3)Footnote 2. McGowne v. Challenge-Cook Bros., Inc., 672 F.2d 652, 659 (8th Cir. 1982) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n4)Footnote 3. Government Fin. Servs. v. Peyton Place, 62 F.3d 767, 774 (5th Cir. 1995) (only exception to rule of nonappealability is when motion is based on newly discovered evidence); Fallen v. United States, 249 F.2d 94, 95 (5th Cir. 1957) (denial of motion for new trial on ground of newly discovered evidence is itself appealable).

(n5)Footnote 1. Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4)(A)(v).

(n6)Footnote 2. Fairley v. Jones, 824 F.2d 440, 441-443 (5th Cir. 1987) (when timely Rule 59 motion for new trial is filed, time for appeal runs from entry of order denying new trial).

(n7)Footnote 3. Calcasieu Marine Nat'l Bank v. Grant, 943 F.2d 1453, 1456-1457 (5th Cir. 1991) .

(n8)Footnote 4. Fellow v. Colonial Sav. & Loan Ass'n (In re Fellows), 19 F.3d 245, 246-247 (5th Cir. 1994) (notice of appeal filed before disposition of motion has no effect).

(n9)Footnote 5. Griggs v. Provident Consumer Discount Co., 459 U.S. 56, 60, 61, 103 S. Ct. 400, 74 L. Ed. 2d 225 (1982) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n10)Footnote 6. Stone v. INS, 514 U.S. 386, 402-403, 115 S. Ct. 1537, 131 L. Ed. 2d 465 (1995) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
D. APPELLATE REVIEW OF ORDERS FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.62

§ 24.62 Standard of Appellate Reviewn*

[1] Abuse of Discretion Standard in General

The district court has considerable discretion whether to grant or deny a motion for a new trial. n1 This broad allowance of discretion is accorded to the trial court because of the trial court's close proximity to the circumstances and evidence in the case and the need for the trial court to effectively manage the case and maintain its authority. n2 Furthermore, deference by the appellate court deters excessive appeals. n3

Due to this broad discretion related to new trial motions, the district court's grant or denial of a motion for a new trial is reversible only if the appellate court finds that the trial court failed to exercise its discretion, abused its discretion, or made a mistake of law. n4 In addition, an appellate court may review the trial court's decision and order the trial court to exercise its discretion if the trial court mistakenly believed that it did not have the power to so exercise that discretion. n5 Thus, when a trial court erroneously fails to exercise its discretion to decide a motion for new trial, the reviewing court may remand the case, or decide the issue itself, provided that the record is sufficiently developed on the issue. n6

[2] Abuse of Discretion Standard Applied to Particular New Trial Orders

[a] Clear Weight of Evidence

When the motion for new trial is based on the assertion that the jury verdict is against the clear weight of evidence, appellate courts exercise a heightened standard of review to the grant of a new trial under Rule 59. The rationale behind this standard is that the broad discretion given to the trial court n1 is slightly restricted by the deference due to the jury. The appellate court must ensure that the evaluation of the credibility of witness' testimony remains the sole domain of the jury. n2 In contrast, when the trial court denies a Rule 59 motion based on the claim that the verdict is against the clear weight of evidence, that determination is virtually not subject to challenge on appeal. n3

[b] Excessive or Inadequate Damages

An appellate court may review a district court's decision denying a new trial based on the grounds of excessive or inadequate damage. Thus, a court of appeals may review a district court's denial of a motion to set aside a verdict because of excessive damages. n4 When reviewing a trial court's decision denying a new trial or remittitur based on the excessiveness or inadequacy of a jury award, appellate courts review for abuse of discretion. n5 If the appellate court finds reversible error in the trial court record, the appellate court may order a new trial, or it may condition denial of a new trial order on plaintiff's acceptance of remittitur. n6

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions for New TrialsCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewAbuse of Discretion

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.54 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Douglas County Bank & Trust Co. v. United Fin. Inc., 207 F.3d 473, 478 (8th Cir. 2000) ; Atkins v. New York City, 143 F.3d 100, 102 (2d Cir. 1998) .

(n3)Footnote 2. See Knoll v. AT&T, 176 F.3d 359, 362-63 (6th Cir. 1999) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Ball v. Interoceanica Corp., 71 F.3d 73, 76 (2d Cir. 1995) , cert. denied, 519 U.S. 863 (1996) (district court had broad discretion to decide motion for new trial).

(n5)Footnote 4. Gasperini v. Center for Humanities, 518 U.S. 415, 435-437, 116 S. Ct. 2211, 135 L. Ed. 2d 659 (1996) ; Belk v. City of Eldon, 228 F.3d 872 ,  (8th Cir. 2000) (grant or denial of motion for new trial under Rule 59(a) is reviewed with great deference to district court's ruling and will not be reversed in absence of clear abuse of discretion; key question is whether new trial should have been granted to avoid miscarriage of justice).

(n6)Footnote 5. Gates v. L.G. De Witt, Inc., 528 F.2d 405, 410 (5th Cir. 1976) , modified on other grounds, 532 F.2d 1052 (5th Cir. 1976) .

(n7)Footnote 6. Wharf v. Burlington N. R.R., 60 F.3d 631, 637-638 (9th Cir. 1995) (appellate court ruled new trial should have been granted, relying on findings of fact after evidentiary hearing).

(n8)Footnote 1. Czajka v. Black, 901 F.2d 1484, 1485 (8th Cir. 1990) .

(n9)Footnote 2. Bristol Steel & Iron Works v. Bethlehem Steel Corp., 41 F.3d 182, 186 (4th Cir. 1994) (abuse of discretion standard applies to weight of evidence cases); Scott v. Monsanto Co., 868 F.2d 786, 789 (5th Cir. 1989) (jury's verdict must be against great, not merely greater, weight of evidence).

(n10)Footnote 3. Transamerica Premier Ins. Co. v. Ober, 107 F.3d 925, 929 (1st Cir. 1997) (denial of new trial motion will be reversed only if verdict is so seriously mistaken, so clearly against the law or the evidence, as to constitute a miscarriage of justice; strict standard of review is particularly appropriate if motion for new trial is based on claim that verdict is against weight of evidence).

(n11)Footnote 4. Gasperini v. Center for Humanities, Inc., 518 U.S. 415, 434-437, 116 S. Ct. 2211, 135 L. Ed. 2d 659 (1996) .

(n12)Footnote 5. Pescatore v. Pan Am. World Airways, Inc., 97 F.3d 1, 18-20 (2d Cir. 1996) (district court's determination that $5 million award for loss of society and $9 million award for loss of support are not excessive and refusal to vacate or reduce are not abuses of discretion); Snellman v. Ricoh Co., 836 F.2d 528, 532-534 (Fed. Cir. 1987) , cert. denied, 491 U.S. 910 (1989) .

(n13)Footnote 6. Cline v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 144 F.3d 294, 305-306 (4th Cir. 1998) (on determination that jury's award of compensatory or punitive damages is excessive, court of appeals may grant conditional new trial, which gives plaintiff option of accepting remittitur or submitting to new trial); Katch v. Speidel, Div. of Textron, Inc., 746 F.2d 1136, 1140-1144 (6th Cir. 1984) (because of wrongful jury instructions, court of appeals ordered remittitur).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
D. APPELLATE REVIEW OF ORDERS FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.63

§ 24.63 Motion for New Trial Not Prerequisite to Appellate Reviewn*

A motion for a new trial is not required to preserve properly made objections for appellate review and is therefore not a prerequisite to an appeal from the judgment. n1 However, although not a prerequisite to an appeal, it is recommended that counsel bring any alleged errors to the trial court's attention by moving for a new trial, to avoid the time and expense of an appeal before a new trial is ordered by the appellate court. Any ground for new trial that is reviewable for abuse of discretion should be presented to the trial court to urge the court to exercise that discretion. Grounds for new trial that arise solely in the context of post trial proceedings must be presented to the trial court for consideration by a motion for new trial, and the failure to do so that deprives the appellate court from any record may be reviewed for error. n2

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions for New TrialsCivil ProcedureAppealsReviewabilityPreservation for Review

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.55 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Elmore v. United States, 843 F.2d 1128, 1131, n.7 (8th Cir. 1988) (citing Moore's Federal Practice); Sherrill v. Royal Indus., Inc., 526 F.2d 507, 509 n.2 (8th Cir. 1975) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n3)Footnote 2. Cf. Advanced Display Sys., Inc. v. Kent State Univ., 212 F.3d 1272, 1284 (Fed. Cir. 2000) (party preserved its right to seek relief from verdict by making motion for new trial, which magistrate judge denied).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART I. NEW TRIAL
D. APPELLATE REVIEW OF ORDERS FOR NEW TRIAL

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 24.64through 24.79

[Reserved]

§§ 24.64[Reserved]

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART II. ALTERATION OR AMENDMENT OF JUDGMENT

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.80

§ 24.80 Function of Alteration or Amendment of Judgmentn*

[1] Purpose

The federal rules expressly provide for a motion to alter or amend a judgment n1 to provide the district court with a procedure for use in the period immediately following the entry of judgment so that the court may rectify any mistakes made at trial. n2 Under this rule, the court may correct either factual errors or errors of law. n3 A Rule 59(e) motion to alter or amend a judgment permits the moving party to bring to the district court's attention a manifest error of law or fact or newly discovered evidence. The rule does not provide a vehicle for a party to correct its own procedural failures or to allow a party to introduce new evidence or advance arguments that could and should have been presented to the district court prior to the judgment. n4

[2] Nature of Motion to Alter or Amend Judgment

A Rule 59(e) motion to alter or amend a judgment is commonly used with a wide variety of other post-judgment motions, and they are sometimes difficult to distinguish. However, the Supreme Court has developed a test designed to determine whether a motion is a Rule 59(e) motion to alter or amend: a Rule 59(e) motion involves the rehearing of matters properly encompassed in a decision on the merits. n1 A motion to alter or amend a judgment must seek a substantive alteration of the judgment, rather than merely a clerical correction. n2 Note that a post-judgment motion to amend the judgment to provide for discretionary prejudgment interest constitutes a Rule 59(e) motion. This is so because the motion involves the rehearing of matters encompassed within the merits of the judgment and because prejudgment interest is an element of a plaintiff's complete compensation. n3

The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure do not include a motion titled a "motion for reconsideration" of a judgment. However, it is the substance, and not a party's label, that is determinative of the effect of a motion. Courts have generally stated that, regardless of the title, if it otherwise qualifies, any motion for reconsideration is treated as either: n4 a motion to alter or amend the judgment under Rule 59(e) (which must be filed no later than 28 days after judgment); n5 or a motion requesting relief from judgment under Rule 60(b) (which need only be filed within a reasonable time). n6 The distinction between whether the motion is treated as a Rule 59(e) motion or Rule 60(b) motion may be significant in determining the timeliness of a notice of appeal: Rule 59(e) motions toll the 30-day period for appeal while Rule 60(b) motions do not. n7

[3] Use in Connection With Other Motions

[a] Motion to Amend Complaint After Judgment

A party may make a motion to amend a complaint following the entry of judgment under Rule 15(a). n1 However, the party must first have the judgment reopened under Rule 59(e) or Rule 60(b). n2 Even though Rule 15 generally allows the liberal amendment of pleadings and mandates that leave to amend must be freely granted when justice so requires, justice clearly may require something more in post-judgment situations rather than prejudgment situations. For a complete discussion of Rule 15 motions, see Ch. 9, Pleadings and Motions in General.

[b] Motion to Amend or Add Findings in Court Actions

A court must make findings of fact and state conclusions of law in all actions tried on the facts without a jury or advisory jury. n3 Rule 52(b) permits a court to amend its findings of fact or make additional findings and then amend the judgment accordingly on the motion of a party made within 28 days of entry of judgment. Such a motion may accompany a motion for a new trial under Rule 59(e). n4 Rules 52(b) and 59(e) both allow a party to move in the district court for an amendment of its findings. However, a Rule 59(e) motion seeks an alteration or amendment of a judgment, often by way of the court's finding of additional facts. n5 In contrast, a Rule 52(b) motion seeks only the correction of findings or the finding of additional facts without the amendment of the judgment. n6 For complete discussion of Rule 52, see Ch. 23, Trial to Court; Inability of Judge to Proceed.

[c] Motion for Relief From Judgment

A party may make a motion for relief from a final judgment, order, or proceeding for several specified reasons. n7 A motion for relief under Rule 60(b) must conform to one of the specific grounds for modification or reversal enumerated in the rule: (1) mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect; (2) newly discovered evidence that could not have been discovered in exercise of due diligence in time to move for a new trial under Rule 59(b); (3) fraud, misrepresentation, or other misconduct of an adverse party; (4) a judgment that is void; (5) a judgment that has been satisfied, released, or discharged, or a prior judgment on which it is based that is reversed or otherwise vacated, or a judgment for which it is no longer equitable to give prospective application; or (6) any other reason justifying relief from the operation of the judgment. n8 A party may move for this last catchall basis for relief only if none of the other more specific bases set out in Rules 60(b)(1)-(5) are applicable, and only if the movant establishes extraordinary circumstances. n9

A party that is subject to an adverse ruling may file a Rule 60(b) motion seeking relief from judgment and in the alternative a Rule 59(e) motion to alter or amend the judgment. n10 However, the rules are not interchangeable. An assertion that the court misapplied the law does not justify relief under Rule 60(b); rather, this argument should ordinarily be raised in a timely Rule 59(e) motion or in a direct appeal. n11 On the other hand, while motions under Rule 59(e) may be used only to alter or amend a "judgment," a "motion for reconsideration" of a nonfinal order is properly classified as a motion for relief under Rule 60(b), because Rule 60(b) includes motions filed in response to nonfinal orders, as well as judgments. n12

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & Amend

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.30 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(e).

(n3)Footnote 2. White v. New Hampshire Dep't of Employment Sec., 455 U.S. 445, 451-452, 102 S. Ct. 1162, 71 L. Ed. 2d 325 (1982) ; Ajinomoto Co. v. Archer-Daniels-Midland Co., 228 F.3d 1338, 1350 (Fed. Cir. 2000) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Phelps v. Hamilton, 122 F.3d 1309, 1324 (10th Cir. 1997) (Rule 59(e) motion may be granted to correct manifest errors of law or to present newly discovered evidence); Norman v. Arkansas Dep't of Educ., 79 F.3d 748, 750 (8th Cir. 1996) (Rule 59(e) appropriate when court order based on factual error).

(n5)Footnote 4. Lionel Bordelon v. Chicago Sch. Reform Bd. of Trustees, 233 F.3d 524, 529 (7th Cir. 2000) .

(n6)Footnote 1. Osterneck v. Ernst & Whinney, 489 U.S. 169, 174-177, 109 S. Ct. 987, 103 L. Ed. 2d 146 (1989) ; see Phelps v. Hamilton, 122 F.3d 1309, 1323-1324 (10th Cir. 1997) .

(n7)Footnote 2. United States v. Deutsch, 981 F.2d 299, 300-301 (7th Cir. 1992) .

(n8)Footnote 3. Osterneck v. Ernst & Whinney, 489 U.S. 169, 174-177, 109 S. Ct. 987, 103 L. Ed. 2d 146 (1989) .

(n9)Footnote 4. Auto Servs. Co. v. KPMG, LLP, 537 F.3d 853, 855-856 (8th Cir. 2008) .

(n10)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(e).

(n11)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(c)(1).

(n12)Footnote 7. See Ch. 26, Post-Judgment Procedures.

(n13)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(a).

(n14)Footnote 2. Diersen v. Chicago Car Exch., 110 F.3d 481, 488-489 n.6 (7th Cir. 1997) , cert. denied, 522 U.S. 868 (1997) (Rule 15(a) requires open judgment).

(n15)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(a).

(n16)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(b); see United States v. Martin, 226 F.3d 1042, 1047 n6 (9th Cir. 2000) (in addition to Rule 59(e), Rule 52(b) is also a express source of authority for motion to amend judgment in nonjury case).

(n17)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(e).

(n18)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(b).

(n19)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b).

(n20)Footnote 8. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b); see Wendy's Int'l, Inc. v. Nu-Cape Constr., Inc., 169 F.R.D. 680, 686-687 (M.D. Fla. 1996) (Rule 60(b) motion must be based on prescribed grounds).

(n21)Footnote 9. Gonzalez v. Crosby, 545 U.S. 524, 534-535, 125 S. Ct. 2641, 162 L. Ed. 2d 480 (2005) .

(n22)Footnote 10. See Bartlett v. New York State Bd. of Law Examiners, 226 F.3d 69, 77-78 (2d Cir. 2000) .

(n23)Footnote 11. Van Skiver v. United States, 952 F.2d 1241, 1243-1244 (10th Cir. 1991) , cert. denied, 506 U.S. 828 (1992) .

(n24)Footnote 12. Broadway v. Norris, 193 F.3d 987, 989 (8th Cir. 1999) .

88 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART II. ALTERATION OR AMENDMENT OF JUDGMENT

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.81

§ 24.81 Motion to Alter or Amend Judgment Must Be in Writingn*

A party should make a written motion to alter or amend a judgment after its entry. n1 A motion to alter or amend a judgment must demonstrate why the court should reconsider its previous decision and set forth facts or law of a strongly convincing nature to induce the court to reverse its earlier decision. n2 In this regard, Rule 7(b) requires that the motion for amendment or alteration must state with particularity the grounds for the motion and the relief or order sought. n3 In considering whether or not a given ground has been stated by the motion, the court should consider that the particularity required in stating the grounds for a new trial motion is the same as that required for all motions under Rule 7(b)(1)--in other words, "ritualistic" detail is not required but rather a fair indication to court and counsel of the substance of the grounds relied on. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeContent & FormCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & Amend

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.30 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(e); Dave Kohel Agency, Inc. v. Redshaw, Inc., 149 F.R.D. 171, 176-177 (E.D. Wis. 1993) (Rule 59(e) motions must be in writing).

(n3)Footnote 2. Intera Corp. v. Henderson, 428 F.3d 605, 613-614 (6th Cir. 2005) (particularity may require details of factual or legal nature or both).

(n4)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 7(b).

(n5)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(b), Advisory Committee Note to 1966 Amendments; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 7(b)(1).

89 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART II. ALTERATION OR AMENDMENT OF JUDGMENT

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.82

§ 24.82 Grounds for Motion to Alter or Amend Judgmentn*

A proper motion to alter or amend a judgment must be based on any one of four of the following major grounds: n1

1. An intervening change in controlling law. Whether it appears that a new law is favorable or unfavorable to the moving party, the party may make a motion to alter or amend a judgment when there has been an intervening change in the controlling law. n2

2. The availability of new evidence that was not available previously. Thus, Rule 59(e) does not permit the submission of matters already available or known to the party submitting them as "new evidence." n3 When evaluating this ground, the court should consider, among other things, the reasons for the moving party's failure, the importance of the omitted evidence to the moving party's case, whether the omitted evidence was available before the moving party responded to the summary judgment motion, and the likelihood of prejudice to the nonmoving party if the case is reopened. n4

3. The need to correct clear error. A Rule 59(e) motion to alter or amend a judgment may be granted when the court commits clear legal error; which means that the error may be a mistake in either law or fact. n5

4. The necessity to prevent manifest injustice. The court may grant a Rule 59(e) motion to alter or amend a judgment when, without the alteration or amendment, the judgment would create or result in manifest injustice. n6 This ground is considered a catch-all ground for relief. For example, this ground may include the misconduct of counsel as the basis of a Rule 59(e) motion. n7

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & AmendCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentNewly Discovered Evidence

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.30 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Ajinomoto Co., Inc. v. Archer-Daniels-Midland Co., 228 F.3d 1338, 1350 (Fed. Cir. 2000) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Quinones-Ruiz v. United States, 873 F. Supp. 359, 362 (S.D. Cal. 1995) (motion to amend was appropriate even when new law was unfavorable to moving party, because moving party entitled to argue how new rule should apply); Database Am., Inc. v. Bellsouth Adver. & Pub. Corp., 825 F. Supp. 1216, 1220 (D.N.J. 1993) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Waltman v. Int'l Paper Co., 875 F.2d 468, 473-474 (5th Cir. 1989) (evidentiary materials submitted with motion that were available before party filed losing opposition were not newly discovered evidence).

(n5)Footnote 4. Lavespere v. Niagara Mach. & Tool Works, Inc., 910 F.2d 167, 174 (5th Cir. 1990) , cert. denied, 510 U.S. 859 (1993) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Norman v. Arkansas Dep't of Educ., 79 F.3d 748, 750 (8th Cir. 1996) (Rule 59(e) motion proper only when manifest error affects legal propriety of judgment, such as when court bases order on factual error); see EEOC v. Lockheed Martin Corp., 116 F.3d 110, 112 (4th Cir. 1997) (Rule 59(e) motion properly granted because order denying enforcement of subpoena was based on court's erroneous understanding of relevance of information sought).

(n7)Footnote 6. Atlantic States Legal Found., Inc. v. Karg Bros., Inc., 841 F. Supp. 51, 53 (N.D.N.Y. 1993) .

(n8)Footnote 7. Dale & Selby Superette & Deli v. United States Dep't of Agric., 838 F. Supp. 1346, 1347-1348 (D. Minn. 1993) (motion to amend in nonjury case may be granted when counsel's improper conduct affects result).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART II. ALTERATION OR AMENDMENT OF JUDGMENT

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.83

§ 24.83 Time Limitations Related to Motion to Alter or Amend Judgmentn*

[1] Time Limit for Motion to Alter or Amend Judgment

A motion to alter or amend a judgment must be filed no later than 28 days after entry of the judgment; n1 This time period may not be extended. n2 For purposes of a Rule 59(e) motion, a judgment is a decree or any other order that is appealable, n3 and the judgment becomes effective only when set out on a separate document and entered in the civil docket in the manner prescribed by Rule 79(a). n4 In determining the timeliness of a Rule 59(e) motion, the date of filing the motion controls, rather than the date of service. n5 Rule 59 was amended in 1995 to clarify that the filing date controls and to eliminate confusion between the operation of Rules 50, 52, and 59(e). n6

The 28-day time period for making a motion for to alter or amend a judgment n7 is generally governed by the Rule 6 provisions for computation of time periods. n8 Thus, intermediate Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays are now counted in the 28-day period. n9 unless the last day falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday; if so, the period continues to run until the end of the next day that is not a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday. n10 However, the provision of Rule 6(d), providing a three-day extension under Rule 6 when service is by other than hand delivery, n11 does not apply to a Rule 59 motion to alter or amend the judgment, and does not enlarge the 28-day period, because the time period for the motion is not triggered by service, but by entry of judgment. n12 For a complete discussion of the computation of time periods for motions under Rule 6, see Ch. 9, Pleadings and Motions in General.

[2] Court May Not Extend Time Limitation

Rule 6(b) expressly prohibits the district court from extending the 28-day filing period of a Rule 59(e) motion to alter or amend judgment. n1 Therefore, the 28-day period may not be altered, waived, or amended. n1.1 The specified time periods for filing a Rule 59(e) motion are mandatory and jurisdictional; therefore, the failure to meet the 10-day deadline to alter or amend a judgment is absolutely determinant and compels the denial of the Rule 59(e) motion. n2 Additionally, an untimely Rule 59(e) motion may not be salvaged on the grounds that the opposing party filed a timely motion, n3 or because a co-party filed a timely motion. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeTime LimitationsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & Amend

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.31 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(e).

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(b)(2); see [2], below.

(n4)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(a); see Wendy's Int'l v. Nu-Cape Constr., 169 F.R.D. 680, 685 (M.D. Fla. 1996) (award of attorney's fees and costs as sanctions is final when order issued).

(n5)Footnote 4. Atlantic Richfield Co. v. Monarch Leasing Co., 84 F.3d 204, 206-207 (6th Cir. 1996) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 58, 79(a). For discussion of Rule 58, and the entry of judgments, see Ch. 25, Judgment.

(n6)Footnote 5. Long v. Simmons, 77 F.3d 878, 879 (5th Cir. 1996) .

(n7)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(e), Advisory Committee Note to 1995 Amendments.

(n8)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(e).

(n9)Footnote 8. See Benzon v. Morgan Stanley Distribs., 420 F.3d 598, 613 (6th Cir. 2005) (former version of Rule 6); Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(a).

(n10)Footnote 9. Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(a)(1)(B).

(n11)Footnote 10. Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(a)(1)(C).

(n12)Footnote 11. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(d).

(n13)Footnote 12. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(d).

(n14)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(b)(2), 59(e).

(n15)Footnote 1.1. FHC Equities, L.L.C. v. MBL Life Assur. Corp., 188 F.3d 678, 681-683 (6th Cir. 1999) .

(n16)Footnote 2. Cole v. Altieri, 534 F. Supp. 165, 168 (E.D. Pa. 1981) .

(n17)Footnote 3. Sun-Tek Indus., Inc. v. Kennedy Sky Lites, Inc., 848 F.2d 179, 181-182 (Fed. Cir. 1988) , cert. denied, 488 U.S. 1009 (1989) ; Hidle v. Geneva County Bd. of Educ., 792 F.2d 1098, 1100 (11th Cir. 1986) , cert. denied, 479 U.S. 1088 (1987) .

(n18)Footnote 4. Hertz Corp. v. Alamo Rent-A-Car, Inc., 16 F.3d 1126, 1129-1133 (11th Cir. 1994) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART II. ALTERATION OR AMENDMENT OF JUDGMENT

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.84

§ 24.84 Effects of Motion to Alter or Amend Judgmentn*

A timely filed motion to alter or amend a judgment has several effects:

1. The filing eliminates the finality of and reopens the earlier judgment. n1 Note, however, a timely motion does not permit the nonmoving party to make an untimely request to alter the judgment on entirely independent grounds. n2

2. The filing tolls the time for appeal, provided that the motion is substantive and filed within 10 days of the entry of judgment. n3 On the other hand, an untimely Rule 59(e) motion has no effect on the time for appeal; an untimely motion is treated as one to set aside the judgment under Rule 60(b), which does not affect the finality of the judgment or toll the time to appeal. n4 Thus, a subsequent Rule 59(e) motion, filed after denial of the initial motion but more than 10 days after entry of judgment, does not toll the time for appeal. n5

3. The filing nullifies any notice of appeal previously filed by the parties. n6 A party seeking appellate review must file a new notice of appeal after the entry of the order disposing of the Rule 59(e) motion. n7

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & Amend

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.31 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. See Mendes Junior Int'l Co. v. Banco Do Brasil, S.A., 215 F.3d 306, 313-314 (2d Cir. 2000) ; United States v. Hollis, 424 F.2d 188, 191 (4th Cir. 1970) (timely post-judgment motion opens earlier judgment and permits courts to enlarge on issues delineated by motion).

(n3)Footnote 2. Sun-Tek Indus. v. Kennedy Sky Lites, Inc., 848 F.2d 179, 181-182 (Fed. Cir. 1988) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Ramsey v. Colonial Life Ins. Co. of Am., 12 F.3d 472, 477-478 (5th Cir. 1994) (Rule 59(e) motion tolls time to appeal until court disposes of motion).

(n5)Footnote 4. Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4); Browder v. Director, Dep't of Corrections, 434 U.S. 257, 263 n.7, 264-265, 98 S. Ct. 556, 54 L. Ed. 2d 521 (1978) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Aybar v. Crispin-Reyes, 118 F.3d 10, 13-14 (1st Cir. 1997) .

(n7)Footnote 6. Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4); see Pub. Serv. Co. v. Hudson Light & Power Dep't, 938 F.2d 338, 340 (1st Cir. 1991) .

(n8)Footnote 7. Tinsley v. Borg, 895 F.2d 520, 523 (9th Cir. 1990) (time to file notice of appeal begins to run after entry of order granting or denying motion).

92 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART II. ALTERATION OR AMENDMENT OF JUDGMENT

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.85

§ 24.85 Sua Sponte Authority of Court to Alter or Amend Judgmentn*

Rule 59(e) does not expressly authorize the district court to alter or amend a judgment on its own initiative, as is the case for a new trial under Rule 59(d), which authorizes the court to grant a new trial on its own initiative. n1 Case precedent indicates a court does have the power to alter or amend its judgment on its own initiative. n2 There are two general requirements for the court to alter or amend its own judgment without motion: (1) the court makes the order within 28 days of the judgment; n3 and (2) the court provides the parties with notice and opportunity to be heard on any alteration or amendment. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & Amend

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.33 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Compare Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(d) with Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(e).

(n3)Footnote 2. Bryant v. New Jersey DOT, 998 F. Supp. 438, 442 (D.N.J. 1998) (court on its own initiative reconsidered its judgment dismissing complaint when decision of United States Supreme Court, filed after original district court judgment, compromised validity of judgment.).

(n4)Footnote 3. Dunn v. Savage (In re Saffady), 524 F.3d 799, 803 (6th Cir. 2008) ; Burnam v. Amoco Container Co., 738 F.2d 1230, 1232 (11th Cir. 1984) (court may act sua sponte within period specified by Rule 59(e) for making motion; citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n5)Footnote 4. Dr. Jose S. Belaval, Inc. v. Perez-Perdomo, 465 F.3d 33, 37 (1st Cir. 2006) .

93 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART II. ALTERATION OR AMENDMENT OF JUDGMENT

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.86

§ 24.86 Use of Affidavits in Support of Motionn*

Although Rule 59(e) does not expressly provide for service of affidavits in support of a motion to alter or amend a judgment, n1 it is clear that affidavits should be used in the manner specified in Rule 59(c). n2 Thus, if a party wishes to support or oppose such a motion by affidavits, service should be in accordance with the general provisions of Rule 6(d). n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & Amend

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.34 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(e).

(n3)Footnote 2. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(c); see also United States v. Dailide, 227 F.3d 385, 407 (6th Cir. 2000) (citing Moore's Federal Practice for proposition that any evidence that would be admissible at trial can be presented in an affidavit in Rule 59(e) motion).

(n4)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(d).

94 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART II. ALTERATION OR AMENDMENT OF JUDGMENT

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.87

§ 24.87 Court's Decision on Motion to Alter or Amend Judgmentn*

The district court has considerable discretion in determining whether to grant or deny a motion to alter or amend. n1 However, this discretion is limited: the reconsideration of a previous order is an extraordinary remedy and, to promote the interests of finality and conservation of judicial resources, must be used infrequently. n2 The court may deny the Rule 59(e) motion to alter or amend a judgment if it is being used to relitigate the same matters already determined by the court. n3 Furthermore, the court may deny a motion to alter or amend that is used to present arguments or evidence that could reasonably have been presented before the entry of judgment and may also deny a motion seeking relief that is entirely collateral to the judgment. n4 Additionally, the grounds of clerical error or the correction of procedural problems do not support a motion to alter or amend and will be denied. n5

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & Amend

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.34 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Edward H. Bohlin Co. v. Banning Co., 6 F.3d 350, 355-356 (5th Cir. 1993) (court's broad discretion must be balanced against need for finality and justice based on all facts).

(n3)Footnote 2. In re Prince, 85 F.3d 314, 324 (7th Cir. 1996) (decision to grant or deny Rule 59(e) motion is discretionary).

(n4)Footnote 3. Hutchinson v. Staton, 994 F.2d 1076, 1081 (4th Cir. 1993) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Buchanan v. Stanships, Inc., 485 U.S. 265, 268, 108 S. Ct. 1130, 99 L. Ed. 2d 289 (1988) (post-judgment application for allowance of costs under Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d) is collateral).

(n6)Footnote 5. United States v. Deutsch, 981 F.2d 299, 300-301 (7th Cir. 1992) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART II. ALTERATION OR AMENDMENT OF JUDGMENT

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.88

§ 24.88 Effect of Order Granting or Denying Motion to Alter or Amend Judgmentn*

When a district court grants a Rule 59(e) motion to substantively alter or amend a judgment, a new judgment is entered, and the previous judgment no longer exists. A significant modification in a judgment starts the time periods again that are triggered by entry of a judgment, such as the time periods for postjudgment motions. n1 Consequently, the parties then have 21 days from the entry of the new judgment in which to file a motion to alter or amend that judgment. n2

On the other hand, when a trial court denies a motion to alter or amend a judgment, the finality of the judgment is restored and the appeal time begins to run from the date the order is entered. n3 After the 28-day time period has expired and the court has denied the Rule 59(e) motion, the court will not hear another Rule 59 motion. n4 For discussion of appellate review of Rule 59(e), see § 24.90.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & Amend

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.35 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. See Charles v. Daley, 799 F.2d 343, 348 (7th Cir. 1986) (construing former time periods).

(n3)Footnote 2. See McNabola v. Chicago Transit Auth., 10 F.3d 501, 520-521 (7th Cir. 1993) (construing former time periods).

(n4)Footnote 3. Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4)(A)(iv).

(n5)Footnote 4. Otto v. Variable Annuity Life Ins., 814 F.2d 1127, 1139 (7th Cir. 1986) , cert. denied, 486 U.S. 1026 (1988) (construing former time periods).

96 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART II. ALTERATION OR AMENDMENT OF JUDGMENT

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.89

§ 24.89 Principle of Harmless Error Applicable to Motion to Alter or Amend Judgmentn*

The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure require a court to disregard a harmless error, which is any error or defect in the course of the litigation that does not affect the substantial rights of the parties. n1 Therefore, no error is a sufficient ground to alter or amend a judgment under Rule 59 unless the court deems that its refusal to alter or amend the judgment would be inconsistent with substantial justice. n2 Furthermore, if the party does not make a timely objection, even substantial errors are deemed waived and do not constitute grounds for a motion to alter or amend unless a miscarriage of justice would result from the denial of the motion. n3 For discussion of the harmless error principle, as specified in Rule 61, see Part III. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & Amend

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 61.02 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 61.

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 61; see, e.g., Bains v. Cambra, 204 F.3d 964, 971-972 (9th Cir. 2000) .

(n4)Footnote 3. See Rutledge v. United States, 230 F.3d 1041, 1052 (7th Cir. 2000) .

(n5)Footnote 4. See 24.100 et seq.

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART II. ALTERATION OR AMENDMENT OF JUDGMENT

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.90

§ 24.90 Appellate Review of Order Granting or Denying Motion to Alter or Amend Judgmentn*

[1] Order Granting Alteration or Amendment of Judgment

When a party files a timely motion to alter or amend a judgment, the motion suspends the finality of the judgment. n1 Then, if the court grants the order, a new judgment must be entered in conformity with the grounds for granting the motion. This judgment then is final and appealable on entry. n2

[2] Order Denying Alteration or Amendment of Judgment

A timely motion to alter or amend a judgment suspends the finality of the judgment. n1 Then, if the motion is denied, the underlying judgment is final and appealable; therefore, the aggrieved party should take an appeal from the underlying judgment rather than from the order denying relief under Rule 59(e). n2 Thus, when the court enters an order denying a motion to alter or amend under Rule 59(e), the court must enter a new judgment in conformity with the grounds for denying the motion. This judgment then is final and appealable on entry. n3

[3] Standard of Review

When the district court makes an appealable Rule 59(e) order, that order granting or denying alteration or amendment of a judgment is reviewed for an abuse of discretion, n1 which is essentially the same standard of review applied to orders granting or denying a new trial. Thus, the appellate court will not reverse the trial court unless there is a clear abuse of discretion. n2 However, there is an exception for summary judgment orders; if the motion for alteration or amendment sought reconsideration of a grant of summary judgment, the appellate court must review the matter de novo. n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & AmendCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewAbuse of Discretion

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 59.54 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Osterneck v. Ernst & Whinney, 489 U.S. 169, 177-179, 109 S. Ct. 987, 103 L. Ed. 2d 146 (1989) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Lyell Theatre Corp. v. Loews Corp., 682 F.2d 37, 40 (2d Cir. 1982) .

(n4)Footnote 1. Osterneck v. Ernst & Whinney, 489 U.S. 169, 177-179, 109 S. Ct. 987, 103 L. Ed. 2d 146 (1989) .

(n5)Footnote 2. Lawson v. Singletary, 85 F.3d 502, 507 (11th Cir. 1996) .

(n6)Footnote 3. Lyell Theatre Corp. v. Loews Corp., 682 F.2d 37, 40 (2d Cir. 1982) .

(n7)Footnote 1. Lionel Bordelon v. Chicago Sch. Reform Bd. of Trustees, 233 F.3d 524, 529 (7th Cir. 2000) .

(n8)Footnote 2. Britton v. Swift Transp. Co., Inc., 127 F.3d 616, 618-619 (7th Cir. 1997) ; Phelps v. Hamilton, 122 F.3d 1309, 1324 (10th Cir. 1997) .

(n9)Footnote 3. Wilkins v. Baptist Healthcare Sys., Inc., 150 F.3d 609, 613 (6th Cir. 1998) (although denial of Rule 59(e) motion is ordinarily reviewed for abuse of discretion, if motion seeks reconsideration of grant of summary judgment, review will be de novo).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART II. ALTERATION OR AMENDMENT OF JUDGMENT

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 24.91through 24.99

[Reserved]

§§ 24.91[Reserved]

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART III. HARMLESS ERROR
A. SCOPE AND PURPOSE OF HARMLESS ERROR RULE

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.100

§ 24.100 Statement of Harmless Error Rulen*

The harmless error rule states that, at the appellate level, a court should review cases for errors of law without regard to errors that do not affect the parties' substantial rights. n1 Similarly, at the trial level, the court should not grant a new trial, set aside a jury verdict or vacate, modify, or otherwise disturb a judgment or order on the grounds of error unless just requires otherwise. This rule applies to an error in either the admission or the exclusion of evidence, an error in any ruling or order, or an error in any other act or omission by the court or by any of the parties. At all stages of a proceeding, the trial court must disregard any error or defect in the proceeding that does not affect the substantial rights of the parties. n2

Under the harmless error rule, the integrity of verdicts, orders, and judgments is the general rule, and their disturbance is the exception. The rule has been adopted by the Supreme Court and Congress to ensure that courts should exercise judgment regarding errors, rather than requiring automatic reversal based on technicalities, and should ignore errors that do not affect the essential fairness of the trial. n3 This means that courts should not use presumptions in determinations regarding harmless error to the extent such presumptions may lead courts to find an error harmful when, in fact, the error is harmless in the particular circumstances before the court. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewHarmless & Invited ErrorsHarmless Error Rule

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 61.02 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 2111; see Shinseki v. Sanders, ___ U.S. ___, 129 S. Ct. 1696, 173 L. Ed. 2d 532, 544 (2009) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 61; see, e.g., Henderson v. Walled Lake Consol. Sch., 469 F.3d 479, 495 (6th Cir. 2006) .

(n4)Footnote 3. McDonough Power Equip., Inc. v. Greenwood, 464 U.S. 548, 553-554, 104 S. Ct. 845, 78 L. Ed. 2d 663 (1984) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Shinseki v. Sanders, ___ U.S. ___, 129 S. Ct. 1696, 173 L. Ed. 2d 532, 544 (2009) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART III. HARMLESS ERROR
A. SCOPE AND PURPOSE OF HARMLESS ERROR RULE

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.101

§ 24.101 Applicability of Harmless Error Rulen*

The harmless error rule applies to all rulings and actions of the trial court at all stages of the proceedings and also to anything done or omitted by the court or by any of the parties. n1 Although the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, by definition, govern procedure only in the district courts, n2 the standards for the application of Rule 61 in the district court are, by statute, substantially the same as those utilized in the courts of appeal and the Supreme Court. n3 Thus, a reviewing court must ignore errors or defects that do not affect the substantial rights of the parties, and render judgment accordingly after an examination of the complete record. n4

The determination of what constitutes harmless error is a procedural matter governed by federal law. n5 Review for harmless error is fact specific and must therefore be determined on a case-by-case basis. The court must consider the unique context of the particular case, including whether the error pertains to an issue that is one sided or closely balanced, and how it relates to the ultimate determination in the case. n6

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewHarmless & Invited ErrorsHarmless Error Rule

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 61.02 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 61.

(n3)Footnote 2. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 1.

(n4)Footnote 3. 28 U.S.C. § 2111.

(n5)Footnote 4. Shinseki v. Sanders, ___ U.S. ___, 129 S. Ct. 1696, 173 L. Ed. 2d 532, 544 (2009) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Sokol Crystal Products, Inc., v. DSC Communications Corp., 15 F.3d 1427, 1431 (7th Cir. 1994) .

(n7)Footnote 6. Phoenix Associates III v. Stone, 60 F.3d 95, 105 (2d Cir. 1995) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART III. HARMLESS ERROR
A. SCOPE AND PURPOSE OF HARMLESS ERROR RULE

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.102

§ 24.102 Raising Issue of Harmless Errorn*

The principle of harmless error is typically brought into issue by a party asserting that the court or other party has committed some error in the proceedings; however, the court may raise the issue on its own initiative when the court discovers an error. n1 The party requesting relief from the order or judgment in question has the has the burden of persuading the court that the error substantially affected the party's rights. n2 A "substantial right" is affected only if it is likely that factfinder's judgment was swayed in some material respect by the error. n3

The standard of proof is not precise, n4 but the Supreme Court has said that if a court is sure that the error did not influence the jury, or had but a very slight effect, the verdict and the judgment should generally stand; on the other hand, if the court may not say, with fair assurance considering all of the circumstances that the judgment was not substantially swayed by the error, it is not harmless error because substantial rights were affected. n5 Therefore, the party claiming error must show that it is highly probable that the error affected the party's rights, n6 that the error affected a party's rights to a substantial degree, n7 or that the verdict more probably than not was tainted. n8

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewHarmless & Invited ErrorsHarmless Error Rule

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 61.02 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Prevatte v. French, 547 F.3d 1300, 1305 (11th Cir. 2008) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Shinseki v. Sanders, ___ U.S. ___, 129 S. Ct. 1696, 173 L. Ed. 2d 532, 545 (2009) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Costantino v. Herzog, 203 F.3d 164, 174 (2d Cir. 2000) .

(n5)Footnote 4. See Renz v. Grey Adver., Inc., 135 F.3d 217, 223-224 (2d Cir. 1997) (citing Moore's Federal Practice, and noting that there are various formulations of standard of proof); see also Jones v. Lincoln Elec. Co., 188 F.3d 709, 725 (7th Cir. 1999) , cert. denied, 529 U.S. 1067 (2000) (citing Rule 61 and Evidence Rule 103 for proposition that trial court may not reverse jury verdict if error is harmless; error must have affected party's substantial rights).

(n6)Footnote 5. Kotteakos v. United States, 328 U.S. 750, 764-765, 66 S. Ct. 1239, 90 L. Ed. 1557 (1946) .

(n7)Footnote 6. McQueeney v. Wilmington Trust Co., 779 F.2d 916, 927 (3d Cir. 1985) .

(n8)Footnote 7. Smith v. Chesapeake & Ohio Ry. Co., 778 F.2d 384, 389 (7th Cir. 1985) .

(n9)Footnote 8. Haddad v. Lockheed California Corp., 720 F.2d 1454, 1459 (9th Cir. 1983) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART III. HARMLESS ERROR
A. SCOPE AND PURPOSE OF HARMLESS ERROR RULE

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 24.103through 24.119

[Reserved]

§§ 24.103[Reserved]

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART III. HARMLESS ERROR
B. APPLICATION OF HARMLESS ERROR RULE TO PARTICULAR DETERMINATIONS

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.120

§ 24.120 Admission of Evidencen*

[1] Admission of Evidence

If a court commits an error by admitting inadmissible evidence, the court is not required to grant a new trial, set aside a verdict, or vacate, modify, or otherwise disturb a judgment or order unless justice requires that it do so. Thus, as in other stages of litigation, a court must disregard all errors and defects at trial that do not affect any party's substantial rights. n1 The party seeking to prove that the error in allowing the introduction of inadmissible evidence was reversible error has the burden of showing that there was a significant probability that the admission affected the result of the trial. n2

[2] Exclusion of Evidence

The improper exclusion of competent evidence is harmless error unless a substantial right of a party is affected. n1 Furthermore, erroneous exclusion is not reversable unless the evidence excluded would have affected the outcome of the case. n2 The following are typical examples when the improper exclusion of evidence is held to be harmless error:

1. When the evidence excluded would have been cumulative. n3

2. When the excluded evidence would be part of the record from some other source. n4

3. When the excluded evidence would not have affected the outcome based on the jury's finding. n5

[3] Curative Instruction

If the trial court gives the jury a sufficiently curative instruction after the admission of improper evidence, n1 the erroneous admission of the improper evidence is harmless. n2 For example, when a hearsay objection has been made and the proponent contends that it is admissible under the co-conspirator rule, the statement may be conditionally admitted into evidence. However, at the conclusion of all the evidence, the trial court must make an explicit decision for the record about the admissibility of the statement. If the proponent of the statement fails to prove a conspiracy involving the declarant and the parties opponent, the trial must give a curative instruction. n3

[4] Availability of Evidence From Another Source

Even if the exclusion or admission of particular evidence is erroneous, the error is harmless if there is other sufficient, admissible, and proper evidence to support the jury verdict. n1 In other words, whether the erroneous admission or exclusion of that particular evidence is harmless depends on its consideration in the context of any other related properly admitted evidence. n2 For example, it was harmless error for the court to admit an expert's improper testimony regarding an ultimate legal conclusion in a case, when there was greater admissible testimony and other evidence in the case that strongly supported the conclusion that the defendant in a civil rights action used excessive force. n3

Another source of alternative evidence is from an opposition party itself. Thus, if the admission of evidence by the court is erroneous, that error is harmless and must be disregarded if the party that is asserting error was the party that initially introduced the subject matter of the improper evidence. For example, it was harmless error for the court to admit testimony from plaintiff's design expert regarding faulty design in a products liability case, when this testimony was first elicited by the party who later objected. n4

[5] Errors in Trial to Court

When a case is tried to the court, rather than to a jury, error in the admission or exclusion of evidence is usually held harmless error because a trial judge sitting without a jury is entitled to greater latitude in the admission or exclusion of evidence. n1 Reversal is required only if all of the competent evidence is insufficient to support the judgment, if it appears that the trial court used the improperly admitted evidence to make an essential finding that it otherwise would not have made, n2 or if the trial court excluded and simply chose to ignore highly relevant evidence. n3 Thus, in the following circumstances, appellate courts ruled that the improper admission of evidence was harmless error during the course of nonjury trials:

1. Where the district court did not rely on the improper testimony and specifically stated that, based on other properly admitted testimony, it would have reached the same conclusion. n4

2. Where the district court did not place any substantial reliance on the improperly admitted testimony. n5

3. Where there was other admissible evidence to support the district court's findings. n6

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewHarmless & Invited ErrorsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewHarmless & Invited ErrorsHarmless Error RuleEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsRulings on Evidence

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 61.06 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 61; see Brumley v. Wingard, 269 F.3d 629, 645-646 (6th Cir. 2001) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Tipton v. Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, 872 F.2d 1491, 1498 (11th Cir. 1989) (admission into evidence of personal reference from a non-appearing witness in bank employee's action for wrongful discharge was harmless error); Bankcard America, Inc. v. Universal Bancard Sys., Inc., 203 F.3d 477, 482 (7th Cir. 2000) (not plain error to admit cumulative evidence because it would not affect outcome).

(n4)Footnote 1. Grizzle v. Travelers Health Network, Inc., 14 F.3d 261, 271 (5th Cir. 1994) (erroneous exclusion of evidence does not require reversal unless a substantial right of party is affected, and district court is accorded considerable deference in evidentiary rulings).

(n5)Footnote 2. Heyne v. Caruso, 69 F.3d 1475, 1481 (9th Cir. 1995) (in sexual harassment case, exclusion of evidence of other female employees who claimed to have been sexually harassed was reversable and not harmless error); Allstate Ins. Co. v. Swann, 27 F.3d 1539, 1544 (11th Cir. 1994) (exclusion of only evidence offered by insurance company to support its position that company would not have given policy to insured but for misrepresentation by insured would effect outcome of case and therefore was not harmless error).

(n6)Footnote 3. Mason v. Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, 233 F.3d 1036, 1047 (7th Cir. 2000) (when it was unlikely that excluding cumulative evidence would have caused jury to find differently, erroneous exclusion of cumulative evidence was harmless error).

(n7)Footnote 4. Peters v. Five Star Marine Service, 898 F.2d 448, 450 (5th Cir. 1990) (any error in excluding accident reports was harmless because all information contained in reports was given to jury through testimony of people who provided information for reports and people who prepared reports).

(n8)Footnote 5. Mason v. Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, 233 F.3d 1036, 1047 (7th Cir. 2000) (exclusion of witness testimony harmless error, when witness's credibility with jury would have been low once opposition party cross-examined her with her unequivocally contradictory affidavit.).

(n9)Footnote 1. Doe, By & Through G.S. v. Johnson, 52 F.3d 1448, 1458 (7th Cir. 1995) (judge gave limiting instruction after admission of improper evidence).

(n10)Footnote 2. Okraynets v. Metro. Transp. Auth., 555 F. Supp. 2d 420, 427 (S.D.N.Y. 2008) .

(n11)Footnote 3. Qualley v. Clo Tex Int'l, Inc., 212 F.3d 1123, 1130 n. 13 (8th Cir. 2000) .

(n12)Footnote 1. Mason v. Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, 233 F.3d 1036, 1047 (7th Cir. 2000) (exclusion of one witness' testimony harmless error when fact was proved by testimony from several other witnesses).

(n13)Footnote 2. Frank v. Barnhart, 326 F.3d 618, 622 (5th Cir. 2003) ; Nelson v. Apfel, 131 F.3d 1228, 1237 (7th Cir. 1997) .

(n14)Footnote 3. Hygh v. Jacobs, 961 F.2d 359, 365 (2d Cir. 1992) .

(n15)Footnote 4. McDonald v. Federal Laboratories, Inc., 724 F.2d 243, 245 (1st Cir. 1984) .

(n16)Footnote 1. Southern Pacific Transp. Co. v. Chabert, 973 F.2d 441, 448 (5th Cir. 1992) .

(n17)Footnote 2. Southern Pacific Transp. Co. v. Chabert, 973 F.2d 441, 448 (5th Cir. 1992) (any error by district court in admission of certain evidence was harmless because of other competent evidence sufficient to uphold court's findings of fact and conclusions of law).

(n18)Footnote 3. See Belk v. Charlotte-Mecklenburg Board of Education, 233 F.3d 232 (4th Cir. 2000) .

(n19)Footnote 4. E.E.O.C. v. Farmer Bros. Co., 31 F.3d 891, 898 (9th Cir. 1994) (admission of testimony regarding sexual harassment and limitation of rebuttal evidence on that issue was harmless error because disputed testimony did not in any way influence result of trial).

(n20)Footnote 5. Jones v. Western Geophysical Co., 761 F.2d 1158, 1161 (5th Cir. 1985) (in employment discrimination claim, any error in allowing testimony of witness previously not produced for deposition was harmless because no substantial reliance was placed on testimony).

(n21)Footnote 6. Figgs v. Quick Fill Corp., 766 F.2d 901, 903 (5th Cir. 1985) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART III. HARMLESS ERROR
B. APPLICATION OF HARMLESS ERROR RULE TO PARTICULAR DETERMINATIONS

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.121

§ 24.121 Errors Regarding Juryn*

[1] Denial of Jury Trial

If the court has made an erroneous order that a party is not entitled to a jury trial, that error is harmless provided that the evidence meets the standard for a judgment as a matter of law. n1 Thus, the error is harmless if a reasonable jury could not have a legally sufficient evidentiary basis to find for the party. n2 On the other hand, if a reasonable jury could have decided in favor of the party which made the jury demand, the error was not harmless. n3 In other words, if there were only questions of law to be resolved or, if it turned out that a jury verdict would have to have been set aside in any event because of lack of substantial evidence, it was harmless error to deny a jury trial. n4

[2] Jury Selection

When a potential juror does not honestly answer a question on voir dire, and then becomes a juror, the error is harmless unless the party seeking a new trial can demonstrate that the juror's failure to answer honestly precluded recognition of a valid basis for a challenge for cause. A party is entitled to a fair, but not necessarily perfect, trial. Therefore, the harmless error principles of Rule 61 are applied to errors in jury selection, so that errors that do not effect the essential fairness of the trial are ignored. n1 This harmless error analysis applies to several aspects of jury selection and deliberation, including voir dire, use of alternate jurors, the method of seating jurors, and the determination of the number of jurors deliberating a case. n2

Any error regarding jury selection is harmless unless the substantial rights of the parties are affected by the error. n3 Selecting an alternate juror by lottery in violation of Rule 47(b) n4 has been held to be harmless error when the substantial rights of the parties were not affected by the error. n5 On the other hand, denying counsel's peremptory challenge regarding an alternate juror who ultimately replaced another juror and rendered a verdict is considered reversible error because it could have changed the outcome. n6

[3] Jury Instructions

If the court makes any errors in its instructions to the jury, such as a misstatement of the law, the errors are subject to harmless error analysis. n1 If the instruction is erroneous, the court must order a new trial only if the error was prejudicial based on the entire record. n2 After the court has examined the entirety of the proceedings, including the jury instructions as a whole, the court must determine the error was harmless, and deny a new trial, unless the errors in the instructions clearly misled the jury. n3

Failure to give an instruction is subject to the same harmless error analysis. Thus, if the court fails to give a particular instruction requested by a party that is correct, the error is harmless unless the instructions that were actually given mislead the jury or give the jury an inadequate representation of the law. n4 Erroneous instructions will also be harmless error if, in light of the jury's verdict they were irrelevant. n5 For example, an error in the definition of damages is harmless if the jury finds no liability. n6

An appellate court reviewing a trial court's instructions to the jury should consider them as a whole, in the context not only of the court's entire charge to the jury, but also in light of the allegations in the complaint, the opening statement, the closing argument and the evidence contained in the record. n7

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJurorsSelectionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury TrialCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewHarmless & Invited ErrorsHarmless Error Rule

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 61.04, 61.07 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Burns v. Lawther, 53 F.3d 1237, 1241 (11th Cir. 1995) .

(n3)Footnote 2. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(a)(1); see § 22.71 (standard for judgment as matter of law).

(n4)Footnote 3. Solis v. Los Angeles, 514 F.3d 946, 958 (9th Cir. 2008) .

(n5)Footnote 4. King v. United Ben. Fire Ins. Co., 377 F.2d 728, 731 (10th Cir. 1967) , cert. denied, 389 U.S. 857 (1967) (harmless error to deny jury trial in contracts case where issues related to execution of contract and whether any indemnity was owed).

(n6)Footnote 1. McDonough Power Equip. v. Greenwood, 464 U.S. 548, 556, 104 S. Ct. 845, 78 L. Ed. 2d 663 (1984) (juror's mistaken answer to question during voir dire did not amount to reversible error); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 61.

(n7)Footnote 2. See Hanson v. Parkside Surgery Center, 872 F.2d 745, 749 (6th Cir. 1989) (number of jurors); Heath v. Cast, 813 F.2d 254, 257 (9th Cir. 1987) (alternate jurors); Rodriguez v. Quarterman, 535 F. Supp. 2d 820, 833 (S.D. Tex. 2007) (voir dire).

(n8)Footnote 3. See 28 U.S.C. § 2111; Fed. R. Civ. P. 61.

(n9)Footnote 4. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 47(b).

(n10)Footnote 5. Heath v. Cast, 813 F.2d 254, 257 (9th Cir. 1987) .

(n11)Footnote 6. Medrano v. City of Los Angeles, 973 F.2d 1499, 1503 (9th Cir. 1992) .

(n12)Footnote 1. Pivnick v. White, 552 F.3d 479, 488 (6th Cir. 2009) .

(n13)Footnote 2. Clem v. Lomeli, 566 F.3d 1177 (9th Cir. 2009) (error in instruction is harmless if party supporting judgement demonstrates that it is more probable than not that jury would have reached same verdict had it been properly instructed); Malone v. ReliaStar Life Ins. Co., 558 F.3d 683, 694 (7th Cir. 2009) (prejudicial effect of combined errors).

(n14)Footnote 3. Environ Products, Inc. v. Furon Co., 215 F.3d 1261, 1266-1267 (Fed. Cir. 2000) .

(n15)Footnote 4. Davignon v. Hodgson, 524 F.3d 91, 109 (1st Cir. 2008) .

(n16)Footnote 5. Bogle v. McClure, 332 F.3d 1347, 1357 (11th Cir. 2003) .

(n17)Footnote 6. Patel v. Gayes, 984 F.2d 214, 220 (7th Cir. 1993) .

(n18)Footnote 7. FDIC v. Mijalis, 15 F.3d 1314, 1318 (5th Cir. 1994) ; General Leaseways v. National Truck Leasing Ass'n, 830 F.2d 716, 725 (7th Cir. 1987) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART III. HARMLESS ERROR
B. APPLICATION OF HARMLESS ERROR RULE TO PARTICULAR DETERMINATIONS

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.122

§ 24.122 Errors in Procedural Rulingsn*

The parties and the court have considerable discretion in forming the pleadings. Thus, trial court rulings pertaining to amendments to pleadings and adding parties, premature dismissals of the complaint, or failures to dismiss a complaint or counterclaim are subject to the harmless error rule. n1 Thus, procedural errors are rarely held to be prejudicial to the extent that they affect substantial rights. n2 Furthermore, a trial court's failure to strictly adhere to all procedural formalities is harmless error unless prejudicial. For example, it was harmless error when the trial court converted a motion to dismiss pursuant to Rule 12(b) to a motion for summary judgment without the required 10-day notice. n3 An error in the court's denial of a continuance is also harmless unless the party moving for the continuance establishes how their substantial rights were prejudiced by the denial. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewHarmless & Invited ErrorsHarmless Error Rule

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 61.03 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Hunt v. Department of Air Force, Div. of USA, 29 F.3d 583, 588 (11th Cir. 1994) (error in denying motion to amend harmless because even allowing amendment would not have cured defective service); *Uni*Quality, Inc. v. Infotronx, Inc., 974 F.2d 918, 924 (7th Cir. 1992)* (plaintiff's complaint alleging RICO claim failed to meet particularity requirement of Rule 9(b)).

(n3)Footnote 2. Bulgo v. Munoz, 853 F.2d 710, 714 (9th Cir. 1988) (any error in failing to dismiss counterclaim was harmless in light of jury verdict for defendant).

(n4)Footnote 3. Denis v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 791 F.2d 846, 850 (11th Cir. 1986) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b).

(n5)Footnote 4. Fontenot v. Upjohn, Co., 780 F.2d 1190, 1194 (5th Cir. 1986) (appellate court refused to substitute its judgment concerning necessity of continuance for that of district court, because determination was for trial judge and because no resultant prejudice was shown); Northern Indiana Pub. Serv. v. Carbon County Coal, 799 F.2d 265, 279 (7th Cir. 1986) (unless there was reasonable probability that it caused plaintiff to lose case, it was not reversible error to deny request for continuance to allow more time for parties to conduct discovery).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART III. HARMLESS ERROR
B. APPLICATION OF HARMLESS ERROR RULE TO PARTICULAR DETERMINATIONS

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.123

§ 24.123 Court's Conduct of Trialn*

If a trial judge erroneously makes a judicial comment during the trial, the error is harmless unless the complaining party makes a clear and precise showing of the prejudice that resulted from the judge's comments. n1 Similarly, a trial judge's improper conduct will be held harmless error unless the appellant demonstrates substantial prejudice caused by the conduct. n2

A judge's failure to recuse himself or herself from a particular case is also subject to the harmless error rule. Three factors are to be considered when determining whether a judge's erroneous failure to recuse is harmless error: n3 (1) the risk of injustice to the parties in the particular case; (2) the risk that the denial of relief will produce injustice in other cases; and (3) the risk of undermining the public's confidence in the judicial process. For example, after consideration of the three factors, it was held that the failure of a judge to recuse himself was harmless error even though the judge's law clerk was the son of a partner in the law firm which tried the case. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewHarmless & Invited ErrorsHarmless Error Rule

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 61.10 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Vaughn v. Willis, 853 F.2d 1372, 1376 (7th Cir. 1988) (because there was sufficient evidence of liability, any error in improper comments of judge during jury instructions was harmless).

(n3)Footnote 2. Hansen v. C.I.R., 820 F.2d 1464, 1467 (9th Cir. 1987) (trial judge's erroneous comments, when calculated toward facilitating an orderly trial, are not necessarily prejudicial).

(n4)Footnote 3. Liljeberg v. Health Services Acquisition Corp., 486 U.S. 847, 873, 108 S. Ct. 2194, 100 L. Ed. 2d

855 (1988) (judge should have known disqualifying facts and recused himself from case because judge's impartiality might reasonably have been questioned).

(n5)Footnote 4. Parker v. Connors Steel Co., 855 F.2d 1510, 1526 (11th Cir. 1988) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 24 NEW TRIALS AND HARMLESS ERROR
PART III. HARMLESS ERROR
B. APPLICATION OF HARMLESS ERROR RULE TO PARTICULAR DETERMINATIONS

3-24 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 24.124

§ 24.124 Misconduct by Attorneyn*

Misconduct by opposition attorneys is evaluated under the harmless error rule. n1 Thus, if opposition counsel makes improper comments, the error requires reversal of a judgment only if the comments are so prejudicial that they cast doubt on the justice of the verdict. The court must use a harmless error analysis whether the impropriety occurs during the opening argument, the presentation of evidence at trial, or the closing argument. n2

Even if an attorney's conduct is prejudicial because that conduct could improperly influence the outcome of the jury's verdict, that error is harmless if the court provides a sufficient curative instruction. n3 Additionally, if an attorney for a party has caused the court to commit an error, the party may not object to that error, and even if harmful, the error will not subject the verdict or judgment to reversal on appeal. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsClosing ArgumentsImproper RemarksCivil ProcedureTrialsOpening StatementsImproper RemarksCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewHarmless & Invited ErrorsHarmless Error Rule

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 61.11 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Abromson v. American Pac. Corp., 114 F.3d 898, 903 (9th Cir. 1997) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Gruca v. Alpha Therapeutic Corp., 51 F.3d 638, 644 (7th Cir. 1993) ; cf. Gilaj v. Gonzales, 408 F.3d 275, 290 (6th Cir. 2005) (impropriety during opening or closing controlled by harmless error rule).

(n4)Footnote 3. Trademark Research Corp. v. Maxwell Online, Inc., 995 F.2d 326, 340 (2d Cir. 1993) (court gave curative instruction to nullify improper remarks made during closing argument).

(n5)Footnote 4. McDonald v. Federal Laboratories, Inc., 724 F.2d 243, 245 (1st Cir. 1984) (testimony from plaintiff's design expert regarding faulty design in products liability case was first elicited by party who later objected to testimony).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure 25.syn

§ 25.syn Synopsis to Chapter 25: JUDGMENT

§ 25.01 Definition of Judgment

[1] Judgment is Appealable Order

[2] Judgment May be Legal or Equitable Order

[3] Related Terms

§ 25.02 Form of Judgment

[1] Separate Written Document

[a] Statement of Requirement

[b] Purpose of Requirement

[c] Label On Document Does Not Control Effect

[2] Contents of Judgment

[3] Prohibition Against Extraneous Information

§§ 25.03through 25.09 [Reserved]

§ 25.10 District Court May Adjudicate Fewer Than All Claims

§ 25.11 Purpose of Rule Allowing Partial Judgments

§ 25.12 Prerequisites to Partial Judgment

[1] Requirement of Multiple Claims or Multiple Parties

[a] Rule Inapplicable to Single Claim Between Two Parties

[b] Practical Test for Multiple Claims

[c] Disposition of Claims Involving Multiple Parties

[2] Requirement of Complete Adjudication of At Least One Claim

§ 25.13 Discretion of District Court to Enter Partial Judgment

[1] Discretionary Nature of District Court's Authority

[2] Factors Considered by Court in Exercise of Discretion

[a] Summary of Factors

[b] Determination of Relation Among Claims

§ 25.14 Procedures for District Court's Decision to Enter Partial Judgment

[1] Initiation of Partial Judgment

[2] Court's Statement of Reasons for Partial Judgment

[3] Retroactive Certification

§ 25.15 Effect of Lack of Certification of Partial Judgment

[1] Order Is Not Appealable

[2] Order Is Appealable if Remaining Claims Dismissed

[3] Order May Be Reconsidered

[4] Order May Be Appealed at Time All Claims Are Finally Adjudicated

§ 25.16 Effect of Proper Certification of Partial Judgment

[1] Partial Judgment Certified Under Rule is Judgment for All Purposes

[2] Certified Partial Judgment Starts Time Limits for Appeal

[3] Res Judicata Applies to Certified Partial Judgment

[4] Interest Accrues From Entry of Certified Partial Judgment

[5] Enforcement of Certified Partial Judgment

[6] Appealability of Order

[a] Appellate Jurisdiction Not Controlled by Partial Judgment Rule

[b] Appeal of Interlocutory Orders

[c] Certification Not Necessary If Order Is Appealable Under Collateral Order Doctrine

[d] Certification Not Necessary If Order Is Reviewable by Extraordinary Writ

§ 25.17 Appeal of District Court's Entry of Partial Judgment

[1] Scope of Appeal

[2] Dismissal of Appeal When District Court Lacks Authority to Enter Partial Judgment

[3] Dismissal of Appeal When District Court Abuses Discretion

§§ 25.18through 25.29 [Reserved]

§ 25.30 Requirement of Demand for Judgment

§ 25.31 Demand for Judgment in Contested Cases

[1] Proof Rather Than Pleading Generally Controls

[2] Judgment May Award Different Amount of Relief Than That Demanded

[3] Judgment May Award Different Type of Relief Than That Demanded

[4] Judgment May Award Undemanded Attorney's Fees or Interest on Claim

[5] Federal Rule Prevails in Diversity Action Over Contrary State Procedure

§ 25.32 Demand for Judgment in Cases of Default Judgment

§§ 25.33through 25.39 [Reserved]

§ 25.40 Status of Order as Judgment

§ 25.41 Entry of Judgment in Separate Document

[1] Court Must Generally Set Forth Judgment on Separate Document

[2] Purpose of Separate Document Requirement

[3] Satisfaction of Separate Document Requirement

[4] Party's Request for Judgment in Separate Document

[5] Waiver of Separate Document Requirement

§ 25.42 Procedural Requirements for Entry of Judgment

[1] Clerk's Responsibility to Enter Judgment on Civil Docket

[a] Clerk's Duty of Entry

[b] Clerk's Entry Must Be Prompt

[2] Entry of Judgment Without Court Approval

[3] Entry of Judgment With Court Approval Required

[4] Entry of Partial Judgment In Cases With Multiple Claims and Parties

[5] Time of Entry of Judgment

[6] Entry of Judgment Nunc Pro Tunc

[7] Delay of Entry Not Allowed to Tax Costs or Award Fees

§ 25.43 Effect of Proper Entry of Judgment

§ 25.44 Effect of Failure to Enter Judgment

§§ 25.45through 25.59 [Reserved]

§ 25.60 Nature and Scope of Recoverable Costs

[1] Provision for Costs

[2] Nature of Recoverable Costs

§ 25.61 Costs Generally Recoverable by Prevailing Party

[1] Court's Discretion to Award Costs to Prevailing Party

[2] Prevailing Party for Purposes of Costs

[3] Particular Types of Costs Recoverable as Matter of Course to Prevailing Party

§ 25.62 Special Federal Statutes and Rules Providing for Award of Costs

[1] Statutes Authorizing Award of Costs to Person Other Than Prevailing Party

[2] Federal Rules Authorizing Award of Costs to Person Other Than Prevailing Party

[a] Costs Caused by Failure to Comply With Request for Waiver of Service of Process

[b] Costs Under Disclosure and Discovery Rules

[c] Costs of Previously Dismissed Action

[d] Costs of Appointed Master or Interpreter

[e] Costs When Judgment for Plaintiff Is Not More Favorable Than Offer by Defendant

[f] Costs in Condemnation Actions

[g] Costs of Court Appointed Guardian Ad Litem

[h] Costs Related to Sanctions Motions

§ 25.63 Award of Costs Involving Government as Party

[1] Award of Costs to Federal or State Government

[2] Award of Costs Against Federal Government

[3] Award of Costs Against State Government

§ 25.64 Procedures for Award of Costs

[1] Motion for Costs

[a] Requirements of Motion

[b] Security for Costs Generally Not Required

[2] Bill of Costs

[3] Notice of Taxation of Costs

[4] Review by District Court

[5] Appeal of Taxation of Costs

[a] Appeal Procedure

[b] Standard of Review

[6] Costs and Indigency

§§ 25.65through 25.79 [Reserved]

§ 25.80 American Rule Prohibits Recovery of Attorney's Fees as Matter of Course

§ 25.81 Attorney's Fees Recoverable by Federal Statute and Procedural Rule

[1] Fee-Shifting Statutes That Further Congressional Policy

[a] Nature and Purpose of Fee-Shifting Statutes

[b] Requirement of Prevailing Party

[i] All Prevailing Party Statutes Construed Consistently

[ii] When Plaintiff Qualifies as Prevailing Party

[iii] When Defendant Qualifies as Prevailing Party

[c] Examples of Policy Fee-Shifting Statutes Requirement of Prevailing Party

[2] Fee-Shifting Federal Statutes That Deter Abuse of Litigation

[a] Vexatious Multiplication of Proceedings

[b] Attorney's Fees Caused by Removal

[c] Internal Revenue Code Case Appeals

[3] Fee-Shifting Federal Rules That Deter Abuse of Litigation

[a] Purpose of Fee-Shifting Rules

[b] Attorney's Fees Expended in Motions for Sanctions Regarding Pleadings and Representations to Court

[c] Attorney's Fees Expended in Rectification of Disclosure and Discovery Violations

[d] Attorney's Fees Recoverable From Defendant Who Wrongfully Fails to Waive Service

[e] Attorney's Fees Recoverable for Opposition's Failure to Attend or Participate in Pretrial Conference

[f] Attorney's Fees Recoverable for Opposition's Subpoena That Imposes Undue Burden or Expense

[g] Award of Fees for Filing of Summary Judgment Affidavits in Bad Faith

§ 25.82 Attorney's Fees Recoverable Under State Law

§ 25.83 Express Contractual Provision For Award of Attorney's Fees

[1] Pre Litigation Contractual Provision

[2] Attorney's Fees Agreement as Part of Settlement

§ 25.84 Award of Attorney's Fees Under Equitable Exceptions to American Rule

[1] Common Fund Exception

[a] Existence of Common Fund

[b] Spread Cost of Litigation Among Fund Beneficiaries

[2] Substantial Benefit Exception

[a] Purpose of Exception

[b] Action Must Confer Substantial Benefit on Class of Beneficiaries

[c] Spread of Cost of Litigation Proportionately Among Class of Beneficiaries

[3] Bad Faith Exception

[a] Purpose of Exception

[b] Existence of Bad Faith

[c] Bad Faith Must Be Related to Litigation Process Itself

[4] Willful Contempt Exception

§ 25.85 Award of Attorney's Fees Against Federal Government Entities

[1] Sovereign Immunity Generally Precludes Fee Award

[2] Limited Statutory Waiver of Immunity by Federal Government Regarding Attorney's Fees

[a] Waiver Applies in Non-Tort Cases That Involve Federal Entity

[b] Award of Attorney's Fees to Prevailing Party is Mandatory if Position of Federal Entity Was Not Substantially Justified

[c] Procedural Considerations Regarding Award of Attorney's Fees Against Federal Entity

[3] Other Federal Statutes Providing Fee Award Against Federal Government

§ 25.86 Amount of Award of Attorney's Fees

[1] Lodestar Method of Calculation Required Under All Federal Fee-Shifting Statutes

[2] Hours Reasonably Expended

[a] Determination of Reasonableness

[b] Hours Must Be Related to Successful Claims

[c] Types of Hours Compensable

[3] Reasonable Hourly Rate

[a] Compensable Amount Is Determined by Prevailing Market Rate in Community

[b] Rate Cap

[4] Deviations From Lodestar Amount

[5] Percentage of Recovery Method of Fee

[a] Applicability of Formula

[b] Calculation of Fee

§ 25.87 Procedure for Award of Attorney's Fees

[1] Procedure Controlled by Federal Rules or Statutes

[2] Party Requesting Fees Must File Motion

[3] Time Deadlines for Motion

[a] Time Period for Filing and Serving Motion

[b] Exceptions to Time Period

[4] Notice of Motion

[5] Support and Opposition to Motion

[a] Moving Party Has Burden

[b] Opposition Party May Request to Submit Proof

[6] Court's Determination of Motion

[a] Matters Determined

[b] Hearing Not Required

[7] Appeal of Award or Denial of Attorney's Fees

[8] Execution on Award of Attorney's Fees

§§ 25.88through 25.99 [Reserved]

§ 25.100 Nature of Default Judgment

[1] Two-Step Process

[2] When Default Judgment is Available; Defenses

[a] Default for Failure to Plead of Plead or Otherwise Defend

[b] Default as Sanction for Wrongful Conduct

[3] Applicability of Default Process

§ 25.101 Entry of Default

[1] Initiation of Default

[2] Default May be Entered by Either Court Clerk or by Court

[3] Notice Requirements

[4] Effect of Entry of Default

[a] Effects of Entry of Default on Rights of Defaulting Party

[b] Effects on Issues

[c] Procedural Effects

§ 25.102 Default Judgment

[1] Determination of Entry of Default Judgment by Clerk or Court

[2] Entry of Default Judgment by Clerk

[a] Three-Part Test

[b] Claim Must Be for Sum Certain

[c] Default Must Have Been Due to Failure to Appear

[d] Defaulting Party May Be Neither Infant Nor Incompetent Person

[3] Entry of Default Judgment by Court

[a] Court's Discretion to Enter Default Judgment

[b] Only Court May Enter Default Judgment in Certain Types of Cases

[c] Restrictions on Entry of Default Judgment By court

[4] Notice Requirements

[a] Notice Requirements Based On Whether Party Has Appeared

[b] Nature of Appearance by Party That Triggers Notice Requirement

[c] Notice Requirements When Party Has Appeared in the Action

§ 25.103 Award of Damages in Default Judgment

[1] Damage Award Limited to Amount and Kind Demanded

[2] Determination of Damages

[a] No General Requirement of Hearing

[b] Requirement of Jury When Required by Statute

[c] Presentation of Evidence

§ 25.104 Setting Aside Default and Default Judgment

[1] Setting Aside Entry of Default

[a] Standard to Set Aside Entry of Default

[b] Motion to Set Aside Entry of Default

[c] Requirement of Security

[d] Appellate Review of Denial of Motion to Set Aside Entry of Default

[2] Setting Aside Entry of Default Judgment

[a] Standard to Set Aside Default Judgment

[b] Setting Aside Default Judgment Based on Jurisdictional Defect

[c] Other Grounds for Setting Aside Default Judgment

[d] Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment

[e] Requirement of Security

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
A. FUNCTION AND FORM OF JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.01

§ 25.01 Definition of Judgmentn*

[1] Judgment is Appealable Order

Under the federal rules, the term "judgment" includes any order from which an appeal lies. n1 Thus, the term judgment includes any appealable orders n2 that are of the following three primary types:

1. An order that constitutes a final judgment, which is an order that conclusively determines particular rights of the parties to the litigation and leaves nothing for the court to do but execute the order or resolve collateral issues. However, certain postjudgment motions automatically operate to postpone the finality of a court's judgment, pending the court's further determination whether the judgment should be modified to alter its adjudication of the rights of the parties. n3 These include motions for judgment as a matter of law under Rule 50(b), motions for amended or additional findings under Rule 52(b), or motions for alteration or amendment of a judgment under Rule 59(e). n4

2. An order that is otherwise made appealable by statute on an interlocutory basis, such as an order relating to an injunction, a receivership, or admiralty cases. n5

3. An order that, even though interlocutory, is the subject of a permissive appeal by the circuit court of appeals. n6

When an order is appealable, the order is a "judgment" under Rule 54(a), and all of the provisions of the federal rules relating to judgments are applicable to it. n7 Accordingly, Rule 54(a)'s definition of "judgment" affects the interpretation of several other rules, most notably Rule 50, Rule 52, and Rule 59. For example, when one of these rules specifies a deadline in terms of "after the entry of the judgment," the time for filing a Rule 59 motion does not begin to run until an appealable judgment is entered. n8

[2] Judgment May be Legal or Equitable Order

The term "judgment," as used in the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, includes a "decree," n1 which was the traditional common-law term used to describe the final decision of a federal court sitting in equity and which is still used typically by many to describe a final court order that grants injunctive relief. n2 Consequently, the requirements applicable to judgments under the federal rules apply to final, appealable orders in all actions, whether formerly at law or in equity. n3

[3] Related Terms

There are several terms which courts commonly use that are related to, but not necessarily synonymous with, the term "judgment." To avoid confusion, courts and attorneys must clearly define each term in the context it is used. "Rendition of judgment," for example, is defined as the pronouncement or annunciation of the adjudication or judgment of the court, including an appellate court. n1 Rendition does not mean the filing, entry, or recordation of the judgment, which are ministerial acts. n2 Similarly, an "opinion" does not itself constitute a judgment, n3 even if it contains conclusions of fact or law and states how the court intends to dispose of the case. Thus, an "opinion" is the written expression of the court's reasoning for a judgment, and an opinion normally is issued following entry of judgment. n4

"Entry of judgment" occurs when the clerk makes the notation of the judgment on the civil docket or the official public record; n5 entry is thus the notation of the submission of the particular judgment as provided by Rule 79(a). n6 The entry of judgment must be brief and must show the substance of each judgment of the court. n7"Recordation of judgment" is performed by the clerk under Rule 79(b), which provides that the clerk is to keep a correct copy of every final judgment or appealable order. n8"Filing of judgment" means delivery of the instrument into the actual custody of the proper officer, the clerk and implies deposit for permanent preservation. n9

The finality of judgment statute indicates that the term "decision" may actually be used as the equivalent of a "judgment" as defined in Rule 54(a). Thus, the finality statute refers to appeals from final "decisions," n10 which under the collateral-order doctrine include interlocutory decrees that are appealable and actually occur in advance of final "judgments." n11 On the other hand, the term "decision" is also often used to describe the findings of fact and conclusions of law made by the court in a case tried without a jury. When used in this sense, "decision" must be distinguished from "judgment," which must follow and be entered on the decision. n12

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 10 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.02 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(a).

(n3)Footnote 2. Outlaw v. Airtech Air Conditioning & Heating, Inc., 412 F.3d 156, 161 (D.C. Cir. 2005) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Miltimore Sales, Inc. v. Int'l Rectifier, Inc., 412 F.3d 685, 688 (6th Cir. 2005) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n5)Footnote 4. See Weyant v. Okst, 198 F.3d 311, 315 (2d Cir. 1999) .

(n6)Footnote 5. See 28 U.S.C. § 1292(a).

(n7)Footnote 6. See 28 U.S.C. § 1292(b).

(n8)Footnote 7. TMF Tool Co. v. Muller, 913 F.2d 1185, 1188 (7th Cir. 1990) (when order granting or denying Rule 11 sanctions is appealable, order is "judgment" under Rule 54(a)).

(n9)Footnote 8. Balla v. Idaho State Bd. of Corrections, 869 F.2d 461, 466-467 (9th Cir. 1989) .

(n10)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(a).

(n11)Footnote 2. See, e.g., Franklin v. District of Columbia, 163 F.3d 625, 628 (D.C. Cir. 1998) (in class action by Spanish-speaking prisoners incarcerated in District of Columbia correctional institutions, court issued injunction in broad "decree" that ordered District to provide interpreters at all stages of disciplinary, classification, housing, adjustment, and parole hearing process).

(n12)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b), Committee Note to 1946 Amendments.

(n13)Footnote 1. Dudley v. Penn-America Ins. Co., 313 F.3d 662, 669 (2d Cir. 2004) .

(n14)Footnote 2. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 79(a)(2)(C).

(n15)Footnote 3. Hughes v. Halifax County Sch. Bd., 823 F.2d 832, 834-836 (4th Cir. 1987) , cert. denied, 488 U.S. 1042 (1989) (although it frequently used word "judgment," document which combined dispository language with explanation of court's reasoning was not judgment).

(n16)Footnote 4. Chambers v. American Trans Air, Inc., 990 F.2d 317, 319 (7th Cir. 1993) .

(n17)Footnote 5. National Sav. Bank v. Jefferson Bank, 127 F.R.D. 218, 223 (S.D. Fla. 1989) (entry occurs when judgment placed on docket sheet, not when signed by court or date stamped by clerk).

(n18)Footnote 6. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 79(a)(2)(C), (a)(3).

(n19)Footnote 7. United States v. Henry Brothers Partnership, 214 B.R. 192, 195 (8th Cir. 1997) (entry of judgment is sometimes referred to as "docketing" because official notation is made on docket kept by clerk and must show date entry is made); see Otis v. City of Chicago, 29 F.3d 1159, 1167-1168 (7th Cir. 1994) ("entry" of judgment means its recording on docket of court; consequently, party entitled to appeal under collateral order doctrine must act within 30 days).

(n20)Footnote 8. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 79(b).

(n21)Footnote 9. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 79(a)(2); see also Diamond Shamrock Oil & Gas Corp. v. Commissioner of Revenues 422 F.2d 532, 534 (8th Cir. 1970) .

(n22)Footnote 10. See 28 U.S.C. § 1291.

(n23)Footnote 11. See Pratt v. Ventas, Inc., 365 F.3d 514, 521 (6th Cir. 2004) .

(n24)Footnote 12. Marsh-McBirney, Inc. v. Montedoro-Whitney Corp., 882 F.2d 498, 502-503 (Fed. Cir. 1989) , vacated on other grounds, 498 U.S. 1061 (1991) (appellate court without jurisdiction because district court's oral findings and minute order not properly entered as judgment).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
A. FUNCTION AND FORM OF JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.02

§ 25.02 Form of Judgmentn*

[1] Separate Written Document

[a] Statement of Requirement

Generally, each judgment and amended judgment must be set out on a separate document. n1 However, the separate document requirement does not apply to orders granting or denying the following motions (even though such orders may otherwise be appealable as a final judgment): n2 a motion for judgment under Rule 50(b); n3 a motion to amend or make additional findings of fact under Rule 52(b); n4 a motion for attorney's fees under Rule 54(d)(2); n5 a motion for new trial or to alter or amend a judgment under Rule 59; n6 and a motion for relief from judgment under Rule 60. n7

The term "separate," as used in the separate document requirement, means that th e contents of the judgment should not be included with another document , such as an opinion, which contains the reasoning of the court. n8 Official forms have been promulgated pursuant to the Federal Rules, n9 to assist courts in the preparation of separate document judgments. However, the separate document does not need to take any particular form, provided that it is a self-contained written order specifying the disposal of all claims and any relief to which any prevailing parties are entitled. n10 A judgment may even be drafted by one or more of the attorneys, provided that the court has directed the attorney to prepare the draft, approved the form and contents of the judgment, and the decision to enter that judgment has actually been made by the court. n11

[b] Purpose of Requirement

The purpose of the separate document requirement is to specify when a judgment has been entered, so that the parties know precisely when they must prepare post-judgment motions or appeals. n12 In light of this purpose, recent amendments to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure make clear that a technical violation of Rule 58's separate document requirement do not invalidate an otherwise proper appeal from that judgment. n13 Furthermore, an appellant may waive the separate document requirement. n14 Any party may request that judgment be set forth on a separate document. n15

[c] Label On Document Does Not Control Effect

The label on a document does not necessarily control its effect as a judgment or other type of order, although the label may be helpful as an indication of its intended purpose. n16 It is the effect of a document, based on its contents, that controls whether it constitutes a final, appealable adjudication between the parties. n17 Thus, even if labeled "judgment" it may not have that effect if it fails to set out the required elements. n18 Conversely, the document need not be labeled judgment to have that effect. n19 For example, even a document labeled as an "order" by the court may constitute a judgment provided that it satisfies the requirements of the federal rules, n20 and thus indicates the court's intention to adjudicate the dispute with finality. n21

[2] Contents of Judgment

At a minimum, a judgment must be a self-contained document stating who has won and whether any relief has been awarded. The judgment must omit the reasons for the disposition, which should appear in the court's opinion. n1 If no relief is awarded, the judgment must state so n2 and must state the disposition of all outstanding claims against all parties. n2.1 The judgment must clearly indicate that the court intends to adjudicate the dispute with finality, n2.2 in that it conclusively determines the rights of the parties to the extent it leaves nothing for the court to do but execute the order or resolve collateral issues. n3 It is advisable for a judgment to state the names of the parties affected by it in a manner that clearly identifies them, particularly when there is a judgment debtor, although it is not absolutely necessary to include names when the parties are otherwise sufficiently identified. n4 Furthermore, the judgment should state the residence or business address of the parties as a means of identification. n5 A proper judgment may also include identification of particular parties as the prevailing parties for purposes of recovery of costs under Rule 54(d), or may provide that there is no prevailing party and that each party is required to bear the party's own fees and costs. n6

[3] Prohibition Against Extraneous Information

A judgment must be set out in a document separate from the analysis and reasoning. n1 Therefore, the court should not include in that judgment extraneous information, such as a recital of the pleadings, the report of a master, or the record of prior proceedings. n1.1 Even though the rule is phrased in mandatory terms, the inclusion of such extraneous information does not necessarily invalidate the judgment, because the requirements of form may be waived by the parties n2 and because, if the judgment contains the necessary specifications of relief and intent to adjudicate, extraneous matter that does not conflict with such a disposition may be ignored. n3 However, a document is not effective as a final judgment if it contains extraneous reasoning or analysis which creates the very ambiguity that Rule 54(a) was enacted to avoid. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 10 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.03 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(a).

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(a)(1)-(5).

(n4)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(b).

(n5)Footnote 4. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(b).

(n6)Footnote 5. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2).

(n7)Footnote 6. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 59.

(n8)Footnote 7. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 60.

(n9)Footnote 8. Chambers v. American Trans Air, Inc., 990 F.2d 317, 319 (7th Cir. 1993) ; see [3], below (effect of inclusion of extraneous matters).

(n10)Footnote 9. See [2], below.

(n11)Footnote 10. Stamatakis Indus. v. J. Walter Thompson, Inc., 944 F.2d 382, 384 (7th Cir. 1991) ; see [2], below (required contents of judgment).

(n12)Footnote 11. In re Colony Square Co., 819 F.2d 272, 276-277 (11th Cir. 1987) , cert. denied, 485 U.S. 977 (1988) ; see § 25.14[4].

(n13)Footnote 12. ABF Capital Corp. v. Osley, 414 F.3d 1061, 1064-1065 (9th Cir. 2004) ; see Bankers Trust Co. v. Mallis, 435 U.S. 381, 384, 98 S. Ct. 1117, 55 L. Ed. 2d 357 (1978) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n14)Footnote 13. See Fed. R. App. p. 4(a)(7)(B).

(n15)Footnote 14. See Yates v. District of Columbia, 324 F.3d 724, 725 (D.C. Cir. 2003) ; see also § 25.41[4].

(n16)Footnote 15. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(d); see also Utah v. Norton, 396 F.3d 1281, 1287 (10th Cir. 2005) ; Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(d), Committee Note to 2002 Amendments.

(n17)Footnote 16. Saturn Distrib. Corp. v. Paramount Saturn, Ltd., 326 F.3d 684, 686-687 (5th Cir. 2003) .

(n18)Footnote 17. See Montano v. City of Chicago, 375 F.3d 593, 598 (7th Cir. 2004) (document labeled "order" appealable as "final" judgment because it effectively ended litigation in particular respect).

(n19)Footnote 18. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b); Dudley v. Penn-America Ins. Co., 313 F.3d 662, 670 (2d Cir. 2002) (even paper labeled "judgment" may not have effect as judgment); see also [2], below (required contents of judgment).

(n20)Footnote 19. Webb v. Ada County, 285 F.3d 829, 836 (9th Cir. 2002) , cert. denied, 154 L. Ed. 2d 292 (2002) .

(n21)Footnote 20. Pozzi v. Smith, 171 F.R.D. 175, 177-178 (E.D. Pa. 1997) (document named by court as "Findings and Order" nevertheless qualified as judgment when it satisfied requirement that court set out particulars of judgment on separate document that contained court's order of relief disposing of all outstanding claims against all parties).

(n22)Footnote 21. Eberhardt v. O'Malley, 17 F.3d 1023, 1026 (7th Cir. 1994) .

(n23)Footnote 1. Dudley v. Penn-America Ins. Co., 313 F.3d 662, 669-670 (2d Cir. 2002) .

(n24)Footnote 2. TDK Elecs. Corp. v. Draiman, 321 F.3d 677, 679 (7th Cir. 2003) .

(n25)Footnote 2.1. Pozzi v. Smith, 171 F.R.D. 175, 177-178 (E.D. Pa.1997) .

(n26)Footnote 2.2. Saturn Distrib. Corp. v. Paramount Saturn, Ltd., 326 F.3d 684, 686-687 (5th Cir. 2003) .

(n27)Footnote 3. See Budinich v. Becton Dickinson & Co., 486 U.S. 196, 201-203 108 S. Ct. 1717, 100 L. Ed. 2d 178 (1988) .

(n28)Footnote 4. Witty v. Dukakis, 3 F.3d 517 (1st Cir. 1993) (although judgment made no particular mention of intervenors, circuit court held that judgment was final and binding on intervenors because intervenors had intervened as parties plaintiff and their substantive claims matched those of original plaintiffs).

(n29)Footnote 5. See 20A Moore's Federal Practice, § 349.05 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.), Form 5, Notice of Appeal to a Court of Appeals From a Judgment or Order of a District Court or a Bankruptcy Appellate Panel.

(n30)Footnote 6. Zenith Insurance Co. v. Breslaw, 108 F.3d 205, 206-207 (9th Cir. 1997) .

(n31)Footnote 1. See Employers' Ins. of Wausau v. Titan Int'l, 400 F.3d 486, 488 (7th Cir. 2005) .

(n32)Footnote 1.1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(a), Committee Note.

(n33)Footnote 2. Scola v. Boat Frances, R., Inc., 618 F.2d 147, 151 (1st Cir. 1980) (if plaintiff appeals from "judgment" notated at end of magistrate's adopted recommended disposition, and defendant does not object, defect in form of judgment is waived).

(n34)Footnote 3. Pemberton v. State Farm Mut. Auto Ins., 996 F.2d 789, 791 (5th Cir. 1993) .

(n35)Footnote 4. Reich v. ABC/York-Estes Corp., 64 F.3d 316, 319 (7th Cir, 1995) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
A. FUNCTION AND FORM OF JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 25.03through 25.09

[Reserved]

§§ 25.03[Reserved]

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
B. PARTIAL JUDGMENT OF MULTIPLE CLAIMS OR MULTIPLE PARTIES

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.10

§ 25.10 District Court May Adjudicate Fewer Than All Claimsn*

The district court has authority to direct the entry of a final judgment as to one or more but fewer than all of the claims or parties in any action when more than one claim for relief is presented in the action, or when multiple parties are involved, provided the court makes an express determination that there is no just reason for delay and an express direction for the entry of the judgment. n1 If the court has not made such an express determination and direction, any order or other form of decision, however designated, which adjudicates fewer than all the claims or the rights and liabilities of fewer than all the parties, does not terminate the action as to any of the claims or parties, and the order or other form of decision is subject to revision at any time before the entry of judgment adjudicating all the claims and the rights and liabilities of all the parties. n2

Rule 54(b) deals with two situations: an action that involves multiple claims or multiple parties. It has no effect on the appealability of a collateral order, n3 even if made in a multiple claims or parties action; nor does it affect interlocutory review. n4 Rule 54(b) may be used in single claim actions if multiple parties are involved. Thus, an appeal lies from an order in a single claim action dismissing one or more but fewer than all of the parties, provided the court makes its required determination and direction. Such determination that there is no reason for delay and direction for entry of judgment is referred to by courts as Rule 54(b) certification. n5

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsMultiple Claims & Parties

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 10 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.02 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b); see O'Bert v. Vargo, 331 F.3d 29, 40-42 (2d Cir. 2003) (discussing policy considerations involved in district court's decision to permit partial judgment); ITOFCA, Inc. v. MegaTrans Logistics, Inc., 235 F.3d 360, 364-365 (7th Cir. 2000) (Rule 54(b) authorizes district court to make immediately appealable judgment that disposes with finality of one or more but less that all claims, even though other claims remain pending in district court, so that suit as whole has not been finally disposed of by that court).

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b).

(n4)Footnote 3. Petties v. District of Columbia, 227 F.3d 469, 472-473 (D.C. Cir. 2000) ; see In re General Motors Corp. Engine Interchange Litig., 594 F.2d 1106, 1117-1118 (7th Cir. 1979) (despite district court's refusal to enter Rule 54(b) judgment, order approving partial settlement of class action appealable as collateral order); see also 28 U.S.C. § 1291.

(n5)Footnote 4. Alamo Rent-A-Car, Inc. v. Sarasota-Manatee Airport Auth., 825 F.2d 367 (11th Cir. 1987) (although the district court had not disposed of all of plaintiff's claims for relief, court of appeals had jurisdiction over defendant's appeal of grant of permanent injunctive relief under 28 U.S.C. § 1292(a)(1)).

(n6)Footnote 5. Good v. Ohio Edison Co., 104 F.3d 93, 95 (6th Cir. 1997) (Rule 54(b) certification is intended to strike balance between undesirability of more than one appeal in single action and need for making review available in multiple-party or multiple-claim situations at time that best serves needs of parties).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
B. PARTIAL JUDGMENT OF MULTIPLE CLAIMS OR MULTIPLE PARTIES

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.11

§ 25.11 Purpose of Rule Allowing Partial Judgmentsn*

Technical pleading rules have been replaced in the federal system n1 by provisions that allow unrestricted joinder of claims n2 and liberalized joinder of parties. n3 Other provisions give a district court increased authority to structure the litigation and conduct separate trials as justice or convenience require. n4 Although the increased opportunity for joinder, combined with these case management techniques, increases efficiency in the district court, they also create a substantial potential for prejudice from the delay in final disposition and appeal of what may constitute entirely distinct claims. Therefore, the purpose of Rule 54(b) is designed to permit just such an immediate appeal of an otherwise final decision in a multi-claim or multi-party action. n5 While the increased opportunity for joinder of claims and parties allowed by the federal rules demonstrated a need for relaxing the restrictions on what should be treated as a judicial unit for purposes of appellate jurisdiction, sound judicial administration did not require relaxation of the standard of finality in the disposition of the individual adjudicated claims for the purpose of their appealability. It did, however, demonstrate that in multiple claim or party actions that some final decisions on less than all of the claims should be appealable without waiting for a final decision on all of the claims. n6

Rule 54(b) certification is intended to strike a balance between the undesirability of more than one appeal in a single action and the need for making review available in multiple-party or multiple-claim situations at a time that best serves the needs of the parties. n7 Although the rule does not refer to certification, many courts often refer to the procedure under Rule 54(b) as "certifying" a judgment for appeal, n8 or issuing a "certificate" making an otherwise unappealable decision appealable. n9 However, even though the rule does not require a formal certification, it must be established that the court has made an express determination that there is no just reason for delay. n10 In this regard, although courts of appeals have not insisted that the determination be made in the words of Rule 54(b), there are cases in which a mere statement by the district court that it is certifying an appeal has been held sufficient for appeal under Rule 54(b). n11

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsMultiple Claims & Parties

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 10 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.21 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See Registration Control Sys. v. Compusystems, Inc., 922 F.2d 805, 807-808 (Fed. Cir. 1990) (rules do not require formalistic, technical, or ritualistic detail).

(n3)Footnote 2. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 18.

(n4)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 20.

(n5)Footnote 4. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 42.

(n6)Footnote 5. *ITOFCA, Inc., Plaintiff-Appellant, v. MegaTrans Logistics, Inc., 2000 U.S. App. LEXIS 33125, 11 (7th Cir. 2000) (Rule 54(b) authorizes district court to make immediately appealable judgment that disposes with finality of one or more but less that all claims).

(n7)Footnote 6. Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Mackey, 351 U.S. 427, 432, 76 S. Ct. 895, 100 L. Ed. 1297 (1956) ; General Acquisition v. GenCorp, Inc., 23 F.3d 1022, 1026 (6th Cir. 1994) (Rule 54(b) is designed to facilitate entry of judgment on final disposition of fewer than all claims or as to fewer than all parties in case).

(n8)Footnote 7. Good v. Ohio Edison Co., 104 F.3d 93, 95 (6th Cir. 1997) .

(n9)Footnote 8. See, e.g., Shintom Am., Inc. v. Car Telephones, Inc., 45 F.3d 1107, 1110-1111 (7th Cir. 1995) (court properly considered issue of plaintiff's potential insolvency in "certifying" judgment under Rule 54(b)).

(n10)Footnote 9. Prudential Securities, Inc. v. Yingling, 226 F.3d 668, 670-671 (6th Cir. 2000) (Rule 54(b) "certificate" had not been issued by district court, and, absent an interlocutory appeal or Rule 54(b) certificate, permanent injunction issued by district court remained part of case pending before district court until it issued its final judgment disposing of all claims).

(n11)Footnote 10. Willhelm v. Eastern Airlines, Inc., 927 F.2d 971, 974 (7th Cir. 1991) .

(n12)Footnote 11. See Fox v. Baltimore City Police Dep't, 201 F.3d 526, 531-532 (4th Cir. 2000) (even though district court did not state reasons for its decision to certify partial judgment under Rule 54(b) for immediate appeal, failure did not invalidate affirmative certification).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
B. PARTIAL JUDGMENT OF MULTIPLE CLAIMS OR MULTIPLE PARTIES

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.12

§ 25.12 Prerequisites to Partial Judgmentn*

[1] Requirement of Multiple Claims or Multiple Parties

[a] Rule Inapplicable to Single Claim Between Two Parties

Under Rule 54(b), the district court may direct the entry of judgment only in those cases in which either more than one claim for relief is presented or multiple parties are involved. Consequently, if an action involves only a single claim for relief asserted by only one plaintiff against one defendant, Rule 54(b) is not applicable. n1 This prerequisite is applied because Rule 54(b) does not relax the requirement of finality of judgment; any order that finally disposes of the single claim in such an action is appealable as a final judgment under 28 U.S.C. § 1291 in any event, and no certification under Rule 54(b) is necessary. n2 For the same reason, any order that adjudicates the entirety of a multi-claim or multi-party action is appealable without the necessity of a certificate under Rule 54(b). n3

[b] Practical Test for Multiple Claims

Unless multiple parties are involved, n4 Rule 54(b) is limited by its terms to those cases in which more than one claim for relief is presented. n5 In this regard, courts have not developed a formal test but apply a practical analysis to determine whether the action presents multiple claims for relief. n6 If the pleadings rely on entirely separate factual allegations, the claims arising from those allegations, constitute multiple claims for the purposes of Rule 54(b). n7 In most cases, however, there is some factual overlap between the adjudicated and unadjudicated claims, and the critical question is what degree of overlapping necessitates a finding that the factual allegations present one claim for relief. Multiple causes of action do not necessarily equate to multiple claims for purposes of Rule 54(b). n8 Furthermore, the mere fact that the plaintiff has requested relief under different sources of law or different legal theories does not necessarily mean that multiple claims are presented. n9

However, if the causes of action depend on proof of different facts or have different burdens of proof, they may be considered separate claims for purposes of Rule 54(b) even if factual overlap is present. n10 Similarly, if the causes of action or factual allegations asserted permit only one recovery, only one claim for relief is presented. n11 If, however, separate recovery is likely, courts have held that separate claims are presented under Rule 54(b). n12

The Supreme Court has clearly stated that if a claimant requests several different types of relief, but asserts only one set of facts and one legal theory, the assertion does not present multiple claims under Rule 54(b). n13 Therefore, if the claimant seeks several kinds of damages arising from the same set of facts, an order disposing of only some of the claims for damages may not be made into a judgment under Rule 54(b). Similarly, if the claimant seeks both declaratory relief and damages, the granting of declaratory relief is not an appealable judgment under Rule 54(b) if the prayer for damages remains unadjudicated. n14

Rule 54(b) provides that if multiple claims are presented, a final judgment may be entered on any of the claims, whether they are presented as a claim, counterclaim, cross-claim or third-party claim. n15 The Supreme Court has concluded that the amendment adopting this language has eliminated the prior test requiring the claims to arise from the same transaction or occurrence and, therefore, that a claim and a compulsory counterclaim may be multiple claims for the purposes of Rule 54(b). A district court has the power to enter judgment on a claim even if a compulsory counterclaim remains for adjudication. n16

[c] Disposition of Claims Involving Multiple Parties

In addition to the context of multiple claims, a court may also order a partial judgment under Rule 54(b) when multiple parties are involved and the court has made a final adjudication as to one or more of those multiple parties. n17 This provision ensures that the disposition of the entire interest of one of those multiple parties is treated in the same fashion under Rule 54(b) regardless of the joint or distinct nature of the liability asserted. n18 Under the rule, a court may direct the entry of a final judgment as to one or more but fewer than all of the parties. This language has been interpreted to require a final adjudication of all of the rights and liabilities of at least one party before judgment may be directed with respect to that party; thus, the complete interest of the party must be finally adjudicated. n19 A common application of the rule to multiple party actions is the dismissal, summary judgment, or other adjudication of all of the claims asserted against one or more of multiple defendants. n20 A Rule 54(b) judgment as to one of multiple parties must dispose of the entire interest of that party. If claims by or against the party remain pending in the district court, the Rule 54(b) judgment is generally improper. If the judgment disposes of one of multiple claims by or against that party, however, the presence of pending claims involving that party does not necessarily make the judgment improper, because the case presents both multiple claims and multiple parties. n21 However, the fact that the parties remain adversaries on pending claims in the district court is a factor that weighs against the exercise of the court's discretion to enter judgment under Rule 54(b). n22

[2] Requirement of Complete Adjudication of At Least One Claim

An order partially adjudicating a multi-party or multi-claim action may be certified for appeal under Rule 54(b) only if the order meets Section 1291's n1 standard of finality as to the matters adjudicated. Stated another way, a district court has the power to enter a Rule 54(b) judgment only if the adjudication is a "final decision" under Section 1291. n2 A district court must first determine that it is dealing with a "final judgment." Therefore, the adjudication must be a "judgment" in the sense that it is a decision on a cognizable claim for relief and must be "final" in the sense that it is an ultimate disposition of an individual claim entered in the course of a multiple claims action. n3 If the district court enters judgment on something less than a final disposition of an entire claim, the Rule 54(b) judgment is improper, and the court of appeals is without jurisdiction to hear the appeal. For example, if an order adjudicates liability without an assessment of damages or other relief, the order is not "final" under Section 1291 and, therefore, may not be made appealable by certification under Rule 54(b). n4 It should be noted that the inapplicability of Rule 54(b) to these orders does not mean that the orders may not be reviewed at all. If truly collateral to the merits, the order may be reviewable under the collateral order doctrine. n5

In addition to being final, an order must be a judgment in the sense that it is a decision on a cognizable claim for relief. n6 Consequently, the order must affirmatively decide the claims certified. An order on a collateral issue such as the manner of the adjudication of the claim may not be a judgment under Rule 54(b), and the court does not have authority to certify it as a judgment under the rule. n7 For example, an order striking a jury demand only decides how a claim will be resolved and does not decide the claim itself and so may not be made a judgment under Rule 54(b). n8

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsMultiple Claims & Parties

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 10 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.22 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. General Acquisition v. GenCorp, Inc., 23 F.3d 1022, 1027-1028 (6th Cir. 1994) (in case with only single plaintiff and single defendant, Rule 54(b) applicable only if multiple claims were presented; request for different types of relief for same injury did not constitute multiple claims); Monument Management Ltd. Partnership I v. City of Pearl, 952 F.2d 883, 885 (5th Cir. 1992) (partial summary judgment not allowed because case presented only single claim).

(n3)Footnote 2. Brown v. United States, 976 F.2d 1104, 1107 (7th Cir. 1992) (even though case was consolidated with others, it retained separate character, so that only order disposing of entire claim was final and appealable absent Rule 54(b) certificate).

(n4)Footnote 3. See Production & Maintenance Employees' Local No. 504 v. Roadmaster Corp., 954 F.2d 1397, 1402 (7th Cir. 1992) .

(n5)Footnote 4. See [c], below.

(n6)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b).

(n7)Footnote 6. Continental Airlines v. Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., 819 F.2d 1519, 1525 (9th Cir. 1987) (citing Moore's Federal Practice for notion that Rule 54(b) requires pragmatic approach focusing on severability and efficient judicial administration).

(n8)Footnote 7. Hudson River Sloop Clearwater, Inc. v. Department of Navy, 891 F.2d 414, 418 (2d Cir. 1989) .

(n9)Footnote 8. NAACP v. American Family Mutual Ins. Co., 978 F.2d 287, 292 (7th Cir. 1992) , cert. denied, 508 U.S. 907 (1993) (one set of facts producing one injury creates one claim for relief, no matter how many laws defendant's deeds allegedly violate).

(n10)Footnote 9. General Acquisition v. GenCorp, Inc., 23 F.3d 1022, 1029 (6th Cir. 1994) (three different liability theories asserted by securities plaintiff did not satisfy multiple claims requirement of Rule 54(b)).

(n11)Footnote 10. Gregorian v. Izvestia, 871 F.2d 1515, 1519 (9th Cir. 1989) , cert. denied, 493 U.S. 891 (1989) (adjudicated libel claim depended on facts for proof different from pending claim for intentional infliction of emotional distress, so claims were separate under Rule 54(b)).

(n12)Footnote 11. In re Southeast Banking Corp., 69 F.3d 1539, 1549-1550 (11th Cir. 1995) .

(n13)Footnote 12. Samaad v. City of Dallas, 940 F.2d 925, 932 (5th Cir. 1991) (because equal protection and takings claims were premised on separate facts and separate recovery on each was permissible, multiple claims were presented and court had authority to issue Rule 54(b) judgment).

(n14)Footnote 13. Liberty Mutual Ins. Co. v. Wetzel, 424 U.S. 737, 742-743, 96 S. Ct. 1202, 47 L. Ed. 2d 435

(1976) .

(n15)Footnote 14. Landry v. G.B.A., 762 F.2d 462, 463-464 (5th Cir. 1985) .

(n16)Footnote 15. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b).

(n17)Footnote 16. Cold Metal Process Co. v. United Engineering & Foundry Co., 351 U.S. 445, 451-453, 76 S. Ct. 904, 100 L. Ed. 1311 (1956) (whether counterclaim was compulsory or permissive was irrelevant, because Rule 54(b) does not preclude entry of judgment even if unadjudicated claims arise from same transaction or occurrence); In re Southeast Banking Corp., 69 F.3d 1539, 1547 (11th Cir. 1995) (factual allegations arising from same transaction or occurrence may present separate claims for purposes of Civil 4(b)).

(n18)Footnote 17. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b).

(n19)Footnote 18. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b), Advisory Committee Note to 1961 Amendments.

(n20)Footnote 19. Soliday v. Miami County, 55 F.3d 1158, 1163 (6th Cir. 1995) .

(n21)Footnote 20. Maldonado-Denis v. Castillo-Rodriguez, 23 F.3d 576, 579 (1st Cir. 1994) (summary judgment completely disposing of plaintiff's claims against two defendants may be entered as final judgment under Rule 54(b)).

(n22)Footnote 21. Davis v. Mann, 882 F.2d 967, 972, n.15 (5th Cir. 1989) (plaintiff's due process claim was distinct from First Amendment claim, so that Rule 54(b) judgment was proper despite fact that latter claim remained pending against all defendants).

(n23)Footnote 22. Braswell Shipyards, Inc. v. Beazer East, Inc., 2 F.3d 1331, 1336 (4th Cir. 1993) .

(n24)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 1291.

(n25)Footnote 2. Digital Equipment Corp. v. Desktop Direct, Inc., 511 U.S. 863, 869, 114 S. Ct. 1992, 128 L. Ed. 2d 842 (1994) (definition of finality).

(n26)Footnote 3. Curtiss-Wright Corp. v. General Elec. Co., 446 U.S. 1, 7, 100 S. Ct. 1460, 64 L. Ed. 2d 1 (1980) .

(n27)Footnote 4. Braswell Shipyards, Inc. v. Beazer East, Inc., 2 F.3d 1331, 1336-1338 (4th Cir. 1993) (because damages on state claims could not be computed until federal claims were resolved, judgment under Rule Civil 54(b) on state claims was improper).

(n28)Footnote 5. Valley Ranch Dev. Co. v. FDIC, 960 F.2d 550, 555-556 (5th Cir. 1992) ; see Ch. 27, General Principles of Appeal.

(n29)Footnote 6. Curtiss-Wright Corp. v. General Elec. Co., 446 U.S. 1, 7, 100 S. Ct. 1460, 64 L. Ed. 2d 1 (1980) .

(n30)Footnote 7. Perera v. Siegel Trading Co., 951 F.2d 780, 785 (7th Cir. 1992) (order requiring arbitration does not decide claim and is therefore not "judgment" under Rule 54(b)).

(n31)Footnote 8. Howard v. Parisian, Inc., 807 F.2d 1560, 1566 (11th Cir. 1987) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
B. PARTIAL JUDGMENT OF MULTIPLE CLAIMS OR MULTIPLE PARTIES

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.13

§ 25.13 Discretion of District Court to Enter Partial Judgmentn*

[1] Discretionary Nature of District Court's Authority

If the district court enters an order finally disposing of one or more claims or the claims by or against one or more parties and that order would be appealable in an action presenting only those claims, the district court has the discretion to enter an order for immediate appeal of the claims. The district court may employ its discretion to dispatch an order for immediate appeal under Rule 54(b) only by making an express determination that there is no reason for delay and by expressly directing the entry of judgment. n1 The combination of the direction and determination is often referred to as certification of the order under Rule 54(b). n2 In the absence of such certification, the order is unappealable. n3

The purpose of the express determination and direction requirement is to ensure that the parties can judge the effect of the order entered, including the right of, or obligation to, appeal. n4 Thus, the time to appeal from an order disposing of part of a case does not begin to run until the district court certifies that order as a final judgment under Rule 54(b). n5 When the district court exercises its discretion to permit immediate appeal, the court of appeals must review the district court's decision to do so, considering the preference for a single appeal. If the district court has certified the order for appeal despite the likelihood that the certification will lead to multiple appeals rasing the same issues, the court of appeals may reject the certification as an abuse of discretion and refuse to accept jurisdiction over the appeal. n6

[2] Factors Considered by Court in Exercise of Discretion

[a] Summary of Factors

The district court may look to all the facts and circumstances of the case in determining whether there is just reason for delaying the entry of judgment under Rule 54(b). n1 The propriety of a Rule 54(b) certification thus turns on a number of factors, including: n2 (1) whether the disputed ruling is final, n3 (2) the extent to which disputed ruling raises legal or factual issues that overlap with any claims still pending in the district court, n4 and (3) how equities and efficiencies of piecemeal review would compare to those in single proceeding. Although the district court has the power under Rule 54(b) to enter a final judgment disposing of one or more, but fewer than all, of the claims or parties in a multi-claim or multi-party action, it has discretion in deciding whether to exercise it. Because of this discretion, the failure of the district court to enter a Rule 54(b) judgment may not be challenged by an immediate appeal. n5 Of the three factors above, the most important is the third, which is stated in the rule as the court's determination that the court makes an "express determination that there is no just reason for delay." n6 In this regard, the Supreme court has stated that once the district court has determined that the order is eligible for certification under Rule 54(b), because there are multiple claims or multiple parties and because the order involved finally disposes of a cognizable claim for relief, the court must then determine whether there is any just reason for delay in entering the order as a judgment. n7 This means that the district court should exercise its discretion in such a way that application of Rule 54(b) effectively preserves the historic federal policy against piecemeal appeals. n8

[b] Determination of Relation Among Claims

The closeness of the relationship between the claims is the essence of two of the important factors in the court's determination: the extent to which the disputed order raises legal or factual issues that overlap with any claims still pending in the district court and how the equities and efficiencies of piecemeal review would compare to those in a single proceeding. In other words, if the claims are closely related the court should deny entry of partial judgment under Rule 54(b); if the claims are distinct, the court should enter partial judgment when partial judgment would promote justice. n9 Thus, the district court should consider whether the claims under review were separate from the others remaining to be adjudicated and whether the nature of the claims already determined was such that no appellate court would have to decide the same issues more than once even if there were subsequent appeals. n10 For example, if the correctness of the judgment might be mooted by a later decision of the unadjudicated claims, the court of appeals will not review the certified judgment, because the court of appeals would be rendering nothing but an advisory opinion. n11 On the other hand, if the claims are sufficiently distinct so that duplicative appellate review will be avoided, the court of appeals will generally find that entry of a Rule 54(b) judgment did not constitute an abuse of discretion. n12

There is one further qualification. If the adjudicated and unadjudicated claims are distinct, the district court still should not exercise its discretion to enter judgment under Rule 54(b) unless doing so will alleviate some hardship or injustice that would result from the delay in the entry of judgment. n13 If a Rule 54(b) judgment is requested by motion, the moving party must make an affirmative showing of the hardship or injustice that would result if judgment is not entered. n14

The court should not enter judgment routinely n15 or as an accommodation to counsel. n16 Furthermore, judgment may not be entered under Rule 54(b) merely because all the parties have stipulated or otherwise agreed to that procedure. n17

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsMultiple Claims & Parties

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 10 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.23 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b).

(n3)Footnote 2. See § 25.11.

(n4)Footnote 3. Prudential Securities, Inc. v. Yingling, 226 F.3d 668, 670-671 (6th Cir. 2000) (Rule 54(b) "certificate" had not been issued by district court; therefore, permanent injunction remained part of case until court issued its final judgment disposing of all claims); Harris v. United States, 175 F.3d 1318, 1320 (11th Cir. 1999) (entry of final judgment against fewer than all parties is deemed certification of judgment under Rule 54(b) when district court had expressly granted motion to certify judgment pursuant to Rule 54(b) and entry of final judgment as to fewer than all parties could only have been made under Rule 54(b) because no final judgment had been rendered with regard to remaining parties in case).

(n5)Footnote 4. Kelly v. Lee's Old Fashioned Hamburgers, Inc., 908 F.2d 1218, 1220-1221 (5th Cir. 1990) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n6)Footnote 5. Wilson v. Navistar Int'l Transp. Corp., 193 F.3d 1212, 1213 (11th Cir. 1999) .

(n7)Footnote 6. Curtiss-Wright Corp. v. General Elec. Co., 446 U.S. 1, 10, 100 S. Ct. 1460, 64 L. Ed. 2d 1 (1980) (court of appeals must, of course, scrutinize the district court's evaluation of such factors as the interrelationship of the claims so as to prevent piecemeal appeals in cases which should be reviewed only as single units).

(n8)Footnote 1. Curtiss-Wright Corp. v. General Elec. Co., 446 U.S. 1, 9-10, 100 S. Ct. 1460, 64 L. Ed. 2d 1 (1980) .

(n9)Footnote 2. Britton v. Maloney, 196 F.3d 24, 27 n.1 (1st Cir. 1999) .

(n10)Footnote 3. See 25.12[2].

(n11)Footnote 4. See 25.12[1].

(n12)Footnote 5. McCall v. Deeds, 849 F.2d 1259, 1259 (9th Cir. 1988) .

(n13)Footnote 6. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b).

(n14)Footnote 7. Curtiss-Wright Corp. v. General Elec. Co., 446 U.S. 1, 8, 100 S. Ct. 1460, 64 L. Ed. 2d 1 (1980) .

(n15)Footnote 8. Curtiss-Wright Corp. v. General Elec. Co., 446 U.S. 1, 8, 100 S. Ct. 1460, 64 L. Ed. 2d 1 (1980) (proper for district judge to consider such factors as whether claims under review were separate from others remaining to be adjudicated and whether nature of claims already determined was such that no appellate court would have to decide same issues more than once even if there were subsequent appeals).

(n16)Footnote 9. Britton v. Maloney, 196 F.3d 24, 27-28 (1st Cir. 1999) (court of appeals affirmed district court's certification under Rule 54(b) because certified judgment completed plaintiff's case against one defendant, judgment's issues were analytically distinct from those in plaintiff's case against remaining defendant, and there was only slight probability of prejudice from immediate appellate review).

(n17)Footnote 10. Curtiss-Wright Corp. v. General Elec. Co., 446 U.S. 1, 8, 100 S. Ct. 1460, 64 L. Ed. 2d 1 (1980) .

(n18)Footnote 11. Interstate Power Co. v. Kansas City Power, 992 F.2d 804, 807 (8th Cir. 1993) (district court abused its discretion in ordering judgment under Rule 54(b) on third-party claim for contribution because outcome of main action might entirely moot judgment entered).

(n19)Footnote 12. Soliday v. Miami County, 55 F.3d 1158, 1163 (6th Cir. 1995) .

(n20)Footnote 13. Advanced Magnetics, Inc. v. Bayfront Partners, Inc., 106 F.3d 11, 16-17 (2d Cir. 1997) (judicial efficiency was promoted by certifying appealability of dismissed claims because if dismissed claims were to be reinstated, immediate appeal would allow them to be tried together with other claims in suit, and piecemeal appeals would not impair judicial efficiency in that appeal of dismissed claims presented virtually no overlapping issues with possible subsequent appeals of other claims).

(n21)Footnote 14. Braswell Shipyards, Inc. v. Beazer East, Inc., 2 F.3d 1331, 1337 (4th Cir. 1993) .

(n22)Footnote 15. Curtiss-Wright Corp. v. General Elec. Co., 446 U.S. 1, 10, 100 S. Ct. 1466, 64 L. Ed. 2d 1 (1980) .

(n23)Footnote 16. See Burlington N. R. Co. v. Bair, 754 F.2d 799, 800 (8th Cir. 1985) .

(n24)Footnote 17. In re Lindsay, 59 F.3d 942, 951-952 (9th Cir. 1995) , cert. denied, 516 U.S. 1074 (1996) (although attorneys agreed to entry of judgment under Rule 54(b), district court should have stricken that language from orders because court made no findings to support Rule 54(b) determination).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
B. PARTIAL JUDGMENT OF MULTIPLE CLAIMS OR MULTIPLE PARTIES

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.14

§ 25.14 Procedures for District Court's Decision to Enter Partial Judgmentn*

[1] Initiation of Partial Judgment

The district court may exercise its discretion to enter a Rule 54(b) judgment on the court's own initiative or by motion of a party, n1 and it may also be raised sua sponte by the court of appeals. n2 If a district order grants affirmative relief on a claim, the claimant will often seek to have the order entered as a judgment so that it may be enforced, while the defendant may request entry of a judgment in order to facilitate its appeal. Thus, parties frequently file a joint or stipulated motion seeking a Rule 54(b) judgment. Even though the parties might agree to that disposition, the motion still calls for the exercise of the court's discretion, and the court should make its own independent determination of whether entry of the judgment is appropriate. The judgment should not be entered merely because the parties agree to it. n3

[2] Court's Statement of Reasons for Partial Judgment

Even though Rule 54(b)'s requirement that the district court must make an express determination that there is no just reason for delay does not require a formal statement of the reasoning for making the judgment, n1 it has been held the court should state its reasons. n2 The rule calls for the exercise of the court's discretion and if that exercise is to be subject to meaningful appellate review, the court of appeals must be informed of the basis for the court's certification of the judgment. n3 A statement of reasons is also required to ensure that the district court actually intended to enter judgment under Rule 54(b). n4 The district court should not simply declare that there is no just reason for delay but should set forth the justification for that determination. n5 Conversely, if the justification offered is sufficient, the district court need not recite the language of the rule that there is no just reason for delay. n6

If the district court fails to set forth sufficient reasons for certification, the court of appeals may either dismiss the appeal n7 or remand the action to permit the district court to give its justification for the certification. n8 However, a failure to explain the judgment is not a jurisdictional defect, n9 and the court of appeals may examine the record to determine whether reasons are apparent. If some justification is apparent, the failure of the district court to identify it is not fatal to the judgment, n10 because a dismissal or remand of the appeal would accomplish nothing but delay the court of appeals' ultimate review of the judgment. n11 A failure of the district court to justify its certification decision will result in greater scrutiny of that decision, however, because the deference normally due the court's exercise of its discretion is nullified by its failure to explain its exercise of discretion. n12

[3] Retroactive Certification

Frequently, a party will take an appeal from an asserted final order on one of multiple claims or as to one of multiple parties, even though the district court has not yet certified the order when the notice of appeal is filed. While a complete lack of certification under Rule 54(b) will prevent the circuit court from taking such an appeal, n1 a lack of certification at the time the notice of appeal is filed is not necessarily fatal, because the district court may subsequently make the certification, thus establishing appellate jurisdiction nunc pro tunc. In other words, unless the appellee would be prejudiced, a subsequent Rule 54(b) certification validates an otherwise premature notice of appeal. n2

This rule is consistent with, though not necessarily required by, Appellate Rule 4(a)(2), which provides that a notice of appeal filed after the court announces a decision, but before the entry of judgment, is treated as if filed on the date of entry of judgment. n3 If the court of appeals has knowledge of a lack of certification, the court has discretion to either stay the appeal to permit the appellant to obtain the necessary certification from the district court, n4 or may simply dismiss the appeal. n5 Even if the appeal ultimately proceeds to finality without the necessary certification, the decisions of both the court of appeals and the district court are nevertheless valid and entitled to preclusive effect. n6

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsMultiple Claims & Parties

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 10 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.24 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Samaad v. City of Dallas, 940 F.2d 925, 930 (5th Cir. 1991) (existence of multiple claims is jurisdictional prerequisite to judgment under Rule 54(b) and may be raised sua sponte).

(n3)Footnote 2. Credit Francais Int'l, S.A. v. Bio-Vita, Ltd., 78 F.3d 698, 706 (1st Cir. 1996) (although no party challenged Rule 54(b) certifications, court of appeals determined that it was bound to consider matter sua sponte as it affected scope of appellate jurisdiction).

(n4)Footnote 3. Stamatakis Indus. v. J. Walter Thompson, 944 F.2d 382, 383 (7th Cir. 1991) (district court erred in certifying judgment under Rule 54(b) merely because parties all agreed to that course of action).

(n5)Footnote 1. See United States v. Ettrick Wood Prods., Inc., 916 F.2d 1211, 1218 (7th Cir. 1990) (if judgment is otherwise proper, failure to expressly mention Rule 54(b) is not fatal to judgment).

(n6)Footnote 2. Braswell Shipyards, Inc. v. Beazer East, Inc., 2 F.3d 1331, 1337 (4th Cir. 1993) .

(n7)Footnote 3. HBE Leasing Corp. v. Frank, 48 F.3d 623, 631 (2d Cir. 1995) (because justification for judgment is required, entry of judgment without mentioning rule's standard is improper); Waldorf v. Borough of Kenilworth, 959 F. Supp. 675, 677-678 (D.N.J. 1997) (district court's failure to explain its reasoning for Rule 54(b) certification may result in dismissal of appeal for lack of appellate jurisdiction).

(n8)Footnote 4. Kelly v. Lee's Old Fashioned Hamburgers, Inc., 908 F.2d 1218, 1221 (5th Cir. 1990) .

(n9)Footnote 5. Knafel v. Pepsi Cola Bottlers of Akron, Inc., 850 F.2d 1155, 1159 (6th Cir. 1988) .

(n10)Footnote 6. AFGE Local 1533 v. Cheney, 944 F.2d 503, 505, n.3 (9th Cir. 1991) .

(n11)Footnote 7. Mooney v. Frierdich, 784 F.2d 875, 876 (8th Cir. 1986) .

(n12)Footnote 8. Auriemma v. City of Chicago, 906 F.2d 312, 313 (7th Cir. 1990) .

(n13)Footnote 9. Carter v. City of Philadelphia, 181 F.3d 339, 343-346 (3d Cir. 1999) , cert. denied, 120 S. Ct. 499, (1999) ; Alcan Aluminum Corp v. Carlsberg Financial Corp., 689 F.2d 815, 817 (9th Cir. 1982) .

(n14)Footnote 10. Fox v. Baltimore City Police Dep't, 201 F.3d 526, 531-532 (4th Cir. 2000) (district court's failure to state rationale for its decision to certify partial judgment does not invalidate certification).

(n15)Footnote 11. Feinstein v. Resolution Trust Corp., 942 F.2d 34, 39 (1st Cir. 1991) (sufficient reasons for certification were specified in movant's brief accompanying motion, so district court's failure to state reasons did not prevent appellate jurisdiction).

(n16)Footnote 12. Little Earth of United Tribes, Inc. v. United States Dept. of Housing & Urban Dev., 738 F.2d 310, 313 (8th Cir. 1984) .

(n17)Footnote 1. See § 25.10.

(n18)Footnote 2. Clausen v. Sea-3, Inc., 21 F.3d 1181, 1184-1185 (1st Cir. 1994) ; see Lewis v. B.F. Goodrich Co., 850 F.2d 641, 645 (10th Cir. 1988) (notice of appeal effective where appellant obtains certification or final adjudication before appeal considered on merits).

(n19)Footnote 3. Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(2).

(n20)Footnote 4. Penton v. Pompano Constr. Co., 963 F.2d 321, 322 (11th Cir. 1992) (allowing 30 days to obtain proper judgment and certification).

(n21)Footnote 5. Winfrey v. School Bd. of Dade County, 59 F.3d 155, 157-158 n.3 (11th Cir. 1995) .

(n22)Footnote 6. O'Reilly v. Malon, 747 F.2d 820, 822-823 (1st Cir. 1984) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
B. PARTIAL JUDGMENT OF MULTIPLE CLAIMS OR MULTIPLE PARTIES

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.15

§ 25.15 Effect of Lack of Certification of Partial Judgmentn*

[1] Order Is Not Appealable

If the district court has not made an express direction for the entry of judgment and an express determination that there is no just reason for delay, any order that does not dispose of the entire action remains open and subject to revision at any time before entry of final judgment. n1 This means that parties aggrieved by an order not certified under Rule 54(b) need not appeal the order until the court disposes of the entire case. n2 In other words, any order that disposes of fewer than all of the claims or parties must be certified under Rule 54(b) in order to be appealable. In the absence of proper certification, the order is unappealable until the entry of a final judgment disposing of all the claims and parties. n3

[2] Order Is Appealable if Remaining Claims Dismissed

In a multi-claim or multi-party action, an order with respect to fewer than all claims is not appealable without certification under Rule 54(b) but may become appealable if pending claims are dismissed or otherwise disposed of by the court. n1 Most authority agrees that such a dismissal permits appeal of the earlier adjudication, even if the dismissal comes after the filing of the notice of appeal. n2 The decisions generally restrict this principle to a dismissal with prejudice, n3 On the theory that a dismissal without prejudice would leave the parties free to reinstate the claims at a later date, thus making an end run around the restrictions of the final judgment rule and Rule 54(b). n4 Furthermore, this principle does not apply when the remaining claims are merely transferred to another court. Rather, the potential for appellate review of a one-claim dismissal is transferred along with the rest of case, with any review occurring in the transferee circuit when and if prerequisites of ordinary appellate review are satisfied. n5

[3] Order May Be Reconsidered

If the district court adjudicates a discrete portion of a multi-party or multi-claim action, but does not certify it under Rule 54(b), the court may reconsider the partial adjudication at any time prior to a judgment disposing of the entire action. n1 This result follows from the provision of the rule that provides that such an order is subject to revision at any time before the entry of judgment adjudicating all the claims and the rights and liabilities of all the parties. n2 However, the fact that the district court has the power to reconsider the uncertified order does not mean that the court must or even should do so. When the court declines to certify an adjudication under Rule 54(b), it need not reconsider that adjudication unless doing so is consistent with the guidelines of the law of the case doctrine, n3 such as when new evidence is presented that might alter the earlier ruling. n4 Furthermore, before exercising its power to set aside a prior order not certified under Rule 54(b), the court should consider the potential for prejudice to the parties from reconsidering that order. n5

[4] Order May Be Appealed at Time All Claims Are Finally Adjudicated

Because an order disposing of fewer than all of the claims or parties in an action is not appealable in the absence of certification under Rule 54(b), the order merges into the final judgment that disposes of all the claims and parties and becomes appealable at the time of entry of that final judgment. n1 However, when an order is certified under Rule 54(b), the judgment must be appealed within the time permitted by the federal rules, and the aggrieved party does not have the option of waiting until entry of the final judgment of the other remaining claims in the case. n2

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsMultiple Claims & Parties

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 10 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.25 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d); Anjelino v. New York Times Co., 200 F.3d 73, 86-87 n.1 (3d Cir. 1999) (in absence of Rule 54(b) certification, order that disposes of fewer than all claims or parties is not appealable until entry of final judgment disposing of all claims and all parties in case).

(n3)Footnote 2. Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Mackey, 351 U.S. 427, 435-436, 76 S. Ct. 895, 100 L. Ed. 1297 (1956) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Reiter v. Cooper, 507 U.S. 258, 271, 113 S. Ct. 1213, 122 L. Ed. 2d 604 (1993) ; Joseph v. City of New Orleans, 110 F.3d 252, 253 (5th Cir. 1997) , cert. denied, 522 U.S. 1058 (1998) .

(n5)Footnote 1. Lewis v. B.F. Goodrich Co., 850 F.2d 641, 645 (10th Cir. 1988) (if district court adjudicates remaining claims before court of appeals acts, notice of appeal is proper even in absence of Rule 54(b) certification).

(n6)Footnote 2. McManus v. Gitano Group, Inc., 59 F.3d 382, 383-384 (2d Cir. 1995) (dismissal of defendant with prejudice after filing of notice of appeal retroactively vested jurisdiction in court of appeals despite absence of Rule 54(b) certification as to summary judgment for other defendant).

(n7)Footnote 3. West v. Macht, 197 F.3d 1185, 1188-1190 (7th Cir. 1999) (interlocutory orders as to some claims are not made final by plaintiff's voluntary dismissal of remaining claims, unless dismissal is with prejudice).

(n8)Footnote 4. Dannenberg v. Software Toolworks, Inc., 16 F.3d 1073, 1075-1076 (9th Cir. 1994) (stipulation of dismissal without prejudice of remaining claims did not permit appeal of order not certified under Rule 54(b), because stipulation expressly reserved parties' rights to resurrect claims after appeal).

(n9)Footnote 5. Hill v. Henderson, 195 F.3d 671, 672-678 (D.C. Cir. 1999) (order dismissing one of plaintiff's multiple claims against defendant does not become immediately appealable, in absence of Rule 54(b) certification, simply because district court transfers remainder of case to another district court in another circuit).

(n10)Footnote 1. Anixter v. Home-Stake Production Co., 977 F.2d 1533, 1547-1548 (10th Cir. 1992) ; Fayetteville Investors v. Commercial Builders, Inc., 936 F.2d 1462, 1469-1472 (4th Cir. 1991) .

(n11)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b).

(n12)Footnote 3. Virgin Atl. Airways v. National Mediation Bd., 956 F.2d 1245, 1255 (2d Cir. 1992) .

(n13)Footnote 4. Anixter v. Home-Stake Prod. Co., 977 F.2d 1533, 1547-1548 (10th Cir. 1992) .

(n14)Footnote 5. Bennett v. Pippin, 74 F.3d 578, 586-588 (5th Cir. 1996) (district court erred in reinstating county as defendant only one hour before trial was set to begin because county's trial preparation was prejudiced).

(n15)Footnote 1. Haskell v. Washington Township, 891 F.2d 132, 133 (6th Cir. 1989) .

(n16)Footnote 2. In re Lindsay, 59 F.3d 942, 951-952 (9th Cir. 1995) , cert. denied, 516 U.S. 1074 (1996) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
B. PARTIAL JUDGMENT OF MULTIPLE CLAIMS OR MULTIPLE PARTIES

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.16

§ 25.16 Effect of Proper Certification of Partial Judgmentn*

[1] Partial Judgment Certified Under Rule is Judgment for All Purposes

If the court makes an order disposing of fewer than all of the claims or parties in a multi-claim or multi-party action, an express determination that there is no just reason for delay, and an express direction for the entry of the order as a judgment, that judgment is a judgment for all purposes. Because a Rule 54(b) judgment is a judgment for all purposes, all of the federal rules applicable to judgments in general are also applicable to judgments under Rule 54(b). Any timely post-judgment motion challenging the substance of the judgment, therefore, suspends the finality of that judgment until the motion is disposed of. n1 If the court materially alters or amends the Rule 54(b) judgment, the time to appeal runs from entry of the amended judgment, not the original judgment. n2 Similarly, because a Rule 54(b) judgment is a final judgment for appeal purposes, the denial of a post-judgment motion relating to such a judgment is immediately appealable, even if the district court does not expressly certify its order denying the motion. n3

[2] Certified Partial Judgment Starts Time Limits for Appeal

A final judgment certified and entered under the authority of Rule 54(b) starts the running of all the time limits contained in the federal rules that run from the entry of judgment, most significantly the time to appeal the judgment. n1 Thus, a party challenging the judgment must appeal a Rule 54(b) judgment within the time permitted by Appellate Rule 4(a) and may not seek review of the judgment after the remaining claims have been adjudicated. n2 A Rule 54(b) judgment begins the running of the time to appeal regardless of the propriety of the entry of that judgment. In other words, whether or not the court abused its discretion in certifying and entering the judgment under Rule 54(b) is irrelevant to the parties' obligation to appeal within the period started by that judgment. n3 However, if the Rule 54(b) judgment was beyond the power of the district court or was not properly set forth as a judgment, the parties need not take an immediate appeal and may challenge the partial adjudication on appeal from the final judgment. n4

[3] Res Judicata Applies to Certified Partial Judgment

If the district court has certified and entered a final judgment under the authority of Rule 54(b), the judgment is res judicata as to the claims adjudicated, and the judgment may be offered for its preclusive effect in other litigation. n1

Additionally, when pending parallel litigation may result in inconsistent outcomes, a final judgment may be entered under Rule 54(b) precisely to permit the application of res judicata. n2 Also, because a Rule 54(b) judgment is res judicata, the district court may issue an injunction to protect the efficacy of the judgment. n3 However, if an order has not been properly certified under Rule 54(b) it does not have preclusive effect because the rule's reservation of the court's right to reconsider the order at any time n4 deprives the order of the requisite finality for res judicata purposes. n5

[4] Interest Accrues From Entry of Certified Partial Judgment

Interest accrues on a final judgment certified and entered under the authority of Rule 54(b) in the same manner that it would on any other judgment. Furthermore, by statute, n1 post-judgment interest accrues not only on final, appealable judgments but also on partial, non-appealable judgments. n2 Therefore, the entry of a partial judgment, whether or not certified for immediate appeal under Rule 54(b), triggers the accrual of post-judgment interest on claims encompassed in that judgment. n3 However, if the court does not enter judgment on the order, interest generally does not run until entry of final judgment disposing of all of the claims and parties. n4

[5] Enforcement of Certified Partial Judgment

A party may obtain execution on a Rule 54(b) judgment which has been properly certified and entered by the district court, provided that the 10-day stay of execution specified in Rule 62(a) has expired. n1 However, the district court has the option to stay execution of any judgment entered under Rule 54(b). n2 If a party requests execution of judgment outside the district, the requesting party may register a Rule 54(b) judgment in another district when the judgment has become final by appeal or by expiration of the time to appeal. n3 Additionally, any federal judgment has the same effect as a lien on the judgment debtor's property as a judgment of a state court. Thus, as a valid judgment of the district court, a Rule 54(b) judgment has the same lien implications as a judgment of the state court. n4

[6] Appealability of Order

[a] Appellate Jurisdiction Not Controlled by Partial Judgment Rule

The appellate jurisdiction of the courts of appeals is established and controlled by statute, which provides for review of "final decisions" of the district courts n1 and also permits review of certain interlocutory orders made by the district courts. n2 The Rules Enabling Act n3 and Rule 82 prohibit any alteration by civil rule of the jurisdiction of the federal appellate courts; n4 therefore, Rule 54(b) may not extend or limit the jurisdiction of the courts of appeals, and the rule does not in any way relax the requirement of Section 1291 that the order appealed be final, n5 nor does the rule otherwise expand or limit the statutory jurisdiction of the courts of appeals. n5.1 In other words, the district court may not, in the exercise of its discretion, treat as "final" that which is not "final" within the meaning of Section 1291. n6

[b] Appeal of Interlocutory Orders

An order that is inherently interlocutory is not final and not eligible for entry as a judgment, unless it fits into a statutory exception; furthermore, such an interlocutory order does not become appealable if it is erroneously entered under Rule 54(b). n7 The most important exceptions to the final judgment rule are specified in Section 1292. Subsection (a) permits appeals as of right from certain interlocutory orders, n8 and subsection (b) permits appeals from such orders when the district court and court of appeals agree to permit the appeal. n9 Because Rule 54(b) does not restrict appellate jurisdiction, any order that is already appealable on an interlocutory basis need not be certified as a prerequisite to appeal. Thus, orders relating to injunctive relief may be appealed under Section 1292(a)(1), n10 irrespective of whether the order could have been entered as a judgment under Rule 54(b). n11 Additionally, in receivership cases, orders appealable under Section 1292(a)(2) may be appealed regardless of the provisions of Rule 54(b). n12

Permissive appeals under Section 1292(b), n13 are similar to Rule 54(b) appeals because both involve appeals by permission through district court certification. However, even though both Rule 54(b) and § 1292(b) require certification by the district court, the procedures are quite distinct. Significantly, Rule 54(b) is restricted in its application to an order in a multi-claim or multi-party action that is a final order as to at least one of the claims or parties. n14 Section 1292(b), on the other hand, applies in any action in which an appeal may be taken to the court of appeals. More importantly, when the statutory standard is met, Section 1292(b) is intended to permit appeal of any otherwise unappealable order, including inherently interlocutory orders that may not be reviewed under Rule 54(b). n14.1 In other words, Rule 54(b) applies to a final order on a claim for relief, and Section 1292(b) applies to a "controlling question of law" encountered in resolving a claim for relief. n15

The scope of appellate review also differs under the two certification procedures. The circuit court has appellate jurisdiction over all interlocutory orders leading to Rule 54(b) judgment, but appellate jurisdiction over a Section 1292(b) order extends only to the particular interlocutory order certified by the district court. n16 Sometimes, a question arises as to which procedure applies: n17 whether a particular order is a final adjudication of a separate claim, to which Rule 54(b) would apply, or an interlocutory order on an issue of law forming the basis of a claim, to which Section 1292(b) would apply. n18 Because Rule 54(b) and Section 1292(b) share a common purpose, which is to permit immediate review of otherwise unappealable orders in the interest of sound judicial administration, n19 the courts of appeals may grant review whenever those purposes would be furthered, even if the district court failed to invoke the proper basis for review of the order. For example, a certification under Section 1292(b) may be deemed an entry of judgment under Rule 54(b), provided that the certified order could have been entered as a judgment under Rule 54(b). n19.1

[c] Certification Not Necessary If Order Is Appealable Under Collateral Order Doctrine

The collateral order doctrine is an exception to the rule that only final judgments are appealable. n20 To qualify under the doctrine, an order must (1) conclusively determine the disputed question, (2) resolve an important issue completely separate from the merits of the action, and (3) be effectively unreviewable on appeal from the final judgment. n21

The collateral order doctrine and Rule 54(b) apply to completely distinct types of orders: the doctrine applies only to orders entirely separate from the merits of the claims for relief, and the rule applies only to orders that resolve the merits of one or more of those claims. Rule 54(b), therefore, does not limit review of orders that are appealable under the collateral order doctrine. If the doctrine makes the order appealable, a Rule 54(b) judgment is not necessary to appeal the order, even in a multi-party or multi-claim action. n22 Conversely, if the order does not qualify for appeal under the collateral order doctrine, certification under Rule 54(b) makes the order reviewable only if the prerequisites of that rule are satisfied. n23

[d] Certification Not Necessary If Order Is Reviewable by Extraordinary Writ

By statute, a court of appeals has the power through the issuance of an extraordinary writ to review any order that is not otherwise immediately appealed. n24 However, an extraordinary writ is generally not available when the aggrieved party has an adequate remedy through appeal at final disposition of the case. n24.1 Because an order that could have been, but was not, certified under Rule 54(b) is reviewable on appeal from the final judgment, an extraordinary writ such as mandamus is generally unavailable to compel the district court to certify the judgment for immediate appeal under Rule 54(b). n25 Conversely, the refusal of the district court to enter a Rule 54(b) judgment does not protect the order from review by extraordinary writ if the remedy of later appeal is shown to be inadequate, and the other prerequisites to a writ under Section 1651 have been established. n26 For a further discussion of extraordinary writs, see Ch. 27, General Principles of Appeal.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsMultiple Claims & Parties

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 10 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 54.26, 54.27 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See, e.g., Zapata Gulf Marine Corp. v. Puerto Rico Maritime Shipping Auth., 925 F.2d 812, 814-815 (5th Cir. 1991) , cert. denied, 501 U.S. 1262 (1991) (Rule 54(b) judgment is subject to filing of Rule 59(e) motion that suspends finality).

(n3)Footnote 2. See Christensen v. Equitable Life Assurance Soc., 767 F.2d 340, 342 n.2 (7th Cir. 1985) (clerical correction made in March to January judgment made April appeal timely as to all issues).

(n4)Footnote 3. Gencorp., Inc. v. American Int'l Underwriters, 178 F.3d 804, 832-833 (6th Cir. 1999) (denial of motion to alter or amend Rule 54(b) judgment under Rule 59(e) is immediately appealable; there is no reason to require separate certification for Rule 59(e) ruling that relates to judgment that has been made appealable by certification under Rule 54(b)).

(n5)Footnote 1. Smith v. Mine Safety Appliances Co., 691 F.2d 724, 725 (5th Cir. 1982) (must appeal within 30 days of Rule 54(b) judgment); Fed. R. App. P. 4(a).

(n6)Footnote 2. Smith v. Mine Safety Appliances Co., 691 F.2d 724, 725 (5th Cir. 1982) (party must appeal within 30 days of Rule 54(b) judgment).

(n7)Footnote 3. In re Lindsay, 59 F.3d 942, 951-952 (9th Cir. 1995) , cert. denied, 516 U.S. 1074 (1996) (whether Rule 54(b) determination was right or wrong, entry of such judgment starts the time for appeal running).

(n8)Footnote 4. Willhauck v. Halpin, 953 F.2d 689, 701-702 (1st Cir. 1991) (purported partial adjudication which was not set forth on separate document was not proper Rule 54(b) judgment; consequently, appeal from final judgment properly brought up all issues including partial adjudication).

(n9)Footnote 1. Recoveredge L.P. v. Pentecost, 44 F.3d 1284, 1290-1297 (5th Cir. 1995) .

(n10)Footnote 2. Shamley v. ITT Corp., 869 F.2d 167, 170-171 (2d Cir. 1989) (court properly entered Rule 54(b) judgment so that defendant could argue res judicata in state court proceedings).

(n11)Footnote 3. Rutledge v. Scott Chotin, Inc., 972 F.2d 820, 825 (7th Cir. 1992) .

(n12)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b).

(n13)Footnote 5. See Anixter v. Home-Stake Production Co., 977 F.2d 1533, 1547-1548 (10th Cir. 1992) (court's right to reconsider partial judgment that has not been certified).

(n14)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 1961(a).

(n15)Footnote 2. Skalka v. Fernald Envtl. Restoration Mgmt. Corp., 178 F.3d 414, 428-429 (6th Cir. 1999) (post-judgment interest statute does not refer only to final judgments).

(n16)Footnote 3. Skalka v. Fernald Envtl. Restoration Mgmt. Corp., 178 F.3d 414, 428-429 (6th Cir. 1999) (post-judgment interest begins to accrue on particular claim when district court enters judgment on that claim, even if court has not certified that judgment for appeal while other claims remain pending).

(n17)Footnote 4. Hooks v. Washington Sheraton Corp., 642 F.2d 614, 616-617 (D.C. Cir. 1980) (because court did not direct entry of judgment under Rule 54(b), interest would not run on jury verdict until judgment disposing of all claims was entered).

(n18)Footnote 1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 62(a).

(n19)Footnote 2. Curtiss-Wright Corp. v. General Elec. Co., 446 U.S. 1, 13 n.3, 100 S. Ct. 1460, 64 L. Ed. 2d 1 (1980) (noting also that, under Rule 62(h), court may require judgment loser to deposit amount of judgment with court in order to protect against possible insolvency or other potential economic hardship).

(n20)Footnote 3. 28 U.S.C. § 1963.

(n21)Footnote 4. See 28 U.S.C. § 1962.

(n22)Footnote 1. See Acton v. City of Columbia, 436 F.3d 969, 973-974 (8th Cir. 2006) .

(n23)Footnote 2. 28 U.S.C. § 1291.

(n24)Footnote 3. 28 U.S.C. § 2072.

(n25)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 82.

(n26)Footnote 5. Roebuck & Co. v. Mackey, 351 U.S. 427, 437, 76 S. Ct. 895, 100 L. Ed. 1297 (1956) .

(n27)Footnote 5.1. Ultra-Precision Mfg. v. Ford Motor Co., 338 F.3d 1353, 1357-1358 (Fed. Cir. 2005) .

(n28)Footnote 6. Petties v. District of Columbia, 227 F.3d 469, 472 (D.C. Cir. 2000) (Rule 54(b) does not relax finality required of each determination of court, as an individual claim, to render it appealable; rule merely permits appeal of claim as to which district court has reached final judgment while other claims remain to be resolved in the district court).

(n29)Footnote 7. Liberty Mutual Ins. Co. v. Wetzel, 424 U.S. 737, 743-744, 96 S. Ct. 1202, 47 L. Ed. 2d 435 (1976) ; see Acton v. City of Columbia, 436 F.3d 969, 973 (8th Cir. 2006) .

(n30)Footnote 8. See 28 U.S.C. § 1292(a).

(n31)Footnote 9. See 28 U.S.C. § 1292(b).

(n32)Footnote 10. See 28 U.S.C. § 1292(a)(1).

(n33)Footnote 11. HBE Leasing Corp. v. Frank, 48 F.3d 623, 630-633 (2d Cir. 1995) .

(n34)Footnote 12. See State Street Bank & Trust Co. v. Brockrim, Inc., 87 F.3d 1487, 1490-1491 (1st Cir. 1996) ; see also 28 U.S.C. § 1292(a)(2).

(n35)Footnote 13. See 28 U.S.C. § 1292(a)(1).

(n36)Footnote 14. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b).

(n37)Footnote 14.1. Ultra-Precision Mfg. v. Ford Motor Co., 338 F.3d 1353, 1358-1359 (Fed. Cir. 2005) .

(n38)Footnote 15. ITOFCA, Inc. v. MegaTrans Logistics, Inc., 235 F.3d 360, 365 (7th Cir. 2000) .

(n39)Footnote 16. Doctor's Hosp. v. Southeast Med. Alliance, Inc., 123 F.3d 301, 307 n.10 (5th Cir. 1997) .

(n40)Footnote 17. Philip Morris Inc. v. Harshbarger, 957 F. Supp. 327, 328-330 (D. Mass. 1997) (depending on facts, either or both procedures may be applicable).

(n41)Footnote 18. See Braswell Shipyards, Inc. v. Beazer East, Inc., 2 F.3d 1331, 1336, n.4 (4th Cir. 1993) .

(n42)Footnote 19. Local P-171, Amalgamated Meat Cutters v. Thompson Farms Co., 642 F.2d 1065, 1071 (7th Cir. 1981) .

(n43)Footnote 19.1. Amalgamated Meat Cutters & Butcher Workmen of N. Am. v. Thompson Farms Co., 642 F.2d 1065, 1071 (7th Cir. 1981) .

(n44)Footnote 20. *Will v. Hallock, 546 U.S. 345, 126 S. Ct. 952, 163 L. Ed. 2d 836, 2006 U.S. LEXIS 911, 10 (2006) (rather than exception to final decision rule set out in Section 1291, collateral order doctrine is practical application of that rule); Cohen v. Beneficial Indus. Loan Corp., 337 U.S. 541, 546-547, 69 S. Ct. 1221, 93 L. Ed. 1528 (1949) .

(n45)Footnote 21. Gulfstream Aerospace Corp. v. Mayacamas Corp., 485 U.S. 271, 276, 108 S. Ct. 1133, 99 L. Ed. 2d 296 (1988) ; Petties v. District of Columbia, 227 F.3d 469 . --6 (D.C. Cir. 2000).

(n46)Footnote 22. Petties v. District of Columbia, 227 F.3d 469 . --7 (D.C. Cir. 2000).

(n47)Footnote 23. Howard v. Parisian, Inc., 807 F.2d 1560, 1566 (11th Cir. 1987) .

(n48)Footnote 24. 28 U.S.C. § 1651.

(n49)Footnote 24.1. In re Urohealth Sys., 252 F.3d 504, 507 (1st Cir. 2001) .

(n50)Footnote 25. Askew v. United States Dist. Court for Cent. Dist. of Calif., 527 F.2d 469, 470-471 (9th Cir. 1975) (citing Moore's Federal Practice for proposition that extraordinary writs are available only if appeal is clearly inadequate).

(n51)Footnote 26. In re Food Lion, Inc., 73 F.3d 528, 531-533 (4th Cir. 1996) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
B. PARTIAL JUDGMENT OF MULTIPLE CLAIMS OR MULTIPLE PARTIES

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.17

§ 25.17 Appeal of District Court's Entry of Partial Judgmentn*

[1] Scope of Appeal

If the court of appeals determines that the judgment entered under Rule 54(b) was within both the power and the discretion of the district court, an immediate appeal is proper. n1 Because a Rule 54(b) judgment is a judgment for all purposes, a timely notice of appeal from the judgment invokes the mandatory appellate jurisdiction of the court of appeals under the final judgment statute. n2 On appeal of a judgment properly entered under Rule 54(b), the court of appeals may review any matter implicated by the judgment, n3 but should not review any reach beyond the bounds of that judgment and may not consider orders that were not certified for immediate appeal or to review issues still pending in the district court. n4 Furthermore, the court of appeals may not exercise pendent appellate jurisdiction over any other orders except for those subsumed within the judgment certified under Rule 54(b), unless review of those orders is necessary to ensure meaningful review of the Rule 54(b) judgment, or the orders are "inextricably intertwined" with the Rule 54(b) judgment. n5 However, the court of appeals may review any order or issue as to which there is an independent basis for an immediate appeal. n6

[2] Dismissal of Appeal When District Court Lacks Authority to Enter Partial Judgment

If the district court purports to enter a judgment under Rule 54(b) on an order that is either not final n1 or does not dispose of at least one claim for relief, n2 or dispose all of the claims by or against at least one party, n3 the entry of judgment exceeds the authority of the district court, and the court of appeals must dismiss any appeal from the judgment, n4 unless there is some other, independent basis for appeal of the order. n5 The court of appeals reviews this issue de novo. n6 Furthermore, because this requirement is jurisdictional, the court of appeals may raise the propriety of a Rule 54(b) judgment sua sponte. n7

[3] Dismissal of Appeal When District Court Abuses Discretion

The district court has discretion to enter judgment under Rule 54(b) by making an express determination that there is no just reason for delay and making an express direction for the entry of judgment. n1 The district court's determination that there is no just reason for delay is reviewed for abuse of discretion. In making the determination that there is no reason for delay, the courts must consider judicial administrative interests, as well as the equities involved. The discretionary determination of the district court should be given substantial deference, for that court is the one most likely to be familiar with the case and with any justifiable reasons for delay. The reviewing court should disturb the trial court's assessment of the equities only if it can say that the judge's conclusion was clearly unreasonable. n2 If the court of appeals finds that the district court abused its discretion in entering judgment under Rule 54(b), the court of appeals should dismiss the appeal unless there is some other grounds for immediate appeal. n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsMultiple Claims & PartiesCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsReviewabilityGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 10 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.28 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b).

(n3)Footnote 2. 28 U.S.C. § 1291.

(n4)Footnote 3. Bowdry v. United Airlines, Inc., 58 F.3d 1483, 1488-1489 (10th Cir. 1995) (timely notice of appeal brings up for review all interlocutory decisions and orders implicated by the judgment).

(n5)Footnote 4. United Indus., Inc. v. EIMCO Process Equip. Co., 61 F.3d 445, 448 (5th Cir. 1995) (on appeal of Rule 54(b) judgment dismissing certain claims, court of appeals lacked appellate jurisdiction to address dismissal of RICO claims or denial of motion to compel because those orders were not included in certified Rule 54(b) judgment).

(n6)Footnote 5. Cooper v. Town of E. Hampton, 83 F.3d 31, 35-36 (2d Cir. 1996) .

(n7)Footnote 6. In re City of Philadelphia Litig., 49 F.3d 945, 956-957 (3d Cir. 1995) .

(n8)Footnote 1. Petties v. District of Columbia, 227 F.3d 469 . --6-7 (D.C. Cir. 2000).

(n9)Footnote 2. Tolson v. United States, 732 F.2d 998, 1002-1003 (D.C. Cir. 1984) .

(n10)Footnote 3. Soliday v. Miami County, 55 F.3d 1158, 1163 (6th Cir. 1995) .

(n11)Footnote 4. Street Bank & Trust Co. v. Brockrim, Inc., 87 F.3d 1487, 1490 (1st Cir. 1996) .

(n12)Footnote 5. FDIC v. Geldermann, Inc., 975 F.2d 695, 697 (10th Cir. 1992) (order that precluded particular defendants from seeking indemnity or contribution was improperly certified under Rule 54(b) because it did not dispose of any claim; however, order was nevertheless appealable as injunction under Section 1292(a)(1)).

(n13)Footnote 6. State Street Bank & Trust Co. v. Brockrim, Inc., 87 F.3d 1487, 1489 (1st Cir. 1996) ; ODC Communications Corp. v. Wenruth Investments, 826 F.2d 509, 512 (7th Cir. 1987) .

(n14)Footnote 7. Credit Francais Int'l, S.A. v. Bio-Vita, Ltd., 78 F.3d 698, 705-706 (1st Cir. 1996) .

(n15)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b); see § 25.10

(n16)Footnote 2. Curtiss-Wright Corp. v. General Elec. Co., 446 U.S. 1, 7-13, 100 S. Ct. 1460, 64 L. Ed. 2d 1 (1980) .

(n17)Footnote 3. PYCA Indus., Inc. v. Harrison County Waste Water Management Dist., 81 F.3d 1412, 1421 (5th Cir. 1996) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
B. PARTIAL JUDGMENT OF MULTIPLE CLAIMS OR MULTIPLE PARTIES

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 25.18through 25.29

[Reserved]

§§ 25.18[Reserved]

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
C. DEMAND FOR JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.30

§ 25.30 Requirement of Demand for Judgmentn*

Every final judgment that is not a default judgment must grant the relief to which the prevailing party is entitled, even if the party has not demanded such relief in the party's pleadings. n1 When a default judgment is entered, the judgment may not be different in kind from or exceed in amount the relief prayed for in the demand for judgment. n2 Such a demand for judgment is expressly required by Rule 8(a), which provides that any pleading setting forth a claim for relief must contain a demand for judgment for the relief the pleader seeks. n3 The effects of the combination of Rule 8(a)(3) and Rule 54(c) is that a party making a claim for relief in its pleading should always include a demand for judgment that includes all of the possible kinds and amounts of relief that could be awarded, because in the event a default judgment is entered the party will be limited to that demand, n4 and also because some type of demand for judgment is always required by Rule 8(a). n5

In the event a contested judgment is ultimately entered, the court is free to grant any kind of relief appropriate, even though not requested by the claimant. n6 For example, the mooting of a complaint's request for injunctive relief does not require dismissal of the suit if monetary damages would be available on the claim, even if the monetary relief was not requested. n7 The district court should dismiss only if it appears to a legal certainty that the pleader can prove no set of facts that would entitle the pleader to any relief. n8

When the amendment of pleadings to conform to the proof is appropriate, Rule 54(c) must also be read in conjunction with Rule 15's liberal policy regarding amendments. Thus, an amendment to the pleadings is allowed whenever issues not raised in those pleadings are tried by the express or implied consent of the parties. n9 The pleadings may be amended in such cases to reflect the introduction of the issues or claims, and appropriate relief may be awarded under Rule 54(c). n10 Furthermore, the introduction of the issues or claims is effective whether or not the pleadings are actually amended by the party to reflect that introduction. n11 Consequently, when such issues are tried with the consent of the parties, relief other than that requested by the pleadings may be awarded under Rule 54(c) regardless of whether the pleadings are technically amended. n12

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 10 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.70 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(c).

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(c); see § 25.100 et seq.

(n4)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(a)(3).

(n5)Footnote 4. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(c).

(n6)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(a)(3).

(n7)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(c); see Jacobs v. City of Chicago, 215 F.3d 758, 774 (7th Cir. 2000) (even though qualified immunity defeated particular remedy of money damages, court could award any other available relief).

(n8)Footnote 7. Z Channel Ltd. Partnership v. Home Box Office, Inc., 931 F.2d 1338, 1340-1341 (9th Cir. 1991) (although only declaratory and injunctive relief were sought in complaint, and any claim to that relief was moot, possible recovery of damages not demanded under Rule 54(c) constituted current controversy).

(n9)Footnote 8. See Fuller v. Johannessen, 76 F.3d 347, 349-350 (11th Cir. 1996) .

(n10)Footnote 9. Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(b).

(n11)Footnote 10. D. Federico Co. v. New Bedford Redevelopment Auth., 723 F.2d 122, 126 (1st Cir. 1983) (even though theory of unjust enrichment was not included in pleadings, it was raised and litigated by consent of parties, so court could permit amendment and grant relief on that theory).

(n12)Footnote 11. Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(b).

(n13)Footnote 12. Kaszuk v. Bakery & Confectionery Union, 791 F.2d 548, 559 (7th Cir. 1986) (failure to amend pleadings to include request for injunctive relief does not preclude award of that relief under Rule 54(c)).

122 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
C. DEMAND FOR JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.31

§ 25.31 Demand for Judgment in Contested Casesn*

[1] Proof Rather Than Pleading Generally Controls

Every judgment, other than one for default, must award to the prevailing party all the relief to which the party is entitled, irrespective of whether the pleadings demanded that relief. n1 The purpose of Rule 54(c) is to ensure that the demand for judgment n2 will not be read to control too rigidly the relief that is ultimately awarded in the action and that the substance of the case will prevail over the form. n3 If the litigation establishes that relief of a particular kind or amount is warranted, that relief should be awarded, regardless of the state of the pleadings. Thus, the availability of relief is determined by the proof, not by the pleadings, and it is the duty of the court to grant all relief to which a party is entitled on that proof. n4

If the claimant proves all of the elements of a claim, any remedy appropriate to that claim may be ordered, even if the plaintiff erred in designating the claim in the pleadings. In other words, legal error in identifying the source of the claim is not fatal provided that all the elements of the claim are proven. n5 However, Rule 54(c) does not allow a party to introduce additional claims not established by the evidence or the record. n6 The rule permits an award of all available relief when liability has already been established by the proof; it does not permit a readjudication of liability on the basis of the record in the action. n7 Furthermore, it does not allow the court to grant relief based on an issue that was never properly presented to the court for resolution. n8

The court should not grant relief beyond the pleadings under Rule 54(c) if the party's failure to specifically request a particular form of relief has prejudiced the opposing party in its defense of the claims asserted. n9 Prejudice may result merely from delay in seeking the relief, n10 and when the delay is to an extent that the relief in question is never mentioned until after trial, the court will probably find prejudice. n11 The court will also likely deny relief under Rule 54(c) when the party has earlier expressly disclaimed any request for the relief, but, after trial, requests the relief under the rule. n12

[2] Judgment May Award Different Amount of Relief Than That Demanded

Because available relief is determined by the proof adduced at trial, and not restricted by the pleadings, n1 the court should award the amount established by the evidence at trial rather that the amount set forth in the prayer for relief. n2 Regarding damages, this scenario is rarely encountered in practice, because the pleading of a specific amount of damages is not generally required. However, if the pleading party does pray for a specific amount of claimed damages, that prayer is not an upper limit on the amount that may be awarded. n3 Similarly, if the pleading party requests particular equitable relief, but the proof establishes a right to a more extensive scope of relief, the court should award the relief proven. n4

[3] Judgment May Award Different Type of Relief Than That Demanded

If a party demands a particular kind of relief, the demand does not limit the court to awarding that relief, and any remedy supported by the record may be awarded under Rule 54(c). If the demand seeks only damages, equitable relief may be awarded when justified by the proof. n1 Conversely, if the complaint seeks equitable relief only, the court may award damages, n2 provided that the party has established sufficient proof of those damages. n3 Even in the event that the demand for judgment is improper because it requests some form of relief that may not be granted, the court should award whatever relief is established by the proof. n4

[4] Judgment May Award Undemanded Attorney's Fees or Interest on Claim

If a party proves the elements of a claim for relief, the court may order any incidental relief appropriate to that claim, even if the party did not request the incidental relief in the pleadings. This doctrine extends to such incidental relief as attorney's fees and interest. n1 Thus, the failure to request attorney's fees in the pleadings does not act as a bar to that relief; instead, the court should award attorney's fees under Rule 54(c) whenever that relief is appropriate under the law and the facts proven and a timely and properly documented motion for fees is filed under Rule 54(d)(2). n2

[5] Federal Rule Prevails in Diversity Action Over Contrary State Procedure

In a diversity action, Rule 54(c) prevails over any contrary state procedure that limits the availability of relief to that demanded in the judgment. The general rule in a diversity action, is that the applicable substantive law is that of the state and that federal law governs questions of procedure. Therefore, whether a particular remedy is available on the facts proven is a matter of state substantive law in a diversity action. n1 However, any procedural requirements imposed by the state to invoke the available remedy are not binding in a diversity action. In practice, this is not frequently a problem because most states have adopted rules of procedure that contain relief provisions similar to Rule 54(c). But a state law, other than a substantive limitation, that purports to restrict the available relief to that demanded in the complaint is superceded in federal actions by Rule 54(c), and the court may award any of the relief authorized by the state substantive law. n2

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsMultiple Claims & Parties

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 10 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.72 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(c).

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(a)(3).

(n4)Footnote 3. Mark Andy, Inc. v. Hartford Fire Insurance Company, 229 F.3d 710, 718-719 (8th Cir. 2000) (in insurance case, fairness rather than pleadings dictated that insured business should be allowed to recover for business-interruption losses).

(n5)Footnote 4. Jacobs v. City of Chicago, 215 F.3d 758, 774 (7th Cir. 2000) (even though qualified immunity defeated particular remedy of money damages, court could award any other available relief).

(n6)Footnote 5. In re Hannover Corp., 67 F.3d 70, 75 (5th Cir. 1995) (although plaintiff asserted only one particular state statute as basis for recovery in complaint, other statute was established on factual evidence; thus, judgment awarding relief under second statute was proper under Rule 54(c)).

(n7)Footnote 6. See [2], below.

(n8)Footnote 7. Dopp v. HTP Corp., 947 F.2d 506, 517-518 (1st Cir. 1991) (defendant not entitled to use Rule 54(c) to assert cross-claim against co-defendant after entry of judgment).

(n9)Footnote 8. Gilbane Bldg. Co. v. Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, 80 F.3d 895, 903-904 (4th Cir. 1996) (Rule 54(c) allows undemanded relief only when all factual conclusions necessary to relief have been found by trier of fact; therefore, omission of master's necessary findings of proximate causation and damages precluded relief under state deceptive trade practices act).

(n10)Footnote 9. Atlantic Purchasers, Inc. v. Aircraft Sales, Inc., 705 F.2d 712, 716-717 (4th Cir. 1983) .

(n11)Footnote 10. Albemarle Paper Co. v. Moody, 422 U.S. 405, 423-425, 95 S. Ct. 2362, 45 L. Ed. 2d 280 (1975) .

(n12)Footnote 11. Atlantic Purchasers, Inc. v. Aircraft Sales, Inc., 705 F.2d 712, 716-717 (4th Cir. 1983) .

(n13)Footnote 12. Walker v. Anderson Elec. Connectors, 944 F.2d 841, 844 (11th Cir. 1991) , cert. denied, 506 U.S. 1078 (1993) (when plaintiff expressly rejected any request for equitable relief in pretrial order, it could not later request that relief under Rule 54(c)).

(n14)Footnote 1. See [1], above.

(n15)Footnote 2. Scala v. Moore McCormack Lines, Inc., 985 F.2d 680, 683-684 (2d Cir. 1993) .

(n16)Footnote 3. Stineman v. Fontbonne College, 664 F.2d 1082, 1088 (8th Cir. 1981) (prayer seeking $300,000 did not limit plaintiff to recovery of that amount).

(n17)Footnote 4. Donovan v. Burger King Corp., 675 F.2d 516, 519-520 (2d Cir. 1982) (even though government requested limited injunctive relief, broad-based injunction that was supported by evidence was proper under Rule 54(c)).

(n18)Footnote 1. Jacobs v. City of Chicago, 215 F.3d 758, 774 (7th Cir. 2000) (even though qualified immunity defeated particular remedy of money damages, court could award available equitable relief).

(n19)Footnote 2. Hurd v. Romeo, 752 F.2d 68, 70-71 (3d Cir. 1985) (dismissal of complaint improper when allegations would support claim for damages, even though complaint did not actually request damages).

(n20)Footnote 3. In re Rivinius, Inc., 977 F.2d 1171, 1177 (7th Cir. 1992) .

(n21)Footnote 4. Kirby v. United States Dept. of Housing & Urban Dev., 745 F.2d 204, 207-208 (3d Cir. 1984) .

(n22)Footnote 1. O'Hare v. General Marine Transp. Corp., 740 F.2d 160, 170-171 (2d Cir. 1984) (attorney's fees and interest were properly awarded in judgment yet never demanded in pleadings).

(n23)Footnote 2. Stroud v. B-W Acceptance Corp., 372 F.2d 185, 188-189 (10th Cir. 1967) (even though not requested in complaint, fees authorized by contract properly awarded).

(n24)Footnote 1. McLeod v. Stevens, 617 F.2d 1038, 1041 (4th Cir. 1980) (because state law required plaintiff to elect between equitable and legal remedies for tort, court erred in ordering punitive damages when plaintiff sought only equitable remedies).

(n25)Footnote 2. Guillen v. Kuykendall, 470 F.2d 745, 747-748 (5th Cir. 1972) (state law requiring separate pleading of punitive tort damages inapplicable in federal diversity case).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
C. DEMAND FOR JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.32

§ 25.32 Demand for Judgment in Cases of Default Judgmentn*

A default judgment may not be different in kind from, or exceed in amount, the relief demanded in the pleadings. n1 In other words, when a judgment entered is a default judgment, the pleadings control the relief that may be awarded, both as to the kind of relief and its scope. n2 A default judgment that impermissibly grants relief beyond the pleadings is void and must be set aside under Rule 60(b)(4). n3 The rationale for applying a different rule in contested cases and in default judgment cases is that a default in essence constitutes a consent to the entry of judgment, but this consent is effective only to the extent that it was made with the information provided by the claimant. Thus, if greater relief had been demanded by the claimant, the defendant might have entered the action and defended on the merits, both as to liability and the requested relief. It would therefore be unjust to award relief greater or of a different type than that demanded in the judgment by default. n4 For a complete discussion of default judgment procedure and entry, see § 25.100 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsDefaultDefault JudgmentsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 10 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.71 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(c).

(n3)Footnote 2. Marina B. Creation S.A. v. Maurier, 685 F. Supp. 910, 912-913 (S.D.N.Y. 1988) (damages on patent claim could not be trebled in default judgment when neither pleadings nor motion for default judgment mentioned that relief).

(n4)Footnote 3. Compton v. Alton S.S. Co., 608 F.2d 96, 106 (4th Cir. 1979) (default judgment that included statutory penalty set aside when pleadings did not request that relief); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(4).

(n5)Footnote 4. In re Dierschke, 975 F.2d 181, 185 (5th Cir. 1992) (Rule 54(c) and fundamental fairness require that default judgment operate as admission only as to relief requested in complaint).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
C. DEMAND FOR JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 25.33through 25.39

[Reserved]

§§ 25.33[Reserved]

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
D. ENTRY OF JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.40

§ 25.40 Status of Order as Judgmentn*

Under the federal rules, the term "judgment" includes any decree and any order from which an appeal lies. n1 A "decree" is the traditional common-law term used to describe the final decision of a federal court sitting in equity and is still used typically by many to describe a final court order that grants injunctive relief. n2 The term "judgment" also includes a "final order" n3 and any other order that is otherwise made appealable by statute on an interlocutory basis, such as an order relating to an injunction n4 or an interlocutory order as to which the court of appeals has granted leave to appeal. n5

A final order is one that disposes of all issues in dispute. n6 Thus, a denial of relief "at this time" is not final and therefore is not appealable n7 nor is the dismissal of a complaint, if the plaintiff may under specified conditions be entitled to replead. n8 If an order merely determines liability or awards damages but fails to specify the amount due, the order does not dispose of all issues and is not a final and appealable order; therefore, it does not qualify as a judgment. n9 It has also been held that an order denying a motion for summary judgment is not a final, appealable, order and, therefore, is not a "judgment." n10 Additionally, findings of fact and conclusions of law made by a court are often referred to as a decision or an opinion. However, such a decision or an opinion is not a "judgment," but rather a statement of the reasons supporting the judgment. n11

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 58.02 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(a).

(n3)Footnote 2. See, e.g., Franklin v. District of Columbia, 163 F.3d 625, 628 (D.C. Cir. 1998)) .

(n4)Footnote 3. 28 U.S.C. § 1291.

(n5)Footnote 4. See 28 U.S.C. § 1292(a)(1).

(n6)Footnote 5. See 28 U.S.C. § 1292(b).

(n7)Footnote 6. Massey Ferguson Div. of Varity Corp. v. Gurley, 51 F.3d 102, 104-105 (7th Cir. 1995) ; McCalden v. California Library Ass'n, 955 F.2d 1214, 1218 (9th Cir. 1990) , cert. denied, 504 U.S. 957 (1992) .

(n8)Footnote 7. Foremost Sales Promotions, Inc. v. Director, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco & Firearms, 812 F.2d 1044, 1045-1046 (7th Cir. 1987) .

(n9)Footnote 8. Brill v. McDonald's Corp., 28 F.3d 633, 634 (7th Cir. 1994) .

(n10)Footnote 9. Stamatakis Indus. v. J. Walter Thompson, 944 F.2d 382, 383 (7th Cir. 1991) (order that does not specify relief that parties are entitled to is not final order).

(n11)Footnote 10. Abbs v. Sullivan, 963 F.2d 918, 923 (7th Cir. 1992) .

(n12)Footnote 11. See Hughes v. Halifax County Sch. Bd., 823 F.2d 832, 834-836 (4th Cir. 1987) , cert. denied, 488 U.S. 1042 (1989) (although it frequently used word "judgment," document which combined dispository language with explanation of court's reasoning was not judgment).

126 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
D. ENTRY OF JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.41

§ 25.41 Entry of Judgment in Separate Documentn*

[1] Court Must Generally Set Forth Judgment on Separate Document

The district court must generally set forth every judgment and amended judgment in a separate document; n1 however, a separate document is not required for an order disposing of any of the following motions: n2

1. Motion for judgment under Rule 50(b). n3

2. Motion to amend or make additional factual findings under Rule 52(b). n4

3. Motion for attorney's fees under Rule 54. n5

4. Motion for a new trial, or to alter or amend the judgment, under Rule 59. n6

5. Motion for relief under Rule 60 n7.

The separate document requirement applies both to judgments prepared by the clerk without direction by the court pursuant to Rule 58(b)(1), n8 and to more complex judgments requiring court approval of the form of the judgment, pursuant to Rule 58(b)(2). n9

[2] Purpose of Separate Document Requirement

The purpose of the separate document requirement is to establish with certainty when the time for appeal begins to run. n1 Thus, the separate document requirement was designed to work in conjunction with the "final judgment" rule of appealability set by statute. n2 Thus, the separate-document requirement is the primary means for the district court and the court of appeals to ensure a definitive time of the judgment for purposes of appeal. n3 The filing of the judgment on a separate document avoids any confusion that could result from the utilization of docket entries to determine a date of final judgment. n4

[3] Satisfaction of Separate Document Requirement

A judgment satisfies the separate document requirement only if it does not contain matters other than the judgment itself and is a self-contained specification of the prevailing party and relief the court has awarded. n1 Rule 58 does not require that any formal or specific terminology be used in the separate document. The rule requires only a simply phrased judgment as exemplified in the Official Forms, n2 Form 70, Judgment on a Jury Verdict; and Form 71, Judgment by the Court without a Jury. n3 The requirement of a separate document means that the judgment itself must be entirely separate from any order of the court or any opinion or memorandum. n4 The "self-containment" requirement means that the judgment may not rely on references to other proceedings or other documents. n5

[4] Party's Request for Judgment in Separate Document

Either party may make a motion that the court set forth and enter judgment on a separate document as required by Rule 58(a)(1). n1 This provision of Rule 58(d) allows any party to move for entry of judgment on a separate document and protects all concerns for prompt commencement of the periods for motions, appeals, and execution or other enforcement. n2 Allowing any party to move for entry on a separate document avoids any delays that would be caused by the former practice of directing the attorneys for the prevailing party to prepare a form of judgment, and also avoids any problems of inept drafting in attorney prepared judgments. n3

[5] Waiver of Separate Document Requirement

The parties to a case may waive the separate document requirement for a judgment by failing to object to the judge's failure to set forth the judgment on a separate document. Such a waiver means that an appeal of the judgment may not be challenged on the ground that the judgment was not set forth in a separate document. n1 The waiver rule has been promulgated because the separate document requirement is designed to establish a certain time when the time limits for an appeal begin, and to eliminate uncertainties regarding exactly when a "judgment" is entered. If the court and the appellant regard an order as final and appealable, the purpose of the rule is satisfied, n2 and requiring a remand for the entry of judgment on a separate document would merely cause delay in the disposition of the appeal. n3 Therefore, appellate courts consider the issue of waiver of the separate document requirement in the manner designed to protect the right to appeal, not in a way to defeat the right. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 58.05 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(a).

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(a); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(a), Committee Notes to 2002 Amendments (such orders need not be set forth in separate document whether or not they are "final judgments" for appeal purposes).

(n4)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(a)(1); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(b).

(n5)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(a)(2); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(b).

(n6)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(a)(3); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2)(B).

(n7)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(a)(4); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(a), (e).

(n8)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(a)(5); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a),(b).

(n9)Footnote 8. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(b)(1), discussed in § 25.42[2].

(n10)Footnote 9. United States v. Indrelunas, 411 U.S. 216, 221-222, 93 S. Ct. 1562, 36 L. Ed. 2d 202 (1973) (citing Moore's Federal Practice); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(b)(2), discussed in § 25.42[3].

(n11)Footnote 1. Bankers Trust Co. v. Mallis, 435 U.S. 381, 384, 98 S. Ct. 1117, 55 L. Ed. 2d 357 (1978) ; Bogaerts v. Shapiro (In re Litas Int'l, Inc.), 316 F.3d 113, 118-119 (2d Cir. 2003) .

(n12)Footnote 2. See 28 U.S.C. § 1291; see also Bogaerts v. Shapiro (In re Litas Int'l, Inc.), 316 F.3d 113, 118 (2d Cir. 2003) (Rule 58 designed to avoid uncertainties as to the date on which a judgment is entered, for purposes of time limits allowed for appeal).

(n13)Footnote 3. See Chambers v. City of Fordyce, 508 F.3d 878, 881 (8th Cir. 2007) .

(n14)Footnote 4. Colon-Santiago v. Rosario, 438 F.3d 101, 106 (1st Cir. 2006) .

(n15)Footnote 1. Dudley v. Penn-America Ins. Co., 313 F.3d 662, 670 (2d Cir. 2002) .

(n16)Footnote 2. Stamatakis Indus. v. J. Walter Thompson, Inc., 944 F.2d 382, 384 (7th Cir. 1991) .

(n17)Footnote 3. See Appendix of Forms, Appendix to Ch. 26, Post-Judgment Procedures; see also Moore's Federal Practice, Rules Pamphlet Part 1, Official Forms (Matthew Bender).

(n18)Footnote 4. Allison v. Bank One-Denver, 289 F.3d 1223, 1232-1233 (10th Cir. 2002) .

(n19)Footnote 5. Marseilles Hydro Power, LLC v. Marseilles Land & Water Co., 299 F.3d 643, 646 (7th Cir. 2002) .

(n20)Footnote 1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(d).

(n21)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(d).

(n22)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 58, Committee Note to 2002 Amendments.

(n23)Footnote 1. Fed. R. App. p. 4(a)(7)(B); see Yates v. District of Columbia, 324 F.3d 724, 725 (D.C. Cir. 2003) .

(n24)Footnote 2. See Fed. R. App. p. 4(a)(7)(B) Committee Note to 2002 Amendments; Yates v. District of Columbia, 324 F.3d 724, 725 (D.C. Cir. 2003) .

(n25)Footnote 3. Bankers Trust Co. v. Mallis, 435 U.S. 381, 384, 98 S. Ct. 1117, 55 L. Ed. 2d 357 (1978) (citing Moore's Federal Practice); Bogaerts v. Shapiro (In re Litas Int'l, Inc.), 316 F.3d 113, 117-118 (2d Cir. 2003) .

(n26)Footnote 4. See Bogaerts v. Shapiro (In re Litas Int'l, Inc.), 316 F.3d 113, 118-119 (2d Cir. 2003) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
D. ENTRY OF JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.42

§ 25.42 Procedural Requirements for Entry of Judgment

[1] Clerk's Responsibility to Enter Judgment on Civil Docket

[a] Clerk's Duty of Entry

The clerk of the district court must maintain a civil docket in which all judgments are noted chronologically. n1 The judgment entries must be brief and must show the substance of each judgment and the date the entry was made. n2 The time of "entry" of a judgment or final order is important because it starts the time to file a notice of appeal or to file certain postjudgment motions. A judgment generally is deemed "entered" for this purpose when it is set forth on a separate document, if required, n2.1 and entered in the civil docket under Rule 79(a). n2.2 However, if the judgment is never set forth in a separate document, even though required, the judgment will be deemed "entered" 150 days after its entry in the civil docket. n2.3

Certain orders disposing of postjudgment motions are not required to be set forth on a separate document; n2.4 these orders are deemed "entered" when the clerk enters them in the civil docket. n2.5 Any entry on the civil docket by the clerk requires a proper notation in the docket and not mere filing. n2.6

It should be noted that entry of the judgment by the clerk does not constitute the actual judgment, which is the substance of the court's decision as stated in the separate document. Thus, the docket entry is not per se a judgment, because the court must render the judgment; the clerk only enters a judgment on the court records. For purposes of determining whether a final judgment had been entered from which a party may appeal, and the substance of the judgment, the separate document controls, and not the clerk's entry. n3

[b] Clerk's Entry Must Be Prompt

Without waiting for the court's direction, the clerk must promptly enter a judgment unless the court orders otherwise for a simple case: when the jury returns a general verdict, when the court awards only costs or a specific sum, or when the court denies all relief. n4 In other cases, including when the jury returns a special verdict or a general verdict accompanied by interrogatories, the court must promptly approve the form of judgment, which the clerk must then promptly enter. n5 The requirements specified in Rule 58 must be met regardless of any conflicting local district court rule. Local rules may supplement Rule 58, but only to the extent that they are consistent with it. n6

In addition to entering the judgment, the clerk is also required to notify the parties of the entry of the judgment; n7 however, notice of entry is not necessary to start the clock running on the time for appeal; thus, lack of notice of the entry by the clerk does not affect the time to appeal or relieve, or authorize the court to relieve, a party for failure to appeal within the time allowed, except as permitted in Rule 4(a) of the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure. n8

[2] Entry of Judgment Without Court Approval

Unless a judgment is a partial judgment n1 or the court orders otherwise, the clerk must enter the judgment without court approval in three situations. The court clerk is required to promptly prepare, sign, and enter a judgment without waiting for the court's direction in any of the following three situations:

1. If the jury returns a general verdict; n2

2. When the court awards only costs or a sum certain; n3 or

3. When the court denies all relief. n4

If the judgment is more complex, the form of the judgment requires approval of the court before it is entered. n5

Under this provision the court retains the power to order the clerk not to enter a judgment. n6 However, the court should exercise the power sparingly to avoid delay and confusion. For example, the court may order a postponement in entry of judgment when the court has reserved decision on a motion for a directed verdict made at the close of evidence, n7 or when a motion for a new trial has been made after a verdict. In such circumstances, it may be appropriate to postpone entry of judgment until the motion is decided, although the clerk should not do so unless the court makes that order. n8

[3] Entry of Judgment With Court Approval Required

The court has the obligation to promptly approve the judgment in two situations in which the judgment is more complex than those described in [2], above. n1 Thus, the court must approve the form of a judgment, and the clerk must promptly enter the approved judgment, in either of the following two situations:

1. When the jury returns a special verdict or a general verdict accompanied by interrogatories; n2 or

2. When the court grants relief other than costs or a sum certain, as described in Rule 58(a)(2). n3

Entry of a complex judgment is subject to Rule 54(b) regarding partial judgments in actions involving multiple claims or parties. n4

[4] Entry of Partial Judgment In Cases With Multiple Claims and Parties

In an action involving multiple claims or multiple parties, the court has the option to enter a final judgment for some but not all parties. The provisions of Rule 58(a)(2) involving the entry of judgment are subject to this provision of Rule 54(b). n1 Consequently, if a judgment adjudicates some but not all claims or claims relating to fewer than all parties, the clerk must await further action by the court before entering judgment. Under Rule 54(b), the court may certify such a judgment as final and direct the clerk to enter it if there is no just reason for delay. n2 However, the Rule 58 requirement of a separate document and proper entry pursuant to Rule 79(a) must still be satisfied. n3

[5] Time of Entry of Judgment

The date of "entry" of a judgment controls for purposes of deadlines related to notice of appeal and postjudgment motions. n1 The date of entry under the rules depends on whether a separate document is necessary for the judgment, as stated in Rule 58(a)(1). n2 Thus, judgment is deemed entered under the Civil and Appellate Rules as follows: n3

1. If Rule 58(a)(1) does not require a separate document, n4 the date of entry is when it is entered in the civil docket under Rule 79(a); n5 or

2. If Rule 58(a)(1) requires a separate document, n6 the date of entry is when it is entered in the civil docket under Rule 79(a), and when the earlier of the following events occurs: n7

a. when it is set forth on a separate document; n8 or

b. when 150 days have run from entry in the civil docket under Rule 79(a). n9

Amended Rule 58(b) discards the attempt of the former version of the rule to define the time when a judgment becomes "effective." Taken in conjunction with the Rule 54(a) definition of a judgment in terms of an "order from which an appeal lies," the former version Rule 58 definition of "effectiveness" would cause confusion in implementing pretrial orders that are appealable under interlocutory appeal provisions or under expansive theories of finality. Rule 58(b) therefore replaces the definition of "effectiveness" with a new provision that defines the time when judgment is "entered," which is the crucial time in any event, because the timing provisions of the other rules all focus on the "entry" of judgment. n10

This new all-purpose definition of the "entry of judgment" must be applied with common sense to other questions that may turn on the time when judgment is "entered." Therefore, if the 150-day provision in Rule 58(b)(2)(B), which is designed to integrate the time for post-judgment motions with appeal time, serves no purpose or would defeat the purpose of another rule, it should be disregarded. For example, the separate document requirement continues to apply to an interlocutory order that is appealable as a final decision under the collateral-order doctrine. However, appealability under the collateral-order doctrine should not be complicated by failure to enter the order as a judgment on a separate document, because there is little reason to force trial judges to speculate about the potential appealability of every order, and there is no means to ensure that the trial judge will always reach the same conclusion as the court of appeals. Appeal time should start to run when the collateral order is entered without regard to the creation of a separate document and without awaiting the expiration of the 150 days. n11

[6] Entry of Judgment Nunc Pro Tunc

The Latin phrase "nunc pro tunc" literally means "now for then." A nunc pro tunc order creates a legal fiction that the a judgment or order exist as of the date to which it is made effective. Court orders entered nunc pro tunc are normally used for the purpose of rectifying an omission from the court records and, therefore, are deemed to have retroactive effect. n0.1 In reference to the entry of judgment, nunc pro tunc means that the judgment relates back to a designated past date and that entry of the judgment is to be given certain retroactive effects. n1 A nunc pro tunc judgment is an equitable remedy traditionally available to promote fairness to the parties and as justice may require. n2 The entry nunc pro tunc, however, must have a proper factual basis and may not be used by the lower court as a device to amend a judgment which properly reflected the decision of the court, but which was later found to be erroneous, or to otherwise amend an unalterable record. n3

In the context of the clerk's duty, for example, a court may make a judgment nunc pro tunc when a judgment has been rendered but the clerk has failed to perform the ministerial task of entry. n4 An entry of a judgment nunc pro tunc also has been upheld when a party has erroneously assumed that the judgment rendered has been entered and has consequently appealed from the unentered judgment. n5 Similarly, a district court may enter a nunc pro tunc order making the express determination and the express direction, required by Rule 54(b) to give finality to an adjudication of one or more, but less than all, of the multiple claims in an action in order to cure the deficiency in an appeal from an order that lacks finality in the absence of the "express determination" and the "express direction" by the district court. n6

[7] Delay of Entry Not Allowed to Tax Costs or Award Fees

Even though the court is permitted to delay entry of judgment in certain circumstances to promote the efficient administration of the court proceedings, n1 Rule 58 expressly provides that entry of a judgment generally may not be delayed for the taxing of costs or awarding of fees. n2 The requirement that judgment not be delayed to tax costs or award fees is in accord with the general purpose of Rule 58 to facilitate appeals. However, at times it may be more efficient to decide fee questions before an appeal is taken so that appeals relating to the fee award may be heard at the same time as appeals relating to the merits of the case. n3

If a party files a timely motion for attorney's fees under Rule 54(d)(2) n4 and no notice of appeal has been filed or has become effective, the court may order that the motion have the same effect under Rule 4(a)(4) of the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure as a timely motion under Rule 59. n5 This means that the time for appeal will run from the entry of the order entirely disposing of the Rule 54(d)(2) motion. n6 If the court does extend the time to appeal, a notice of appeal filed after entry of judgment is ineffective until disposition of the Rule 54(d)(2) motion, with respect only to the motion of the party designated in the order. The filing of a fees motion by any other party will not extend the time for appeal. n7

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsClerks of CourtGovernmentsCourtsCourt Records

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 79(a)(2)(C); see Otis v. City of Chicago, 29 F.3d 1159, 1163 (7th Cir. 1994) .

(n2)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 79(a)(3); see United States v. Indrelunas, 411 U.S. 216, 221, 93 S. Ct. 1562, 36 L. Ed. 2d 202 (1973) .

(n3)Footnote 2.1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(a); see § 25.41[1].

(n4)Footnote 2.2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(c)(2)(A); see Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(7)(A)(ii).

(n5)Footnote 2.3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(c)(2)(B); see Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(7)(A)(ii).

(n6)Footnote 2.4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(a); see § 25.41[1] (list of orders not requiring separate document).

(n7)Footnote 2.5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(c)(1); see Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(7)(A)(i).

(n8)Footnote 2.6. Herrera v. First N. Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 805 F.2d 896, 898 (10th Cir. 1986) .

(n9)Footnote 3. Knevelbaard Dairies v. Kraft Foods, Inc., 232 F.3d 979, 995-996 (9th Cir. 2000) (when clerk's designation conflicted with judgment itself, judgment controlled).

(n10)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(b)(1); see [2], below.

(n11)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(b)(2); see [3], below.

(n12)Footnote 6. McKee v. Bi-State Dev. Agency, 801 F.2d 1014, 1017-1018 (8th Cir. 1986) (local court rule that provided that judgment on merits was not final until court ruled on attorney's fees was invalid because it conflicted with rule that time for appeal begins to run from date of entry of judgment).

(n13)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 77(d)(1).

(n14)Footnote 8. Fed. R. Civ. P. 77(d)(2); see Fed. R. App. P. 4(1); see also Clark v. Lavallie, 204 F.3d 1038, 1041 (10th Cir. 2000) .

(n15)Footnote 1. See [4], below.

(n16)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(b)(1)(A); see Official Form 70, "Judgment on Jury Verdict."

(n17)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(b)(1)(B).

(n18)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(b)(1)(C).

(n19)Footnote 5. See [3], below.

(n20)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(b)(1).

(n21)Footnote 7. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(b).

(n22)Footnote 8. See Marre v. United States, 38 F.3d 823, 825 (5th Cir. 1994) .

(n23)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(b)(2); see EOI Electronics, Inc. v. Xebec, 785 F.2d 391, 398 (2d Cir. 1986) (judgment not properly entered because court did not approve of form of judgment).

(n24)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(b)(2)(A). When the jury returns a special verdict, the court has the duty to render a final judgment based on the jury's findings (Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(a)) and then to promptly approve the form of the judgment. Robles v. Exxon Corp., 862 F.2d 1201, 1204 (5th Cir. 1989) , cert. denied, 490 U.S. 1051 (1989) . If the answers to written questions accompanying a general verdict are consistent with the verdict, the court should promptly approve an appropriate form of judgment (Fed. R. Civ. P. 49(b)). The consequences of inconsistent verdicts and answers are discussed in Chapter 22, Trial by Jury.

(n25)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(b)(2)(B).

(n26)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(b)(2); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b); see also [4], below.

(n27)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(b); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b).

(n28)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b).

(n29)Footnote 3. Willhauck v. Halpin, 953 F.2d 689, 701-702 (1st Cir. 1991) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(a)(1).

(n30)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58, Committee Note to 2002 Amendments.

(n31)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(c); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(a); see also [1], above.

(n32)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(c); Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(7).

(n33)Footnote 4. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(a); see also [1], above.

(n34)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(c)(1); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 79(a)(2)(C).

(n35)Footnote 6. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(a); see also [1], above.

(n36)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(c)(2); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 79(a)(2)(C).

(n37)Footnote 8. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(c)(2)(A).

(n38)Footnote 9. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(c)(2)(A).

(n39)Footnote 10. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58, Committee Note to 2002 Amendments.

(n40)Footnote 11. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(b), Committee Notes to 2002 Amendments.

(n41)Footnote 0.1. Patton v. Denver Post Corp., 326 F.3d 1148, 1153-1154 (10th Cir. 2003) .

(n42)Footnote 1. Sierra Club v. Whitman, 285 F.3d 63, 67-68 (D.C. Cir. 2002) .

(n43)Footnote 2. Ethyl Corp. v. Browner, 67 F.3d 941, 945 (D.C. Cir. 1995) (in context of agency orders, nunc pro tunc relief is available when necessary to put victim of agency error in economic position it would have occupied but for erroneous order).

(n44)Footnote 3. Chambers v. American Trans Air, Inc., 990 F.2d 317, 318 (7th Cir. 1993) .

(n45)Footnote 4. Hull v. United States, 971 F.2d 1499, 1507-1508 (10th Cir. 1992) , cert. denied, 507 U.S. 1030 (1993) (months after making findings of fact and conclusions of law and awarding damages, district court issued order nunc pro tunc directing clerk to enter findings and conclusions as judgment, but judgment not considered entered for purposes of accrual of interest on award until entry of nunc pro tunc order, which satisfied separate document requirement).

(n46)Footnote 5. Martin v. Staples, 164 F.2d 106 (D.C. Cir. 1947) (appellate court may find that justice would be served by entry nunc pro tunc, as of the date that the entry should have been made).

(n47)Footnote 6. Ross v. City of Waukegan, 5 F.3d 1084, 1089 (7th Cir. 1993) .

(n48)Footnote 1. See Marre v. United States, 38 F.3d 823, 825 (5th Cir. 1994) .

(n49)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(e); see Budinich v. Becton Dickinson & Co., 486 U.S. 196, 199-201, 108 S. Ct. 1717, 100 L. Ed. 2d 178 (1988) ; Deboard v. Sunshine Mining & Ref. Co., 208 F.3d 1228, 1236 n.4 (10th Cir. 2000) .

(n50)Footnote 3. Fed. R. App. P. 4, Committee Note to 1993 Amendments.

(n51)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2).

(n52)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(e).

(n53)Footnote 6. Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4)(A)(iii).

(n54)Footnote 7. Deboard v. Sunshine Mining & Ref. Co., 208 F.3d 1228, 1236 n. 4 (10th Cir. 2000) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
D. ENTRY OF JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.43

§ 25.43 Effect of Proper Entry of Judgmentn*

The time of proper completion of "entry" of a judgment or final order is significant procedurally because it starts the time to file a notice of appeal n1 or to file certain postjudgment motions. n2 A judgment generally is deemed "entered" for these purposes when it is set forth on a separate document, if required, n3 and entered in the civil docket under Rule 79(a). n4 However, if a judgment is never set out on a separate document, even though required, the judgment is nevertheless deemed to be "entered" 150 days after its entry in the civil docket. n5 Certain orders disposing of postjudgment motions are not required to be set forth on a separate document. n6 These orders are deemed "entered" when the clerk enters them in the civil docket. n6.1 Entry on the civil docket by the clerk requires a proper notation in the docket; it is not sufficient for entry that the clerk merely receives the judgment or order, or that the clerk marks it as "filed.". n6.2 The court of appeals may raise on its own initiative the issue of whether the entry conforms to Rule 58 requirements for purposes of commencing the time limit to initiate an appeal. n6.3

The consequences of the district court's failure to comply with Rule 58 are generally that time limits that take effect on entry of a judgment do not begin to run. n6.4 Thus, if the district court does not enter its final judgment on a separate document when required, the time to appeal does not begin to run, n6.5 unless it is ultimately properly entered on the civil docket, and then the time does not begin to run until 150 days after the entry on the civil docket. n6.6 Even though technically a party should not file a notice of appeal until after entry of judgment, the rules provide that when a party files a notice of appeal after rendition of judgment, but before entry of judgment by the clerk, the notice of appeal must be deemed to have been filed immediately following entry, once the clerk properly enters the judgment. n6.7 However, if a party files a notice of appeal after rendition of judgment, but before entry of judgment by the clerk, the notice is treated as if it had been filed immediately following entry, once the clerk properly enters the judgment. n7

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsPreclusion & Effect of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsReviewabilityNotice of AppealCivil ProcedureAppealsReviewabilityTime Limitations

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 58.03 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. United States v. Indrelunas, 411 U.S. 216, 218, 93 S. Ct. 1562, 36 L. Ed. 2d 202 (1973) (citing Moore's Federal Practice); see Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(1).

(n3)Footnote 2. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b).

(n4)Footnote 3. See § 25.41[1].

(n5)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(c)(2)(A); see Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(7)(A)(ii).

(n6)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(c)(2)(B); see Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(7)(A)(ii).

(n7)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(a); see § 25.41[1] (list of orders not requiring separate document).

(n8)Footnote 6.1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(c)(1); see Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(7)(A)(i).

(n9)Footnote 6.2. Herrera v. First N. Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 805 F.2d 896, 898 (10th Cir. 1986) .

(n10)Footnote 6.3. Production & Maintenance Employees' Local 504, Laborers' Int'l Union v. Roadmaster Corp., 954 F.2d 1397, 1402 (7th Cir. 1992) .

(n11)Footnote 6.4. See § 25.44.

(n12)Footnote 6.5. Quinn v. Haynes, 234 F.3d 837, 843 (4th Cir. 2001) .

(n13)Footnote 6.6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(c)(2)(B); see Green v. Nevers, 196 F.3d 627, 630-631 & n.3 (6th Cir. 1999) .

(n14)Footnote 6.7. Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(2); see Barber v. Whirlpool Corp., 34 F.3d 1268, 1273-1275 (4th Cir. 1994) .

(n15)Footnote 7. Fed. R. App. P. 4(a); see Barber v. Whirlpool Corp., 34 F.3d 1268, 1273-1275 (4th Cir. 1994) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
D. ENTRY OF JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.44

§ 25.44 Effect of Failure to Enter Judgmentn*

Until one of the events constituting entry of judgment occurs, n1 the time for filing a notice of appeal does not begin to run. n1.1 The result of failure to enter judgment on a separate document also means that the time for making motions under Rules 50, 52, 54(d)(2)(B), 59, and some motions under Rule 60, never begins to run. n1.2 However, when the court and clerk have failed to properly enter judgment on a separate document, any party, usually the prevailing party, may request the court to set forth and enter the judgment on a separate document as required by Rule 58(a)(1), n1.3 and thus start the deadline time running to file an appeal. n2

Furthermore, the satisfaction of Rule 58's requirements is not a jurisdictional prerequisite to an appeal of a final judgment, n3 provided that the district court has made clear its intent to dispose of all issues n4 and has in fact divested itself of all remaining subject matter jurisdiction. n5 Therefore, "finality," is the jurisdictional prerequisite n6 and not Rule 58's requirements of a separate document and entry by the clerk. n7 When the intent of the court to make a final disposition is unclear, an appellate court must dismiss any appeal for lack of jurisdiction, n8 remanding to the district court for clarification when required. n9

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsReviewabilityNotice of AppealCivil ProcedureAppealsReviewabilityTime Limitations

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 58.06 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See § 25.42[5].

(n3)Footnote 1.1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(a)-(c), Committee Notes to 2002 Amendments; see Fed. R. App. P. 4(a).

(n4)Footnote 1.2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(a)-(c), Committee Notes to 2002 Amendments; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 50, 52, 54, 59, and 60.

(n5)Footnote 1.3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(d).

(n6)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(a)-(c), Committee Notes to 2002 Amendments.

(n7)Footnote 3. See Transit Management of Southeast La., Inc. v. Group Ins. Admin., Inc., 226 F.3d 376, 382 (5th Cir. 2000) ; Cook v. Powell Buick, Inc., 155 F.3d 758, 761 n.8 (5th Cir. 1998) , overruled in part on other grounds by Devlin v. Scardelletti, 536 U.S. 1 (2002) (unlike Rule 54(b) certification, separate document requirement of Rule 58 is not jurisdictional and may be waived).

(n8)Footnote 4. Nunez-Soto v. Alvarado, 956 F.2d 1, 2 (1st Cir. 1992) .

(n9)Footnote 5. Corion Corp. v. Chen, 964 F.2d 55, 56-57 (1st Cir. 1992) .

(n10)Footnote 6. In re Slimick, 928 F.2d 304, 307 (9th Cir. 1990) .

(n11)Footnote 7. See Lower Elwha Band of S'Klallams v. Lummi Indian Tribe, 235 F.3d 443, 448-449 (9th Cir. 2000) .

(n12)Footnote 8. Benjamin v. United States, 833 F.2d 669, 671-672 (7th Cir. 1987) .

(n13)Footnote 9. United States v. Woods, 885 F.2d 352, 353-354 (6th Cir. 1989) (remanding for district court to clarify, explain, and give reasons for its margin order granting summary judgment).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
D. ENTRY OF JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 25.45through 25.59

[Reserved]

§§ 25.45[Reserved]

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
E. COSTS RECOVERABLE WITH JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.60

§ 25.60 Nature and Scope of Recoverable Costsn*

[1] Provision for Costs

The district court should allow costs other than attorney's fees as a matter of course to the prevailing party, n1 except in three situations: n2 (1) when the court expressly directs that the prevailing party is not entitled to costs; n3 (2) when an express provision for costs is made either in a federal statute or rule; n4 or (3) costs may be imposed only to the extent permitted by law against the United States, its officers, and agencies. n5 An award of costs under Rule 54(d)(1) falls within the discretion of the trial court, meaning that even if a party satisfies the definition of a "prevailing party," the district court retains broad discretion as to how much costs to award, if any. n6 Under the Erie doctrine, a federal court sitting in diversity is required to apply the substantive law of the state, but the procedure in such actions is governed by federal law. n7 The issue of whether and what amount of costs may be awarded incident to the judgment is a procedural issue under the Erie doctrine. Therefore, in diversity actions, federal law governs the award and prevails over contrary state costs provisions. n8

[2] Nature of Recoverable Costs

As used in Rule 54(d)(1), "costs" is a term of art that refers only to those particular expenses that a court may tax to an opposing party based on specific statutory authority n1 as an incident of the judgment in the action. n2 Although the court generally should make an award of "costs" to the prevailing party, n3 the prevailing party is not necessarily entitled to recover all of the various types of litigation expenses, because the term "costs" is not synonymous with litigation expenses. Often the largest expense incurred by a prevailing party is the amount of compensation paid to the party's attorneys; however, that expense is not taxable as a "cost" in the action n4 and generally may not be recovered under the American Rule, which prohibits the shifting of litigation expenses. Thus, attorney's fees may generally be recovered only by statute or by contractual provision. n5

Rule 54(d)(1) allows prevailing parties to receive only costs other than attorneys' fees. n6 As noted in the Rule, the discretion of the district court to award costs is subordinated to Congress's dictates when express provisions are made in federal statutory authority. Congress has displaced or modified district courts' discretion in a variety of contexts, particularly where costs are taxed against the United States and its officers, However, the most significant provisions are in a statute that enumerates the categories of costs and fees that a judge or the clerk of the court may tax. n7 As the Supreme Court has explained, absent explicit statutory or contractual authorization, federal courts are bound by the limitations set out in 28 U.S.C. § 1920. n8 The district court may tax only those costs explicitly authorized by statute and only for the amounts authorized in the statute. Thus, the discretion granted by Rule 54(d)(1) permits the court only to decline to tax allowable costs, not to tax costs in the absence of statutory authorization. n9 The costs that the district court may award under Rule 54(d)(1) are comprehensively listed in the 28 U.S.C. Section 1920, and a district court may not award other costs or exceed the amounts provided without some other explicit statutory authorization. n10

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesCostsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.103 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See § 25.61.

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(1).

(n4)Footnote 3. See § 25.61.

(n5)Footnote 4. See § 25.62.

(n6)Footnote 5. See § 25.63.

(n7)Footnote 6. Ruiz v. A.B. Chance Co., 234 F.3d 654, 670 (Fed. Cir. 2001) .

(n8)Footnote 7. See Erie R.R. Co. v. Tompkins, 304 U.S. 64, 58 S. Ct. 817, 82 L. Ed. 1188, 11 Ohio Op. 246 (1938) .

(n9)Footnote 8. Aceves v. Allstate Ins. Co., 68 F.3d 1160, 1167-1168 (9th Cir. 1995) (taxation of expert witness fees is issue of trial procedure governed by federal law, so district court erred in awarding reimbursement for expert under state law).

(n10)Footnote 1. *Arlington Cent. Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ. v. Murphy, 548 U.S. 291, 126 S. Ct. 2455, 165 L. Ed. 2d 526, 2006 U.S. LEXIS 5162, 13 (2006) .

(n11)Footnote 2. Crawford Fitting Co. v. J.T. Gibbons, Inc., 482 U.S. 437, 441-445, 107 S. Ct. 2494, 96 L. Ed. 2d 385 (1987) (Rule 54(d) does not grant court discretion to award any type of cost court sees fit, because Section 1920 defines the term costs as used in Rule 54(d)).

(n12)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(1); see § 25.61.

(n13)Footnote 4. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(1), (2) (costs and attorney's fees treated separately).

(n14)Footnote 5. Jannotta v. Subway Sandwich Shops, Inc., 225 F.3d 815, 817-818 (7th Cir. 2001) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2); see also § 25.80 et seq.

(n15)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(1).

(n16)Footnote 7. See 28 U.S.C. § 1920.

(n17)Footnote 8. *Arlington Cent. Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ. v. Murphy, 548 U.S. 291, 126 S. Ct. 2455, 165 L. Ed. 2d 526, 2006 U.S. LEXIS 5162, *13-14 (2006) (under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, plaintiff could not recover as "costs" expenses and fees paid to expert witnesses because such expenses were not specified as costs either in IDEA or in Section 1920).

(n18)Footnote 9. Crawford Fitting Co. v. J.T. Gibbons, Inc., 482 U.S. 437, 441-445, 107 S. Ct. 2494, 96 L. Ed. 2d 385 (1987) .

(n19)Footnote 10. *Arlington Cent. Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ. v. Murphy, 548 U.S. 291, 126 S. Ct. 2455, 165 L. Ed. 2d 526, 2006 U.S. LEXIS 5162, *13-14 (2006) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
E. COSTS RECOVERABLE WITH JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.61

§ 25.61 Costs Generally Recoverable by Prevailing Partyn*

[1] Court's Discretion to Award Costs to Prevailing Party

A court must allow statutory costs as a matter of course to the prevailing party unless the court specifically directs otherwise. Courts have construed "otherwise direct" language of the rule as a grant of discretion to the district court to limit or deny otherwise taxable costs to the prevailing party, but not to exceed statutory limitations on taxable costs. n1 However, that language also creates a strong presumption that the prevailing party is entitled to recover costs under Rule 54(d). n2 This presumption means that if the judgment entered by the district court makes no mention of costs at all, the judgment is presumed to be one allowing costs. n3 The presumption applies even if the costs were actually paid by a third party, such as an insurer and not by the prevailing party. n4 Furthermore, because the prevailing party is presumptively entitled to an award of costs the district court may not deny costs to the prevailing party unless the court explains the reasons for the denial, n5 or unless the circumstances justifying denial of costs are clearly evident from the record. n6 For a discussion of the meaning of the term "prevailing party," see [2], below.

The presumption that the prevailing party is entitled to costs must be overcome by some showing that an award would be inequitable under all the circumstances, and the losing party bears the burden of making the showing of inequity. n7 A district court has the discretion to refuse to award costs to the prevailing party when it would be inequitable under all the circumstances in the case to do so. For example, the district court may use its discretion to deny costs when the prevailing party's expenditures are unreasonably large, when the prevailing party prolonged the litigation or raised frivolous issues, when the claims are close or difficult, when the prevailing party's recovery is insignificant, n8 or when a party prevails technically without obtaining recovery. n9 When the prevailing party is guilty of some significant misconduct that warrants sanctions, the court may even exercise its discretion under Rule 54(d)(1) and order the prevailing party to pay some or all of the costs of the action. n10

The court must consider all factors and may not justify a denial of costs solely based on one factor. The court also has discretion to allocate costs. Thus, in assessing costs in a discrimination case, it was held that the district court may consider plaintiff's financial resources, but that factor alone would not be sufficient basis to deny costs entirely to a prevailing defendant. n11 Similarly, a district court's disapproval of a prevailing defendant's conduct that was the basis for plaintiff's claim is not by itself a sufficient basis to deny costs to the prevailing defendant. n12 Additionally, the mere fact that the losing party's position had merit or that the case presented close and difficult issues is not a sufficient ground to totally deny costs to the prevailing party. n13

It should be noted that some federal statutes either mandate or prohibit an award of costs in particular circumstances, removing the court's discretion under Rule 54(d)(1). n14 In this regard, statutes that mandate costs are substantially more common than those prohibiting them. Many of the statutes that mandate costs are those which are based on public interest factors, such as antitrust actions, n15 or consumer protection or consumer safety actions. n16

[2] Prevailing Party for Purposes of Costs

The "prevailing party" for purposes of the party generally entitled to an award of costs n1 is the party in whose favor judgment was entered, n1.1 even if that judgment does not fully vindicate all of that party's positions and assertions in the case. n2 This test is known as the judgment-winner test and is generally applied for purposes of cost awards. By contrast the "prevailing party" standard for awarding attorney's fees under Rule 54(d)(2) is more stringent. n3 The simple judgment-winner test relies on the formalities of the judgment entered and is mechanical in its operation, not allowing for any consideration of the practical effect of the litigation. n4 On the other hand, the prevailing party inquiry in the context of attorney's fees focuses primarily on that practical effect of the litigation, not necessarily on the technical judgment victor. n5

[3] Particular Types of Costs Recoverable as Matter of Course to Prevailing Party

The following are costs that the court may award as a matter of course to the prevailing party: n1

1. Fees of the clerk and marshal. n2 The fees charged by the clerk and the marshal are governed by separate sections of the Judicial Code. The clerk's fees are established by Section 1914, which permits the clerk to charge a filing fee in every civil action and to collect other fees as authorized by the Judicial Conference of the United States. n3 The fees charged by the marshal are established by Section 1921, which provides principally for the collection of fees and mileage for the service of process, writs of execution, or other papers, and fees for the seizure, custody, or sale of property. n4

2. Fees of the court reporter for all or any part of the stenographic transcript necessarily obtained for use in the case. n5 This provision has also been interpreted to include expenses of necessary videotaping. n6 Its primary application, however, is to transcripts of in-court proceedings prepared by the official court reporter for the district court. n7

3. Fees and disbursements for printing and witnesses. n8 In conjunction with the other express items of costs listed here, this item has been held as a basis for including in costs all expenses related to depositions. n9 Witnesses are entitled to a daily attendance fee, travel expenses, and a subsistence allowance. n10 This item does not include fees for compensation or preparation of expert witnesses because such fees are not explicitly provided as costs by the general cost statute. n11

4. Fees for exemplification and copies of papers necessarily obtained for use in the case. n12 In this category, expenses of documentary and other non-testimonial evidence generally are taxable costs. n13 An "exemplification" is a physical, demonstrative aid, such as an exhibit or model, that materially aids the trier of fact's understanding of the claims or issues in a case. An exhibit or physical model does not qualify as an exemplification if it is essentially argumentative, serving merely as an aid to the argument of an attorney or the position of an expert witness. Furthermore, if the exhibit or model at issue requires the input of attorneys or experts, the expenses of those persons as professionals in producing the item may not be included in any award of costs. n14

5. Docket fees. n15 These fees may include the docket fees for trial or final hearing in the case. n16

6. Compensation of court appointed experts, compensation of interpreters, and salaries, fees, expenses, and costs of special interpretation services under Judicial Code Section 1828. n17 Fees for translation of depositions or other documents may also be taxed. n18 Although § 1920(6) does not expressly require that the translation services be "necessary," the district court may exercise its discretion to decline to tax costs for an interpreter when the translation is unnecessary. n19

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesCostsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesCostsCourt & Marshal FeesCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesCostsDepositions & TranscriptsCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesCostsReproduction CostsCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesCostsWitnesses

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.103 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Crawford Fitting Co. v. J.T. Gibbons, Inc., 482 U.S. 437, 441-445, 107 S. Ct. 2494, 96 L. Ed. 2d 385 (1987) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Power Mosfet Techs., L.L.C. v. Siemens AG, 378 F.3d 1396, 1407 (Fed. Cir. 2004) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Congregation of the Passion v. Touche, Ross & Co., 854 F.2d 219, 221 (7th Cir. 1988) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Manor Healthcare Corp. v. Lomelo, 929 F.2d 633, 638-639 (11th Cir. 1991) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Krocka v. City of Chicago, 203 F.3d 507, 518-519 (7th Cir. 2000) (circuit court remanded case for district court to explain on record its reasons for denying costs to defendant in whose favor final judgment was entered); Aerotech, Inc. v. Estes, 110 F.3d 1523, 1526-1527 (10th Cir. 1997) (district court must provide valid reason for not awarding costs to prevailing party).

(n7)Footnote 6. See, e.g., Sheets v. Yamaha Motors Corp., 891 F.2d 533, 539-540 (5th Cir. 1990) .

(n8)Footnote 7. National Information Servs. v. TRW, Inc., 51 F.3d 1470, 1472 (9th Cir. 1995) .

(n9)Footnote 8. Andretti v. Borla Performance Indus., 426 F.3d 824, 836 (6th Cir. 2005) .

(n10)Footnote 9. DiGiore v. Ryan, 172 F.3d 454, 466-467 (7th Cir. 1999) .

(n11)Footnote 10. Sheets v. Yamaha Motors Corp., 891 F.2d 533, 539-540 (5th Cir. 1990) .

(n12)Footnote 11. In re Paoli Railroad Yard PCB Litigation, 221 F.3d 449, 453-454 (3d Cir. 2000) (discussing extent to which court may consider relative indigence of losing party in determining amount of costs award); Association of Mexican-Am. Educators v. California, 195 F.3d 465, 493-495 (9th Cir. 1999) (if prevailing defendant has done nothing to deserve punishment, court may not deny costs entirely because of lack of resources of loser).

(n13)Footnote 12. Zeran v. Diamond Broad., Inc., 203 F.3d 714, 722 (10th Cir. 2000) .

(n14)Footnote 13. Association of Mexican-American Educators v. California, 183 F.3d 1055, 1080-1081 (9th Cir. 1999) .

(n15)Footnote 14. United States v. D.K.G. Appaloosas, Inc., 829 F.2d 532, 539 (5th Cir. 1987) , cert. denied, 485 U.S. 976 (1988) (district court properly denied costs to prevailing claimant in forfeiture proceeding, because 28 U.S.C. § 2465 provides that costs should not be awarded if there was reasonable cause for seizure, thus displacing court's discretion to award costs under Rule 54(d)).

(n16)Footnote 15. 15 U.S.C. § 15 (any person who is injured in business or property by reason of violation of antitrust laws is entitled to recover treble damages and costs of suit).

(n17)Footnote 16. 15 U.S.C. § 1691e(d) (under Equal Credit Opportunity Act, costs of action must be added to any damages awarded by court to prevailing party).

(n18)Footnote 1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(1); see also [1], above.

(n19)Footnote 1.1. Andretti v. Borla Performance Indus., 426 F.3d 824, 835-836, (6th Cir. 2005) .

(n20)Footnote 2. See, e.g., Slane v. Mariah Boats, Inc., 164 F.3d 1065, 1068 (7th Cir. 1999) , cert. denied, 119 S. Ct. 2342 (1999) (when one party gets substantial relief it "prevails" even if it does not win on all claims).

(n21)Footnote 3. Byers v. Dallas Morning News, Inc., 209 F.3d 419, 430 (5th Cir. 2000) .

(n22)Footnote 4. Firefighters' Institute for Racial Equality v. City of St. Louis, 220 F.3d 898 (8th Cir. 2000) .

(n23)Footnote 5. See Byers v. Dallas Morning News, Inc., 209 F.3d 419, 430 (5th Cir. 2000) .

(n24)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(1); see Crawford Fitting Co. v. J.T. Gibbons, Inc., 482 U.S. 437, 441-445, 107 S. Ct. 2494, 96 L. Ed. 2d 385 (1987) ; see also 28 U.S.C. § 1920.

(n25)Footnote 2. 28 U.S.C. § 1920(1).

(n26)Footnote 3. 28 U.S.C. § 1914.

(n27)Footnote 4. See 28 U.S.C. § 1921.

(n28)Footnote 5. 28 U.S.C. § 1920(2).

(n29)Footnote 6. Cherry v. Champion Int'l Corp., 186 F.3d 442, 448-449 (4th Cir. 1999) .

(n30)Footnote 7. 28 U.S.C. § 753(b) (any party may obtain transcript of all or part of proceedings from official court reporter by requesting transcript and paying required transcription fees).

(n31)Footnote 8. 28 U.S.C. § 1920(3).

(n32)Footnote 9. See West Wind Africa Line v. Corpus Christi Marine Servs., 834 F.2d 1232, 1236-1238 (5th Cir. 1988) .

(n33)Footnote 10. 28 U.S.C. § 1821.

(n34)Footnote 11. *Arlington Cent. Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ. v. Murphy, 548 U.S. 291, 126 S. Ct. 2455, 165 L. Ed. 2d 526, 2006 U.S. LEXIS 5162, *13-14 (2006) .

(n35)Footnote 12. 28 U.S.C. § 1920(4).

(n36)Footnote 13. Maxwell v. Hapag-Lloyd Aktiengesellschaft, 862 F.2d 767, 770 (9th Cir. 1988) (Section 1920(4) embraces expenses of producing photographic and other types of demonstrative evidence, provided that items are necessarily obtained for use in case).

(n37)Footnote 14. Summit Tech., Inc. v. Nidek Co., 435 F.3d 1371, 1377-1378 (Fed. Cir. 2006) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n38)Footnote 15. 28 U.S.C. § 1920(5); see 28 U.S.C. § 1923.

(n39)Footnote 16. Moore v. Hughes Helicopters, Inc., 708 F.2d 475, 486 (9th Cir. 1983) .

(n40)Footnote 17. 28 U.S.C. § 1920(6); see 28 U.S.C. § 1828.

(n41)Footnote 18. Chore-Time Equip. v. Cumberland Corp., 713 F.2d 774, 782 (Fed. Cir. 1983) .

(n42)Footnote 19. BDT Prods. v. Lexmark Int'l, Inc., 405 F.3d 415, 419 (6th Cir. 2005) (even though translating costs are not listed in section 1920(4), costs related to translation fit under it because definition of "interpret" expressly includes "translation" into intelligible or familiar language).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
E. COSTS RECOVERABLE WITH JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.62

§ 25.62 Special Federal Statutes and Rules Providing for Award of Costsn*

[1] Statutes Authorizing Award of Costs to Person Other Than Prevailing Party

Several federal statutes authorize the court to award costs to a person other than the prevailing party, including the following:

1. When an action is dismissed for lack of jurisdiction. Whenever any action or suit is dismissed for lack of jurisdiction in any district court, the Court of International Trade, or the Court of Federal Claims for want of jurisdiction, the court may order the payment of just costs. n1 Any other federal courts presumably are subject to the common-law rule that costs may not be awarded when subject-matter jurisdiction is lacking. n2

2. Against the plaintiff in a diversity case who recovers less than the jurisdictional minimum amount in controversy. When a diversity plaintiff prevails, but fails to recover the jurisdictional minimum amount, the court may assess the costs of the action against the plaintiff. n3 Even though proper pleading of the jurisdictional minimum is a prerequisite to diversity jurisdiction, the failure to actually prove the requisite injury does not deprive the court of jurisdiction; rather, Section 1332(b) provides for a discretionary denial of costs as a penalty for bringing of inflated state law claims into federal court. The mere fact that the action was brought in good faith does not deprive the district court of discretion to deny costs. n4

3. Against an attorney for abuse of process. Any attorney practicing in federal court who multiplies the proceedings in any case unreasonably and vexatiously may be taxed the excess costs, expenses, and attorney's fees incurred because of the wrongful conduct. n5 Sanctions under Section 1927 may be made against an attorney, not the client. Furthermore, sanctions are proper only when the attorney multiplies the proceedings in bad faith and only for the amount of extra expense caused by that conduct. n6

4. As compensation for delay caused by an appeal. When an appeal is affirmed by the Supreme Court or a court of appeals, the court may award the appellee just damages for the delay caused by the appeal in the amount of single or double costs. n7 This statute is used as alternative authority, because both the Appellate Rules and the Supreme Court Rules have provisions that specifically govern the awarding of costs on appeal. n8

[2] Federal Rules Authorizing Award of Costs to Person Other Than Prevailing Party

[a] Costs Caused by Failure to Comply With Request for Waiver of Service of Process

Any defendant located within the United States who receives a proper request for waiver of service under Rule 4 has a duty to avoid unnecessary costs of effecting service of process. If the defendant breaches this duty by failing to waive service and, as a result, the plaintiff is required to make formal service of process, the court is required to impose the costs subsequently incurred in effecting service on the defendant unless good cause for the failure be shown. n1 The mandatory costs include those subsequently incurred in effecting service together with the costs of any motion required to collect the costs of service. n2

[b] Costs Under Disclosure and Discovery Rules

Several provisions of the rules governing the disclosure and discovery process permit an award of costs or expenses. Many of these provisions permit an award against a party who violates the discovery rules, for example, for failing to make disclosure or cooperate in discovery. n3 Other provisions permit the party complying with a discovery request to obtain an award of costs from the party seeking the discovery. For example, when discovery is sought from a party's expert witnesses, the party seeking the discovery must pay to the party or expert a reasonable fee for complying. n4

[c] Costs of Previously Dismissed Action

If a plaintiff has previously dismissed the same claim against the same defendant in any court, state or federal, the federal court may require the plaintiff to pay some or all of the costs of the previously dismissed action. If the federal court makes such an order, the court may stay the action until the plaintiff has complied with the order to pay the costs of the prior action. n5

[d] Costs of Appointed Master or Interpreter

When the district court appoints a special master to assist the court in the disposition of an action or the measurement of damages, the compensation of the master must be fixed by the court and will be charged to the parties as the court may direct. n6 This provision gives substantial discretion in the district court to apportion the costs of the master. n7 Similarly, when the district court appoints a special master to assist the court in translation when a witness or other participant in the trial may be unable to speak English, the expense of the interpreter may be assessed or divided among the parties as the court directs and may be taxed as costs against the losing party. n8

[e] Costs When Judgment for Plaintiff Is Not More Favorable Than Offer by Defendant

To encourage settlement, if the defendant makes an offer of judgment and plaintiff rejects the offer and subsequently recovers a judgment that is not more favorable than the offer, the plaintiff must pay the costs incurred by the defendant following the offer. n9 This rule is inapplicable if judgment is rendered for the offering defendant. n10 As used in Rule 68, the term "costs" refers to all costs properly awardable under the relevant substantive statute or other authority. n11 In other words, all costs properly awardable in an action are to be considered within the scope of the rule and, if the substantive statute at issue explicitly defines attorney's fees as part of the costs to be awarded, the costs to be awarded under Rule 68 include the post-offer attorney's fees. n12

[f] Costs in Condemnation Actions

Costs in condemnation actions from the coverage of Rule 54(d)(1) does not apply. n13 The rationale behind this rule is that the government is virtually always the "prevailing party" in a condemnation proceeding, because the government will virtually always obtain the condemned property. Consequently, the only actual issue in condemnation actions is not the government's right to the land, but the measure of just compensation for the taking of the land. Thus, costs should not be routinely available to the government as a prevailing party, because such an assessment of costs would effectively reduce that just compensation. n14 Because Rule 54(d)(1) does not apply, the "prevailing party" in the case of eminent domain proceedings means the party who obtains a final judgment (other than by settlement), exclusive of interest, the amount of which is at least as close to the highest valuation of the property involved that is attested to at trial on behalf of the property owner as it is to the highest valuation of the property involved that is attested to at trial on behalf of the Government. n15

[g] Costs of Court Appointed Guardian Ad Litem

The federal court may appoint a guardian ad litem to represent an infant or incompetent person without a formally appointed representative, and when the court appoints such a guardian ad litem the costs and expenses of the guardian ad litem may be charged to the parties as the court orders. n16 However, If the guardian ad litem is also the attorney representing the infant or incompetent, attorney's fees may not be taxed as costs. Although the costs of the guardian may be taxed under Rule 54(d)(1), those costs may not include services that the guardian ad litem performs as the attorney to the incompetent. n17

[h] Costs Related to Sanctions Motions

The court may make an award of expenses to either party who prevails on a Rule 11 sanctions motion when the court determines it is warranted. The award may cover the reasonable expenses and attorney's fees incurred in presenting or opposing the motion. n18 Furthermore, a sanction may be imposed for violation of Rule 11 but must be limited to what is sufficient to deter repetition of the sanctionable conduct or comparable conduct by others similarly situated. The sanction may consist of an order directing payment to the movant of some or all of the reasonable attorney's fees and other expenses incurred as a direct result of the violation, provided it is imposed on motion and warranted for effective deterrence. n19

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesCostsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.102 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 1919.

(n3)Footnote 2. Johns-Manville v. United States, 893 F.2d 324, 327 (Fed. Cir. 1989) (Claims Court could not award costs under Section 1919 because statute in effect at that time did not include that court).

(n4)Footnote 3. 28 U.S.C. § 1332(b).

(n5)Footnote 4. Cosgrove v. Bartolotta, 150 F.3d 729, 734 (7th Cir. 1998) (district court has discretion to award or deny costs to prevailing plaintiff who recovers less than jurisdictional minimum).

(n6)Footnote 5. 28 U.S.C. § 1927.

(n7)Footnote 6. See Salovaara v. Eckert, 222 F.3d 19 (2d Cir. 2000) .

(n8)Footnote 7. 28 U.S.C. § 1912.

(n9)Footnote 8. See Ch. 27, General Principles of Appeal; Ch. 28, Appeal to Court of Appeals; and Ch. 29, Appeal to Supreme Court.

(n10)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 4(d)(2).

(n11)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 4(d)(2)(A), (B); see Menke v. Monchecourt, 17 F.3d 1007, 1010-1012 (7th Cir. 1994) (affirming award for cost of hiring process server).

(n12)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(a)-(d).

(n13)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(4)(C).

(n14)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 41(d).

(n15)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 53(a).

(n16)Footnote 7. Alberti v. Klevenhagen, 46 F.3d 1347, 1363-1364 (5th Cir. 1995) (not abuse of discretion to charge 90 percent of master's costs against party whose conduct was primarily responsible for conditions that necessitated appointment).

(n17)Footnote 8. Fed. R. Civ. P. 43(d).

(n18)Footnote 9. Fed. R. Civ. P. 68.

(n19)Footnote 10. Delta Air Lines, Inc. v. August, 450 U.S. 346, 352-353, 101 S. Ct. 1146, 67 L. Ed. 2d 287 (1981) .

(n20)Footnote 11. Marek v. Chesny, 473 U.S. 1, 9-10, 105 S. Ct. 3012, 87 L. Ed. 2d 1 (1985) .

(n21)Footnote 12. Marek v. Chesny, 473 U.S. 1, 9-10, 105 S. Ct. 3012, 87 L. Ed. 2d 1 (1985) (attorney's fees under 42 U.S.C. § 1988 are part of "costs" under Rule 68, so civil rights plaintiff whose recovery is less than offer is not entitled to post-offer attorney's fees).

(n22)Footnote 13. Fed. R. Civ. P. 71.1(l).

(n23)Footnote 14. Fed. R. Civ. P. 71.1(l), Advisory Committee Note.

(n24)Footnote 15. 28 U.S.C. § 2412(d)(2)(H); see United States v. 50. 50 Acres of Land, 931 F.2d 1349, 1358-1359 (9th Cir. 1991) (district court erroneously awarded costs to landowner when ultimate valuation of land was closer to testimony offered by government than to testimony offered by landowner).

(n25)Footnote 16. Fed. R. Civ. P. 17(c)(2).

(n26)Footnote 17. Kollsman, A Division of Sequa Corp. v. Cohen, 996 F.2d 702, 706 (4th Cir. 1993) .

(n27)Footnote 18. Fed. R. Civ. P. 11(c)(2).

(n28)Footnote 19. Fed. R. Civ. P. 11(c)(4).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
E. COSTS RECOVERABLE WITH JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.63

§ 25.63 Award of Costs Involving Government as Partyn*

[1] Award of Costs to Federal or State Government

If the federal government is the prevailing party in a civil action, it may collect costs to the same extent as any private party, n1 unless a statute, rule, or regulation specifically precludes the government from a cost recovery. n2 This common-law rule is now expressly set forth in a statute, which provides that a judgment for the costs specified in Section 1920, n3 may be awarded to the prevailing party in any civil action brought by or against the United States or any agency or any official of the United States acting in his or her official capacity in any court having jurisdiction of the action. n4 Any state governmental entity that is a party to litigation in federal court may collect costs on the same basis as any other prevailing party under Rule 54(d)(1). n5

[2] Award of Costs Against Federal Government

A court may tax costs against the federal government, only to the extent permitted by law. Although at common law the United States enjoyed sovereign immunity from taxation of costs, even if the government brought the action and lost, n1 the common-law rule was abrogated by a statute which provides express authority for the taxation of costs against the government in any civil action brought by or against the United States or any agency or any official of the United States acting in his or her official capacity in any court having jurisdiction of such action. n2 This provision essentially places the federal government and private parties on an equal footing with respect to an award of costs. As with an award of costs against a private party, an award against the government is not mandatory but may be made in the discretion of the district court. n3 The Rule 54(d)(1) provision for costs is based on a presumption that the prevailing party will be awarded costs; n4 that presumption similarly applies under Section 2412(a) when a private party prevails against the government. n5 However, if the government prevails in the action, a court does not have the discretion to tax costs against the government, because Section 2412(a) is a waiver of sovereign immunity and must be narrowly construed. n6

[3] Award of Costs Against State Government

A district court may tax costs against a state entity under Rule 54(d)(1) in cases in which a private party has prevailed against the state; neither the Eleventh Amendment nor the doctrine of sovereign immunity protect a state from the imposition of costs. n1 The Supreme Court has stated that an award of costs is not the kind of retroactive relief prohibited by the Eleventh Amendment but, instead, is awarded as incidental to the judgment against the state. Thus, the discretion accorded to the district court to tax costs in favor of the prevailing party is not at all curtailed by the fact that a state would be required to pay those costs. n2

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesCostsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsFederal GovernmentClaims By & Against

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.104[2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(1); see Pine River Logging & Improvement Co. v. United States, 186 U.S. 279, 296, 22 S. Ct. 920, 46 L. Ed. 1164 (1902) .

(n3)Footnote 2. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(1).

(n4)Footnote 3. 28 U.S.C. § 1920.

(n5)Footnote 4. 28 U.S.C. § 2412(a)(1).

(n6)Footnote 5. See Association of Mexican-American Educators v. California, 231 F.3d 572 (9th Cir. 2000) ; cf. Town of New Windsor v. Tesa Tuck, Inc., 919 F. Supp. 662, 679 n.20 (S.D.N.Y. 1996) ; see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(1).

(n7)Footnote 1. Walling v. Norfolk Southern Ry., 162 F.2d 95, 96 (4th Cir. 1947) (courts could not enter against the government a judgment for costs which would require the payment of moneys from the public treasury, unless they are expressly authorized by Congress to do so).

(n8)Footnote 2. 28 U.S.C. § 2412(a)(1).

(n9)Footnote 3. United States v. Kemper Money Market Fund, 781 F.2d 1268, 1279 (7th Cir. 1986) .

(n10)Footnote 4. See Association of Mexican-American Educators v. California, 231 F.3d 572 (9th Cir. 2000) .

(n11)Footnote 5. Institutionalized Juveniles v. Secretary of Pub. Welfare, 758 F.2d 897, 926 (3d Cir. 1985) ; see In re Paoli Railroad Yard PCB Litigation, 221 F.3d 449 (3d Cir. 2000) .

(n12)Footnote 6. Worsham v. United States, 828 F.2d 1525, 1527 (11th Cir. 1987) .

(n13)Footnote 1. Georgia Ass'n of Retarded Citizens v. McDaniel, 855 F.2d 794, 800 (11th Cir. 1988) (judgment for costs against state does not violate Eleventh Amendment, because courts have power to tax costs against state in same manner as other parties).

(n14)Footnote 2. Hutto v. Finney, 437 U.S. 678, 695-698, 98 S. Ct. 2565, 57 L. Ed. 2d 522 (1978) (award of costs does not compensate injury, but instead reimburses litigation expenses, so costs award is not retroactive relief that would be prohibited by Eleventh Amendment)).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
E. COSTS RECOVERABLE WITH JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.64

§ 25.64 Procedures for Award of Costsn*

[1] Motion for Costs

[a] Requirements of Motion

A party should request the taxation of costs by the court with a "motion for costs." Even though parties frequently move for costs in the same motion as attorney's fees, n1 practitioners should note that the procedures are quite different; the provisions relating to a motion for costs are comparatively flexible, while there are explicit and detailed procedures for obtaining attorney's fees. n2 Thus, Rule 54(d)(1) does not provide any specific time period or method for requesting costs. n3 Because a motion for costs does not seek any alteration or modification of the judgment, it is not a post-judgment motion under Rule 59, and therefore the 28 day period for filing motions under Rule 59 is inapplicable to a motion for costs. n4 Because there is no uniform time period specified by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the matter is left to the local rules of the district courts. n5 Such a time limit provided in a local rule for filing a motion for costs or for a bill of costs is not jurisdictional. Thus, the district court may extend the time or may choose to permit an untimely motion or bill. n6 If the local rules do not specify a time limit, a motion for costs is not subject to any particular time limitation but must be filed within a reasonable time. n7

A party should not file a motion for costs until a judgment has been entered establishing which parties have prevailed, because costs are usually awarded to the "prevailing party". n8 Once a judgment has been entered, the prevailing party may move for costs at any time, n9 provided that any delay is reasonable and does not prejudice the opposing party. It is not unreasonable to wait until after affirmance on appeal to file a motion for costs. n10 A motion for costs after judgment under Rule 54(d)(1) is not a motion seeking to alter or amend the judgment under Rule 59(e) and consequently does not suspend the time to appeal the judgment on the merits, nor does it invalidate an earlier filed notice of appeal. n11 Because the costs issue is completely collateral to the merits, the filing of a notice of appeal does not deprive the district court of jurisdiction to tax costs or to review the clerk's taxation of costs under Rule 54(d)(1). n12

[b] Security for Costs Generally Not Required

Rule 54(d)(1) does not make any express requirement that a moving party post security in order to satisfy any potential judgment for costs. While some other rules require the posting of security in certain particular situations, such as a provision requiring the posting of security for costs as a condition for the issuance of a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, n13 nothing in either Rule 54 or the other rules generally requires the posting of security for costs in civil actions. n14 Because the requirement is not specified in the rules, some district courts have properly promulgated local rules requiring security for costs in specific circumstances. n15 Even if no local rule requires or permits the district court to impose a security requirement, the district court has the inherent power to do so. n16 It should also be noted that, in diversity actions, a substantive state statute may apply that requires the posting of security as justified by a substantive policy that goes beyond ensuring compliance with a potential judgment for costs. n17

Any security requirement imposed under a federal or state statute, or local rule of the district court, must be reasonable under the circumstances. The court should consider the risk to the defendant if security is not posted, and the plaintiff's ability to post the security should also be considered, for the bond may not be made so burdensome as to deprive the plaintiff of the opportunity to litigate the action. n18 If an order to post security is properly entered, the action may be dismissed if the bond is not posted. n19

[2] Bill of Costs

A "bill of costs" is a specification of the total amount of costs requested by a party in its motion for costs, with an itemization of the details of the expenses. n1 Although pleadings and other papers filed with the court generally are not required to be verified, n2 a bill of costs is expressly required by statute to be verified by the party, the party's attorney, or the party's authorized agent. n3 The moving party must file the bill of costs with the court, and when allowed by the court, the bill is included in the judgment. n4 However, the failure to file a verified bill of costs is sufficient ground for the court to deny any claimed costs; the court may also deny costs for any items not detailed in a bill of costs. n5

[3] Notice of Taxation of Costs

After the motion for costs and verified bill of costs have been filed, the clerk may tax costs on 14 days' notice to the parties. n1 The purpose of this provision requiring notice is to allow the parties to object to the taxation of any of the items of costs requested. n2 If costs are taxed by the clerk without giving the opponent a meaningful opportunity to oppose the bill of costs, the clerk's action is not entitled to any deference on review by either the district court or the court of appeals. n3 Because a taxation of costs is a judgment for money, 28 U.S.C. § 1961 applies and the clerk must award interest on the judgment from the date of the original judgment on the merits. n4

[4] Review by District Court

A party may file an objection with the clerk's taxation by filing and serving a motion within 7 days of the clerk's action. n1 If the party fails to file a timely objection to the clerk's taxation of costs, the district court may consider the objection waived, and is not obliged to review the taxation of costs. n2 The expiration of the 7-day period generally must be calculated pursuant to Rule 6. n3 However because the time for filing the motion is measured from the date of the clerk's action, rather than from service of the notice of the action, Rule 6(d) does not apply, and three days are not added to the 7-day time limit even if notice of the clerk's action is received by mail. n4

As noted above, compliance with the 7-day object period is also important to preserve appeal on the issue. n5 However, the 7-day period is not jurisdictional, and the district court may extend the deadline for filing objections or may, in its discretion, consider untimely objections. n6 On timely objection to a bill of costs, the district court must make a de novo determination of the costs issue. If the verified bill of costs is adequately supported, however, the party objecting to the taxation of costs has the burden of demonstrating that the claimed costs should not be allowed. n7

[5] Appeal of Taxation of Costs

[a] Appeal Procedure

A judgment awarding costs is appealable independently of the judgment on the merits. Thus, an appeal of a judgment for costs does not bring up the underlying merits judgment for review. n1 The fact that a judgment for costs is separately appealable is confirmed by the fact that the Supreme Court has in fact reviewed such judgments, without ever questioning the procedure. n2 Furthermore, it is not uncommon for costs to be taxed after the appeal of the merits has been concluded and, therefore, if such an award of costs is to be reviewed at all, it must be appealable separately from the judgment on the merits. n3 Although an award of costs is separately appealable from a merits judgment, an appeal may not be taken until the award is a final decision. For example, a decision that a party is entitled to costs is not appealable until the amount of the award of costs has been set. n4

If the case underlying a taxation of costs is reversed, the "prevailing party" is altered or may be altered after the district court has resolved any remanded portion of the case. Consequently, a reversal on the merits also operates as a reversal of any taxation of costs. n5

[b] Standard of Review

The appellate court generally must review an award or denial of costs only for an abuse of discretion. n6 The district court must explain a decision to deny costs to a prevailing party and the failure to do so is a per se abuse of discretion. n7 Additionally, the district court's reason for denying the costs must be adequate; otherwise, the denial will be found to be an abuse of discretion. n8 On the other hand, because Rule 54(d)(1) provides for a cost award to the prevailing party "as a matter of course," the district court need not specifically itemize costs and address every argument raised by parties regarding each item. n9

[6] Costs and Indigency

By statute, the court may permit a party to proceed in forma pauperis if the party submits a sufficient affidavit proving the party's indigency. n1 When the court grants in forma pauperis status in whole or in part, the pauper is excused from the initial payment of the filing fees otherwise applicable to the action. In addition, service of any process on behalf of the pauper is to be accomplished by the marshal without charge to the pauper. n2 To proceed in forma pauperis, an individual need not be destitute. If the payment of the fees and costs would be unduly burdensome, the affidavit is sufficient. n3

Even though a party proceeding in forma pauperis is excused from the prepayment of fees and costs in the case, any judgment for costs at the end of the case may be rendered as in other cases. n4 This means that merely because a losing party may not be able to afford to pay costs, that party is not automatically exempted from the taxation of costs. On the contrary, Section 1915(e) and cases decided under that statute make clear that costs may be taxed against a party who is permitted to proceed in forma pauperis. However, these cases recognize that a district court may consider a losing party's indigency in applying Rule 54(d)(1). Thus, a party may be exempted from costs if the party is in fact indigent, if the party has adduced evidence that the party is indigent, and if the district court sees fit to reduce the costs award imposed for reasons of equity. n5 The rationale behind this rule is that the basis of Rule 54(d)(1) is a presumption that the prevailing party will recover costs; this presumption is still applicable even if one or more of the parties is proceeding in forma pauperis. The fact that an in forma pauperis party is initially excused from paying fees and costs does not immunize that party from an assessment of costs at the conclusion of the case. n6 On the other hand, the losing party's indigency is a proper consideration in deciding whether to tax costs and in what amount. n7

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesCostsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 54.100, 54.104, 54.105 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See, e.g., Breaux v. Am. Family Mut. Ins. Co., 554 F.3d 854, 857 (10th Cir. 2009) .

(n3)Footnote 2. See § 25.87.

(n4)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(1).

(n5)Footnote 4. Buchanan v. Stanships, Inc., 485 U.S. 265, 268-269, 108 S. Ct. 1130, 99 L. Ed. 2d 289 (1988) ; see White v. New Hampshire Dept. of Employment Security, 455 U.S. 445, 453, 102 S. Ct. 1162, 71 L. Ed. 2d 325 (1982) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Congregation of the Passion v. Touche, Ross & Co., 854 F.2d 219, 221-223 (7th Cir. 1988) .

(n7)Footnote 6. Hernandez v. George, 793 F.2d 264, 267-268 (10th Cir. 1986) .

(n8)Footnote 7. White v. New Hampshire Dep't of Employment Sec., 455 U.S. 445, 102 S. Ct. 1162, 71 L. Ed. 2d 325 (1982) .

(n9)Footnote 8. Friends For All Children, Inc. v. Lockheed Aircraft Corp., 725 F.2d 1392, 1399 (D.C. Cir. 1984) .

(n10)Footnote 9. Hadix v. Johnson, 322 F.3d 895, 896 (6th Cir. 2003) .

(n11)Footnote 10. Popeil Bros., Inc. v. Schick Elec., Inc., 516 F.2d 772, 776-777 (7th Cir. 1975) .

(n12)Footnote 11. Buchanan v. Stanships, Inc., 485 U.S. 265, 268-269, 108 S. Ct. 1130, 99 L. Ed. 2d 289 (1988) (motion for costs is wholly collateral to judgment on merits).

(n13)Footnote 12. Lorenz v. Valley Forge Ins. Co., 23 F.3d 1259, 1260 (7th Cir. 1994) .

(n14)Footnote 13. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 65(c).

(n15)Footnote 14. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(1).

(n16)Footnote 15. Ehm v. Amtrak Bd. of Directors, 780 F.2d 516, 517 (5th Cir. 1986) .

(n17)Footnote 16. In re American President Lines, Inc., 779 F.2d 714, 716-717 (D.C. Cir. 1985) ; but see 28 U.S.C. § 2408 (security for costs may not be required of United States or subdivision on issuance of process or institution of any proceeding).

(n18)Footnote 17. See Merrill Lynch Relocation Mgmt., Inc., 812 F.2d 1116, 1121 (9th Cir. 1987) (state statute making attorney personally liable for defendant's costs was an integral part of state substantive policy that applied in diversity action).

(n19)Footnote 18. Murphy v. Ginorio, 989 F.2d 566, 569 (1st Cir. 1993) (dismissal for failure to file $75,000 cost bond required by local rule was vacated because district court never considered ability of plaintiff to post bond).

(n20)Footnote 19. Montserrat Overseas Holdings, S.A. v. Larsen, 709 F.2d 22, 24-25 (9th Cir. 1983) .

(n21)Footnote 1. See Craftsmen Limousine, Inc. v. Ford Motor Co., 579 F.3d 894, 896-897 (8th Cir. 2009) .

(n22)Footnote 2. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 11(a).

(n23)Footnote 3. 28 U.S.C. § 1924.

(n24)Footnote 4. 28 U.S.C. § 1920.

(n25)Footnote 5. See Marmo v. Tyson Fresh Meats, 457 F.3d 748, 764 (8th Cir. 2006) .

(n26)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(1).

(n27)Footnote 2. See Majeske v. City of Chicago, 218 F.3d 816, 824 (7th Cir. 2000) ; see also [4], below.

(n28)Footnote 3. United States v. Carson, 52 F.3d 1173, 1190 (2d Cir. 1995) .

(n29)Footnote 4. 28 U.S.C. § 1961; Devex Corp. v. General Motors Corp., 749 F.2d 1020, 1026 (3d Cir. 1984) , cert. denied, 474 U.S. 819 (1985) .

(n30)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(1).

(n31)Footnote 2. See Corwin v. Walt Disney World Co., 475 F.3d 1239, 1249 (11th Cir. 2007) (court may consider untimely objection only if it is excusable).

(n32)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(a).

(n33)Footnote 4. See Lorenz v. Valley Forge Ins. Co., 23 F.3d 1259, 1261 (7th Cir. 1994) (construing former time periods); Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(d).

(n34)Footnote 5. See Walker v. California, 200 F.3d 624, 626 (9th Cir. 1999) (party may demand judicial review of cost award only if that party has filed proper motion of objection within time period specified in Rule 54(d)(1); construing former time periods).

(n35)Footnote 6. See Soberay Mach. & Equip. Co. v. MRF Ltd., Inc., 181 F.3d 759, 771 (6th Cir. 1999) (construing former time periods).

(n36)Footnote 7. BDT Prods. v. Lexmark Int'l, Inc., 405 F.3d 415, 420 (6th Cir. 2005) .

(n37)Footnote 1. Newton v. Consolidated Gas Co., 265 U.S. 78, 82, 44 S. Ct. 481, 68 L. Ed. 909 (1925) .

(n38)Footnote 2. Crawford Fitting Co. v. J.T. Gibbons, Inc., 482 U.S. 437, 107 S. Ct. 2494, 96 L. Ed. 2d 385 (1987) (reviewing two consolidated decisions of Fifth Circuit that addressed solely issue of costs).

(n39)Footnote 3. Lorenz v. Valley Forge Ins. Co., 23 F.3d 1259, 1260 (7th Cir. 1994) .

(n40)Footnote 4. Carter v. General Motors Corp., 983 F.2d 40, 42 (5th Cir. 1993) .

(n41)Footnote 5. Corley v. Rosewood Care Ctr., Inc., 142 F.3d 1041, 1056 (7th Cir. 1998) (when reversing judgment on merits of particular claim, circuit court must also vacate costs award on that claim, since reversal on merits means that party in whose favor judgment had been rendered is no longer prevailing party).

(n42)Footnote 6. Smith v. Southeastern Penn. Transp. Auth., 47 F.3d 97, 99-100 (3d Cir. 1995) .

(n43)Footnote 7. Cengr v. Fusibond Piping Sys., Inc., 135 F.3d 445, 453-454 (7th Cir. 1998) .

(n44)Footnote 8. National Information Servs. v. TRW, Inc., 51 F.3d 1470, 1472-1473 (9th Cir. 1995) .

(n45)Footnote 9. Weeks v. Samsung Heavy Indus. Co., Ltd., 126 F.3d 926, 946 (7th Cir. 1997) .

(n46)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 1915(a); see Pothier v. Rodman, 261 U.S. 307, 309, 43 S. Ct. 374, 67 L. Ed. 670 (1923) .

(n47)Footnote 2. 28 U.S.C. § 1915(c); Puett v. Blandford, 912 F.2d 270, 273 (9th Cir. 1990) (in forma pauperis plaintiff entitled to rely on marshal for proper service of process).

(n48)Footnote 3. Adkins v. E.I. Du Pont de Nemours & Co., 335 U.S. 331, 339-340, 69 S. Ct. 85, 93 L. Ed. 43 (1948) .

(n49)Footnote 4. 28 U.S.C. § 1915(e).

(n50)Footnote 5. In re Paoli Railroad Yard PCB Litigation, 221 F.3d 449 (3d Cir. 2000) (discussing extent to which court may consider relative indigence of losing party in determining amount of costs award).

(n51)Footnote 6. Flint v. Haynes, 651 F.2d 970, 973-974 (4th Cir. 1981) , cert. denied, 454 U.S. 1151 (1982) .

(n52)Footnote 7. In re Paoli Railroad Yard PCB Litigation, 221 F.3d 449 (3d Cir. 2000) ; Badillo v. Central Steel & Wire Co., 717 F.2d 1160, 1165 (7th Cir. 1983) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
E. COSTS RECOVERABLE WITH JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 25.65through 25.79

[Reserved]

§§ 25.65[Reserved]

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
F. ATTORNEY'S FEES RECOVERABLE WITH JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.80

§ 25.80 American Rule Prohibits Recovery of Attorney's Fees as Matter of Coursen*

When a federal court is considering the award of attorney's fees, it begins its analysis with the "American Rule," which provides that each litigant generally pays its own attorney's fees, win or lose, unless a statute or contract provides otherwise. n1 This rule is known as the American Rule because it contrasts with most of the other nations of the world, where a winning party generally recovers attorney's fees from the opponent as a matter of course. n2

The American Rule is still generally applied as a starting point in every case. However, Congress has enacted many statutes that explicitly alter the effect of the American Rule. These "fee shifting" statutory provisions permit a court to award attorney's fees to a party that prevails or otherwise succeeds in the litigation. n3 Additionally, even though the American Rule provides that parties must generally bear their own legal expenses, courts will not apply that rule when the parties have made an express contract, settlement, or release which provides for a particular award of fees. n4 Finally, a court may make exceptions to the American Rule when required by equitable considerations in appropriate circumstances. n5

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesAmerican Rule

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.170 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Hardt v. Reliance Std. Life Ins. Co., ___ U.S. ___, 130 S. Ct. 2149, 176 L. Ed. 2d 998, 1008 (2010) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Fogerty v. Fantasy, Inc., 510 U.S. 517, 523 114 S. Ct. 1023, 127 L. Ed. 2d 455 (1994) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Perdue v. Kenny A., ___ U.S. ___, ___, 130 S. Ct. 1662, 176 L. Ed. 2d 494, 504 n.3 (2010) ;

Buckhannon Board & Care Home, Inc. v. West Virginia Dept. of Health and Human Resources, 532 U.S. 598, 601-603, 121 S. Ct. 1835, 149 L. Ed. 2d 855 (2001) ; see §§ 25.81, 25.82.

(n5)Footnote 4. Rissman v. Rissman, 229 F.3d 586, 588 (7th Cir. 2000) ; see § 25.83.

(n6)Footnote 5. Chambers v. NASCO, Inc., 501 U.S. 32, 45, 111 S. Ct. 2123, 115 L. Ed. 2d 27 (1991) ; see § 25.84.

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
F. ATTORNEY'S FEES RECOVERABLE WITH JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.81

§ 25.81 Attorney's Fees Recoverable by Federal Statute and Procedural Rulen*

[1] Fee-Shifting Statutes That Further Congressional Policy

[a] Nature and Purpose of Fee-Shifting Statutes

The United States Code contains numerous statutes that expressly provide for the award of attorney's fees. The courts deem these statutes to be express exceptions to the American Rule discussed in § 25.80. n1 These statutory exceptions are often referred to as "fee-shifting" statutes, n2 because they shift the cost of the legal representation in the action to the losing party. n3 The two major purposes of fee-shifting statutes are to promote private enforcement of Congressional policies and to deter and punish abuse of the judicial process by certain classes of parties, such as, those that engage in unwarranted litigation. n4 Policy fee-shifting statutes are in contrast to other federal fee-shifting statutes that do not permit recovery of all fees in the litigation but only those incurred as a result of some wrongful action of one of the parties. n5

Although most of the federal fee-shifting statutes provide for either a mandatory or discretionary award of fees to the "prevailing party," n6 some statutes n7 provide that the court may award attorney's fees to "any party," to "either party," or to the party that is "appropriate." Others permit a "successful" litigant to obtain fees. Still others authorize district courts to award attorney's fees in the discretion of the district court, or to award fees when "appropriate." n8 The Supreme Court has held that when a party falls within any of these categories, the court may award the party attorneys fees even though the party does not qualify within the legal term of art "prevailing party," as discussed in [b], below. All that is necessary is that the party achieve some degree of success on the merits of the litigation, even if it is not a major success or a substantial success. On the other hand, a claimant does not satisfy that requirement by achieving merely a trivial success on the merits or a purely procedural victory. n9

[b] Requirement of Prevailing Party

[i] All Prevailing Party Statutes Construed Consistently

Federal policy fee-shifting statutes generally condition an award of attorney's fees to a particular party on the requirement that the party prevails in the litigation. Thus, the most common requirement of the statutes is that only a "prevailing party" is entitled to collect fees. n10 For the purposes of imposing attorney's fees, and in designating those parties eligible for an award of attorney's fees, Congress has employed the expression "prevailing party," which is a legal term of art. n11 Consequently, the term "prevailing party" must be given a uniform interpretation, n12 regardless of the particular fee-shifting statute in which the term appears. n13

However, a plaintiff is not automatically entitled to attorney's fees by showing that the plaintiff is a prevailing party; the prevailing party plaintiff must also demonstrate that he or she has complied with any of the attorney's fee requirements under the particular fee-shifting statute at issue, n14 and then must prove a reasonable amount for the fee. n15 Most fee-shifting statutes are discretionary; a prevailing party need not recover fees in every circumstance. However, some fee-shifting statutes provide that a prevailing party "shall" recover attorney's fees, which makes an award by the court mandatory. n16

[ii] When Plaintiff Qualifies as Prevailing Party

A plaintiff is the "prevailing party" if the plaintiff succeeds on any significant issue in the litigation which achieves some of the benefit the plaintiff sought in bringing suit. n17 A plaintiff must obtain relief on the merits of a claim, either pendente lite or at the conclusion of the litigation. n18 A plaintiff does not satisfy that requirement by achieving trivial success on the merits or a purely procedural victory. n19

For a court to award attorney's fees to the prevailing party under a federal fee-shifting statute, the party must gain judicial recognition, in that it has been awarded some relief sought by the action. The Supreme Court has held that unless there is a judicially recognized change in the parties' legal relationship, the plaintiff may not obtain attorney's fees under a fee-shifting statute. Thus, the Supreme Court has expressly rejected the "catalyst theory," which formerly provided that a party could obtain an award of fees, even when the party failed to secure a judgment, if the party had nonetheless achieved a desired result because the civil action had brought about a voluntary change in the defendant's conduct. n20

Therefore, to obtain an award of fees as a prevailing party under any of the federal fee-shifting statutes, such as the Fair Housing Act, n21 the Americans with Disabilities Act, n22 the Civil Rights Act, n23 or the Voting Rights Act, n24 the parties must have the provision for fees recognized in judicially sanctioned change in their legal relationship, such as in an award in a judgment by the court or as a settlement agreement incorporated in a consent decree. n25 However, the Supreme Court has stated that interim relief insufficient is insufficient to support the status of prevailing party. For example a plaintiff who has obtained a preliminary injunction, but who is denied a permanent injunction after a dispositive adjudication on the merits, does not qualify. n26

To qualify as a prevailing party, the plaintiff need not litigate a case at trial or obtain a judgment on the merits for the plaintiff. In this regard, a defendant's voluntary cessation of a challenged practice does not deprive a federal court of its power to determine the illegality of the practice, unless it is absolutely clear that the allegedly wrongful behavior could not reasonably be expected to recur. n27 Once the court has approved this determination through a formal judgment finding the defendant liable, or through a court approved consent decree, the court may award attorney's fees to the plaintiff as the prevailing party. n28 However, if a defendant agrees to settle solely because of the nuisance value of the suit, and not the suit's merits, prevailing party status may be denied to the plaintiff if the suit was frivolous, unreasonable or groundless, and the defendant's actions in settling the suit were entirely gratuitous. n29

[iii] When Defendant Qualifies as Prevailing Party

The defendant is the "prevailing party" if the plaintiff does not qualify as the prevailing party. Thus, the defendant is a prevailing party only if the plaintiff obtains no relief whatsoever from the litigation. n30 If, for example, the case is litigated to judgment on the merits in favor of the defendant, the defendant is the prevailing party. n31 A different rationale is used when the case is disposed of before judgment on the merits--for example, if the plaintiff voluntarily dismisses the action under Rule 41(a). n32

If the dismissal is with prejudice, it is an adjudication on the merits that changes the legal relationship between the plaintiff and the defendant, abolishing completely whatever claim the plaintiff might have had against the defendant. Consequently, a dismissal with prejudice makes the defendant a prevailing party. n33 On the other hand, a dismissal that is without prejudice, which leaves the plaintiff free to refile the action at a later date and does not in any way alter the legal relationship between the parties, does not render the defendant a prevailing party for purposes of the fee-shifting statutes. n34 When a claim is dismissed for lack of subject matter jurisdiction, the defendant is not a prevailing party and may not collect attorney's fees under a fee-shifting statute, because the decision is not on the merits and the absence of jurisdiction over the action also precludes the court from making any fee award under the statute. n35

[c] Examples of Policy Fee-Shifting Statutes Requirement of Prevailing Party

The United States Code contains hundreds of fee-shifting statutes that provide for the award of attorney's fees in particular areas of substantive law--they are too numerous to list here. A complete list of these statutes is contained in 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.171[3] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.) and in 1 Court Awarded Attorney's Fees, § 5.03 (Matthew Bender.). The following is a list of the attorney's fees provisions that are the most significant and the most frequently litigated:

1. Civil Rights. Attorney's fees provisions that provide for fee shifting in cases involving civil liberties, due process, equal protection, and cases involving civil rights litigation, including discrimination on the basis of race, sex, age, handicap, or other suspect classifications. n36

2. Labor and Employment. Under the Fair Labor Standards Act, n37 a court may award attorney's fees for a prevailing plaintiff only. n38 Thus, after an employee's successful action in state or federal court to recover unpaid minimum wages or unpaid overtime compensation, the employee is entitled to recover mandatory attorney's fees. n39 The Employee Retirement Income Security Act, provides for a discretionary award of fees to "either party." n40 The statute, however, is expressly limited to actions brought "by a participant, beneficiary, or fiduciary." If an ERISA action is brought by some other party, no fee award is permitted.

3. Consumer Protection and Consumer Safety. Under the fee-shifting statutes relating to consumer protection and safety, an award of fees is mandatory but only when the award is made to a prevailing consumer. If a defendant prevails under the consumer protection statutes, the defendant is eligible for a fee award, if at all, only if the defendant shows that the consumer plaintiff's action was frivolous, unreasonable, or without foundation. For example, a defendant may not recover fees for a claim pursuant to the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act unless the suit was brought in bad faith. n41

4. Environment. For claims by private parties to enforce federal environmental protection statutes, the statutes general permit the court to award fees at the time of final adjudication. Most statutes authorize fees to a prevailing party. n42

5. Intellectual Property. The fee-shifting provision of the Patent Act provides for an award of attorney's fees to the prevailing party in exceptional cases. n43 Congress has also expressly provided for an award of attorney's fees to the prevailing party in trademark litigation in exceptional cases. n44 Unlike the patent and trademark fee-shifting statutes, the Copyright Act does not require that a case be "exceptional" to justify fee shifting. Rather, the copyright statute provides merely that the court may award reasonable attorney's fees to the prevailing party as part of the costs. n45

6. Antitrust. Any person injured by reason of a violation of the antitrust laws may sue for the violation and, in addition to the triple damages sustained by the party, may recover a reasonable attorney's fee. n46 Therefore, it is mandatory that the court award attorney's fees to an antitrust plaintiff who shows the requisite injury. n47 A separate fee-shifting statute permits attorney's fees recovery when an antitrust plaintiff obtains only injunctive relief. n48

7. Securities Laws. Congress has provided that in certain private causes of action to enforce the securities laws the court may award attorney's fees. For example, the Securities Act of 1933 provides for fees to the prevailing party in certain actions for securities fraud if the opponent's suit or defense was without merit. n49

[2] Fee-Shifting Federal Statutes That Deter Abuse of Litigation

[a] Vexatious Multiplication of Proceedings

The United States Code allows the district court to impose excess costs, expenses, and attorney's fees on an attorney or other person admitted to conduct cases in federal court who unreasonably and vexatiously multiplies the proceedings in the action. n1 By its express terms, this statute applies only to attorneys; therefore, the court may not sanction the client but must impose them on the attorney personally. n2 There are three essential requirements for an award of attorneys fees or costs under Section 1927: (1) the attorney must have engaged in unreasonable and vexatious conduct; (2) that conduct must have multiplied the proceedings; and (3) the dollar amount of the award must be financially related to the excess proceedings, which means that the award may not exceed the costs, expenses, and attorneys' fees reasonably incurred because of the attorney's conduct. An attorney multiplies proceedings "unreasonably and vexatiously" within the meaning of the statute only when the attorney's conduct is so egregious that it is tantamount to bad faith. Such bad faith is not based on the attorney's subjective intent, but on the attorney's objective conduct. n3

Any award of fees under Section 1927 must be narrowly tailored to compensate the aggrieved party for only those fees resulting from the attorney's bad faith conduct, and the court may not award fees that would have been expended even in the absence of the wrongful conduct. n4 Furthermore, the court may make such an award only to the opposing party; it does not authorize the court to sanction an attorney by imposing a monetary fine payable to the court. n5

[b] Attorney's Fees Caused by Removal

If a removed case is remanded back to state court, the order remanding the case may require the payment of just costs and any actual expenses including attorney's fees incurred as a result of the removal, n6 irrespective of the basis for the order of remand. n7 In exercising its discretion, the court's primary consideration should be whether the removing party knew or should have known that the removal was improper. n8

[c] Internal Revenue Code Case Appeals

A circuit court or the United Supreme Court may require a taxpayer to pay a penalty to the government if a decision of the Tax Court is affirmed and it appears that the appeal was intended to delay, or is frivolous or groundless. n9 For purposes of this statute, the term "penalty" has been held to include an award of attorney's fees to the government if the taxpayer's appeal is frivolous or meant to delay concluding the case. n10

[3] Fee-Shifting Federal Rules That Deter Abuse of Litigation

[a] Purpose of Fee-Shifting Rules

Many of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure provide for an award of attorney's fees against those who have violated the rules or have otherwise abused the litigation process. These abuse of process fee provisions permit an award of attorney's fees for several purposes. First, a party who abuses the judicial process should be punished for the violation. Second, the award of fees serves as a deterrent, both to the party being sanctioned and to others who might be tempted to commit similar abuses in the future. n1 Third, an award of attorney's fees to the litigation opponent serves to compensate the opposition party who has been victimized by the abuse of judicial process and who have been required to make additional expenditures to respond to such abusive conduct. Accordingly, it is appropriate to compensate the victims of wrongdoing by awarding them the attorney's fees incurred in responding to the wrongful conduct. n2

[b] Attorney's Fees Expended in Motions for Sanctions Regarding Pleadings and Representations to Court

When it makes its determination on a Rule 11 motion for sanctions for misrepresentation regarding pleadings, the district court has discretion to award to the party prevailing on the motion the reasonable expenses and attorney's fees incurred in presenting or opposing the motion. n3 The purpose of sanctions under Rule 11(c) is to deter sanctionable conduct and must be limited to what is sufficient to achieve deterrence. n4 The court has considerable discretion to impose fees on the attorneys, law firms, or parties that have violated the rule or are responsible for the violation, in order to deter further violations. n5

[c] Attorney's Fees Expended in Rectification of Disclosure and Discovery Violations

Rule 26 permits the recovery of fees incurred in obtaining or opposing certain discovery orders and for improper disclosure and discovery papers. In particular, Rule 26(g) provides that the court may order sanctions for a party's failure to properly certify any required disclosure or any discovery request, and that such sanctions may include an order to pay the reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, caused by the violation. The rule mandates sanctions for violations when the certification is made without substantial justification, and sanctions may be imposed on the signer of the certification, the party on whose behalf the signer was acting, or both. n6 Although a sanction is mandatory when a violation of Rule 26(g) has occurred, the nature and extent of the sanction is left to the discretion of the district court. n7 In addition to discovery certification requirements, Rule 26 also authorizes the court to award attorney fees incurred in making or opposing a motion to compel the discovery of a prior statement n8 and incurred in making or opposing a motion for a protective order. n9

Rule 30 allows a party to recover attorney's fees that the party must pay because of an abuse of the deposition process. In particular, if a party has noticed a deposition but the deposition does not proceed because either (1) the noticing party does not attend, or (2) the witness does not appear because the noticing party failed to subpoena the witness, the court may order the party noticing the deposition to pay the expenses incurred by the other parties in attending the noticed deposition, including reasonable attorney's fees. n10

Rule 37 provides a general authorization for sanctions relating to abuses regarding disclosure and discovery. Thus, the court has discretion to award fees to the party prevailing on a motion to compel discovery. n11 Similarly, any fees incurred as a result of a party's failure to obey a court order requiring disclosure or discovery may be awarded to an opposing party. n12 Additionally, under Rule 37(c), (d), and (g), the fees incurred as a result of a party's violation of certain discovery rules may be recovered by the opposition even if there has been no prior court order requiring compliance with the rules. n13 Finally, Rule 36(a) provides that if a party has served proper requests for admission and is dissatisfied with the answers and objections received, the party may move for an order challenging the sufficiency of the answers and objections. When that motion is ruled upon, the provisions of Rule 37(a)(5) are applicable, which provide for an award of fees to a party prevailing on a motion to compel discovery. Thus, a party prevailing on a motion under Rule 36(a) is entitled to an award for attorney's fees reasonably incurred in bringing or opposing the motion. n14

[d] Attorney's Fees Recoverable From Defendant Who Wrongfully Fails to Waive Service

If a defendant that has received a proper request for waiver of service breaches its duty to avoid unnecessary costs of effecting service of process by waiving service, the defendant may be charged the reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, of any motion required to collect those service expenses, n15 unless good cause for the failure is shown by the defendant. n16

[e] Attorney's Fees Recoverable for Opposition's Failure to Attend or Participate in Pretrial Conference

The court may order the attorneys and parties to convene for pretrial conferences and may enter pretrial orders and a scheduling order to govern the times of subsequent proceedings. The court may assess reasonable attorney's fees against any party or attorney as a result of the party or attorney's failure to obey a scheduling or pretrial order; the failure of a party to appear by representation at a scheduling or pretrial conference; the party or attorney's substantial lack of preparation to participate in the conference; or the party or attorney's failure to participate in good faith at the conference. n17 Rule 16(f) provides that the award of expenses incurred is mandatory unless the failure to comply was substantially justified or other circumstances make an award unjust. n18

[f] Attorney's Fees Recoverable for Opposition's Subpoena That Imposes Undue Burden or Expense

An attorney, as an officer of the court, has the power to subpoena persons for attendance at deposition or trial and produce discovery, n19 but the attorney is subject to liability for misuse of that power. Therefore, a party or an attorney responsible for the issuance and service of a subpoena must take reasonable steps to avoid imposing undue burden or expense on a person subject to that subpoena. The court issuing a subpoena on behalf of the attorney or party must enforce the subpoena and impose on the attorney or party in breach an appropriate sanction, which may include reasonable attorney's fees. n20 Because the Rule states that the court "must" impose a sanction, but that the sanction "may" include a reasonable attorney's fee, imposition of sanctions is mandatory, n21 but the particular sanction of attorney's fees is discretionary. n22

[g] Award of Fees for Filing of Summary Judgment Affidavits in Bad Faith

If the court determines that a summary judgment affidavit was presented in bad faith or solely for the purpose of delay, the court must order the offending party to pay the expenses of the opposing party in contesting the affidavits, including reasonable attorney's fees. n23 As its terms indicate, attorney's fees may be awarded only for affidavits that are submitted either to delay the proceedings or that are otherwise in bad faith. n24 Therefore, for example, a district court sanctions order was reversed when the defendant's affidavits were not in bad faith, in that their position was not entirely unwarranted. n25

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesStatutory Awards

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.171[3], [4] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See Buckhannon Bd. and Care Home, Inc. v. West Virginia Dep't of Health and Human Res., 532 U.S. 598, 602-603, 121 S. Ct. 1835, 149 L. Ed. 2d 855 (2001) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Citizens for a Better Environment v. The Steel Company, 230 F.3d 923, 931 (7th Cir. 2000) ("fee-shifting" provisions of environmental statutes that promote private enforcement should be applied in same manner as civil rights fee-shifting statute).

(n4)Footnote 3. Fleischmann Distilling Corp. v. Maier Brewing Co., 386 U.S. 714, 717, 87 S. Ct. 1404, 18 L. Ed. 2d 475 (1967) .

(n5)Footnote 4. See Christiansburg Garment Co. v. EEOC, 434 U.S. 412, 419, 98 S. Ct. 694, 54 L. Ed. 2d 648 (1978) .

(n6)Footnote 5. See [2], below.

(n7)Footnote 6. See [b], below.

(n8)Footnote 7. 30 U.S.C. § 1270(d) (Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act).

(n9)Footnote 8. Hardt v. Reliance Std. Life Ins. Co., ___ U.S. ___, 130 S. Ct. 2149, 176 L. Ed. 2d 998, 1008 (2010) ; see Ruckelshaus v. Sierra Club, 463 U.S. 680, 683, 103 S. Ct. 3274, 77 L. Ed. 2d 938 (1983) ; Loggerhead Turtle v. County Council, 307 F.3d 1318, 1322-1323 n.5 (11th Cir. 2002) (citing examples).

(n10)Footnote 9. Hardt v. Reliance Std. Life Ins. Co., ___ U.S. ___, 130 S. Ct. 2149, 176 L. Ed. 2d 998, 1008-1009 (2010) .

(n11)Footnote 10. See, e.g., Ruiz v. A.B. Chance Co., 234 F.3d 654, 669 (Fed. Cir. 2000) (35 U.S.C. § 285 provides for award of reasonable attorney's fees to "prevailing party" in exceptional patent infringement cases).

(n12)Footnote 11. See Buckhannon Bd. and Care Home, Inc. v. West Virginia Dep't of Health and Human Res., 532 U.S. 598, 602-603, 121 S. Ct. 1835, 149 L. Ed. 2d 855 (2001) (based on distillation of Supreme Court cases, term of art "prevailing party" defines as party in whose favor judgment is rendered, regardless of amount of damages awarded; also defined as successful party and party who has been awarded some relief by court).

(n13)Footnote 12. Buckhannon Bd. and Care Home, Inc. v. West Virginia Dep't of Health and Human Res., 532 U.S. 598, 603 n.4, 121 S. Ct. 1835, 149 L. Ed. 2d 855 (2001) (similar fee-shifting provisions must be interpreted consistently).

(n14)Footnote 13. Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 433 n.7, 103 S. Ct. 1933, 76 L. Ed. 2d 40 (1983) (standards are generally applicable in all cases in which Congress has authorized award of fees to "prevailing party").

(n15)Footnote 14. Hardt v. Reliance Std. Life Ins. Co., ___ U.S. ___, 130 S. Ct. 2149, 176 L. Ed. 2d 998, 1006 (2010) (noting five factors potentially applicable to ERISA case).

(n16)Footnote 15. Perdue v. Kenny A., ___ U.S. ___, 130 S. Ct. 1662, 176 L. Ed. 2d 494, 504-505 (2010) .

(n17)Footnote 16. See Malden Mills Indus. v. ILGWU Nat'l Retirement Fund, 766 F. Supp. 1202, 1204 (D. Mass. 1991) .

(n18)Footnote 17. Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 433, 103 S. Ct. 1933, 76 L. Ed. 2d 40 (1983) .

(n19)Footnote 18. Hewitt v. Helms, 482 U.S. 755, 760, 107 S. Ct. 2672, 96 L. Ed. 2d 654 (1987) ; see Texas State Teachers Ass'n v. Garland Independent School Dist., 489 U.S. 782, 793, 109 S. Ct. 1486 (1989) (to be deemed prevailing party, plaintiff must be able to point to resolution of disputed issue which changes legal relationship between itself and defendant).

(n20)Footnote 19. Hardt v. Reliance Std. Life Ins. Co., ___ U.S. ___, 130 S. Ct. 2149, 176 L. Ed. 2d 998, 1009 (2010) .

(n21)Footnote 20. Buckhannon Bd. and Care Home, Inc. v. West Virginia Dep't of Health and Human Res., 532

U.S. 598, 605, 121 S. Ct. 1835, 149 L. Ed. 2d 855 (2001) (rejecting catalyst theory).

(n22)Footnote 21. See 42 U.S.C. § 3613(c)(2).

(n23)Footnote 22. See 42 U.S.C. § 12205.

(n24)Footnote 23. See 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-5(k).

(n25)Footnote 24. See 42 U.S.C. § 1973l(e).

(n26)Footnote 25. Buckhannon Bd. and Care Home, Inc. v. West Virginia Dep't of Health and Human Res., 532 U.S. 598, 605-606, 121 S. Ct. 1835, 149 L. Ed. 2d 855 (2001) .

(n27)Footnote 26. Sole v. Wyner, 551 U.S. 74, 82-86, 127 S. Ct. 2188, 167 L. Ed. 2d 1069, 1077-1079 (2007) .

(n28)Footnote 27. Friends of Earth, Inc. v. Laidlaw Envtl. Servs. (TOC), 528 U.S. 167, 193-194, 120 S. Ct. 693, 145 L. Ed. 2d 610 (2000) ; Maher v. Gagne, 448 U.S. 122, 129, 100 S. Ct. 2570, 65 L. Ed. 2d 653 (1980) .

(n29)Footnote 28. Buckhannon Bd. and Care Home, Inc. v. West Virginia Dep't of Health and Human Res., 532 U.S. 598, 604-605, 121 S. Ct. 1835, 149 L. Ed. 2d 855 (2001) .

(n30)Footnote 29. Texas State Teachers Ass'n v. Garland Independent School Dist., 489 U.S. 782, 793, 109 S. Ct. 1486 (1989) .

(n31)Footnote 30. See Fox v. Vice, 594 F.3d 423, 427 (5th Cir. 2010) .

(n32)Footnote 31. American Family Life Assurance Co. v. Teasdale, 733 F.2d 559, 569 (8th Cir. 1984) (fee award to defendant affirmed when jury had returned verdict for defendant).

(n33)Footnote 32. Fed. R. Civ. P. 41(a).

(n34)Footnote 33. Riviera Distribs. v. Jones, 517 F.3d 926, 928 (7th Cir. 2008) .

(n35)Footnote 34. Szabo Food Serv. v. Canteen Corp., 823 F.2d 1073 (7th Cir. 1987).

(n36)Footnote 35. Torres-Negron v. J & N Records, LLC, 504 F.3d 151, 164 & n.9 (1st Cir. 2007) .

(n37)Footnote 36. See 42 U.S.C. § 1988(b) (Civil Rights Attorney's Fees Awards Act applicable to proceedings in vindication of civil rights).

(n38)Footnote 37. 29 U.S.C. § 216(b).

(n39)Footnote 38. Fegley v. Higgins, 19 F.3d 1126, 1135 (6th Cir. 1994) , cert. denied, 115 S. Ct. 203 (1994) (even though defendant made offer of judgment greater than plaintiff's recovery, defendant could not be prevailing party, and district court did not err in granting fees to plaintiff for post-offer fees).

(n40)Footnote 39. 29 U.S.C. § 216(b).

(n41)Footnote 40. 29 U.S.C. § 1132(g)(1).

(n42)Footnote 41. 15 U.S.C. § 1692k(a)(3); Guerrero v. RJM Acquisitions LLC, 499 F.3d 926, 940 (9th Cir. 2007) .

(n43)Footnote 42. See 42 U.S.C. § 11046(f) (Clean Air Act); Citizens for a Better Env't v. Steel Co., 230 F.3d 923,

930-931 (7th Cir. 2000) (fee-shifting environmental statutes applied in same manner as fee-shifting civil rights statutes).

(n44)Footnote 43. See 35 U.S.C. § 285.

(n45)Footnote 44. See 15 U.S.C. § 1117(a).

(n46)Footnote 45. 17 U.S.C. § 505.

(n47)Footnote 46. 15 U.S.C. § 15.

(n48)Footnote 47. Alyeska Pipeline Serv. Co. v. Wilderness Soc., 421 U.S. 240, 261, 95 S. Ct. 1612, 44 L. Ed. 2d 141 (1975) .

(n49)Footnote 48. 15 U.S.C. § 26.

(n50)Footnote 49. 15 U.S.C. § 77k(e).

(n51)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 1927.

(n52)Footnote 2. Williams v. Giant Eagle Markets, Inc., 883 F.2d 1184, 1190 (3d Cir. 1989) .

(n53)Footnote 3. Amlong & Amlong, P.A. v. Denny's, Inc., 500 F.3d 1230, 1239 (11th Cir. 2006) .

(n54)Footnote 4. Garner v. Cuyahoga County Juvenile Court, 554 F.3d 624, 645-646 (6th Cir. 2009) ; Peterson v. BMI Refractories, Inc., 124 F.3d 1386, 1396 (11th Cir. 1997) .

(n55)Footnote 5. Prosser v. Prosser, 186 F.3d 403, 407 (3d Cir. 1999) .

(n56)Footnote 6. 28 U.S.C. § 1447(c).

(n57)Footnote 7. LaMotte v. Roundy's, Inc., 27 F.3d 314, 315 (7th Cir. 1994) .

(n58)Footnote 8. Moore v. Permanente Medical Group, 981 F.2d 443, 445-446 (9th Cir. 1992) (merits of decision to remove and order of remand must be considered in reviewing decision to impose fees).

(n59)Footnote 9. 26 U.S.C. § 7482(c)(4).

(n60)Footnote 10. Stelly v. Commissioner, 761 F.2d 1113, 1115 (5th Cir. 1985) ; Clark v. Commissioner, 744 F.2d 1447, 1448 (10th Cir. 1984) .

(n61)Footnote 1. National Hockey League v. Metropolitan Hockey Club, 427 U.S. 639, 643, 96 S. Ct. 2778, 49 L. Ed. 2d 747 (1976) .

(n62)Footnote 2. Rickels v. City of South Bend, 33 F.3d 785, 787 (7th Cir. 1994) .

(n63)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 11(c)(2).

(n64)Footnote 4. Hunter v. Earthgrains Co. Bakery, 281 F.3d 144, 151 (4th Cir. 2002) .

(n65)Footnote 5. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 11(c)(4).

(n66)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(g)(3); see Grider v. Keystone Health Plan Cent., Inc., 580 F.3d 119, 139-140 (3d Cir. 2009) (discussion of failure to substantially justify certification).

(n67)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(g)(3), Committee Notes to 1983 Amendments; see R & R Sails, Inc. v. Ins.

Co., 251 F.R.D. 520, 525 (S.D. Cal. 2008) .

(n68)Footnote 8. Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(3)(C); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(a)(5).

(n69)Footnote 9. Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(c)(3); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(a)(5).

(n70)Footnote 10. Fed. R. Civ. P. 30(g).

(n71)Footnote 11. Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(a)(5); see DL v. Dist. of Columbia, 256 F.R.D. 239, 242 (D.D.C. 2009) .

(n72)Footnote 12. Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(b)(2); see Novak v. Wolpoff & Abramson LLP, 536 F.3d 175, 178 (2d Cir. 2008) (burden on disobedient party to avoid fees by showing that his or her failure was justified or that special circumstances make award of expenses unjust.

(n73)Footnote 13. Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(c)(1)(A), 37(c)(2), 37(d)(3), 37(f).

(n74)Footnote 14. Fed. R. Civ. P. 36(a)(6); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(a)(5).

(n75)Footnote 15. Fed. R. Civ. P. 4(d)(2)(B).

(n76)Footnote 16. Fed. R. Civ. P. 4(d)(2).

(n77)Footnote 17. Fed. R. Civ. P. 16(f)(1).

(n78)Footnote 18. Fed. R. Civ. P. 16(f)(2); see Ford v. Alfaro, 785 F.2d 835, 840 (9th Cir. 1986) (because neither defendant nor defense counsel appeared at pretrial conference, defendant was ordered to pay plaintiff's fees for attending conference).

(n79)Footnote 19. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 45(a).

(n80)Footnote 20. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 45(c)(1).

(n81)Footnote 21. *Heartland Surgical Specialty Hosp., LLC v. Midwest Div., Inc., 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 53217, at 16 (D. Kan. July 20, 2007) .

(n82)Footnote 22. Polo Bldg. Group, Inc. v. Rakita (In re Shubov), 253 B.R. 540, 547 (9th Cir. 2000) .

(n83)Footnote 23. Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(g).

(n84)Footnote 24. Stewart v. RCA Corp., 790 F.2d 624, 632 (7th Cir. 1986) (sanctions not awarded when court not certain that plaintiff acted in bad faith).

(n85)Footnote 25. Fort Hill Builders v. National Grange Mutual Ins. Co., 866 F.2d 11, 16 (1st Cir. 1989) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
F. ATTORNEY'S FEES RECOVERABLE WITH JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.82

§ 25.82 Attorney's Fees Recoverable Under State Lawn*

When a party brings a case that qualifies for diversity jurisdiction, the parties may litigate state law claims in federal court, and the litigation is controlled by the state's substantive law. n1 With respect to fee-shifting statutes enacted as substantive law of the states, such statutes must be applied by federal courts sitting in diversity. n2 Furthermore, state common law regarding attorney's fees is also applicable--federal courts sitting in diversity must apply all of the substantive laws of the state, both statutory law and common law. Therefore, attorney's fees may not be awarded in a diversity suit under a particular exception to the American Rule, such as the equitable common fund or substantial benefit exceptions, unless the applicable state law also recognizes the particular exceptions. n3

It should be noted that a party may bring state law claims in federal court not only under diversity jurisdiction but also as claims within the court's supplemental jurisdiction. n4 If both the state and federal claims in the action are successful and authorize fee shifting, no question of the application of state attorney's fees law is presented, because the fee may be awarded under federal law. However, attorney's fees issues may arise if the federal claims are lost or if the federal claims do not provide for an award of fees. In that circumstance, a plaintiff prevailing on supplemental state claims may rely on a state fee-shifting provision, n5 unless the state fee-shifting provision is preempted or is otherwise contrary to federal policy. n6

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.170 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Chambers v. NASCO, Inc., 501 U.S. 32, 52, 111 S. Ct. 2123, 115 L. Ed. 2d 27 (1991) (in diversity cases, federal court's inherent power to award fees may be controlled by state law if state's substantive policy so dictates).

(n3)Footnote 2. Titan Holdings Syndicate v. City of Keene, 898 F.2d 265, 273 (1st Cir. 1990) (in diversity action, party entitled to fee award under state law).

(n4)Footnote 3. Morganroth Morganroth v. DeLorean, 213 F.3d 1301, 1317-1318 (6th Cir. 2000) ; Wyser-Pratte v. Van Dorn Co., 49 F.3d 213, 218 (6th Cir. 1995) .

(n5)Footnote 4. See 28 U.S.C. § 1367; Rissman v. Rissman, 229 F.3d 586, 588 (7th Cir. 2000) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Control Data Corp. v. S.C.S.C. Corp., 53 F.3d 930, 938 (8th Cir. 1995) .

(n7)Footnote 6. Guimond v. Trans Union Credit Information Co., 45 F.3d 1329, 1336 (9th Cir. 1995) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
F. ATTORNEY'S FEES RECOVERABLE WITH JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.83

§ 25.83 Express Contractual Provision For Award of Attorney's Feesn*

[1] Pre Litigation Contractual Provision

An important exception to the American Rule, which generally states that each party must pay its own attorney's fees, is that the rule may be superceded by express contractual provision. Therefore, in litigation regarding a contract, one party may collect attorney's fees from the loser if the contract expressly provides for that attorneys fees award. n1 The court will enforce a contractual attorney's fees provision according to its terms unless the provision is not enforceable under the principles of contract law. Therefore, the court may make an award of fees only in an amount as provided in the contract. n2 However, even when the parties' contract provides for recovery of reasonable attorney's fee by the prevailing party, the district court has considerable discretion in determining the amount of fees that would be reasonable. n3 A contract between private parties, even with respect to attorney's fees, is governed by the law of the jurisdiction in which the contract is made or in which the contract is to be enforced. The enforceability of a fee-shifting agreement between parties is, therefore, a matter controlled by state law, even if the jurisdictional basis of the action is a federal question and not diversity of citizenship. n4

[2] Attorney's Fees Agreement as Part of Settlement

Frequently, parties to litigation will enter a fee-shifting agreement after commencement of the lawsuit, as part of a settlement or compromise of the underlying action. Typically, the settlement agreement will provide for either a complete waiver of all fees, or for the recovery of a particular amount of fees, conditioned on the waiver of the right to seek a court awarded fee available under a federal statute or an equitable exception. Such a negotiated fee agreement is enforceable. n1 However, a settlement of an action will not be deemed to include a waiver of a statutory claim for attorney's fees unless the settlement agreement explicitly states that the prevailing party's claim for attorney's fees is waived. Thus, if a civil-rights plaintiff executes a settlement agreement that releases "all claims of any kind" against the defendant, but that does not expressly state attorney's fees, the agreement does not preclude the plaintiff from making a motion to recover statutory attorney's fees. n2 Furthermore, a settlement of the fee issue does not preclude a later motion for fees incurred after the agreement if those fees were necessarily incurred in defending the settlement agreement. n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesAmerican Rule

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.171[1] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Hardt v. Reliance Std. Life Ins. Co., ___ U.S. ___, 130 S. Ct. 2149, 176 L. Ed. 2d 998, 1008 (2010) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Federal Deposit Ins. Corp. v. Lugli, 813 F.2d 1030, 1034 (9th Cir. 1987) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Computrol, Inc. v. Newtrend, L.P., 203 F.3d 1064, 1072 (8th Cir. 2000) .

(n5)Footnote 4. In re Sure-Snap Corp. v. Shure, 983 F.2d 1015, 1017 (11th Cir. 1993) .

(n6)Footnote 1. Evans v. Jeff D., 475 U.S. 717, 740, 106 S. Ct. 1531, 89 L. Ed. 2d 747 (1986) .

(n7)Footnote 2. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 189 F.3d 331, 333-335 (3d Cir. 1999) (because waiver must be express, extrinsic evidence concerning parties' settlement negotiations or their expectations is irrelevant, at least in absence of claim of fraud, duress, accident, or mistake).

(n8)Footnote 3. Eirhart v. Libbey-Owens-Ford Co., 996 F.2d 846, 850 (7th Cir. 1993) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
F. ATTORNEY'S FEES RECOVERABLE WITH JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.84

§ 25.84 Award of Attorney's Fees Under Equitable Exceptions to American Rulen*

[1] Common Fund Exception

[a] Existence of Common Fund

The "common fund" exception is probably the most important equitable exception n1 to the American Rule, which generally provides that each party must pay its own attorney's fees. The exception allows the fee movant to obtain recovery of attorney's fees from any fund created, enhanced, protected, or otherwise affected by the litigation. The exception applies when the fund that has been created accrues to the benefit of both the fee movant and other beneficiaries who are not named parties to the action and when a fee assessment against the fund would tend to spread the cost of the litigation among all of those beneficiaries. An important requirement of the common fund exception is that the fee movant's recovery must be drawn exclusively from the fund created n2 and that neither the litigation opponent nor the fund beneficiaries themselves are personally liable for any of the fees. n3 Thus, the common fund exception does not provide for shifting of attorney's fees, but rather it spreads those fees among those benefitting from the fund. The theory of the exception is that because the fund beneficiaries have benefitted from the action, they should be required to share in the action's expense. n4

Consequently, a court may not award attorney's fees under the common fund exception unless the fee movant demonstrates the existence of a common fund, and no common fund is created when the fee movant's recovery does not benefit others, nor when the alleged fund is speculative in nature. n5 Additionally, the attorney's fees must come out of the recovery; the common fund theory is not applicable if it imposes additional liability on the losing defendant. n6 Furthermore, if the litigation does not enhance the fund, but only establishes the priority of the fee movant's claim to the fund, the common fund doctrine is inapplicable. n7 If the action of the attorney's fees movant enhances a pre-existing fund, fee recovery must be limited to that portion of the fund attributable to the movant's efforts. n8

[b] Spread Cost of Litigation Among Fund Beneficiaries

The common fund exception applies only if a fee assessment against the fund would serve to spread the cost of the litigation among the fund beneficiaries. The theory of the exception is that because the fund beneficiaries have benefitted from the action, they should be required to share in the action's expense. The beneficiaries of the fund must, therefore, be readily identifiable, so that the fees may be charged against their portion of the fund with some exactitude. In the absence of such identifiable beneficiaries the common fund exception is inapplicable. Thus, the common fund doctrine requires identifiable beneficiaries and circumstances that permit proportionate sharing among the beneficiaries with some exactitude. n9 In the absence of such identifiable beneficiaries, such as when the fee movant is litigating a general social grievance, the common fund exception is inapplicable. n10

[2] Substantial Benefit Exception

[a] Purpose of Exception

The substantial benefit exception to the American Rule is similar to the common fund exception. The common fund exception allows the court to assess attorney's fees if the moving party's litigation has created or otherwise affected a fund for the benefit of others and the fee assessment against the fund would serve to spread the costs of the litigation to all those beneficiaries n1 The substantial benefit exception performs the same function in that the litigation benefits others in addition to the moving party; however, it does not create a distinct fund from which the fees may be collected. Any fee award must be satisfied by the losing party, provided that the party moving for fees is a collective representative of the class benefitted by the suit. Accordingly, the substantial benefit exception applies only when: n2 the litigation has created a substantial benefit for a definable class; n3 and the court's personal jurisdiction over a defendant that is a collective representative of the class makes possible an award of fees that will spread the costs proportionately among the class members. n4

[b] Action Must Confer Substantial Benefit on Class of Beneficiaries

The substantial benefit exception applies only when the court determines that the litigation has conferred a substantial benefit on a class of beneficiaries. Whether such a benefit has been conferred is a finding of fact that is reviewable on appeal for clear error. Typical cases are union representation suits or shareholder derivative suits, in which a substantial benefit may be shown merely by proving that the defendant corporation or union violated the law. n5 In other cases, a significant financial benefit to class members is sufficient. Furthermore, a merits recovery by the plaintiff greater than that obtained by the class does not disqualify the plaintiff from fees under the substantial benefit exception. Even if the plaintiff obtains significant personal relief, an award of fees is permitted so long as a substantial benefit is conferred on others. n6

[c] Spread of Cost of Litigation Proportionately Among Class of Beneficiaries

Like the common fund exception, n7 the substantial benefit exception is based on the equitable principle that persons benefitting from a lawsuit should pay their proportionate share of the cost of the litigation. Both exceptions are based on spreading the fee among the beneficiaries, rather than shifting the fees to the opponent. When the fee is assessed against a common fund, the distinction between fee shifting and fee spreading is easy to understand. Under the substantial benefit exception, however, the fee is assessed against the litigation opponent, n8 giving the exception the appearance of fee shifting. To ensure that the exception does not violate the general equitable prohibition against fee shifting, the substantial benefit exception is applicable only when the court's jurisdiction makes possible an award that will operate to spread the costs proportionately among the beneficiaries. n9 For the exception to apply, the court must have personal jurisdiction over some entity, such as a corporation or labor union, that is composed of the class of ascertainable beneficiaries of the suit. The lack of jurisdiction over such a collective entity defeats application of the exception. n10 In essence, the entity should be an alter ego or collective representative of the beneficiaries. By imposing the fees on that entity, the costs of the suit are spread proportionally to all the beneficiaries of the suit. The most common example of an action in which a substantial benefit fee is proper is that of a stockholder derivative suit against a corporation. A plaintiff's successful derivative suit against the directors or officers generally benefits all of the shareholders. Thus, the court can require all of the shareholders share in the cost of the suit by assessing the plaintiff's attorney's fees against the corporations's officers or directors. n11

[3] Bad Faith Exception

[a] Purpose of Exception

If a party or attorney acts in bad faith, vexatiously, wantonly, or for oppressive reasons, the court may employ its inherent equitable powers to award attorney's fees as sanctions. Such a fee award is allowed under the bad faith exception to the American Rule, and its purpose is to compensate the wronged party, punish the wrongdoer, and protect the integrity of the court. Generally, the party itself will be required to pay the award, but the exception also permits the court to impose personal liability on counsel for the party. n1 Whether the fees should be assessed against the attorney or the client under the equitable exception turns on which of the two was most responsible for the bad faith conduct at issue. n2

[b] Existence of Bad Faith

The exception applies only when a party acts "in bad faith, vexatiously, wantonly, or for oppressive reasons." n3 Because this language clearly focuses on motive, the bad faith exception applies only when the actions at issue were taken in subjective bad faith. n4 This does not mean that the court must determine the party's state of mind at the time the actions were taken; the required bad faith may be inferred from the absolute lack of merit in the litigant's actions. n5 On the other hand, when the party's actions have some merit, no inference of bad faith is permitted. n6 In most cases under the bad faith exception, the prevailing party is the party requesting an award of fees. However, when a prevailing party has been guilty of bad faith in some discrete portion of the litigation, fees may be assessed against the prevailing party under the bad faith exception, and in favor of the losing party. n7

[c] Bad Faith Must Be Related to Litigation Process Itself

In making its equitable determination of whether to award fees for bad faith, the court may not consider all of the conduct of a losing defendant, including the events giving rise to the cause of action or the litigation. Rather, the court must restrict itself to examining the defendant's conduct related to the litigation itself. n8 if a court were to rely on the conduct forming the basis of the cause of action to find the requisite bad faith, the bad faith exception would be a virtual elimination of the American Rule. For example, a defendant found liable for fraud would automatically be guilty of bad faith with respect to the underlying cause of action, thus eliminating the American Rule in all successful fraud actions, and such result is not the purpose of the equitable bad faith exception. n9 The fact that bad faith may be shown only in the conduct relating to the litigation does not mean that the court may look only to conduct occurring after the commencement of the litigation. Once the cause of action has accrued, any subsequent acts of the defendant may form the basis of a finding of bad faith, even if those acts occurred prior to the formal commencement of the action. n10

Because the primary purposes of the bad faith exception are to punish the party for abusing the court and the litigation process, and to compensate the party bearing the cost of the abuse, n11 the fee award under the bad faith exception must be narrowly tailored to punish only the offending conduct related to the litigation, and should compensate only those attorney's fees incurred in response to that conduct. Consequently, when the bad faith is limited to some discrete portion of the case, the fees should be limited to fees related to that portion. n12

[4] Willful Contempt Exception

Another exception to the American Rule requirement that each party pay its own attorney's fees occurs when a party has been adjudged in willful contempt of a court order. In connection with a contempt order, the court has discretion to grant attorney's fees in favor of the party bringing the contempt action as part of the fine levied on the defendant. Thus, any fee imposed incident to a contempt citation is primarily punitive but is also intended to compensate the victim of the contempt for the expenses incurred because of the contempt. The fees awarded should, therefore, be limited to those occasioned by the contempt. n1 A party's willful contempt of a court order also constitutes bad faith. The contempt exception could thus easily be viewed as a specific instance of the bad faith exception. Nevertheless, the Supreme Court has consistently stated it as a separate exception. n2

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesAmerican Rule

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.171[2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Morganroth Morganroth v. DeLorean, 213 F.3d 1301, 1318 (6th Cir. 2000) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Morganroth Morganroth v. DeLorean, 213 F.3d 1301, 1318 (6th Cir. 2000) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Knight v. United States, 982 F.2d 1573, 1579 (Fed. Cir. 1993) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Morganroth Morganroth v. DeLorean, 213 F.3d 1301, 1318 (6th Cir. 2000) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n6)Footnote 5. Capital Bancshares v. United States, 957 F.2d 203, 208 (5th Cir. 1992) (recovery did not create common fund, because plaintiff brought suit solely for its own benefit and recovery did not benefit others not party to action).

(n7)Footnote 6. Morganroth Morganroth v. DeLorean, 213 F.3d 1301, 1319 (6th Cir. 2000) .

(n8)Footnote 7. United States v. 110-118 Riverside Tenants Corp., 5 F.3d 645, 646 (2d Cir. 1993) .

(n9)Footnote 8. Swedish Hosp. Corp. v. Shalala, 1 F.3d 1261, 1267 (D.C. Cir. 1993) .

(n10)Footnote 9. Morganroth Morganroth v. DeLorean, 213 F.3d 1301, 1319 (6th Cir. 2000) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n11)Footnote 10. Boeing Co. v. Van Gemert, 444 U.S. 472, 478, 100 S. Ct. 745, 62 L. Ed. 2d 676 (1980) ; see, e.g., Southeast Legal Defense Group v. Adams, 657 F.2d 1118, 1123 (9th Cir. 1981) (action instituted to protect state highway fund from illegal disbursement did not entitle plaintiff to fee award, because fund beneficiaries were all taxpayers of state).

(n12)Footnote 1. See [1], above.

(n13)Footnote 2. Mills v. Electric Auto-Lite Co., 396 U.S. 375, 90 S. Ct. 616, 24 L. Ed. 2d 593 (1970) (attorney's fees awarded where plaintiff was successful in action under Securities Exchange Act, case conferred substantial benefit on shareholders, and court had subject matter jurisdiction).

(n14)Footnote 3. See [b], below.

(n15)Footnote 4. See [c], below.

(n16)Footnote 5. Cruz v. Local Union No. 3, Int'l Bhd. of Elec. Workers, 34 F.3d 1148, 1159 (2d Cir. 1994) (union member who establishes violation of union's duty of fair representation confers benefit on union members merely by proving violation); Smillie v. Park Chem. Co., 710 F.2d 271, 275 (6th Cir. 1983) (shareholder conferred substantial benefit by proving violation of federal securities law).

(n17)Footnote 6. Rodonich v. Senyshyn, 52 F.3d 28, 34-35 (2d Cir. 1995) .

(n18)Footnote 7. See [1], above.

(n19)Footnote 8. See [a], above.

(n20)Footnote 9. Mills v. Electric Auto-Lite Co., 396 U.S. 375, 394, 90 S. Ct. 616, 24 L. Ed. 2d 593 (1970) .

(n21)Footnote 10. Sederquist v. Court, 861 F.2d 554, 557 (9th Cir. 1988) .

(n22)Footnote 11. O'Neill v. Church's Fried Chicken, Inc., 910 F.2d 263, 265 (5th Cir. 1990) (shareholder action contributing to increased price per share).

(n23)Footnote 1. Roadway Express, Inc. v. Piper, 447 U.S. 752, 764-767, 100 S. Ct. 2455, 65 L. Ed. 2d 488 (1980) (federal courts may award attorney's fees against attorneys who willfully abuse judicial process).

(n24)Footnote 2. Lockary v. Kayfetz, 974 F.2d 1166, 1169, 1170 (9th Cir. 1992) , cert. denied, 508 U.S. 931 (1993) .

(n25)Footnote 3. F.D. Rich Co. v. United States ex rel. Indus. Lumber Co., 417 U.S. 116, 129, 94 S. Ct. 2157, 40 L. Ed. 2d 703 (1974) .

(n26)Footnote 4. Dow Chem. Pac. Ltd. v. Rascator Maritime, S.A., 782 F.2d 329 (2d Cir. 1986) .

(n27)Footnote 5. Peoro v. Eisenman, 793 F.2d 1048, 1051-1052 (9th Cir. 1986) .

(n28)Footnote 6. Phoenix Newspapers, Inc. v. Phoenix Mailers Union Local 752, 989 F.2d 1077, 1084 (9th Cir. 1993) (when arbitrator exceeded authority in entering remedial order, lawsuit challenging order could not have been brought in bad faith).

(n29)Footnote 7. Square Constr. Co. v. Washington Metro. Area Transit Auth., 800 F.2d 1256, 1267 (4th Cir. 1986) (remanding for assessment of fees against prevailing party for time party prolonged litigation).

(n30)Footnote 8. Morganroth Morganroth v. DeLorean, 213 F.3d 1301, 1318 (6th Cir. 2000) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n31)Footnote 9. See Association of Flight Attendants v. Horizon Air Indus., Inc., 976 F.2d 541 (9th Cir. 1992) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n32)Footnote 10. Morganroth Morganroth v. DeLorean, 213 F.3d 1301, 1318 (6th Cir. 2000) .

(n33)Footnote 11. Hutto v. Finney, 437 U.S. 678, 689 n.14, 98 S. Ct. 2565, 57 L. Ed. 2d 522 (1978) .

(n34)Footnote 12. Strag v. Board of Trustees, 55 F.3d 943, 954-56 (4th Cir. 1995) .

(n35)Footnote 1. Halderman v. Pennhurst State School & Hosp., 49 F.3d 939, 941 (3d Cir. 1995) .

(n36)Footnote 2. Chambers v. NASCO, Inc., 501 U.S. 32, 45, 111 S. Ct. 2123, 115 L. Ed. 2d 27 (1991) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
F. ATTORNEY'S FEES RECOVERABLE WITH JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.85

§ 25.85 Award of Attorney's Fees Against Federal Government Entitiesn*

[1] Sovereign Immunity Generally Precludes Fee Award

The American Rule requirement that each private party pay its own attorney's fees irrespective of which party prevails in the litigation n1 applies with even greater force if fees are sought from the federal government, because the doctrine of sovereign immunity generally precludes the imposition of any type of liability against the federal government. n2 Therefore, the federal government and its agencies, officers and employees have traditionally retained protection from fee liability. However, in some discrete areas of law, Congress has waived the government's immunity from fee assessments. n3 Also, to rectify significant inequity in suits between the government and private parties, and to prevent careless or irresponsible litigation by the federal government lawyers, Congress has adopted the more general waiver found in the Equal Access to Justice Act. n4

[2] Limited Statutory Waiver of Immunity by Federal Government Regarding Attorney's Fees

[a] Waiver Applies in Non-Tort Cases That Involve Federal Entity

The Equal Access to Justice Act (EAJA) creates a limited waiver of the federal government's immunity from an assessment of attorney's fees in actions other than tort actions. n1 The EAJA expressly provides that the federal government may be liable for fees under the common law and, thus, waives sovereign immunity under the equitable exceptions to the American Rule, most notably the bad-faith litigation exception. n2 The EAJA is different than other fee-shifting federal statutes in that it is based on the presence of a federal governmental entity as a party in the action. The effect of the EAJA is to authorize attorney's fees against the federal government provided that the issue of attorney's fees is not exclusively controlled by the substantive law governing the action. The EAJA provides that if the substantive federal law at issue precludes fees, then that more specific law governs. n3 However, if the substantive law also contains a fee-shifting provision and the statute is not explicit that its provision is to be exclusive, then the court may use EAJA provisions to supplement the provisions of the other fee-shifting statute. n4 In such circumstances, the prevailing party should be given the benefit of the more relaxed standard for awarding fees. n5

There are two important exceptions to the applicability of the EAJA. First, the government may not be held liable for attorney's fees in an action "sounding in tort," n6 whether the case is brought by or against the government. n7 Therefore, for example, a litigant may not recover attorney's fees in an action under the Federal Tort Claims Act, n8 even if the issue on which the private litigant prevailed against the government was completely independent of the tort issue. n9

The second primary exception to application of the EAJA is that it does not apply to individual private litigants who have a net worth exceeding $2,000,000 nor to corporations or other organizations that have a net worth exceeding $7,000,000. n10 Although not specified in the statute, legislative history indicates that valuation should be of the acquisition cost and not of the fair market value. n11

[b] Award of Attorney's Fees to Prevailing Party is Mandatory if Position of Federal Entity Was Not Substantially Justified

The EAJA provides that a successful private litigant against the federal government is entitled to recover the litigants attorneys' fees if: (1) the litigant was a "prevailing party"; (2) the government's position was not "substantially justified"; (3) no special circumstances existed that would make an award unjust; and (4) the litigant filed a timely application with the district court. n12

To qualify as a "prevailing party" under the first requirement, the litigant must succeed on any significant issue in litigation which achieves some of the benefit the litigant sought in bringing suit. However, the plaintiff qualifies as a prevailing party, and thus is entitled to attorney's fees, only if the court makes an actual formal adjudication of liability by the government, or in the case of a settlement, the court approves the settlement through a consent decree. n13

The second requirement for a fee award under the EAJA is that the federal government's position was not substantially justified. n14 A "substantially justified" position means a position that is justified to degree that could satisfy a reasonable person. n15 The "position of the United States" includes not only the position taken by the United States in the civil action, but also the action or failure to act by the agency on which the civil action is based. n16 It is important to note that while the government has the burden of proof that its position was substantially justified, the private litigant has the initial burden of pleading by allegation that the government's position was not substantially justified. n17 The requirement of this burden of pleading is a recognition that the "substantially justified" standard does not mean that there is a presumption that the government position is not substantially justified simply because it lost the case; furthermore, there is no presumption that the government must pay fees each time it loses. n18

The third requirement of the EAJA is that no are no special circumstances regarding the application that would make an award of fees unjust. n19 To establish special circumstances, the defendant must generally show that the award is counter to the purposes of the fee shifting provision or that the balance of equities favors denial of fee. n20

[c] Procedural Considerations Regarding Award of Attorney's Fees Against Federal Entity

In addition to the requirements for an award of attorney's fees discussed above, the following is a list of the other significant procedural attributes of the EAJA:

- Under the EAJA, the federal governmental entity may be assessed fees by a court in any civil action. Generally the term "court" is limited to those courts that are defined as a "court of the United States" under Judicial Code Article III. n21 The term "civil action" includes proceedings for judicial review of agency action n22 but does not include habeas corpus proceedings. n23

- The requirement of an attorney's fee application is not jurisdictional. Consequently, provided that an applicant has made a timely fee application within the 30-day filing period, the applicant may amend the application after the 30-day filing period to cure an initial failure to allege that the government's position in the underlying litigation lacked substantial justification, and the application as amended qualifies for consideration and determination on the merits. n24

- The fee awarded may not be greater than the amount that the prevailing party was obligated to pay in pursuing the litigation. n25 In other words, the amount the prevailing party has actually paid in attorney's fees constitutes a cap on the statutory fee award. n26 Consequently, a pro se litigant may not recover attorney's fees under the EAJA. n27

- A district court's determination of substantial justification is reviewed under an abuse of discretion standard. n28

- A court may award interest on an attorney's fee award under the EAJA only if government appeals a fee award and the award is affirmed. n29

[3] Other Federal Statutes Providing Fee Award Against Federal Government

Although the EAJA is clearly the most important statute permitting an attorney's fees award against the federal government, n1 there are other statutes that provide for such an award. Probably the most important of these is the fee-shifting provision of the Internal Revenue Code, n2 which permits an award of fees against the government in favor of a prevailing party when the position of the government was not substantially justified, which is precisely the standard employed by the EAJA. The same construction of the "substantially justified" standard is applied under both statutes. n3 However, the Internal Revenue statute contains its own definition of "prevailing party," which requires that the fee movant either: (1) substantially prevail with respect to the amount in controversy; or (2) substantially prevail with respect to the most significant issue or set of issues presented. n4

Several of the other statutes that permit an attorney's fees award against the federal government are narrow enactments, such as the Legal Services Corporation Act, n5 and the Competition in Contracting Act. n6 If one of these statutes is applicable, fees may be awarded only under the terms of that statute, not under the EAJA. n7

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesAmerican RuleGovernmentsFederal GovernmentClaims By & AgainstPublic Health & Welfare LawSocial ServicesLegal AidTortsDamagesCosts & Attorney FeesStatutory AvailabilityWorkers' Compensation & SSDISocial Security Disability InsuranceCosts & Attorney Fees

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.172 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See Buckhannon Bd. and Care Home, Inc. v. West Virginia Dep't of Health and Human Res., 532 U.S. 598, 602, 121 S. Ct. 1835, 149 L. Ed. 2d 855, 861 (2001) (under "American Rule," parties must ordinarily bear their own attorney's fees, and federal courts generally do not award fees to prevailing party absent explicit statutory authority).

(n3)Footnote 2. See FTC v. Kuykendall, 466 F.3d 1149, 1153 (10th Cir. 2006) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Slugocki v. United States, 816 F.2d 1572, 1579 (Fed. Cir. 1987) (waiver of sovereign immunity in Fair Labor Standards Act 29 U.S.C. § 216(b)).

(n5)Footnote 4. See [2], below.

(n6)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. 2412(b), (d); see Scarborough v. Principi, 541 U.S. 401, 413, 124 S. Ct. 1856, 158 L. Ed. 2d 674 (2004) .

(n7)Footnote 2. EEOC v. Hendrix Coll., 53 F.3d 209, 211 (8th Cir. 1995) .

(n8)Footnote 3. In re Cascade Rds., Inc., 34 F.3d 756, 768 (9th Cir. 1994) (because Internal Revenue Code contains exclusive fee provision, that provision controls rather than provisions of EAJA).

(n9)Footnote 4. See United States v. Aisenberg, 358 F.3d 1327, 1340 (11th Cir. 2004) .

(n10)Footnote 5. EEOC v. Clay Printing Co., 13 F.3d 813, 817-818 (4th Cir. 1994) (even though Age Discrimination in Employment Act contains fee-shifting provision that authorizes fees for prevailing plaintiff, that statute is not exclusive; thus, prevailing defendant sued by EEOC could collect fees from government under EAJA when government's position was not substantially justified).

(n11)Footnote 6. 28 U.S.C. § 2412(d)(1)(A).

(n12)Footnote 7. Resolution Trust Corp. v. Gaudet, 192 F.3d 485, 487 (5th Cir. 1999) .

(n13)Footnote 8. Andrews v. United States, 122 F.3d 1367, 1374 (11th Cir. 1997) .

(n14)Footnote 9. In re Turner, 14 F.3d 637, 640 (D.C. Cir. 1994) .

(n15)Footnote 10. 28 U.S.C. § 2412(d)(2)(B).

(n16)Footnote 11. See United States v. 88. 88 Acres of Land, 907 F.2d 106, 107 (9th Cir. 1990) .

(n17)Footnote 12. Cunningham v. Barnhart, 440 F.3d 862, 863 (7th Cir. 2006) ; see 28 U.S.C. § 2412(d)(1)(A), (B); [c], below (timeliness of application).

(n18)Footnote 13. Buckhannon Bd. & Care Home, Inc. v. West Virginia Dep't of Health & Human Res., 532 U.S. 598, 605-607, 121 S. Ct. 1835, 149 L. Ed. 2d 855 (2001) (rejecting "catalyst theory" for fee award).

(n19)Footnote 14. 28 U.S.C. § 2412(d)(1)(A).

(n20)Footnote 15. Pierce v. Underwood, 487 U.S. 552, 565, 108 S. Ct. 2541, 101 L. Ed. 2d 490 (1988) ; see Lauer v. Barnhart, 321 F.3d 762, 765 (8th Cir. 2003) (government's position in litigation is not substantially justified for purposes of award of fees under EAJA if position lacks any evidence in its support).

(n21)Footnote 16. 28 U.S.C. § 2412(d)(2)(D).

(n22)Footnote 17. Scarborough v. Principi, 541 U.S. 401, 414, 124 S. Ct. 1856, 158 L. Ed. 2d 674 (2004) .

(n23)Footnote 18. Scarborough v. Principi, 541 U.S. 401, 415, 124 S. Ct. 1856, 158 L. Ed. 2d 674 (2004) .

(n24)Footnote 19. 28 U.S.C. § 2412(d)(1)(A).

(n25)Footnote 20. Democratic Party of Wash. State v. Reed, 388 F.3d 1281, 1285 (9th Cir. 2004) ; see Newman v. Piggie Park Enterprises, Inc., 390 U.S. 400, 88 S. Ct. 964, 19 L. Ed. 2d 1263 (1968) (purposes of fee award to penalize litigants who deliberately advance arguments they know to be untenable and to encourage injured individuals to seek judicial relief).

(n26)Footnote 21. See 28 U.S.C. § 451; see also Bowen v. Commissioner, 706 F.2d 1087, 1088 (11th Cir. 1983) .

(n27)Footnote 22. 28 U.S.C. § 2412(d)(1)(A).

(n28)Footnote 23. Ewing v. Rodgers, 826 F.2d 967, 969-970 (10th Cir. 1987) (habeas corpus is not civil action for purposes of applying rules of procedure).

(n29)Footnote 24. Scarborough v. Principi, 541 U.S. 401, 418-420, 124 S. Ct. 1856, 158 L. Ed. 2d 674 (2004) .

(n30)Footnote 25. 28 U.S.C. § 2412(d)(2).

(n31)Footnote 26. Richlin Sec. Serv. Co. v. Chertoff, 553 U.S. 571, 128 S. Ct. 2007, 170 L. Ed. 2d 960, 967-968 (2008) (attorney fees and paralegal fees are "incurred" at market rate charged to party, not at cost to attorney to provide service, because amount must be measured from perspective of client rather than attorney).

(n32)Footnote 27. Krecioch v. United States, 316 F.3d 684, 686-688 (7th Cir. 2003) .

(n33)Footnote 28. Abbas Hanoun Al Maleki v. Holder, 558 F.3d 1200, 1206 (10th Cir. 2009) .

(n34)Footnote 29. 28 U.S.C. § 2412(f).

(n35)Footnote 1. See [b], above.

(n36)Footnote 2. 26 U.S.C. § 7430.

(n37)Footnote 3. Miller v. Alamo, 983 F.2d 856, 859 (8th Cir. 1993) .

(n38)Footnote 4. See 26 U.S.C. § 7430(c)(4)(A)(i).

(n39)Footnote 5. 42 U.S.C. § 2996e(f).

(n40)Footnote 6. 31 U.S.C. § 3554(c).

(n41)Footnote 7. United States, 34 F.3d 756, 767-769 (9th Cir. 1994) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
F. ATTORNEY'S FEES RECOVERABLE WITH JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.86

§ 25.86 Amount of Award of Attorney's Feesn*

[1] Lodestar Method of Calculation Required Under All Federal Fee-Shifting Statutes

All federal fee shifting statutes which authorize an award of attorney fees, such as the EAJA, serve as a penalty, Consequently the amount of such fees are calculated using a lodestar analysis, and are typically subject to a cap on the attorney's compensable hourly rate. n1 On the other hand, if an attorney fee award is made under a statute that is not a fee shifting statute, such as under the Social Security Act, n2 the statute allows an award of fees paid by the client, recognizing the client's obligation to pay counsel a reasonable fee. Such fees are not calculated using a lodestar analysis, and there is no limitation on the attorney's hourly rate. n3

Under the lodestar method of calculation, the court first determines the number of hours that were reasonably expended by the attorneys and the paralegals for the prevailing party. n4 Then the court multiplies the number of hours for each category at a reasonable rate per hour that the court deems appropriate. n5 However, if the prevailing party obtains only nominal damages or otherwise obtains a mere technical victory inappropriate for fees, the court may dispense with calculation of lodestar and may either deny fees or make an award of nominal fees. The Supreme Court has held that when nominal damages are recovered, the only reasonable fee is usually no fee at all. The Court explained that although a judgment for nominal damages does not affect the plaintiff's status as a prevailing party, it does bear on the propriety of the fees awarded, for the degree of success is the most critical factor in determining the reasonableness of a fee award. n6

[2] Hours Reasonably Expended

[a] Determination of Reasonableness

Each motion for attorney's fees must state the amount of fees that the party is applying for or provide a fair estimate of the amount. n1 Evidentiary submissions of the fee movant provide the factual proof of the amount claimed. Therefore, the party moving for imposition of a fee award bears the burden of establishing the hours claimed and submitting adequate documentation of those hours. n2 Documentation should be in the form of contemporaneously prepared time records, although such records are not an absolute prerequisite to a fee award and hours may be proved by a reconstruction of time records or by other evidence adequate under the circumstances. If the records submitted by the fee movant are inadequate to establish the hours claimed, courts will generally make a percentage reduction of the hours. n3

The Supreme Court has emphasized that the fee movant must demonstrate not only that the claimed hours were actually expended, but also that they were "reasonably" expended. n4 With respect to a determination of excessive hours, courts should consider how long similar tasks have taken in previous cases and the time the fee opponent has devoted to the task. n5 If the court's scrutiny for reasonableness requires a reduction of the claimed hours, the preferred method is for the court to conduct an hour-by-hour review of all the time claimed and to disallow those hours not reasonably expended on the litigation. n6

[b] Hours Must Be Related to Successful Claims

If the fee movant has not succeeded on all claims, the district court should award only an amount that is reasonable in relation to the results of the suit. n7 To establish a reasonable fee when a party has prevailed on some by not all claims, the court should make two inquiries in its equitable discretion: First, did the plaintiff fail to prevail on claims that were unrelated to the claims on which the plaintiff succeeded? Second, did the plaintiff achieve a level of success that makes the hours reasonably expended a satisfactory basis for making a fee award? Then the district court may identify specific hours that should be eliminated, or it may simply reduce the award to account for the limited success. n8

When all of the claims for relief share a common core of facts or are based on related legal theories, it may be difficult to divide counsel's time on a claim-by-claim basis. In that event, the district court should focus on the significance of the overall relief obtained by the plaintiff in relation to the hours reasonably expended on the litigation. n9 There is no rule or formula for making a reduction; rather, in its discretion the court may follow either of two methods: (1) apportion the hours and award fees only for those expended on the successful claims; n10 or, if such an apportionment is impossible or impractical, make a percentage reduction to account for the limited success. n11

[c] Types of Hours Compensable

Hours expended by an attorney directly on a successful claim are obviously compensable. n12 Other types of hours that are compensable include the following:

1. Hours expended in administrative proceedings that are prerequisites or preparation for the later litigation are compensable. A fee movant will often seek compensation for the hours spent in pre-litigation administrative proceedings. If a statute provides for recovery of fees in any action or proceeding, the use of the term "proceeding" has been interpreted as disclosing legislative intent to include attorney's fees for administrative proceedings. n13 The movant may also obtain fees from administrative proceedings that are useful and ordinarily necessary to obtain judgment in the federal action. n14

2. Hours expended in other actions and in arbitration proceedings may be compensable. For example, if a federal action is filed, but the district court abstains in deference to an ongoing, potentially dispositive state court action, a fee award made at the conclusion of the federal action may include fees incurred in the state action. n15 Furthermore, fees are allowed for prior arbitration proceedings that were required under the terms of a contract or contributed to the resolution of a later statutory claim, n16 unless such fees are expressly prohibited by the arbitration agreement. n17

3. Hours expended in necessary monitoring of compliance with a judgment are compensable. Courts commonly permit post-judgment attorney's fees awards for necessary monitoring of compliance with a prospective decree to ensure enforcement of the decree. n18 Additionally, if the opposition fails to comply with the decree, the court may award fees for necessary contempt motions. n19

4. As a general rule, hours expended on the fee issue itself are compensable in the fee award. Time spent establishing entitlement to and the amount of court-awarded attorney's fees is often referred to as "fees on fees." The Supreme Court has held that fees on fees are proper under the Equal Access to Justice Act, n20 and the circuit courts have extended the principle to other federal fee-shifting statutes. n21

[3] Reasonable Hourly Rate

[a] Compensable Amount Is Determined by Prevailing Market Rate in Community

Once the court has determined compensable hours, it must determine the proper rate to multiply by those hours. The appropriate rate for any fee award under a "prevailing party" fee-shifting statute is based on the fees that were "incurred" by the prevailing party in the civil action. n1 Fees and costs "incurred" by a party are calculated under lodestar by the prevailing market rates billed in the community by attorneys for the relevant services, and not by the attorney's actual expense for providing those services. n2

The party making the motion to recover attorney's fees has the burden of establishing that market rate. Thus, a prevailing party requesting fees has the burden of producing sufficient evidence of what constitutes a reasonable market rate in the community for the essential character and complexity of the legal services rendered in order to establish a prima facie case for fees. If that is established, the opposing party then has the burden of producing record evidence that contests that rate. n3 A rate determined in this way is deemed to be reasonable and is referred to for convenience as the prevailing market rate. n4 The relevant community for purposes of the lodestar is the forum community. Thus, if counsel for the fee movant practices in another community, the prevailing market rate should therefore be that of the community in which the court is located, not the community in which the attorney actually practices. n5

Evidence may be presented regarding the following matters:

1. The attorney's customary billing rate. If the fee movant's attorney is in private practice, the most convincing evidence of the market rate is the rate that counsel charges a client in similar actions. n6 As a practical matter, an attorney who has established a usual billing rate will ordinarily recover fees based on that rate. n7 However, when the litigation is outside of the attorney's field of expertise, those rates, while relevant, are not as persuasive in establishing the prevailing market rate, which may then be established by any other competent evidence. n8

2. The prevailing market rate, if the attorney has no customary billing rate. The prevailing market rate may be established from numerous sources, including affidavits of counsel with similar experience regarding the rate they would charge for a similar case, n9 bar surveys of customary rates, the amount charged by counsel for the opposition in the particular case or similar litigation, n10 the amounts awarded counsel with similar experience in similar litigation, and the amounts awarded for the services of counsel in prior litigation. n11

3. The attorney's experience and expertise. An "experience differential" is recognized by the courts in setting an appropriate rate for a lodestar fee award. n12

[b] Rate Cap

Some fee-shifting statutes provide for the rate to be awarded. Thus, a provision of the Equal Access to Justice Act n13 places a presumptive limitation of $125 per hour as the highest fee that may be awarded under the statute; however the court may then adjust that presumptive highest fee if the court determines that an adjustment is justified by an increase in the cost of living or a special factor, such as the limited availability of qualified attorneys for the proceedings involved. n14

[4] Deviations From Lodestar Amount

Once a lodestar calculation has been reached, n1 a court may generally not adjust that amount, because the lodestar figure already includes most of the relevant factors constituting a "reasonable" attorney's fee. An enhancement may not be awarded based on a factor that is already included in the lodestar calculation. Therefore, the novelty and complexity of a case generally may not be used as a ground for an enhancement because these factors presumably are completely reflected in the number of billable hours stated by the attorney. The quality of an attorney's performance also should not be used to enhance the lodestar because considerations concerning the quality of a prevailing party's attorney's representation normally are reflected in the reasonable hourly rate. However an enhancement of the lodestar may be granted in those rare circumstances in which the lodestar does not adequately take into account a factor that may properly be considered in determining a reasonable fee. For example, an enhancement of a lodestar amount for superior attorney performance may be appropriate if the attorney's performance includes an extraordinary outlay of expenses and the litigation is exceptionally protracted; in such exceptional cases, the enhancement must be calculated using a method that is reasonable, objective, and capable of being reviewed on appeal, such as by applying a standard rate of interest to the qualifying outlays of expenses. The burden of proving the necessity of an enhancement of a lodestar amount is on the attorney fee applicant; the applicant must produce specific evidence that supports the enhancement amount. n2

In contrast to enhancements of the lodestar, the lodestar is subject to reduction when appropriate under the factual circumstances. For example, the lodestar amount may be reduced by an amount to account for a "limited success" by a plaintiff. n3 This reduction focuses on the significance of the overall relief obtained by the plaintiff in relation to the hours reasonably expended on the litigation. The reduction may be based on a quantitative analysis, as in the case of a apportionment of success among multiple parties, n4 or on a qualitative analysis, as to whether the plaintiff achieved a high or low degree of success. n5

[5] Percentage of Recovery Method of Fee

[a] Applicability of Formula

Many attorneys that represent clients in federal court work on a contingency basis. Therefore, federal courts at times make analogous fee awards and calculate the amount of fees as a percentage of the recovery obtained. The percentage of the recovery method was formulated in the nineteenth century to calculate fee awards under the equitable exceptions to the American Rule. The percentage method remains an option in cases involving the common fund and substantial benefit exceptions to the American Rule. n1 The use of the percentage of the recovery method, however, is not permitted under federal fee-shifting statutes. n2

As noted above, the current majority rule in the courts of appeals is that a common fund fee may be based either on a lodestar calculation or on a percentage of the recovery. n3 The decision as to which method to use is at the discretion of the district court, which will not be reversed provided that the resulting fee is reasonable. n4 In exercising its discretion, a court may consider many factors, but the primary consideration should be which method will best produce a reasonable fee. n5 However, there is some authority that the percentage method is mandatory when setting the amount of a common fund fee. n6 Those courts that have required the use of the percentage method have done so because they believe that method is automatically superior in establishing a reasonable fee. n7

[b] Calculation of Fee

The amount of any court-awarded fee depends on the facts of each individual case; consequently, there are no strict rules about the appropriate percentage that may be awarded. n8 The primary consideration is of course the amount of the recovery from which the fee will be taken, because the recovery provides the best measure of the reasonableness and quality of the attorney's representation. n9 Although in many common fund cases the size of the recovery is easily determined, the recovery may be more difficult to evaluate if prospective relief or other nonmonetary relief is granted. In any event, the fee should be based on a percentage of the value of all the relief obtained for the class of beneficiaries, whether monetary or nonmonetary. Furthermore, the fee should be based only on the portion of the recovery attributable to counsel's efforts in the case. n10 Once the court has determined the amount of the recovery, a benchmark of 25 percent is typically used as a reasonable percentage fee. That percentage figure is not required, and a percentage significantly higher or lower may be awarded. n11 However, it has been suggested that 50 percent of the common fund should be considered to be an upper limit on the fee award, absent exceptional circumstances. n12 Whatever percentage is set, the court should articulate specific reasons for selecting that figure, stating all factors on which it relied and how those factors affected the selection of the chosen percentage. n13 Of all the factors considered by the court, the most important is the time expended on the litigation. If the attorney produces a large recovery in a small amount of time, the percentage ordinarily should be reduced to prevent a windfall to the attorney. n14

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawGovernmental InformationFreedom of InformationRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAmountCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesReasonable FeesCivil Rights LawPractice & ProcedureCosts & Attorney FeesAward CalculationsLegal EthicsClient RelationsAttorney FeesGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.190 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. McGraw v. Barnhart, 450 F.3d 493, 497-498 (10th Cir. 2006) .

(n3)Footnote 2. See 42 U.S.C. § 406.

(n4)Footnote 3. Gisbrecht v. Barnhart, 535 U.S. 789, 808, 122 S. Ct. 1817, 152 L. Ed. 2d 996 (2002) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Gisbrecht v. Barnhart, 535 U.S. 789, 802, 122 S. Ct. 1817, 152 L. Ed. 2d 996 (2002) ; see Richlin Sec. Serv. Co. v. Chertoff, 553 U.S. 571, 128 S. Ct. 2007, 170 L. Ed. 2d 960, 967-968 (2008) (paralegal fees); see also [2], below.

(n6)Footnote 5. Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 433, 103 S. Ct. 1933, 76 L. Ed. 2d 40 (1983) ; see [3], below.

(n7)Footnote 6. Farrar v. Hobby, 506 U.S. 103, 113 S. Ct. 566, 121 L. Ed. 2d 494 (1992) .

(n8)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2)(B)(iii); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d), Committee Note to 1993 Amendments (estimate need not be supported at time of filing with evidentiary material bearing on the fees); *see also HK Sys., Inc. v. Admiral Ins. Co., 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7439, at *12-13 (E.D. Wis. Jan. 17, 2008) (necessity of estimate).

(n9)Footnote 2. Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 437, 103 S. Ct. 1933, 76 L. Ed. 2d 40 (1983) .

(n10)Footnote 3. Johnson v. Hugo's Skateway, 949 F.2d 1338, 1352 (4th Cir. 1991) .

(n11)Footnote 4. Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 433-434, 103 S. Ct. 1933, 76 L. Ed. 2d 40 (1983) .

(n12)Footnote 5. Lubrizol Corp. v. Exxon Corp., 957 F.2d 1302, 1308 (5th Cir. 1992) .

(n13)Footnote 6. Evans v. City of Evanston, 941 F.2d 473, 476-477 (7th Cir. 1991) .

(n14)Footnote 7. Abner v. Kan. City S. Ry. Co., 541 F.3d 372, 383 (5th Cir. 2008) (hours allowed only for time reasonably spent on work in furtherance of claims on which plaintiffs prevailed).

(n15)Footnote 8. Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 433-437, 103 S. Ct. 1933, 76 L. Ed. 2d 40 (1983) ; see Kenny A. v. Perdue, 532 F.3d 1209, 1221 (11th Cir. 2008) (court may reduce fees by hours actually spent on claims that did not succeed).

(n16)Footnote 9. Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 435, 103 S. Ct. 1933, 76 L. Ed. 2d 40 (1983) .

(n17)Footnote 10. Phetosomphone v. Allison Reed Group., 984 F.2d 4, 7 (1st Cir. 1993) .

(n18)Footnote 11. H.J. Inc. v. Flygt Corp., 925 F.2d 257, 260 (8th Cir. 1991) .

(n19)Footnote 12. See [b], above.

(n20)Footnote 13. New York Gaslight Club, Inc. v. Carey, 447 U.S. 54, 61, 100 S. Ct. 2024, 64 L. Ed. 2d 723 (1980) .

(n21)Footnote 14. Cullen v. Fliegner, 18 F.3d 96, 105-106 (2d Cir. 1994) .

(n22)Footnote 15. Schneider v. Colegio de Abogados, 187 F.3d 30, 32-33 (1st Cir. 1999) .

(n23)Footnote 16. Schlobohm v. Pepperidge Farm, Inc., 806 F.2d 578, 580 (5th Cir. 1986) .

(n24)Footnote 17. Menke v. Monchecourt, 17 F.3d 1007, 1010 (7th Cir. 1994) .

(n25)Footnote 18. Gates v. Rowland, 39 F.3d 1439, 1450-1451 (9th Cir. 1994) .

(n26)Footnote 19. Halderman v. Pennhurst State Sch. & Hosp., 49 F.3d 939, 941 (3d Cir. 1995) .

(n27)Footnote 20. INS v. Jean, 496 U.S. 154, 165, 110 S. Ct. 2316, 110 L. Ed. 2d 134 (1990) .

(n28)Footnote 21. See, e.g., Thompson v. Gomez, 45 F.3d 1365, 1367 (9th Cir. 1995) (civil rights statutes).

(n29)Footnote 1. See 28 U.S.C. § 2412(d)(1)(A).

(n30)Footnote 2. Richlin Sec. Serv. Co. v. Chertoff, 553 U.S. 571, 128 S. Ct. 2007, 170 L. Ed. 2d 960, 967-969 (2008) (in determining fees and costs incurred by prevailing party, court must determine rate from perspective of client rather than attorney).

(n31)Footnote 3. McCutcheon v. America's Servicing Co., 560 F.3d 143, 150 (3d Cir. 2009) .

(n32)Footnote 4. Blum v. Stenson, 465 U.S. 886, 895 n.11, 104 S. Ct. 1541, 79 L. Ed. 2d 891 (1984) .

(n33)Footnote 5. Wayne v. Village of Sebring, 36 F.3d 517, 533 (6th Cir. 1994) ; but see Colonial Williamsburg Found. v. Kittinger Co., 38 F.3d 133, 138 (4th Cir. 1994) (counsel from another community may recover customary fees if local counsel could not have handled case).

(n34)Footnote 6. Richlin Sec. Serv. Co. v. Chertoff, 553 U.S. 571, 128 S. Ct. 2007, 170 L. Ed. 2d 960, 967-969 (2008) .

(n35)Footnote 7. Islamic Center of Miss. v. City of Starkville, 876 F.2d 465, 469 (5th Cir. 1989) (if court chooses an hourly rate different from attorney's customary billing rate, court must articulate its reasons).

(n36)Footnote 8. Buffington v. Baltimore County, 913 F.2d 113, 130 (4th Cir. 1990) .

(n37)Footnote 9. Garrity v. Sununu, 752 F.2d 727, 740, n.12 (1st Cir. 1984) .

(n38)Footnote 10. McGinnis v. Kentucky Fried Chicken of Cal., 51 F.3d 805, 809 (9th Cir. 1994) .

(n39)Footnote 11. Black Grievance Comm. v. Philadelphia Elec. Co., 802 F.2d 648, 652 (3d Cir. 1986) .

(n40)Footnote 12. Blum v. Stenson, 465 U.S. 886, 899 n.15, 104 S. Ct. 1541, 79 L. Ed. 2d 891 (1984) .

(n41)Footnote 13. 28 U.S.C. § 2412(d).

(n42)Footnote 14. 28 U.S.C. § 2412(d)(2)(A)(ii); see Jazz Photo Corp. v. United States, 597 F. Supp. 2d 1364, 1370 (Ct. Intl. Trade 2008) (cost-of-living adjustment calculated by using Consumer Price Index; hourly rate should only be increased by corresponding Consumer Price Index for each year in which legal work was performed).

(n43)Footnote 1. See [1]-[3], above.

(n44)Footnote 2. Perdue v. Kenny A., ___ U.S. ___, 130 S. Ct. 1662, 176 L. Ed. 2d 494, 505-508 (2010) .

(n45)Footnote 3. Tyler v. Union Oil Co., 304 F.3d 379, 390 (5th Cir. 2002) .

(n46)Footnote 4. McCutcheon v. America's Servicing Co., 560 F.3d 143, 151 (3d Cir. 2009) .

(n47)Footnote 5. United States ex rel. Thompson v. Walgreen Co., 621 F. Supp. 2d 710, 730 (D. Minn. 2009) .

(n48)Footnote 1. In re Diet Drugs (Phentermine/Fenfluramine/Dexfenfluramine) Prod. Liab. Litig., 582 F.3d 524, 540-541 (3d Cir. 2009) ; see § 25.84[1], [2].

(n49)Footnote 2. Todd v. AIG Life Ins. Co., 47 F.3d 1448, 1459 (5th Cir. 1995) .

(n50)Footnote 3. In re Ins. Brokerage Antitrust Litig., 579 F.3d 241, 281 (3d Cir. 2009) .

(n51)Footnote 4. Rawlings v. Prudential-Bache Properties, 9 F.3d 513, 516 (6th Cir. 1993) .

(n52)Footnote 5. Gottlieb v. Barry, 43 F.3d 474, 487 (10th Cir. 1994) .

(n53)Footnote 6. Swedish Hosp. Corp. v. Shalala, 1 F.3d 1261, 1269-1270 (D.C. Cir. 1993) .

(n54)Footnote 7. Camden I Condominium Ass'n, Inc. v. Dunkle, 946 F.2d 768, 774 (11th Cir. 1991) .

(n55)Footnote 8. Camden I Condominium Ass'n, Inc. v. Dunkle, 946 F.2d 768, 774 (11th Cir. 1991) .

(n56)Footnote 9. Court Awarded Attorney's Fees, Report of Third Circuit Task Force, 108 F.R.D. 237 (1985) .

(n57)Footnote 10. Swedish Hosp. Corp. v. Shalala, 1 F.3d 1261, 1272 (D.C. Cir. 1993) .

(n58)Footnote 11. Newby v. Enron Corp. (In re Enron Corp. Sec.), 586 F. Supp. 2d 732, 746 (S.D. Tex. 2008) (typical benchmark in a common fund case is 25 percent of fund, but in "mega-cases" in which large settlements or awards serve as the basis for calculating percentage, courts have often found considerably lower percentages of recovery to be appropriate).

(n59)Footnote 12. Camden I Condominium Ass'n, Inc. v. Dunkle, 946 F.2d 768, 774-775 (11th Cir. 1991) .

(n60)Footnote 13. Brown v. Phillips Petroleum Co., 838 F.2d 451, 455 (10th Cir. 1988) , cert. denied, 488 U.S.

822 (1988) .

(n61)Footnote 14. See Johnson v. Georgia Highway Express, Inc., 488 F.2d 714, 717-719 (5th Cir. 1974) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
F. ATTORNEY'S FEES RECOVERABLE WITH JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.87

§ 25.87 Procedure for Award of Attorney's Feesn*

[1] Procedure Controlled by Federal Rules or Statutes

To obtain an award of attorney's fees in federal court, the requesting party must file a timely motion. n1 The proper procedure for the recovery of attorney's fees in federal court is generally controlled by Rule 54(d)(2). However, it must be remembered that under the Rules Enabling Act, n2 Rule 54(d)(2) does not provide the grounds for the recovery of those fees. Rather, the legal grounds for recovery must be determined by the substantive law governing the particular action. n3 The grounds establishing the availability and amount of attorney's fees are discussed in §§ 25.80 -25.86.

The following exceptions are instances when the provisions of Rule 54(d)(2) do not apply to claims for attorney's fees:

1. When the substantive law governing the action provides for the recovery of attorney's fees as an element of damages; for example, under the terms of a contract, the fees must be claimed as required by the substantive law and may not be sought by motion after judgment. n4

2. When fees and expenses are sought as sanctions for violations of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure or other statutes, n5 the provisions of Rule 54(d)(2) do not necessarily apply but are controlled by the particular rule or statute. n6

3. When a federal statute expressly authorizes an independent action to collect attorney's fees, Rule 54(d)(2)(A) does not control; procedure is controlled by the express language of the statute. n7

[2] Party Requesting Fees Must File Motion

To obtain attorney's fees, a party must file a timely motion for the fees. n1 The motion for attorney's fees must specify the judgment entitling the movant to fees, specify the grounds for the fee award, such as the statutory, equitable, or other basis for the award, and state or estimate the amount of the fee sought. n2 If the court directs the party to do so, the party must also disclose the terms of any fee agreement with respect to the services implicated by the motion. Thus, the court may direct the party to include not only the fee agreement between the fee movant and counsel but also agreements between counsel splitting a fee to be awarded or between opposition parties settling a dispute when the dispute requires court approval, such as, a class action suit or shareholder derivative action. Disclosure of such fee agreements may assist the court in determining the appropriate amount of any attorney's fee. n3

[3] Time Deadlines for Motion

[a] Time Period for Filing and Serving Motion

A party must request attorney's fees by motion that must be filed no later than 14 days after entry of judgment, unless otherwise provided by statute or court order. n1 The party should file the motion as specified in Rule 5, although strict compliance is not always necessary. n1.1 The purpose of the deadline is to ensure that the fee opponent has notice of the fee motion prior to the expiration of the time to appeal. n2 Consequently, the 14-day period to file a fee motion also does not begin to run until judgment has been entered in accordance with Rule 58. n3

[b] Exceptions to Time Period

Even though Rule 54(d)(2) generally requires that any fee motion be filed no later than 14 days after entry of judgment, n4 the rule also provides that a different filing period may be established by statute or court order. n5 The primary statutory exception to the deadline is the Equal Access to Justice Act n6 which contains an extensive alternative procedure for obtaining fees from the federal government, including a different time for filing the fee motion: under the EAJA the prevailing party must move for attorney's fees within 30 days of final judgment in the action. n7 The EAJA provides that the 30-day period does not begin to run until after the expiration of the time to appeal, because the EAJA states that the term "final judgment" means a judgment that is final and not appealable. n8

In addition to the EAJA, the following may specify exceptions to the 14-day time limit:

1. A specification of time period by court order or local rule. A party requesting fees should check local rules and standing orders of the district court to determine if a different filing period is provided. n9

2. If fees are sought as sanctions for violation of any rule or statute, n10 the provisions of Rule 54(d)(2) do not apply, including the 14-day deadline for the filing of the fee motion. n11 Consequently the time period specified in the rule or statue applies, unless no provision is made, in which case the motion must be reasonably prompt. n12

3. If the substantive law governing the action provides for fees as an element of damages to be proved at trial, the 14-day filing period and motion requirement of Rule 54(d)(2) is inapplicable; the filing period is controlled by the substantive law. n13

[4] Notice of Motion

Court-awarded attorney's fee must be paid either by a party or taken from a fund. Consequently, notice of the fee motion is required so that the opposition may prepare its argument. n0.1 When the fee is to be paid by the fee movant's litigation opposition, notice should be given in the form of service of the motion on the other parties in the action. n1 The party must give service under the provisions of Rule 5, which permits service by mailing the motion to counsel of record; and which also permits service by mailing. n2

A motion seeking fees under the common fund exception to the American Rule must be made within 14 days of judgment and served on the other parties as required under Rule 5. n3 However, service on the other parties is not adequate notice of the fee motion, because those parties will not be paying the fee, in that a common fund fee is taken from the fund itself. Therefore, it is the beneficiaries of that fund who are entitled to notice of the fee motion. Anyone who is entitled to share in the common fund should receive notice, even though further claims procedures might be necessary to determine whether the person is in fact entitled to share in the fund. The basic principle is that if a fund beneficiary's recovery may be reduced by a payment of attorney's fees, that beneficiary should receive notice. n4

[5] Support and Opposition to Motion

[a] Moving Party Has Burden

The party moving for attorney's fees has the burden of establishing entitlement to the fees and also the amount based on the hours claimed and the appropriate hourly rate. n1 The moving party also has the burden to produce adequate evidentiary proof of these matters, and the failure to do so is sufficient ground for the court to deny the fee motion. n2 The best documentation that may be presented by the moving party is contemporaneously prepared time records. However, such records are not an absolute prerequisite to a fee award, and hours may be proved by a reconstruction of time records or by other evidence adequate under the circumstances. n3 With respect to the lodestar element of rate, the evidentiary submissions should establish the hourly rate claimed or provide a basis for the court to set an appropriate rate. The rate awarded should be the prevailing market rate in the relevant community, which is best demonstrated by the attorney's customary rates. n4 If the fee movant's counsel has no regular billing rate, the evidentiary submissions should establish that the requested rate is in line with that prevailing in the community. n5

[b] Opposition Party May Request to Submit Proof

If the party moving for attorney's fees meets its burden of establishing entitlement to the fee and its amount, the burden shifts to the fee opponent to contest the fee with its own evidentiary submissions. n6 On the request of a party or class member, the court must permit adversary submissions of evidence. When a party opposing fees has pertinent evidence, that party should always request the opportunity to respond. Even though the district court has discretion to sua sponte order a response to a motion for attorney's fees or to order an evidentiary hearing even if there is no request, Rule 54 does not require such an order. n7

Adverse evidentiary submissions may oppose the entitlement to a fee, the amount of the fee, or both. Thus, the fee opponent must offer specific factual allegations that either challenge the claimed hours n8 or establish that the prevailing rate is lower than that claimed by the fee movant. n9

[6] Court's Determination of Motion

[a] Matters Determined

After the fee motion has been made, the court should establish a procedure for its resolution, whether by local rule or specific order in the case. The issue of whether the movant is entitled to any fee is generally one of law. The court's determination of this threshold issue will be based primarily on counsel's legal argument and the record established in the case on the merits, rather than on factual proof. Further, the court may determine the issue of liability for fees before receiving evidence on the amount of the fee, n1 especially in actions in which the liability issue is doubtful and the evaluation issues are numerous and complex. n2 The district judge's ultimate determination of the attorney's fees motion must contain findings of fact and conclusions of law as provided in Rule 52(a). n3

[b] Hearing Not Required

The parties may agree to submit a fee motion to the district judge for resolution on the basis of the motion, accompanying briefs, and the evidentiary submissions of the parties, because the general rule is that an evidentiary hearing is not required. n4 In the absence of such an agreement, however, one or both parties may specifically request an evidentiary hearing to resolve the factual issues presented. Although Rule 54(d)(2) expressly gives the fee opponent an opportunity to make adversary evidentiary submissions on the motion, this does not include the right to an evidentiary hearing in every case. n5 A hearing is required only when the court deems it is necessary, or when a substantial factual dispute is presented on an issue that the court cannot resolve based on the evidentiary submissions or on its own knowledge of the case. n6

The district court also has the option to refer a motion for attorney's fees to a magistrate judge under Rule 72(b). n7 The magistrate judge may not affirmatively decide the fee motion but must make findings of fact and recommendations as to the propriety of a fee award and its amount. n8 Other alternatives are that the district court may adopt local rules that establish special procedures by which issues relating to such fees may be resolved without extensive evidentiary hearings. n9 This may a include a rule requiring submissions by affidavit, or adopting schedules of customary fees or factors affecting fees within the community. n10

[7] Appeal of Award or Denial of Attorney's Fees

A judgment awarding or denying attorney's fees in conjunction with a judgment on the merits is a final, appealable judgment, and it may be appealed separately from the judgment on the merits. n1 If the judgment on the merits is a judgment properly entered under Rule 54(b), the corresponding award of attorney's fees is final and appealable when made, despite the existence of other unresolved claims in the action. n2 A judgment awarding costs and attorney's fees for improper removal is also an appealable judgment, despite the fact that the judgment on the merits remanding the action to state court is generally not reviewable. n3

However, a judgment awarding a fee is not appealable until the amount of the fee has been established. When the court chooses to bifurcate the issues of entitlement to fees and amount of fees, it may rule that the fee movant is entitled to fees and may actually enter a judgment to that effect. That judgment is not appealable until later proceedings have been held in which the exact amount of the fee is determined. n4 Once the amount of the fee is set, an appeal from the judgment sets for review both the amount and the earlier decision regarding entitlement to attorney's fees. n5

The court of appeals reviews a district court's award or denial of attorney's fees for an abuse of discretion. n6 However, a determination of the applicability of fees under state law is subject to de novo review. n7

[8] Execution on Award of Attorney's Fees

An award of attorney's fees constitutes a money judgment that may be collected or executed in the same manner as any other money judgment. n1 A writ of execution generally is issued to enforce a money judgment, and the procedure on execution is that established by the law of the state in which the district court sits. n2 Rule 70 provides for equitable remedies to enforce judgments that require specific acts to be performed. n3 A money judgment for attorney's fees may not appear to be the type of judgment that could be enforced through Rule 70. Nevertheless, in extraordinary circumstances, Rule 70 may be invoked. For example, if the fee judgment debtor is a state that refuses to pay the award, an equitable remedy may be available under Rule 70. n4 Because a judgment for attorney's fees is a money judgment, the judgment creditor is also generally entitled to interest on the fee judgment as required by a statute that provides that interest must be allowed on any money judgment in a civil case recovered in a district court. n5

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesStatutory Awards

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 54.150 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2) (claims for attorney's fees and related nontaxable expenses must be made by motion).

(n3)Footnote 2. 28 U.S.C. § 2072.

(n4)Footnote 3. Abrams v. Lightolier Inc., 50 F.3d 1204, 1223 (3d Cir. 1995) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2)(A); see Riordan v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 589 F.3d 999, 1005-1006 (9th Cir. 2009) (when entitlement to fees is proved by evidence at trial, there is no need to request fees by noticed motion).

(n6)Footnote 5. See 28 U.S.C. § 1927.

(n7)Footnote 6. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2)(E).

(n8)Footnote 7. Rosemary B. v. Board of Educ. of Community High School Dist. No. 155, 52 F.3d 156 (7th Cir. 1995) (Individuals with Disabilities Education Act).

(n9)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2)(A), (B)(i) (claims for attorney's fees must be made by motion filed and served no later than 14 days after entry of judgment).

(n10)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2)(B)(ii)-(iii).

(n11)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2)(B)(iv), Advisory Committee Note to 1993 Amendments.

(n12)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2)(B)(i); see Eastwood v. National Enquirer, Inc., 123 F.3d 1249, 1257 (9th Cir. 1997) .

(n13)Footnote 1.1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2)(B), Committee Notes to 2002 Amendments.

(n14)Footnote 2. Romaguera v. Gegenheimer, 162 F.3d 893, 895-896 (5th Cir. 1998) (district court's statement, in its findings and conclusions, that separate hearing would be held on party's request for attorney's fees eliminated need for formal motion for attorney's fees, because statement satisfied purpose of motion requirement to ensure that adverse parties receive notice of request for attorney's fees).

(n15)Footnote 3. Shalala v. Schaefer, 509 U.S. 292, 113 S. Ct. 2625, 125 L. Ed. 2d 239 (1993) .

(n16)Footnote 4. See [a], above.

(n17)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2)(B).

(n18)Footnote 6. See § 25.85.

(n19)Footnote 7. 28 U.S.C. § 2412(d)(1)(B).

(n20)Footnote 8. 28 U.S.C. § 2412(d)(2)(G); see In re Production Steel, Inc., 55 F.3d 1232, 1234 (6th Cir. 1995) (because running of the 30-day period is determined by entry of final judgment as defined by EAJA, 30-day period does not begin to run until after time to appeal has expired.).

(n21)Footnote 9. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(d)(2)(B) (unless provided by statute or order of court, motion for attorney's fees must be filed and served no later than 14 days after entry of judgment); see Members First Fed. Credit Union v. Members First Credit Union, 244 F.3d 806, 807 (11th Cir. 2001) (local rule specified that motion for attorney's fees could be filed within time specified by court in scheduling order).

(n22)Footnote 10. 28 U.S.C. § 1927.

(n23)Footnote 11. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2)(E).

(n24)Footnote 12. White v. New Hampshire Dep't of Employment Sec., 455 U.S. 445, 452-454, 102 S. Ct. 1162, 71 L. Ed. 2d 325 (1982) .

(n25)Footnote 13. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2)(A), (B).

(n26)Footnote 0.1. Miltimore Sales, Inc. v. Int'l Rectifier, Inc., 412 F.3d 685, 689-690 (6th Cir. 2005) .

(n27)Footnote 1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2)(A).

(n28)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 5.

(n29)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2)(B)(i).

(n30)Footnote 4. Cf. Knight v. United States, 982 F.2d 1573, 1579 (Fed. Cir. 1993) (common fund theory does not impose additional liability on losing defendant for attorney's fees).

(n31)Footnote 1. Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 437, 103 S. Ct. 1933, 76 L. Ed. 2d 40 (1983) .

(n32)Footnote 2. New Windsor Volunteer Ambulance Corps., Inc v. Meyers, 442 F.3d 101, 116-117 (2d Cir. 2006) .

(n33)Footnote 3. Yohay v. City of Alexandria Employees Credit Union, 827 F.2d 967, 974 (4th Cir. 1987) .

(n34)Footnote 4. Islamic Center of Miss. v. City of Starkville, 876 F.2d 465, 469 (5th Cir. 1989) .

(n35)Footnote 5. Brewer v. Protexall, Inc., 50 F.3d 453, 459 (7th Cir. 1995) .

(n36)Footnote 6. Michael A. Cramer, MAI, SRPA, Inc., v. United States, 47 F.3d 379, 382-383 (10th Cir. 1995) .

(n37)Footnote 7. New Windsor Volunteer Ambulance Corps., Inc v. Meyers, 442 F.3d 101, 116 (2d Cir. 2006) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n38)Footnote 8. Donnell v. United States, 682 F.2d 240, 249 (D.C. Cir. 1982) , cert. denied, 459 U.S. 1204 (1983) .

(n39)Footnote 9. Johnson v. University College, 706 F.2d 1205, 1210 (11th Cir. 1983) , cert. denied, 464 U.S. 994 (1983) .

(n40)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2)(C).

(n41)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2), Advisory Committee Note to 1993 Amendments.

(n42)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2)(C); see United States v. Comunidades Unidas Contra La Contaminacion, 204 F.3d 275, 282-283 (1st Cir. 2000) (if district court denies application for attorney's fees without explanation, and record is such that basis for district court's decision is unclear, circuit court must remand so that district court may clarify its reasoning).

(n43)Footnote 4. Building Serv. Local 47 Cleaning Contractors Pension Plan v. Grandview Raceway, 46 F.3d 1392, 1402 (6th Cir. 1995) .

(n44)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2)(D).

(n45)Footnote 6. Michael A. Cramer, MAI, SRPA, Inc., v. United States, 47 F.3d 379, 383 (10th Cir. 1995) .

(n46)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2)(D); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 72(b).

(n47)Footnote 8. Fed. R. Civ. P. 72(b); Gottlieb v. Barry, 43 F.3d 474, 487 (10th Cir. 1994) .

(n48)Footnote 9. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2)(D).

(n49)Footnote 10. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2), Advisory Committee Note to 1993 Amendments; cf. Pennsylvania v. Delaware Valley Citizens' Council for Clean Air, 483 U.S. 711, 733, 107 S. Ct. 3078, 97 L. Ed. 2d 585 (1987) .

(n50)Footnote 1. Budinich v. Becton Dickinson & Co., 486 U.S. 196, 199, 108 S. Ct. 1717, 100 L. Ed. 2d 178 (1988) .

(n51)Footnote 2. Johnson v. Orr, 897 F.2d 128, 130 (3d Cir. 1990) .

(n52)Footnote 3. Moore v. Permanente Medical Group, 981 F.2d 443, 445-446 (9th Cir. 1992) .

(n53)Footnote 4. Becton Dickinson & Co. v. District 65, UAW, 799 F.2d 57, 61 (3d Cir. 1986) .

(n54)Footnote 5. Gates v. Central States Teamsters Pension Fund, 788 F.2d 1341, 1343 (8th Cir. 1986) .

(n55)Footnote 6. Cohn v. National Board of Trial Advocacy, 2000 U.S. App. LEXIS 29902, --6 (6th Cir. 2000) .

(n56)Footnote 7. Banker v. Nighswander, Martin & Mitchell, 37 F.3d 866, 873 (2d Cir. 1994) (de novo review of interpretation of state law on attorney's fees).

(n57)Footnote 1. See Spain v. Mountanos, 690 F.2d 742, 744-745 (9th Cir. 1982) .

(n58)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 69(a).

(n59)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 70.

(n60)Footnote 4. Cf. Gary W. v. State of Louisiana, 622 F.2d 804, 805 (5th Cir. 1980) , cert. denied, 450 U.S. 994 (1981) .

(n61)Footnote 5. 28 U.S.C. § 1961; see Carter v. Sedgwick County, 36 F.3d 952, 955 (10th Cir. 1994) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART I. REQUIREMENTS FOR JUDGMENT IN ALL CASES
F. ATTORNEY'S FEES RECOVERABLE WITH JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 25.88through 25.99

[Reserved]

§§ 25.88[Reserved]

146 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART II. PARTICULAR REQUIREMENTS FOR DEFAULT JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.100

§ 25.100 Nature of Default Judgmentn*

[1] Two-Step Process

Default proceedings in federal court comprise a two-part process that can ultimately result in the entry of a final judgment against a person that fails to appear or defend against a claim for relief filed against that person. n1 Thus, if a defending party on any claim fails to plead or otherwise defend, the clerk must enter a default on the record as the first step. n2 Subsequent provisions of the rule provide for the entry of a default judgment, n3 which is effective as any other judgment, except for a special provision allowing for it to be set aside. n4

[2] When Default Judgment is Available; Defenses

[a] Default for Failure to Plead of Plead or Otherwise Defend

A party that is the object of a claim for relief may be held in default unless that party pleads, or otherwise defends, within the time period specified in the rules or by statute. n1 Responsive pleadings sufficient to avoid default include: an answer to a complaint, a reply to a counterclaim denominated as such, an answer to a cross claim, and an answer to an third party complaint. n2 In most cases, the responsive pleading must be served within 21 days after service of the pleading to which it responds. n3 The principal exceptions to the 21 day limit are when service of summons has been waived under Rule 4(d) n4 and when a United States officer or agency is a defending party. n5 If a party has received an extension of time to plead but fails to plead by the expiration of the extension, default may then be entered against that party. n6

When a party is responding to a claim for relief, the party need not necessarily "plead" in order to avoid a default, but may do so by "otherwise defending" against the claim. n7 Thus, a party may otherwise defend by filing a motion challenging such matters as service, venue, or sufficiency of pleading. n8 For example, the filing of a 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim on which relief may be granted has been held to be sufficient action to preclude entry of default. n9 Filing a motion for summary judgment has also been held to constitute action intended to otherwise defend a lawsuit within the meaning of Rule 55(a) so as to prevent entry of default. n10 A party in appropriate circumstances may also avoid a default by complying with a directive of the court or a statutory obligation, such as, an obligation to file an affidavit or a statement. n10.1

On the other hand, the mere filing of a notice of appearance in an action does not prevent entry of default; the filing party must also plead or otherwise defend against the claim. n11 However, a notice of appearance does entitle the appearing party to at least 7 days' written notice of the application for the entry of a default judgment, and any judgment of default must be entered by the court, rather than the clerk. n12

[b] Default as Sanction for Wrongful Conduct

In some circumstances, a default may be entered against a party as a sanction, provided that the court and not the clerk enters the default n13 and that default is the least restrictive sanction available. n14 For example, the court may impose a default judgment as a sanction for a party's failure to comply with an order compelling discovery. n15 In addition to authorizing the entry of default judgment as a sanction, Rule 37 authorizes the district court to strike the defensive pleading of an offending party who fails to obey an order to provide or permit discovery. n16 If the court strikes a pleading and a party has not repleaded, the party may be held in default for failing to plead. In such cases, the opposing party may seek the entry of default by filing an affidavit or motion with the clerk. n17 In other examples of the imposition of default as a sanction, n17.1 the court may enter default against a party who fails to obey a scheduling or pretrial order, n18 or a party that is otherwise unprepared to participate in a pretrial conference. n19

Additionally, the court may enter default as a sanction for misconduct arising from failure to obey a court order or failure to appear at trial. n20 Thus, the court may order an entry of default or a default judgment for several types of wrongful conduct: dilatory actions demonstrated by a party's lengthy delays and their obstructive behavior as exemplified by their evasive and incomplete responses that constituted bad faith; failure to comply with the court's order to compel discovery; n21 failure to acquire counsel despite orders by the district court to do so; n22 and the failure to submit legal memoranda of law after several orders to do so. n23 Default may also be entered against a party as a sanction for prosecuting an action without a meritorious claim or conducting a frivolous defense. n24

[3] Applicability of Default Process

The provisions of the federal civil rules regarding default n1 apply to any party against whom a judgment for affirmative relief is requested. n2 In other words, the provisions apply whether the party requesting a default judgment is: a plaintiff, third-party plaintiff, n3 counterclaimant, n4 or cross-claimant. n5 Thus, the rule also applies to defaulting plaintiffs. n6 However, rather than rendering a default judgment against a plaintiff, a courts usually will dismiss the action for failure to prosecute. n7

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsDefaultDefault JudgmentsCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsDefaultEntry of Default Judgments

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 10 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 55.02, 55.10 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(a), (b); see also New York v. Green, 420 F.3d 99, 104 (2d Cir. 2005) ; Vongrabe v. Sprint PCS, 312 F. Supp. 2d 1313, 1318 (S.D. Cal. 2004) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(a); see § 25.101.

(n4)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b); see United States v. $23,000 in United States Currency, 356 F.3d 157, 163-164 (1st Cir. 2004) (Rule 55(b) judgment by default is final disposition of case and appealable order that has same effect as judgment rendered after trial on merits); see also § 25.102.

(n5)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(c).

(n6)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(a); see Finkel v. Romanowicz, 577 F.3d 79, 83 (2d Cir. 2009) .

(n7)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 7(a).

(n8)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(a)(1)(A),(B),(C).

(n9)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(a)(1)(A)(ii); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 4(d)(3) (at least 60 days to respond).

(n10)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(a)(2), (3) (60 days to respond).

(n11)Footnote 6. Benny v. Pipes, 799 F.2d 489, 492 (9th Cir. 1986) .

(n12)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(a).

(n13)Footnote 8. See Harrison v. Bornn, Bornn & Handy, 200 F.R.D. 509, 513-514 (D.V.I. 2001) .

(n14)Footnote 9. Wickstrom v. Ebert, 101 F.R.D. 26, 33 (E.D. Wis. 1984) (although defendants had not filed answers to complaint, they had clearly defended, as term is used in Rule 55, by filing their motions to dismiss pursuant to Rule 12(b)).

(n15)Footnote 10. Rashidi v. Albright, 818 F. Supp. 1354, 1356 (D. Nev. 1993) .

(n16)Footnote 10.1. United States v. $23,000 in United States Currency, 356 F.3d 157, 163 (1st Cir. 2004) .

(n17)Footnote 11. Ringgold Corp. v. Worrall, 880 F.2d 1138, 1141 (9th Cir. 1989) .

(n18)Footnote 12. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(2); see United States ex rel. Time Equip. Rental & Sales, Inc. v. Harre, 983 F.2d 128, 130 (8th Cir. 1993) ; see also § 25.102[4][c].

(n19)Footnote 13. Jones v. Winnepesaukee Realty, 990 F.2d 1, 6 (1st Cir. 1993) .

(n20)Footnote 14. See Silva v. City of Madison, 69 F.3d 1368, 1377 (7th Cir. 1995) , cert. denied, 134 L. Ed. 2d 522 (1996).

(n21)Footnote 15. Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(b)(2)(A)(vi); see SEC v. Homa, 514 F.3d 661, 678 (7th Cir. 2008) .

(n22)Footnote 16. Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(b)(2)(A)(iii).

(n23)Footnote 17. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(a).

(n24)Footnote 17.1. Rhino Assocs., L.P. v. Berg Mfg. & Sales Corp., 531 F. Supp. 2d 652, 656 (M.D. Pa. 2007) (Rule 55(a) default may be imposed by party's failure to defending itself).

(n25)Footnote 18. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 16(f).

(n26)Footnote 19. Ringgold Corp. v. Worrall, 880 F.2d 1138, 1141 (9th Cir. 1989) .

(n27)Footnote 20. Brock v. Unique Racquetball & Health Clubs, Inc., 786 F.2d 61, 64 (2d Cir. 1986) .

(n28)Footnote 21. United States v. $49,000 Currency, 330 F.3d 371, 376-377 (5th Cir. 2003) .

(n29)Footnote 22. Hoxworth v. Blinder, Robinson & Co., 980 F.2d 912, 918-919 (3d Cir. 1992) ; Eagle Assoc. v. Bank of Montreal, 926 F.2d 1305, 1308 (2d Cir. 1991) .

(n30)Footnote 23. Alameda v. Secretary of HEW, 622 F.2d 1044, 1045 (1st Cir. 1980) .

(n31)Footnote 24. Commercial Bank of Kuwait v. Rafidain Bank, 15 F.3d 238, 244 (2d Cir. 1994) .

(n32)Footnote 1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 55.

(n33)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55, Committee Notes to 2007 Amendments.

(n34)Footnote 3. General Contracting & Trading Co. v. Interpole, Inc., 899 F.2d 109, 112 (1st Cir. 1990) .

(n35)Footnote 4. Jones v. Winnepesaukee Realty, 990 F.2d 1, 3 (1st Cir. 1993) .

(n36)Footnote 5. Adriana Int'l Corp. v. Thoeren, 913 F.2d 1406, 1408 (9th Cir. 1990) .

(n37)Footnote 6. Jones v. Winnepesaukee Realty, 990 F.2d 1, 3 (1st Cir. 1993) (default granted on counterclaims upheld when plaintiff consistently failed to attend pre-trial hearings and demonstrated bad faith in conducting litigation).

(n38)Footnote 7. Philips Med. Sys. Int'l v. Bruetman, 8 F.3d 600, 602 (7th Cir. 1993) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART II. PARTICULAR REQUIREMENTS FOR DEFAULT JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.101

§ 25.101 Entry of Defaultn*

[1] Initiation of Default

The clerk or court must enter default when a party's default is made to appear by affidavit or otherwise, n1 including when directed by the court. n2 Thus, the rule requires the clerk to "enter" the default when the fact of default is made known. n3 The clerk will not necessarily be able to tell from the docket that a party is in default, because the time limits refer to when a responsive pleading is served, while the docket does not indicate whether service was made until a certificate of service is filed. Because the court clerk may not independently know when the entry of default is appropriate, the party applying for entry of default must participate by filing an application and supporting affidavit n3.1 or some other document that shows the timing of service of the summons and complaint and avers that an answer or motion was not served within the allotted time. n4

[2] Default May be Entered by Either Court Clerk or by Court

When a party against whom a judgment for affirmative relief is sought has failed to plead or otherwise defend and that fact is made to appear by affidavit or otherwise, the clerk must enter the party's default. n1 Therefore, when a default results from nonappearance or failure to plead or otherwise defend, the default may be entered by the clerk of the court on application of a party who seeks to enforce the default provisions. n2 However, courts have also noted their own power to enter default as a sanction or otherwise. n3

Rule 55 does not direct the manner in which default is to be entered in the court records. It appears that the fact of the default must be noted by the clerk on the court docket for use when the moving party subsequently seeks a default judgment. n4

[3] Notice Requirements

Rule 55 does not require that a defending party be notified of the opposition party's application for entry of default. n1 On the other hand, it must be noted that before the court can ultimately enter a default judgment, the party against whom the claim has been made must be notified. n2

[4] Effect of Entry of Default

[a] Effects of Entry of Default on Rights of Defaulting Party

Once a default is entered, the defaulting party suffers numerous negative effects, including the following:

1. Loss of the right to present evidence on issues other than unliquidated damages. n1

2. Loss of standing to contest factual allegations in the complaint. n2

3. Loss of the right to receive notice of future proceedings, except when the party had made an appearance in the action. n3

4. If the defaulting party has not appeared, the party is subject to the entry of default judgment, without notice, on motion of the opposition party. n4

[b] Effects on Issues

At the time of entry of default, the facts alleged by the plaintiff in the complaint are deemed admitted. However, plaintiff's conclusions of law are not considered established. n5 This means that the court may grant only the relief for which a sufficient basis is asserted in the opposition's claim for relief. n6 Thus, while a defaulting party loses standing to contest the truth of the facts alleged in support of the plaintiff's claim, the defaulting party may still contest the sufficiency of those facts to state a claim for relief. n7

Following entry of a default, a defaulting party may also contest the measure of unliquidated damages awarded to the plaintiff or other prevailing party. Once the entry of default establishes the fact of damage, the district court has considerable discretion to determine the amount of damages. n8 The court may conduct an evidentiary hearing and consider evidence provided by any party to the action. n9 However, the court's failure to hold a hearing on unliquidated damages does not automatically warrant relief from default. n10

[c] Procedural Effects

In essence, entry of default is primarily a procedural formality in that it is a mandatory prerequisite to the issuance of a default judgment. It merely permits the plaintiff to move for such a judgment under Rule 55(b)(2), assuming that the entry of default is not set aside under Rule 55(c). n11 Entry of default is not a final judgment which is subject to appeal. n12 However, interlocutory appeals of the entry of default are available, if permitted under the partial judgment rule n13 or the interlocutory judgment rule. n14 There is no res judicata effect of an entry of default. Rather, the matter becomes res judicata only on entry of a default judgment. n15

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsDefaultGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsDefaultEntry of Default JudgmentsCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsDefaultFailure to Pursue the Cause

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 10 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 55.02, 55.10 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(a).

(n3)Footnote 2. See [2], below.

(n4)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(a).

(n5)Footnote 3.1. Fairman v. Hurley, 373 F. Supp. 2d 227, 231 (W.D.N.Y. 2005) (citing Moore's Federal Practice); *see Mohammed v. Davis County, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 19178, at 3 (D. Utah Mar. 11, 2008) .

(n6)Footnote 4. Fairman v. Hurley, 373 F. Supp. 2d 227, 231 (W.D.N.Y. 2005) (citing Moore's Federal Practice for proposition that party seeking entry of default must show fact of default by evidence establishing circumstances of failure to defend within allotted time).

(n7)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(a).

(n8)Footnote 2. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(a); see also Sealift Bulkers, Inc. v. Republic of Arm., 965 F. Supp. 81, 83 (D.D.C. 1997) (filing of application for entry of default).

(n9)Footnote 3. Jones v. Winnepesaukee Realty, 990 F.2d 1, 6 (1st Cir. 1993) (district court properly entered default against plaintiffs for failure to appear at pretrial conference).

(n10)Footnote 4. Cf. Fed. R. Civ. P. 77(d); see also Connecticut Nat'l Mortg. Co. v. Brandstatter, 897 F.2d 883, 884-885 (7th Cir. 1990) (although entry of default may properly be made on docket, party's default is not defeated merely because default is not recorded on docket).

(n11)Footnote 1. Hawaii Carpenters' Trust Funds v. Stone, 794 F.2d 508, 512 (9th Cir. 1986) (rule contains no notice requirement); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(a).

(n12)Footnote 2. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(2); see also Jenkens & Gilchrist a Prof'l Corp. v. Groia & Co., 542 F.3d 114, 119 (5th Cir. 2008) .

(n13)Footnote 1. Dow Chem. Pac. Ltd. v. Rascator Maritime, S.A., 782 F.2d 329, 335-337 (2d Cir. 1986) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n14)Footnote 2. Taylor v. City of Ballwin, 859 F.2d 1330, 1333, n.7 (8th Cir. 1988) .

(n15)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(2).

(n16)Footnote 4. FDIC v. Spartan Mining Co., 96 F.R.D. 677, 683 (S.D. W.Va. 1983) .

(n17)Footnote 5. Bonilla v. Trebol Motors Corp., 150 F.3d 77, 80 (1st Cir. 1998) (default judgment bars defaulting party from disputing facts alleged in complaint but preserves for appeal arguments of law made in trial court as to whether facts as alleged state claim).

(n18)Footnote 6. Cripps v. Life Ins. Co. of N. America, 980 F.2d 1261, 1267 (9th Cir. 1992) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n19)Footnote 7. Wahl v. McIver, 773 F.2d 1169, 1174 (11th Cir. 1985) .

(n20)Footnote 8. Jones v. Winnepesaukee Realty, 990 F.2d 1, 4 (1st Cir. 1993) .

(n21)Footnote 9. Sony Corp. v. Elm State Elec., Inc., 800 F.2d 317, 321 (2d Cir. 1986) .

(n22)Footnote 10. Williams v. New Orleans Pub. Serv., Inc., 728 F.2d 730, 735 (5th Cir. 1984) (court's failure to hold hearing on unliquidated damages issue might constitute reversible error but does not automatically warrant reversal of default judgment).

(n23)Footnote 11. United States v. Di Mucci, 879 F.2d 1488, 1490 (7th Cir. 1989) .

(n24)Footnote 12. Enron Oil Corp. v. Masonori Diakuhara, 10 F.3d 90, 95 (2d Cir. 1993) .

(n25)Footnote 13. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b).

(n26)Footnote 14. See 28 U.S.C. § 1292; Shepard Claims Service, Inc., v. William Darrah & Assoc., 796 F.2d 190, 192 (6th Cir. 1986) (entry of default appealed on certificate of district judge under Section 1292(b)).

(n27)Footnote 15. Tomai-Minogue v. State Farm Mutual Auto Ins. Co., 770 F.2d 1228, 1232-1234 (4th Cir. 1985) ; Kapp v. Naturelle, Inc., 611 F.2d 703, 707 (8th Cir. 1979) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART II. PARTICULAR REQUIREMENTS FOR DEFAULT JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.102

§ 25.102 Default Judgmentn*

[1] Determination of Entry of Default Judgment by Clerk or Court

In certain circumstances, a party is entitled to have a default judgment entered by the clerk of the court after the entry of default against an opposing party. n1 When a default judgment is proper, but does not qualify for entry by the clerk, the default judgment may be entered by the court. n2

[2] Entry of Default Judgment by Clerk

[a] Three-Part Test

For the clerk to enter default judgment all three of the following criteria must be satisfied: n1

1. The claim must be for a sum certain. n2

2. The default must have resulted from a party's failure to appear in the action. n3

3. The defaulting party must not be an infant or incompetent. n4

Where this three-part test is satisfied, the clerk must enter judgment against the defaulting party. The amount of judgment is based on the amount due as affirmed in an affidavit by the party seeking judgment. n5

[b] Claim Must Be for Sum Certain

The clerk may enter a default judgment only if the plaintiff's claim against a defendant is for a sum certain or for a sum that can by computation be made certain. n6 By contrast, judgment on any claim that consists of a disputed amount must be entered by the court. n7 Certain types of claims have been held to constitute sums certain, such as actions for recovery of a deposit, n8 and actions on mortgages, when the amount of the claim is capable of calculation from the loan documents. n9 On the other hand, examples of claims that have been considered unliquidated damages and, therefore, not sums certain include claims for personal injury n10 and claims based on good will. n11

[c] Default Must Have Been Due to Failure to Appear

The clerk may enter a default judgment without the necessity of judicial supervision only if the default is a result of the party's failure to appear. n12 By contrast, if the default was based on any other grounds, such as the imposition of a sanction, only the court may enter the default judgment. n13

[d] Defaulting Party May Be Neither Infant Nor Incompetent Person

The clerk may enter a default judgment without the necessity of judicial supervision only if the defaulting party is neither an infant nor an incompetent person. n14 In other words, only the court may enter a default judgment against a defaulting infant or an incompetent person. Even then, the court may enter a default judgment only when the infant or incompetent person is represented by a general guardian, committee, conservator, or other representative who has appeared in the action. n15 Rule 55 clearly prohibits the entry of a default judgment against a minor until a guardian has been appointed for him or her and the minor has received notice of the application for judgment by default. n16 For example, the United States Supreme Court has held that a state tax lien default foreclosure procedure violated due process when the municipal official knew that the taxpayer was incompetent at the time the statutory notice was served. n17

[3] Entry of Default Judgment by Court

[a] Court's Discretion to Enter Default Judgment

When a party is entitled to a default judgment but the claim for relief does not qualify for entry of default judgment by the clerk, n1 the party seeking entry of default judgment should apply to the court for the determination and entry of default judgment. n2 However, even if the party fails to file an application for default judgment under the rule, the court may enter the default judgment on its own initiative. n3 Default judgments are generally not favored by the courts, because there is a strong policy that promotes decisions on the merits and discourages resolution of cases through technicalities. n4

The decision whether to enter a default judgment is within the court's sound discretion. n5 Even where a defendant is technically in default, a plaintiff is not entitled to default judgment as a matter of right. n6 The court may consider a variety of factors such as whether the defaulting party's failure to plead or otherwise defend was merely inadvertent or de minimis, n7 whether the default resulted from dilatory tactics or bad faith, n8 the possibility of prejudice to the plaintiff, n9 the merits of the plaintiff's substantive claim, n10 the sufficiency of the complaint, n11 the amount of the claim, n12 and whether the default was due to excusable neglect. n13 In one case, for example, the court held that a party's failure to file a responsive pleading constituted excusable neglect, where the party was unfamiliar with legal matters, was disturbed because of the recent death of her spouse, was in a psychiatrist's care for severe depression, was taking strong psychoactive medications, and was attempting to sell her residence and move herself and her children to another state. n13.1

The court has discretion to hold a hearing to determine the facts regarding the considerations listed above or to establish the truth of any averment in the complaint. n13.2

[b] Only Court May Enter Default Judgment in Certain Types of Cases

Due to the restrictions on entry of a default judgment by the clerk, n14 only the court may enter a default judgment in certain types of cases:

1. Against an incompetent or minor. n15 Even then, the court may enter such a default judgment only when the infant or incompetent person is represented by a general guardian, committee, conservator, or other representative who has appeared in the action. n16

2. When the defaulting party is the United States or an officer or agency of the United States. The court may not enter a default judgment against the United States or an officer or agency unless the claimant establishes a claim or right to relief by evidence that satisfies the court. n17 Therefore, under Rule 55(d), even if the United States government fails to plead or otherwise defend within the time periods permitted, the entry of a default judgment is not authorized, except on a hearing establishing the plaintiff's claim. n18 When the government fails to file a timely answer, the court should enter an order directing an answer to be filed within a specified period, rather than enter a default judgment. With this procedure, the court protects the claiming party's interests without violating Rule 55(d). n18.1

3. When the defaulting party is a natural person, unless an affidavit has been filed indicating that the defaulting party is not currently serving in the military. n19 If the affidavit is not filed, the court may not enter a judgment if the defendant is in military service until after the court has appointed an attorney to represent the defendant and protect his or her interest, and the court on application must make an appointment of an attorney. n20

[c] Restrictions on Entry of Default Judgment By court

Due to the nature of the default procedure, the following restrictions have been placed on the authority of the district court to enter a default judgment:

1. Courts have consistently held that the rules governing default set forth in Rule 55 are inapplicable to habeas corpus proceedings, n20.1 because the rules governing habeas corpus proceedings are not compatible with the default judgment provisions of Rule 55. n21

2. In an action instituted against multiple defendants, if one of the defendants fails to plead or otherwise defend, the court may not enter a default judgment against that defendant if the theory of recovery is one of true joint liability, such that, as a matter of law, no one defendant may be liable unless all defendants are liable. n22

3. In certain admiralty cases initiated by attachment or garnishment, a default judgment may not be entered absent proof by affidavit or otherwise that certain notice provisions have been satisfied and that rules regarding service of process have been strictly followed. If such service requirements are satisfied, the court may enter a default judgment against the defaulting party. n23

[4] Notice Requirements

[a] Notice Requirements Based On Whether Party Has Appeared

The purpose of notice is to provide the defaulting party with an opportunity to avoid a default judgment. Consequently, a defaulting party that has not appeared in the action is not entitled to notice of the entry of a judgment by default, n1 whether entered by the clerk or by the court. n2 Additionally, notice is not required in the following circumstances:

1. If the court bases its entry of a default judgment on its own motion, and not on the application of a party not in default, there is no notice requirement. n3

2. When a default is entered as a sanction against a defending party, the notice requirement does not apply. n4

3. The notice provisions are not required when a statute or rule dispenses with the requirement. n5

[b] Nature of Appearance by Party That Triggers Notice Requirement

Generally, the type of conduct that constitutes an "appearance" for the purposes of triggering the notice requirements of Rule 55(b)(2) n6 is broadly defined n7 and may include a variety of informal acts by a defendant. For example, a simple request for an extension of time to plead may be considered an appearance for the purposes of Rule 55(b)(2). n8 In this regard, an appearance for purposes of Rule 55(b)(2) is much more liberal than an appearance for other purposes, such as, for the purposes of establishing personal jurisdiction. n9 Even under the liberal standard, to constitute an appearance for default notice requirements, the defendant's actions must give the plaintiff a clear indication that the defendant intends to pursue a defense and be responsive to the plaintiff's action. n10

Some courts apply a stricter standard in determining whether an appearance was made by a defaulting corporation or partnership. Because a corporation may appear in an action only through its attorney, n11 the acts or statements of corporate officers that evince an intention to contest a claim will not usually be treated as appearances for purposes of Rule 55(b)(2). n12

[c] Notice Requirements When Party Has Appeared in the Action

A defaulting party who has appeared in an action must be served with written notice of the application for judgment by default at least 7 days prior to the hearing on the application. n13 A court's failure to provide such notice is a procedural error but does not necessarily provide grounds for vacating the default judgment. Rather, courts examine the circumstances on a case by case basis to determine whether the failure to give notice will require that the default judgment be set aside. n14

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsDefaultGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsDefaultDefault JudgmentsCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsDefaultEntry of Default Judgments

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 10 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 55.02, 55.10 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(1); see [2], below.

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(2); see CFTC v. Vartuli, 228 F.3d 94 (2d Cir. 2000) ; see also [3], below.

(n4)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(1).

(n5)Footnote 2. See [b], below.

(n6)Footnote 3. See [d], below.

(n7)Footnote 4. See [b], below.

(n8)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(1).

(n9)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(1).

(n10)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(1).

(n11)Footnote 8. Draisner v. Liss Realty Co., Inc., 211 F.2d 808, 809 (D.C. Cir. 1954) , cert. denied, 348 U.S.

877 (1954) .

(n12)Footnote 9. HMG Property Investors, Inc. v. Parque Ind. Rio Canas, Inc., 847 F.2d 908, 919 (1st Cir. 1988) .

(n13)Footnote 10. Hutton v. Fisher, 359 F.2d 913, 916 (3d Cir. 1966) .

(n14)Footnote 11. Davis v. Nat'l Mortg. Corp., 320 F.2d 90, 91-92 (2d Cir. 1963) .

(n15)Footnote 12. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(1).

(n16)Footnote 13. Arango v. Guzman, 761 F.2d 1527, 1531 (11th Cir. 1985) .

(n17)Footnote 14. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(1).

(n18)Footnote 15. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(2).

(n19)Footnote 16. Hutton v. Fisher, 359 F.2d 913, 915 (3d Cir. 1966) .

(n20)Footnote 17. Mullane v. Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., 339 U.S. 306, 314-315, 70 S. Ct. 652, 94 L. Ed. 865 (1950) .

(n21)Footnote 1. See [2], above.

(n22)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(2).

(n23)Footnote 3. Anilina Fabrique de Colorants v. Aakash Chems. 856 F.2d 873, 877 (7th Cir. 1988) .

(n24)Footnote 4. Berthelsen v. Kane, 907 F.2d 617, 620 (6th Cir. 1990) .

(n25)Footnote 5. Enron Oil Corp. v. Masonori Diakuhara, 10 F.3d 90, 95 (2d Cir. 1993) .

(n26)Footnote 6. Ganther v. Ingle, 75 F.3d 207, 209 (5th Cir. 1996) .

(n27)Footnote 7. Murray v. Ford Motor Co., 770 F.2d 461, 463-464 (5th Cir. 1985) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n28)Footnote 8. Bambu Sales v. Ozak Trading, 58 F.3d 849, 852-854 (2d Cir. 1995) .

(n29)Footnote 9. Grandbouche v. Clancy, 825 F.2d 1463, 1468 (10th Cir. 1987) .

(n30)Footnote 10. Aldabe v. Aldabe, 616 F.2d 1089, 1092-1093 (9th Cir. 1980) .

(n31)Footnote 11. Wahl v. McIver, 773 F.2d 1169, 1174 (11th Cir. 1985) .

(n32)Footnote 12. Hutton v. Fisher, 359 F.2d 913, 916 (3d Cir. 1966) .

(n33)Footnote 13. Anilina Fabrique de Colorants v. Aakash Chems., 856 F.2d 873, 879 (7th Cir. 1988) .

(n34)Footnote 13.1. TCI Group Life Ins. Plan v. Knoebber, 244 F.3d 691, 695-699 (9th Cir. 2001) (district court abused discretion in entering default and denying motion to vacate default when party's default was not culpable and there was no evidence of devious, deliberate, willful, or bad faith failure to respond).

(n35)Footnote 13.2. Banco Bilbao Vizcaya Argentaria v. Family Rests., Inc. (In re Home Restaurants, Inc.), 285 F.3d 111, 114 (1st Cir. 2002) .

(n36)Footnote 14. See [2], above; see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(1).

(n37)Footnote 15. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(2).

(n38)Footnote 16. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(2); see [2][d], above.

(n39)Footnote 17. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(d).

(n40)Footnote 18. Butts v. Barnhart, 416 F.3d 101, 104-105 (2d Cir. 2005) ; *see George v. United States, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 21728, at *1-2 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 18, 2008) (rule is designed to protect federal taxpayers).

(n41)Footnote 18.1. Giampaoli v. Califano, 628 F.2d 1190, 1193-1194 (9th Cir. 1980) .

(n42)Footnote 19. 50 U.S.C. App. § 520.

(n43)Footnote 20. 50 U.S.C. App. § 520 (1).

(n44)Footnote 20.1. Alder v. Burt, 240 F. Supp. 2d 651, 677 (E.D. Mich. 2003) .

(n45)Footnote 21. Bermudez v. Reid, 733 F.2d 18, 22 (2d Cir. 1984) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n46)Footnote 22. See Gulf Coast Fans, Inc. v. Midwest Elec. Importers, Inc., 740 F.2d 1499, 1512 (11th Cir. 1984) .

(n47)Footnote 23. Wong Shing v. M/V Mardina Trader, 564 F.2d 1183, 1187 (5th Cir. 1977) .

(n48)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(2).

(n49)Footnote 2. Walker & Zanger (West Coast) Ltd. v. Stone Design, S.A., 4 F. Supp. 2d 931, 935 (C.D. Cal. 1997) .

(n50)Footnote 3. Anilina Fabrique de Colorants v. Aakash Chems., 856 F.2d 873, 877 (7th Cir. 1988) .

(n51)Footnote 4. Ringgold Corp. v. Worrall, 880 F.2d 1138, 1141-1142 (9th Cir. 1989) .

(n52)Footnote 5. United States v. McCoy, 954 F.2d 1000, 1003 (5th Cir.1992) .

(n53)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(2).

(n54)Footnote 7. See Lutomski v. Panther Valley Coin Exch., 653 F.2d 270, 271 (6th Cir. 1981) .

(n55)Footnote 8. Federal Sav. & Loan Ins. Corp. v. Kroenke, 858 F.2d 1067, 1068 (5th Cir. 1988) .

(n56)Footnote 9. Practical Concepts, Inc. v. Republic of Bolivia, 811 F.2d 1543, 1546 (D.C. Cir. 1987) .

(n57)Footnote 10. Direct Mail Specialists, Inc. v. Eclat Computerized Technologies, Inc. 840 F.2d 685, 689-690 (9th Cir. 1988) ; see SEC v. GetAnswers, Inc., 219 F.R.D. 698, 700 (S.D. Fla. 2004) (appearance requires more than mere participation in settlement negotiations).

(n58)Footnote 11. Church of the New Testament v. United States, 783 F.2d 771, 773-774 (9th Cir. 1986) .

(n59)Footnote 12. National Ind. Theatre v. Buena Vista Distribution, 748 F.2d 602, 609 (11th Cir. 1984) , cert. denied, 471 U.S. 1056 (1985) .

(n60)Footnote 13. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(2).

(n61)Footnote 14. Winfield Assoc., Inc. v. Stonecipher, 429 F.2d 1087, 1091 (10th Cir. 1970) (procedural defect of failure to give notice as required may be sufficient to afford relief from a default judgment on appeal, for relief under Rule 60(b), or, in combination with other irregularities of particular case, may render judgment void; however, failure of notice by itself should not ordinarily be treated as so serious as to render judgment void).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART II. PARTICULAR REQUIREMENTS FOR DEFAULT JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.103

§ 25.103 Award of Damages in Default Judgmentn*

[1] Damage Award Limited to Amount and Kind Demanded

A judgment by default may not be different in kind from or exceed in amount that prayed for in the demand for judgment. n1 Therefore, a court may not grant equitable relief if none was requested, nor may it assess punitive damages against a defaulting party, if the party not in default did not make that demand. n2 However, when a hearing is held to determine the amount of unliquidated damages and the defaulting party participates in the hearing, the court in the exercise of its discretion may allow the party not in default to amend the pleadings to allow for a larger prayer for relief. n3 However, before permitting amendment of the pleadings, the court must determine the extent of the prejudice to the opposing party, and should grant whatever continuance or adjournment is reasonably necessary to permit the opposing party to prepare to oppose the increased claim. n4

[2] Determination of Damages

[a] No General Requirement of Hearing

After entering a default judgment on a claim for a sum certain, the court may enter the default judgment for the amount stated in the complaint. n1 In addition, if the defaulting party did not appear in the action, and was not an infant, incompetent, or the United States, the clerk of the court may enter the default judgment for the amount stated in the complaint. n2

When the amount of damages is not readily ascertainable, the court must make a determination as to the amount of the judgment. n3 Furthermore, if the court does not already have knowledge of facts sufficient to establish damages, the court must hold a hearing to determine the amount of damages. n4 In other words, the court must hold a hearing only when one is necessary to determine the amount of damages or to establish the truth of any allegations in the pleadings. n5

[b] Requirement of Jury When Required by Statute

When holding a hearing to determine damages, n6 the court must accord a right to trial by jury only when and if required by any statute of the United States. n7 Thus, a party is not entitled to a jury trial unless there exists a statutory right to a jury on the underlying claim. n8 Furthermore, a party may not preserve a right to a jury trial on the issue of damages in the event of a default by filing a jury demand in the complaint. n9 Rather, the statutory right to a jury trial on the underlying claim must be clear. n10 However, even in cases when a court is not required to grant a jury trial in such cases, the court has the discretion to have a jury assess damages following a default. n11

[c] Presentation of Evidence

A defaulting party is entitled to submit evidence and be heard in opposition at the hearing on the amount of damages. n12 However, the defaulting party must request such right, and a default judgment will not be vacated when a defendant makes no attempt to participate in the assessment of damages. n13

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsDefaultGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsDefaultDefault JudgmentsCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsDefaultEntry of Default Judgments

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 10 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 55.02, 55.10 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(d)(2)(B).

(n3)Footnote 2. Scala v. Moore McCormack Lines, Inc., 985 F.2d 680, 683 (2d Cir. 1993) .

(n4)Footnote 3. O'Brien v. R.J. O'Brien & Assoc., Inc. 998 F.2d 1394, 1404 (7th Cir. 1993) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Peitzman v. City of Illmo, 141 F.2d 956, 962 (8th Cir. 1944) , cert. denied, 323 U.S. 718 (1944) .

(n6)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(2).

(n7)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(1); Taylor v. City of Ballwin, 859 F.2d 1330, 1333 (8th Cir. 1988) .

(n8)Footnote 3. Sony Corp. v. Elm State Elec., Inc., 800 F.2d 317, 321 (2d Cir. 1986) ; Hunt v. Inter-Globe Energy, Inc., 770 F.2d 145, 148 (10th Cir. 1985) .

(n9)Footnote 4. Marc Rich & Co., Inc. v. Action S.A., 951 F.2d 504, 508 (2d Cir. 1991) (hearing required only when judge does not already have sufficient facts to establish damages; hearing not required when long history of proceedings between parties gave district court basis from which to determine award).

(n10)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(2)(A)-(D).

(n11)Footnote 6. See [a], above.

(n12)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(2).

(n13)Footnote 8. See, e.g., 28 U.S.C. § 1874 (right to jury trial would exist in actions on bonds when sum is not certain).

(n14)Footnote 9. Frankart Distributors, Inc. v. Levitz, 796 F. Supp. 75, 76 (E.D.N.Y. 1992) .

(n15)Footnote 10. Adriana Int'l Corp. v. Thoeren, 913 F.2d 1406, 1414 (9th Cir. 1990) , cert. denied, 498 U.S.

1109 (1991) (corporation against whom default judgment was entered as discovery sanction did not have right to jury trial on damages).

(n16)Footnote 11. Coleman v. Smith, 814 F.2d 1142, 1145 (7th Cir. 1987) .

(n17)Footnote 12. Byrd v. Keene Corp., 104 F.R.D. 10, 12 (E.D. Pa. 1984) .

(n18)Footnote 13. Fustok v. Conticommodity Services, 873 F.2d 38, 39 (2d Cir. 1989) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25 JUDGMENT
PART II. PARTICULAR REQUIREMENTS FOR DEFAULT JUDGMENT

3-25 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25.104

§ 25.104 Setting Aside Default and Default Judgmentn*

[1] Setting Aside Entry of Default

[a] Standard to Set Aside Entry of Default

As noted above, n1 default is a two-step process: entry of default and entry of a default judgment. Each of these steps may be set aside, but each has its own standard and procedure. Because the court may set aside an entry of default before a default judgment ever occurs, the standard to set aside an entry of default is less stringent than setting aside a default judgment. n2 Relief from default is an interlocutory matter while relief from a default judgment involves setting aside a final judicial action, as provided by Rule 60(b). n3 As one court explained, the same considerations exist when deciding whether to set aside either an entry of default or a default judgment, but they are to be applied more liberally when reviewing an entry of default. n4 Under the liberal good cause standard, courts have set aside a default when the default resulted from technical flaws. n5

Under Rule 55(c), a court is authorized to set aside an entry of default merely for good cause shown. n6 To do so, the movant generally must establish a meritorious defense. n7 To show a meritorious defense, a defendant must go further than alleging that a defense exists. Rather, the defendant must allege specific facts that proved at trial would constitute a defense to the claim asserted. n8 One court has indicated that the defendant seeking to open a default should show a fair probability of success on the merits. n9 However, a defendant is not required to make a showing of a meritorious defense in cases in which the defendant was not served with process, because the due process requirement that a defendant receive adequate notice of a lawsuit gives the defendant a constitutional right to set a aside such a default judgment. This right may not be conditioned on a requirement that the defendant show a meritorious defense. n10

Other relevant factors to be considered by the court in deciding the good-cause standard include: (1) whether the default was willful; (2) whether setting aside the default would prejudice the plaintiff; (3) whether the alleged defense was meritorious; n11 (4) the nature of the defendant's explanation for the default; (5) the relative good faith of the parties; (6) the amount of money involved; and (7) the timing of the motion to set aside entry of default. n12 n13-16

[b] Motion to Set Aside Entry of Default

A party in default should make a formal motion under Rule 55(c) to set aside entry of default. However, a motion under another rule or statute is sufficient. In the absence of a formal motion, any document that seeks a resolution of the case on the merits may be construed as a motion to set aside the default. n17

The only time limitation for a motion to set aside the default is that it must be filed within a reasonable time. However, the court should consider the defendant's delay in applying the "good cause shown" standard of Rule 55(c) and may consider the length of time which has elapsed between the default and the defendant's motion to set aside the default. n18 A defendant may also be required to show due diligence in seeking to open a default. n19

[c] Requirement of Security

The court has discretion to require the party seeking to set aside the entry of default to post security for costs, or for the amount of the judgment in appropriate circumstances. n20 A court may also require the defaulting party to pay reasonable expenses incurred by the plaintiff in securing the default and in opposing the motion to set aside the default. n21

[d] Appellate Review of Denial of Motion to Set Aside Entry of Default

When the court of appeals reviews a district court's denial of a motion to set aside an entry of default, it must apply an abuse of discretion standard of review. n22 The more grounds that the district court has for entry of a default judgment, the less likely it will be reversed on appeal for denial of a motion to set aside the default. n23 However, in view of the liberal standard of good cause, and the preference to resolve matters on their merits, any doubts should be resolved in favor of the moving party. n24

[2] Setting Aside Entry of Default Judgment

[a] Standard to Set Aside Default Judgment

As noted above, n1 default is a two step process: entry of default and entry of a default judgment. Each of these steps may be set aside, but each has its own standard and procedure. Because the court may set aside an entry of default before a default judgment ever occurs, the standard to set aside an entry of default is less stringent than setting aside a default judgment. n2 Relief from default is an interlocutory matter while relief from a default judgment involves setting aside a final judicial action, as provided by Rule 60(b). n3 Rule 60(b) requires a showing of excusable neglect, a standard that allows the court to set aside a judgment only when caused by inadvertence, mistake, or intervening circumstances that are beyond the party's control. n4

A stricter standard applies to the default judgment because default judgments are final judgments for all purposes as between the parties and those in privity with them, n5 and therefore, the doctrine of res judicata applies to default judgments. n6

[b] Setting Aside Default Judgment Based on Jurisdictional Defect

A default judgment rendered by a court that had a jurisdictional deficiency it may be set aside in the same manner as other judgments, including on the following basis:

1. Lack of subject matter jurisdiction. If a court renders a judgment without subject matter jurisdiction, whether by default or on the merits, the judgment is void. n7 The issue of subject-matter jurisdiction is always open, and courts at every stage of a proceeding are required to consider the issue even though the parties have failed to raise it. n8

2. Lack of Personal Jurisdiction. A default judgment rendered by a court which lacked personal jurisdiction over the defendant is void and may be attacked either directly in the rendering court or through collateral attack on enforcement of the judgment. n9 Thus, if there was no service of process on the defaulting party, the default judgment may be set aside. n10 The defendant is not required to show other prerequisites for setting aside a default, such as a meritorious defense, in order to have the default set aside. n11 However, if a defendant appears in an action and fails to challenge the court's personal jurisdiction, the objection is waived. n12

3. Improper venue is not grounds to set aside a default judgment. The issue of personal jurisdiction is different from that of venue. If a defendant has a proper challenge to venue, it must be raised in the court rendering the judgment, and the courts consider permitting an entry of default judgment to constitute a waiver of an objection to improper venue. n13

[c] Other Grounds for Setting Aside Default Judgment

A court may set aside a default judgment for any of the grounds specified in Rule 60(b). n14 Therefore, a court has discretion to relieve a party from a default judgment on such terms as are just for the following reasons: n15

1. Mistake, inadvertence, surprise or excusable neglect.

2. Newly discovered evidence which by due diligence would not have been discovered in time to move for a new trial under Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(b). n16

3. Fraud, misrepresentation, or other misconduct of an adverse party.

4. The judgment is void.

5. The judgment has been satisfied, released or discharged, or a prior judgment on which it is based has been reversed or otherwise vacated, or it is not longer equitable that the judgment should have prospective application.

6. Any other reason justifying relief from the operation of the judgment.

[d] Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment

A party may generally make a motion for relief from a default judgment under Rule 60(b) within a reasonable time. n17 However, motions for relief based on one of the first three of the six grounds n18 must be made within one year after the default judgment, n19 and this deadline may not be extended. n19.1 Further, a party who moves under one of the first three grounds for setting aside default judgments, as provided in Rule 60(b), must do so both within a year and within a reasonable time. Thus, if it is not reasonable for the defendant to wait 11 months before moving, the motion will be denied. n20

Typically, a motion to set aside a default is made by the defaulting party. However, the party not in default may also make such a motion. Under Rule 55(c), a party who has obtained a judgment by default may have it set aside for one of the reasons set forth in Rule 60(b). n21

[e] Requirement of Security

Under Rule 60(b) a court may condition relief from default judgment on such terms as are just. n22 Thus, the court has discretion to require that the defending party comply with specified conditions to obtain relief from the judgment, such as posting a bond to secure its payment of any ultimate judgment. n23

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsDefaultRelief From Default

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 10 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 55.02, 55.10 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See § 25.100.

(n3)Footnote 2. Meehan v. Snow, 652 F.2d 274, 276 (2d Cir. 1981) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(c); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b); United States v. $23,000 in United States Currency, 356 F.3d 157, 163-164 (1st Cir. 2004) ; see also § 25.104[2][a].

(n5)Footnote 4. Berthelsen v. Kane, 907 F.2d 617, 620 (6th Cir. 1990) (while default judgment may be vacated only by satisfying stricter standards applied to final, appealable orders under Rule 60(b), entry of default may be set aside for "good cause shown").

(n6)Footnote 5. A. C. Samford, Inc. v. United States, 226 F. Supp. 72, 75 (M.D. Ga. 1963) (summons stated wrong time period within which answer must be filed).

(n7)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(c); see United States v. Real Prop. and All Furnishings Known as Bridewell's Grocery & Video, 195 F.3d 819, 820-822 (6th Cir. 1999) (court should consideration three factors in good cause determination, whether: (1) plaintiff would be prejudiced: (2) defendant has meritorious defense; and (3) culpable conduct of defendant led to default.).

(n8)Footnote 7. United States v. $23,000 in United States Currency, 356 F.3d 157, 164 (1st Cir. 2004) ; Sony Corp. v. Elm State Elec., Inc., 800 F.2d 317, 320-321 (2d Cir. 1986) .

(n9)Footnote 8. Augusta Fiberglass Coatings, Inc. v. Fodor Contracting Corp. 843 F.2d 808, 812 (4th Cir. 1988) .

(n10)Footnote 9. FSLIC v. v. Kroenke, 858 F.2d 1067, 1071 (5th Cir. 1988) .

(n11)Footnote 10. Peralta v. Heights Med. Ctr., Inc., 485 U.S. 80, 85-87, 108 S. Ct. 896, 99 L. Ed. 2d 75 (1988) .

(n12)Footnote 11. United States v. $23,000 in United States Currency, 356 F.3d 157, 164 (1st Cir. 2004) .

(n13)Footnote 12. KPS & Assocs. v. Designs by FMC, Inc., 318 F.3d 1, 12 (1st Cir. 2004) .

(n14)Footnote 13-16. [Reserved]

(n15)Footnote 17. Walpex Trading Co. v. Yacimientos Petroliferos Fiscales Bolivianos, 109 F.R.D. 692, 694-695 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) .

(n16)Footnote 18. Dow Chem. Pac. Ltd. v. Rascator Maritime, S.A., 782 F.2d 329, 336 (2d Cir. 1986) .

(n17)Footnote 19. Zuelzke Tool & Engraving Co. v. Anderson Die Castings, Inc., 925 F.2d 226, 230 (7th Cir. 1991) .

(n18)Footnote 20. Walpex Trading Co. v. Yacimientos Petroliferos Fiscales Bolivianos, 109 F.R.D. 692, 698 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) (as a condition for setting aside default, court ordered defendant to file $500,000 bond to secure any judgment for plaintiff).

(n19)Footnote 21. Gerlach v. Michigan Bell Tel. Co., 448 F. Supp. 1168, 1174 (E.D. Mich. 1974) .

(n20)Footnote 22. CJC Holdings, Inc. v. Wright & Lato, Inc. 979 F.2d 60, 64 (5th Cir. 1992) .

(n21)Footnote 23. See United States v. $23,000 in United States Currency, 356 F.3d 157, 167 (1st Cir. 2004) .

(n22)Footnote 24. Zawadski de Bueno v. Bueno Castro, 822 F.2d 416, 419-420 (3d Cir. 1987) .

(n23)Footnote 1. See § 25.100.

(n24)Footnote 2. Meehan v. Snow, 652 F.2d 274, 276 (2d Cir. 1981) .

(n25)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(c); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b).

(n26)Footnote 4. United States v. $23,000 in United States Currency, 356 F.3d 157, 164 (1st Cir. 2004) (ignorance of rules or mistakes construing rules do not usually constitute excusable neglect).

(n27)Footnote 5. Dow Chem. Pac. Ltd. v. Rascator Maritime, S.A., 782 F.2d 329, 336 (2d Cir. 1986) .

(n28)Footnote 6. McDaniel v. Camp, 59 F.3d 548, 554 n.13 (5th Cir. 1995) .

(n29)Footnote 7. First Fidelity Bank, N.A. v. Government of Antigua & Barbuda, 877 F.2d 189, 196 (2d Cir. 1989) .

(n30)Footnote 8. Prou v. United States, 199 F.3d 37, 45 (1st Cir. 1999) .

(n31)Footnote 9. General Contracting & Trading Co. v. Interpole, Inc., 899 F.2d 109, 112-113 (1st Cir. 1990) (judgment entered by court that lacks personal jurisdiction over defendant is nullity that may be attacked at any time).

(n32)Footnote 10. *See Sandoval v. Bluegrass Regional Mental Health-Mental Retardation Board, 2000 U.S. App. LEXIS 17949, *13-14 (6th Cir. 2000) .

(n33)Footnote 11. Peralta v. Heights Med. Ctr., Inc., 485 U.S. 80, 85-87, 108 S. Ct. 896, 99 L. Ed. 2d 75 (1988) .

(n34)Footnote 12. In re State Exch. Fin. Co., 896 F.2d 1104, 1106 (7th Cir. 1990) .

(n35)Footnote 13. Orange Theatre Corp. v. Rayhertz Amusement Corp., 130 F.2d 185, 186-187 (3d Cir. 1942) .

(n36)Footnote 14. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(c); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b); Judson Atkinson Candies, Inc. v. Latini-Hohberger Dhimantec, 529 F.3d 371, 385 (7th Cir. 2008) .

(n37)Footnote 15. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(1)-(6); see Burda Media, Inc. v. Viertel, 417 F.3d 292, 298 (2d Cir. 2005) (six independent grounds for setting aside default judgment).

(n38)Footnote 16. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(b).

(n39)Footnote 17. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(c)(1); Days Inns Worldwide, Inc. v. Patel, 445 F.3d 899, 905-906 (6th Cir. 2006) .

(n40)Footnote 18. See [c], above.

(n41)Footnote 19. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(c)(1).

(n42)Footnote 19.1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(b)(2).

(n43)Footnote 20. Cf. Kagan v. Caterpillar Tractor Co., 795 F.2d 601, 610-611 (7th Cir. 1986) .

(n44)Footnote 21. Ferraro v. Arthur M. Rosenberg, Co., 156 F.2d 212, 214 (2d Cir. 1946) .

(n45)Footnote 22. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b).

(n46)Footnote 23. See Mario Valente Collezioni, Ltd. v. Confezioni Semeraro Paolo, S.R.L., 115 F. Supp. 2d 367, 368 (S.D.N.Y. 2000) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT

3-25A Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure 25A.syn

§ 25A.syn Synopsis to Chapter 25A: DECLARATORY JUDGMENT

§ 25A.01 Description of Declaratory Relief

[1] Declaratory Relief Defined

[2] Comparison With Injunctive Relief

[3] Comparison With Interpleader

§ 25A.02 Purpose of Declaratory Judgment Actions

§ 25A.03 Federal Law Applicable to Declaratory Judgments

[1] Declaratory Judgment Act

[2] Federal Rules of Procedure

[a] Rules Govern Procedure for Declaratory Actions

[b] Particularly Pertinent Rules

[3] Declaratory Relief Is Procedural Device

[4] Federal Law Controls Availability of Declaratory Relief

[5] Declaratory Relief Requirements Liberally Interpreted

§§ 25A.04through 25A.19 [Reserved]

§ 25A.20 Summary of Requirements for Declaratory Relief

§ 25A.21 Subject Matter Jurisdiction

[1] Federal Subject Matter Jurisdiction Required for Declaratory Relief

[2] Federal Question Jurisdiction

[3] Diversity Jurisdiction

[a] Requirement of Complete Diversity

[b] Requirement of Minimum Amount in Controversy

[i] Minimum Amount Required

[ii] Determination of Amount in Declaratory Relief Cases

[iii] Prohibition Against Aggregation of Claims

[iv] State Law Controls Amount of Substantive Claim

§ 25A.22 Justiciability

[1] Requirement of Justiciability

[2] Requirement of Actual Controversy

[3] Ripeness

[a] Party Requesting Declaratory Relief Must Establish Ripeness

[b] Two-Pronged Inquiry

[4] Standing

[5] Mootness

[6] Political Question

[7] Issues of Justiciability in Particular Types of Declaratory Relief Actions

[a] Intellectual Property Cases

[i] Trademark

[ii] Patent

[iii] Copyright

[b] Constitutionality of Law or Policy

[i] Challenge Prior to Enforcement

[ii] Challenge After Enforcement Has Occurred

[c] Insurance Cases

§ 25A.23 Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies

[1] Exhaustion Required When Intended by Congress

[2] Exhaustion Not Required When Administrative Remedy Is Alternative

§ 25A.24 Declaratory Relief Not Available in Certain Cases

[1] Tax Cases

[a] Federal Taxation

[b] State Taxation

[2] Other Cases

§ 25A.25 Court's Discretion to Exercise Declaratory Relief Jurisdiction

[1] Entry of Declaratory Judgment Is Discretionary

[2] Factors Considered in Exercise of Discretion

[a] Availability of Adequate Alternative Remedy

[b] Avoiding Forum Shopping and Procedural Fencing

[c] Useful Purpose

[d] Efficient Judicial Administration

[e] Effect of Other Pending Action

[f] Promoting Settlement of Controversy

[g] Avoiding of Court Conflicts

§§ 25A.26through 25A.39 [Reserved]

§ 25A.40 Initiation of Request for Declaratory Relief

§ 25A.41 Request for Declaratory Relief Subject to Ordinary Rules of Pleading

§ 25A.42 Contents of Complaint or Pleading

§ 25A.43 Venue

§ 25A.44 Joinder

[1] Parties

[2] Claims

§ 25A.45 Expedited Procedure

§ 25A.46 Jury Trial

§ 25A.47 Burden of Proof

[1] Jurisdictional Facts

[2] Elements of Substantive Claim

§ 25A.48 Procedural Considerations in Typical Cases

[1] Insurance Actions

[2] Intellectual Property Actions

[a] Trademark Actions

[b] Patent Actions

[c] Copyright Actions

§ 25A.49 Appellate Review of Declaratory Relief Decisions

[1] Scope of Appealable Declaratory Relief Orders

[2] Standard for Review of Declaratory Relief Orders

[a] Court's Discretion to Hear Declaratory Relief Action

[b] Substantive Determinations

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT
PART I. FUNCTION OF ACTIONS FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF

3-25A Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25A.01

§ 25A.01 Description of Declaratory Reliefn*

[1] Declaratory Relief Defined n*

"Declaratory relief" is is a binding adjudication of an actual controversy which specifies the rights and status of litigants even though no compensatory nor injunctive relief is awarded. n1 A "declaratory judgment" is conclusive in a subsequent action between the parties as to the matters declared and, in accordance with the usual rules of issue preclusion, as to any issues actually litigated and determined. n2 The purpose of declaratory relief is to avoid accrual of avoidable damages to a claimant not certain of his or her rights and to afford the claimant an early adjudication, without waiting until the claimant's adversary decides to file a legal action, after damage had accrued. n3

To obtain declaratory relief, a party need not show an accomplished injury. n4 However, even though a judgment is declaratory and not subject to execution because no completed injury has occurred, the Declaratory Judgment Act is applicable only to cases involving an actual controversy, n5 in that the Act falls within the restrictions of the jurisdictional specifications of Article III of the Constitution. n6 When a court does enter a declaratory judgment in an actual controversy, the judgment has the force and effect of a "final judgment" that is reviewable on appeal. n7

[2] Comparison With Injunctive Relief n*

Even though declaratory judgments and injunctions have some similar characteristics and are both considered equitable remedies, n1 declaratory relief differs considerably from injunctive relief. The primary distinction is that while declaratory relief is a statement by the court deciding the legal relationship of the parties, n2 injunctive relief is coercive in that the court orders a party to act or refrain from acting in a particular manner. n3 Because it is not prospective and coercive like an injunction, n4 declaratory relief does not require a showing of the elements necessary for the grant of an injunction, such as, irreparable harm to the applicant. n5

Another distinction is that while an injunction is a purely equitable action, a declaratory judgment is not strictly speaking an equitable remedy but is only equitable in nature. n6 Declaratory relief may be legal or equitable depending on the basic nature of the underlying issues and the remedy sought. n7 In deciding whether a claim for declaratory judgment involves a demand in law or equity, the court must determine how the claim would have arisen had it not been raised in a declaratory judgment action. n8 In view of this distinction, when a plaintiff requests both declaratory and injunctive relief, the court may decide that the plaintiff is entitled to declaratory relief, while at the same time denying the issuance of injunctive relief on equitable grounds. n9

[3] Comparison With Interpleader n*

An interpleader action, which is basically an action in which an obligor asks the court to determine and declare the obligor's liability to multiple potential obligees, may achieve basically the same result as an action for a declaratory judgment. n1 In both types of actions, the district court has discretion to render interpleader relief or declaratory relief. n2 Thus, if a party includes declaratory relief claims in an interpleader action, the district court may decline to rule on the declaratory relief claim as a matter of discretion. n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For further discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 57.04 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote *. For further discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 57.04[3] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n3)Footnote 1. Credit-Based Asset Servicing & Securitization, LLC v. Lichtenfels, 658 F. Supp. 2d 355, 362 (D. Conn. 2009) ; see 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a).

(n4)Footnote 2. Heartland By-Products, Inc. v. United States, 223 F. Supp. 2d 1317, 1326 (Ct. Int'l Trade 2002) .

(n5)Footnote 3. NUCOR Corp. v. Aceros Y Maquilas de Occidente, S.A. de C.V., 28 F.3d 572, 577 (7th Cir. 1994) .

(n6)Footnote 4. United States v Fisher-Otis Co., 496 F.2d 1146, 1149 (10th Cir. 1974) (declaratory judgment settles actual controversy before controversy has necessarily become violation of law or breach of duty).

(n7)Footnote 5. United States Nat'l Bank v. Independent Ins. Agents of Am., Inc., 508 U.S. 439, 446, 113 S. Ct. 2173, 124 L. Ed. 2d 402 (1993) ; see § 25A.22[2].

(n8)Footnote 6. Bell Atl. Corp. v. MFS Communications Co., 901 F. Supp. 835, 841-842 (D. Del. 1995) (whether particular circumstances present Article III case or controversy is determined under general inquiry of justiciability, that is power of federal courts to entertain disputes); see U.S. Const., Art III, § 2.

(n9)Footnote 7. 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a); see § 25A.49[1].

(n10)Footnote *. For further discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 57.07 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n11)Footnote 1. Chauffeurs Teamsters & Helpers, Local No. 391 v. Terry, 494 U.S. 558, 564, 110 S. Ct. 1339, 108 L. Ed. 2d 519 (1990) (declaratory relief); Henderson v. Stalder, 112 F. Supp.2d 589, 592-593 (E.D. La. 2000) (injunctive relief).

(n12)Footnote 2. NUCOR Corp. v. Aceros Y Maquilas de Occidente, S.A. de C.V., 28 F.3d 572, 577 (7th Cir. 1994) .

(n13)Footnote 3. Heartland By-Products, Inc. v. United States, 568 F.3d 1360, 1367-1368 (Fed. Cir. 2009) ; see Ch. 10A, Injunctions.

(n14)Footnote 4. See Morrow v. Harwell, 768 F.2d 619, 626-627 (5th Cir. 1985) .

(n15)Footnote 5. Fantasy Book Shop, Inc. v. City of Boston, 652 F.2d 1115, 1125-1126 (1st Cir. 1981) (declaratory relief does not require showing of elements necessary for grant of preliminary injunction, such as, irreparable harm, balance of injuries, and public interest).

(n16)Footnote 6. Dworman v. Mayor & Board of Aldermen, etc., 370 F. Supp. 1056, 1065-1066 (D.N.J. 1974) (because it is equitable in nature, decisions regarding use of equitable relief are committed to sound discretion of trial court).

(n17)Footnote 7. Chauffeurs, Teamsters & Helpers, Local No. 391 v. Terry, 494 U.S. 558, 564, 110 S. Ct. 1339, 108 L. Ed. 2d 519 (1990) .

(n18)Footnote 8. Wallace v. Norman Indus., Inc., 467 F.2d 824, 827 (5th Cir. 1972) .

(n19)Footnote 9. Historic Preservation Guild v. Burnley, 896 F.2d 985, 992-993 (6th Cir. 1989) (plaintiff's failure to show substantial likelihood of success on merits does not preclude declaratory judgment).

(n20)Footnote *. For further discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 57.07 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n21)Footnote 1. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Tashire, 386 U.S. 523, 533, 87 S. Ct. 1199, 18 L. Ed. 2d 270 (1967) ; see Travelers Indem. Co. v. Crown Cork & Seal Co., 865 F. Supp. 1083, 1087 (S.D.N.Y. 1994) .

(n22)Footnote 2. American Airlines, Inc. v. Block, 905 F.2d 12, 14 (2d Cir. 1990) .

(n23)Footnote 3. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Karp, 108 F.3d 17, 22-23 (2d Cir. 1997) .

153 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT
PART I. FUNCTION OF ACTIONS FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF

3-25A Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25A.02

§ 25A.02 Purpose of Declaratory Judgment Actionsn*

Actions for declaratory relief serve several purposes. Such an action essentially permits an early adjudication of the rights and legal remedies of the parties involved in an actual dispute regardless of whether claims for damages or injunctive relief have arisen or would otherwise need to be litigated in the future. n1 Thus, a declaratory judgment in federal court is designed to clarify and settle the legal relations in a controversy and to terminate and afford relief from the uncertainty, insecurity, and controversy giving rise to a proceeding or action. n2

Other purposes of declaratory relief include the following benefits:

1. The minimization of the danger of accruing avoidable damages. n3 Thus, declaratory relief is designed to relieve parties of the threat of impending litigation by declaring the rights of the parties prior to any accrual of actual loss. n4

2. The education of both the parties and the public regarding the issues and policies involved in the dispute. Consequently, in addition to clarifying the parties' rights and resolves in the controversy, declaratory relief should always be made with reference to any public interest involved in the case. n5

3. The promotion of judicial efficiency when the grant of declaratory relief would avoid multiple proceedings. n6

4. The provision of a means for parties to avoid threats of litigation or harassment. n7

5. The provision of a potential alternative to injunctive relief. In this regard, it should be noted that there is a lesser showing to obtain declaratory relief than is required to obtain injunctive relief. n8 Therefore, a declaratory judgment may provide relief when legal or equitable remedies are too intrusive or otherwise inappropriate. n9

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote *. For further discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 57.04 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. United States v. Doherty, 786 F.2d 491, 498 (2d Cir. 1986) ; *Klefstad Cos. v. New Boston Allison Ltd. P'ship, 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14637, at 36 (S.D. Ind. Sept. 29, 2000) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Hartford Cas. Ins. Co. v. BB&T Fin. Corp., 131 F. Supp.2d 752, 754 (W.D.N.C. 2001) ; see Kunkel v. Continental Cas. Co., 866 F.2d 1269, 1273-1274 (10th Cir. 1989) (declaratory judgment designed to enable parties uncertain of their legal rights to seek statement by court regarding such rights before injury or loss occurs).

(n4)Footnote 3. Rhoades v. Avon Prods., 504 F.3d 1151, 1164 (9th Cir. 2007) .

(n5)Footnote 4. United States v. NHC Healthcare Corp., 115 F. Supp.2d 1149, 1156 (W.D. Mo. 2000) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Greater Los Angeles Council on Deafness v. Zolin, 812 F.2d 1103, 1112 (9th Cir. 1987) .

(n7)Footnote 6. State Auto Ins. Cos. v. Summy, 234 F.3d 131, 134-135 (3d Cir. 2000) (in deciding whether to hear declaratory judgment action involving insurance coverage issues, district court should consider avoidance of duplicative litigation).

(n8)Footnote 7. United States v. NHC Healthcare Corp., 115 F. Supp.2d 1149, 1156 (W.D. Mo. 2000) (declaratory relief designed to relieve parties of threat of impending litigation by declaring their rights prior to any accrual of actual loss or injury); Hal Roach Studios, inc. v. Richard Feiner & Co., 896 F.2d 1542, 1555-1556 (9th Cir. 1989) (action requesting court to declare that opposition lacked valid and subsisting copyright).

(n9)Footnote 8. Steffel v Thompson, 415 U.S. 452, 466-467, 94 S. Ct. 1209, 39 L. Ed. 2d 505 (1974) (declaratory judgment is less intrusive remedy than injunction and requires lesser showing); Tierney v. Schweiker, 718 F.2d 449, 457 (D.C. Cir. 1983) (declaratory relief plaintiffs need not demonstrate irreparable injury for issuance of declaratory judgment).

(n10)Footnote 9. Dickinson v. Indiana State Election Bd., 933 F.2d 497, 503 (7th Cir. 1991) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT
PART I. FUNCTION OF ACTIONS FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF

3-25A Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25A.03

§ 25A.03 Federal Law Applicable to Declaratory Judgmentsn*

[1] Declaratory Judgment Act

The Declaratory Judgment Act n1 is a statute enacted by Congress that specifically established a new procedural remedy for federal courts in the form of an adjudicatory statement rather than an award of damages or the grant of a coercive injunction. n2 It authorizes federal courts to grant litigants declaratory relief similar to that administered in state courts, when the dispute is one that could be brought in federal court. n3 In general, a district court may declare the rights and other legal relations of any interested party seeking declaratory relief, whether further relief is or could be sought. n4 The purpose of the Declaratory Judgment Act is to enable parties to adjudicate their disputes before they suffer significant damage. Thus, the Act is designed to avoid accrual of avoidable damages to a person not certain of his or her rights under the law and to afford the person an early adjudication without waiting until his or her adversary should see fit to begin suit, after damage has accrued. n5 The Act also enables litigants to narrow the issues, speed the decision, and settle the controversy before an accumulation of differences and hostility precipitates a broad and general conflict involving numerous collateral issues. n6

The Act has been declared constitutional by the Supreme Court on the grounds that the Act itself states that it is restricted in application to "cases of actual controversy," which statement shows a manifest intention to restrict the Act to controversies that are such in the constitutional sense. n7 The Court noted that when a concrete case will allow an immediate and definitive determination of the legal rights of the parties in an adversary proceeding on the facts alleged, the judicial function may be appropriately exercised even though the adjudication of the rights of the litigants may not require the payment of damages or other coercive remedy. n8

[2] Federal Rules of Procedure

[a] Rules Govern Procedure for Declaratory Actions

While the authority for federal declaratory judgments is the Declaratory Judgment Act, n1 Rule 57 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure governs the procedures in such actions. Rule 57 provides generally that the procedure for obtaining a declaratory judgment pursuant to the Declaratory Judgment Act must be in accordance with all of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. n2 Therefore, a party must litigate a declaratory action in the same manner as in other civil actions. n3

The existence of another adequate remedy does not preclude a judgment for declaratory relief in cases when such relief is otherwise appropriate. n4 This means that declaratory relief is an alternative or cumulative remedy and not exclusive of any available extraordinary remedy. n5 Section 2202 of the Act gives effect to the cumulative nature of the declaratory device by authorizing a district court to grant additional relief consistent with the underlying declaration even though the right to the relief may arise long after the court has entered its declaratory judgment. n6

[b] Particularly Pertinent Rules

Rule 57 provides that the procedure for declaratory actions is governed by the federal rules in the same manner as in other cases. n7 The following rules are particularly important regarding motions for declaratory relief:

1. A declaratory judgment lawsuit must be initiated in the same manner as every other civil action by the filing of a complaint in compliance with Rule 3. n8 However, when an action for damages or injunctive relief has already been initiated, any appropriate claim for declaratory relief may be made by a proper pleading, such as, a counterclaim or joinder of parties, as noted in items 3 and 4, below.

2. A summons in proper form must be served under the process requirements specified in Rule 4. n9

3. A request for declaratory relief need not always be made by complaint, and a declaratory judgment action may be raised for the first time in subsequent pleadings, such as counterclaims and cross-claims, or by amendment to an original pleading. n10 When raised by counterclaim or cross-claim, an action for declaratory relief must satisfy Rule 13, in addition to the jurisdictional requirements applicable to declaratory judgments. n11

4. As is the case with any other civil action in federal court, all individuals or entities needed for a just adjudication of a controversy must be joined under Rule 19 in an action for a declaratory judgment and other parties may permissively be joined under Rule 20. The issue of which parties are necessary or proper parties to a declaratory relief action is basically the same as with any other action. However, because of the discretionary nature of declaratory relief actions, the remedies available to the court may be limited by issues involving necessary or proper parties. n12

5. The right to a jury trial is expressly preserved for declaratory judgment actions when that right already exists and may be demanded under the circumstances and in the manner provided in Rules 38 and 39. n13 Consequently, Rule 57 must be read in conjunction with Rules 38 and 39, which explain when jury trials are available and the procedures for facilitating requests for jury trials. n14 However, the Declaratory Judgment Act does not provide an independent basis for a jury trial; n15 the Act merely does not take away the right to jury trial from parties who may already claim it. n16 Jury trials in declaratory relief actions are discussed in § 25A.46.

[3] Declaratory Relief Is Procedural Device

The Declaratory Judgment Act is a "procedural device that was designed to provide a new remedy to the federal courts' arsenal" in a case of actual controversy, and it does not confer jurisdiction on the court to hear a particular case; rather, the facts and circumstances of the case must provide federal jurisdiction as in other cases. n1 In other words, the Declaratory Judgment Act does not in itself confer, expand, or limit federal subject matter jurisdiction; therefore a party requesting declaratory relief must establish an independent basis for federal court jurisdiction. n2 Another significant aspect of the characterization of declaratory relief as merely a procedural device is that federal law controls the question of whether the relief is available and the procedure for obtaining it. n3

[4] Federal Law Controls Availability of Declaratory Relief

Because declaratory relief is merely a procedural device, n1 and declaratory judgment actions are controlled by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, n2 whether a federal court may hear a declaratory action in federal court constitutes a federal issue that must be resolved by federal law. n3 Therefore, even in a diversity action, the federal court must decide the standing of a party to demand declaratory relief, n4 and whether an actual controversy exists under federal law. n5 However, even though the applicability and procedure of declaratory relief is determined under federal law, the underlying substantive issues in declaratory relief cases based on diversity jurisdiction are governed by state law. n6

[5] Declaratory Relief Requirements Liberally Interpreted

Courts have consistently stated that the Declaratory Judgment Act should be liberally interpreted and that the interpreting court must bear in mind the remedial character and legislative purposes of the Act. n1 Thus, a federal court's jurisdiction over declaratory judgment actions is limited by only two primary considerations: the court must have subject matter jurisdiction and the action must present an actual case or controversy that is justiciable for disposition. n2 Furthermore, because Rule 57 specifically provides that the procedure for obtaining a declaratory judgment pursuant to the Declaratory Judgment Act must be in accordance with the federal rules of civil procedure, n3 Rule 57 and the Act must be read together and liberally construed to effectuate the objectives of declaratory relief, including the following: n4

1. To enable the courts to economically resolve matters at an earlier, less-complicated stage of the dispute.

2. To provide an expeditious and inexpensive way to adjudicate disputes.

3. When possible, to avoid the need to use coercive remedies.

4. To satisfy a legitimate and genuine need to provide a remedy when an otherwise effective means of redress does not exist.

5. To remove uncertainty from legal relationships before a violation or disruption of that relationship occurs.

In its interpretation of the Act or of Rule 57, a court may use the Uniform Declaratory Judgment Act as a guide to the scope and function of the federal law. n5

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsAppellate ReviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsDiscretionCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsFactorsCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsScope

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For further discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 57.03 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. See 28 U.S.C. § 2201 et seq.

(n3)Footnote 2. See Elecs. for Imaging, Inc. v. Coyle, 394 F.3d 1341, 1345-1346 (Fed. Cir. 2005) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Government Employees Ins. Co. v. Dizol, 108 F.3d 999, 1004 (9th Cir. 1997) .

(n5)Footnote 4. See 28 U.S.C. § 2201.

(n6)Footnote 5. MarineChance Shipping, Ltd. v. Sebastian, 143 F.3d 216, 219 (5th Cir. 1998) , cert. denied, 525

U.S. 1055 (1998) ; see § 25A.02.

(n7)Footnote 6. Starter Corp. v. Converse, Inc., 84 F.3d 592, 597 (2d Cir. 1996) .

(n8)Footnote 7. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Haworth, 300 U.S. 227, 239-240, 57 S. Ct. 461, 81 L. Ed. 617 (1937) .

(n9)Footnote 8. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Haworth, 300 U.S. 227, 241, 57 S. Ct. 461, 81 L. Ed. 617 (1937) .

(n10)Footnote 1. See [1], above.

(n11)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 57.

(n12)Footnote 3. Kam-Ko Bio-Pharm Trading Co., Ltd. v. Mayne Pharma Inc., 560 F.3d 935, 943 (9th Cir. 2009) .

(n13)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 57.

(n14)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 57, Advisory Committee Note.

(n15)Footnote 6. See Gant v. Grand Lodge, 12 F.3d 998, 1002 (10th Cir. 1993) , cert. denied, 511 U.S. 1083 (1994) .

(n16)Footnote 7. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 57; see [a], above.

(n17)Footnote 8. Evanston Ins. Co. v. Merin, 598 F. Supp. 1290, 1300 (D.N.J. 1984) (in declaratory judgment action, federal claim must appear on face of well-pleaded complaint); Barmat, Inc. v. United States, 159 F.R.D. 578, 582 (N.D. Ga. 1994) (party must request declaratory judgment by filing complaint or petition); see 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a); Fed. R. Civ. P. 3.

(n18)Footnote 9. See Open LCR.com, Inc. v. Rates Tech., Inc., 112 F. Supp.2d 1223, 1230 (D. Colo. 2000) (service of process required in declaratory action; in this case, however, misnomer of corporation in summons was immaterial because corporation could not have been misled).

(n19)Footnote 10. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 13; see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 15.

(n20)Footnote 11. Super Sack Mfg. Corp. v. Chase Packaging Corp., 57 F.3d 1054, 1058-1060 (Fed. Cir. 1995) , cert. denied, 516 U.S. 1093 (1996) (declaratory judgment counterclaim may be brought to resolve actual controversy between interested parties; however, denial of motion to amend pleadings to include counterclaim for declaratory relief affirmed in this case because movant failed to demonstrate existence of actual controversy); Carbon Fuel Co. v. USX Corp., 867 F. Supp. 414, 417-418 (S.D. W. Va. 1994) (successor employer properly requested declaratory relief by counterclaim against employee); see also § 25A.44[2].

(n21)Footnote 12. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Mid-Continent Cas. Co., 518 F.2d 292, 294 (10th Cir. 1975) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 19; see also § 25A.44[1].

(n22)Footnote 13. Fed. R. Civ. P. 57.

(n23)Footnote 14. Fed. R. Civ. P. 57; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 38, 39.

(n24)Footnote 15. Robinson v. Brown, 320 F.2d 503, 505 (6th Cir. 1963) , cert. denied, 376 U.S. 908 (1964) (Declaratory Judgment Act does not create right to jury trial when underlying action is equitable).

(n25)Footnote 16. See Kam-Ko Bio-Pharm Trading Co., Ltd. v. Mayne Pharma Inc., 560 F.3d 935, 942-943 (9th Cir. Wash. 2009) .

(n26)Footnote 1. Prasco, LLC v. Medicis Pharm. Corp., 537 F.3d 1329, 1335 (Fed. Cir. 2008) ; see § 25A.21.

(n27)Footnote 2. NAP, Inc. v. Shuttletex, Inc., 112 F. Supp.2d 369, 374 (S.D.N.Y. 2000) ; see § 25A.21.

(n28)Footnote 3. Icarom, PLC v. Howard County, 904 F. Supp. 454, 458 (D. Md. 1995) (citing Moore's Federal Practice); see [4], below.

(n29)Footnote 1. Grace Holdings, L.P. v. Sunshine Mining & Ref. Co., 901 F. Supp. 853, 857 (D. Del. 1995) ; see [3], above.

(n30)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 57.

(n31)Footnote 3. See Tex. First Nat'l Bank v. Wu, 347 F. Supp. 2d 389, 396 (S.D. Tex. 2004) .

(n32)Footnote 4. Frissell v. Rizzo, 597 F.2d 840, 843 (3d Cir. 1979) ; see § 25A.22[4].

(n33)Footnote 5. Federal Kemper Ins. Co. v. Rauscher, 807 F.2d 345, 351-352 (3d Cir. 1986) (citing Moore's Federal Practice); Republic Servs., Inc. v. Texas Ecological Servs., Inc., 118 F. Supp.2d 775, 777 (S.D. Tex. 2000) (cases that interpret Texas Declaratory Judgment Act have no relevance to determine declaratory remedy which may be given by federal courts; that particular federal declaratory relief may not be available in state courts is immaterial).

(n34)Footnote 6. Commercial Union Ins. Co. v. Walbrook Ins. Co., 41 F.3d 764, 772 (1st Cir. 1994) (issues that would be governed by state law in coercive action are equally governed by state law when declaratory relief is sought).

(n35)Footnote 1. Exxon Corp. v. FTC, 588 F.2d 895, 900 (3d Cir. 1978) ; see § 25A.02.

(n36)Footnote 2. See Travelers Ins. Co. v. Obusek, 72 F.3d 1148, 1153-1154 (3d Cir. 1995) .

(n37)Footnote 3. See 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a); Fed. R. Civ. P. 57.

(n38)Footnote 4. Walker v. Flitton, 364 F. Supp. 2d 503, 526 (M.D. Pa. 2005) .

(n39)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 57, Advisory Committee Note.

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT
PART I. FUNCTION OF ACTIONS FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF

3-25A Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 25A.04through 25A.19

[Reserved]

§§ 25A.04[Reserved]

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT
PART II. AVAILABILITY OF DECLARATORY RELIEF

3-25A Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25A.20

§ 25A.20 Summary of Requirements for Declaratory Reliefn*

A party filing a pleading requesting declaratory relief n1 must establish two primary requirements for a court of the United States to enter a declaratory judgment: n2 first, the federal court must have subject matter jurisdiction, n3 and second, the court must be presented with an actual, that is, a justiciable controversy. n4 Once these two thresholds are satisfied, the court has discretion to render or deny declaratory relief to further the purposes of the relief. n5 As used in the Declaratory Judgment Act, the term "court of the United States" n6 includes all three level of courts: the Supreme Court of the United States, the courts of appeals, and the district courts. n7

The existence of another adequate remedy does not preclude declaratory relief in otherwise proper cases. n8 Although a declaration may not be rendered if a special statutory proceeding is provided for the adjudication of a special type of case, general ordinary or extraordinary legal remedies, whether regulated by statute, are not deemed to be special statutory proceedings. n9 However, the existence of another remedy at law may be considered as a factor in determining whether the court should exercise its discretion to grant declaratory relief. n10

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsFactors

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For further discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 57.09 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. See §§ 25A.40, 25A.41.

(n3)Footnote 2. See Travelers Ins. Co. v. Obusek, 72 F.3d 1148, 1153-1154 (3d Cir. 1995) .

(n4)Footnote 3. See § 25A.21.

(n5)Footnote 4. See § 25A.22.

(n6)Footnote 5. Wilton v. Seven Falls Co., 515 U.S. 277, 289-290, 115 S. Ct. 2137, 132 L. Ed. 2d 214 (1995) ; see § 25A.23.

(n7)Footnote 6. 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a).

(n8)Footnote 7. Heller Foundation v. Lee, 847 F.2d 83, 87 (3d Cir. 1988) ; see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 57.20 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n9)Footnote 8. Fed. R. Civ. P. 57; Greater Los Angeles Council on Deafness v. Zolin, 812 F.2d 1103, 1112 (9th Cir. 1987) (existence of alternative remedies does not bar appropriate declaratory action); Continental Cas. Co. v. Coastal Sav. Bank, 977 F.2d 734, 737 (2d Cir. 1992) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n10)Footnote 9. Fed. R. Civ. P. 57, Advisory Committee Note.

(n11)Footnote 10. Aluminum Housewares Co. v. Chip Clip Corp., 609 F. Supp. 358, 360 (E.D. Mo. 1984) (in patent infringement action, existence of alternative remedy one factor in determining whether to entertain declaratory relief suit).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT
PART II. AVAILABILITY OF DECLARATORY RELIEF

3-25A Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25A.21

§ 25A.21 Subject Matter Jurisdictionn*

[1] Federal Subject Matter Jurisdiction Required for Declaratory Relief

In itself, the Declaratory Judgment Act does not confer or expand federal subject matter jurisdiction, nor does it create an independent basis for jurisdiction; n1 consequently, a party requesting declaratory relief must establish an independent basis for federal court jurisdiction. n2 While actions for declaratory judgments may be based on supplemental jurisdiction or special jurisdictional statutes such as admiralty, n3 more typically, federal subject matter jurisdiction is based on the existence of a federal question n4 or the complete diversity of citizenship of adverse parties. n5

[2] Federal Question Jurisdiction

When a person initiates a claim for declaratory relief that arises under federal law, the suit satisfies the subject matter jurisdiction requirement because it falls within "federal question jurisdiction." n1 Whether a case arises under federal law for purposes of the general federal question statute is a complex issue that goes beyond the limited scope of this chapter. n2 For a detailed analysis of the general federal question statute, see Ch. 5, Original Jurisdiction over the Subject Matter. For purposes of an action for declaratory judgment, essentially the same requirements that must be met for an action seeking affirmative relief apply as well to an action seeking declaratory relief: federal law must either create the cause of action or provide the basis for an important issue of law that appears on the face of the plaintiff's well-pleaded complaint. n3

When a declaratory judgment action is brought by a prospective defendant against a prospective plaintiff in anticipation of an affirmative action by that prospective plaintiff, the Supreme Court has held that in order to decide whether the case meets the requirements of the well-pleaded complaint rule one must ask whether the issue of federal law would have appeared on the face of a hypothetical complaint seeking affirmative relief filed by the defendant in the declaratory judgment action. n4 Furthermore, a case asserting a state-created cause of action may also arise under federal law if the resolution of the dispute depends on the validity, construction, or effect of federal law, provided that the federal question is a real and substantial issue and the resolution of that issue is an essential element of the plaintiff's case. n5

[3] Diversity Jurisdiction

[a] Requirement of Complete Diversity

As an alternative to federal question jurisdiction, n1 a court has subject matter jurisdiction over a declaratory relief case if the case meets a minimum amount in controversy, n2 and if the plaintiffs and the defendants are "completely diverse." n3 which means that no plaintiff is a citizen of the same state as any defendant. n4 The defendant asserting federal removal jurisdiction carries the burden of proving all jurisdictional facts, including complete diversity of citizenship. n5

Complete diversity of citizenship must ordinarily exist at the time the action is commenced, which, under Rule 3, n6 is the time the complaint is filed. n7 However, when a case is removed from state court to federal court, complete diversity of citizenship must exist both at the time the action was originally commenced as well as at the time of removal. n8 There is an exception to this rule when a state court plaintiff voluntarily moves to a different state after commencing the action: if such a move creates diverse citizenship, a defendant may then remove the action to the federal court. n9

[b] Requirement of Minimum Amount in Controversy

[i] Minimum Amount Required

In addition to complete diversity of citizenship, n10 diversity jurisdiction requires that the actual matter in controversy exceeds the sum or value of $75,000, exclusive of interest and costs, determined as of the time that the action is commenced. n11 The amount in controversy is generally determined exclusive of interest and costs. n12 The term "interest and costs" as used in the statute refers to those fees incurred or to be incurred in connection with the federal diversity action itself. Therefore, interest and costs may be included in the jurisdictional amount calculation if a party is contractually obligated to pay them as part of the dispute that underlies the action. n13 In the same way, the amount in controversy is generally determined exclusive of attorney's fees, but if the underlying contract requires one party to pay attorney's fees in the event of a lawsuit, then the estimated amount of attorney's fees are included in calculating the amount in controversy. n14 For example, in insurance cases when the policy expressly provides that the insurer will pay attorney's fees of any covered action against the insured, all attorney's fees that the insurer is obligated to pay are aggregated with the policy limits to determine the amount in controversy. n15

[ii] Determination of Amount in Declaratory Relief Cases

The amount in controversy is controlled by the controversy as stated in the pleading, n16 unless it appears to a legal certainty that the claim is for less than the jurisdictional minimum. n17 In cases removed to federal court, the jurisdictional amount must also be satisfied when the notice of removal is filed. n18

As noted above, the amount in controversy is ordinarily determined by the amount specified in the request for damages, but when the plaintiff is seeking declaratory relief, there is no request for damages. However, it is well established that the amount in controversy is measured by the value of the object of the litigation. n19 To measure the "object" of the litigation, the amount in controversy is the value of the right to be protected or the extent of the injury to be prevented. It should be noted that identifying the object to be valued in determining the amount in controversy is complicated when more than one "object" is involved, depending on the parties' differing points of view. n20 Furthermore, the value of the litigation may vary depending on which party's perspective is analyzed. n21

[iii] Prohibition Against Aggregation of Claims

Aggregation of the amounts in dispute is not permitted to establish the requisite jurisdictional amount regarding the several liability of multiple parties. Thus, when there are multiple, severally liable plaintiffs seeking declaratory judgment regarding their liability to the defendants, the plaintiffs may not aggregate demands to satisfy jurisdictional-amount requirement. n22 However, a suit requesting a declaratory judgment of the validity of a contract calling for payments aggregating more than requisite jurisdictional amount will be held to be within the jurisdiction of the federal court, even though individual payments do not exceed the amount. n23

[iv] State Law Controls Amount of Substantive Claim

In a declaratory action brought in federal court based on diversity of citizenship, state law rather than federal law governs the amount of the substantive claims in the underlying action. n24 In other words, issues governed by state law in an action for damages are also governed by state law in a declaratory relief suit. n25 Therefore, the court must consult state law to determine the nature and extent of the damages to be awarded, because in a diversity case the substantive questions of what constitutes items of damages are purely matters of state law. n26

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionJurisdiction Over ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For further discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 57.21 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Prasco, LLC v. Medicis Pharm. Corp., 537 F.3d 1329, 1335 (Fed. Cir. 2008) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Nationwide Ins. v. Zavalis, 52 F.3d 689, 691-692 (7th Cir. 1995) ; Ernst & Young v. Depositors Economic Protection Corp., 45 F.3d 530, 534 (1st Cir. 1995) ; NAP, Inc. v. Shuttletex, Inc., 112 F. Supp.2d 369, 376 (S.D.N.Y. 2000) ; see 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a).

(n4)Footnote 3. See Matsuda v. Wada, 128 F. Supp.2d 659, 663-664 (D. Haw. 2000) .

(n5)Footnote 4. See 28 U.S.C. § 1331; see also [2], below.

(n6)Footnote 5. See 28 U.S.C. § 1332; see also [3], below.

(n7)Footnote 1. UFCW, Local 1564 v. Albertson's, Inc., 207 F.3d 1193, 1197-1202 (10th Cir. 2000) ; see 28 U.S.C. § 1331.

(n8)Footnote 2. See UFCW, Local 1564 v. Albertson's, Inc., 207 F.3d 1193, 1197-1202 (10th Cir. 2000) (federal court lacked jurisdiction to adjudicate declaratory relief claim that collective bargaining agreement violated Fair Labor Standards Act).

(n9)Footnote 3. Stuart Weitzman, LLC v. Microcomputer Res., Inc., 542 F.3d 859, 862 (11th Cir. 2008) .

(n10)Footnote 4. Skelly Oil Co. v. Phillips Petroleum Co., 339 U.S. 667, 672-673, 70 S. Ct. 876, 94 L. Ed. 1194 (1950) .

(n11)Footnote 5. Franchise Tax Bd. v. Construction Laborers Vacation Trust, 463 U.S. 1, 10-13, 103 S. Ct. 2841, 77 L. Ed. 2d 420 (1983) .

(n12)Footnote 1. See [2], above.

(n13)Footnote 2. See [b], below.

(n14)Footnote 3. Littlefield v. Acadia Ins. Co., 392 F.3d 1, 4 n.2 (1st Cir. 2004) .

(n15)Footnote 4. Doctor's Assocs., Inc. v. Distajo, 66 F.3d 438, 445 (2d Cir. 1995) , cert. denied, 517 U.S. 1120 (1996) (all plaintiffs must be citizens of different states of all defendants, as determined by reference to parties named in proceeding and any indispensable parties).

(n16)Footnote 5. Rockwell Int'l Credit Corp. v. United States Aircraft Ins. Group, 823 F.2d 302, 304 (9th Cir. 1987) , rev'd on other grounds by Partington v. Gedan, 923 F.2d 686 (9th Cir. 1991) .

(n17)Footnote 6. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 3.

(n18)Footnote 7. Maryland Cas. Co. v. W.R. Grace & Co., 23 F.3d 617, 622 (2d Cir. 1993) , cert. denied, 513 U.S. 1052 (1994) (diversity jurisdiction determined as of time when action is commenced).

(n19)Footnote 8. Freeport-McMoran, Inc. v. K N Energy, Inc., 498 U.S. 426, 428, 111 S. Ct. 858, 112 L. Ed. 2d 951 (1991) .

(n20)Footnote 9. DeBry v. Transamerica Corp., 601 F.2d 480, 486-488 (10th Cir. 1979) (citing Moore's Federal Practice and stating that defendant may remove case if plaintiff's post-commencement move establishes diversity jurisdiction).

(n21)Footnote 10. See [a], above.

(n22)Footnote 11. 28 U.S.C. § 1332(a); see Shanaghan v. Cahill, 58 F.3d 106, 109 (4th Cir. 1995) (diversity jurisdiction determined when action commenced); Matsuda v. Wada, 128 F. Supp.2d 659, 663-664 (D. Haw. 2000) .

(n23)Footnote 12. 28 U.S.C. § 1332(a).

(n24)Footnote 13. Farmers Ins. Co. v. McClain, 603 F.2d 821, 823 (10th Cir. 1979) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n25)Footnote 14. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v. Rowles, 818 F. Supp. 852, 854-855 (E.D. Pa. 1993) (court aggregates all costs required by insurance contract, including costs, attorney's fees, and costs of arbitration).

(n26)Footnote 15. Farmers Ins. Co. v. McClain, 603 F.2d 821, 823 (10th Cir. 1979) .

(n27)Footnote 16. Watson v. Blankinship, 20 F.3d 383, 387 (10th Cir. 1994) (actual jury finding of less than jurisdictional amount does not destroy jurisdiction or necessarily prove bad faith).

(n28)Footnote 17. Sellers v. O'Connell, 701 F.2d 575, 579 (6th Cir. 1983) (court may look beyond complaint when it appears to legal certainty that jurisdictional requisite not met).

(n29)Footnote 18. Tongkook Am., Inc. v. Shipton Sportswear Co., 14 F.3d 781, 784 (2d Cir. 1994) .

(n30)Footnote 19. Hunt v. Washington State Apple Adver. Comm'n, 432 U.S. 333, 347, 97 S. Ct. 2434 , 53 L. Ed. 2d 383 (1977) .

(n31)Footnote 20. Puckett Mach. Co. v. United Rentals, Inc., 342 F. Supp. 2d 610, 613 (S.D. Miss. 2004) .

(n32)Footnote 21. McCarty v. Amoco Pipeline Co., 595 F.2d 389, 391-395 (7th Cir. 1979) .

(n33)Footnote 22. Niagara Fire Ins. Co. v. Dyess Furniture Co., 292 F.2d 232, 233 (5th Cir. 1961) (aggregation of amounts in dispute between insurer and defendants is not permitted to establish requisite jurisdictional amount when insurer's liability is several).

(n34)Footnote 23. Davis v American Foundry Equip. Co., 94 F.2d 441, 442-443 (7th Cir. 1938) (this rule furthers intent of Declaratory Judgment Act to avoid delay and accrual of damages against one uncertain of his or rights and to promote early adjudication of controversies).

(n35)Footnote 24. Public Serv. Comm'n v. Wycoff Co., 344 U.S. 237, 247-248, 73 S. Ct. 236, 97 L. Ed.291 (1952) .

(n36)Footnote 25. Chamberlain v. Allstate Ins. Co., 931 F.2d 1361, 1364-1367 (9th Cir. 1991) (exercising diversity jurisdiction, court decided issues relating to extent of insurance coverage in conformity with state law).

(n37)Footnote 26. Rosen v. Chrysler Corp., 205 F.3d 918, 921-922 (6th Cir. 2000) (if party under applicable state law may recover on particular claim for recission, constructive trust, and treble damages, court must include all of those theories in tabulating jurisdictional minimum amount).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT
PART II. AVAILABILITY OF DECLARATORY RELIEF

3-25A Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25A.22

§ 25A.22 Justiciabilityn*

[1] Requirement of Justiciability

A court should not enter a declaratory judgment unless it has been presented with a justiciable dispute, which is a dispute that involves an actual controversy. Justiciability is a concept that embraces several principles including standing and ripeness, and describes the power of a court to hear a particular claim, and the advisability of the court to hear the claim at a particular time. Justiciability is a general term that arises from the Constitution's Article III "cases and controversies" limitation and also from prudential considerations for refusing to exercise jurisdiction. Its basic rationale is to prevent the courts, through avoidance of premature adjudication, from entangling themselves in abstract disagreements. n0.1 Justiciability requires that before a federal court may address itself to a question, there must exist a real, substantial controversy between parties having adverse legal interests, a controversy that is definite and concrete, and not hypothetical or abstract. The doctrine prevents parties from simply submitting questions of general interest or curiosity to the federal court. n1

Justiciability is particularly applied to declaratory relief actions through the Declaratory Judgment Act, which requires that a court may not grant such relief except in a "case of actual controversy." n2 "Cases of actual controversy" in the Declaratory Judgment Act are identical with the type of "cases and controversies" that are justiciable under Article III of the Constitution. n2.1 For a discussion of the principles and doctrines applicable to determining the existence of an actual controversy and the justiciability of a dispute, see [2] through [6], below. The determination of the existence of an actual controversy in the context of specific types of declaratory relief suits is discussed in § 25A.22[7].

With particular respect to declaratory relief, the justiciability doctrine means that even though the Declaratory Judgment Act is to be liberally construed, n3 the Act does not enlarge jurisdiction. n4 Therefore, the Act does not create any exceptions to the fundamental concepts of justiciability and the prohibition of advisory opinions, which are imposed on the federal courts by the Constitution. The rule that courts will not give advisory opinions or answer hypothetical questions is derived from the provisions of Article III of the Constitution, which restrict the federal judicial power to cases and controversies. n5 For example, in one case the Supreme Court held that government employees who wanted to pursue political activities prohibited by the Hatch Act, but who had not alleged that they had actually violated the Act, did not present a justiciable controversy in an action seeking a declaration that the statute was unconstitutional. The Court stated that a decision on the merits would be only an advisory opinion, because a hypothetical threat is not enough; based on the complaint, the court could only speculate as to the kinds of political activity the appellants desired to pursue. n6

[2] Requirement of Actual Controversy

A court's grant of declaratory relief is not proper except to decide an actual controversy. n1 The difference between an abstract question and an actual controversy is one of degree and is not discernible by any precise test. The United States Supreme Court has directed that the inquiry requires examination of both the fitness of the issues for judicial decision and the hardship to the parties of withholding court consideration. n2

In making the determination of whether a declaratory judgment action satisfies the actual controversy requirement, United States Supreme Court decisions require that the dispute be definite and concrete, touching the legal relations of parties having adverse legal interests, that the controversy be real and substantial, and that it admit of specific relief through a decree of a conclusive character, as distinguished from an opinion merely advising what the law would be on a hypothetical state of facts. Basically, the question in each case is whether the facts alleged, under all the circumstances, show that there is a substantial controversy, between parties having adverse legal interests, of sufficient immediacy and reality to justify the entry of a declaratory judgment. n3 Additionally, valuable legal rights must be directly affected to a specific and substantial degree. n4 In other words, declaratory relief is appropriate when and only when one or both parties have pursued a course of conduct that will result in imminent and inevitable litigation unless the issue is resolved by a declaratory judgment. n5

In making the determination of whether there is an actual controversy, the court considers whether the plaintiff faces a realistic danger of sustaining a direct injury, for example, as a result of a statute's operation or enforcement, or whether the alleged injury is too "imaginary" or "speculative" to support jurisdiction. n6 While courts will generally avoid deciding disputes contingent in part on future possibilities, an exception may be had where an issue, largely legal in nature, may be resolved without further factual development, or where judicial resolution will largely settle the parties' dispute. Thus, the threat of litigation may establish an actual controversy sufficient to support a declaratory judgment if the threat is specific and concrete. n6.1

The fact that the filing of a lawsuit is contingent on certain factors does not necessarily defeat jurisdiction over a declaratory relief action. However, in determining whether a justiciable controversy exists, the district court must consider the likelihood that those contingencies will occur. In effect, the court inquires whether an injury that has not yet occurred (that is, the potential lawsuit) is sufficiently likely to happen to justify judicial intervention. n7 As with questions of subject matter jurisdiction, the existence or non-existence of an actual case or controversy is determined when the declaratory relief complaint is filed. n8 All jurisdictional prerequisites must be satisfied when the declaratory relief action is filed and must continue for the duration of the suit. n9

A party's mere demand for declaratory relief does not by itself establish a case or controversy as necessary to confer subject matter jurisdiction. n10 Furthermore, when a party is requesting a mere declaration of law without implications for practical enforcement on the parties, the court should dismiss the case. n11

[3] Ripeness

[a] Party Requesting Declaratory Relief Must Establish Ripeness

The party seeking the declaratory judgment carries the burden of demonstrating that the case is ripe for adjudication. n1 Ripeness is a justiciability doctrine that is concerned with when an action may properly be brought. Thus, ripeness is peculiarly a question of timing. Ripeness is not a legal concept with a fixed content or susceptible of scientific verification. The United States Supreme Court has observed that the doctrine is drawn both from Article III constitutional limitations on judicial power and from prudential reasons for refusing to exercise jurisdiction. n2 If an injury has not yet occurred, and the claimant's declaratory relief action is based on conjecture, speculation, or a remote contingency, the issue is not ripe for adjudication. n3 Thus, the ripeness inquiry focuses on whether an injury that has not yet occurred is sufficiently likely to happen to justify judicial intervention. n4

[b] Two-Pronged Inquiry

The Supreme Court has directed that the ripeness inquiry requires examination of both the fitness of the issues for judicial decision and the hardship to the parties of withholding court consideration. n5 The "fitness for judicial decision inquiry" goes to a court's ability to visit an issue. Generally, the fitness inquiry safeguards against judicial review of hypothetical or speculative disagreements. In applications regarding appeals from administrative regulations, for example, the fitness prong questions finality and exhaustion. n6

The key issue implicated by the fitness prong is whether the claim involves uncertain and contingent events that may not occur as anticipated or may not occur at all n7 or whether the issue presented is purely legal, rather than factual. n8 In other words, while courts shy away from settling disputes contingent in part on future possibilities, certain cases may warrant review based on their particular disposition; n9 exceptions are allowed when an issue is largely legal in nature, may be resolved without further factual development, or where judicial resolution will largely settle the parties' dispute. n10

The second prong of the ripeness test involves harm. Thus, in addition to being fit for judicial resolution under the first prong, an issue is ripe only if delayed review will result in significant harm. "Harm" includes both the traditional concept of actual damages--pecuniary or otherwise--and also the heightened uncertainty and resulting behavior modification that may result from delayed resolution. n11 For example, in one case the Supreme Court stressed the financial impact that delayed adjudication would have on the petitioning utilities and the rate-paying public by forcing them to gamble millions of dollars on an uncertain state of the law. n12

A party need not wait for actual harm to occur. n13 However, both the immediacy and the degree of the threatened harm impact the ripeness calculus--they must be significant. n14

[4] Standing

The Declaratory Judgment Act provides that the court may declare the rights and other legal relations of any "interested party seeking such a declaration." n1 This means that the court may not grant declaratory relief with respect to nonparties. n2 The requirement that a court may not grant declaratory relief, except to interested persons who are seeking the relief, is a particular facet of the general standing requirement that a plaintiff must assert an adequate personal interest, which the law recognizes, against a defendant having a substantial adverse interest. For example, in one case the Supreme Court ruled that a physician lacked standing to allege that a state anti-contraception statute deprived certain of his patients of life without due process in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment because that interest was the patients and not his. The plaintiff did not raise any issue concerning the deprivation of his liberty or property rights. n3

The plaintiff has the burden of alleging and establishing facts that demonstrate standing. To accomplish this, the plaintiff must prove three elements: (1) an injury in fact that is an invasion of a legally protected interest which is concrete and particularized and actual or imminent, not conjectural or hypothetical; (2) a causal connection between the injury and the conduct complaint of; and (3) the likelihood that the injury will be redressed by a favorable decision. n4

[5] Mootness

The Declaratory Judgment Act is procedural only; therefore, the Act may not be used to obtain a decision on a moot question. n1 Once an issue becomes moot, it is no longer actual or justiciable under the Article III "case or controversy" requirement. n2 Mootness has been described as the doctrine of standing set in a time frame: it refers to the extinction of the requisite "personal" interest that must exist at the commencement of litigation, and must exist through the entire period the litigation continues. It is the duty of counsel to bring to the federal court's attention without delay any facts that may raise a question of mootness. n3

A case becomes moot when a court is no longer able to grant appropriate relief because the dispute has been resolved through other means or because the passage of time has made the claim stale, n4 and it is not probable that the precise circumstances or conditions of the case will recur. n5 In other words, mootness arises in one of two circumstances: when the issues presented are no longer "live" or when the parties lose any legally cognizable interest in the outcome. n6 Thus, a controversy becomes moot when, as a result of intervening circumstances, there are no longer adverse parties with sufficient legal interests to maintain the litigation. n7 However, the mootness of some but not all issues in the case does not render the entire case moot. n8

[6] Political Question

Under the justiciability doctrine of "political questions," federal courts may not make judicial determinations of a claim, including a declaratory judgment, when the claim involves only political matters. n1 Thus, if a party's challenge to the constitutionality of a law, statute, ordinance, or regulation raises only a "political question," the court should ordinarily decline to grant declaratory relief. n2 However, there is no bright-line test of what constitutes a political question, and different standards apply in several different contexts. Basically, a political question, as opposed to an actual controversy, implicates the separation of powers and involves one or more of the following factors: n3

1. A demonstrable constitutional commitment of the issue to a coordinate political department.

2. A lack of judicially discoverable and manageable standards for resolving the issue.

3. The impossibility of deciding the issue without an initial policy determination that requires nonjudicial discretion.

4. The impossibility of a court's undertaking independent resolution of the issue without expressing a lack of the respect due other branches of government; or

5. The potentiality of embarrassment from multifarious pronouncements by various departments on one question.

When a case does involve a political question, the court should dismiss the claim. n4 For suits involving political questions, the court should dismiss rather than issue an indefinite stay, because the political question doctrine is not analogous to abstention, but rather is a constitutional limitation on the federal judiciary because of the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers. n5 For a further discussion of these factors, see Ch. 1, Federal Courts.

[7] Issues of Justiciability in Particular Types of Declaratory Relief Actions

[a] Intellectual Property Cases

[i] Trademark

In a declaratory judgment action involving trademarks, the test for the existence of an actual case or controversy has two prongs, both of which must be satisfied to establish declaratory judgment jurisdiction: (1) has the declaratory judgment defendant's conduct created a real and reasonable apprehension of liability on the part of the plaintiff, and (2) has the declaratory judgment plaintiff engaged in a course of conduct that has brought it into adversarial conflict with the defendant. n1

As to the first prong, the unambiguous communication to the plaintiff of the defendant's intent to bring an infringement suit satisfies this requirement. n2

The second prong does not necessarily require that the plaintiff actually use the mark to establish an adversarial relationship that meets the actual case or controversy standard. n3 Rather, an actual case or controversy exists where a party has engaged in a course of conduct evidencing a definite intent and apparent ability to commence use of the marks on the product. n4 Imminent intent and ability to use require more than a vague or general desire to use the disputed mark. n5 The plaintiff must be engaged in meaningful preparation, n6 such that the plaintiff is actively preparing to produce the article in question. n7 Whether a declaratory judgment plaintiff has demonstrated this meaningful and active preparation is decided on a case-by-case basis. n8

[ii] Patent

A declaratory action commonly provides a very useful procedure for patent litigants, in that a declaratory relief action may be brought by potential infringers against asserted patentees seeking a declaration that the asserted patent is invalid or that no infringement of the patent has occurred, or both. In an action seeking a declaration that a patent is invalid, an actual controversy exists if both the following are true: n9 (1) an explicit threat or action by the patentee, which creates a reasonable apprehension on the part of the declaratory plaintiff that it will face an infringement suit, and (2) the plaintiff must actually have either produced the device or have prepared to produce the device. Even if a court has made a finding of noninfringment, the finding does not preclude a court from considering an appeal from a declaratory judgment of patent invalidity, because a declaratory judgment of invalidity presents a claim that is independent of the patentee's charge of infringement. n10

A party may also bring a declaratory judgment action regarding patent infringement. A potential infringer may seek a declaration of noninfringement or the patentee may seek a declaration of infringement against a party who will allegedly infringe in the future.. n11

The test for evaluating whether a justiciable controversy exists in the context of a declaratory judgment action regarding infringement requires the following: (1) the defendant's conduct must have created on the part of plaintiff a reasonable apprehension that the defendant will initiate suit if the plaintiff continues the allegedly infringing activity; (2) the plaintiff must actually have either produced the device or have prepared to produce it. The test, however stated, is objective and is applied to the facts existing when the complaint is filed. The first prong looks to the defendant's conduct while the second to the plaintiff's. n12

Relevant to the issue of reasonable apprehension may be the fact that the parties are engaged in litigation at the time the perceived threat is made or the fact that the patent holder has stated an intent to enforce its patent rights. However, some cases have held such facts insufficient to find a reasonable apprehension of suit. Nonetheless, the court must consider the context in which statements allegedly raising an apprehension of suit were made. n13

[iii] Copyright

The test to determine the existence of a case or controversy in a declaratory relief suit involving the validity or infringement of a copyright is generally the same as that applicable to patent cases; n14 thus, a justiciable case or controversy exists if both the following are true: n15 (1) the declaratory judgment defendant has indicated its refusal to cease conduct in the face of acts by the copyright holder sufficient to create a reasonable apprehension that a suit would be instituted against the defendant. (2) the declaratory judgment defendant has engaged in an activity directed toward the making, selling, or using an allegedly infringing product, or is engaged in meaningful preparation for that activity. Similarly, the real and reasonable apprehension of potential liability requirement also applies in the copyright context. n16 The apprehension must have been caused by the declaratory relief defendant's actions n17 and must exist when the suit is filed and continue throughout the duration of the suit. n18 However, the declaratory relief plaintiff need not show that an actual charge of infringement has been made by the defendant. n19

[b] Constitutionality of Law or Policy

[i] Challenge Prior to Enforcement

When a party requests a declaration that a statute, regulation, ordinance, or governmental policy is unconstitutional, but the law has not yet been enforced by the government, the plaintiff must show actual or threatened harm caused by the imminent enforcement of the challenged law. This requires the plaintiff to allege that the government has actually threatened to enforce or prosecute under the challenged statute, that enforcement or prosecution is likely, or that there is a real threat of enforcement or prosecution. n20

Although a person need not be the object of an administrative or judicial proceeding before the person may initiate an action for a declaratory judgment, n21 the existence of an actual controversy is not established by the mere passage of a legally questionable ordinance, n22 nor by allegations of fear of enforcement or prosecution that is remote, hypothetical, or speculative. n23 However, when the legal issue presented is fit for judicial resolution, and when a regulation requires immediate and significant change in the plaintiff's conduct of his or her affairs with serious penalties attached to noncompliance, access to the courts under the Declaratory Judgment Act must be permitted, except in cases of a statutory bar or some other unusual circumstances. Furthermore, when a party requests a declaratory judgment that a challenged statute is unconstitutional because it has a chilling effect on First Amendment rights, it is generally easier to state a justiciable claim than if First Amendment rights are not involved. n24

[ii] Challenge After Enforcement Has Occurred

Once a statute has been enforced against a person, the person may request a declaratory judgment to challenge the constitutional validity of the statute by alleging that there are continuing or current adverse affects from that past enforcement or that there is an immediate threat of repeated injury from subsequent enforcement of the challenged statute. n25 When the constitutionality of a state statute depends on its interpretation, a federal court should normally await state interpretation of the statute before proceeding with any federal constitutional questions that may remain. For example, in one case, the United States Supreme Court held that an action in the federal district court should be stayed until an authoritative interpretation was given the statute in question by the state courts. The Court stated that if after the state court determination, a federal question remains, it may then be determined by the federal courts. Such a procedure, designed to promote harmonious relationships between state and national governments, is proper in declaratory actions. n26

[c] Insurance Cases

The Declaratory Judgment Act has historically provided a useful procedural device for adjudicating disputes concerning insurance coverage and liability. Thus, there has been routine invocation of declaratory judgment jurisdiction in diversity insurance cases at a level comparable to declaratory judgments in federal question patent cases. This activity has been fostered by Rule 57's express provision that in the appropriate circumstances the existence of another adequate remedy, such as state court resolution of insurance issues, does not preclude a judgment for declaratory relief. n27 Nevertheless, a court may not enter a declaratory judgment in an insurance case unless the justiciability test is met. n28

In an action seeking a declaratory judgment regarding whether coverage exists or an insurer is liable under an insurance policy, an actual controversy exists when a significant dispute exists between parties having adverse legal interests, and the dispute has a high degree of immediacy and reality. n29 In the insurance context, the existence of a legal dispute is established when the parties disagree as to the terms, rights, or obligations of the insurance policy. n30 An insured is not precluded from seeking a declaration of insurance coverage before a suit is filed. However, if an insured files a suit before asserting any liability against the insured, the court may find there is not an actual controversy. n31

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJusticiabilityCase or Controversy RequirementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJusticiabilityCase or Controversy RequirementsActual DisputesCivil ProcedureJusticiabilityRipenessGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJusticiabilityStandingGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For further discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 57.22 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 0.1. MedImmune, Inc. v. Genentech, Inc., 549 U.S. 118, 127 S. Ct. 764, 166 L. Ed. 2d 604, 614, 620 (2007) .

(n3)Footnote 1. Nebraska Pub. Power Dist. v. MidAmerican Energy Co, 234 F.3d 1032, 1037-1038 (8th Cir. 2000) .

(n4)Footnote 2. 28 U.S.C. § 2201; see Thomas v. Anchorage Equal Rights Comm'n, 220 F.3d 1134, 1137-1138 (9th Cir. 2000) ; see also [2], below.

(n5)Footnote 2.1. MedImmune, Inc. v. Genentech, Inc., 549 U.S. 118, 127 S. Ct. 764, 166 L. Ed. 2d 604, 614 (2007) .

(n6)Footnote 3. See § 25A.03[5].

(n7)Footnote 4. See § 25A.21.

(n8)Footnote 5. Thomas v. Anchorage Equal Rights Comm'n, 220 F.3d 1134, 1138-1139 (9th Cir. 2000) .

(n9)Footnote 6. United Pub. Workers v. Mitchell, 330 U.S. 75, 85-86, 67 S. Ct. 556, 91 L. Ed. 754 (1947) .

(n10)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a).

(n11)Footnote 2. Nebraska Pub. Power Dist. v. MidAmerican Energy Co, 234 F.3d 1032, 1037-1038 (8th Cir. 2000) ; Work v. United States Trade, Inc., 747 F. Supp. 1184, 1189 (E.D. Va. 1990) (whether controversy is sufficiently immediate and real as to constitute actual controversy is determined on case-by-case basis).

(n12)Footnote 3. MedImmune, Inc. v. Genentech, Inc., 549 U.S. 118, 127 S. Ct. 764, 166 L. Ed. 2d 604, 614-615 (2007) (actual controversy requirement was met when one person demanded payment of claim as of right, and other person made payment, but coercive nature of demand for payment preserved right to recover sums paid or to challenge legality of claim).

(n13)Footnote 4. S. Jackson & Son, Inc. v. Coffee, Sugar & Cocoa Exch., Inc., 24 F.3d 427, 431-432 (2d Cir. 1994) (declaratory relief improper when no resolution of dispute and declaration would not affect (broaden or narrow) rights in relation to other party).

(n14)Footnote 5. GTE Directories Pub. Corp. v. Trimen Am., Inc., 67 F.3d 1563, 1567 (11th Cir. 1995) .

(n15)Footnote 6. Thomas v. Anchorage Equal Rights Comm'n, 220 F.3d 1134, 1137 (9th Cir. 2000) .

(n16)Footnote 6.1. MedImmune, Inc. v. Genentech, Inc., 549 U.S. 118, 127 S. Ct. 764, 166 L. Ed. 2d 604, 616-618 (2007) (licensors threatened to institute patent infringement action).

(n17)Footnote 7. Orix Credit Alliance, Inc. v. Wolfe, 212 F.3d 891, 897 (5th Cir. 2000) .

(n18)Footnote 8. Starter Corp. v. Converse, Inc., 84 F.3d 592, 597 (2d Cir. 1996) .

(n19)Footnote 9. Lewis v. Continental Bank Corp., 494 U.S. 472, 479-481, 110 S. Ct. 1249, 108 L. Ed. 2d 400 (1990) (justiciability must exist at all stages of action, throughout both trial and appellate proceedings).

(n20)Footnote 10. S. Jackson & Son, Inc. v. Coffee, Sugar & Cocoa Exch., Inc., 24 F.3d 427, 431-432 (2d Cir. 1994) (declaratory relief improper when it would not resolve dispute and when declaration would not broaden or narrow rights of particular party in relation to other party).

(n21)Footnote 11. Browning Debenture Holders' Comm'n v. DASA Corp., 524 F.2d 811, 817 (2d Cir. 1975) .

(n22)Footnote 1. Grace Holdings, L.P. v. Sunshine Mining & Ref. Co., 901 F. Supp. 853, 858 (D. Del. 1995) (declaratory judgment plaintiff carries burden of demonstrating that case is ripe).

(n23)Footnote 2. Thomas v. Anchorage Equal Rights Comm'n, 220 F.3d 1134, 1137 (9th Cir. 2000) ; City of Houston v. H.U.D., 24 F.3d 1421, 1430-1432 (D.C. Cir. 1994) .

(n24)Footnote 3. Illinois v. City of Chicago, 137 F.3d 474, 477-478 (7th Cir. 1998) (whether airport authority may exercise its purported authority to adopt regulations overriding state law is merely hypothetical issue unless and until airport authority actually adopts such regulations).

(n25)Footnote 4. Rhode Island v. Narragansett Indian Tribe, 19 F.3d 685, 693 (1st Cir. 1994) .

(n26)Footnote 5. Abbott Labs. v. Gardner, 387 U.S. 136, 149, 87 S. Ct. 1507, 18 L. Ed. 2d 681 (1967) .

(n27)Footnote 6. Lane v. United States Dep't of Agric., 187 F.3d 793, 795 (8th Cir. 1999) .

(n28)Footnote 7. Ernst & Young v. Depositors Econ. Prot. Corp., 45 F.3d 530, 536-538 (1st Cir. 1995) .

(n29)Footnote 8. W.R. Grace & Co. v. United States EPA, 959 F.2d 360, 364 (1st Cir. 1992) (case is generally ripe if issues are purely legal ones; conversely, case is not ripe when further factual development is required).

(n30)Footnote 9. Shalala v. Illinois Council on Long Term Care, Inc., 529 U.S. 1, 120 S. Ct. 1084, 1093, 146 L. Ed. 2d 1 (2000) .

(n31)Footnote 10. Nebraska Pub. Power Dist. v. MidAmerican Energy Co., 234 F.3d 1032, 1038 (8th Cir. 2000) .

(n32)Footnote 11. Ohio Forestry Ass'n, Inc. v. Sierra Club, 523 U.S. 726, 733-734, 118 S. Ct. 1665, 140 L. Ed. 2d 921 (1998) .

(n33)Footnote 12. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. State Energy Res. Conservation & Dev. Comm'n, 461 U.S. 190, 201-202, 103 S. Ct. 1713, 75 L. Ed. 2d 752 (1983) .

(n34)Footnote 13. South Dakota Mining Ass'n v. Lawrence County, 155 F.3d 1005, 1008-1009 (8th Cir. 1998) .

(n35)Footnote 14. Lujan v. National Wildlife Fed'n, 497 U.S. 871, 110 S. Ct. 3177, 3190-3191, 111 L. Ed. 2d 695 (1990) ; Nebraska Pub. Power Dist. v. MidAmerican Energy Co, 234 F.3d 1032, 1038 (8th Cir. 2000) .

(n36)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a).

(n37)Footnote 2. Mckenzie v. City of Chicago, 118 F.3d 552, 555 (7th Cir. 1997) (court may not declare prospective, class-wide relief, unless class has been formally certified as class action).

(n38)Footnote 3. Tileston v. Ullman, 318 U.S. 44, 46, 63 S. Ct. 493, 87 L. Ed. 603 (1943) .

(n39)Footnote 4. Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560, 112 S. Ct. 2130, 119 L. Ed. 2d 351 (1992) ; Hawaii Motor Sports Ctr. v. Babbitt, 125 F. Supp. 2d 1041, 1049 (D. Haw. 2000) .

(n40)Footnote 1. *Russell v. INS, 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 52, at 7 (N.D. Ill. Jan3, 2001) .

(n41)Footnote 2. Presbytery of the Orthodox Presbyterian Church v. Florio, 40 F.3d 1454, 1462-1467 (3d Cir. 1994) , cert. denied sub nom. Presbytery of the Orthodox Presbyterian Church v. Witman, 520 U.S. 1155 (1997) (when intervening events remove even possibility of harm, court may not decide now speculative controversy).

(n42)Footnote 3. Arizonans for Official English v. Arizona, 520 U.S. 43, 68-71, 117 S. Ct. 1055, 137 L. Ed. 2d 170 (1997) .

(n43)Footnote 4. Burlington N. R. Co. v. Crow Tribal Council, 940 F.2d 1239, 1243-1244 (9th Cir. 1991) (case becomes moot when court cannot grant effective relief).

(n44)Footnote 5. Headwaters, Inc. v. Bureau of Land Management, 893 F.2d 1012, 1015-1016 (9th Cir. 1989) .

(n45)Footnote 6. *Russell v. INS, 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 52, at 7 (N.D. Ill. Jan 3, 2001) .

(n46)Footnote 7. Chevron U.S.A., Inc. v. Traillour Oil Co., 987 F.2d 1138, 1153 (5th Cir. 1993) .

(n47)Footnote 8. United States Fire Ins. Co. v. Caulkins Indiantown Citrus Co., 931 F.2d 744, 748 (11th Cir. 1991) (mootness of one issue does not moot case when actual controversy exists as to number of other issues).

(N48)Footnote 1. See De La Rosa v. United States, 113 F. Supp. 2d 228, 237-239 (D.P.R. 2000) (court determined that plaintiff's complaint was justiciable and not subject to the political question doctrine, and entered declaratory judgment finding that plaintiffs had right to vote in presidential elections).

(n49)Footnote 2. See Larsen v. Senate of Commonwealth, 152 F.3d 240, 246-248 (3d Cir. 1998) , cert. denied sub nom. larsen v. Afflerbach, 525U.S. 1145 (1999) (political question doctrine did not bar former state justice's federal civil rights claim against state senators asserting constitutional violations arising from impeachment and removal of justice and seeking declaratory relief).

(n50)Footnote 3. Baker v. Carr, 369 U.S. 186, 217, 82 S. Ct. 691, 7 L. Ed. 2d 663 (1962) .

(n51)Footnote 4. 767 Third Ave. Assocs. v. Consulate Gen. of Yugo., 218 F.3d 152, 163-164 (2d Cir. 2000) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n52)Footnote 5. 767 Third Ave. Assocs. v. Consulate Gen. of Yugo., 218 F.3d 152, 163-164 (2d Cir. 2000) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n53)Footnote 1. Starter Corp. v. Converse, Inc., 84 F.3d 592, 597 (2d Cir. 1996) ; Windsurfing Int'l, Inc. v. AMF, Inc., 828 F.2d 755, 757-758 (Fed. Cir. 1987) .

(n54)Footnote 2. Northeastern Fla. Chapter, Ass'n Gen'l Contractors v. City of Jacksonville, 508 U.S. 656, 113 S. Ct. 2297, 124 L. Ed. 2d 586 (1993) (when threat for further trademark infringement action is withdrawn, either voluntarily or based on court decision, case in controversy persists; because threatening practices could simply be resumed at later date, cessation is viewed as temporary, and suffices to establish justiciability).

(n55)Footnote 3. Starter Corp. v. Converse, Inc., 84 F.3d 592, 597 (2d Cir. 1996) .

(n56)Footnote 4. Starter Corp. v. Converse, Inc., 84 F.3d 592, 597 (2d Cir. 1996) (citing Moore's, borrowing imminent intention and ability test derived from patent law); see Golden Gulf Corp. v. Jordache Enters., 896 F. Supp. 337, 340 (S.D.N.Y. 1995)

(n57)Footnote 5. Starter Corp. v. Converse, Inc., 84 F.3d 592, 597 (2d Cir. 1996) (citing Moore's, borrowing imminent intention and ability test derived from patent law); see Wembley, Inc. v. Superba Cravats, Inc., 315 F.2d 87, 90 (2d Cir. 1963) (imminent intention and ability test in patent cases).

(n58)Footnote 6. Starter Corp. v. Converse, Inc., 84 F.3d 592, 597 (2d Cir. 1996) (meaningful preparation required).

(n59)Footnote 7. Starter Corp. v. Converse, Inc., 84 F.3d 592, 597 (2d Cir. 1996) .

(n60)Footnote 8. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Haworth, 300 U.S. 227, 239-241, 57 S. Ct. 461, 81 L. Ed. 617 (1937) (meaningful and active preparation decided on case-by-case basis).

(n61)Footnote 9. Arrowhead Indus. Water, Inc. v. Ecolochem, Inc., 846 F.2d 731, 736 (Fed. Cir. 1988) ; *Dataline, Inc. v. MCI Worldcom Network Servs., 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 950, at 7-8 (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 6, 2001) (if either of these two requirements is not met, dismissal for lack of subject matter jurisdiction is required); see BP Chems. Ltd. v. Union Carbide Corp., 4 F.3d 975, 978 (Fed. Cir. 1993) (two-prong test for measuring case or controversy determines whether need for adjudication is real and immediate).

(n62)Footnote 10. Cardinal Chem. Co. v. Morton Int'l, Inc., 508 U.S. 83, 96-97, 113 S. Ct. 1967, 124 L. Ed. 2d 1 (1993) .

(n63)Footnote 11. *Dataline, Inc. v. MCI Worldcom Network Servs., Inc., 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 950, at 10 (S.D.N.Y. 20001)

(n64)Footnote 12. Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. v. Releasomers, Inc., 824 F.2d 953, 955 (Fed. Cir. 1987) .

(n65)Footnote 13. Dataline, Inc. v. MCI Worldcom Network Services, Inc., 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 950 (S.D.N.Y. 20001) .

(n66)Footnote 14. See [ii], above.

(n67)Footnote 15. Hal Roach Studios, Inc. v. Richard Feiner & Co., 896 F.2d 1542, 1555-1556 (9th Cir. 1989) .

(n68)Footnote 16. Hal Roach Studios, Inc. v. Richard Feiner & Co., 896 F.2d 1542, 1555-1556 (9th Cir. 1989) .

(n69)Footnote 17. International Harvester Co. v. Deere & Co., 623 F.2d 1207, 1210-1211 (7th Cir. 1980) .

(n70)Footnote 18. Hal Roach Studios, Inc. v. Richard Feiner & Co., 896 F.2d 1542, 1556 n.22 (9th Cir. 1989) .

(n71)Footnote 19. International Harvester Co. v. Deere & Co., 623 F.2d 1207, 1210-1211 (7th Cir. 1980) .

(n72)Footnote 20. Minnesota Citizens Concerned for Life v. Federal Election Comm'n, 113 F.3d 129, 132 (8th Cir. 1997) (pre-enforcement declaration could be granted when statute imposes costly, self-executing compliance burdens, or when statute chills protected First Amendment activity); J.N.S., Inc. v. Indiana, 712 F.2d 303, 304-306 (7th Cir. 1983) (suit seeking to declare state anti-racketeering statute unconstitutional failed because plaintiff was not threatened with prosecution; and abstract challenge to constitutionality is not actual controversy).

(n73)Footnote 21. Steffel v. Thompson, 415 U.S. 452, 459, 94 S. Ct. 1209, 39 L. Ed. 2d 505 (1974) .

(n74)Footnote 22. Del Percio v. Thornsley, 877 F.2d 785, 786-787 (9th Cir. 1989) .

(n75)Footnote 23. City of Los Angeles v. Lyons, 461 U.S. 95, 101-103, 103 S. Ct. 1660, 75 L. Ed. 2d 675 (1983) .

(n76)Footnote 24. Pic-A-State Pa., Inc. v. Reno, 76 F.3d 1294, 1299 (3d Cir. 1996) , cert. denied, 517 U.S. 1246 (1996) .

(n77)Footnote 25. Holstein v. City of Chicago, 803 F. Supp. 205, 208 (N.D. Ill. 1992) , aff'd, 29 F.3d 1145 (7th Cir. 1994) (no remaining case or controversy after city dismissed charges and attempted to refund towing fees to plaintiff); Nelsen v. King County, 895 F.2d 1248, 1250 (9th Cir. 1990) (past harm is insufficient; plaintiff must show significantly real possibility of future harm for declaratory relief).

(n78)Footnote 26. Chicago v. Fieldcrest Dairies, Inc., 316 U.S. 168, 171-173, 62 S. Ct. 986, 86 L. Ed. 1355 (1942) .

(n79)Footnote 27. Cf. Wilton v. Seven Falls Co., 515 U.S. 277, 282-283, 115 S. Ct. 2137, 132 L. Ed. 2d 214 (1995) .

(n80)Footnote 28. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Rhode Island Pub. Transit Auth., 233 F.3d 127, 129-130 (1st Cir. 2000) .

(n81)Footnote 29. American States Ins. Co. v. Bailey, 133 F.3d 363, 368 (5th Cir. 1998) (requisite actual controversy may exist when insurer seeks declaratory judgment that it has neither duty to defend nor duty to indemnify insured).

(n82)Footnote 30. Kunkel v. Continental Cas. Co., 866 F.2d 1269, 1273-1275 (10th Cir. 1989) .

(n83)Footnote 31. Atlanta Gas Light Co. v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 68 F.3d 409, 414-415 (11th Cir. 1995) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT
PART II. AVAILABILITY OF DECLARATORY RELIEF

3-25A Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25A.23

§ 25A.23 Exhaustion of Administrative Remediesn*

[1] Exhaustion Required When Intended by Congress

A court may generally order declaratory relief only if the party requesting declaratory relief has exhausted all available administrative remedies. n1 Furthermore, when an administrative agency has the authority to determine a matter, the propriety of that determination is not subject to judicial review until the administrative process has been completed. n2 When Congress has explicitly required that particular administrative procedures must be used in resolving a dispute, the exhaustion requirement is absolute. n3 However, when Congress has not clearly required exhaustion, a court has discretion to decide whether exhaustion will be required. The court may excuse a failure to exhaust administrative remedies if the (1) the claim is collateral to a demand for benefits, (2) exhaustion would be futile, or (3) requiring exhaustion would result in irreparable harm. n4 There are two primary purposes for the exhaustion of remedies requirement. First, exhaustion protects administrative agency authority by giving an agency an opportunity to correct its own mistakes with respect to the programs it administers before it is brought into federal court and by discouraging disregard of the agency's procedures. Second, exhaustion promotes efficiency, because claims generally can be resolved much more quickly and economically in proceedings before an agency than in litigation in federal court. n5

[2] Exhaustion Not Required When Administrative Remedy Is Alternative

Rule 57 specifically provides that declaratory relief does not require a lack of availability of other adequate relief. n1 Therefore, when Congress or a state legislature provides a secondary or alternative remedy, but has not mandated administrative review, a plaintiff has the option to pursue whatever remedy, including a declaratory relief action, that the plaintiff considers appropriate. n2 On the other hand, if Congress has explicitly required by statute the exhaustion of administrative remedies, the propriety of an administrative decision is not subject to judicial review until the administrative process has been completed. n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJusticiabilityExhaustion of RemediesAdministrative RemediesCivil ProcedureJusticiabilityExhaustion of RemediesContractual RemediesCivil ProcedureJusticiabilityExhaustion of RemediesExceptionsCivil

ProcedureJusticiabilityExhaustion of RemediesFailure to ExhaustCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote *. For further discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 57.23 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. *United States ex rel. St. Regis Mohawk Tribe v. President R.C.-St. Regis Management Co., 2006 U.S. App. LEXIS 13781, 13 (2d Cir. 2005) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Holasek v. United States Dep't of Justice, 123 F. Supp.2d 1126, 1129 (N.D. Ill. 2000) (as jurisdiction matter, district court may not review administrative decisions of Immigration and Naturalization Service unless appellant has exhausted all administrative remedies available).

(n4)Footnote 3. *Woodford v. Ngo, 548 U.S. 81, 126 S. Ct. 2378, 165 L. Ed. 2d 368, 2006 U.S. LEXIS 4891, at *13-15 (2006) .

(n5)Footnote 4. *United States ex rel. St. Regis Mohawk Tribe v. President R.C.-St. Regis Management Co., 2006 U.S. App. LEXIS 13781, 14 (2d Cir. 2005) .

(n6)Footnote 5. *Woodford v. Ngo, 548 U.S. 81, 126 S. Ct. 2378, 165 L. Ed. 2d 368, 2006 U.S. LEXIS 4891, at *13-15 (2006) .

(n7)Footnote 1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 57.

(n8)Footnote 2. Coteau Props. Co. v. Department of Interior, 53 F.3d 1466, 1471-1472 (8th Cir. 1995) (owner of coal field not required to pursue administrative remedies before seeking judicial review when governing statute did not require administrative review).

(n9)Footnote 3. *Woodford v. Ngo, 548 U.S. 81, 126 S. Ct. 2378, 165 L. Ed. 2d 368, 2006 U.S. LEXIS 4891, at *13-15 (2006) ; see Abbott Labs. v. Gardner, 387 U.S. 136, 140, 87 S. Ct. 1507, 18 L. Ed. 2d 681 (1967) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT
PART II. AVAILABILITY OF DECLARATORY RELIEF

3-25A Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25A.24

§ 25A.24 Declaratory Relief Not Available in Certain Casesn*

[1] Tax Cases

[a] Federal Taxation

The Declaratory Judgment Act specifically provides that declaratory relief is not available in federal taxation proceedings. In particular, declaratory relief is precluded from actions relating to federal taxes other than declaratory judgment actions relating to the status and classification of charitable organizations. n1 Declaratory judgment actions relating to the status and classification of charitable organizations may only be heard by the Court of Federal Claims. n2 The purpose of the exclusion of federal tax cases from the Declaratory Judgment Act is to protect the government's ability to assess and collect taxes free from pre-enforcement judicial interference. Therefore, controversies regarding the propriety or validity of a tax assessment or a collection dispute must be tested in a suit for a tax refund, rather than through judicial intervention under the Declaratory Judgment Act. n3

There are two significant exceptions to the exclusion: a person may obtain a judicial declaration regarding the propriety or validity of a tax assessment or collection either when the government cannot prevail on the merits under any circumstances or when an aggrieved party has no other means of obtaining judicial review, and the taxpayer will suffer irreparable injury without court intervention. n4

[b] State Taxation

The Declaratory Judgment Act does not expressly exclude declaratory judgments regarding state taxes. n5 However, such suits may not be heard by United States courts under the Tax Anti-Injunction Act, provided that state law provides for a plain, speedy, and efficient remedy in the courts of that state. n6 Furthermore. the Supreme Court has held that the Tax Anti-Injunction Act, which precludes enjoining, suspending, or restraining state tax collection, also prohibits declaratory judgment actions in connection with state law tax issues. n7 The Court stated that because Congress intended the Tax Injunction Act to prevent federal court interference with the assessment and collection of state taxes, the Act prohibits declaratory as well as injunctive relief. Consequently federal courts are without jurisdiction to declare state tax provisions unconstitutional or to issue injunctions against state authorities if the contestant has a plain, speedy, and efficient remedy in the state courts. n8 On the other hand, when the state remedies are not plain, speedy, and efficient, the court may exercise its jurisdiction and grant appropriate declaratory relief. However, even when the Tax Anti-Injunction Act does not bar federal interference, the policies underlying the Act, such as principles of federal equity, should nonetheless be examined and may require withholding declaratory relief. n9

The Tax Anti-Injunction Act does not prevent a federal district court from adjudicating a suit that is brought by the United States to contest the legality of a state tax. n10 Nor does it prohibit a declaratory suit that is brought by a state or local taxing authority to collect tax, because a suit to collect tax is not one brought to restrain state action; therefore, it is not within the Act's description of suits that are barred from adjudication by federal courts. n11

[2] Other Cases

In addition to most tax cases, n1 declaratory relief is also not available in the following cases:

1. Bankruptcy cases. The Declaratory Judgment Act prohibits federal courts from granting declaratory relief with respect to bankruptcy proceedings other than proceedings to determine the tax liability of a bankrupt debtor. n2

2. Drug patent cases. The Act provides restrictions on the use of declaratory judgment action brought with respect to drug patents. n3

3. Certain cases regarding free trade countries. The Declaratory Judgment Act prohibits federal courts from holding proceedings for declaratory relief with respect to any civil action involving an antidumping or countervailing duty proceeding regarding a class or kind of merchandise of a free trade area country, such as, Mexico or Canada. n4

4. State criminal cases. When a district court is precluded from issuing an injunction against a pending state court criminal proceeding, the court is also precluded from issuing declaratory relief stating that the state law on which the prosecution is based is unconstitutional, or is being applied in an unconstitutional manner. n5 A district court may not enjoin any pending state criminal proceeding if the party seeking the injunction has an adequate legal remedy and will not suffer irreparable injury. n6 Such a rule applies to declaratory relief as well as injunctive relief because a declaratory judgment would result in the same negative interference with and disruption of state proceedings as an injunction. n7

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For further discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 57.25 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a); see 26 U.S.C. § 7428; see also Commercial Nat'l Bank v. Demos, 18 F.3d 485, 490 (7th Cir. 1994) (no declaration of rights available regarding federal tax issues).

(n3)Footnote 2. 28 U.S.C. § 1507; see 26 U.S.C. § 7428.

(n4)Footnote 3. California by Deukmejian v. Regan, 641 F.2d 721, 722-723 (9th Cir. 1981) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Bob Jones Univ. v. Simon, 416 U.S. 725, 737, 94 S. Ct. 2038, 40 L. Ed. 2d 496 (1974) ; California by Deukmejian v. Regan, 641 F.2d 721, 723 (9th Cir. 1981) .

(n6)Footnote 5. See 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a).

(n7)Footnote 6. See 28 U.S.C. § 1341.

(n8)Footnote 7. California v. Grace Brethren Church, 457 U.S. 393, 408, 102 S. Ct. 2498, 73 L. Ed. 2d 93 (1982) .

(n9)Footnote 8. California v. Grace Brethren Church, 457 U.S. 393, 408, 411-414, 102 S. Ct. 2498, 73 L. Ed. 2d 93 (1982) .

(n10)Footnote 9. Alcan Aluminum Ltd. v. Department of Revenue, 724 F.2d 1294, 1297-1298 (7th Cir. 1984) .

(n11)Footnote 10. Federal Reserve Bank v. Commissioner of Corps. & Taxation, 499 F.2d 60, 62-64 (1st Cir. 1974) (Federal Reserve Bank could, in its own name, maintain declaratory judgment suit as to legality of state sales tax on materials used to construct bank building).

(n12)Footnote 11. Jefferson County v. Acker, 527 U.S. 423, 433-435, 119 S. Ct. 2069, 144 L. Ed. 2d 408 (1999) .

(n13)Footnote 1. See [1], above.

(n14)Footnote 2. 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a); see 11 U.S.C. §§ 505, 1146.

(n15)Footnote 3. 28 U.S.C. § 2201(b); see 11 U.S.C. §§ 355, 360b.

(n16)Footnote 4. 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a); see 19 U.S.C. §§ 2112, 3451.

(n17)Footnote 5. Bettencourt v. Board of Registration in Med., 904 F.2d 772, 777 (1st Cir. 1990) .

(n18)Footnote 6. Younger v. Harris, 401 U.S. 37, 41-44, 46, 91 S. Ct. 746, 27 L. Ed. 2d 669 (1971) .

(n19)Footnote 7. Hoover v. Wagner, 47 F.3d 845, 848-851 (7th Cir. 1995) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT
PART II. AVAILABILITY OF DECLARATORY RELIEF

3-25A Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25A.25

§ 25A.25 Court's Discretion to Exercise Declaratory Relief Jurisdictionn*

[1] Entry of Declaratory Judgment Is Discretionary

Even if a district court has made a determination that it has subject matter jurisdiction, that a party has presented a justiciable actual controversy, and that declaratory relief is otherwise available, n1 the court must then determine whether to exercise its discretion to render a declaratory judgment. Because the Declaratory Judgment Act provides that a court may declare the rights and other legal relations of any interested party, n2 the court is not required to do so, and this statutory language confers on the federal district courts unique and substantial discretion in deciding whether to grant a declaratory judgment. n3 However, this discretion should be exercised with great circumspection when matters of public concern are involved n4 n5 or when a request for declaratory relief threatens to involve a federal court prematurely in constitutional issues fraught with uncertainty. n6 In this regard, the Supreme Court has categorized the Declaratory Judgment Act as an enabling act that grants discretion to the district courts to entertain declaratory relief actions, rather than an absolute right to the litigant. n7

This discretion is not unfettered, however, and a court may not decline to exercise its declaratory relief jurisdiction based on a whim or personal reservation. n8 If a party raises a timely objection, the court must articulate a valid reason for declining to exercise its discretion to enable appellate review. n9 If the record does not state the district court's reasoning after an appropriate objection has been registered, the case must be remanded to the district court to record its reasoning in a manner sufficient to permit the appellate court to properly apply the abuse of discretion standard of review. n10

All of the circuits have developed lists of the factors a district court should consider in determining whether to exercise jurisdiction over a declaratory relief action, based on the practical effect of granting declaratory relief. The five most common factors are: (1) whether the judgment would settle the controversy; (2) whether the judgment would serve a useful purpose in clarifying the legal relations at issue; (3) whether the declaratory remedy is being used merely for the purpose of procedural fencing or to provide an arena for a race for res judicata; (4) whether the use of a declaratory action would increase the friction between federal and state courts and improperly encroach on state jurisdiction; and (5) whether there is an alternative remedy that is better or more effective. n11

For a complete discussion of the factors that a court should consider in the determination of whether to grant discretionary relief, see [2], below.

[2] Factors Considered in Exercise of Discretion

[a] Availability of Adequate Alternative Remedy

The availability of another adequate remedy does not in itself preclude declaratory relief. n1 However, the existence of another equally effective remedy at law may be considered as one factor in determining whether the court should exercise its declaratory relief jurisdiction. n1.1 Thus, the court should consider the availability of an alternative remedy as one of many potential factors in deciding whether declaratory relief affords a more effective means of resolving the dispute than other means. n2

In this regard, the court may dismiss a declaratory action if there is a pending state action in which all of the matters in controversy may be fully litigated. When a federal court is presented with an actual or potential state court action, the federal court should examine whether the entire controversy may be heard in that alternative forum. n3 For example, it was held that the district court properly dismissed a federal declaratory relief suit when the defendants in the declaratory relief action filed a subsequent state court action against the declaratory relief plaintiff-insurer and a construction company because the state court was the only forum in which the entire controversy could be resolved. In that case, the tort claim against the construction company was not removable and separate actions would be duplicative. n4

[b] Avoiding Forum Shopping and Procedural Fencing

The court should use its discretion to prevent a litigant from utilizing the Declaratory Judgment Act as a tool for forum shopping or for other procedural fencing. For example, the court should not allow a declaratory relief plaintiff to rush to file in federal court solely to evade the forum choice of the plaintiff in an underlying coercive claim or claim for damages (the declaratory judgment defendant). n4.1 When a case has limited connection to the declaratory relief forum, the court should not exercise its discretion to grant a declaratory judgment if the suit was merely filed as a preemptive measure. n5 If a court finds that a declaratory judgment action was brought in anticipation of a coercive suit for the mere purpose of gaining a territorial advantage, the court may consider it as a factor in declining declaratory jurisdiction. n6 If it is apparent from the pleadings that the plaintiff did not file the action in order to resolve uncertainty arising from threat of litigation, but rather it was engaged in forum shopping to gain a tactical territorial advantage and counteract defendant's future effort to choose a forum, the court may use this as a factor in favor of declining jurisdiction. n7

[c] Useful Purpose

A declaratory judgment is favored by the courts when the judgment will serve a useful purpose in clarifying the legal relations in issue and affording relief from the uncertainty, insecurity, and controversy giving rise to the proceeding. On the other hand, a declaratory judgment is not favored if it will try particular issues without settling the entire controversy or interfere with an action which has already been instituted. n8 Furthermore, if the declarative relief sought will not accomplish any useful purpose, the court may exercise its discretion and decline to grant relief. n9 However, it should be noted that the existence of another equally effective remedy is not alone a ground for denying declaratory relief. n10

[d] Efficient Judicial Administration

The Supreme Court has stated that because of the unique nature of declaratory relief actions the general principle that federal courts should adjudicate claims within their jurisdiction yields to considerations of practicality and wise judicial administration. Consequently, federal courts need not find extraordinary circumstances to abstain from rendering declaratory judgments. n11 One of the primary aspects of efficient use of judicial resources is the avoidance of duplicative or piecemeal litigation. n12 Thus, it is uneconomical as well as inefficient for a federal court to proceed in a declaratory judgment suit when another suit is pending in a state court presenting the same issues, not governed by federal law, between the same parties. The court should avoid any such gratuitous interference with the orderly and comprehensive disposition of state court litigation. n13 A federal court should also decline to render a declaratory judgment based on an uncertain interpretation of the law, for example, if a diversity declaratory relief action would require the federal court to interpret state law and that law is unclear. n14

[e] Effect of Other Pending Action

The pendency of another federal or state action involving the same parties and issues is an important factor to be considered by the trial court in the exercise of its discretion in determining whether to grant or deny declaratory relief. The discretion to decline to hear a declaratory judgment action permits the court to stay, dismiss, or remand the action in favor of pending state court proceedings involving the same parties and issues. n15 However, the mere pendency of another action involving the same set of facts does not in and of itself preclude the exercise of declaratory jurisdiction. n16 In general, when an action is brought in one federal court and a later action is brought in another federal court or a state court, and both actions embrace the same issues, the first court has jurisdiction to proceed and enjoin the second prosecution, n17 in the absence of a balance of conveniences weighing in favor of the second suit or the existence of other special circumstances. n18

If a declaratory relief action is filed in federal court after a coercive action has been filed in state court, the federal court has discretion to refuse to exercise its declaratory judgment jurisdiction in favor of the pending state action. This principle is commonly referred to as the "first filed" or "first to file" rule. Under the first-filed rule, in cases of federal concurrent jurisdiction and absent exceptional circumstances, the court which first has possession of the subject matter must decide it. The rule allows a district court to transfer, stay or dismiss an action when a similar complaint has already been filed in another federal court.

In deciding whether to apply the rule, courts look to three threshold factors: the chronology of the two actions, the similarity of the parties, and the similarity of the issues. n19 The federal court should generally exercise its discretion by refusing to entertain a declaratory relief suit when a state court action is pending between the same parties that involves the same issues, n20 because the principle goal of the first-filed rule is to avoid duplicative litigation. n21 The court should depart from the first-filed rule only after careful consideration of the particular circumstances of a given case taken as a whole. n22 The court should consider whether special circumstances or a balance of the conveniences justifies proceeding with the declaratory relief action (the second filed action). n23 The party seeking to proceed with the declaratory relief action (the second filed action) has the burden of showing special circumstances or a balance of the conveniences that justifies proceeding with that second action. n24

[f] Promoting Settlement of Controversy

Declaratory relief is appropriate when a declaratory judgment will serve a useful purpose in clarifying and settling the legal relations in issue, and the court should consider that factor in the exercise of its discretion. On the other hand, if declarative relief sought would not settle the controversy giving rise to the proceeding, the court may exercise its discretion and decline to grant relief. n25 Federal courts have a strong interest in promoting the amicable settlement of disputes. To penalize a litigant who has actively pursued settlement prior to filing by allowing the opposition to characterize the time utilized attempting a settlement as unreasonable delay would undermine the policy of promoting good faith settlement efforts. n26

[g] Avoiding of Court Conflicts

One of the purposes of the discretionary nature of the Declaratory Judgment Act is the promotion of harmonious federal-state relations in the administration of justice. n27 Thus, another factor the court may consider in the exercise of its discretion is whether allowing the federal declaratory relief action to proceed when a state proceeding has or will soon be filed may injure federal-state relationships. In exercising discretion, district courts evaluate whether principles of federalism, comity, judicial efficiency, and avoidance of federal-state conflicts support federal jurisdiction. n28 In this regard, the Eleventh Amendment, as well as the public policies concerning federal-state relations, prevents a federal court from granting "notice relief" or a declaratory judgment against a state, in the absence of an ongoing violation of federal law. n29 Even if the exercise of federal jurisdiction does not violate the literal terms of the Constitution or of a federal statute, public policy concerns dictate that any actions which decrease the harmony existing between state and federal governments should be avoided. n30 In other words, federal courts should avoid gratuitous interference with the orderly and comprehensive disposition of state court litigation. n31

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsDiscretion

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For further discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 57.40 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. See §§ 25A.20-25A.24.

(n3)Footnote 2. 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a).

(n4)Footnote 3. MedImmune, Inc. v. Genentech, Inc., 549 U.S. 118, 127 S. Ct. 764, 166 L. Ed. 2d 604, 620 (2007) (district courts have been given considerable discretion to decide whether to grant declaratory relief because facts bearing on usefulness of declaratory judgment remedy, and fitness of case for resolution, are peculiarly within their grasp); see Wilton v. Seven Falls Co., 515 U.S. 277, 282-283, 286-287, 115 S. Ct. 2137, 132 L. Ed. 2d 214 (1995) (because of unique nature of Declaratory Judgment Act, district courts have greater discretion in declaratory judgment actions; courts may decline to adjudicate otherwise justiciable declaratory relief cases).

(n5)Footnote 4. [Reserved]

(n6)Footnote 5. Terra Nova Ins. Co. v. 900 Bar, Inc., 887 F.2d 1213, 1225-1226 (3d Cir. 1989) .

(n7)Footnote 6. Ernst & Young v. Depositors Econ. Prot. Corp., 45 F.3d 530, 535 (1st Cir. 1995) .

(n8)Footnote 7. Wilton v. Seven Falls Co., 515 U.S. 277, 287, 115 S. Ct. 2137, 132 L. Ed. 2d 214 (1995) .

(n9)Footnote 8. Government Employees Ins. Co. v. Dizol, 133 F.3d 1220, 1223 (9th Cir. 1998) .

(n10)Footnote 9. Rowan Cos. v. Griffin, 876 F.2d 26, 28-30 (5th Cir. 1989) .

(n11)Footnote 10. Government Employees Ins. Co. v. Dizol, 133 F.3d 1220, 1225-1227 (9th Cir. 1998) (after proper objection to court's refusal to exercise declaratory jurisdiction, district court must provide adequate record for review of decision).

(n12)Footnote 11. See, e.g., N.Y. Times Co. v. Gonzales, 459 F.3d 160, 167 (2d Cir. 2006) ; Bell Helicopter Textron, Inc. v. Heliqwest Int'l, Ltd., 385 F.3d 1291, 1299 (10th Cir. 2004) .

(n13)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 57.

(n14)Footnote 1.1. *Sigmon v. Appalachian Coal Props., LLC, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 5529, at 7 (E.D. Tenn. 2007) .

(n15)Footnote 2. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Runyon, 53 F.3d 1167, 1169 (10th Cir. 1995) .

(n16)Footnote 3. Psarianos v. Standard Marine, Inc., 12 F.3d 461, 463 (5th Cir. 1994) , cert. denied sub nom. Psarianos v. United Kingdom Mut. Steamship Assurance Ass'n (Berm), 511 U.S. 1142 (1994) .

(n17)Footnote 4. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Kirby, 919 F. Supp. 939, 943-946 (N.D. W. Va. 1996) .

(n18)Footnote 4.1. Ill. Cent. R.R. Co. v. Cain, 434 F. Supp. 2d 415, 421-422 (S.D. Miss. 2006) ("forum shopping" factor weighed in favor of dismissal when plaintiff was motivated to file declaratory relief suit merely by desire to secure federal forum).

(n19)Footnote 5. Federal Ins. Co. v. May Dep't Stores Co., 808 F. Supp. 347, 349-351 (S.D.N.Y. 1992) (when declaratory relief suit was filed in response to notice of a planned lawsuit by plaintiff's opposition, federal action properly dismissed as forum shopping even before filing of state suit).

(n20)Footnote 6. Federal Ins. Co. v. May Dep't Stores Co., 808 F. Supp. 347, 350 (S.D.N.Y. 1992) .

(n21)Footnote 7. Clontech Labs., Inc. v. Life Techs., Inc., 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 19320, at *10-12 (D. Md. Dec. 19, 2000) .

(n22)Footnote 8. Hartford Cas. Ins. Co. v. BB & T Fin. Corp., 131 F. Supp.2d 752, 754 (W.D.N.C. 2001) .

(n23)Footnote 9. Bank of Am. NT & SA v. Riley, 940 F. Supp. 348, 351 n.5 (D.D.C. 1996) , aff'd without op., 132 F.3d 1480 (D.C. Cir. 1997) (discretionary nature of declaratory relief makes it appropriate to consider whether relief would serve useful purpose).

(n24)Footnote 10. Fed. R. Civ. P. 57, Advisory Committee Note.

(n25)Footnote 11. Wilton v. Seven Falls Co., 515 U.S. 277, 288-289, 115 S. Ct. 2137, 132 L. Ed. 2d 214 (1995) ; see also Centennial Life Ins. Co. v. Poston, 88 F.3d 255, 257 (4th Cir. 1996) (considerations of practical and wise judicial administration).

(n26)Footnote 12. Nationwide Ins. v. Zavalis, 52 F.3d 689, 691-693 (7th Cir. 1995) .

(n27)Footnote 13. State Auto Ins. Cos., v. Summy, 234 F.3d 131, 134-135 (3d Cir. 2000) (appellate court held that discretionary declaratory jurisdiction under Declaratory Judgment Act was improperly assumed because judicial efficiency was not promoted by consideration of same evidence by state and federal courts, especially because interpretation of exclusion clauses in insurance policies was unsettled under state law; furthermore, no federal issues were raised and no federal interests were promoted); see Societe de Conditionnement en Aluminium v. Hunter Eng'g Co., 655 F.2d 938, 943 (9th Cir. 1981) (declaratory judgment in patent case could avoid multiple suits and considerable delay and uncertainty that could result from multiple proceedings deciding different aspects of broad patent controversy); Government Employees Ins. Co. v. Dizol, 133 F.3d 1220, 1224-1225 (9th Cir. 1998) (noting that district court may decline to hear declaratory relief action when it would result in duplicative litigation).

(n28)Footnote 14. Mitcheson v. Harris, 955 F.2d 235, 237-239 (4th Cir. 1992) ; see United States Liab. Ins. Co. v. Wise, 887 F. Supp. 348, 352 (D. Mass. 1995) (court sua sponte declined to render declaratory judgment on insurance coverage partly because all issues were governed by unsettled and complex state law).

(n29)Footnote 15. Wilton v. Seven Falls Co., 515 U.S. 277, 288, 115 S. Ct. 2137, 132 L. Ed. 2d 214 (1995) .

(n30)Footnote 16. Allstate Ins. v. Shelton, 105 F.3d 514, 515 (9th Cir. 1997) .

(n31)Footnote 17. Sandefer Oil & Gas, Inc. v. Duhon, 871 F.2d 526, 529 (5th Cir. 1989) .

(n32)Footnote 18. Diamond State Ins. Co. v. Fame Operating Co., 917 F. Supp. 736, 738 (D. Nev. 1996) (court properly declined to exercise declaratory relief jurisdiction when insureds' personal injury suits in state court were parallel to insurer's declaratory relief suit, issues overlapped, federal record lacked sufficient facts on which to base judgment, and insurer could have sought declaratory relief in state court).

(n33)Footnote 19. *Butera, Beausang, Cohen & Brennan, P.C. v. Ryan, 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 17878, at 6 (E.D. Pa. Dec. 11, 2000) .

(n34)Footnote 20. Centennial Life Ins. Co. v. Poston, 88 F.3d 255, 258 (4th Cir. 1996) .

(n35)Footnote 21. Colorado River Water Conservation Dist. v. United States, 424 U.S. 800, 817, 96 S. Ct. 1236, 47 L. Ed. 2d 483 (1976) .

(n36)Footnote 22. Federal Ins. Co. v. May Dep't Stores Co., 808 F. Supp. 347, 350 (S.D.N.Y. 1992) .

(n37)Footnote 23. Reliance Ins. Co. v. Bend'N Stretch, Inc., 935 F. Supp. 476, 477 (S.D.N.Y. 1996) .

(n38)Footnote 24. First City Nat'l Bank & Trust Co. v. Simmons, 878 F.2d 76, 79 (2d Cir. 1989) .

(n39)Footnote 25. Rhode Island v. Narragansett Indian Tribe, 19 F.3d 685, 693 (1st Cir. 1994) , cert. denied, 513 U.S. 919 (1994) (court must consider extent to which requested declaration would be of practical guidance in settling underlying controversy).

(n40)Footnote 26. Capitol Records, Inc. v. Optical Recording Corp., 810 F. Supp. 1350, 1354-1355 (S.D.N.Y. 1992) .

(n41)Footnote 27. NAP, Inc v. Shuttletex, Inc., 112 F. Supp.2d 369, 372 (S.D.N.Y. 2000) .

(n42)Footnote 28. United States Liab. Ins. Co. v. Wise, 887 F. Supp. 348, 352 (D. Mass. 1995) (court declined jurisdiction to avoid unnecessary and otherwise inevitable federal-state entanglement caused by overlapping issues of law and fact).

(n43)Footnote 29. Powder River Basin Res. Council v. Babbitt, 54 F.3d 1477, 1483 (10th Cir. 1995) .

(n44)Footnote 30. Mitcheson v. Harris, 955 F.2d 235, 238 (4th Cir. 1992) .

(n45)Footnote 31. Brillhart v. Excess Ins. Co., 316 U.S. 491, 495, 62 S. Ct. 1173, 86 L. Ed. 1620 (1942) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT
PART II. AVAILABILITY OF DECLARATORY RELIEF

3-25A Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 25A.26through 25A.39

[Reserved]

§§ 25A.26[Reserved]

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT
PART III. PROCEDURES TO OBTAIN DECLARATORY RELIEF

3-25A Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25A.40

§ 25A.40 Initiation of Request for Declaratory Reliefn*

An action for a declaratory judgment is treated as a civil action subject to the provisions of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure n1 Thus, a request for declaratory relief may be commenced by filing a complaint pursuant to Rule 3. n2 However, when an action for damages or injunctive relief has already been initiated, a appropriate claim for declaratory relief may be made by a proper pleading, such as, a counterclaim, by joinder of parties, or by amendment to an original pleading. n3 When raised by counterclaim or cross-claim, an action for declaratory relief must satisfy Rule 13, in addition to the jurisdictional requirements applicable to declaratory judgments. n4 When a declaratory action is initiated by complaint, a summons in proper form must be served under the process requirements specified in Rule 4. n5

When a party makes a request for damages or injunctive relief, and the court decides not to grant either form of relief, the court may sua sponte make a declaration of rights if that relief serves a useful purpose, even if no party has formally requested declaratory relief. n6

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For further discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 57.60 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 57.

(n3)Footnote 2. Evanston Ins. Co. v. Merin, 598 F. Supp. 1290, 1300-1301 (D.N.J. 1984) (in declaratory judgment action, federal claim must appear on face of well-pleaded complaint); Barmat, Inc. v. United States, 159 F.R.D. 578, 582 (N.D. Ga. 1994) (party must request declaratory judgment by filing complaint or petition); see 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a); Fed. R. Civ. P. 3.

(n4)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 13; see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 15.

(n5)Footnote 4. Super Sack Mfg. Corp. v. Chase Packaging Corp., 57 F.3d 1054, 1058-1060 (Fed. Cir. 1995) , cert. denied, 516 U.S. 1093 (1996) (declaratory judgment counterclaim).

(n6)Footnote 5. See Putnam v. Ickes, 78 F.2d 223, 224 (D.C. Cir. 1935) , cert. denied, 296 U.S. 612 (1935) (declaratory action dismissed with respect to nonresident defendants because service improper).

(n7)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 57, Advisory Committee Note; see Fordyce v. City of Seattle, 55 F.3d 436, 442 (9th Cir. 1995) (declaratory relief may be granted by court on own motion).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT
PART III. PROCEDURES TO OBTAIN DECLARATORY RELIEF

3-25A Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25A.41

§ 25A.41 Request for Declaratory Relief Subject to Ordinary Rules of Pleadingn*

The general rules of pleading are applicable to an action for declaratory relief. Therefore, if there are any special heightened pleading requirements for the underlying dispute, the requesting party must comply with those requirements. For example, in one case a plaintiff insurer filed a declaratory judgment action against five defendants seeking a declaration that marine cargo insurance policies were null and void and should have been rescinded. The court denied the defendant insured's motion to dismiss because the plaintiff sufficiently pleaded a claim for violation of the defendant insured's duty of utmost good faith under maritime law, including a claim of alleged fraudulent omission which requires a heightened pleading standard under Rule 9(b). n1

A declaratory judgment action is simply a residual, all-purpose writ or action; it is neither legal nor equitable but operates under either or both theories depending on the facts. n2 The pleadings must show that an actual case or controversy is presented, but in a declaratory action there is no need to show an accomplished injury, n3 nor is it necessary to allege irreparable harm such as would entitle the party to injunctive relief. n4 Similarly, there is no need to show the lack of another adequate remedy. n5

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For further discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 57.60 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. *Thomas v. NASL Corp., 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 16761, at 17-19 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 15, 2000) (under Rule 9, plaintiff must (1) detail statements that plaintiff contends were fraudulent, (2) identify speaker, (3) state where and when statements were made, and (4) explain why statements were fraudulent).

(n3)Footnote 2. Chauffeurs Teamsters & Helpers, Local No. 391 v. Terry, 494 U.S. 558, 565, 110 S. Ct. 1339, 108 L. Ed. 2d 519 (1990) (declaratory relief may be legal or equitable depending on basic nature of underlying issues and remedy sought.).

(n4)Footnote 3. Kunkel v. Continental Cas. Co., 866 F.2d 1269, 1273-1274 (10th Cir. 1989) (declaratory judgment designed to enable parties uncertain of their legal rights to seek statement by court regarding such rights before injury or loss occurs).

(n5)Footnote 4. Fantasy Book Shop, Inc. v. City of Boston, 652 F.2d 1115, 1125-1126 (1st Cir. 1981) (declaratory relief does not require showing of elements necessary for grant of preliminary injunction, such as irreparable harm, balance of injuries, and public interest).

(n6)Footnote 5. See 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a) (declaratory relief available whether further relief is or could be sought); Fed. R. Civ. P. 57 (existence of another adequate remedy does not preclude a judgment for declaratory relief).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT
PART III. PROCEDURES TO OBTAIN DECLARATORY RELIEF

3-25A Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25A.42

§ 25A.42 Contents of Complaint or Pleadingn*

A complaint or other pleading for declaratory relief must precisely state the declaratory judgment sought n1 and must allege both the facts that establish that the claim is otherwise within the subject matter jurisdiction of the federal courts (either federal question jurisdiction or diversity jurisdiction) n2 and the facts that establish the existence of an actual controversy, including facts showing standing and ripeness. n3 As in other civil actions, the scope of declaratory relief that may be rendered is limited to the issues raised by the pleadings and the evidence. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For further discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 57.60 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 57, Advisory Committee Note.

(n3)Footnote 2. FW/PBS, Inc., v. City of Dallas, 493 U.S. 215, 231, 110 S. Ct. 596, 107 L. Ed. 2d 603 (1990) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Burlington N. R. Co. v. Crow Tribal Council, 940 F.2d 1239, 1243 (9th Cir. 1991) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Caterpillar Tractor Co. v. International Harvester Co., 106 F.2d 769, 771-772 (9th Cir. 1939) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(c).

166 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT
PART III. PROCEDURES TO OBTAIN DECLARATORY RELIEF

3-25A Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25A.43

§ 25A.43 Venue

There is no particular or special venue statute governing declaratory actions. n1 Therefore, venue of an action for declaratory relief is determined by the same principles that are applicable to other civil actions, and if an action is for declaratory relief only, the general venue statute controls, rather than the statute controlling the particular underlying substantive claim. Thus, a declaratory judgment action alleging that a patent is invalid and not infringed is governed by the general venue statute, rather than by the particular venue statute for patent infringement. n2 When a timely objection to improper venue is made, and the court finds that venue is improper, the court may dismiss n3 or transfer venue under the transfer statute, n4 A declaratory judgment action may also be transferred for convenience under that statute. n5

As in other cases, the party seeking a transfer of a declaratory relief action under the transfer statute has the burden of demonstrating that the transferee court is clearly more convenient. In determining the convenience of the parties and witnesses, the court considers: (1) the plaintiff's choice of forum; (2) the situs of material events; (3) the relative ease of access to sources of proof; (4) the convenience of the witnesses; and (5) the convenience of the parties in litigating in the respective forums. n6

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureVenueGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. Emerson Elec. Co. v. Black & Decker Mfg. Co., 606 F.2d 234, 238 (8th Cir. 1979) .

(n2)Footnote 2. VE Holding Corp. v. Johnson Gas Appliance Co., 917 F.2d 1574, 1583 (Fed. Cir. 1990) , cert. denied, 499 U.S. 922 (1990) ; see also Millennium Prods., Inc. v. Gravity Boarding Co., 127 F. Supp.2d 974, 980 (N.D. Ill. 2000) .

(n3)Footnote 3. See Millennium Prods., Inc. v. Gravity Boarding Co., 127 F. Supp.2d 974, 980-981 (N.D. Ill. 2000) .

(n4)Footnote 4. See 28 U.S.C. § 1406(a).

(n5)Footnote 5. Abbott Labs. v. Gardner, 387 U.S. 136, 155, 87 S. Ct. 1507, 18 L. Ed. 2d 681 (1967) ; see 28 U.S.C. § 1404(a).

(n6)Footnote 6. Millennium Prods., Inc. v. Gravity Boarding Co., 127 F. Supp.2d 974, 980 (N.D. Ill. 2000) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT
PART III. PROCEDURES TO OBTAIN DECLARATORY RELIEF

3-25A Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25A.44

§ 25A.44 Joindern*

[1] Parties

The federal rules generally are applicable to declaratory actions, and the Declaratory Judgment Act contains no provision regarding parties. n1 Consequently, the general principles governing joinder of persons needed for a just adjudication, as specified in Rule 19, are applicable in declaratory judgment actions. The compulsory joinder rule is an exception to the common practice of permitting the plaintiff to determine who should be a party to a lawsuit. Because a court may not enter an equitable judgment in the absence of an indispensable party, joinder is required in a declaratory action just as in any other civil action. n2 However, given the flexibility of the declaratory judgment procedure, there may be times when the court will be able to proceed without prejudicing the rights of absent persons, when it would be difficult to do so under the more strict procedure usually applicable. On the other hand, because a declaratory relief action is to serve a useful purpose and put an end to the controversy, all persons interested in the subject matter of the litigation should be made parties. Which competing principle should control is resolved by the proper exercise of discretion of the court. n3

[2] Claims

Even though the Declaratory Judgment Act makes no specific provision for the joinder of claims, courts have held that liberal rules of joinder set forth in Rule 18 are applicable to declaratory actions in the same way that they are in other civil actions. For example, a claim for injunctive relief is typically joined with one for declaratory relief. n1 If there is no independent basis of federal jurisdiction over the joined claims, the district court may adjudicate the claim under the principles of supplemental jurisdiction. n2

A party seeking declaratory relief by way of counterclaim must determine, based on the underlying transaction and the specific declaration sought, whether the newly interposed request is of a compulsory or permissive nature and whether the requested declaration may be granted or enforced in the absence of third parties over whom the court lacks jurisdiction. A party asserting a request for declaratory relief in a counterclaim or cross-claim must also comply with the general rules of pleading. n3 In addition to compulsory claims, and because of the liberal joinder of claims rule, a pleader in a declaratory relief action may join as many permissive counterclaims as are appropriate. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePartiesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJoinder of Claims & RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote *. For further discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 57.06[3], [4] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 57.

(n3)Footnote 2. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Mid-Continent Cas. Co., 518 F.2d 292, 294 (10th Cir. 1975) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Abbott Labs. v. Gardner, 387 U.S. 136, 153, 87 S. Ct. 1507, 18 L. Ed. 2d 681 (1967) .

(n5)Footnote 1. *Petrocom License Corp. v. Federal Communications Comm'n, 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 600, at 7 (E.D. La. Jan. 18, 2001) .

(n6)Footnote 2. See 28 U.S.C. § 1367.

(n7)Footnote 3. See Thunder Basin Coal Co. v. TUCO, Inc., 156 F.R.D. 665, 672-673 (D. Wyo. 1994) , aff'd on other grounds, 104 F.3d 1205 (10th Cir. 1997) ; see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 8.

(n8)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 18; see, e.g., Carbon Fuel Co. v. USX Corp., 867 F. Supp. 414, 418 (S.D. W. Va. 1994) (in declaratory judgment action on contract to assume payment of employee health benefits, court allowed defendant to raise permissive counterclaims against third-party defendants for declaratory judgment on separate agreements by third-parties to assume payment of employee health benefits).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT
PART III. PROCEDURES TO OBTAIN DECLARATORY RELIEF

3-25A Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25A.45

§ 25A.45 Expedited Proceduren*

Rule 57 permits federal courts to expedite the hearing and advance declaratory relief cases on the calendar. n1 This provision of the rule enables a court to speed adjudication in a proper case and, thus, prevent the accrual of damages or otherwise further the remedial purposes of the Declaratory Judgment Act by an early adjudication. However, the conscientious efforts of the district court to expedite the disposition of declaratory action litigation may not circumvent the determinations of the requirements under the Act, such as, determinations regarding jurisdiction and consideration of the discretionary factors regarding declaratory relief. Thus, expedited decisions in declaratory judgment actions must yield to considerations of practicality and wise judicial administration. Whether declaratory relief should be granted "will depend upon a circumspect sense of its fitness informed by the teachings and experience concerning the functions and extent of federal judicial power." n2

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For further discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 57.63 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 57.

(n3)Footnote 2. State Auto Ins. Cos. v. Summy, 234 F.3d 131, 136 (3d Cir. 2000) (court could not overlook strong factors militating against exercise of jurisdiction over this declaratory judgment action, and no federal interests were promoted by deciding case in federal court); Anderson v. Pictorial Prods., Inc., 232 F. Supp. 181, 182 (S.D.N.Y. 1964) (plaintiff's significant delay in sending former employer claim indicated that action was not so urgent as to justify advancing declaratory relief suit before other litigation).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT
PART III. PROCEDURES TO OBTAIN DECLARATORY RELIEF

3-25A Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25A.46

§ 25A.46 Jury Trialn*

As is the case in other civil actions, the Seventh Amendment preserves the right of the parties to a jury trial in that the right to trial by jury may be demanded under the circumstances and in the manner provided in Rules 38 and 39. n1 An issue is triable by jury under the Seventh Amendment if it is legal in nature as opposed to equitable. Declaratory relief may be legal or equitable depending on the basic nature of the underlying issues and the remedy sought. In determining whether a claim for declaratory judgment involves a demand in law or equity, the court must examine how the claim would have arisen had it not been raised in a declaratory judgment action. For example, an action to recover attorney's fees pursuant to a contract presents traditional legal issues which may be submitted to a jury. n2

Because Rule 57 specifically provides that a jury trial may be demanded under the circumstances and in the manner provided by Rules 38 and 39, n3 a party claiming a right to a jury trial must make a timely written demand; otherwise, the right is waived. Other aspects of jury trial practice in declaratory judgment actions are also governed by the provisions of the federal rules that are generally applicable to civil actions. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury Trial

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For further discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 57.64 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 57; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 38, 39.

(n3)Footnote 2. *TXI Operations, L.P. v. Klein, 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15958, at 3 (E.D. La. Oct. 20, 2000) (when plaintiff sought declaratory judgment that it was not liable for attorney's fees allegedly due under class action settlement agreement entered in prior litigation, plaintiff was entitled to jury, because settlement agreement constitutes contract, and nature of suit involved determination of contractual legal rights).

(n4)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 57.

(n5)Footnote 4. United States v. Wade, 653 F. Supp. 11, 13 (E.D. Pa. 1984) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT
PART III. PROCEDURES TO OBTAIN DECLARATORY RELIEF

3-25A Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25A.47

§ 25A.47 Burden of Proofn*

[1] Jurisdictional Facts

The party requesting declaratory relief carries the burden of proving all the requirements for declaratory relief, n1 including demonstrating that the cause of action complies with the jurisdictional requirements of Article III of the Constitution and the Declaratory Judgment Act. n2 In the same way, any defendant asserting federal removal jurisdiction has the burden of proving all jurisdictional facts in declaratory relief removal cases. n3 Once the party has met this burden, courts will deem that jurisdiction continues, absent further information. Although a court does not ordinarily look beyond the face of the complaint to determine jurisdiction, if the declaratory relief defendant or the court raises questions about the factual predicates to jurisdiction, the party invoking jurisdiction may be required to support the jurisdictional allegations with competent proof. n4 For example, if a declaratory relief defendant or the court makes a factual challenge to the court's jurisdiction, the court may consider affidavits and other evidence to determine whether the court is authorized to hear the case. n5

[2] Elements of Substantive Claim

When jurisdiction is based on federal question jurisdiction, the burden of proof as to the substantive right involved in the declaratory relief suit is governed by federal law. n1 When federal subject matter jurisdiction is based on diversity jurisdiction, courts must look to the applicable state law to determine which party bears the burden of proving the facts. n2

While legal principles generally require that the party commencing an action has the burden of proving the averments of the complaint, a flexible approach has been adopted by the courts because in many declaratory judgment actions the traditional positions of the plaintiff and defendant are transposed. In such cases, the burden depends on factors, such as, the nature of the relief sought, and which party asserted the affirmative of a particular issue. n3 For example, in a patent case an issued patent is presumed to be valid, and the party challenging the validity of the patent bears the burden of proving invalidity by clear and convincing evidence, regardless of whether the plaintiff or defendant is the challenging party. n4 However, when the positions of the plaintiff and defendant are not changed by the circumstances of the declaratory relief suit, the burden of proof is the same as in any other case: the plaintiff bears the burden of proof on the plaintiff's prima facie case. n5

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsGeneral OverviewEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsBurdens of ProofGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For further discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 57.62 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Cardinal Chem. Co. v. Morton Int'l, Inc., 508 U.S. 83, 95-98, 113 S. Ct. 1967, 124 L. Ed. 2d 1 (1993) (party seeking declaratory judgment has burden of demonstrating that case is justiciable).

(n3)Footnote 2. See § 25A.20 et seq.

(n4)Footnote 3. Boyd, Weir & Sewell, Inc. v. Fritzen-Halcyon Lijn, Inc., 709 F. Supp. 77, 78 (S.D.N.Y. 1989) ; see Shell Oil Co. v. Amoco Corp., 970 F.2d 885, 888 (Fed. Cir. 1992) (declaratory judgment plaintiff must establish actual controversy on totality of the circumstances surrounding claim).

(n5)Footnote 4. NLFC, Inc. v. Devcom Mid-Am., Inc., 45 F.3d 231, 237 (7th Cir. 1995) , cert. denied, 515 U.S. 1104 (1995) .

(n6)Footnote 5. International Ass'n of Machinists & Aerospace Workers v. Northwest Airlines, Inc., 673 F.2d 700, 711 (3d Cir. 1982) .

(n7)Footnote 1. Board of Regents of Univ. of Neb. v. Dawes, 522 F.2d 380, 383-384 (8th Cir. 1975) , cert. denied, 424 U.S. 914 (1976) (declaratory relief defendant class had burden of establishing unlawful discrimination as issue was central issue of suit).

(n8)Footnote 2. American Nat'l Fire Ins. Co. v. Rose Acre Farms Inc., 911 F. Supp. 366, 369 (S.D. Ind. 1995) , aff'd on other grounds, 107 F.3d 451 (7th Cir. 1997) (applicable state law determines burden of proof in diversity cases; state law requires that party seeking declaratory judgment carries burden of proving its propriety).

(n9)Footnote 3. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Videfreeze Corp., 540 F.2d 1171, 1174-1176 (3d Cir. 1976) , cert. denied, 429 U.S. 1053 (1977) .

(n10)Footnote 4. Rosco, Inc. v. Mirror Lite Co. 139 F. Supp. 2d 287 (E.D.N.Y. 2001) (in patent, copyright, and trademark cases, courts have generally recognized that any role reversal occasioned by declaratory relief should not shift burden of proof from manner in which it would be assigned in coercive infringement suit).

(n11)Footnote 5. Sims v. Amos, 365 F. Supp. 215, 220 n.1 (M.D. Ala. 1973) , aff'd without opinion, Wallace v. Sims, 415 U.S. 902 (1974) .

171 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT
PART III. PROCEDURES TO OBTAIN DECLARATORY RELIEF

3-25A Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25A.48

§ 25A.48 Procedural Considerations in Typical Casesn*

[1] Insurance Actions

Insurance companies often institute declaratory relief actions to settle issues between the insurance carriers and their insureds or third parties involving the validity or effect of a liability insurance policy, n1 whether an insurance policy covers existing or anticipated personal injury or other tort litigation, n2 or whether the insurer owes its insured a duty to defend or indemnify when the issue of coverage is unsettled. n3 Insurance carriers may also seek declaratory relief as to the rights, obligations, and respective liability between insurance carriers. n4 However, if the declaratory relief suit is filed before the underlying liability of the insured is established, a court may determine that the declaratory relief action is not ripe and that it is hypothetical. n5

The beneficiary of an insurance policy may file a declaratory judgment action to determine whether any payment or obligation to pay is owed under the policy. n6 In a similar way, a third party injured by an insured may file a declaratory judgment action to determine whether any payment or obligation to pay is owed under an insurance policy. However, when a third party allegedly injured by the insured initiates a declaratory judgment action to determine entitlement to the policy proceeds, a claim against the insurance company may be premature until a judgment has been obtained against the insured. Even though an actual controversy may exist between an injured third party and a tortfeasor's liability insurance carrier, the filing of a declaratory relief suit against the insurer before the liability of the insured is determined raises questions that may not only be speculative, but that may be prejudicial when joined to or tried with the underlying liability suit. n7

It should be noted that despite the existence of federal jurisdiction and a justiciable controversy, courts are still entitled to exercise their jurisdiction and deny declaratory relief. In the field of insurance, the most common factor causing courts to refuse to entertain declaratory judgment suits is whether parallel state court proceedings are pending that would adequately resolve the dispute. n8

[2] Intellectual Property Actions

[a] Trademark Actions

A declaratory relief action is particularly useful in a trademark controversy because such an action can promptly resolve the conflict when the alleged owner of a trademark right threatens to sue for infringement. n1 The actual controversy requirement does not require engaging in allegedly infringing conduct; rather it is sufficient for the plaintiff to show the imminent intent and ability to use the disputed mark. n2 An action for a declaration of the validity, invalidity, or non-infringement of a federally registered trademark may be filed in federal court without regard to the citizenship of the parties and without the necessity of establishing any jurisdictional amount, even though trademarks are also protected by state law. n3 A threat to sue specifically based on federal law, in contrast to a threat to sue under state law, is also not ordinarily required to establish federal jurisdiction. n4 However, when federal and state law regarding a potential claim of trademark infringement overlap, a party who anticipates seeking relief by way of a federal declaratory judgment action should identify the federal grounds on which the request for relief is based, as well as describe the imminence of the claim of infringement. n5

[b] Patent Actions

Patent actions are commonly filed in the form of a request for declaratory relief because the court may declare whether a party has a vested, legally recognizable interest in particular intellectual property and, if so, whether or not an infringement of that interest has occurred. n6 Usually, the action for declaratory relief is filed by either the patent holder or an alleged infringer. A claim by a patent holder that another person is infringing a patent is clearly appropriate for declaratory relief, because the only alternative would be for competitors to pay royalties. n7 Also, competitors facing or threatened with an infringement claim may seek a declaratory judgment that the patent is invalid; the only alternative would be for competitors to incur liability for patent infringement or terminate the enterprise. n8

Under the "actual controversy" requirement applicable to declaratory relief actions, a court is prohibited from rendering any decision regarding infringement or potential infringement with respect to products that are not specifically before the court. n9 An action for a declaration of the invalidity or infringement of a patent is determined by reference to the federal patent law. n10 Therefore, a person may prosecute such an action regardless of the citizenship of the parties and without the necessity of establishing any jurisdictional amount. n11

Special venue statutes may apply to declaratory relief actions involving patents. In this regard, a patent holder may file a declaratory suit alleging infringement where the defendant resides or where the defendant committed acts of infringement and has a regular place of business. However, a suit seeking a declaration of noninfringement and/or patent invalidity is subject to the general venue statute, n12 which allows suit in a judicial district (1) where any defendant resides if all defendants reside in the same state; (2) where a substantial part of the events or omissions giving rise to the claim occurred, or a substantial part of property that is the subject of the action is located; or (3) where any defendant may be found, if no other district exists in which the action may otherwise be brought. n13

[c] Copyright Actions

A person in a copyright dispute will often use the Declaratory Judgment Act to obtain a court declaration regarding whether a party possesses a legally recognized interest in the intellectual property and, if so, whether there has been an infringement of the interest. The Declaratory Judgment Act provides an effective method of resolving such an issue because a party accused of infringement, or that may imminently be subject to a suit for infringement, may seek a declaration that the asserted copyright is invalid or that there has been no infringement.

An action for a declaration of the validity, invalidity, or non-infringement of a copyright arises under federal copyright law. n14 Therefore, a declaratory relief copyright action may be maintained regardless of the citizenship of the parties and without the necessity of establishing any jurisdictional amount. However, as in all declaratory judgment actions, the party seeking the declaration of invalidity or non-infringement must demonstrate the existence of a justiciable controversy. n15

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsGeneral OverviewEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For further discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 57.80 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Home Ins. Co. v. Townsend, 22 F.3d 91, 92 (5th Cir. 1994) (action commenced by insurer seeking recission of professional liability policy on ground that insured attorney had made material misrepresentations in application).

(n3)Footnote 2. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Kirby, 919 F. Supp. 939, 942-946 (N.D. W. Va. 1996) .

(n4)Footnote 3. American States Ins. Co. v. Bailey, 133 F.3d 363, 368-369 (5th Cir. 1998) .

(n5)Footnote 4. United States Fire Ins. Co. v. Caulkins Indiantown Citrus Co., 931 F.2d 744, 747-749 (11th Cir. 1991) (declaratory judgment action by excess insurer to determine whether primary insurer was liable to indemnify it for coverage provided to insured).

(n6)Footnote 5. Century Indem. Co. v. McGillacuty's, Inc., 820 F.2d 269, 270 (8th Cir. 1987) .

(n7)Footnote 6. Kelly v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 352 F. Supp. 270, 274 (S.D.N.Y. 1972) .

(n8)Footnote 7. Bankers Trust Co. v. Old Republic Ins. Co., 959 F.2d 677, 680-682 (7th Cir. 1992) , aff'd on other grounds, 7 F.3d 93 (7th Cir. 1993) .

(n9)Footnote 8. See Hartford Cas. Ins. Co. v. BB & T Fin. Corp., 131 F. Supp.2d 752, 754 (W.D.N.C. 2001) (discussing at length factors to be considered by court).

(n10)Footnote 1. Rosco, Inc. v. Mirror Lite Co. 139 F. Supp.2d 287 (E.D.N.Y. 2001) (in patent, copyright, and trademark cases, courts have generally recognized that any role reversal occasioned by declaratory relief should not shift burden of proof from manner in which it would be assigned in coercive infringement suit).

(n11)Footnote 2. Starter Corp. v. Converse, Inc., 84 F.3d 592, 596 (2d Cir. 1996) .

(n12)Footnote 3. See PHC, Inc. v. Pioneer Healthcare, Inc., 75 F.3d 75, 78-79 (1st Cir. 1996) .

(n13)Footnote 4. See PHC, Inc. v. Pioneer Healthcare, Inc., 75 F.3d 75, 78-79 (1st Cir. 1996) .

(n14)Footnote 5. Trippe Mfg. Co. v. American Power Conversion Corp., 46 F.3d 624, 627-628 (7th Cir. 1995) .

(n15)Footnote 6. *See, e.g., Dataline, Inc. v. MCI Worldcom Network Servs., Inc., 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 950, at 79 (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 6, 2001) .

(n16)Footnote 7. Hanes Corp. v. Millard, 531 F.2d 585, 592 (D.C. Cir. 1976) .

(n17)Footnote 8. Cardinal Chem. Co. v. Morton Int'l, Inc., 508 U.S. 83, 95-97, 113 S. Ct. 1967, 124 L. Ed. 2d 1 (1993) .

(n18)Footnote 9. Laitram Corp. v. Cambridge Wire Cloth Co., 919 F.2d 1579, 1580-1582 (Fed. Cir. 1990) , cert. denied, 506 U.S. 831 (1992) .

(n19)Footnote 10. Modern Computer Corp. v. Ma, 862 F. Supp. 938, 943 (E.D.N.Y. 1994) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n20)Footnote 11. 28 U.S.C. § 1338(a).

(n21)Footnote 12. United States Aluminum Corp. v. Kawneer Co., 694 F.2d 193, 195 (9th Cir. 1982) .

(n22)Footnote 13. 28 U.S.C. § 1391.

(n23)Footnote 14. State of Texas v. West Publ'g Co., 882 F.2d 171, 175-177 (5th Cir. 1989) , cert. denied, 493 U.S. 1058 (1990) .

(n24)Footnote 15. Hal Roach Studios, Inc. v. Richard Feiner & Co., 896 F.2d 1542, 1555-1556 (9th Cir. 1989) .

172 of 172 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 25A DECLARATORY JUDGMENT
PART III. PROCEDURES TO OBTAIN DECLARATORY RELIEF

3-25A Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 25A.49

§ 25A.49 Appellate Review of Declaratory Relief Decisionsn*

[1] Scope of Appealable Declaratory Relief Orders

A declaratory judgment issued by a federal court has the force and effect of a final judgment or decree. n1 A declaratory judgment binds the parties and is res judicata in subsequent proceedings. Therefore, a declaratory judgment is subject to appellate review. n2 A dismissal of a declaratory judgment action is also a final judgment that is subject to immediate appeal. n3 Furthermore, the requirements applicable to the appellate review of declaratory judgments are essentially the same as are applicable to other types of civil cases. n3.1 However, a remand of a declaratory judgment action to state court is appealable only if it is deemed an "exceptional" remand, which means that it is a remand based on grounds other than lack of subject-matter jurisdiction or defect in removal procedure. n4

[2] Standard for Review of Declaratory Relief Orders

[a] Court's Discretion to Hear Declaratory Relief Action

When a district court with proper subject matter jurisdiction makes a determination whether to exercise its discretion to hear a declaratory judgment action, a party may seek review of the propriety of that determination. n1 A party may appeal either the court's decision to exercise its jurisdiction and hear a declaratory judgment claim n1.1 or to decline to exercise its discretion. n2

The court's decision to exercise or decline its declaratory relief jurisdiction is reviewed only for abuse of discretion. n2.1 Thus, for example, when a party appealed a decision to decline to exercise jurisdiction over a party's federal declaratory judgment claim regarding construction of an ordinance, the appellate court reviewed that decision for abuse of discretion. n3 When a court's refusal to entertain a suit for declaratory relief is reviewed for abuse of discretion, such abuse may encompass either an outright mistake of law or a serious misjudgment in the weighing of pertinent considerations. n4

[b] Substantive Determinations

In addition to its decision whether to exercise its discretion to hear a declaratory judgment claim, a party in a declaratory judgment suit may appeal the judgment itself and request review of the substantive issues decided by the judgment. The scope of appellate review of the substance of the judgment depends on whether a particular determination is a matter of fact or law; however, the principles are the same as with other decisions of the district courts in civil cases. Thus, legal questions are reviewed de novo, n5 and findings of fact are reviewed with the more deferential standard known as clear error, under which the trial court will be reversed only if its factual findings were clearly erroneous. n6

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsFederal JudgmentsAppellate Review

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For further discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 57.100 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

(n2)Footnote 1. Nautilus Ins. Co. v. 8160 South Mem. Drive, LLC, 436 F.3d 1197, 1199 (10th Cir. 2006) ; see 28 U.S.C. § 2201.

(n3)Footnote 2. See Alameda Films S A De C V v. Authors Rights Restoration Corp., 331 F.3d 472, 476 (5th Cir. 2003) ; see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b).

(n4)Footnote 3. Sierakowski v. Ryan, 223 F.3d 440, 441-442 (7th Cir. 2000) .

(n5)Footnote 3.1. Nautilus Ins. Co. v. 8160 South Mem. Drive, LLC, 436 F.3d 1197, 1199 n.1 (10th Cir. 2006) (citing Moore's Federal Practice); see 28 U.S.C. § 2201.

(n6)Footnote 4. Huth v. Hartford Ins. Co. of the Midwest, 298 F.3d 800, 802 (9th Cir. 2002) .

(n7)Footnote 1. See Nautilus Ins. Co. v. 8160 South Mem. Drive, LLC, 436 F.3d 1197, 1199 (10th Cir. 2006) .

(n8)Footnote 1.1. American States Ins. Co. v. Bailey, 133 F.3d 363, 368 (5th Cir. 1998) .

(n9)Footnote 2. Wilton v. Seven Falls Co., 515 U.S. 277, 288, 115 S. Ct. 2137, 132 L. Ed. 2d 214 (1995) (district court properly abstained from hearing case brought under Declaratory Judgment Act as matter of discretion).

(n10)Footnote 2.1. See Nautilus Ins. Co. v. 8160 South Mem. Drive, LLC, 436 F.3d 1197, 1199 (10th Cir. 2006) .

(n11)Footnote 3. Vulcan Materials Co. v. City of Tehuacana, 238 F.3d 382, 389-390 (5th Cir. 2001) .

(n12)Footnote 4. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Rhode Island Pub. Transit Auth., 233 F.3d 127, 130 (1st Cir. 2000) .

(n13)Footnote 5. Nebraska Pub. Power Dist. v. MidAmerican Energy Co., 234 F.3d 1032, 1040 (8th Cir. 2000) (initial question of whether contract is ambiguous is question of law to be determined by trial court, and appellate court must review that determination de novo).

(n14)Footnote 6. See Nautilus Ins. Co. v. 8160 South Mem. Drive, LLC, 436 F.3d 1197, 1199 n.1 (10th Cir. 2006) .

1 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure 26.syn

§ 26.syn Synopsis to Chapter 26: POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES

§ 26.01 Timetable for Post-Judgment Procedures

§ 26.02 Authority of Court to Correct Clerical Errors and Omissions

§ 26.03 Purpose of Rule Allowing Relief From Clerical Error

§ 26.04 Clerical Mistakes That Are Subject to Correction

[1] Rule Applies Only to Clerical Errors

[2] Clerical Errors and Omissions Distinguished From Substantive Errors

[a] Nature of Clerical Errors and Omissions

[i] Clerical Errors

[ii] Omissions and Oversights

[b] Nature of Substantive Errors Not Subject to Rule

§ 26.05 Types of Written Documents That Are Subject to Correction

§ 26.06 Errors Initiated by Either Court or Parties Are Subject to Correction

§ 26.07 Time Limitations on Correction of Clerical Errors and Omissions

[1] No Appeal Pending

[2] Appeal Pending

§ 26.08 Procedures for Correction of Clerical Errors and Omissions

[1] Correction of Error by Court on Its Own Initiative

[2] Correction of Error After Motion of Party

[3] Method of Correction

§§ 26.09through 26.19 [Reserved]

§ 26.20 Specific Procedure to Obtain Relief From Substantive Errors in Judgment

§ 26.21 Coordination of Motion to Obtain Relief From Substantive Error With Other Similar Motions

[1] Similar Forms of Relief

[2] Time Limits

[3] Motion for New Trial

[4] Motion for Amendment of Findings

[5] Motion for Amendment of Judgment

[6] Order of Entry of Final Judgment

[7] Setting Aside of Default Judgment

[8] Stay of Judgment

§ 26.22 Methods to Obtain Relief From Judgment

[1] Four Methods to Obtain Relief From Judgment

[2] Motion Under Federal Rule for Relief From Judgment

[3] Independent Action for Relief From Judgment

[4] Preservation of Statutory Remedy for Relief From Judgment In Rem

[5] Relief From Judgment Procured by Fraud on Court

§ 26.23 Discretion of Court Controls Grant of Relief From Judgment

§ 26.24 Relief Available Only From Final Judgment

§ 26.25 Moving Party Must Show Some Merit on Claim or Defense

§ 26.26 Court May Not Grant Additional Relief

§§ 26.27through 26.39 [Reserved]

§ 26.40 Six Grounds for Court to Grant Motion for Relief

§ 26.41 Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

[1] Nature of Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, and Excusable Neglect

[a] Grounds Considered in Light of Purpose of Relief

[b] Mistake

[c] Inadvertence

[d] Excusable Neglect

[2] Culpability of Party Not Necessary

§ 26.42 Newly Discovered Evidence

[1] Required Elements

[2] Evidence Must Be of Facts That Were in Existence at Time of Trial

[3] Evidence Must Have Been Discovered Following Trial

[4] Failure to Discover Evidence Must Not Be Based on Lack of Diligence

[5] Evidence Must Be Admissible and Credible

[6] Evidence Must Be Material and Not Merely Cumulative or for Impeachment

[7] Evidence Must Be Likely to Change Result of Case

§ 26.43 Fraud, Misrepresentation, or Misconduct of Adverse Party

[1] Intentional Conduct Not Necessary for Relief

[2] Moving Party Has Burden to Establish Fraud, Misrepresentation, or Misconduct

[3] Fraud, Misrepresentation, or Misconduct Must Be Attributable to Adversary

§ 26.44 Void Judgment

[1] Void Judgment Subject to Motion for Relief

[2] Types of Void Judgments

[a] Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction

[b] Lack of Personal Jurisdiction Over Defendant

[c] Violation of Due Process by Court That Entered Judgment

[3] Exceptions From Ordinary Requirements of Rule

[4] Other Methods to Set Aside Void Judgment

§ 26.45 Obsolescence of Judgment

[1] Satisfaction, Release, or Discharge of Judgment

[2] Prior Judgment Reversed or Vacated

[3] Inequitable Prospective Application of Judgment

[a] Description of Relief Available

[b] Standard for Grant of Relief from Judgment

[c] Standard for Grant of Relief from Consent Decree

§ 26.46 Other Reasons Justifying Relief

[1] Availability of Relief Under Catch-All Provision

[2] Extraordinary Circumstances Required for Relief

[a] Requirement of Extraordinary Circumstances

[b] Examples of Extraordinary Circumstances

[c] Lack of Extraordinary Circumstances

§§ 26.47through 26.59 [Reserved]

§ 26.60 Standing to File Motion for Relief From Judgment

§ 26.61 Initiation of Motion for Relief From Judgment

[1] Motion by Party Required to Initiate Relief

[2] District Court With Jurisdiction to Hear Motion

[a] Court That Rendered Judgment

[b] Court of Registration of Judgment

[3] Time Limitations on Filing Motion

[a] Motion Must Be Made Within Reasonable Time

[b] One-Year Limitation Applicable to First Three Categories of Motion

[i] One-Year Limitation Is Absolute

[ii] Running of One-Year Period

[c] Filing of Motion Does Not Change Time for Appeal

§ 26.62 Form of Motion for Relief From Judgment

§ 26.63 Indicative Ruling on Motion for Relief from Judgment Barred by Pending Appeal

[1] Circumstances for Use of Indicative Ruling

[a] Pending Appeal May Bar Grant of Motion for Relief by District Court

[b] Federal Rules Codify Procedure for Indicative Ruling

[c] Coordination of Procedure Between District Court and Court of Appeals

[2] Procedure for Indicative Ruling in District Court

[a] Options for District Court on Motion for Relief Pending Appeal

[b] Notification of Court of Appeals Based on Indicative Ruling Decision of District Court on Motion for Relief Pending Appeal

[c] Determination of Motion if Court of Appeals Remands Issue to District Court

§ 26.64 Prohibition Against Successive Motions for Relief From Judgment

§ 26.65 Appeal of Grant or Denial of Motion for Relief From Judgment

[1] Appealability of Order of Grant or Denial of Motion

[2] Standard of Review

§§ 26.66through 26.79 [Reserved]

§ 26.80 Independent Action for Relief From Judgment

[1] Preservation of Independent Action to Obtain Relief From Judgment

[2] Jurisdiction Required for Independent Action

[3] Prerequisites to Relief by Independent Action

[a] Summary of Requirements

[b] Injustice in Judgment

[c] Meritorious Claim by Petitioner

[d] Petitioner Free From Fault

[4] Grounds for Independent Action

[a] Fraud

[b] Newly Discovered Evidence

[c] Mistake

[d] Duress

[e] Satisfaction of Debt

§ 26.81 Relief From Judgment Based on Fraud on Court

[1] Court Retains Inherent Power to Rectify Fraud on Court

[2] Proceedings to Set Aside Fraud on Court

§§ 26.82through 26.99 [Reserved]

§ 26.100 Function of Execution of Judgment

§ 26.101 Law Governing Execution of Judgment

[1] Procedure in Federal Court

[2] State Law Controls Except When Explicit Federal Law Governs

[3] Reconciliation of State and Federal Procedures

§ 26.102 Discovery Available in Connection With Execution of Judgment

[1] Persons Subject to Discovery Requests

[2] Option to Apply State or Federal Discovery Procedures

[3] Scope of Available Discovery

§ 26.103 Prohibition on Execution Against Public Officers

§§ 26.104through 26.119 [Reserved]

§ 26.120 Purpose and Function of Registration of Judgment

§ 26.121 Judgments Subject to Registration

[1] Only Money Judgments of Certain Courts Are Subject to Registration

[2] Pure Injunctive and Divorce Judgments Are Not Subject to Registration

[a] Injunctions

[b] Divorce Judgments

§ 26.122 Procedure to Register Judgment

[1] Filing of Judgment

[2] Immediate Registration Allowed for Good Cause

[3] Statute of Limitation

[4] Registration Is Ministerial Act

§ 26.123 Initiation of Independent Suit Instead of Registration

§ 26.124 Effect of Registration of Judgment

[1] Registration Makes Judgment Local Judgment

[a] Enforcement of Registered Judgment

[b] Relief From Registered Judgment

[2] Prohibition Against Collateral Attack on Underlying Judgment

2 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
A. RELIEF FROM CLERICAL ERRORS IN JUDGMENT

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.01

§ 26.01 Timetable for Post-Judgment Proceduresn*

Motion to alter or amend judgment	Within 28 days after entry of judgment. Rule 59(e). See Ch. 24, New Trials and Harmless Error.
Motion to correct clerical mistakes in judgments, orders, and other parts of record	At any time. Rule 60(a).
Motion for relief from judgment, order, or proceeding for reasons of (1) mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect; (2) newly discovered evidence; or (3) fraud, misrepresentation, or misconduct of an adverse party	Within a reasonable time, but in no event more than a year after the entry of the judgment or order or the date of the proceeding. Rule 60(c)(1).
Motion for relief from judgment, order, or proceeding for reasons of: (4) void judgment, (5) satisfaction, release, or discharge of judgment, or of reversal, vacation, or inequity of prior judgment on which current judgment is based; or (6) any other reason justifying relief	Within a reasonable time. Rule 60(c)(1).
Execution issued by court or initiation of proceedings for enforcement of judgment	Not prior to expiration of 14 days after entry of judgment, with certain exceptions. Rule 62(a).
Appeal taken by appellant giving supersedeas bond	Bond may be given at or after time of filing notice of appeal or of procuring order allowing appeal; stay is effective when supersedeas bond is approved by court. Rule 62(d).
Registration of judgment	When judgment has become final by appeal or expiration of time for appeal, or when ordered by court that entered the judgment. 28 U.S.C.

§ 1963.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & Amend

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. The times given in this table are subject to the provisions of Rule 6(d), which provides for the addition of three days after service of any papers when papers have been served by any means other than by hand delivery. See Rule 5(b)(2)(C)-(F). For time limits to move under Rule 50(b) for a judgment as a matter of law, see Ch. 22, Trial by Jury; for time limits to move for an amendment of findings of fact, or making additional findings and the amendment of a judgment under Rule 52(b), see Ch. 23, Trial to Court; Inability of Judge to Proceed; for time limits to move for a new trial under Rule 59(b), or to grant a new trial on the court's initiative under Rule 59(d), see Ch. 24 New Trials; Amendment of Judgments; Harmless Error.

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
A. RELIEF FROM CLERICAL ERRORS IN JUDGMENT

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.02

§ 26.02 Authority of Court to Correct Clerical Errors and Omissionsn*

Federal courts have the express power by rule, n1 and also inherently, n2 to correct clerical mistakes and errors arising from oversights or omissions in judgments, orders or other parts of the record. The court may make such corrections at any time on its own initiative or on the motion of any party and after such notice that the court orders. Rule 60(a) also recognizes the power of the district court to correct clerical mistakes during the pendency of an appeal. n3

After the filing of a notice of appeal, a district court may continue to correct clerical mistakes as if no appeal were pending. However, once an appeal is "docketed," the district court may correct clerical errors under Rule 60(a) only with the permission of the appellate court. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 60.02[1], 60.10 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a); see Utility Solid Waste Activities Group v. Environmental Protection Agency, 236 F.3d 749, 753 (D.C. Cir. 2001) .

(n3)Footnote 2. See Singh v. Mukasey, 533 F.3d 1103, 1110 (9th Cir. 2008) .

(n4)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a).

(n5)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a); see, e.g., Kokomo Tube Co. v. Dayton Equip. Servs. Co., 123 F.3d 616, 623 (7th Cir. 1997) (district court requested leave to correct judgment to reflect correct name of party); see also § 26.06.

4 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
A. RELIEF FROM CLERICAL ERRORS IN JUDGMENT

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.03

§ 26.03 Purpose of Rule Allowing Relief From Clerical Errorn*

Rule 60(a) is designed to provide a specific procedure to ensure that the court's orders, judgments, and records of proceedings are an accurate statement of the actions and intent of the court. n1 The rule provides a quick procedure for rectifying mistakes when the correction does not require additional proof. n2 In a typical example, the court may correct errors in transcribing the amount of prejudgment interest awarded in a judgment. n3 The court has much broader leeway to make a Rule 60(a) clerical error correction than a substantive change to a judgment or an order under Rule 60(b). n4 However, the use of Rule 60(a) is limited strictly to correcting "clerical" mistakes, including inadvertent errors: n5 the court may correct only mistakes that cause a judgment, order, or other part of the record to reflect something other than what was actually decided or that actually occurred in the litigation. n6

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 60.02, 60.10 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a).

(n3)Footnote 2. United States, IRS v. (In re Craddock), 149 F.3d 1249, 1254 (10th Cir. 1998) .

(n4)Footnote 3. United States v. Griffin, 782 F.2d 1393, 1395-1396 (7th Cir. 1986) (consent decree that otherwise directed interest "according to law" was corrected to reflect actual agreement to utilize legal rate of interest of 8% rather than incorrectly specified rate of 18%).

(n5)Footnote 4. See, e.g., National Bus. Brokers, Ltd. v. Jim Williamson Prods., Inc., 115 F. Supp. 2d 1250, 1255-1256 (D. Colo. 2000) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Robert Lewis Rosen Assocs. v. Webb, 473 F.3d 498, 505 n.11 (2d Cir. 2007) .

(n7)Footnote 6. See Manning v. Astrue, 510 F.3d 1246, 1248 (10th Cir. 2007) (mistake is not "clerical" when court actually intended to make decision that it did); see Rutherford v. Harris County, 197 F.3d 173, 190 (5th Cir. 1999) (under circumstances, omission of back pay and prejudgment interest from original judgment was not "clerical error"); see also § 26.03.

5 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
A. RELIEF FROM CLERICAL ERRORS IN JUDGMENT

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.04

§ 26.04 Clerical Mistakes That Are Subject to Correctionn*

[1] Rule Applies Only to Clerical Errors

One of the most commonly litigated aspects of the clerical error correction rule is the determination of whether the rule is applicable; that is, whether the error is clerical or arises from oversight, or is substantive. n1 The distinction is important because it is much easier, in terms of the lack of time limitations and other requirements, to qualify under Rule 60(a) than Rule 60(b). n2 However, Rule 60(a) is applicable only when there is a discrepancy between what the court intended to include in a judgment, order, or record, and what was actually set out in written form. n3 Thus, Rule 60(a) may not be used to reopen a judgment for the purpose of correcting substantive errors or for the purpose of making rulings that should have been but were not actually made. n4

However, there is no bright line distinction between the two types of errors, and a court must determine which type of error has occurred based on the circumstances of the case. n5 For example, even though a jury's misunderstanding of the court's instructions on joint and several liability may seem like a substantive legal error, in one case it was held that under the circumstances the error was so obvious that it was not unlike a clerical error under Rule 60(a), and correctable as such. n6 For a discussion of the common scenarios regarding clerical errors, see [2], below.

[2] Clerical Errors and Omissions Distinguished From Substantive Errors

[a] Nature of Clerical Errors and Omissions

[i] Clerical Errors

In addition to errors arising from oversight or omission, n1 the court may correct under Rule 60(a) any clerical mistakes in a judgment, order, or other part of the record. n2 A "clerical error" is one that the court has made because the judgment, order, or record contains a written statement that clearly reflects something different from what was actually decided by the court or what actually occurred in the litigation. Such an error is usually obvious because there is an inconsistency between the error and some other portion of the judgment or record. n3 Transcription errors and mathematical computational errors mistakes are typical "clerical" mistakes that qualify for correction under Rule 60(a).

Thus, if the flaw lies in the translation of the original meaning to the judgment, then Rule 60(a) allows a correction. n4 An example of a transcription error occurred when a court intended in its original judgment to merely recite the stipulation of the parties concerning attorney's fees but, in doing so, incorrectly stated the amount agreed to for fees. n5 An example of a computational error occurred when the court in an employment discrimination judgment undercounted the plaintiff's period of unemployment by two weeks and three days, and this mathematical error resulted in a considerably smaller damage award than the court intended. n6

Another type of clerical error is a transpositional error, which is similar to a computational mistake and is subject to correction as a clerical mistake under Rule 60(a). For example, in a case in which all of the documentary evidence and testimony specified clearly that the amount of damages was $296,686.89, but a special interrogatory submitted by the court to the jury questioned about damages in the sum of $269,689.89, it was held that there was simple, unintended transposition of the second and third digits. Therefore, the court was within the scope of Rule 60(a) when it corrected the verdict in its judgment to reflect the correct amount of damages. n7

The last type of pure clerical error is ambiguity. For example, a court may utilize Rule 60(a) to correct an ambiguity in its original order if the correction more clearly reflects the intent of the court and ensures that the court's purpose is completely implemented. n8

[ii] Omissions and Oversights

In addition to clerical errors, n9 the court may also correct "omissions and oversights" under Rule 60(a). n10 Such an omission or oversight may occur when the court has failed to include an item in the written judgment or record that it had obviously intended to include. For example, when a judgment included an award of interest, but left the calculation of interest for later, the court could later correct the award pursuant to Rule 60(a) by specifying the amount of interest awarded. n11 In another example, Rule 60(a) provided relief when the court failed to include liquidated damages in a judgment, despite its clear intent to do so as expressed in its findings of fact. n12

However, omissions are usually more difficult than pure clerical errors to distinguish from substantive errors, because an omission may be substantive, especially when the matter has not been litigated or the court has not made required findings on the issue. For example, the omission of the words "without prejudice" in an order did not constitute a mere clerical error under Rule 60(a), because even minor errors are properly dealt with under Rule 60(b)(1) as opposed to Rule 60(a), when the omission is based on legal analysis or reasoning in contrast to an error in transcription or calculation. In this regard, it must be noted that if an omission is legally incorrect, but nonetheless accurately reflects what the court intended, the omission is not subject to correction under Rule 60(a). n13

[b] Nature of Substantive Errors Not Subject to Rule

A court may not make a correction under Rule 60(a) if the error is based on legal analysis or reasoning, rather than a clerical error, which is a copying or computational mistake. Thus, if cerebration or research into the law or facts is required, Rule 60(a) is not available to salvage the error. Furthermore, Rule 60(a) is not a perpetual right to apply different legal rules or different factual analysis to a case. It is only mindless and mechanistic mistakes, minor shifting of facts, and no new additional legal excursions that are correctable through Rule 60(a). n14 In other words, the court must distinguish between changes that implement the result intended by the court at the time the order was entered and changes that alter the original meaning to correct a legal or factual error. Rule 60(a) allows for the former but not the latter. n15

Therefore, in deciding whether a trial court may correct a judgment under Rule 60(a), the focus is on what that court originally intended. The basic distinction between clerical mistakes and substantive mistakes is that the former consist of errors in execution, while the latter consist of instances where the court changes its mind, either because of a legal or factual mistake in making its original determination, or because on second thought the court has decided to exercise its discretion in a manner different from the way it was exercised in the original determination. n16 Because there is no time limit on Rule 60(a) relief, Rule 60(a) relief must be strictly confined to those errors that simply misrepresent the court's original intention. To allow a party to correct alleged errors of law at any time by the mechanism of Rule 60(a) would significantly weaken the policy of finality of judgments, as embodied in the Federal Rules. n17

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.11 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See Kofoed v. IBEW, Local 48, 237 F.3d 1001, 1007 n.1 (9th Cir. 2001) (Rymer, J., dissenting) (dissent's discussion of misgivings about use of Rule 60(a) in case because of lack of clerical error).

(n3)Footnote 2. National Bus. Brokers, Ltd. v. Jim Williamson Prods., Inc., 115 F. Supp. 2d 1250, 1256 (D. Colo. 2000) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Manning v. Astrue, 510 F.3d 1246, 1248 (10th Cir. 2007) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Truskoski v. ESPN, Inc., 60 F.3d 74, 77-78 (2d Cir. 1995) (court could not "correct" judgment to include determinations regarding pension issue when that issue was never litigated).

(n6)Footnote 5. Rutherford v. Harris County, 197 F.3d 173, 190 (5th Cir. 1999) (under circumstances, error was substantive when it omitted award of back pay and prejudgment interest, considering that court had made no findings of fact or conclusions of law concerning those elements of recovery).

(n7)Footnote 6. United States v. Sullivan, 1 F.3d 1191, 1197 (11th Cir. 1993) (court's correction of several verdict into joint and several verdict was within scope of Rule 60(a)).

(n8)Footnote 1. See [ii], below.

(n9)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a).

(n10)Footnote 3. See Singh v. Mukasey, 533 F.3d 1103, 1110 (9th Cir. 2008) (clerical error may occur when judgment is clearly inconsistent with another portion of record).

(n11)Footnote 4. United States v. Griffin, 782 F.2d 1393, 1396-1397 (7th Cir. 1986) .

(n12)Footnote 5. Dura-Wood Treating Co. v. Century Forest Indus., 694 F.2d 112, 114 (5th Cir. 1982) .

(n13)Footnote 6. Trujillo v. Longhorn Mfg. Co., 694 F.2d 221, 225-226 (10th Cir. 1982) .

(n14)Footnote 7. Esquire Radio & Elec., Inc. v. Montgomery Ward & Co., 804 F.2d 787, 795-796 (2d Cir. 1986) .

(n15)Footnote 8. In re Marc Rich & Co., A.G., 739 F.2d 834, 836-837 (2d Cir. 1984) (district court could correct contempt order to reflect court's intent that contemnor serve maximum period allowed by statute when original order was confusing on that matter).

(n16)Footnote 9. See [i], above.

(n17)Footnote 10. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a).

(n18)Footnote 11. Pogor v. Makita U.S.A., Inc., 135 F.3d 384, 386-388 (6th Cir. 1998) .

(n19)Footnote 12. Chavez v. Balesh, 704 F.2d 774, 776 (5th Cir. 1983) .

(n20)Footnote 13. Buggs v. Elgin, Joliet & Eastern Ry. Co., 852 F.2d 318, 322 (7th Cir. 1988) .

(n21)Footnote 14. United States v. Kellogg (In re West Tex. Mktg. Corp.), 12 F.3d 497, 504-505 (5th Cir. 1994) (court noted that there was no bright line test that distinguished substantive errors from clerical mistakes).

(n22)Footnote 15. Kokomo Tube Co. v. Dayton Equip. Servs. Co., 123 F.3d 616, 623 (7th Cir. 1997) .

(n23)Footnote 16. Blanton v. Anzalone, 813 F.2d 1574, 1577 & n.2 (9th Cir. 1987) ; see Brandon v. Chicago Bd. of Educ., 143 F.3d 293, 294-295 & n.2 (7th Cir. 1998) , cert. denied, 525 U.S. 948 (1998) (Rule 60(a) not applicable when challenged order, which dismissed case for want of prosecution, accurately reflected court's intention at time it was entered; error was not in transcription but in court's decision).

(n24)Footnote 17. Warner v. City of Bay St. Louis, 526 F.2d 1211, 1212 (5th Cir. 1976) (citing Moore's Federal Practice); see United States v. Craddock (In re Craddock), 149 F.3d 1249, 1254 n.4 (10th Cir. 1998) (Rule 60(a) is not available to correct something that was deliberately done but is later discovered to be wrong).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
A. RELIEF FROM CLERICAL ERRORS IN JUDGMENT

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.05

§ 26.05 Types of Written Documents That Are Subject to Correctionn*

The court may use Rule 60(a) to correct clerical mistakes or omissions in judgments, orders, or other parts of the record. n1 The language of the rule itself makes clear that the court has power to correct errors in "judgments" or "orders" as used in their ordinary sense, n2 but the rule does not define what constitutes the "record" for purposes of the application of the rule. n3 It is generally accepted that the term "record" is not restricted to the technical common-law or equity "record," but should be given a more comprehensive meaning because of the rule of liberal construction of the federal rules to do substantial justice requires that clerical errors and omissions be corrected, whether or not they occur in papers and documents not included within some technical definition of the word "record." Therefore, as used in Rule 60(a), the "record" refers not only to process, pleadings, verdicts, orders, and judgments, but also to evidentiary documents, testimony taken, instructions to the jury, findings of fact and conclusions of law, and anything of which there is a record in the action. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.10[1] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a).

(n3)Footnote 2. National Bus. Brokers, Ltd. v. Jim Williamson Prods., Inc., 115 F. Supp. 2d 1250, 1255-1256 (D. Colo. 2000) (court may use Rule 60(a) to correct final judgments or interlocutory orders).

(n4)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a).

(n5)Footnote 4. Cf. United States v. Griffin, 782 F.2d 1393, 1396-1397 (7th Cir. 1986) (consent decree was properly corrected under Rule 60(a)).

7 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
A. RELIEF FROM CLERICAL ERRORS IN JUDGMENT

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.06

§ 26.06 Errors Initiated by Either Court or Parties Are Subject to Correctionn*

One may obtain relief under Rule 60(a) from a "clerical" mistake or omission, n1 but that does not mean that the mistake must be committed by the clerk or by the court. It has been held that Rule 60(a) provides relief from mistakes committed by the court, a court clerk, the jury, or a party. n2 For example, one court held that it was proper to use Rule 60(a) to correct a damages award that was incorrect because it was based on an erroneous mathematical computation, irrespective of whether the error was made by the jury or by the court. n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.10[2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a).

(n3)Footnote 2. United States v. Kellogg (In re West Texas Mktg. Corp.), 12 F.3d 497, 503-504 (5th Cir. 1994) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Harcon Barge Co., Inc. v. D & G Boat Rentals, Inc., 784 F.2d 665, 669 (5th Cir. 1986) , cert. denied, 479 U.S. 930 (1986) ; see Esquire Radio & Elecs., Inc. v. Montgomery Ward & Co., 804 F.2d 787, 796 (2d Cir. 1986) (jury award for plaintiff was properly amended as clerical error under Rule 60(a) when jury had clearly transposed two digits in making award).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
A. RELIEF FROM CLERICAL ERRORS IN JUDGMENT

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.07

§ 26.07 Time Limitations on Correction of Clerical Errors and Omissionsn*

[1] No Appeal Pending

A district court may rectify clerical mistakes and mistakes arising from oversight or omission at any time that there is no currently-pending appeal. n1 For example, in one case it was held that Rule 60(a) allowed a district court to correct its omission of liquidated damages from a judgment 86 days after entry of judgment, and it was also held that the defendant was not even entitled to notice and hearing before the court made the correction, because the court's findings of fact had clearly stated the court's intention to award liquidated damages. n2 It should be noted that neither the filing of a motion to correct a clerical error, nor the district court's entry of an modified judgment to correct a clerical error under Rule 60(a) restart the running of the time for appeal, which must be measured from the entry of the original judgment. n3

Even after an appellate court has decided the appeal of a case, a district court may correct clerical errors at any time that a current appeal is not pending. Although Rule 60(a) is silent on this issue, most courts have held that appellate review of a judgment does not preclude later district court action pursuant to Rule 60(a), provided that the correction otherwise qualifies as a clerical error or omission under Rule 60(a) and the appellate court has not ruled expressly or implicitly on the issue that is the subject of the correction. n4 For example, in a bankruptcy case it was held that the affirmance by the appellate court of a bankruptcy court judgment did not prohibit the bankruptcy court from correcting its over one-year-old judgment to declare that a state court judgment debt was nondischargeable, because the correction fixed a clear clerical mistake, the appellate court had not ruled on the issue, and the correction coincided with the original intent of the bankruptcy court. n5

[2] Appeal Pending

Before an appeal is docketed, a district court may continue to correct clerical mistakes as if no appeal were pending. n1 This rule applies because the pendency of an appeal and the pendency of Rule 60(a) corrections of clerical mistakes generally operate completely independently of each other and because the correction of truly clerical errors does nothing more than make the judgment reflect what the court actually decided. n2 It should also be noted that the filing of a motion to correct a clerical error or the district court's entry of an modified judgment to correct a clerical error

under Rule 60(a) does not invalidate a previously filed notice of appeal, and the appellant is not required to file a new notice of appeal. The correction does not affect the finality of the original judgment nor does it toll the time limit within which one may file notice of an appeal. n3

Once an appeal is docketed, and for the remainder of the time the appeal is pending, the district court may correct clerical errors under Rule 60(a) only with the permission of the appellate court. n4 An appeal is "docketed" when it is entered onto the docket of the court of appeals and after the district court clerk transmits the notice of appeal and the district court docket entries. n5 If permission has been granted by the court of appeals, the district court has the power to correct clerical mistakes. n6 On the other hand, if leave to correct has not been obtained after docketing, the failure nullifies any corrective orders made under Rule 60(a) without the required permission. n7

If the appellate court cannot determine the type of error, the appellate court may remand the case to the trial court to permit the lower court to resolve the issue of whether the asserted error could be corrected as clerical error under Rule 60(a), n8 or whether the error was a result of a mistaken determination of the facts or law, in which case the error is not subject to correction under Rule 60(a). n9 One court has held that, rather than remanding a case to the district court for the correction of a truly clerical error in the judgment or order appealed from, the circuit court may simply treat the judgment or order as if it had been corrected. n10

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.12 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a).

(n3)Footnote 2. Chavez v. Balesh, 704 F.2d 774, 776-777 (5th Cir. 1983) (no abuse of discretion in correcting judgment to award liquidated damages when court's original intent to make award abundantly clear from record).

(n4)Footnote 3. Rezzonico v. H & R Block, Inc., 182 F.3d 144, 150-151 (2d Cir. 1999) , cert. denied, 528 U.S. 1189 (2000) .

(n5)Footnote 4. In re Marc Rich & Co. A.G., 739 F.2d 834, 837-838 (2d Cir. 1984) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n6)Footnote 5. Klingman v. Levinson, 877 F.2d 1357, 1363 (7th Cir. 1989) .

(n7)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a).

(n8)Footnote 2. See Aloe Coal Co. Clark Equip. Co., 816 F.2d 110, 112-113 (3d Cir. 1987) , cert. denied, 484 U.S. 853 (1987) .

(n9)Footnote 3. Gillis v. Hoechst Celanese Corp., 4 F.3d 1137, 1139 n.1 (3d Cir. 1993) .

(n10)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a).

(n11)Footnote 5. See Fed. R. App. P. 12(a).

(n12)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a).

(n13)Footnote 7. Toscano v. Chandris, S.A., 934 F.2d 383, 386 (1st Cir. 1991) .

(n14)Footnote 8. See Morrison Knudsen Corp. v. Ground Improvement Techniques, Inc., 532 F.3d 1063, 1085 (10th Cir. 2008) .

(n15)Footnote 9. United States v. Craddock (In re Craddock), 149 F.3d 1249, 1254 (10th Cir. 1998) .

(n16)Footnote 10. Bauman v. U.S. Healthcare, Inc. (In re U.S. Healthcare, Inc.), 193 F.3d 151, 158 n.2 (3d Cir. 1999) , cert. denied, 530 U.S. 1242 (2000) (formality of correction by district court is not always necessary).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
A. RELIEF FROM CLERICAL ERRORS IN JUDGMENT

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.08

§ 26.08 Procedures for Correction of Clerical Errors and Omissionsn*

[1] Correction of Error by Court on Its Own Initiative

In addition to motions by the parties, n1 the court on its own initiative may at any time correct clerical mistakes or omissions in judgments, orders, or other parts of the record. n2 For example, a court on its own initiative properly corrected its judgment when it inadvertently omitted liquidated damages, because the court's findings made it clear that it had intended to award liquidated damages to the plaintiff. When the mistake is apparent from the face of the record, the court need not provide notice to the parties that the error will be corrected. The court may simply issue its order correcting the clerical mistake or omission. n3

On the other hand, some courts have indicated that when the mistake is not apparent on the face of the record and evidence must be heard to determine whether there is in fact a clerical mistake, the parties should be given notice and an opportunity to be heard. n4

Before Rule 60 was adopted, notice to the parties was required before a court could correct a mistake not apparent on the face of the record. There are arguable policy reasons why the distinction should continue to apply under current Rule 60(a) because if a mistake must be supported by proof from outside the record, the parties should be entitled to examine and cross-examine that proof. However, in most cases, any mistake will be apparent on the face of the record, and if it needs proof from outside the record, it will not be the kind of "clerical" mistake correctable under Rule 60(a) in any event. n5

[2] Correction of Error After Motion of Party

The district court may correct clerical mistakes in response to a party's motion and after such notice as the court requires. n1 The court should make a correction whenever it observes that a clerical error has been made, but circumstances occur in which an adversely affected party will need to initiate the correction. For example, in one case the defendant moved for a correction to delete prejudgment interest that had been erroneously awarded to the plaintiff in connection with enforcement of a stock redemption agreement. n2 As noted above, there is authority for the proposition that the court must give the parties notice and an opportunity to be heard when the mistake is not apparent on the face of the record, and when the court must hear evidence in order to determine whether there is a clerical mistake. n3

The form of a motion to correct should comply with Rule 7(b). n4 If the court orders notice of the motion to be given, the motion may be served pursuant to Rule 5 n5 and, unless the court prescribes a different period, should be served not 14 days before the hearing date. n6 If service is made by mail, three days are added to the 14-day period. n7

[3] Method of Correction

Rule 60(a) does not specify the manner in which the court must correct clerical mistakes. n1 However, the court and the parties should use a correction method that makes the judgment, order, or record as clear as possible. Again, there are no particular requirements in the federal rules as to how that must be done. One appellate court has noted that although an informal method of correction is not recommended, informal corrections are within the district court's power. n2

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.13 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See [2], below.

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a).

(n4)Footnote 3. Chavez v. Balesh, 704 F.2d 774, 776-777 (5th Cir. 1983) .

(n5)Footnote 4. See Kelly v. Herrell, 392 B.R. 750, 756-757 (W.D. Wis. 2007) ; United States v. 706. 98 Acres of Land, 158 F. Supp. 272, 275 (W.D. Ark. 1958) .

(n6)Footnote 5. See § 26.03.

(n7)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a).

(n8)Footnote 2. Blanton v. Anzalone, 813 F.2d 1574, 1577 (9th Cir. 1987) (error to include interest in judgment when court made repeated statements on record that court did not intend to award prejudgment interest to plaintiff).

(n9)Footnote 3. United States v. 706. 98 Acres of Land, 158 F. Supp. 272, 275 (W.D. Ark. 1958) ; see [1], above.

(n10)Footnote 4. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 7(b).

(n11)Footnote 5. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 5.

(n12)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(c)(1).

(n13)Footnote 7. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(d); see also Ch. 9, Pleadings and Motions in General.

(n14)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a).

(n15)Footnote 2. Jernigan v. Southern Pac. Co., 222 F.2d 245, 247-248 (9th Cir. 1955) (court forwarded letter from party to judge concerning mistakes, and judge merely wrote to clerk directing clerk to make necessary corrections).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
A. RELIEF FROM CLERICAL ERRORS IN JUDGMENT

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 26.09through 26.19

[Reserved]

§§ 26.09[Reserved]

11 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
1. Scope of Available Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.20

§ 26.20 Specific Procedure to Obtain Relief From Substantive Errors in Judgmentn*

The federal rules provide a specific procedure for a party or a party's representative to obtain relief from substantive errors in a judgment, n1 which is separate and in addition to the procedure for relief from clerical errors or omissions in a judgment. n2 The primary purpose of Rule 60(b) is to permit the trial court to reconsider and correct obvious substantive errors of law in a judgment without forcing the parties to appeal. n3 The rule enables a court to grant a party relief from a judgment in circumstances in which the need for fairness outweighs the value of finality in litigation. n4 Rule 60(b) may not be granted as a substitute for a proper and timely appeal. n5

The scope of relief that may be obtained under Rule 60(b) is limited to the following specific circumstances:

1. Mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect. n6

2. Newly discovered evidence that the moving party could not have discovered in time to move for a new trial. n7

3. Fraud, misrepresentation, or other misconduct of an adverse party. n8

4. Void judgment. n9

5. Satisfaction, release, or discharge of judgment; reversal or vacation of judgment; or inequity in judgment that precludes its prospective application. n10

6. Any other reason that justifies relief from judgment. n11

Rule 60(b) expressly permits parties or their representatives to obtain this relief from judgment by means of a duly-noticed motion. However, the rule also permits the parties or their representatives to obtain relief by some of the procedural means that existed prior to the enactment of the rule, such as, by means of a new and independent action, n12 or by means of existing statutory procedures, such as, when jurisdiction is exercised in rem without actual notice to persons with an interest in the property. On the other hand, Rule 60(b) explicitly eliminates other pre-rule remedies such as writs of coram nobis, coram vobis, audita querela, and bills of review and bills in the nature of bills of review. n13 The relief available under Rule 60(b) may be contractually waived, for example, in an agreement to submit a claim to alternative dispute resolution. n14

Even though Rule 60(b) lists the six substantive grounds above for relief from a judgment or order, and there is a considerable system of law on each of these grounds, the rule does not specify the substantive law as to the grounds for vacating judgments, but merely prescribes the practice in proceedings to obtain relief. In other words, the moving party must show compliance with all of the procedural requirements of Rule 60(b), and then establish one or more of the rule's six substantive grounds for relief from judgment. n15

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesExcusable NeglectCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesInadvertenceCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesMistakeCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesSurprise

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 60.02[2], 60.20 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b).

(n3)Footnote 2. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a).

(n4)Footnote 3. United States v. 329. 73 Acres of Land, 695 F.2d 922, 925 (5th Cir. 1983) .

(n5)Footnote 4. See Lonsdorf v. Seefeldt, 47 F.3d 893, 897 (7th Cir. 1995) .

(n6)Footnote 5. United States v. Mosbrucker, 340 F.3d 664, 665 (8th Cir. 2003) .

(n7)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(1); see § 26.41.

(n8)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(2); see § 26.42.

(n9)Footnote 8. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(3); see § 26.43.

(n10)Footnote 9. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(4); see § 26.44.

(n11)Footnote 10. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(5); see § 26.45.

(n12)Footnote 11. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(6); see § 26.46.

(n13)Footnote 12. See § 26.80.

(n14)Footnote 13. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b).

(n15)Footnote 14. Bledsoe v. Dalkon Shield Claimants Trust (In re A.H. Robins Co.), 112 F.3d 160, 162 (4th Cir. 1997) .

(n16)Footnote 15. Medlock v. Rumsfeld, 336 F. Supp. 2d 452, 468 (D. Md. 2003) ; see United States v. Beggerly, 524 U.S. 38, 43-45, 118 S. Ct. 1862, 141 L. Ed. 2d 32 (1998) .

12 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
1. Scope of Available Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.21

§ 26.21 Coordination of Motion to Obtain Relief From Substantive Error With Other Similar Motionsn*

[1] Similar Forms of Relief

Rule 60(b) was designed to create a procedural mechanism to relieve parties from certain substantive errors in judgments. Other federal rules provide similar forms of relief, and attorneys should consider these other rules whenever a Rule 60(b) motion appears appropriate. However, the practitioner should remember that even though a similar motion may be deemed a Rule 60(b) motion in certain circumstances, all forms of similar relief are not interchangeable. Consequently, Rule 60(b) may not be used to belatedly perform functions that are controlled by other rules. For example, a party may not use a Rule 60(b) motion to be relieved from judgment when the party is essentially trying to make a late Rule 12(b)(6) motion for failure to state a claim. The defense of failure to state a claim may be raised in a Rule 12 motion, in any pleading permitted or ordered under Rule 7(a), in a motion for judgment on the pleadings, or at trial, but it is waived if not made before the completion of a trial on the merits. n1 Furthermore, because the scope of relief that may be obtained under Rule 60(b) is strictly limited to the circumstances specified in the rule, Rule 60(b) may not be used as a substitute for an appeal when a party has not made timely appeal under the proper procedure. n2

[2] Time Limits

Ordinarily, a district court pursuant to Rule 6(b) may enlarge the time limit for taking and considering procedural motions. However, by the specific terms of Rule 6(b), n1 a court may not consider an enlargement regarding any motion under Rule 60(b). n2 Thus, a court may only consider a Rule 60(b) motion if it is made within a "reasonable" time, and if the motion is based on Rule 60(b)(1)-(3) grounds, only if it was made not more than one year from the date that of the judgment, order, or proceeding. n3

Rule 58 specifies the procedure for entry of judgment. n4 This is significant for purposes of Rule 60(b) because the one-year period within which a party may move for relief from a judgment under Rule 60(b)(1)-(3) runs from the date of the entry of judgment. n5

[3] Motion for New Trial

Both the Rule 59(a) motion for new trial and Rule 60(b) may afford a party relief on the ground of newly discovered evidence. If the evidence is discovered in time for the party to file a motion within a strictly-limited 28-day period from the entry of judgment, the affected party may seek a new trial under Rule 59(a), or the court may grant a motion for new trial sua sponte. n1 If the evidence comes to light after the expiration of the 28-day period, but within one year of entry of judgment, the party may seek relief under Rule 60(b)(2). n2 However, Rule 60(b) relief may not be granted sua sponte. n3 Another major difference between a new trial motion and a Rule 60(b) motion is that a motion for a new trial suspends the finality of the judgment and the time for the filing of an appeal from the judgment. n4 On the other hand, filing of a timely Rule 60(b) motion does not affect the finality of a judgment or suspend its operation, nor does it toll the running of the time for filing an appeal. n5

[4] Motion for Amendment of Findings

Rule 52(b) allows a party in a nonjury trial, or in any trial in which matters are submitted to the court rather than to the jury, to move the court to amend its findings or to make additional findings. Such a motion must be filed no later than 28 days after entry of the judgment in question. n1 However, an untimely Rule 52(b) motion to amend may be treated as Rule 60(b) motion if the grounds for seeking amended or additional findings are also a basis for Rule 60(b) relief. n2 It should be noted that filing a Rule 60(b) motion does not affect the finality of the underlying judgment, n3 while a timely-filed Rule 52(b) motion does suspend both the judgment's finality and the time for filing a notice of appeal. n4

[5] Motion for Amendment of Judgment

A motion to alter or amend a judgment under Rule 59(e) must be made no later than 28 days after judgment. n1 However, a court may treat an untimely Rule 59(e) motion to alter or amend a judgment as if it were a Rule 60(b) motion if the grounds asserted in support of the Rule 59(e) motion would also support Rule 60(b) relief. n2 As noted by one circuit court, there is a bright-line rule for distinguishing 59(e) motions from 60(b) motions: the time of a motion's filing controls whether a motion challenging a judgment is a 60(b) or a 59(e) motion. Of course, the substantive standards of the two rules still differ: the bright line rule merely addresses which rule's standards apply. n3

It is the substance and not the label that controls. Thus, it has been held that a "motion for reconsideration" of a nonfinal order that was a "final disposition" of a qualified-immunity defense was properly classified as a motion for relief under Rule 60(b), because Rule 60(b) includes motions filed in response to nonfinal orders as well as judgments, while Rule 59(e) encompasses only motions to alter or amend judgments. n4

[6] Order of Entry of Final Judgment

Rule 60(b) expressly provides that it is only applicable to final judgments, orders, or proceedings. n1 In litigation involving multiple claims or multiple parties, an order completely disposing of a single claim or a single party is not final unless the court makes an express order pursuant to Rule 54(b) that there is no just reason for delay to enter final judgment, and expressly directs entry of judgment. n2 Therefore, if a party is filing a Rule 60(b) motion in litigation that involves multiple claims or multiple parties, the party should refer to Rule 54(b) to determine whether the judgment or order from which relief is sought is "final." n3

[7] Setting Aside of Default Judgment

A district court has the express power under Rule 55(c) to set aside the default of a party. Rule 55(c) also states that, if a judgment has been entered as a result of a default, the court may set that judgment aside in accordance with Rule 60(b). n1 It should be noted that the test is more strict for setting aside under Rule 60(b) than for setting aside under Rule 55(c). For example, excusable neglect is required by Rule 60(b)(1) to set aside a default judgment; n1.1 but setting aside an entry of default under Rule 55(c) requires only good cause, n1.2 which is a less demanding standard. n2 A full discussion of defaults, default judgments, and the standards for setting aside defaults and default judgments may be found in Ch. 25, Judgment.

[8] Stay of Judgment

A district court has discretion pursuant to Rule 62(b) to stay the execution of a judgment or to stay any proceedings to enforce a judgment during the time that the court is considering a Rule 60 motion for relief from a judgment or order. n1 The court also has discretion to stay a judgment while considering a new trial motion, a motion for judgment as a matter of law, or a motion to amend a judgment. n2 However, in its discretion the court may deny any such motion for stay when the moving party fails to establish the grounds for a particular rule. n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsDefaultRelief From DefaultCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsStays Pending AppealsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions for New TrialsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & Amend

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.02[2] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Eberhardt v. Integrated Design & Constr., Inc., 167 F.3d 861, 870-871 (4th Cir. 1999) .

(n3)Footnote 2. See Stoller v. Pure Fishing, Inc., 528 F.3d 478, 480 (7th Cir. 2008) .

(n4)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(b)(2).

(n5)Footnote 2. See Brosted v. Unum Life Ins. Co. of Am., 421 F.3d 459, 464 n.3 (4th Cir. 2005) .

(n6)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(c)(1); see § 26.61[3].

(n7)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58.

(n8)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(c)(1).

(n9)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(b), (d).

(n10)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(2).

(n11)Footnote 3. See Highland Tank & Mfg. Co. v. PS Int'l, Inc., 227 F.R.D. 374, 378 (W.D. Pa. 2005) .

(n12)Footnote 4. Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4)(A)(v).

(n13)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(c)(2); see Howard v. United States, 533 F.3d 472, 474-475 (6th Cir. 2008) .

(n14)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(b).

(n15)Footnote 2. United States v. Clark, 984 F.2d 31, 34 (2d Cir. 1993) ; Nisson v. Lundy, 975 F.2d 802, 806 (11th Cir. 1992) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n16)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(c)(2).

(n17)Footnote 4. Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4)(A)(ii).

(n18)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(e).

(n19)Footnote 2. Wendy's Int'l v. Nu-Cape Constr., 169 F.R.D. 680, 684 (M.D. Fla. 1996) (if served within 10 days (now 28 days) motion challenging judgment on merits is considered Rule 59(e) motion; otherwise, motion is considered Rule 60(b) motion).

(n20)Footnote 3. Helm v. Resolution Trust Corp., 43 F.3d 1163, 1166-1167 (7th Cir. 1995) .

(n21)Footnote 4. Broadway v. Norris, 193 F.3d 987, 989 (8th Cir. 1999) .

(n22)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b).

(n23)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b); see Ch. 25, Judgment.

(n24)Footnote 3. Elmore v. Henderson, 227 F.3d 1009, 1012-1013 (7th Cir. 2000) .

(n25)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(c).

(n26)Footnote 1.1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(1).

(n27)Footnote 1.2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(c).

(n28)Footnote 2. Conetta v. National Hair Care Ctrs., Inc., 236 F.3d 67, 70 (1st Cir. 2001) ; Jones v. Phipps, 39 F.3d 158, 162 (7th Cir. 1994) (because of preference for finality of judgments, application of test under Rule 60(b) circumstances, when default judgment has been entered, is more limited and stringent even though grounds are identical under either Rule 55(c) or Rule 60(b)).

(n29)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62(b)(4); *see Steele v. Hernandez, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 83189, at *3-4 (E.D. Cal. Sept. 9, 2008) (court's discretion is based on whether grounds for Rule 60 relief has been shown).

(n30)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62(b)(1)-(3).

(n31)Footnote 3. See, e.g., Polin v. Kellwood Co., 132 F. Supp. 2d 126, 128 (S.D.N.Y. 2000) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
1. Scope of Available Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.22

§ 26.22 Methods to Obtain Relief From Judgmentn*

[1] Four Methods to Obtain Relief From Judgment

The motion for relief from judgment under Rule 60(b) n1 is but one of four alternatives for obtaining relief from a judgment. n2 In this regard, Rule 60 specifically provides that the rule does not limit a court's power to grant relief using any of the other three alternatives:1. Hear an independent action to relieve a party from a judgment, order, or proceeding. n3 2. Grant statutory relief to a defendant who was not personally notified of an action on a lien or encumbrance. n4 3. Set aside a judgment for fraud on the court. n5 Rule 60 explicitly eliminates historic methods of relief from a judgment, including bills of review, bills in the nature of bills of review, writs of coram nobis, writs of coram vobis, and audita querela. n6 Relief under these abolished remedies must now be requested by a Rule 60(b) motion or by an independent action. n6.1 The nomenclature used to seek relief from a judgment is not important, and thus, a proceeding for relief under Rule 60(b) may in appropriate circumstances be treated as an independent action. n7 Similarly, an independent action may be treated as a proceeding under Rule 60(b). n8

[2] Motion Under Federal Rule for Relief From Judgment

Under Rule 60(b), a court has discretion to relieve a party of a final judgment, order, or proceeding, for any of the grounds listed in the rule. n1 Thus, the rule allows the court on motion of a party to grant relief on such terms as are just. n2 The purpose of Rule 60(b) is to substitute either a simple motion procedure or an independent action for all of the various grounds and procedures that were available before the rules were adopted. n3

Rule 60(b) may overlap with other federal rules to a certain extent. n4 For example, both Rule 59 and Rule 60(b) permit relief if there is newly-discovered evidence. n5 Consequently, there may be some question as to which rule is the more appropriate in any particular situation, and one motion may be appropriate within the 10-day period and another motion appropriate after the 10-day period expires. n6

A Rule 60(b) motion generally is not a prerequisite for appeal. Thus, if an appellant seeks reversal of the trial court's conclusion on a legal issue, the failure to make a Rule 60(b) motion does not waive the appeal. n7

[3] Independent Action for Relief From Judgment

Rule 60 explicitly provides that the availability of the Rule 60(b) motion does not limit the power of a court to entertain an independent action to relieve a party from a final judgment, order, or proceeding. n1 The primary advantage of an independent action to set aside a judgment is that the independent action does not require a separate source of subject matter jurisdiction. n2 Additionally, an independent action may be the only means of relief, for example, when the time to move for relief on the basis of mistake or fraud precludes relief under Rule 60(b)(1) or (3). n3 Even though the extraordinary equitable relief afforded in an independent action pursuant to Rule 60(d) is more difficult to obtain than relief that might be available through a timely Rule 60(b) motion, it remains the same type of relief, relief from an otherwise final judgment. n4 Additionally, because Rule 60(b) applies only to federal district court judgments rendered in civil actions, the independent action must be used if relief is sought in federal court from a state judgment, unless the state action is properly removed. n5

The merger of law and equity and the availability of Rule 60(b) as a comprehensive motion procedure for obtaining relief from judgments have greatly reduced the need for the independent action in equity as an instrument for obtaining relief from judgments. Thus, the Supreme Court has noted that independent actions are reserved for those cases of injustices which are deemed sufficiently severe to demand a departure from the strict adherence to the doctrine of res judicata and, further, that independent actions are available only to prevent a grave miscarriage of justice. n6 Consequently, in an independent action for relief, a party must demonstrate several essential elements based on traditional equitable principles. n7 For a further discussion of the standards and procedures governing an independent action, see § 26.80.

[4] Preservation of Statutory Remedy for Relief From Judgment In Rem

Rule 60(b) explicitly preserves the statutory procedures available for relief from certain judgments entered by a district court in in rem cases involving a lien or encumbrance within the district. n1 Thus, Rule 60 does not affect the power of a court to grant relief to a defendant not actually personally notified of a judgment in such cases. n2 Note that relief from a judgment entered in the statutory proceeding is governed by its own terms, and is entirely distinct from Rule 60 procedure. n3 The statute requires personal service on absent defendants, when possible, but permits service by publication if personal service is not possible. If personal service is not made on a defendant and judgment is rendered in the case, that judgment may be set aside automatically. The only requirement for the defendant who was not personally served to set the judgment aside is to enter his or her appearance within one year after final judgment. The court may then permit the defendant to plead and defend the action on payment of the amount of costs that the court deems just. n4

[5] Relief From Judgment Procured by Fraud on Court

The availability of relief under Rule 60(b) does not limit the authority of a court to set aside a judgment for fraud perpetrated on the court. n1 This provision recognizes the inherent power of a court to grant relief when fraud has been perpetrated on it. "Fraud on the court" is misconduct that undermines the integrity of the judicial process or prevents the court from performing its functions in an impartial manner. Therefore, the "fraud on the court" standard is distinct from the more general fraud standard of Rule 60(b)(3). A party moving to set aside a judgment under the court's inherent power must prove the fraud on the court by clear and convincing evidence. Furthermore, the moving party must also establish that the fraud on the court actually prejudices the party. n2 A finding of fraud on the court is justified only by the most egregious misconduct directed to the court itself which actually deceives the court, n3 such as bribery of a judge or jury or the fabrication of evidence by counsel. n4 Either the district or appellate court that is the object of the fraud may exercise its inherent power to remedy the fraud. n5 For a further discussion of the standards and procedures governing relief based on a party's fraud on the court, see § 26.81.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentFraudCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentIndependent Actions

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.21 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See [2], below.

(n3)Footnote 2. Gonzalez v. Sec'y for the Dep't of Corr., 366 F.3d 1253, 1290-1291 (11th Cir. 2004) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(d)(1); see [3], below.

(n5)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(d)(2); see 28 U.S.C. § 1655; see also [4], below.

(n6)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(d)(3); see [5], below.

(n7)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(e); see Trenkler v. United States, 536 F.3d 85, 93 (1st Cir. 2008) .

(n8)Footnote 6.1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b), (d); see United States v. Beggerly, 524 U.S. 38, 44-45, 118 S. Ct. 1862, 141 L. Ed. 2d 32 (1998) ; see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b), Committee Notes to 2007 Amendments.

(n9)Footnote 7. Weldon v. United States, 70 F.3d 1, 5 (2d Cir. 1995) .

(n10)Footnote 8. Nevada VTN v. General Ins. Co., 834 F.2d 770, 775 (9th Cir. 1987) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n11)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b); see § 26.40.

(n12)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b).

(n13)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b), Advisory Committee Note to 1946 Amendments; see United States v. Beggerly, 524 U.S. 38, 44-45, 118 S. Ct. 1862, 141 L. Ed. 2d 32 (1998) .

(n14)Footnote 4. See § 26.21.

(n15)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59, 60(b)(2).

(n16)Footnote 6. See § 26.21.

(n17)Footnote 7. Denius v. Dunlap, 209 F.3d 944, 959 (7th Cir. 2000) (although appellant could have sought Rule 60 relief, failure to do so did not waive claim that district court made erroneous conclusion of law).

(n18)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(d)(1).

(n19)Footnote 2. United States v. Beggerly, 524 U.S. 38, 45, 118 S. Ct. 1862, 141 L. Ed. 2d 32 (1998) .

(n20)Footnote 3. Jones v. Anderson-Tully Co., 722 F.2d 211, 212 (5th Cir. 1984) .

(n21)Footnote 4. Superior Seafoods, Inc. v. Tyson Foods, Inc., 620 F.3d 873, 878 (8th Cir. 2010) .

(n22)Footnote 5. See Northshore Dev., Inc. v. Lee, 835 F.2d 580, 582 (5th Cir. 1988) .

(n23)Footnote 6. United States v. Beggerly, 524 U.S. 38, 46-47, 118 S. Ct. 1862, 141 L. Ed. 2d 32 (1998) .

(n24)Footnote 7. See Campaniello Imports, Ltd. v. Saporiti Italia S.p.A., 117 F.3d 655, 661 (2d Cir. 1997) ; *see also Manti's Transp., Inc. v. Citicapital Commer. Corp., 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 29074, at 17 (E.D.N.Y. Apr. 9, 2008) .

(n25)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(d)(2); see 28 U.S.C. § 1655.

(n26)Footnote 2. See 28 U.S.C. § 1655.

(n27)Footnote 3. See Herring v. United States, 424 F.3d 384, 389 (3d Cir. 2005) .

(n28)Footnote 4. 28 U.S.C. § 1655.

(n29)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(d)(3).

(n30)Footnote 2. Wickens v. Shell Oil Co., 620 F.3d 747, 759 (7th Cir. 2010) .

(n31)Footnote 3. Herring v. United States, 424 F.3d 384, 386-387 (3d Cir. 2005) .

(n32)Footnote 4. Greiner v. City of Champlin, 152 F.3d 787, 789 (8th Cir. 1998) .

(n33)Footnote 5. See Universal Oil Prods. Co. v. Root Ref. Co., 328 U.S. 575, 580-581, 66 S. Ct. 1176 (1946) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
1. Scope of Available Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.23

§ 26.23 Discretion of Court Controls Grant of Relief From Judgmentn*

Under Rule 60(b), the court may relieve a party from a substantive error in a final judgment, order, or proceeding. n1 In this regard, the word "may" has been consistently interpreted to mean that a party has no right to relief, n2 except when a motion under Rule 60(b)(4) is from a judgment that is totally void. n3 Consequently, a determination as to whether relief should be granted is committed to the sound discretion of the court. n4 Furthermore, the court's discretion extends to all aspects of the decision, including whether the motion was brought within a "reasonable time" as required by Rule 60(b). Thus, whether the moving party acted promptly or was dilatory in bringing the motion is one factor that the court in its discretion may consider. n5

There are limits on the court's discretion, however. The court may not exercise discretion arbitrarily or capriciously, but must be guided by accepted legal principles, n6 which include the principles that:

1. Rule 60(b) may not substitute for a timely appeal. n7 Courts may not grant relief when the moving party has not been diligent in protecting its own rights by filing an appeal from an adverse judgment. n8

2. A party is entitled to relief under Rule 60(b) only if the moving party acts within a "reasonable" time. n9

3. Finality of judgments is of great importance. n10

4. The law prefers giving parties a determination on the merits of claims, so a court may be more inclined to grant a motion in a case in which the moving party has defaulted than in cases already determined on the merits. n11

5. The court may deny relief if setting aside the judgment would cause prejudice to a party. n12

6. The law prefers not to set aside judgments that are consensual. Thus, when a party has made a free, calculated and deliberate choice to submit to an agreed upon decree, rather than seek a more favorable litigation judgment, their burden under Rule 60(b) may be considered more formidable than had they litigated and lost. n13

7. The relief provided by Rule 60(b) is equitable in nature n14 and, in exercising its discretion under Rule 60(b), a court should consider whether the moving party has acted equitably. n15

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewAbuse of Discretion

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.22 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b).

(n3)Footnote 2. Williams v. Thaler, 602 F.3d 291, 312 (5th Cir. 2010) (decision to grant or deny relief under Rule 60(b) is within sound discretion of district court and will be reversed only for abuse of that discretion).

(n4)Footnote 3. FEC v. Salvi, 205 F.3d 1015, 1019 (7th Cir. 2000) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(4); see also § 26.44.

(n5)Footnote 4. McLawhorn v. John W. Daniel & Co., 924 F.2d 535, 538 (4th Cir. 1991) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Federal Land Bank v. Cupples Bros., 889 F.2d 764, 767 (8th Cir. 1989) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n7)Footnote 6. Amoco Oil Co. v. United States EPA, 231 F.3d 694, 697 (10th Cir. 2000) .

(n8)Footnote 7. Godwin v. Federal Sav. & Loan Ins. Corp., 806 F.2d 1290, 1294 (5th Cir. 1987) (issue of whether court had jurisdiction was one that should have been undertaken on direct appeal, rather than through Rule 60(b) motion).

(n9)Footnote 8. Sanders v. Clemco Indus., 862 F.2d 161, 168-170 (8th Cir. 1988) .

(n10)Footnote 9. First RepublicBank Fort Worth v. Norglass, Inc., 958 F.2d 117, 121 (5th Cir. 1992) .

(n11)Footnote 10. Paddington Partners v. Bouchard, 34 F.3d 1132, 1144 (2d Cir. 1994) .

(n12)Footnote 11. Feliciano v. Reliant Tooling Co., 691 F.2d 653, 656 (3d Cir. 1982) .

(n13)Footnote 12. Amernational Industries, Inc. v. Action-Tungsram, Inc., 925 F.2d 970, 976-977 (6th Cir. 1991) , cert. denied, 501 U.S. 1233 (1991) .

(n14)Footnote 13. Metlyn Realty Corp. v. Esmark, Inc., 763 F.2d 826, 831-832 (7th Cir. 1985) ; Delaware Valley Citizens' Council for Clean Air v. Pennsylvania, 755 F.2d 38, 45 (3d Cir. 1985) , cert. denied, 474 U.S. 819 (1985) .

(n15)Footnote 14. Superior Seafoods, Inc. v. Tyson Foods, Inc., 620 F.3d 873, 878 (8th Cir. 2010) .

(n16)Footnote 15. Di Vito v. Fidelity & Deposit Co., 361 F.2d 936, 939 (7th Cir. 1966) .

15 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
1. Scope of Available Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.24

§ 26.24 Relief Available Only From Final Judgmentn*

Rule 60(b) provides expressly that the court may grant relief from a final judgment, order, or proceeding, n1 and all courts have held that this means that a "final" judgment is needed to support a Rule 60(b) motion. n2 The standard test for whether a judgment is "final" for Rule 60(b) purposes is usually stated to be whether the judgment is sufficiently "final" to be appealed. n3 However, there are some situations under which "appealability" and "finality" for Rule 60(b) purposes are not exactly identical. For example, consent judgments and judgments resulting from a Rule 68 "offer of judgment" may finally resolve all issues in a litigation but may not be appealable judgments. Nevertheless, despite their lack of appealability, a consent judgment is sufficiently final to support a Rule 60(b) motion, n4 as is a judgment resulting from a Rule 68 offer of judgment. n5 Even though interlocutory orders and partial judgments are not subject to the restrictive provisions of Rule 60(b), they remain within the plenary power of the district court to modify its prior rulings and to grant such relief as justice requires. n6

For a complete discussion of finality of a judgment sufficient to support an appeal, see Ch. 28, Appeal to Court of Appeals.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.23 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b).

(n3)Footnote 2. See, e.g., McMillan v. MBank Fort Worth, N.A., 4 F.3d 362, 366 (5th Cir. 1993) .

(n4)Footnote 3. United States v. Martin, 226 F.3d 1042, 1048 n.8 (9th Cir. 2000) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n5)Footnote 4. United States v. Baus, 834 F.2d 1114, 1119 (1st Cir. 1987.

(n6)Footnote 5. Mallory v. Eyrich, 922 F.2d 1273, 1279 (6th Cir. 1991) .

(n7)Footnote 6. Fayetteville Investors v. Commercial Builders, Inc., 936 F.2d 1462, 1472-1473 (4th Cir. 1991) (district court erred in applying standards of Rule 60(b) to plaintiffs' motion for reconsideration of dismissal under Rule 12; restrictive standards of Rule 60(b) are applicable only to final judgments).

16 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
1. Scope of Available Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.25

§ 26.25 Moving Party Must Show Some Merit on Claim or Defensen*

Before the moving party is entitled to relief from a substantive error in a judgment, the party must show that he or she has a meritorious claim or defense, and thus convince the court that vacating the judgment will not be an empty exercise. n1 The only exception to this requirement is that the party need not show a meritorious defense to set aside a completely void judgment. n2

The required showing of a meritorious claim or defense does not mean that the moving party must show that he or she is likely to prevail. n3 Thus, the moving party must make allegations that, if established at trial, would constitute a valid claim or defense. n4 In other words, allegations stating a claim or defense in this context are meritorious if they contain "even a hint of a suggestion" n5 which, if proven at trial, would constitute a valid claim or a complete defense. n6 On the other hand, it is not sufficient for the moving party to provide mere conclusionary statements that a claim or a defense is meritorious; the moving party must state sufficient facts to give a court an opportunity to measure whether the claim or defense has any potential and is one that is recognized by law. n7

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.24 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Boyd v. Bulala, 905 F.2d 764, 769 (4th Cir. 1990) (threshold condition for granting relief is that moving party demonstrate that granting relief will not have been futile gesture, by showing that she has meritorious defense or claim).

(n3)Footnote 2. Bludworth Bond Shipyard, Inc. v. M/V Caribbean Wind, 841 F.2d 646, 649 (5th Cir. 1988) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen & Helpers Union, Local 59 v. Superline Transp. Co., 953 F.2d 17, 21 (1st Cir. 1992) (while moving party need not establish that it possesses ironclad claim or defense that would guarantee success at trial, it must establish potentially meritorious claim or defense that if proved would provide success).

(n5)Footnote 4. Weisel v. Pischel, 197 F.R.D. 231, 239 (E.D.N.Y. 2000) (defense is meritorious if it is sufficient at law to give fact-finder some determination to make).

(n6)Footnote 5. Blau v. Bill Heard Chevrolet Corp. - Orlando, 422 B.R. 293, 303 (N.D. Ala. 2009) (citing Moore's Federal Practice); Okehi v. Security Bank, 199 F.R.D. 388, 394 (M.D. Ga. 2001) .

(n7)Footnote 6. United States v. Kayser-Roth Corp., 272 F.3d 89, 95 (1st Cir. 2001) ; Keegel v. Key West & Caribbean Trading Co., 627 F.2d 372, 374 (D.C. Cir. 1979) .

(n8)Footnote 7. United States v. $55,518.05 in U.S. Currency, 728 F.2d 192, 195-196 (3d Cir. 1984) .

17 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
1. Scope of Available Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.26

§ 26.26 Court May Not Grant Additional Reliefn*

Under Rule 60(b), a court has the power only to set aside a prior order or judgment; the court may not use Rule 60 to grant affirmative relief in addition to the relief contained in the prior order or judgment. For example, the enforcement of settlement agreements is a form of additional relief that usually requires new litigation, not merely relief from the judgment in the settled case, and most circuits hold that Rule 60(b) is not a settlement enforcement mechanism. n1

The principle that Rule 60(b) may provide relief from the existing obligations created by a judgment or decree, but that it may not create any new obligations, n2 remains true even with continuing injunctions over which, under Rule 60(b)(5), courts have a continuous power of modification to meet changing circumstances and conditions. Even when a court has power under Rule 60(b)(5) to modify an equitable decree to meet changes in circumstances, Rule 60(b) does not authorize a court to modify or reopen a decree so as to provide additional relief. n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.25 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Neuberg v. Michael Reese Hosp. Found., 123 F.3d 951, 955-956 (7th Cir. 1997) (dispute over interpretation of settlement agreement is legal matter distinct from underlying litigation and does not authorize granting Rule 60(b) motion to reopen judgment dismissing underlying litigation).

(n3)Footnote 2. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Lago Canyon, Inc., 666 F. Supp. 2d 1341, 1344 (S.D. Fla. 2009) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Lorain NAACP v. Lorain Bd. of Educ., 979 F.2d 1141, 1152-1153 (6th Cir. 1992) , cert. denied, 509 U.S. 905 (1993) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
1. Scope of Available Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 26.27through 26.39

[Reserved]

§§ 26.27[Reserved]

19 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
2. Grounds for Granting Motion for Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.40

§ 26.40 Six Grounds for Court to Grant Motion for Reliefn*

Once a party has established the threshold requirements of timeliness, the existence of exceptional circumstances justifying extraordinary relief, and the absence of unfair prejudice to the opposing party, the party is entitled to relief from a judgment, order, or proceeding under Rule 60(b) whenever such relief is appropriate to accomplish justice, n0.1 and one of the following six grounds for relief exists:

1. Mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect. n1

2. Newly discovered evidence that the moving party could not have discovered in time to move for a new trial, even if the party had exercised due diligence. n2

3. Fraud, misrepresentation, or other misconduct of an adverse party, regardless of whether, under earlier procedures, the fraud would have been classified as intrinsic or extrinsic. n3 This classification is separate from the special type of fraud known as "fraud on the court"; the court has inherent power to set aside a judgment procured through fraud on the court, as discussed in § 26.22[5] and § 26.81.

4. Void judgment. n4

5. (a) Satisfaction, release, or discharge of the judgment; (b) reversal or vacation of the judgment; or (c) an inequity in the judgment that precludes its prospective application. n5 The Supreme Court has emphasized that the use of the disjunctive "or" in Rule 60(b)(5) makes it clear that each of the provision's three grounds for relief is independently sufficient to obtain relief from the judgment. The three categories are not interrelated. Therefore, for example, relief is warranted if the judgment is no longer equitable under the third category, even if the moving party has not in any way satisfied the judgment under the first category. n6

6. Any other reason that justifies relief from the judgment. n7

The court may not grant relief from a judgment or order under Rule 60(b) for any grounds other than those set out in the six numbered clauses specified in the rule. n8 However, in addition to the procedure by motion under Rule 60(b) the rule also preserves the power of a court: n9 to entertain an independent action to relieve a party from a judgment, order, or proceeding, n10 to grant relief from judgment available by statute, n11 or to set aside a judgment for fraud on the court. n12

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentDischarge, Release & SatisfactionCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExtraordinary CircumstancesCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentFraudCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentNewly Discovered Evidence

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.40 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 0.1. United States v. Kayser-Roth Corp., 272 F.3d 89, 95 (1st Cir. 2001) ; see § 26.23-26.25.

(n3)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(1); see § 26.41.

(n4)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(2); see § 26.42.

(n5)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(3); see § 26.43.

(n6)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(4); see § 26.44.

(n7)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(5); see § 26.45.

(n8)Footnote 6. Horne v. Flores, 129 S. Ct. 2579, 174 L. Ed. 2d 406, 424 (2009) .

(n9)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(6); see § 26.46.

(n10)Footnote 8. Broadway v. Norris, 193 F.3d 987, 989-990 (8th Cir. 1999) (moving party under Rule 60(b) must establish one of rule's enumerated grounds for relief from judgment or order).

(n11)Footnote 9. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b); see § 26.22.

(n12)Footnote 10. See § 26.80.

(n13)Footnote 11. See § 26.22[4].

(n14)Footnote 12. See § 26.81.

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
2. Grounds for Granting Motion for Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.41

§ 26.41 Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglectn*

[1] Nature of Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, and Excusable Neglect

[a] Grounds Considered in Light of Purpose of Relief

Under Rule 60(b)(1), the court may grant relief from a judgment or order for mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect; however, the rule does not define the terms. n1 Case law also does not precisely define the terms. Rather, whether or not an error is sufficient to justify relief under Rule 60(b)(1) is analyzed by considering the fact pattern in the case and the purpose of the rule, which is to permit the trial court to reconsider and correct obvious, substantive errors of law without forcing the parties to engage the machinery of appeal. n2 Some guidelines from case law have developed, as discussed in [b] through [d], below. In any event, deliberate or willful conduct on the part of the person seeking relief from the judgment precludes as a general rule a finding of "mistake" or "inadvertence" or "surprise" or "excusable neglect." n3

[b] Mistake

As a general proposition, the "mistake" provision in Rule 60(b)(1) provides for reconsideration of judgments only when (1) a party has made an excusable litigation mistake or an attorney in the litigation has acted without authority from a party, or (2) the court has made a substantive mistake of law or fact in the final judgment or order. An example of a "legal error" that could be sufficient to just Rule 60(b)(1) relief would occur if a court issues directly conflicting determinations in two separate lawsuits with substantial overlap in parties and substantial similarity in subject matter. n4 The circuits each have their own view of whether relief may be granted under Rule 60(b)(1) for legal errors, as summarized generally by the following three viewpoints:

1. The First Circuit does not permit the use of Rule 60(b)(1) motions to obtain relief from judgments on the ground that the judgment is based on a legal error made by the court. In the First Circuit, claims of legal error may be reviewed only by Rule 59 motions or by an appeal. n5

2. In the Sixth Circuit, a claim of legal error in the underlying judgment falls within the definition of mistake under Rule 60(b)(1). However, the circuit has a strict qualification that a Rule 60(b)(1) motion based on legal error must be brought within the normal time for taking an appeal. n6

3. The Ninth Circuit has held that a legal error is sufficient to justify relief under Rule 60(b)(1). n7 Furthermore, the Ninth Circuit also has concluded that, although the denial of a Rule 60(b)(1) motion is reviewed on an abuse of discretion standard, if the mistake in question is one of law and if the district court erred on the law and refused to grant relief, the district court did abuse its discretion. n8

For a complete discussion of each circuit's approach, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.41[4][b] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

[c] Inadvertence

A court may grant Rule 60(b)(1) relief from judgment for inadvertence if a party or attorney has failed to complete some required action despite exercising due diligence. Conversely, a court will deny relief on a determination that the facts and circumstances demonstrate a lack of diligence in pursuing or defending litigation. n9 For example, inadequate trial preparation is not excusable neglect, even when perpetrated by a party representing himself or herself in propria persona. n10 In another example, the failure to attend or participate in a trial or a court proceeding, or a hearing, such as, a pretrial conference, is not excusable if it is part of a pattern of conduct. n11 In the context of Rule 60(b)(1) motions, ignorance of the law also does not constitute inadvertence sufficient for relief. Furthermore, ignorance of, or inattention to, procedural law is not grounds for relief. n12

[d] Excusable Neglect

Excusable neglect is probably the most common ground for relief in this category. The relevant factors that the court must consider to determine whether a party's neglect is excusable include (1) the danger of prejudice to the adverse party; (2) the length of any delay caused by the neglect and its effect on the proceedings; (3) the reason for the neglect, including whether it was within the reasonable control of the moving party; and (4) whether the moving party acted in good faith. n13 If the district court has not actually considered all of these relevant factors in determining whether a party or attorney has committed excusable neglect, the circuit court ordinarily will reverse the district court's decision. n14 Using these criteria, courts have held that the failure to follow the clear requirements of a court rule does not constitute excusable neglect. n15 Additionally, mere ignorance of rules nor mistakes construing rules do not usually constitute excusable neglect. n16 However, a failure to comply with a procedural rule might be excusable if the rule is not entirely clear, such as, when it is ambiguous or susceptible of multiple interpretations, or if the applicable rule conflicts with another rule. n17

The courts have developed a special excusable neglect test for cases involving relief from default judgments. To determine "excusable neglect" as used in Rule 60(b)(1) for purposes of a motion to vacate a default judgment, a court considers (1) whether the default was willful; (2) whether the defendant has a meritorious defense; and (3) the level of prejudice that may occur to the non-defaulting party if relief is granted. n18 Under the "willfulness" standard, the court will look for bad faith, or at least something more than mere negligence, before rejecting a claim of excusable neglect based on an attorney's or a party's error. n19 To satisfy the criterion of a "meritorious defense," the defaulting party need only show that the defense would be proper at law so as to give the factfinder some determination to make. Finally, under the prejudice criterion, the district court must determine whether the non-defaulting party would suffer significant adverse effect from having to prosecute its claim against the defaulting party after a lengthy delay. n20 Conversely, a district court may deny a motion to vacate a default judgment if: (1) the plaintiff would be prejudiced if the judgment is set aside, (2) the defendant has no meritorious defense, or (3) the defendant's culpable conduct led to the default. This tripartite test is disjunctive, meaning that the district court is free to deny the motion if any of the three factors is true. n21

[2] Culpability of Party Not Necessary

Historically, Rule 60(b) applied only to relief from unfavorable judgments suffered because of the mistakes, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect of the moving party. However, it has been held that the 1946 amendment to the rule was specifically intended to make it clear that the moving party could have relief from a judgment on account of the mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect of any party, any party's attorney, the clerk, or the court. n1 Thus, mistake or neglect of others beside the moving party may be just as material and call just as much for supervisory jurisdiction as when the judgment is taken against the moving party through the party's own mistake, inadvertence, or excusable neglect. n2 The only limitation that the courts have imposed is that the rule does not permit relief from a "mistake" of the jury. n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesExcusable NeglectCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesInadvertenceCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesMistakeCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesSurprise

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.41 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(1).

(n3)Footnote 2. United States v. 329. 73 Acres of Land, 695 F.2d 922, 925 (5th Cir. 1983) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Home Port Rentals, Inc. v. Ruben, 957 F.2d 126, 132 (4th Cir. 1992) ; Williams v. New Orleans Public Serv., Inc., 728 F.2d 730, 734 (5th Cir. 1984) .

(n5)Footnote 4. United Airlines, Inc. v. Brien, 588 F.3d 158, 175 (2d Cir. 2009) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Hoult v. Hoult, 57 F.3d 1, 5 (1st Cir. 1995) (even if district court decides point of law incorrectly, that legal error is not grounds for relief under Rule 60(b)).

(n7)Footnote 6. Pierce v. United Mine Workers Welfare & Retirement Funds for 1950 & 1974, 770 F.2d 449, 451 (6th Cir. 1985) , cert. denied, 474 U.S. 1104 (1986) .

(n8)Footnote 7. Yniques v. Cabral, 985 F.2d 1031, 1034 (9th Cir. 1993) (district court's erroneous reading of law is a "mistake" sufficient to require reconsideration of order).

(n9)Footnote 8. Faile v. Upjohn Co., 988 F.2d 985, 986-987 (9th Cir. 1993) .

(n10)Footnote 9. FHC Equities, L.L.C. v. MBL Life Assurance Corp., 188 F.3d 678, 685 (6th Cir. 1999) (neither carelessness or ignorance of the law provide relief under Rule 60(b)(1)).

(n11)Footnote 10. Salter v. Hooker Chem., Durez Plastic & Chem. Div., 119 F.R.D. 7, 8-9 (W.D.N.Y. 1988) .

(n12)Footnote 11. American Totalisator Co. v. Fair Grounds Corp., 3 F.3d 810, 815 (5th Cir. 1993) (defendants' failure to ask expert witness right questions during deposition, and thus depriving themselves of potentially relevant evidence on summary judgment motion, was not grounds for relief).

(n13)Footnote 12. Lowry v. McDonnell Douglas Corp., 211 F.3d 457, 463-464 (8th Cir. 2000) (garden variety attorney inattention in miscalculation when counting number of days for deadline to file appeal is not excusable neglect or inadvertence sufficient to support relief).

(n14)Footnote 13. Pioneer Inv. Serv. Co. v. Brunswick Assocs. Ltd. P'ship, 507 U.S. 380, 395, 113 S. Ct. 1489, 123 L. Ed. 2d 74 (1993) .

(n15)Footnote 14. Bateman v. United States Postal Serv., 231 F.3d 1220, 1224-1225 (9th Cir. 2000) .

(n16)Footnote 15. Ceridian Corp. v. SCSC Corp., 212 F.3d 398, 402-405 (8th Cir. 2000) .

(n17)Footnote 16. United States v. Torres, 372 F.3d 1159, 1163 (10th Cir. 2009) .

(n18)Footnote 17. See Speiser, Krause & Madole P.C. v. Ortiz, 271 F.3d 884, 886 (9th Cir. 2004) ; Canfield v. Van Atta Buick/GMC Truck, Inc., 127 F.3d 248, 250 (2d Cir. 1997) .

(n19)Footnote 18. Weisel v. Pischel, 197 F.R.D. 231, 238 (E.D.N.Y. 2000) .

(n20)Footnote 19. Bakery Mach. & Fabrication, Inc. v. Traditional Baking, Inc., 570 F.3d 845, 847 (7th Cir. 2009) (repeated failures to comply with the court's orders without explanation).

(n21)Footnote 20. American Alliance Ins. Co. v. Eagle Ins. Co., 92 F.3d 57, 60-62 (2d Cir. 1996) .

(n22)Footnote 21. Weisel v. Pischel, 197 F.R.D. 231, 239 (E.D.N.Y. 2000) .

(n23)Footnote 1. Cappillino v. Hyde Park Cent. Sch. Dist., 135 F.3d 264, 265-266 (2d Cir. 1998) (granting relief from judgment because of mistake of court; district court had entered judgment on settlement even though appellant had rejected settlement by letter to court within time set by court for rejection of settlement).

(n24)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b), Committee Note to 1946 Amendments.

(n25)Footnote 3. Branson v. Prins Ins., Inc. 79 F.R.D. 662, 664 (D.S.D. 1978) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
2. Grounds for Granting Motion for Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.42

§ 26.42 Newly Discovered Evidencen*

[1] Required Elements

The court may relieve a party or a party's legal representative from a final judgment, order, or proceeding on the ground of newly discovered evidence which by due diligence could not have been discovered in time to move for a new trial under Rule 59(b). n1 A motion for a new trial under Rule 60(b)(2) is an extraordinary motion and the requirements of the rule must be strictly met. n2 In order for the court to grant such a motion, the moving party must meet the following test, which is phrased in varying ways among the circuits: n3

1. The newly-discovered evidence must have existed at the time of trial or must concern facts that were in existence at the time of trial. n4

2. The newly-discovered evidence must have been discovered following the trial. n5

3. The moving party must have shown due diligence to discover the evidence. n6

4. The newly-discovered evidence must be admissible and credible. n7

5. The newly-discovered evidence must be material to the issues tried. n8

6. The newly-discovered evidence must not be merely cumulative or impeachment evidence. n9

7. The newly-discovered evidence must be such that a new trial would probably change the result. n10

All of the requirements must be satisfied, and the fact that one or more elements is very strong does not require the granting of relief. For example, the fact that newly discovered evidence would be considered "conclusive" to determine the outcome of the case (requirement 7) does not require relief from the judgment when the moving party cannot show due diligence to discover the evidence (requirement 3). n11

Both Rule 60(b)(2) and Rule 59(a) permit a remedy when new evidence is discovered following a trial. Therefore, the moving party needs to prove very similar elements whether the moving party seeks to have a new trial or to have the judgment set aside. n12 Therefore, courts have concluded that Rule 60(b)(2) cases may be cited in support of Rule 59 motions, and vice versa. n13 However, there is a significant difference between the two: if the evidence is discovered and a motion filed within 28 days after entry of judgment, a court may grant a new trial; n14 if the evidence is discovered too late to file a motion within that 28-day period, but a motion is brought within a reasonable time and no later than one year from the entry of judgment, the court may set the judgment aside on the ground that there is newly discovered evidence. n15 However, a party may not simply let the 28-day period for bringing a new trial motion expire and later bring a motion under Rule 60(b)(2). Rule 60(b)(2) expressly permits relief from judgment only if the evidence could not have been discovered in time to move for a new trial under Rule 59(b). n16

[2] Evidence Must Be of Facts That Were in Existence at Time of Trial

The only evidence that qualifies as "newly-discovered" evidence within the meaning of the rule justifying setting the judgment aside is evidence of facts that were in existence at the time of the original trial or that relate directly to the facts that were tried. n1 This rule has been promulgated because Rule 60(b) relief sets aside only a prior order or judgment; the court may not use Rule 60 to grant affirmative relief for matters that occurred after the trial. n2 The crucial question under this test is not when the evidence was created but whether the evidence was of facts that were in existence at the time of trial. Thus, evidence meets the newly discovered evidence test even if it did not come into existence until after the trial, provided that the evidence is of facts that were in existence at the time of trial. n3

[3] Evidence Must Have Been Discovered Following Trial

For purposes of relief from judgment, newly discovered evidence refers only to evidence that was not "discovered" by the moving party in time to move for a new trial. n1 The moving party may not rely on the fact that he or she decided not to offer known evidence at the trial but must demonstrate how and when he or she "discovered" the evidence. In other words, in order for evidence to be newly discovered, the party must have been unaware of the existence of the evidence before or during the trial. n2 The key to deciding whether evidence is "newly discovered" or only "newly available" is to ascertain when the moving party found out about the information at issue. n3 A typical example of a lack of discovery involves the case in which the party who loses at trial claims that he or she wants to present a "new" witness. The losing party will not meet the "discovery" requirement when the party knew of the existence of the witness, and the substance of the witness' testimony, but thought that the witness was not needed until later losing the case. n4

A party does not "discover" evidence that is already in its possession or that is readily available. n5 For example, evidence that is in the possession of some employee of a large employer at the time of trial is not "discovered" at a later time, even though the attorneys for the employer do not know of this evidence until it is too late. n6 Similarly, if evidence is available in public records at the time of trial, it is not considered to be "newly discovered." n7

[4] Failure to Discover Evidence Must Not Be Based on Lack of Diligence

The moving party may obtain relief from a judgment on the basis of newly discovered evidence under Rule 60(b)(2) only if the evidence could not have been discovered by due diligence in time to move for a new trial under Rule 59(b). n1 Consequently, to prevail on a motion, the moving party must show that the failure to produce the evidence at trial or in time for a new trial motion was not caused by the moving party's lack of diligence. n2 Diligence looks not to what the party actually discovered but what he or she could have discovered. n3 To comply with this requirement, the moving party may not simply claim that he or she has exercised diligence in obtaining evidence. The moving party must present facts that show why he or she was unable to present the evidence that provides the basis for the motion either in time for use at trial or in time for filing a motion for new trial. n4

[5] Evidence Must Be Admissible and Credible

The newly-discovered evidence that is the basis for relief from a judgment must be both admissible and credible, because there would be no reason to set aside a judgment on the basis of evidence that could not be admitted at a new trial or, if admitted, would not be worthy of belief. For example, speculation about the existence of what some witness would testify to or what some document would show is clearly incompetent evidence that would not be sufficient. n1 Rule 60(b)(2) credibility motions must be decided by the court and not a jury because to hold otherwise would mean that the district court would have to order a new trial no matter how incredible the evidence. n2

[6] Evidence Must Be Material and Not Merely Cumulative or for Impeachment

Newly discovered evidence is not sufficient grounds to set aside the judgment unless it is relevant to an issue tried in the case. n1 It must also be "material," which means that it is pertinent to deciding the case. For example, new evidence of the existence of an agreement between attorneys in a class action concerning reimbursement for fees and expenses was not material because the court decides appropriate fees in class actions, regardless of any agreement between the attorneys. n2

Additionally, the new evidence proffered may not be merely cumulative of other evidence already introduced. n3 The newly-discovered evidence must not be cumulative, not only of the evidence actually presented, but also of whatever evidence that could have been presented had the party exercised due diligence. n4 Finally, newly-discovered evidence will not support a motion for relief from judgment if it merely tends to impeach the credibility of a witness rather than provide substantive evidence concerning a material issue of fact in the case. Evidence offered to impeach evidence already admitted may not be considered newly discovered evidence. n5

[7] Evidence Must Be Likely to Change Result of Case

Newly discovered evidence is grounds for relief under Rule 60(b)(2) only if the evidence is sufficiently substantial that it would be likely to produce a different result on retrial. n1 The moving party has the burden to persuasively explain why the new evidence would change the outcome. n2 For example, a motion failed in one case when the moving party could not explain how the newly discovered evidence regarding enforceability of subrogation agreements could affect the outcome when the court had already ruled on other grounds that the agreements were unenforceable as a matter of law. n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentNewly Discovered Evidence

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.42 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(2).

(n3)Footnote 2. Willard v. Fairfield S. Co., 472 F.3d 817, 824 (11th Cir. 2006) .

(n4)Footnote 3. United States v. McGaughey, 977 F.2d 1067, 1075 (7th Cir. 1992) , cert. denied, 507 U.S. 1019 (1993) ; see Toole v. Baxter Healthcare Corp., 235 F.3d 1307, 1316 (11th Cir. 2000) .

(n5)Footnote 4. See [2], below.

(n6)Footnote 5. See [3], below.

(n7)Footnote 6. See [4], below.

(n8)Footnote 7. See [5], below.

(n9)Footnote 8. See [6], below.

(n10)Footnote 9. See [7], below.

(n11)Footnote 10. See [8], below.

(n12)Footnote 11. Central States, Southeast & Southwest Areas Pension Fund v. Central Cartage Co., 69 F.3d 1312, 1314-1315 (7th Cir. 1995) , cert. denied, 517 U.S. 1134 (1996) .

(n13)Footnote 12. Compare Mitchell v. Shalala, 48 F.3d 1039, 1041 (8th Cir. 1995) ; with Duffy v. Clippinger, 857 F.2d 877, 879 (1st Cir. 1988) .

(n14)Footnote 13. Jones v. Aero/Chem Corp., 921 F.2d 875, 878 (9th Cir. 1990) .

(n15)Footnote 14. Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(b).

(n16)Footnote 15. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(2).

(n17)Footnote 16. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(2).

(n18)Footnote 1. Mumford v. Bowen, 814 F.2d 328, 330 (7th Cir. 1986) .

(n19)Footnote 2. Lorain NAACP v. Lorain Bd. of Educ., 979 F.2d 1141, 1152-1153 (6th Cir. 1992) ; see § 26.26.

(n20)Footnote 3. National Anti-Hunger Coalition v. Executive Comm. of President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control, 711 F.2d 1071, 1075 n.3 (D.C. Cir. 1983) (post-trial reports may be highly relevant to facts considered at trial).

(n21)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(2).

(n22)Footnote 2. Parrilla-Lopez v. United States, 841 F.2d 16, 19 (1st Cir. 1988) .

(n23)Footnote 3. United States v. Turns, 198 F.3d 584, 587 (6th Cir. 2000) .

(n24)Footnote 4. Washington v. Patlis, 916 F.2d 1036, 1038 (5th Cir. 1990) .

(n25)Footnote 5. Atkinson v. Prudential Prop. Co., 43 F.3d 367, 371 n.3 (8th Cir. 1994) .

(n26)Footnote 6. Taylor v. Texgas Corp., 831 F.2d 255, 259 (11th Cir. 1987) (in age discrimination case, employees of defendant knew that plaintiff was already receiving pension benefits, even if trial counsel did not).

(n27)Footnote 7. Scutieri v. Paige, 808 F.2d 785, 794 (11th Cir. 1987) .

(n28)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(2).

(n29)Footnote 2. Harris v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., 102 F.3d 1429, 1433-1434 (7th Cir. 1996) (plaintiff's asserted new evidence in asbestos case came from product identification witness who had been used by plaintiff's counsel for years in similar cases; therefore, due diligence would have led to discovery of evidence in time for summary judgment motion).

(n30)Footnote 3. Aliff v. Joy Mfg. Co., 914 F.2d 39, 44 (4th Cir. 1990) .

(n31)Footnote 4. United States v. Potamkin Cadillac Corp., 697 F.2d 491, 493 (2d Cir. 1983) , cert. denied, 462 U.S. 1144 (1983) .

(n32)Footnote 1. New Hampshire Ins. Co. v. Martech USA, Inc., 993 F.2d 1195, 1201 (5th Cir. 1993) (new evidence was neither competent nor likely to have produced a different result).

(n33)Footnote 2. Daniels v. Pipefitters' Ass'n Local Union No. 597, 983 F.2d 800, 803 (7th Cir. 1993) .

(n34)Footnote 1. See Fed. R. Evid. 402.

(n35)Footnote 2. Longden v. Sunderman, 979 F.2d 1095, 1103 (5th Cir. 1992) .

(n36)Footnote 3. Trans Mississippi Corp. v. United States, 494 F.2d 770, 773 (5th Cir. 1974) .

(n37)Footnote 4. Lyons v. Jefferson Bank & Trust, 994 F.2d 716, 728 (10th Cir. 1993) (if party through negligence or tactical decision fails to present evidence that was available, party may not take advantage of Rule 60(b)(2) by finding substantially similar evidence from a newly discovered source).

(n38)Footnote 5. Baxter Int'l, Inc. v. Morris, 11 F.3d 90, 93 (8th Cir. 1993) (evidence that defendant had used proprietary information to start business insufficient when it would have only been used to impeach defendant's character and would not contradict trial testimony).

(n39)Footnote 1. Liquidation Comm'n of Banco Intercontinental, S.A. v. Alvarez Renta, 530 F.3d 1339, 1358 (11th Cir. 2008) (new evidence would not be sufficient under Rule 60(b)(2) when it is of questionable relevance and authenticity or is largely cumulative of evidence already admitted).

(n40)Footnote 2. E. Savings Bank, FSB v. LaFata (In re LaFata), 483 F.3d 13, 24 (1st Cir. 2007) .

(n41)Footnote 3. Resolution Trust Corp. v. Kemp, 951 F.2d 657, 664 (5th Cir. 1992) .

22 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
2. Grounds for Granting Motion for Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.43

§ 26.43 Fraud, Misrepresentation, or Misconduct of Adverse Partyn*

[1] Intentional Conduct Not Necessary for Relief

The court has discretion to relieve a party from a final judgment, order, or proceeding because of intrinsic or extrinsic fraud, misrepresentation, or misconduct by an opposing party. n1 Fraud is the knowing misrepresentation of a material fact, or concealment of a material fact if there is a duty to disclose, for the purpose of inducing another to act to his or her detriment. Thus, fraud may include many types of intentional conduct. n2 However, because Rule 60(b)(3) also includes misrepresentations and misconduct, these grounds for relief do not require intentional or deliberate acts or omissions. n3 Courts determining Rule 60(b)(3) motions always require proof that the alleged fraud or other misconduct prevented the moving party from fully and fairly presenting his or her case at trial. n4

Rule 60(b)(3) expressly states that a party may be relieved from a judgment on the basis of fraud, regardless of whether the fraud could be classified as "intrinsic" or "extrinsic." n5 Therefore, the types of fraud meriting relief from a final judgment include both conduct outside of the courtroom prior to trial, and the presentation of perjured testimony at trial. Perjury at trial is a classic example of "intrinsic" fraud, and prior to enactment of Rule 60(b)(3), there could be no relief from judgment on that grounds. n6 Because the purpose of Rule 60(b)(3) is aimed at providing relief for judgments that were unfairly obtained, and not necessarily those that are factually inaccurate, n7 the moving party does not have to prove that there would be a different outcome in the case and that he or she would prevail in a retrial in order to secure relief from judgment on the basis of fraud of an adverse party. n8 However, the moving party may not complain of fraudulent conduct that could negatively affect only the adverse party. n9

[2] Moving Party Has Burden to Establish Fraud, Misrepresentation, or Misconduct

Rule 60(b) provides relief from judgment where the opposing party engages in fraud, misrepresentation, or other misconduct. n1 The purpose of the rule is to protect the fairness of litigation in federal courts, and to obtain relief under the provision, the moving party has the burden to clearly show that he or she has a meritorious claim and that the opposing party's fraud, misrepresentation, or misconduct prevented the case from being fully and fairly presented at trial. n2

Thus, the fraud, misrepresentation, or misconduct that is grounds for a Rule 60(b)(3) relief refers to an act or omission that subverts the litigation process itself. n3 Therefore, it is improper to base the motion on fraud or misrepresentation that has been alleged in the complaint on the merits of the claim for relief in the underlying case. n4 The court may allow a movant to establish this course of litigation type fraud by first presenting a "colorable" claim of fraud, before permitting the movant preliminary discovery to uncover and present the necessary clear and convincing evidence of fraud. n5

[3] Fraud, Misrepresentation, or Misconduct Must Be Attributable to Adversary

The court will not grant a Rule 60(b)(3) motion if the moving party's own action or omission has contributed to the fraud or misconduct, because the rule expressly states that it applies only to fraud or misrepresentation "of an adverse party." n1 For purposes of this provision, the fraud of an adverse party's attorney is deemed attributable to the adverse party. n2

The fraud or misconduct of a witness is attributable to the adverse party when it has been procured by the adverse party, as in the case of witness tampering. n3 Similarly, the fraudulent testimony of an expert witness could be attributable to an adverse party that has had a long term, ongoing relationship with the expert. n4 On the other hand, fraud or misconduct of an ordinary fact witness is ordinarily not attributable to a party unless the party has knowledge or should have knowledge of the fraudulent circumstances. n5 However, some courts allow Rule 60(b)(3) relief on the basis of false testimony of a witness presented by an adverse party if: the testimony is material; without the testimony, a jury might have reached a different conclusion; the moving party was taken by surprise when the false testimony was given; and the moving was unable to meet the testimony or did not know of its falsity until after trial. n6

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentFraud

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.43 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(3).

(n3)Footnote 2. Info Hold, Inc. v. Sound Merch., Inc., 538 F.3d 448, 456 (6th Cir. 2008) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n4)Footnote 3. Schreiber Foods, Inc. v. Beatrice Cheese, Inc., 402 F.3d 1198, 1206 (Fed. Cir. 2005) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Woodworker's Supply, Inc. v. Principal Mut. Life Ins. Co., 170 F.3d 985, 993-994 (10th Cir. 1999) (no abuse of discretion in denying relief for plaintiff's pretrial failure to disclose its theory of damages; plaintiff's misconduct did not interfere substantially with defendant's trial preparation because defendant had access to numbers on which plaintiff's damages claim was based, and district court afforded defendant opportunity to cross-examine plaintiff concerning damages).

(n6)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(3).

(n7)Footnote 6. See Range v. United States, 256 B.R. 868, 874 (S.D. Tex. 2000) (in independent action, party must still establish extrinsic as opposed to intrinsic fraud, and majority rule is that perjury by trial witnesses is intrinsic fraud).

(n8)Footnote 7. Schultz v. Butcher, 24 F.3d 626, 631 (4th Cir. 1994) .

(n9)Footnote 8. Rozier v. Ford Motor Co., 573 F.2d 1332, 1339 (5th Cir. 1978) .

(n10)Footnote 9. Alexander v. Robertson, 882 F.2d 421, 425 (9th Cir. 1989) (when only nonmoving party could have been negatively harmed by fraud during trial, court of appeals concluded that it would be inappropriate to set aside judgment rendered in favor of nonmoving party).

(n11)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(3).

(n12)Footnote 2. Aguiar-Carrasquillo v. Agosto-Alicea, 445 F.3d 19, 28 (1st Cir. 2006) .

(n13)Footnote 3. Roger Edwards, LLC v. Fiddes & Son, 427 F.3d 129, 134 (1st Cir. 2005) .

(n14)Footnote 4. *Antoine v. Rucker, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 53685, at *11-12 (D.N.J. July 15, 2008) ; Optimal Health Care Services v. Travelers Ins. Co., 801 F. Supp. 1558, 1561 (E.D. Tex. 1992) .

(n15)Footnote 5. Pearson v. First NH Mortg. Corp., 200 F.3d 30, 34-35 (1st Cir. 1999) .

(n16)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(3); see Latshaw v. Trainer Wortham & Co., Inc., 452 F.3d 1097, 1102 (9th Cir. 2006) .

(n17)Footnote 2. Metlyn Realty Corp. v. Esmark, Inc., 763 F.2d 826, 833 (7th Cir. 1985) .

(n18)Footnote 3. Ty Inc. v. Softbelly's, Inc., 353 F.3d 528, 536-537 (7th Cir. 2003) .

(n19)Footnote 4. Harre v. A.H. Robins Co., 750 F.2d 1501, 1505 (11th Cir. 1985) , modified on other grounds, 866 F.2d 1303, 1304 (11th Cir. 1989) .

(n20)Footnote 5. Metlyn Realty Corp. v. Esmark, Inc., 763 F.2d 826, 833 (7th Cir. 1985) .

(n21)Footnote 6. See Abrahamsen v. Trans State Exp., Inc., 92 F.3d 425, 428 (6th Cir. 1996) ; Devon Distrib. Corp v. Arthur E. Miner & A.J. Garrett & Assocs., 525 F. Supp. 2d 1089, 1093 (S.D. Iowa 2007) .

23 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
2. Grounds for Granting Motion for Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.44

§ 26.44 Void Judgmentn*

[1] Void Judgment Subject to Motion for Relief

Rule 60(b)(4) provides one method for a party to obtain relief from a void judgment. n1 A judgment is void for purposes of this provision only if the court that rendered judgment lacked jurisdiction or if the court's action amounts to a plain usurpation of power constituting a violation of due process. n2 A void judgment is distinguished from an erroneous one, in that the latter is subject only to direct attack. A void judgment is one that is a complete nullity and without legal effect from its inception. n3 In other words, a judgment is void only if the judgment is totally beyond a court's power to render; the principle of void judgments is narrowly construed. n4 Only when the jurisdictional error is "egregious" will courts treat the judgment as void, and to be egregious, the error occurs when the court wrongfully extends its jurisdiction beyond the scope of its authority. n5

An error in the exercise of jurisdiction by a court's wrongly deciding a case is simply not the same thing as a total lack of jurisdiction, and only the latter demands judicial intervention under Rule 60(b)(4). A judgment is not void simply because it is or may have been erroneous; it is void only if, from its inception, it was a legal nullity. n6 For example, a lower court that fails to follow the mandate of an appellate court may commit error that is reversible on appeal, but its judgment is not void if the lower court has jurisdiction of the subject matter, the parties, and does not deny any party due process. n7

[2] Types of Void Judgments

[a] Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction

A judgment is void if it was rendered by a court that was entirely without jurisdiction over the subject matter. In the context of Rule 60(b)(4), a lack of subject matter jurisdiction is void when there is no arguable basis for the court's jurisdiction n1 over the type of case, and not whether a court has made an erroneous decision of subject matter jurisdiction in the circumstances in a particular case. n2 For example, certain types of interlocutory appeals may deprive a district court of the power to render any meaningful judgment until the appeal has been concluded. The district court simply has no power to act under these types of circumstances, and the district court's order of dismissal is void and may be set aside on a Rule 60(b)(4) motion. n3 On the other hand, when a court does have jurisdiction over a general category of case, the fact that a court erroneously assumes jurisdiction in one individual case is generally not sufficient to make the resulting judgment void for lack of subject matter jurisdiction. This is because a court has jurisdiction to determine its own jurisdiction. n4 The concept of a void judgment is extremely limited. Only when the jurisdictional error is "egregious" will courts treat the judgment as void, as when a court plainly usurps jurisdiction or there is no arguable basis for jurisdiction. n5

[b] Lack of Personal Jurisdiction Over Defendant

Rule 60(b)(4) allows a litigant, even one that has not initially appeared in an action, to collaterally attack a judgment on the ground that it is void due to lack of personal jurisdiction. This rule is based on the principle that an in personam judgment entered without personal jurisdiction over a defendant is void as to that defendant. Whether a judgment is void on this ground generally entails a two-step inquiry. First, the court must determine whether the exercise of jurisdiction is appropriate under the forum state's long arm statute. Second, the court must examine whether exercising jurisdiction over the defendant would violate the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, which requires that the defendant have minimum contacts with the forum state and that the exercise of jurisdiction not offend principles of fair play and substantial justice. n6 Although the court had the theoretical power to exercise personal jurisdiction over a defendant, a judgment may also be void because the defendant was not adequately served with process. n7

In a class action, a lack of proper notice to individual members of the class renders the judgment void with respect to those persons, n8 and a Rule 60(b)(4) motion is the proper remedy for relief from a class judgment that is void on such grounds. n9

[c] Violation of Due Process by Court That Entered Judgment

A judgment is void and subject to relief under Rule 60(b)(4) if the court rendered the judgment in circumstances in which the court's action amounted to a plain usurpation of power that constituted a violation of due process. n10 For example, one court of appeals reversed the denial of a Rule 60(b) motion for relief from a void judgment when it found that the judgment compelling arbitration was issued in direct contravention of the statute that entitled the moving party to an evidentiary trial. n11 In another case, a consent judgment based on a settlement of a minor's claim was void because the minor's guardian had not obtained advance approval of the settlement from a state court, and the applicable state law provided that such an unapproved settlement was a nullity. n12

[3] Exceptions From Ordinary Requirements of Rule

Rule 60(b)(4) motions are unique in several respects. First, Rule 60(b) motions are generally considered to be subject to the court's discretion. n1 However, if a judgment is void, it has been held that the court is required to grant relief under Rule 60(b)(4). n2 Therefore, once the court determines that a judgment is actually void and not simply erroneous, the court really has no discretion whether to grant relief. n3 Second, in all Rule 60(b) motions for relief from a judgment on any ground except the judgment is void, the moving party must as a precondition to relief show that he or she has a meritorious claim or defense. n4 This precondition does not apply when the ground asserted for relief is that the judgment is void. n5 Finally, despite the general rule that a motion for relief from a judgment brought under Rule 60(b) must be brought within a "reasonable" time, n6 there is no real time limit of any kind on a motion for relief from a void judgment. Thus, a motion under Rule 60(b)(4) challenging a judgment as void is not subject to the "reasonable" time requirement of Rule 60(b) and may be made at any time. n7

[4] Other Methods to Set Aside Void Judgment

Rule 60(b)(4) is not the only method that may be used to set aside a void judgment. A party may use any of the following methods to have a court set aside a void judgment: a motion to amend the judgment under Rule 59(e); n1 a direct appeal; n2 an independent action in equity; n3 and a collateral attack, which is an attack on the judgment in a subsequent action in a court different from the court that entered the judgment initially. For example, a person may refuse to respond to a lawsuit brought against the person in a federal district court if, in fact, that court lacked personal or subject matter jurisdiction, and the person could then challenge any post judgment enforcement proceedings in the district court, or challenge the in any other court by collateral attack.

However, the Supreme Court has held that a collateral attack is generally not available if the issue of jurisdiction was contested and decided in the court that entered the judgment initially, even if the decision was erroneous; in such circumstances, the judgment of the first court on the issue is res judicata and is entitled to full faith and credit. n4 The Restatement (Second) of Judgments sets out three exceptions to this general prohibition against a jurisdictional collateral attack: (1) the subject matter of the action was so plainly beyond the court's jurisdiction that its entertaining the action was a manifest abuse of authority; (2) allowing the judgment to stand would substantially infringe the authority of another tribunal or agency of government; or (3) the judgment was rendered by a court lacking capability to make an adequately informed determination of its own jurisdiction, and as a matter of procedural fairness the party seeking to avoid the judgment should have opportunity belatedly to attack the court's jurisdiction. n5

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentVoid Judgments

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.44 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(4).

(n3)Footnote 2. Wendt v. Leonard, 431 F.3d 410, 412-413 (4th Cir. N.C. 2005) ; Hunter v. Underwood, 362 F.3d 468, 475-476 (8th Cir. 2004) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Baella Silva v. Hulsey, 454 F.3d 5, 9 (1st Cir. 2006) .

(n5)Footnote 4. United States v. One Rural Lot No. 10,356, 238 F.3d 76, 78 (1st Cir. 2001) .

(n6)Footnote 5. United States v. Tittjung, 235 F.3d 330, 335 (7th Cir. 2000) .

(n7)Footnote 6. United States v. One Rural Lot No. 10,356, 238 F.3d 76, 78 (1st Cir. 2001) .

(n8)Footnote 7. Chambers v. Armontrout, 16 F.3d 257, 260 (8th Cir. 1994) .

(n9)Footnote 1. Baella Silva v. Hulsey, 454 F.3d 5, 9 (1st Cir. 2006) .

(n10)Footnote 2. Hunter v. Underwood, 362 F.3d 468, 475-476 (8th Cir. 2004) (district court had arguable basis for subject matter jurisdiction because it is vested with power to hear cases involving implementation of federal regulations and to review administrative agency action).

(n11)Footnote 3. Williams v. Brooks, 996 F.2d 728, 729-731 (5th Cir. 1993) .

(n12)Footnote 4. Williams v. North Carolina, 325 U.S. 226, 230, 65 S. Ct. 1092, 89 L. Ed. 1577 (1945) .

(n13)Footnote 5. Wendt v. Leonard, 431 F.3d 410, 412-413 (4th Cir. 2005) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n14)Footnote 6. Sloss Indus. Corp. v. Eurisol, 488 F.3d 922, 925 (11th Cir. 2007) .

(n15)Footnote 7. Printed Media Servs. v. Solna Web, Inc., 11 F.3d 838, 843 (8th Cir. 1993) .

(n16)Footnote 8. Simer v. Rios, 661 F.2d 655, 663-664 (7th Cir. 1981) (entry of settlement decree without notice to putative class members violated due process rights of class members and judgment had to be vacated as void).

(n17)Footnote 9. Silber v. Mabon, 957 F.2d 697, 700 & n.3 (9th Cir. 1992) .

(n18)Footnote 10. United States v. One Rural Lot No. 10,356, 238 F.3d 76, 78 (1st Cir. 2001) .

(n19)Footnote 11. Great Am. Trading Corp. v. I.C.P. Cocoa, Inc., 629 F.2d 1282, 1287-1288 (7th Cir. 1980) .

(n20)Footnote 12. Carter v. Fenner, 136 F.3d 1000, 1006-1009 (5th Cir. 1998) (due process violation occurs when parties' failure to follow relevant law or procedure vitiates validity of judgment).

(n21)Footnote 1. See § 26.23

(n22)Footnote 2. Hukill v. Okla. Native Am. Domestic Violence Coalition, 542 F.3d 794, 797 (10th Cir. 2008) (relief is mandatory Rule 60(b)(4) is properly invoked on grounds of void judgment).

(n23)Footnote 3. Gillespie v. Capitol Reprographics, LLC, 573 F. Supp. 2d 80, 82 (D.D.C. 2008) .

(n24)Footnote 4. See § 26.23

(n25)Footnote 5. Bludworth Bond Shipyard, Inc. v. M/V Caribbean Wind, 841 F.2d 646, 649 (5th Cir. 1988) .

(n26)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b).

(n27)Footnote 7. Sea-Land Serv., Inc. v. Ceramica Europa II, Inc., 160 F.3d 849, 852 (1st Cir. 1998) ; Carter v. Fenner, 136 F.3d 1000, 1006 (5th Cir. 1998) .

(n28)Footnote 1. See Demos v. Brown (In re Graves), 279 B.R. 266, 276 (9th Cir. 2002) ; see also § 24.80, et seq.

(n29)Footnote 2. See Hunter v. Underwood, 362 F.3d 468, 477 (8th Cir. 2004) .

(n30)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(d)(1); United States v. Beggerly, 524 U.S. 38, 47, 118 S. Ct. 1862, 141 L. Ed. 2d 32 (1998) ; see also § 26.80 et seq.

(n31)Footnote 4. Travelers Indem. Co. v. Bailey, ___ U.S. ___, 129 S. Ct. 2195, 174 L. Ed. 2d 99, 110-111 (2009) .

(n32)Footnote 5. Restatement (Second) of Judgments § 12 (quoted in Travelers Indem. Co. v. Bailey, ___ U.S. ___, 129 S. Ct. 2195, 174 L. Ed. 2d 99, 111 (2009)) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
2. Grounds for Granting Motion for Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.45

§ 26.45 Obsolescence of Judgmentn*

[1] Satisfaction, Release, or Discharge of Judgment

A court may set aside a final judgment or order pursuant to Rule 60(b)(5) when the judgment has been satisfied, released, or discharged. n1 A motion for relief from a judgment under this provision of Rule 60(b)(5) should be granted if the court makes a determination that the judgment from which relief is sought has in fact been satisfied, released, or discharged. If not, the court should deny the motion. For example, in one case relief was denied because, even though the sums set forth in the judgment were paid, there was a dispute about whether it was proper for the defendant to withhold income taxes from the payments made on the judgment. n2 In another case, relief was denied when there was a dispute about the correct amount of taxes to be withheld from payments made on the judgment. n3

[2] Prior Judgment Reversed or Vacated

A court may set aside a final judgment or order when a prior judgment on which the judgment in question is based has been reversed or otherwise vacated. n1 Generally, the judgment in question is "based" on a prior judgment within the meaning of this rule when the prior judgment is so related to the second judgment that the prior judgment has claim or issue preclusion effect on the second. n2 In the absence of such a direct connection, a change in applicable law does not provide sufficient basis for relief. Consequently, in order to come within this second category Rule 60(b)(5), the prior judgment must be directly related to the purportedly reversing decision. The prior judgment would be directly related if it gives rise to the cause of action or is part of the same proceeding. n3 For example, Rule 60(b)(5) authorizes a district court to grant relief from an attorney's fee award if the underlying merits judgment that was the basis for the fee award is vacated on appeal. n4 On the other hand, because the rule is limited to cases in which the present judgment is based on the prior judgment in the sense of claim or issue preclusion, it does not apply merely because a case relied on as precedent in the first judgment has since been reversed. n5

[3] Inequitable Prospective Application of Judgment

[a] Description of Relief Available

Under Rule 60(b)(5), a party may obtain relief from a judgment on the ground that it is no longer equitable that the judgment have prospective application. n1 It is important to note that Rule 60(b)(5) is applicable only to those judgments that have some "prospective" application, and that not all judgments do, even though virtually every court order has at least some consequences in the future. Continuing consequences, however, do not necessarily mean that a judgment has "prospective application" for the purposes of Rule 60(b)(5). To apply prospectively, the judgment must be "executory" or involve "the supervision of changing conduct or conditions." n2

The most common example of the inequitable application of a prospective judgment is a continuing permanent or temporary injunction. n3 A party seeking to dissolve a judgment establishing a continuing injunction has the burden of establishing that a significant change in circumstances has occurred since the judgment was entered. A court may recognize subsequent changes in either statutory or decisional law that render the injunction inappropriate, and a court errs when it refuses to modify an injunction after the occurrence of such changes. n4 If a party seeks to have a decree set aside entirely, he or she has to show that the decree has served its purpose, and there is no longer any need for the injunction. n5

Another common example of a judgment with prospective application is a consent decree, which is essentially a settlement agreement of the parties that is incorporated into a judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction, and which commands or prohibits conduct. A consent decree is prospective in application because the court is ordering future conduct of the party to comply with the terms of the consent decree. Consequently, a party requesting that a court modify or vacate a consent decree may do so by making a motion under Rule 60(b)(5). n6

On the other hand, a simple money judgment may not be set aside or reopened under Rule 60(b)(5) because it has no prospective application. Even if a judgment debtor has not yet paid a judgment, it remains final and therefore, is not "prospective" because it is not executory and involves no judicial supervision of changing conduct or conditions. n7

A declaratory judgment may or may not have prospective application depending on the circumstances. For example, a declaratory judgment that creates a lien on property affects events in the future and has prospective application. n8 However, a simple judgment declaring the respective rights in the parties to a piece of personal property is immediately final; the dispute over ownership rights is in the past and the declaration resolves the controversy immediately. This type of declaration has no prospective application because no actions are anticipated in the future. n9 In the same way, a civil forfeiture of assets declaration calls for an immediate transfer of the assets in question, and there are no future acts that must be completed pursuant to the declaration. Therefore, the declaration has no prospective application. n10

[b] Standard for Grant of Relief from Judgment

The United States Supreme Court has provided guidelines in the form of a standard under Rule 60(b)(5) for a court to reopen, modify, or set aside a judgment with prospective application on the ground that it "is no longer equitable that the judgment should have prospective application." The Court has stated that because of the equitable nature of the relief, the party seeking modification of a judgment has the burden of establishing a significant change in either factual circumstances or in law. n11 A court should consider several factors in determining whether there is a "significant change" in circumstances that makes continued enforcement of the decree inequitable: n12

1. Whether the relief sought is a complete dissolution of the judgment or only a modification of the judgment. n13

2. Whether the judgment is a private injunction or a public injunction, including a "institutional reform" injunction, because the finality of judgments and sanctity of agreements are much more important for private injunctions. In other words, when a Rule 60(b)(5) motion is made to dissolve a public injunction the court should apply a much more flexible and lenient approach than for private injunctions. n14

3. The degree to which changes in circumstances were anticipated. Generally, dissolution or modification should not be granted when a party is relying on events that actually were anticipated at the time of the judgment. n15

4. Other relevant nonexclusive factors that a court should consider in ruling on a Rule 60(b)(5) motion regarding an injunction include the length of time since the injunction was entered, whether there has been good faith compliance, and the likelihood of recurrence absent the injunction; none of these factors alone is determinative. n16

[c] Standard for Grant of Relief from Consent Decree

A consent decree, while contractual in nature because it is based on an agreement of the parties, is incorporated in a judgment and therefore enforceable as a judicial decree that is subject to the rules generally applicable to other judgments and decrees. Accordingly, parties who want the court to modify or vacate a consent decree may do so by resorting to Rule 60(b). n17 The court applies a two-part test to determine whether modification of a consent decree is justified. Under the first part, a party seeking to modify a consent decree bears the burden of establishing that a significant change in circumstances justifies revision of the decree. A party may meet the initial burden of establishing a significant change in circumstances by showing a significant change either in factual conditions or in law. n18 If the moving party meets this initial burden, the court should move on to the second part of the test, which is a consideration of whether the proposed modification is suitably tailored to the changed circumstance. Thus, a consent decree must be modified if it later turns out that one or more of the obligations placed on the parties has become impermissible under federal law. Modification of a consent decree may also be warranted if the statutory or decisional law has changed to make legal what the decree was designed to prevent. While a decision that clarifies the law will not, in and of itself, provide a basis for modifying a decree, it could constitute a change in circumstances that would support modification if the parties had based their agreement on a misunderstanding of the governing law. n19

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentDischarge, Release & SatisfactionCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentPrior Judgment Reversed

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 60.45-60.47 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(5).

(n3)Footnote 2. Redfield v. Insurance Co. of N. Am., 940 F.2d 542, 549 (9th Cir. 1991) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Tungseth v. Mutual of Omaha Ins. Co., 43 F.3d 406, 409 (8th Cir. 1994) (relief denied because defendant failed to prove to district court that amounts withheld for taxes were correct).

(n5)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(5).

(n6)Footnote 2. Bailey v. Ryan Stevedoring Co., 894 F.2d 157, 160 (5th Cir. 1990) ; Tomlin v. McDaniel, 865 F.2d 209, 210-211 (9th Cir. 1989) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n7)Footnote 3. Comfort v. Lynn Sch. Comm., 560 F.3d 22, 27-28 (1st Cir. 2009) .

(n8)Footnote 4. California Med. Ass'n v. Shalala, 207 F.3d 575, 577-578 (9th Cir. 2000) .

(n9)Footnote 5. Comfort v. Lynn Sch. Comm., 560 F.3d 22, 27 (1st Cir. 2009) (mere emergence of controlling precedent in another case that showed incorrectness of prior judgment does not justify Rule 60(b)(5) relief).

(n10)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(5).

(n11)Footnote 2. Twelve John Does v. District of Columbia, 841 F.2d 1133, 1138-1139 (D.C. Cir. 1988) .

(n12)Footnote 3. See Doe v. Briley, 562 F.3d 777, 781 (6th Cir. 2009) (less common examples are consent decrees and declaratory judgments).

(n13)Footnote 4. Agostini v. Felton, 521 U.S. 203, 215, 117 S. Ct. 1997, 138 L. Ed. 2d 391 (1997) (granting Rule 60(b)(5) relief from prospective application of permanent injunction barring public school teachers from providing remedial instruction in parochial schools).

(n14)Footnote 5. Deja Vu of Nashville, Inc. v. Metro. Gov't of Nashville & Davidson County, 466 F.3d 391, 395 (6th Cir. 2006) .

(n15)Footnote 6. United States v. Krilich, 303 F.3d 784, 790 (7th Cir. 2002) ; see also [c], below.

(n16)Footnote 7. Stokors S.A. v. Morrison, 147 F.3d 759, 762 (8th Cir. 1998) .

(n17)Footnote 8. DeWeerth v. Baldinger, 38 F.3d 1266, 1276 (2d Cir. 1994) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n18)Footnote 9. Cincinnati Ins. Co. v. Flanders Elec. Motor Serv., Inc., 131 F.3d 625, 630-631 (7th Cir. 1997) (declaratory judgment fixing parties' rights and duties under contract does not have prospective application where it is based on established and immutable facts).

(n19)Footnote 10. Schwartz v. United States, 976 F.2d 213, 218 (4th Cir. 1992) .

(n20)Footnote 11. Horne v. Flores, ___ U.S. ___, 129 S. Ct. 2579, 174 L. Ed. 2d 406, 422 (2009) .

(n21)Footnote 12. See also Ch. 10A, Injunctions for a discussion of equitable factors considered in grant of injunctive relief.

(n22)Footnote 13. Deja Vu of Nashville, Inc. v. Metro. Gov't of Nashville & Davidson County, 466 F.3d 391, 395 (6th Cir. 2006) .

(n23)Footnote 14. Horne v. Flores, ___ U.S. ___, 129 S. Ct. 2579, 174 L. Ed. 2d 406, 422-423 (2009) (principle is based on federalism concerns that institutional reform injunctions could bind state and local officials for excessively long periods); Agostini v. Felton, 521 U.S. 203, 215, 117 S. Ct. 1997, 138 L. Ed. 2d 391 (1997) (court uses more lenient approach of public injunction to evaluate changes in law).

(n24)Footnote 15. Rufo v. Inmates of Suffolk County Jail, 502 U.S. 367, 385, 112 S. Ct. 748, 116 L. Ed. 2d 867 (1992) .

(n25)Footnote 16. SEC v. Coldicutt, 258 F.3d 939, 943 (9th Cir. 2001) .

(n26)Footnote 17. United States v. Krilich, 303 F.3d 784, 790 (7th Cir. 2002) .

(n27)Footnote 18. Rufo v. Inmates of Suffolk County Jail, 502 U.S. 367, 383-384, 112 S. Ct. 748, 116 L. Ed. 2d 867 (1992) ; see [b], above.

(n28)Footnote 19. United States v. Krilich, 303 F.3d 784, 789-790 (7th Cir. 2002) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
2. Grounds for Granting Motion for Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.46

§ 26.46 Other Reasons Justifying Reliefn*

[1] Availability of Relief Under Catch-All Provision

The final ground for relief from judgment is a "catch-all" provision under Rule 60(b)(6), n1 which provides that a court may grant relief from a final judgment, order, or proceeding when there is any other reason justifying relief from the operation of the judgment. n2 This provision gives the court equitable power to do justice in a particular case. n3 However, the court's discretion is not unlimited. The rule may not be used except in extraordinary circumstances, n4 and the court may not speculate on grounds for granting relief. n5 The court granting relief must always have an articulated, valid reason for the grant of relief under Rule 60(b)(6). n6

There are other limitations to this catch all provision. First, the provision applies only when the grounds specified for relief relate to matters other than those set out in the more specific clauses of Rule 60(b). To hold otherwise would eliminate the need for the specific provisions and the limitations that are imposed on those specific provisions. n7 Thus, the one year time limit imposed on motions under Rule 60(b)(1)-(3) would have no meaning if the same type of conduct could justify a later motion under Rule 60(b)(6). n8 Because each of the bases for relief under Rule 60(b)(1)-(6) has its own requirements, each application for relief must be categorized into one of the bases. If an application is categorized in Rule 60(b)(1)-(5), but fails to meet the standards of that basis, it may not then be asserted under Rule 60(b)(6). n9 For example, only excusable neglect is a ground for relief under Rule 60(b)(1); therefore, deliberate and willful conduct that is inexcusable under Rule 60(b)(1) may not form the basis for relief under Rule 60(b)(6) any more than it does under Rule 60(b)(1). n10

Another major limitation is that Rule 60(b)(6) may not be used to obtain relief from a late appeal. n11 This limitation prevents a party from using Rule 60(b) to circumvent the 180-day absolute time limit of Appellate Rule 4(a)(6). n12 Once the 180-day period under Appellate Rule 4(a)(6) has expired, a party may not obtain relief under Rule 60(b), because the party is essentially asking the district court to vacate and reenter its order merely to restart the time for appeal. n13

[2] Extraordinary Circumstances Required for Relief

[a] Requirement of Extraordinary Circumstances

Because Rule 60(b)(6) operates as an equitable catch-all provision, it may only be used in "extraordinary circumstances." For purposes of Rule 60(b)(6), there is a fault/no fault distinction that is the primary factor in determining whether extraordinary circumstances exist. n1 To demonstrate extraordinary circumstances, it must appear that the moving party is completely without fault for the situation providing the reason for relief. On the other hand, if a party is entirely or partly to blame, Rule 60(b)(6) relief is not available to that party. n2

In most of the cases finding extraordinary circumstances, the moving party is completely without fault, meaning that the moving party was unable to have taken any steps that would have resulted in preventing the judgment from which relief is sought. n3 Conversely, if the moving party is at fault to any degree, or has engaged in any misconduct or other culpable conduct, the court generally finds a lack of extraordinary circumstances and will deny relief from judgment. In the most common example, courts consistently find that extraordinary circumstances do not exist when an applicant is at fault for a delay in moving for relief. n3.1

[b] Examples of Extraordinary Circumstances

Examples of cases in which the court has found extraordinary circumstances sufficient to justify Rule 60(b)(6) relief from judgment include the following:

1. When the moving party had no knowledge of the proceedings or judgment. For example, a judgment against one of several co-defendants who allegedly signed a loan agreement was set aside when the moving co-defendant established that he never knew of the underlying loan agreement because his name was signed by another person and only a single answer had been filed on behalf of all defendants by an attorney with no authority to represent the moving co-defendant. n4

2. Moving party's agent's wrongful consent to judgment. A court may grant relief under Rule 60(b)(6) when the moving party's agent or attorney has consented to the judgment without authority to bind the moving party principal to the judgment. n5

3. Failure of settlement agreement. A court may grant relief from a judgment entered pursuant to a settlement agreement when, subsequent to the judgment, the nonmoving party fails to perform according to the terms of the settlement agreement. n6 However, the court will deny relief if adequate relief is available through a separate lawsuit for breach of the settlement agreement. n7

4. Improper confession of judgment. If a judgment has been entered by confession of judgment, the court may set aside the judgment under Rule 60(b)(6) when it is improper. n8 The device of the confession of judgment is designed to prevent a debtor from having an opportunity to litigate prior to judgment, so courts have allowed post-judgment remedies to debtors who have claims as to the propriety of the judgments entered against them. Thus, judgments by confession may be attacked when the consideration for the transaction has failed, n9 and when the entry of a judgment by confession has denied due process to a debtor. n10

5. Reinstatement of lawsuit on basis of diversity. Extraordinary circumstances exist that justify relief from a judgment of dismissal for lack of subject-matter jurisdiction if the plaintiff has an inadvertent change in citizenship that prevents reinstatement of a diversity claim and the failure to grant relief from judgment would effectively prevent any adjudication of the plaintiff's claims. n10.1

6. Gross negligence of the party's attorney in the case. If the client can demonstrated gross negligence on the part of his or her counsel, a default judgment against the client may be set aside pursuant to Rule

60(b)(6). However, in order to constitute "extraordinary circumstances," an attorney's failures must be so egregious and profound that they amount to the substantial abandonment of the client's case, such as through physical, or constructive, disappearance. n10.2

[c] Lack of Extraordinary Circumstances

Courts have found that extraordinary circumstances did not exist in the following cases, and, therefore, the moving party was not entitled to relief from the judgment under Rule 60(b)(6):

1. Lack of knowledge of the relevant law or legal theory does not constitute extraordinary circumstances. n11

2. Failure to move for relief in a prompt manner precludes finding of extraordinary circumstances. n12 Similarly if a party fails to take advantage of a clear opportunity to litigate an issue prior to the judgment in question, the party is precluded from use of that issue to obtain Rule 60(b) relief. n13

3. Violation of a court order or rule. A party is not entitled to Rule 60(b)(6) relief from the resulting judgment if the party had repeatedly violated its discovery obligations and court orders after the party has been given opportunities to correct its errors. n14

4. Changes in decisional law generally do not amount to extraordinary circumstances. n15 Courts generally have held that changes in decisional law do not, by themselves, justify relief from judgments. n16 However, a change in decisional law may be considered in granting Rule 60(b)(6) relief in connection with other facts and circumstances that warrant action by the court. n17 Furthermore, at least one court has stated that unexpected changes in statutory law might be the basis for relief. n18

5. The opposition's misrepresentation or failure to disclose required information in a pleading or other filing with the court does not constitute "extraordinary circumstances" necessary to avoid a judgment under Rule 60(b)(6). n19

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExtraordinary Circumstances

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.48 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See Fafel v. DiPaola, 399 F.3d 403 408 (1st Cir. 2005) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(6).

(n4)Footnote 3. Nisson v. Lundy, 975 F.2d 802, 806 (11th Cir. 1992) (per curiam), aff'd without opinion, 51 F.3d 1051 (11th Cir. 1995) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Gonzalez v. Crosby, 545 U.S. 524, 534-535, 125 S. Ct. 2641, 162 L. Ed. 2d 480 (2005) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Provident Sav. Bank v. Popovich, 71 F.3d 696, 699-700 (7th Cir. 1995) .

(n7)Footnote 6. African Methodist Episcopal Church, Inc. v. Ward, 185 F.3d 1201, 1202-1203 (11th Cir. 1999) .

(n8)Footnote 7. Gonzalez v. Crosby, 545 U.S. 524, 528-529, 125 S. Ct. 2641, 162 L. Ed. 2d 480 (2005) .

(n9)Footnote 8. See Pioneer Inv. Serv. Co. v. Brunswick Assocs. Ltd. Partnership, 507 U.S. 380, 393, 113 S. Ct. 1489, 123 L. Ed. 2d 74 (1993) (Rule 60(b)(1) and Rule 60(b)(6) are mutually exclusive grounds on which party may seek relief).

(n10)Footnote 9. Gonzalez v. Crosby, 545 U.S. 524, 529, 125 S. Ct. 2641, 162 L. Ed. 2d 480 (2005) ; Cadle Co. v. Neubauer, 562 F.3d 369, 371 (5th Cir. 2009) .

(n11)Footnote 10. Epling v. United States, 172 F.R.D. 220, 222-223 (W.D. Ky. 1997) .

(n12)Footnote 11. Gleash v. Yuswak, 308 F.3d 758, 761-762 (7th Cir. 2002) .

(n13)Footnote 12. Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(6).

(n14)Footnote 13. Vencor Hosps., Inc. v. Standard Life & Accident Ins. Co., 279 F.3d 1306, 1309-1311 (11th Cir. 2002) .

(n15)Footnote 1. Lightfoot v. District of Columbia, 555 F. Supp. 2d 61, 71 (D.D.C. 2008) (quoting Moore's Federal Practice).

(n16)Footnote 2. Blanchard v. Cortes Molina, 453 F.3d 40, 44 (1st Cir. 2006) .

(n17)Footnote 3. Pioneer Invest. Servs. Co. v. Brunswick Assocs. Ltd. P'ship, 507 U.S. 380, 393-394, 113 S. Ct. 1489, 123 L. Ed. 2d 74 (1993) ; Lender v. Unum Life Ins. Co. of Am., Inc., 519 F. Supp. 2d 1217, 1225 (M.D. Fla. 2007) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n18)Footnote 3.1. Amado v. Microsoft Corp., 517 F.3d 1353, 1363 (Fed. Cir. 2008) ; Grace v. Bank Leumi Trust Co., 443 F.3d 180, 190 n.8 (2d Cir. 2006) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n19)Footnote 4. National Credit Union Admin. Bd. v. Gray, 1 F.3d 262, 266 (4th Cir. 1993) .

(n20)Footnote 5. Washington v. Penwell, 700 F.2d 570, 573-574 (9th Cir. 1983) (state officers lacked authority to bind state to money judgment in federal court).

(n21)Footnote 6. Trade Arbed, Inc. v. African Express MV, 941 F. Supp. 68, 70 (E.D. La. 1996) .

(n22)Footnote 7. Harman v. Pauley, 678 F.2d 479, 481-482 (4th Cir. 1982) .

(n23)Footnote 8. Resolution Trust Corp. v. Forest Grove, Inc., 33 F.3d 284, 288 & n.3 (3d Cir. 1994) , cert. denied, 513 U.S. 1121 (1995) .

(n24)Footnote 9. See Resolution Trust Corp. v. Forest Grove, Inc., 33 F.3d 284, 292 (3d Cir. 1994) , cert. denied, 513 U.S. 1121 (1995) .

(n25)Footnote 10. See Resolution Trust Corp. v. Forest Grove, Inc., 33 F.3d 284, 293-294 (3d Cir. 1994) , cert. denied, 513 U.S. 1121 (1995) .

(n26)Footnote 10.1. LeBlanc v. Cleveland, 248 F.3d 95, 100-101 (2d Cir. 2001) .

(n27)Footnote 10.2. Community Dental Servs. v. Tani, 282 F.3d 1164, 1170-1171 (9th Cir. 2002) ; *Thorpe v. Luisi, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15996, *9-10 (S.D.N.Y. 2005) .

(n28)Footnote 11. PRC Harris, Inc. v. Boeing Co., 700 F.2d 894, 897 (2d Cir. 1983) , cert. denied, 464 U.S. 936 (1983) .

(n29)Footnote 12. Transaero, Inc. v. La Fuerza Area Boliviana, 24 F.3d 457, 461-462 (2d Cir. 1994) .

(n30)Footnote 13. Doe v. Zimmerman (In re Zimmerman), 869 F.2d 1126, 1128 (8th Cir. 1989) .

(n31)Footnote 14. Griffin v. Swim-Tech Corp., 722 F.2d 677, 680-681 (11th Cir. 1984) .

(n32)Footnote 15. See Norgaard v. DePuy Orthopaedics, Inc., 121 F.3d 1074, 1076-1077 (7th Cir. 1997) .

(n33)Footnote 16. Reform Party v. Allegheny County Dep't of Elections, 174 F.3d 305, 311 (3d Cir. 1999) ; Dowell v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Auto. Ins. Co., 993 F.2d 46, 48 (4th Cir. 1993) .

(n34)Footnote 17. See, e.g., Ritter v. Smith, 811 F.2d 1398, 1400-1403 (11th Cir. 1987) , cert. denied, 483 U.S. 1010 (1987) (something more than mere change in the law is necessary to provide the grounds for Rule 60(b)(6) relief).

(n35)Footnote 18. United States v. Wyle (In re Pacific Far East Lines, Inc.), 889 F.2d 242, 250 (9th Cir. 1989) .

(n36)Footnote 19. Patterson v. Mobil Oil Corp., 206 F.R.D. 591, 592 (E.D. Tex. 2002) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
2. Grounds for Granting Motion for Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 26.47through 26.59

[Reserved]

§§ 26.47[Reserved]

27 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
3. Procedures For Motion for Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.60

§ 26.60 Standing to File Motion for Relief From Judgmentn*

As a general rule, only a party to a judgment or proceeding, or a party's legal representative, may make a Rule 60(b) motion. n1 In this regard, a "party's legal representative" means a nonparty whose interests are directly affected by the final judgment who is a person in privity with a party. This standing limitation to persons in privity with an original party may strictly limit who may or may not bring a Rule 60(b) motion. For example, a person who merely has a contract to indemnify one of the original parties does not have standing to move for a Rule 60(b) relief. n2 A party's legal counsel in a case also lacks standing to bring a Rule 60(b) motion in his or her own right because an attorney is not a party's representative for standing purposes. n3 Similarly, when a person does have standing to bring a Rule 60(b) motion as a party's legal representative, only the party's arguments and claim for relief may be asserted, unless the representative is also a party in his or her own right, because the representative has no standing to assert his or her own claims and arguments. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.60 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b); see United States v. 5145 N. Golden State Blvd., 135 F.3d 1312, 1317-1318 (9th Cir. 1998) ; but see Grace v. Bank Leumi Trust Co., 443 F.3d 180, 188 (2d Cir. 2006) (third party may move under Rule 60(b) in limited circumstances when its rights are strongly affected, as when parties agree to settlement for purpose of affecting third party's rights).

(n3)Footnote 2. Kem Mfg. Corp. v. Wilder, 817 F.2d 1517, 1519-1520 (11th Cir. 1987) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Andrews & Kurth L.L.P. v. Wright Killen & Co. (In re El Paso Ref., L.P.), 37 F.3d 230, 234 (5th Cir. 1994) .

(n5)Footnote 4. United States v. 8136 S. Dobson St., 125 F.3d 1076, 1082-1083 (7th Cir. 1997) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
3. Procedures For Motion for Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.61

§ 26.61 Initiation of Motion for Relief From Judgmentn*

[1] Motion by Party Required to Initiate Relief

The general rule is that Rule 60(b) relief may be initiated only by a motion filed by a party. n1 This means that a court generally will not grant relief under Rule 60(b) sua sponte. n2 However, this is not a strict rule and has several exceptions. Thus, depending on the circuit, the court may initiate Rule 60(b) proceedings provided that the court gives the parties the notice and hearing they would have had available if a party had filed the motion. n3 Some circuits have held that a district court may modify the amount of a default judgment under Rule 60(b) sua sponte. n4 There is also an exception to the motion requirement when a party asserts fraud on the court. Rule 60 explicitly preserves a court's inherent power to set aside a judgment for fraud on the court, n5 and this inherent power may be exercised by the court on its own initiative. n6 However, fraud on the court, as discussed in § 26.81, is a very limited concept.

[2] District Court With Jurisdiction to Hear Motion

[a] Court That Rendered Judgment

Rule 60(b) does not specify the court in which a motion for relief from judgment may be filed. n1 However, it is clear from the language of the rule and from case interpretations that the motion must be brought whenever possible in the court and in the action in which the judgment was rendered. n2 The rationale behind the rule is that the court that rendered the judgment has inherent jurisdiction over a motion to set it aside and is also the court in the best position to judge the equities which determine whether it should be set aside. Furthermore, a court needs no independent source of federal subject matter jurisdiction to support a Rule 60(b) motion proceeding regarding a final judgment or order entered in that court. n2.1 A Rule 60(b) motion is considered a continuation of the original proceeding. If the district court had jurisdiction when the suit was filed, it has jurisdiction to entertain a Rule 60(b) motion. This jurisdiction is not divested by subsequent events. n3

The general rule discussed above that a Rule 60(b) motion must be made in the court in which the judgment was rendered does not apply to judgments rendered in state courts when the proceedings are subsequently removed to federal court. Once an action is removed to federal court, the district court to which the action is removed may consider a Rule 60(b) motion, even if the motion is to set aside a judgment initially rendered in state court. n4

[b] Court of Registration of Judgment

A Rule 60(b) motion for relief from judgment must generally be presented to the court that rendered the judgment, and most courts hold that a court where a judgment is registered for purposes of enforcement n5 may not hear such a motion. n6 The reason for this rule is that the court of rendition is more familiar with the circumstances and facts. Thus, judicial comity requires that the court of registration defer to rendition court. n7 However, a minority of courts have held that a court of registration of the judgment also has the power to hear the motion. n8

This is especially true in two types of cases. The first is the case in which a registering court has been allowed to grant relief under facts and circumstances that permit the registering court to treat the Rule 60(b) motion as if it were an independent action in equity. n9 The problem with this independent action theory is that many grounds for relief under Rule 60(b) will not support an independent action. n10 The grounds for an independent action in equity are analyzed in § 26.80.

The second type of case in which a court of registration may entertain a Rule 60(b) motion involves motions claiming that the judgment of the rendering court is void because of lack of personal jurisdiction. As one court of appeals noted, the court of rendition will be more familiar with the facts than the court of registration and perhaps more familiar with the applicable law in the usual Rule 60(b) case. When the Rule 60(b) motion is for relief from a default judgment, however, the assumptions about the rendering court's familiarity no longer apply. n11 Other courts have stated that a court of registration may simply refuse to enforce a void judgment. n12

[3] Time Limitations on Filing Motion

[a] Motion Must Be Made Within Reasonable Time

A party must make a motion under Rule 60(b) within a reasonable time, n1 except that this reasonable time limitation does not apply to judgments that are totally void. n1.1 As was noted in § 26.44 (discussing relief from void judgments under Rule 60(b)), there is no time limit on judicial relief from a void judgment because such a judgment is in fact already a nullity and subject to direct and collateral attack at any time. n1.2 In other words, anytime is a "reasonable" time to set aside a void judgment. n2

In all other cases besides void judgments, what is or is not "reasonable" depends on the facts and circumstances of each case. Thus, the court must analyze the facts to determine whether the opposing party was prejudiced by the delay and whether the moving party had a good reason for failing to take the action sooner. n3 For example, the court found that a party seeking relief from a judgment of foreclosure had taken an unreasonable delay when it offered no explanation for failing to bring its motion for relief for 12 months after the enactment of the statute that was relied on as a basis for setting the judgment aside. n4

[b] One-Year Limitation Applicable to First Three Categories of Motion

[i] One-Year Limitation Is Absolute

In addition to the reasonable time requirement, n5 an absolute one-year limitation applies when the motion is made on the grounds of: n6 mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, n7 newly discovered evidence, n8 or fraud, misrepresentation, or other misconduct of an adverse party. n9 A court has no power to grant a motion that is filed beyond this one-year period. n10 The one-year maximum time limit is in addition to, and not instead of, the requirement that the motion be made within a "reasonable" time. Thus, even a motion that is made within the one-year period may be denied if the court determines that it is not made within a reasonable period of time. n11

[ii] Running of One-Year Period

The one-year time limit applicable to motions based on subsections (1), (2), and (3) of Rule 60(b) n12 begins to run when the judgment, order, or proceeding is entered or taken. n13 Rule 58 controls the formalities required for the entry of a judgment or order. n14 Therefore, the one-year time limit does not begin to run until all of the Rule 58 formalities have been satisfied. For example, because the formalities of Rule 58 require the filing and entry of a separate, signed document containing the court's judgment, the one-year period does not begin to run until the filing and entry. n15

If an appeal is pending, it has been held that the appeal does not toll the running of the one-year period for making a Rule 60(b)(1), (2), or (3) motion. n16 However, one appellate court has indicated that if the appellate court makes a substantive change in the order, the one-year period is restarted with respect to the substantially modified judgment. n17

[c] Filing of Motion Does Not Change Time for Appeal

Unlike other post trial motions, a Rule 60 motion does not suspend or toll the operation of a judgment. n18 Furthermore, a Rule 60 motion does not generally affect the time for filing an appeal from the underlying judgment. However if a Rule 60 motion is filed within 28 days after entry of the judgment, n19 it tolls the beginning the triggering of the time period to file an appeal for all parties until the entry of the order disposing of the last of any similar post-trial motions. n20 This distinction between Rule 60(b) and other post-trial motions seeking relief from the judgment is important because if a party is late in appealing from the judgment, the party has lost the right to appeal the judgment itself and is limited to an appeal from the denial of the Rule 60(b) motion alone. n21 An appeal that is limited only to the propriety of the denial of Rule 60(b) relief is very limited and will usually not involve the merits of the underlying judgment. n22

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.60 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b).

(n3)Footnote 2. Eaton v. Jamrog, 984 F.2d 760, 762 (6th Cir. 1993) (grant of relief was in error, inter alia, because Rule 60(b) explicitly requires motion from affected party and district court acted on its own initiative).

(n4)Footnote 3. See Chavez v. Balesh, 704 F.2d 774, 777 (5th Cir. 1983) ; International Controls Corp. v. Vesco, 556 F.2d 665, 668 (2d Cir. 1977) , cert. denied, 434 U.S. 1014 (1978) .

(n5)Footnote 4. See, e.g., Kingvision Pay-Per-View Ltd. v. Lake Alice Bar, 168 F.3d 347, 351-352 (9th Cir. 1999) (before district court acts sua sponte to modify judgment, due process requires that court provide judgment creditor with notice and opportunity to be heard).

(n6)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(d)(3).

(n7)Footnote 6. Cheng v. K&S Diversified Invs., Inc. (In re Cheng), 308 B.R. 448, 462 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2004) .

(n8)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b).

(n9)Footnote 2. Budget Blinds, Inc. v. White, 536 F.3d 244, 251-252 (3d Cir. 2008) .

(n10)Footnote 2.1. United States v. Beggerly, 524 U.S. 38, 45, 118 S. Ct. 1862, 141 L. Ed. 2d 32 (1998) .

(n11)Footnote 3. Smith v. Widman Trucking & Excavating, Inc., 627 F.2d 792, 799 (7th Cir. 1980) .

(n12)Footnote 4. Butner v. Neustadter, 324 F.2d 783, 785-786 (9th Cir. 1963) (motion to set aside state court default may be made in district court under Rule 60(b)); see First RepublicBank Fort Worth v. Norglass, Inc., 958 F.2d 117, 119-120 (5th Cir. 1992) (court indicated that Rule 60(b) motion may be proper procedure to transform state court judgment into federal court judgment appealable to United States Circuit Courts of Appeals).

(n13)Footnote 5. 28 U.S.C. § 1963; see § 26.120 et seq.

(n14)Footnote 6. See, e.g., Board of Trustees v. Elite Erectors, Inc., 212 F.3d 1031, 1034 (7th Cir. 2000) .

(n15)Footnote 7. See Budget Blinds, Inc. v. White, 536 F.3d 244, 251-252 (3d Cir. 2008) .

(n16)Footnote 8. See, e.g., Harper Macleod Solicitors v. Keaty & Keaty, 260 F.3d 389, 395 (5th Cir. 2001) .

(n17)Footnote 9. Dillard v. Baldwin County Comm'rs, 225 F.3d 1271, 1282 n.5 (11th Cir. 2000) .

(n18)Footnote 10. Indian Head Nat'l Bank v. Brunelle, 689 F.2d 245, 250 & n.9 (1st Cir. 1982) .

(n19)Footnote 11. Covington Indus., Inc. v. Resintex A.G., 629 F.2d 730, 733 (2d Cir. 1980) .

(n20)Footnote 12. Board of Trustees v. Elite Erectors, Inc., 212 F.3d 1031, 1034 (7th Cir. 2000) (court of registration is free to disregard registered judgment, without formally annulling it under Rule 60(b)(4), if rendering court lacked jurisdiction).

(n21)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(d)(3).

(n22)Footnote 1.1. " R" Best Produce, Inc. v. DiSapio, 540 F.3d 115, 123-124 (2d Cir. 2008) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n23)Footnote 1.2. Cent. Vt. PSC v. Herbert, 341 F.3d 186, 189 (2d Cir. 2003) ; United States v. Buck, 281 F.3d 1336, 1344 (10th Cir. 2002) .

(n24)Footnote 2. United States v. One Toshiba Color TV, 213 F.3d 147, 157-158 (3d Cir. 2000) (even laches may not be used to deny Rule 60(b)(4) motion that attacks judgment as void).

(n25)Footnote 3. United States v. Holtzman, 762 F.2d 720, 725 (9th Cir. 1985) (delay was reasonable when party had two opportunities to appeal judgments party objected to but presented adequate reasons for failing in each instance to do so).

(n26)Footnote 4. Federal Land Bank v. Cupples Bros., 889 F.2d 764, 765-767 (8th Cir. 1989) .

(n27)Footnote 5. See [b], above.

(n28)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b).

(n29)Footnote 7. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(1).

(n30)Footnote 8. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(2).

(n31)Footnote 9. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(3).

(n32)Footnote 10. Brandon v. Chicago Bd. of Educ., 143 F.3d 293, 294-296 (7th Cir. 1998) , cert. denied, 525 U.S. 948 (1998) (because Rule 60(b)(1) motion to vacate dismissal based on mistake was filed one year and three days after dismissal, district court had no jurisdiction to grant relief).

(n33)Footnote 11. White v. American Airlines, Inc., 915 F.2d 1414, 1425 (10th Cir. 1990) .

(n34)Footnote 12. See [i], above.

(n35)Footnote 13. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(c)(1).

(n36)Footnote 14. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(b), (c).

(n37)Footnote 15. Williams v. Norris, 461 F.3d 999, 1001 (8th Cir. 2006) .

(n38)Footnote 16. Federal Land Bank v. Cupples Bros., 889 F.2d 764, 766 (8th Cir. 1989) .

(n39)Footnote 17. Transit Cas. Co. v. Security Trust Co., 441 F.2d 788, 791 (5th Cir. 1971) , cert. denied, 404 U.S. 883 (1971) .

(n40)Footnote 18. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(c)(2); see, e.g., United States v. Grable, 25 F.3d 298, 301 (6th Cir. 1994) .

(n41)Footnote 19. See "R" Best Produce, Inc. v. DiSapio, 540 F.3d 115, 122 (2d Cir. 2008) (construing former time periods).

(n42)Footnote 20. See Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4)(A)(vi), (B); Catz v. Chalker, 566 F.3d 839, 841-842 (9th Cir. 2009) (construing former time periods).

(n43)Footnote 21. Marane, Inc. v. McDonald's Corp., 755 F.2d 106, 111-112 (7th Cir. 1985) (appellate court treated late motion for "reconsideration" as Rule 60(b) motion, affirmed denial of Rule 60 motion and dismissed appeal of underlying judgment as untimely).

(n44)Footnote 22. See American Bankers Ins. Co. v. Northwestern Nat'l Ins. Co., 198 F.3d 1332, 1338 (11th Cir. 1999) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
3. Procedures For Motion for Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.62

§ 26.62 Form of Motion for Relief From Judgmentn*

There is no required format or structure for a Rule 60(b) motion. Furthermore, the label or description that a party gives its motion does not control whether the party should be granted or denied relief from judgment, provided that its substance requests relief from an identified judgment. n1 Furthermore, the various time limits specified in Rule 60 and other rules related to judgment may not be circumvented by a particular label given to a motion. The substance of a motion controls. n2 Therefore, if the substance of a motion is based on a claim of mistake or excusable neglect under Rule 60(b)(1), the motion is subject to the one-year time limit for relief on those grounds, n3 even if a party attempts to state the motion as one under the "catch-all" provision of Rule 60(b)(6), which is not subject to the one-year limitation, n4 as discussed in § 26.46[1].

On the other hand, if a motion has the same substance under two different rules, the court should treat the motion as one for relief under the most appropriate ground. n5 For example, a motion labeled as a Rule 52(b) motion to amend findings may be considered as a Rule 60(b) motion, if the circumstances meet the requirements. n6 A court may even construe a motion labeled as a Rule 60(b) motion as an independent action in equity, if it meets all of the requirements. n7

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeContent & FormCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.64 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Gleash v. Yuswak, 308 F.3d 758, 761 (7th Cir. 2002) .

(n3)Footnote 2. *McKinney v. United States, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 48342, at *3-4 (S.D. Ill. June 24, 2008) .

(n4)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(c)(1).

(n5)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(c)(1); see Cotto v. United States, 993 F.2d 274, 277 (1st Cir. 1993) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Santiago Sepulveda v. Esso Std. Oil Co. (P.R.), Inc., 638 F. Supp. 2d 193, 197 (D. P.R. 2007) .

(n7)Footnote 6. See United States v. Martin, 226 F.3d 1042, 1048 n.8 (9th Cir. 2000) , cert. denied, 532 U.S. 1002 (2001) (motion to alter judgment filed outside time period prescribed by Rule 59(e) could be treated as Rule 60(b) motion if motion met Rule 60(b) standards and time limits).

(n8)Footnote 7. Weldon v. United States, 70 F.3d 1, 5 (2d Cir. 1995) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
3. Procedures For Motion for Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.63

§ 26.63 Indicative Ruling on Motion for Relief from Judgment Barred by Pending Appeal

[1] Circumstances for Use of Indicative Ruling

[a] Pending Appeal May Bar Grant of Motion for Relief by District Court

When a party files a timely notice of appeal of a judgment on a claim or claims, the general rule is that the notice of appeal divests the district court of jurisdiction over the claims, n1 including divesting a district court of the power to grant a Rule 60 motion for relief from a judgment. n2 Most significantly, when a valid appeal is pending, n3 a court may not grant a Rule 60(b) motion for relief from judgment on the grounds of mistake, newly discovered evidence, fraud and similar grounds, unless the Rule 60(b) motion is filed within 28 days of the judgment. n4 However, case law has developed which gives the district court the option to either deny such a motion or to indicate its belief that the arguments raised are meritorious. If the district court selects the latter course, the moving party may then petition the court of appeals to remand the matter to give the district court jurisdiction to grant the motion. n5 The procedure for such a motion and "indicative ruling" in the district court has been formalized in the federal rules. n6

[b] Federal Rules Codify Procedure for Indicative Ruling

After an appeal has been docketed, and during the time it is pending, the district court generally cannot grant a Rule 60(b) motion without a remand from the court of appeals. n7 However, it can entertain the motion and deny it, defer considering the motion, state that it creates a substantial issue, or state that it would grant the motion if the court of appeals remands for that purpose. n8 Attorneys and courts have referred to the court's suggestion that it would grant the motion as an "indicative ruling." n9

Civil Rule 62.1 and Appellate Rule 12.1, n10 codify, clarify, and formalize this "indicative ruling" practice that has been developed in case law when a postjudgment motion, usually the Rule 60(b) motion for relief from judgment in the district court, is made at a time when a pending appeal prevents the district from granting the motion. The civil rule and the appellate rule are coordinated to implement the procedure between the two courts. n11 Rule 62.1 does not specify the circumstances in which a pending appeal limits or defeats the district court's authority to act in the face of a pending appeal, because the rules that govern the relationship between the district courts and appellate courts may be complex, depending in part on the nature of the order and the source of appellate jurisdiction. Rule 62.1 applies only when the determination has been made that the district court is divested of jurisdiction. n12 If the district court correctly concludes that it has authority to grant relief without appellate permission, it can act without resorting to the indicative ruling procedure. n13

[c] Coordination of Procedure Between District Court and Court of Appeals

The civil rule and the appellate rule regarding indicative rulings are coordinated to facilitate implementation of the procedure between the two courts. In summary, the district court first indicates whether it would grant the motion or that it creates a substantial issue to be determined, n14 and the moving party notifies the court of appeals. n15 Then, the court of appeals has discretion to determine whether the appeal or the motion should be decided first, and remands if it finds that the district court should determine the motion. n16 The coordinated procedure under the two rules therefore avoids unnecessary determinations by the court of appeals on matters that would be more suitable for resolution by the district court, or that would be mooted by the district court's determination of the postjudgment motion. n17

[2] Procedure for Indicative Ruling in District Court

[a] Options for District Court on Motion for Relief Pending Appeal

If a timely motion is made for relief which the district court lacks authority to grant because of a docketed, pending appeal, the district court may take one of the following options:

- Defer considering the motion. n1 If the district court defers, it may decide the motion after the appeal has been concluded, without leave from the appellate court, with respect to issues that are not decided in the appeal. n2

- Deny the motion. n3 The district court requires neither a remand nor permission of the court of appeals to deny the motion, and if the court does so, no further indicative ruling procedure under Rule 62.1 is necessary. n4

- State that it would grant the motion if the court of appeals remands for the purpose of considering the motion. n5 If it states it would grant the motion, the moving party must notify the court of appeals, n6 and the district court awaits potential remand. n7

- State that the motion raises a substantial issue. n8 The district court may decide to make such a statement if a motion presents complex issues that require extensive litigation and if the motion may be mooted by an appellate decision of the issues. The district court also may state the reasons why it prefers to decide only if the court of appeals agrees that it would be useful to decide the motion before decision of the pending appeal. If the district court does state that the motion raises a substantial issue, the moving party must notify the court of appeals for further action. n9 After remand, the district court is not bound to grant the motion; further proceedings on remand may show that the motion should not be granted. n10

[b] Notification of Court of Appeals Based on Indicative Ruling Decision of District Court on Motion for Relief Pending Appeal

If the district court states either that it would grant the motion or that the motion raises a substantial issue, the moving party must promptly notify the circuit clerk where the appeal is pending. n11 In such cases, the moving party may request that the court of appeals remand so that the district court can make its final ruling on the motion. n12 Local rules may specify the format for the litigants' notifications and the district court's statement. n13

[c] Determination of Motion if Court of Appeals Remands Issue to District Court

If the district court states that it would grant the motion or that the motion raises a substantial issue, n14 the court of appeals may remand for further proceedings. If it does remand, the court of appeals retains jurisdiction unless it expressly dismisses the appeal. n15 The decision whether to remand is in the court of appeals' discretion. n16

If the court of appeals remands for the purpose of deciding the motion, the district court may then determine the motion. n17 If the court of appeals has remanded but retained jurisdiction, the parties must promptly notify the circuit clerk when the district court has decided the motion on remand. n18 This notification is a joint obligation of all parties, and it is fulfilled when the required notice is given by any litigant involved in the motion in the district court. n19

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionLower Court Jurisdiction

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. Dexia Credit Local v. Rogan, 604 F. Supp. 2d 1180, 1184 (N.D. Ill. 2009) .

(n2)Footnote 2. Shepherd v. International Paper Co., 372 F.3d 326, 329-333 (5th Cir. 2004) .

(n3)Footnote 3. Marks v. Clarke, 102 F.3d 1012, 1018 fn. 8 (9th Cir. 1996) (frivolous or forfeited appeal does not automatically divest the district court of jurisdiction).

(n4)Footnote 4. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62.1, Committee Note to Original Rule; see Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4)(A)(vi) (after 28 days, motion of relief no longer suspends notice of appeal).

(n5)Footnote 5. Mahone v. Ray, 326 F.3d 1176, 1180 (11th Cir. 2003) .

(n6)Footnote 6. See [b], below.

(n7)Footnote 7. See [a], above.

(n8)Footnote 8. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 62.1, Committee Note to Original Rule.

(n9)Footnote 9. See Cal. ex rel. Lockyer v. United States Dep't of Agriculture, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 100053, at *4 (N.D. Cal. 2008) ; United States ex rel. Phillips v. Pediatric Servs. of Am., Inc., 223 F. Supp. 2d 763, 766 (W.D.N.C. 2002) .

(n10)Footnote 10. See Fed. R. App. P. 12.1; see also § 28.17.

(n11)Footnote 11. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 62.1, Committee Note to Original Rule; see also [c] below.

(n12)Footnote 12. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62.1(a).

(n13)Footnote 13. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 62.1, Committee Note to Original Rule.

(n14)Footnote 14. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 62.1(a)(3).

(n15)Footnote 15. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 62.1(b).

(n16)Footnote 16. See Fed. R. App. P. 12.1(b).

(n17)Footnote 17. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 62.1, Committee Note to Original Rule; see also [2] below (complete district court procedure).

(n18)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62.1(a)(1).

(n19)Footnote 2. Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 429 U.S. 17, 19, 97 S. Ct. 31, 50 L. Ed. 2d 21 (1976) .

(n20)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62.1(a)(2).

(n21)Footnote 4. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 62.1(a)(2), (b); Fed. R. App. P. 12.1(a) (moving party need not notify court of appeals if district court denies motion outright).

(n22)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62.1(a)(3).

(n23)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62.1(a)(3); see Ameritech Corp. v. IBEW, Local 21, 543 F.3d 414, 419 (7th Cir. 2008) ; see also [b], below.

(n24)Footnote 7. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 62.1(c); Fed. R. App. P. 12.1(b).

(n25)Footnote 8. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62.1(a)(3).

(n26)Footnote 9. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 62.1(b).

(n27)Footnote 10. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62.1(a)(3), Committee Note to Original Rule.

(n28)Footnote 11. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62.1(b); see Fed. R. App. P. 12.1(a).

(n29)Footnote 12. See Fed. R. App. P. 12.1(b); Ameritech Corp. v. IBEW, Local 21, 543 F.3d 414, 419 (7th Cir. 2008) ; see also [c], below.

(n30)Footnote 13. See Fed. R. App. P. 47(a)(1).

(n31)Footnote 14. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62.1(a)(3); see [a], above.

(n32)Footnote 15. Fed. R. App. P. 12.1(b).

(n33)Footnote 16. Fed. R. App. P. 12.1(b), Committee Note to Original Rule; see Ameritech Corp. v. IBEW, Local 21, 543 F.3d 414, 419 (7th Cir. 2008) .

(n34)Footnote 17. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62.1(c); see Fed. R. App. P. 12.1(b).

(n35)Footnote 18. Fed. R. App. P. 12.1(b).

(n36)Footnote 19. Fed. R. App. P. 12.1(b), Committee Note to Original Rule.

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
3. Procedures For Motion for Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.64

§ 26.64 Prohibition Against Successive Motions for Relief From Judgmentn*

Rule 60(b) rulings are generally final and appealable. n1 Consequently, if a party wants to challenge an adverse ruling by a Rule 60(b) motion, the party must appeal that ruling or waive any objections. Furthermore, the party may not simply file a second Rule 60(b) motion on the same grounds in lieu of such an appeal. If a court determines that the second Rule 60(b) motion is based on the same grounds as the first, the court may deny the second motion on that ground and the second denial is not appealable. n2 There is only one possible exception to this principle. If a court determines that the ruling on the first motion was not sufficiently final to be appealable, the court may permit a second, identical motion to be made at a later time and may permit an appeal from the ruling on the second motion. n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.69 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See § 26.65[1].

(n3)Footnote 2. Latham v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., 987 F.2d 1199, 1203-1204 (5th Cir. 1993) .

(n4)Footnote 3. See Xerox Fin. Servs. Life Ins. Co. v. High Plains Ltd. P'ship, 44 F.3d 1033, 1038 (1st Cir. 1995) (if first ruling is not actually appealable, denial of second Rule 60(b) motion might be appealable).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
3. Procedures For Motion for Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.65

§ 26.65 Appeal of Grant or Denial of Motion for Relief From Judgmentn*

[1] Appealability of Order of Grant or Denial of Motion

If the court denies a motion properly made under Rule 60(b), the denial is final and therefore immediately appealable. n1 The appellate court reviews the district court's denial of a Rule 60(b) motion by determining the propriety of the denial of relief and whether the district court abused its discretion in denying relief. n1.1 These issues are fully and finally decided the moment that the Rule 60(b) motion is denied. n2

The appealability of an order granting a Rule 60(b) motion is slightly more complicated. When an order granting a Rule 60(b) motion merely vacates the judgment and leaves the case pending for further determination, as is usually the case, the order is similar to an order granting a new trial and therefore is interlocutory and nonappealable. The propriety of the grant of relief is appealable from the judgment that eventually results from the litigation. n3 On the other hand, the grant of a Rule 60(b) motion is appealable when the court not only relieves a party of judgment but enters a corrected judgment so that there is nothing further to be decided by the district court. n4

Even in circumstances where an order on a Rule 60(b) motion is appealable, the appeal is limited in scope to the propriety of the denial or grant of relief. The appeal may not reach the merits of the underlying judgment from which relief was sought. n5 Appellate review of Rule 60(b) orders is limited in this manner because, otherwise, Rule 60(b) would become a substitute for a timely appeal. n5.1 An inquiry into the merits of the underlying judgment or order may only be challenged by direct appeal from that judgment or order. n6

[2] Standard of Review

The denial of a Rule 60(b) motion is reviewed under the abuse of discretion standard. n1 The court of appeals will reverse for abuse of discretion only when it has a definite and firm conviction that the trial court committed a clear error of judgment. n2 Other courts have stated that a district court will have abused its discretion only in situations in which no reasonable person could agree with the district court. n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsReviewabilityGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewAbuse of Discretion

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.68 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See Feldberg v. Quechee Lakes Corp., 463 F.3d 195, 198 (2d Cir. 2006) .

(n3)Footnote 1.1. Smalls v. United States, 471 F.3d 186, 189, 374 U.S. App. D.C. 63 (D.C. Cir. 2006) ; see [2], below.

(n4)Footnote 2. Fiore v. Washington County Community Mental Health Ctr., 960 F.2d 229, 234 (1st Cir. 1992) .

(n5)Footnote 3. National Passenger R.R. Corp. v. Maylie, 910 F.2d 1181, 1182-1183 (3d Cir. 1990) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n6)Footnote 4. Chavez v. Balesh, 704 F.2d 774, 778 (5th Cir. 1983) .

(n7)Footnote 5. Townsend v. SSA, 486 F.3d 127, 134 (6th Cir. 2007) .

(n8)Footnote 5.1. Stoller v. Pure Fishing, Inc., 528 F.3d 478, 480 (7th Cir. 2008) .

(n9)Footnote 6. American Bankers Ins. Co. v. Northwestern Nat'l Ins. Co., 198 F.3d 1332, 1338 (11th Cir. 1999) (appeal of Rule 60(b) ruling may not be used to challenge mistake of law that could have been raised on direct appeal from underlying judgment).

(n10)Footnote 1. United States v. Universal Mgmt. Servs., Inc., 191 F.3d 750, 757 (6th Cir. 1999) , cert. denied, 530 U.S. 1274 (2000) .

(n11)Footnote 2. Cacevic v. City of Hazel Park, 226 F.3d 483, 490 (6th Cir. 2000) .

(n12)Footnote 3. Mares v. Busby, 34 F.3d 533, 535 (7th Cir. 1994) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
3. Procedures For Motion for Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 26.66through 26.79

[Reserved]

§§ 26.66[Reserved]

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
4. Alternatives to Motion for Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.80

§ 26.80 Independent Action for Relief From Judgmentn*

[1] Preservation of Independent Action to Obtain Relief From Judgment

Rule 60 specifically preserves the device of the independent action for the court to set aside a judgment. Thus, the rule states that a Rule 60(b) motion does not limit the power of a court to entertain an independent action to relieve a party from a judgment, order, or proceeding. n1 However, no new right of action is created by this provision of Rule 60. Rather, the rule merely preserves the existence of a procedural remedy by an independent action to set aside a judgment on those principles that were applicable in such an action before the enactment of Rule 60(b). n1.1 In other words, Rule 60(b) merely preserves whatever power federal courts had prior to the enactment of Rule 60 to relieve a party of a judgment by means of an independent action according to traditional principles of equity. n2 Thus, for example, an independent action for relief from a judgment may be brought by a person whose interests are affected by the judgment, even if that person was not a party to the original action. n3

[2] Jurisdiction Required for Independent Action

The court that rendered a judgment has inherent jurisdiction over a motion to set it aside. n1 Therefore, a court needs no independent federal jurisdictional basis to hear an action to set aside its own judgment. n2 The rationale for this rule is that when an independent action for relief from the judgment is brought in the same court that rendered the judgment, the rendering court has a form of supplemental jurisdiction to hear the action. This "ancillary jurisdiction" is broad enough so that even when the original basis for federal jurisdiction no longer exists, such as when diversity has been destroyed or the issue to be litigated is no longer a federal question, the district court that rendered the judgment maintains jurisdiction to hear an action to set that judgment aside. n3

On the other hand, the current court needs its own jurisdictional basis to hear an independent action to set aside a judgment rendered by another court. n4 Provided that it has such jurisdictional grounds, it is within the equitable powers of a federal court to grant relief from a civil judgment issued by another federal court. n5 However, there are some limitations on the power of a non-rendering court to consider an independent action for relief from a judgment rendered by another court. Thus, it has been held that a district court has no jurisdiction to grant relief from a mandatory injunction issued by another court, n6 especially when relief is available in the rendering court. n7

[3] Prerequisites to Relief by Independent Action

[a] Summary of Requirements

In an independent action for relief, a party must demonstrate several essential elements: (1) a judgment which ought not, in equity and good conscience, to be enforced; (2) a good defense to the alleged cause of action on which the judgment is founded; (3) fraud, accident, or mistake which prevented the party from obtaining the benefit of the defense; n1 (4) the absence of fault or negligence on the part of the party; and (5) the absence of any adequate remedy at law. n2 The most important of these are discussed in [b] through [d], below.

[b] Injustice in Judgment

Independent actions for relief from a judgment are reserved for those cases of injustices which are deemed sufficiently gross to demand a departure from rigid adherence to the doctrine of res judicata. In other words, an independent action should be available only to prevent a grave miscarriage of justice. n3 To obtain relief in an independent action in equity, it is thus necessary to show more than facts that would justify relief under an ordinary Rule 60(b) motion. This requirement means that the party seeking relief must show that the judgment is "manifestly unconscionable." n4 Therefore, relief from a judgment in an independent action in equity is available only in unusual and exceptional circumstances, when the prior judgment ought not, in equity and good conscience be enforced. n5

[c] Meritorious Claim by Petitioner

Just as with Rule 60(b) motions, a party seeking relief from a judgment in an independent action in equity must show a meritorious claim or defense. n6 This requirement is regularly stated in formulations of the elements or prerequisites to relief in an independent action in equity. n7

[d] Petitioner Free From Fault

Rule 60(b) preserves an independent action on those principles that had been applied in such an action before promulgation of the rule. n8 Therefore, the courts have strictly applied the traditional rule that equity will set aside a judgment only when the party seeking relief sets forth grounds for relief that establish that the party does not have any fault or negligence in himself or herself, or in the party's agents, or when the party seeking relief shows freedom from fault or neglect on the part of the party or his or her agents. In particular, a lack of diligence by the party seeking relief bars equitable relief. n9 Thus, even though the one-year limitation period on Rule 60(b)(1), (2), and (3) motions does not apply to independent actions, n10 the equitable doctrine of laches does apply in the context of an independent action in equity for relief from a judgment. The doctrine of laches serves as a bar when the party seeking relief has not exercised due diligence in presenting his or her claim or defense, and the opposing party has been prejudiced by the delay. n11

[4] Grounds for Independent Action

[a] Fraud

Fraud is the most common basis for an independent action for relief from a judgment even though fraud is also a basis for a Rule 60(b)(3) motion. n1 Independent actions based on fraud are usually brought in situations that do not meet the requirements for a motion under Rule 60(b): n2 because the one-year time limit on fraud-based Rule 60(b) motions has expired, because the fraud is not chargeable to an adverse party, or because the moving party seeks relief from a court other than the rendering court. It must be remembered that this type of ordinary fraud is distinguished from fraud on the court, which is misconduct that undermines the integrity of the judicial process or prevents the court from performing its functions in an impartial manner, n3 which is grounds for an entirely separate procedure for relief from a judgment, as is discussed in § 26.81.

In an independent action for fraud, a party must establish extrinsic, as opposed to intrinsic, fraud. n4 Thus, even though a Rule 60(b)(3) motion provides relief for both intrinsic and extrinsic fraud, n5 the court may grant relief in an independent action only for fraud that is extrinsic, which is fraud that actually prevented an issue from being joined or a party from making a valid claim or defense. For example, if an attorney conspires with an opponent to defeat the attorney's client, it is extrinsic fraud. n6 On the other hand, the majority rule is that perjury by trial witnesses is an intrinsic fraud, because even though such fraud may have a negative effect, there has been no obstruction with the party's opportunity to litigate. n7 However, some circuits expressly reject the distinction between intrinsic and extrinsic fraud. These circuits hold that either extrinsic or intrinsic fraud is sufficient to obtain relief from a judgment in an independent action in equity based on a claim of fraud. n8

[b] Newly Discovered Evidence

Newly discovered evidence may serve as a basis for relief in an independent action. Even though in an independent action the petitioner need not comply with the one-year time limit on a Rule 60(b)(2) motion, the petitioner must comply with the all of the other prerequisites to relief for newly discovered evidence under Rule 60(b)(2), n9 as discussed in § 26.42. This means that the same substantive standards that govern a motion for relief under Rule 60(b) apply to an independent action in equity, and that a party bringing an independent action based on newly discovered evidence has the burden to demonstrate that these criteria have been met. Thus, for example, a party may not maintain an independent action on the basis of newly discovered evidence if the party does not show that it exercised diligence in failing to discover the evidence at an earlier time. n10 Furthermore, evidence of facts will not support relief if such evidence was not in existence at the time of trial. n11

[c] Mistake

Another common basis for an independent action for relief from a judgment is "mistake," n12 which is also available by motion under Rule 60(b)(1). However, relief by means of a Rule 60(b)(1) motion is limited to a period of one year from the entry of the judgment. When relief is sought from a judgment for mistake after the one-year period has elapsed, a party may either utilize an independent action, or try to qualify the nature of the mistake as "clerical" under Rule 60(a), n13 which also has no time limit. n14

[d] Duress

If duress prevents a party from having a true adversary trial, and the judgment was procured by duress, the judgment may be set aside in an independent action. n15 However, it may be difficult to find conduct that meets the accepted definition of duress. Insistence on one's legal rights, even if it places another person in a very negative situation, is not duress. n16 Thus, one may not be liable for duress for exercising one's legal rights under a contract. To establish duress one must show conduct such as actual coercion or intimidation. A plaintiff must claim more than mere persuasion, obstinance, or threats, but rather must claim that a defendant withheld something of value to get something wrongfully demanded. n17

[e] Satisfaction of Debt

One case has held that if evidence conclusively shows a complete or partial satisfaction of a debt, the debtor may set aside a judgment for any debt not truly owed, and the party seeking to set aside the judgment may bring an independent action for such relief. n18 However, it should be noted that an independent action may be treated as a Rule 60(b) motion, at least when such a remedy is available, as when the time requirement is met. The title placed on the moving papers filed by the parties is not controlling, so there is no reason why an independent action could not simply be construed as a Rule 60(b) motion. n19

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentIndependent Actions

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.80 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(d)(1).

(n3)Footnote 1.1. Karaha Bodas Co., L.L.C. v. Perusahaan Pertambangan Minyak Dan Gas Bumi Negara, 465 F. Supp. 2d 283, 293 (S.D.N.Y. 2006) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n4)Footnote 2. See Campaniello Imports, Ltd. v. Saporiti Italia S.p.A., 117 F.3d 655, 661 (2d Cir. 1997) .

(n5)Footnote 3. Morrel v. Nationwide Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 188 F.3d 218, 222-223 (4th Cir. 1999) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n6)Footnote 1. Smith v. Widman Trucking & Excavating, Inc., 627 F.2d 792, 799 (7th Cir. 1980) .

(n7)Footnote 2. See Dillard v. Baldwin County Comm'rs, 225 F.3d 1271, 1282 n.5 (11th Cir. 2000) ; see also United States v. Beggerly, 524 U.S. 38, 46, 118 S. Ct. 1862, 141 L. Ed. 2d 32 (1998) (independent action for relief from judgment brought in same court as original lawsuit against United States does not require independent basis for jurisdiction).

(n8)Footnote 3. Valerio v. Boise Cascade Corp., 645 F.2d 699, 700 (9th Cir. 1981) , cert. denied, 454 U.S. 1126 (1981) (court that approved class-action settlement had jurisdiction over suit to set aside settlement and reopen class even though basis for relief was state-law claims charging class attorneys with fraud and malpractice).

(n9)Footnote 4. Cresswell v. Sullivan & Cromwell, 922 F.2d 60, 70 (2d Cir. 1990) (independent action for relief from the judgment must be supported by its own jurisdictional grounds).

(n10)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b), Committee Note to 1946 Amendments.

(n11)Footnote 6. Carter v. United States, 733 F.2d 735, 736 (10th Cir. 1984) , cert. denied, 469 U.S. 1161 (1985) .

(n12)Footnote 7. Lapin v. Shulton, Inc., 333 F.2d 169, 172 (9th Cir. 1964) , cert. denied, 379 U.S. 904 (1964) .

(n13)Footnote 1. See [4], below.

(n14)Footnote 2. Range v. United States, 256 B.R. 868, 874 (S.D. Tex. 2000) .

(n15)Footnote 3. See United States v. Beggerly, 524 U.S. 38, 46-47, 118 S. Ct. 1862, 141 L. Ed. 2d 32 (1998) (because judgment would work no grave miscarriage of justice and perhaps no miscarriage of justice at all, court of appeals erred in concluding that there was sufficient basis to justify reopening judgment).

(n16)Footnote 4. Pickford v. Talbott, 225 U.S. 651, 657, 32 S. Ct. 687, 56 L. Ed. 1240 (1911) .

(n17)Footnote 5. Barrett v. Secretary of Health & Human Services, 840 F.2d 1259, 1263 (6th Cir. 1987) .

(n18)Footnote 6. Bankers Mortgage Co. v. United States, 423 F.2d 73, 79 (5th Cir. 1970) , cert. denied, 399 U.S.

927 (1970) (one element of independent action in equity is good defense to alleged cause of action on which judgment is founded).

(n19)Footnote 7. *Adena Corp. v. D'Andrea, 1997 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 21563, at 5 (E.D. Pa. Dec. 22, 1997) (in determining whether justice favors vacating default judgment under Rule 60(b), courts consider existence of meritorious defense, prejudice to the plaintiff if judgment is vacated, and culpability of defendant in entry of judgment).

(n20)Footnote 8. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60, Committee Note to 1946 Amendments.

(n21)Footnote 9. Carteret Sav. & Loan Ass'n, F.A. v. Jackson, 812 F.2d 36, 39 (1st Cir. 1987) .

(n22)Footnote 10. West Virginia Oil & Gas Co. v. George E. Breece Lumber Co., 213 F.2d 702, 705-706 (5th Cir. 1954) ; see Averbach v. Rival Mfg. Co., 809 F.2d 1016, 1020 (3d Cir. 1987) (citing advisory committee notes for proposition that purpose of independent action was to provide relief after one-year limit in rule expires).

(n23)Footnote 11. Lockwood v. Bowles, 46 F.R.D. 625, 629-630 (D.D.C. 1969) .

(n24)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(3).

(n25)Footnote 2. See Range v. United States, 256 B.R. 868, 873 (S.D. Tex. 2000) .

(n26)Footnote 3. See Oxxford Clothes XX v. Expeditors Int'l, 127 F.3d 574, 578 (7th Cir. 1997) ("fraud on the court" is conduct that might be thought to corrupt judicial process itself, as where party bribes judge).

(n27)Footnote 4. See Range v. United States, 256 B.R. 868, 874 (S.D. Tex. 2000) .

(n28)Footnote 5. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(3).

(n29)Footnote 6. Bizzell v. Hemingway, 548 F.2d 505, 507 (4th Cir. 1977) .

(n30)Footnote 7. See Range v. United States, 256 B.R. 868, 874-875 (S.D. Tex. 2000) (fraud alleged by moving party was not such that it was not in issue in the former action, and alleged fraud could have been put in issue by the party's reasonable diligence); Great Coastal Express, Inc. v. International Bhd. of Teamsters, 675 F.2d 1349, 1357-1358 (4th Cir. 1982) , cert. denied, 459 U.S. 1128 (1983) (notwithstanding considerable criticism against intrinsic/extrinsic distinction, it is clear that perjury and false testimony are intrinsic, and not grounds for relief in independent action).

(n31)Footnote 8. Bandai America Inc. v. Bally Midway Manufacturing Co., 775 F.2d 70, 73 (3d Cir. 1985) , cert. denied, 475 U.S. 1047 (1986) .

(n32)Footnote 9. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(2).

(n33)Footnote 10. Johnson Waste Materials v. Marshall, 611 F.2d 593, 597-598 (5th Cir. 1980) .

(n34)Footnote 11. Southmark Props. v. Charles House Corp., 742 F.2d 862, 873 (5th Cir. 1984) .

(n35)Footnote 12. Carteret Sav. & Loan Ass'n, F.A. v. Jackson, 812 F.2d 36, 39 n.6 (1st Cir. 1987) .

(n36)Footnote 13. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a).

(n37)Footnote 14. Jones v. Anderson-Tully Co., 722 F.2d 211, 212 (5th Cir. 1984) .

(n38)Footnote 15. Hadden v. Rumsey Prods., Inc., 196 F.2d 92, 96 (2d Cir. 1952) .

(n39)Footnote 16. Southmark Props. v. Charles House Corp., 742 F.2d 862, 873, 875-876 (5th Cir. 1984) .

(n40)Footnote 17. *Cf. Crescent City M Dealership, L.L.C. v. Mazda Motor of Am., Inc. 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 17484, at *6-7 (E.D. La. Nov. 20, 2000) .

(n41)Footnote 18. Johnson Waste Materials v. Marshall, 611 F.2d 593, 599-602 (5th Cir. 1980) (debtor produced canceled checks and employee records showed that only half of judgment amount had been withheld from employees, and to pay employees entire judgment would be to award them windfall).

(n42)Footnote 19. Nevada VTN v. General Ins. Co. of Am., 834 F.2d 770, 775 (9th Cir. 1987) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
4. Alternatives to Motion for Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.81

§ 26.81 Relief From Judgment Based on Fraud on Courtn*

[1] Court Retains Inherent Power to Rectify Fraud on Court

Rule 60 expressly provides that the rule does not affect a court's inherent power to set aside a judgment that is procured through fraud on the court. n1 This provision gives a federal court the power to investigate any appearance of fraud on the court by bringing before the court all witnesses and those who may be affected by the outcome of its investigation. n1.1 To adjudicate the rights of the parties in such an investigation, the usual safeguards of adversary proceedings must be observed, and a judgment may not be set aside on grounds of fraud on the court without affording all parties who might be affected the right to appear and be heard. n2

Fraud on the court affects the judicial process rather than just the parties. Thus, "fraud on the court" is misconduct that undermines the integrity of the judicial process or prevents the court from performing its functions in an impartial manner. In other words, fraud on the court is conduct that if unchecked would corrupt the judicial process itself. n3 Fraud on the court is limited to fraud that attempts to defile the court itself or that is perpetrated by officers of the court so that the judicial machinery cannot perform in the usual manner its impartial task of adjudging cases. Examples of conduct that meets this definition include:

1. Bribery of a judge. n4

2. Fabrication of evidence. n5

3. Hiring an attorney to improperly influence a judge. n6

4. Jury tampering. n7

5. Improperly attempting to influence a witness. n7.1

Fraud on the court may not be established simply by showing some misconduct by one of the parties to the suit. n8 Thus, fraud on the court does not exist where a judgment has simply been obtained with the aid of a witness who, on the basis of after-discovered evidence, is believed possibly to have been guilty of perjury. Such fraud is "ordinary fraud," and may be rectified by an independent action in equity to set aside the judgment, as discussed in § 26.80. n9

[2] Proceedings to Set Aside Fraud on Court

There are no formal requirements for initiating a claim of fraud on the court, which may be asserted by a party or by the court on its own initiative. n1 However, the United States Supreme Court has made it clear that a judgment may not be set aside on grounds of fraud on the court unless all parties who could be affected by the action are given the right to appear and be heard. n2 This means that the court must provide not only notice and an opportunity to be heard, but also that fact-finding may be based on testimony that is subject to examination and cross-examination. n2.1

Because fraud on the court affects the integrity of the judicial process itself, a judgment may be set aside for fraud on the court at any time, and there is no time limit imposed on any party or on the court. n3 Furthermore, considerable authority indicates that laches is not a defense to an action to set aside a judgment procured by fraud on the court. n4 The rationale is that a judgment procured by fraud on the court should not be allowed to stand solely because someone was not diligent in bringing the fraud to the court's notice. However, in practice, courts will likely consider the delays involved in determining whether the fraud in question is of the magnitude to constitute fraud on the court. The greater the delay, the more deference the court is likely to give to the concept of the finality of judgments. n5

To have a judgment set aside for fraud on the court, the fraud must be established by clear and convincing evidence. n6 This is the same standard of proof applicable to a motion under Rule 60(b)(3) for relief based on fraud committed by a party. However, because fraud on the court is concerned with the integrity of the adjudication process itself, it is not relevant whether a party seeking relief has clean hands or not. n7 This does not mean that clean hands are irrelevant once fraud on the court is established. Thus, if a party procured a judgment through fraud on the court, the court may not only set that judgment aside, it may dismiss the party's claim with prejudice, regardless of the merits of the claim, because the party has engaged in fraud. n8

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentFraud

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 12 Moore's Federal Practice, § 60.21[4] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(d)(3).

(n3)Footnote 1.1. *See Eastern Fin. Corp. v. JSC Alchevsk Iron & Steel Works, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 48640, at *24-26 (S.D.N.Y. June 24, 2008) .

(n4)Footnote 2. Universal Oil Prods. Co. v. Root Ref. Co., 328 U.S. 575, 580, 66 S. Ct. 1176, 90 L. Ed. 1447 (1946) ; see [2], below.

(n5)Footnote 3. Oxxford Clothes XX v. Expeditors Int'l, 127 F.3d 574, 578 (7th Cir. 1997) .

(n6)Footnote 4. See Oxxford Clothes XX v. Expeditors Int'l, 127 F.3d 574, 578 (7th Cir. 1997) .

(n7)Footnote 5. Anderson v. Calderon, 232 F.3d 1053, 1095 (9th Cir. 2000) .

(n8)Footnote 6. Root Ref. Co. v. Universal Oil Prods. Co., 169 F.2d 514, 540-541 (3d Cir. 1948) , cert. denied, 335 U.S. 912 (1974) .

(n9)Footnote 7. Meindl v. Genesys Pac. Techs, Inc. (In re Genesys Data Techs.), 204 F.3d 124, 130 (4th Cir. 2000) .

(n10)Footnote 7.1. Ty Inc. v. Softbelly's, Inc., 517 F.3d 494, 498 (7th Cir. 2008) .

(n11)Footnote 8. Range v. United States, 256 B.R. 868, 874 (S.D. Tex. 2000) ; see, e.g., Gleason v. Jandrucko, 860 F.2d 556, 560 (2d Cir. 1988) (neither perjury nor nondisclosure by itself amounts to anything more than fraud involving a single party).

(n12)Footnote 9. See Range v. United States, 256 B.R. 868, 874 (S.D. Tex. 2000) (although fraud alleged was not in issue in the former action, it could have been put in issue by party's reasonable diligence).

(n13)Footnote 1. See Herring v. FDIC, 82 F.3d 282, 285 (9th Cir. 1996) .

(n14)Footnote 2. Universal Oil Products Co. v. Root Refining Co., 328 U.S. 575, 580, 66 S. Ct. 1176, 90 L. Ed. 1447 (1946) .

(n15)Footnote 2.1. Hazel-Atlas Glass Co. v. Hartford-Empire Co., 322 U.S. 238, 250 n.5, 64 S. Ct. 997, 88 L. Ed. 1250 (1944) ; see Roger Edwards, LLC v. Fiddes & Son, Ltd., 226 F.R.D. 18, 20 (D. Me. 2005) (court may hold evidentiary hearing).

(n16)Footnote 3. Bulloch v. United States, 721 F.2d 713, 719 (10th Cir. 1983) (Rule 60(b) does not impose time limit on motions asserting fraud on court); Valerio v. Boise Cascade Corp., 80 F.R.D. 626, 640 n.10 (N.D. Cal. 1978) , aff'd, 645 F.2d 699 (9th Cir. 1981) (per curiam) (there is no statute of limitation for fraud on court).

(n17)Footnote 4. Hazel-Atlas Glass Co. v. Hartford-Empire Co., 322 U.S. 238, 246, 64 S. Ct. 997, 88 L. Ed. 1250 (1944) .

(n18)Footnote 5. See Bulloch v. United States, 721 F.2d 713, 719 (10th Cir. 1983) .

(n19)Footnote 6. Ty Inc. v. Softbelly's, Inc., 517 F.3d 494, 498 (7th Cir. 2008) (clear and convincing evidence of attempting to improperly influence a witness would constitute fraud on court); Booker v. Dugger 825 F.2d 281, 283-284 & n.4 (11th Cir. 1987) , cert. denied, 485 U.S. 1015 (1988) .

(n20)Footnote 7. See Martina Theatre Corp. v. Schine Chain Theatres, Inc., 278 F.2d 798, 801 (2d Cir. 1960) (dictum).

(n21)Footnote 8. Wyle v. R.J. Reynolds Indus., Inc., 709 F.2d 585, 589 (9th Cir. 1983) ; Aoude v. Mobil Oil Corp., 892 F.2d 1115, 1119-1120 (1st Cir. 1989) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART I. RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT
B. RELIEF FROM SUBSTANTIVE ERRORS IN JUDGMENT
4. Alternatives to Motion for Relief From Judgment

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 26.82through 26.99

[Reserved]

§§ 26.82[Reserved]

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART II. EXECUTION OF JUDGMENT

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.100

§ 26.100 Function of Execution of Judgmentn*

Execution of judgment is the process used to enforce a judgment of the court. n1 A "writ of execution" is an order issued by a court, n1.1 in the form of a final process designed to enforce a money judgment, directing an officer of the court to seize the property of a judgment debtor and transfer the proceeds to the judgment creditor. n2 Execution of judgment applies only to money judgments. n3 Subject matter jurisdiction for execution of judgment must be based on an appropriate jurisdictional statute. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 13 Moore's Federal Practice, § 69.02 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Paul Revere Ins. Group v. United States, 500 F.3d 957, 960-962 (9th Cir. 2007) .

(n3)Footnote 1.1. Koehler v. Bank of Berm., Ltd., 544 F.3d 78, 87 (2d Cir. 2008) .

(n4)Footnote 2. Specialty Healthcare Mgmt., Inc. v. St. Mary Parish Hosp., 220 F.3d 650, 653 (5th Cir. 2000) ; Giove v. Stanko, 49 F.3d 1338, 1341-1342 (8th Cir. 1995) .

(n5)Footnote 3. Credit Suisse v. United States Dist. Court, 130 F.3d 1342, 1344 (9th Cir. 1997) (Rule 69(a) essentially limits district court's mechanism for enforcement of money judgment to writ of execution).

(n6)Footnote 4. See National Westminster Bank U.S.A. v. Cheng, 751 F. Supp. 1158, 1161 (S.D.N.Y. 1990) (Rule 69(a) does not provide nor expand subject matter jurisdiction of district court).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART II. EXECUTION OF JUDGMENT

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.101

§ 26.101 n* Law Governing Execution of Judgment

[1] Procedure in Federal Court

The procedure for execution of judgment in federal court is governed by Rule 69(a)(1), which provides that process to enforce a judgment for the payment of money must be by a writ of execution, unless the court directs otherwise. n1 The language of this provision permits enforcement of money judgments other than by writ of execution. However, such other methods are confined only to cases in which established principles provide for equitable relief when a writ of execution would be an inadequate remedy. n2 For example, a court may enforce a judgment through the imposition of a contempt sanction, but only in cases of exceptional circumstances. n3 Additionally, when a judgment involves intangible assets such as intellectual property rights in a patent, trademark, or copyright, which are not subject to a writ of execution, the court may employ other legal or equitable procedures for enforcement. n4

[2] State Law Controls Except When Explicit Federal Law Governs

Except to the extent that any statute of the United States governs, the procedure on execution, and in proceedings supplementary to and in aid of a judgment, must be in accordance with the practice and procedure of the state in which the district court is held. n1 This provision has the effect that in proceedings in federal court to enforce a judgment, the state execution practices and procedures ordinarily must be followed. n2 Therefore, state law regarding execution has been applied in federal court with regard to the following matters:

1. A specification of which assets of a judgment debtor are subject to levy of execution and sale. n3

2. A specification of which assets of a judgment debtor are exempt from execution. n4

3. The identity of the parties liable on a judgment. n5

4. Whether a judgment creditor may obtain discovery in aid of execution. n6

5. Imposition of court costs. n7

State law applies only to the extent that no federal statute is applicable. Note that a federal rule is considered a governing statute for this purpose. For example, Rule 62(d) is a "governing statute" of the United States within the meaning of Rule 69(a), because Rule 62(d) expressly governs supersedeas bond approval and the effect of such approval, and would prevail over an analogous state bond procedure. n8

[3] Reconciliation of State and Federal Procedures

When applying state execution procedures because no federal law controls, as required by Rule 69(a), n1 the federal court should apply that state law in a common sense manner, n2 because a strict and literal conformity to state procedures may not make enforcement of the federal judgment impossible or impractical; n2.1 flexibility may be required because enforcement of the judgment is the ultimate purpose of the rule. n2.2 For example, the leading Supreme Court case recognized the need for some flexibility in adapting the state procedure to the practice of the federal courts and held that federal officials, including the clerk of the district court and the United States Marshal should be substituted when appropriate for the comparable state officers designated in the state statute. n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 13 Moore's Federal Practice, § 69.03 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 69(a)(1); see [2], below.

(n3)Footnote 2. Ardex Labs., Inc. v. Cooperider, 319 F. Supp. 2d 507, 509 (E.D. Pa. 2004) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n4)Footnote 3. Marshak v. Green, 746 F.2d 927, 930 (2d Cir. 1984) ; Baxter State Bank v. Bernhardt, 186 F.R.D. 621, 623 (D. Kan. 1999) (quoting Moore's Federal Practice).

(n5)Footnote 4. Marshak v. Green, 746 F.2d 927, 930 (2d Cir. 1984) .

(n6)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 69(a)(1).

(n7)Footnote 2. Koehler v. Bank of Berm., Ltd., 544 F.3d 78, 87 (2d Cir. 2008) .

(n8)Footnote 3. Marshak v. Green, 746 F.2d 927, 931 (2d Cir. 1984) (trade name not asset subject to levy).

(n9)Footnote 4. Davis v. Davis (In re Davis), 170 F.3d 475 (5th Cir. 1999) , cert. denied, 528 U.S. 822 (1999) (court of appeals affirmed decision denying execution because debtor was entitled to exempt his homestead from claims of creditors, and the federal bankruptcy exemption statute was not an "execution statute," and therefore did not preempt relevant state law).

(n10)Footnote 5. Supporters to Oppose Pollution v. Heritage Group, 973 F.2d 1320, 1327 (7th Cir. 1992) (state law allowed collection only against named judgment debtors).

(n11)Footnote 6. Dulce v. Dulce, 233 F.3d 143, 146-147 (2d Cir. 2000) .

(n12)Footnote 7. In re Merrill Lynch Relocation Mgmt., Inc. 812 F.2d 1116, 1120 (9th Cir. 1987) .

(n13)Footnote 8. Ribbens Int'l, S.A. de C.V. v. Transport Int'l Pool, Inc., 40 F. Supp. 2d 1141, 1143-1144 (C.D. Cal. 1999) .

(n14)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 69(a)(1).

(n15)Footnote 2. See Peacock v. Thomas, 516 U.S. 349, 116 S. Ct. 862, 869 n.7, 133 L. Ed. 2d 817 (1996) .

(n16)Footnote 2.1. United States v. Gianelli, 543 F.3d 1178, 1183 (9th Cir. 2008) (state law should not be applied in manner that thwarts Federal Debt Collection Procedures Act).

(n17)Footnote 2.2. Duchek v. Jacobi, 646 F.2d 415, 418-419 (9th Cir. 1981) (state law must not be followed in hyper-technical manner that makes sense only in state court).

(n18)Footnote 3. Yazoo & Miss.Valley R.R. v. City of Clarksdale, 257 U.S. 10, 24, 42 S. Ct. 27, 66 L. Ed. 104 (1921) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART II. EXECUTION OF JUDGMENT

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.102

§ 26.102 Discovery Available in Connection With Execution of Judgmentn*

[1] Persons Subject to Discovery Requests

In aid of enforcement or execution of a judgment, the judgment creditor or a record successor in interest may obtain discovery from any person, including the judgment debtor, in either the usual manner provided in the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure or in the manner provided by the practice of the state in which the district court is held. To obtain discovery, a person must be either a judgment creditor or a successor in interest, provided that successor interest appears on the record. n1 This provision makes discovery available in supplementary proceedings for a writ of execution without the necessity of bringing a separate action. However, discovery may not be requested before the judgment is entered. n2 Because the purpose of the provision is to allow the judgment creditor to identify assets from which the judgment may be satisfied; however, after judgment, the judgment creditor is permitted to conduct a broad inquiry to uncover any hidden or concealed assets of the judgment debtor. n3

Although Rule 69(a) states that discovery may be sought "from any person," the right is not unlimited, and courts typically impose a stricter standard before allowing discovery when the discovery is sought from third persons besides the judgment debtor. n4 In such situations, the court must balance the judgment creditor's need for the information against the privacy interests of the third person. n5 If the judgment creditor fails to demonstrate a sufficient relationship between the judgment debtor and the third person, and some justification for the particular discovery, discovery will be denied. n6 One possible means of obtaining information about a third party's assets is to compel the judgment debtor to disclose information the debtor has knowledge of regarding the assets of the third party. n7

[2] Option to Apply State or Federal Discovery Procedures

Even though proceedings to enforce a judgment generally are governed by state law unless superseded by a particular federal execution law, n1 the determination whether to use federal or state discovery law is based on an election by the judgment creditor. n2 In other words, a judgment creditor may choose whether to use federal or the discovery procedures of the state where the federal court is located. n3 Once the judgment creditor makes a clear election to use either the federal or the state discovery methods, only that discovery law is applicable, and the other discovery law is irrelevant. n3.1 This choice of law consequence makes it imperative on the attorney for the judgment creditor to compare federal and state discovery methods to determine their relative convenience and advantages. n4

[3] Scope of Available Discovery

The scope of discovery under Rule 69(a) is defined by the purpose of the rule, which is to allow the judgment creditor to identify assets from which the judgment may be satisfied. Consequently, the judgment creditor is generally permitted to conduct a broad inquiry to uncover any hidden or concealed assets of the judgment debtor. n1 When a judgment creditor has chosen to use federal discovery rules, all of the general federal rules apply, n2 including the rules regarding discoverable material. Thus, the judgment creditor may discover any matter relevant to the judgment, even if it would not be admissible at trial, provided that the discovery appears reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. n2.1 However, the discovery must be relevant to the execution of the judgment and may not be used in order to harass the judgment debtor or any third parties. n3 Furthermore, a party who is the object of discovery may claim any valid privilege. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionDiscovery of Assets

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 13 Moore's Federal Practice, § 69.04 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 69(a)(2); see State Dep't of Soc. Servs. v. Leavitt, 523 F.3d 1025, 1033 (9th Cir. 2008) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Sanderson v. Winner, 507 F.2d 477, 480 (10th Cir. 1974) .

(n4)Footnote 3. *T-M Vacuum Prods. v. TAISC, Inc., 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 96214, at 4 (S.D. Tex. Nov. 25, 2008) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Blaw Knox Corp. v. AMR Indus., Inc., 130 F.R.D. 400, 403-404 (E.D. Wis. 1990) (judgment creditor must make threshold showing of necessity and relevance when attempting to obtain discovery of non-judgment debtor).

(n6)Footnote 5. Magnaleasing, Inc. v. Staten Island Mall, 76 F.R.D. 559, 561-562 (S.D.N.Y. 1977) (discovery of information regarding assets of third parties is not generally contemplated but may be justified by specific circumstances).

(n7)Footnote 6. Strick Corp. v. Thai Teak Prods. Co., 493 F. Supp. 1210, 1218 (E.D. Pa. 1980) (citing Moore's Federal Practice; discovery denied because judgment creditor failed to present facts to support alter ego relationship and thus, did not demonstrate sufficient relationship between third party and judgment debtor).

(n8)Footnote 7. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Van Waeyenberghe, 148 F.R.D. 256, 256-257 (N.D. Ind. 1993) (judgment debtor compelled to disclose information about spouse's employment, assets, and finances, even though spouse was neither defendant nor judgment debtor).

(n9)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 69(a)(1); see § 26.101.

(n10)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 69(a)(2); *T-M Vacuum Prods. v. TAISC, Inc., 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 96214, at 4 (S.D. Tex. Nov. 25, 2008) .

(n11)Footnote 3. See In re Clerici, 481 F.3d 1324, 1336 n.17 (11th Cir. 2007) .

(n12)Footnote 3.1. British Int'l Ins. Co. v. Seguros La Republica, S.A., 200 F.R.D. 586, 594 (W.D. Tex. 2000) (quoting Moore's Federal Practice).

(n13)Footnote 4. See, e.g., Dulce v. Dulce, 233 F.3d 143, 146-147 (2d Cir. 2000) (applying New York Civil Practice Law and Rules § 5223 and 5224).

(n14)Footnote 1. United States v. Conces, 507 F.3d 1028, 1040 (6th Cir. 2007) .

(n15)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 69(a)(2).

(n16)Footnote 2.1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(1); *see also Rubin v. Islamic Republic of Iran, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 4651, at 18 (N.D. Ill. Jan. 18, 2008) .

(n17)Footnote 3. Magnaleasing, Inc. v. Staten Island Mall, 76 F.R.D. 559, 561 (S.D.N.Y. 1977) .

(n18)Footnote 4. Baker v. Limber, 647 F.2d 912, 916 (9th Cir. 1981) (judgment debtor could invoke Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination in discovery proceeding under Fed. R. Civ. P. 69(a)).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART II. EXECUTION OF JUDGMENT

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.103

§ 26.103 Prohibition on Execution Against Public Officersn*

There are two references in Rule 69(b) that limit the district court's authority to issue a writ of execution under the rule: one relating to tax collectors and other revenue officers and the other relating to officers of Congress. n1 Thus, in any proceeding for a writ of execution against a collector or other revenue officer under a final judgment based on the performance of official duties or the collection of money, the writ may not be issued if the court certifies either that probable cause existed or that the officer acted under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury or other proper governmental officer. When the court does issue the required certificate, the amount of the judgment must be paid out of the proper appropriation by the United States Treasury. n2 In the same way, in any proceeding brought against an officer of Congress for acts performed in the discharge of official duties, a writ of execution may not be issued against that officer individually. n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionExemptionsGovernmentsFederal GovernmentClaims By & AgainstGovernmentsFederal GovernmentEmployees & Officials

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 13 Moore's Federal Practice, § 69.05 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 69(b).

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 69(b); see 28 U.S.C. § 2006.

(n4)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 69(b); see 28 U.S.C. § 118.

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART II. EXECUTION OF JUDGMENT

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 26.104through 26.119

[Reserved]

§§ 26.104[Reserved]

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART III. REGISTRATION OF JUDGMENT

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.120

§ 26.120 Purpose and Function of Registration of Judgmentn*

By statute, a federal judgment that has been entered in one district may be registered in another federal district. n1 The purpose of the registration statute is to allow a judgment creditor to collect a money judgment in another jurisdiction where the judgment debtor has assets, without the necessity of relitigating the merits. n2 In addition to where the judgment was originally entered, a judgment may be registered in one or more other districts. n3 The registration statute also authorizes a satisfaction of judgment to be registered in the same manner in any jurisdiction in which the judgment is registered. n4 Section 1963 is applicable only to judgments for money or property; neither judgments granting injunctive relief nor judgments in divorce actions are subject to registration. n5

Most courts hold that a court where a judgment is registered for purposes of enforcement n6 may not hear a Rule 60(b) motion to set aside a judgment, n7 on the reasoning that the court that entered the judgment should hear the motion, in that it is more familiar with the circumstances and facts, and judicial comity requires that the court of registration defer to the rendition court. n8 However, some courts allow the court of registration to hear a Rule 60(b) motion under equitable principles. n9 For a discussion of this issue, see § 26.61[2][b].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 18 Moore's Federal Practice, § 130.31 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 1963.

(n3)Footnote 2. See Findley v. Blinken (In re Joint E. & S. Dists. Asbestos Litig.), 22 F.3d 755, 763 (7th Cir. 1994) (registration of judgments makes it possible for judgment creditors to pursue property of debtor in any district where judgment is registered); Garden State Tanning, Inc. v. Mitchell Mfg. Group, Inc., 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11974 (E.D. Pa. Aug. 3, 2000) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Juneau Spruce Corp. v. International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union, 128 F. Supp. 715, 716 (N.D. Cal. 1955) (judgment entered in Alaska registered in both California and Hawaii).

(n5)Footnote 4. See 28 U.S.C. § 1963.

(n6)Footnote 5. See § 26.121[2].

(n7)Footnote 6. 28 U.S.C. § 1963.

(n8)Footnote 7. Indian Head Nat'l Bank v. Brunelle, 689 F.2d 245, 249 (1st Cir. 1982) .

(n9)Footnote 8. United States v. Fluor Corp., 436 F.2d 383, 384 (2d Cir. 1971) .

(n10)Footnote 9. Morris v. Peterson, 759 F.2d 809, 811 (10th Cir. 1985) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART III. REGISTRATION OF JUDGMENT

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.121

§ 26.121 Judgments Subject to Registrationn*

[1] Only Money Judgments of Certain Courts Are Subject to Registration

The federal registration statute applies only to money judgments entered in any district court or in the Court of International Trade. n1 Although it has been argued that the statute applies to other federal courts, at least one federal circuit court of appeal has rejected this argument. Therefore, for example, a decision of a court of appeal upholding an action by an administrative agency may not be registered. n2 Furthermore, the registration statute applies only to judgments that include relief on claims for recovery of money or property, and only such judgments may be registered under the statute. n3

[2] Pure Injunctive and Divorce Judgments Are Not Subject to Registration

[a] Injunctions

Injunctions are not among the types of judgments that may be registered under the registration statute. n1 Actually, there appears to be no need to register an injunction because a federal court injunction is binding throughout the United States, and a violation anywhere may be corrected in the court that issued the injunction. n2 In any event, a judgment that provides for recovery of money or property may be registered even though the judgment provides for relief not otherwise entitled to be registered, such as an injunction. However, the injunction may not be enforced in the registering district; it is only enforceable in the rendering jurisdiction. n3

[b] Divorce Judgments

Judgments in divorce actions are specifically excluded from registration under the registration statute. n4 This principle is based on the fact that federal courts decline to exercise diversity jurisdiction in divorce proceedings, n5 and that the registration statute does not authorize registration of judgments in actions when the registration would serve no useful purpose. n6 However, a divorce proceeding judgment that is purely for the recovery of money may be registered. n7

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 18 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 130.31, 130.34 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 1963.

(n3)Footnote 2. Fox Painting Co. v. NLRB, 16 F.3d 115, 117 (6th Cir. 1994) (statute providing for registration of district court judgments does not permit registration of judgments of federal courts other than those listed courts).

(n4)Footnote 3. Stiller v. Hardman, 324 F.2d 626, 627 (2d Cir. 1963) .

(n5)Footnote 1. Stiller v. Hardman, 324 F.2d 626, 628 (2d Cir. 1963) (injunction alone not recognizable but money judgment that contains injunction may be registered).

(n6)Footnote 2. Leman v. Krentler-Arnold Hinge Last Co., 284 U.S. 448, 452, 52 S. Ct. 238, 76 L. Ed. 389 (1932) .

(n7)Footnote 3. Stiller v. Hardman, 324 F.2d 626, 628 (2d Cir. 1963) (district court in New York properly denied enforcement of injunction issued as part of registered Ohio district court judgment in patent infringement action).

(n8)Footnote 4. 28 U.S.C. § 1963.

(n9)Footnote 5. Lutsky v. Lutsky, 310 F. Supp. 517, 520-521 (S.D. Fla.) , aff'd 433 F.2d 346 (5th Cir. 1970)) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n10)Footnote 6. See Stiller v. Hardman, 324 F.2d 626, 627 (2d Cir. 1963) .

(n11)Footnote 7. Gullet v. Gullet, 188 F.2d 719, 720 (5th Cir. 1951) (judgment for fixed sum owed from maintenance order issued as part of divorce decree may be registered as money judgment).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART III. REGISTRATION OF JUDGMENT

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.122

§ 26.122 Procedure to Register Judgmentn*

[1] Filing of Judgment

The prevailing party may register a final judgment granting relief for recovery of money or property in any district or districts. To register the judgment, the party should present a certified copy of the judgment to the court clerk in the district for filing. n1 Under the statute, a judgment is final for purposes of registration after an appeal has been concluded, or after the time within which an appeal must be perfected has concluded. n2 Registration may be permitted prior to such time for good cause. n3

Registration is proper in any district irrespective of whether the court in which the judgment is registered has personal jurisdiction over the defendant. n4 Registration is also proper irrespective of whether the cause of action underlying the judgment would be unavailable in the registering district because it would violate public policy of the state. n5

[2] Immediate Registration Allowed for Good Cause

On a showing of good cause, a court that enters a judgment may permit registration of the judgment in another district prior to expiration of the time to appeal, n1 as is otherwise required to register the judgment. n2"Good cause" typically means a showing that the defendant has assets in a particular district and does not have sufficient assets within the district in which the judgment was rendered to satisfy the judgment. n3 For example, in one case judgment creditors established good cause for registration of their judgments against a debtor in a California district court by showing that the debtor had sold his residence in the rendering district for an amount that would satisfy the judgments against the debtor, and that the debtor had moved to California and was employed there. n4

[3] Statute of Limitation

A party may not register a judgment in another district if the limitation period on the enforcement of the judgment has expired in the rendering jurisdiction. In other words, registration may not be used to revive a stale judgment. n1 However, assuming a judgment is still valid in the rendering jurisdiction, once it is registered in the registering jurisdiction, it is entitled to the same effect and may be enforced in the same manner as any judgment in the registering district. As a result, the general rule is that an applicable statute of limitation for enforcing a registered judgment is that of the registering jurisdiction. n2

Thus, when a judgment is rendered in a federal district court located in one state and is registered in district court in another state, the applicable statute of limitation for purposes of enforcement of the registered judgment in the registration district is that of registration state. n3 This is so even if the statute of limitation in the state of the rendering district has expired after the registration was completed. n3.1 Conversely, the expiration of the limitation period in the district of registration would preclude the application of the limitation period of the rendering jurisdiction. n4

[4] Registration Is Ministerial Act

Registration to facilitate the enforcement of a judgment rendered in another jurisdiction is purely a ministerial act. n1 Consequently, the registering court may not look into the substance or the merits of the judgment to re-examine its validity. n2 Furthermore, the registering court must facilitate and complete enforcement of a judgment properly registered even if the cause of action on which the judgment is based is against the public policy of the state where it is registered, and even if the action which led to the judgment could not be brought originally in the registering district. n3 Thus, while the act of registration is merely ministerial, the effect of the registered judgment is more than ministerial because the registration statute provides that a judgment registered in another district court must be enforced under the procedures of the registering court and not the rendering court. n4 Additionally, registration is more than merely a procedural device for collection of a foreign judgment. Under the registration statute, the registering court has the same inherent powers to enforce the judgment as the rendering court, including utilization of supplementary proceedings such as attachment and garnishment. n5

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 18 Moore's Federal Practice, § 130.32 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Bennett v. Dunn, 504 F. Supp. 981, 984 (D. Nev. 1980) ; Arenas v. Sternecker, 109 F. Supp. 1, 2 (D. Kan. 1953) .

(n3)Footnote 2. 28 U.S.C. § 1963; see In re Professional Air Traffic Controllers Org. (PATCO), 699 F.2d 539, 545 (D.C. Cir. 1983) (registration before judgment is final is ineffective).

(n4)Footnote 3. See [2], below.

(n5)Footnote 4. Dichter v. Disco Corp., 606 F. Supp. 721, 725 (S.D. Ohio 1984) (personal jurisdiction over defendant in registering district is not required at time judgment is registered).

(n6)Footnote 5. Harrah's Club v. Van Blitter, 902 F.2d 774, 777 (9th Cir. 1990) (Nevada judgment for gambling debts was properly registered and enforceable in California even though cause of action for gambling debts would be unavailable as against public policy in California).

(n7)Footnote 1. Pacific Reinsurance Mgmt. Corp. v. Fabe, 929 F.2d 1215, 1218 (7th Cir. 1991) .

(n8)Footnote 2. 28 U.S.C. § 1963; see [1], above.

(n9)Footnote 3. Schreiber v. Kellogg, 839 F. Supp. 1157, 1162 (E.D. Pa. 1993) (good cause requirement was satisfied when judgment debtor had substantial property in registering district and insufficient assets in rendering district to satisfy judgment); Garden State Tanning, Inc. v. Mitchell Mfg. Group, Inc., 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11974 (E.D. Pa. Aug. 3, 2000) (notwithstanding alleged inconvenience and cost to defendant, distinct possibility of plaintiff being faced with unsatisfied judgment is sufficient good cause to order registration of judgment in foreign district prior to disposition of post-verdict motions).

(n10)Footnote 4. Owen v. Soundview Fin. Group, Inc., 71 F. Supp. 2d 278 (S.D.N.Y. 1999) .

(n11)Footnote 1. Juneau v. Couvillion, 148 F.R.D. 558, 560-561 (W.D. La. 1993) .

(n12)Footnote 2. Marx v. Go Pub. Co., 721 F.2d 1272, 1273 (9th Cir. 1983) (District of Columbia judgment registered in California was governed by California statute of limitation on enforcement of actions); Home Port Rentals, Inc. v. International Yachting Group, Inc., 95 F. Supp. 2d 623 (W.D. La. 2000) (limitation law of state in which judgment is registered, not of state that issued judgment, governs enforcement of judgment in registration state).

(n13)Footnote 3. Home Port Rentals, Inc. v. International Yachting Group, Inc., 252 F.3d 399, 404-406 (5th Cir. 2001) (because registration creates "new judgment," statute of limitation of registration state starts to run on date of registration).

(n14)Footnote 3.1. Stanford v. Utley, 341 F.2d 265, 268 (8th Cir. 1965) .

(n15)Footnote 4. Matanuska Valley Lines, Inc. v. Molitor, 365 F.2d 358, 359 (9th Cir. 1966) , cert. denied, 386 U.S. 914 (1967) .

(n16)Footnote 1. Juneau Spruce Corp. v. International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union, 128 F. Supp. 697, 699-700 (D. Hawaii 1955) .

(n17)Footnote 2. Tommills Brokerage Co. v. Thon, 52 F.R.D. 200, 202 (D.P.R. 1971) .

(n18)Footnote 3. Harrah's Club v. Van Blitter, 902 F.2d 774, 777 (9th Cir. 1990) .

(n19)Footnote 4. Ohio Hoist Mfg. Co. v. LiRocchi, 490 F.2d 105, 107 (6th Cir. 1974) (judgment rendered in California district and registered in Ohio district court gave Ohio court jurisdiction to enforce judgment in same manner as Ohio judgment).

(n20)Footnote 5. Condaire, Inc. v. Allied Piping, Inc., 286 F.3d 353, 357 (6th Cir. 2002) ; see § 25.124[1] (effect of registration).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART III. REGISTRATION OF JUDGMENT

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.123

§ 26.123 Initiation of Independent Suit Instead of Registrationn*

The federal registration of judgment statute is not the exclusive means of enforcement of a judgment in a foreign district and does not preclude a successful party from initiating a second lawsuit instead of registering the judgment in the foreign district. Furthermore, a separate action to execute or otherwise enforce a judgment may be maintained while an appeal is pending in the rendering court. n1 However, if the judgment the party is seeking to enforce was from an action in which federal question jurisdiction was the basis of federal court jurisdiction, an action solely to enforce the judgment would lack federal question jurisdiction and could not be maintained in federal court unless there was an independent basis of subject matter jurisdiction. n2 The registration statute eliminates such jurisdictional problems for enforcement in federal court and also provides a more efficient method of enforcement. n3

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 18 Moore's Federal Practice, § 130.33 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Urban Indus., Inc. v. Thevis, 670 F.2d 981, 985 (11th Cir. 1982) .

(n3)Footnote 2. Anita's N.M. Style Mexican Food, Inc. v. Anita's Mexican Foods Corp., 201 F.3d 314, 317 (4th Cir. 2000) (citing Moore's Federal Practice; district court with diversity jurisdiction may entertain action to enforce judgment entered by another district court, even if first court's jurisdiction was based on existence of federal question).

(n4)Footnote 3. Stiller v. Hardman, 324 F.2d 626, 628 (2d Cir. 1963) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
CHAPTER 26 POST-JUDGMENT PROCEDURES
PART III. REGISTRATION OF JUDGMENT

3-26 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 26.124

§ 26.124 Effect of Registration of Judgmentn*

[1] Registration Makes Judgment Local Judgment

[a] Enforcement of Registered Judgment

When a party registers a judgment in a district, the judgment becomes a judgment of the court where registered and has the same effect as though it had been rendered by the registering court. n1 Therefore, the court that registers a judgment has the power to hear motions with respect to enforcement of the judgment. Registration of a judgment is the equivalent of a new judgment and is more than a procedural device for collection on a foreign judgment. Thus, the judgment has the same effect as a judgment of the registering district court, and the registering court has a broad range of supplementary proceedings involving third parties to assist the court in the protection and enforcement of the judgment, including attachment, garnishment, mandamus, and the avoidance of fraudulent conveyances. n1.1

[b] Relief From Registered Judgment

While the registering court has full enforcement powers regarding the registered judgment, n2 the general rule is that a motion for relief from judgment must be heard by the court that rendered the initial judgment. n3 The registering court has discretion in granting or denying post-judgment relief under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 60(b) and may decline to review the motion without prejudice to presentation to the rendering court, similar to a forum non conveniens determination. n4 The registering court may defer to the court that rendered the judgment, consistent with the interests of comity among the federal courts, and efficient judicial administration to refer the motion to the court with greater familiarity of the issues raised by the post-judgment motion. n5

[2] Prohibition Against Collateral Attack on Underlying Judgment

The general rule is that the registering court may not look into the substance of the judgment to re-examine its validity. n1 Consequently, the registering court must allow enforcement of a judgment properly registered even if the cause of action on which the judgment is based is against the public policy of the registering state and the action which led to the judgment could not be brought originally in the registering district. n2 However, there is an exception for void judgments, which are otherwise final judgments which remain subject to collateral attack on any attempts to have them recognized or enforced. These judgments are deemed invalid or void because they are based on lack of personal jurisdiction or fraud. n3 Consequently, any federal court requested to enforce a judgment of another district may inquire into that court's jurisdiction over the defendant. n4 On the other hand, a merely voidable judgment is one that may only be attacked directly, such as by appeal. A voidable judgment includes one in which the court may lack subject matter jurisdiction. These principles, although well established in the full faith and credit context, n5 have not been directly considered with respect to the registration statute. n6

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 18 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 130.31[4], 130.35 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Stanford v. Utley, 341 F.2d 265, 268 (8th Cir. 1965) .

(n3)Footnote 1.1. Condaire, Inc. v. Allied Piping, Inc., 286 F.3d 353, 357 (6th Cir. 2002) .

(n4)Footnote 2. See [a], above.

(n5)Footnote 3. Fuhrman v. Livaditis, 611 F.2d 203, 204-205 (7th Cir. 1979) .

(n6)Footnote 4. James Blackstone Memorial Asso. v. Gulf, Mobile & Ohio R.R., 28 F.R.D. 385, 388 (D. Conn. 1961) .

(n7)Footnote 5. Fuhrman v. Livaditis, 611 F.2d 203, 205 (7th Cir. 1979) .

(n8)Footnote 1. Tommills Brokerage Co. v. Thon, 52 F.R.D. 200, 202 (D.P.R. 1971) .

(n9)Footnote 2. Harrah's Club v. Van Blitter, 902 F.2d 774, 777 (9th Cir. 1990) .

(n10)Footnote 3. Hadden v. Rumsey Prods., 196 F.2d 92, 96 (2d Cir. 1952) ; see § 26.44[2].

(n11)Footnote 4. Hanes Supply Co. v. Valley Evaporating Co., 261 F.2d 29, 34-35 (5th Cir. 1958) .

(n12)Footnote 5. Sanders v. City of Brady (In re Brady Mun. Gas Corp.), 936 F.2d 212, 219 (5th Cir. 1991) .

(n13)Footnote 6. Pacific Reinsurance Mgmt. Corp. v. Fabe, 929 F.2d 1215, 1217 (7th Cir. 1991) .

47 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure .syn

§ Synopsis to Appendix : APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE

Form 1. Caption.

Form 2. Date, Signature, Address, E-mail Address, and Telephone Number.

Form 3. Summons.

Form 4. Summons on a Third-Party Complaint.

Form 5. Notice of a Lawsuit and Request to Waive Service of a Summons.

Form 6. Waiver of the Service of Summons.

Form 7. Statement of Jurisdiction.

Form 8. Statement of Reasons for Omitting a Party.

Form 9. Statement Noting a Party's Death.

Form 10. Complaint to Recover a Sum Certain.

Form 11. Complaint for Negligence.

Form 12. Complaint for Negligence When the Plaintiff Does Not Know Who Is Responsible.

Form 13. Complaint for Negligence Under the Federal Employers' Liability Act.

Form 14. Complaint for Damages Under the Merchant Marine Act.

Form 15. Complaint for the Conversion of Property.

Form 16. Third-Party Complaint.

Form 17. Complaint for Specific Performance of a Contract to Convey Land.

Form 18. Complaint for Patent Infringement.

Form 19. Complaint for Copyright Infringement and Unfair Competition.

Form 20. Complaint for Interpleader and Declaratory Relief.

Form 21. Complaint on a Claim for a Debt and to Set Aside a Fraudulent Conveyance Under Rule 18(b).

Form 30. Answer Presenting Defenses Under Rule 12(b).

Form 31. Answer to a Complaint for Money Had and Received with a Counterclaim for Interpleader.

Form 40. Motion to Dismiss Under Rule 12(b) for Lack of Jurisdiction, Improper Venue, Insufficient Service of Process, or Failure to State a Claim.

Form 41. Motion to Bring in a Third-Party Defendant.

Form 42. Motion to Intervene as a Defendant Under Rule 24.

Form 50. Request to Produce Documents and Tangible Things, or to Enter onto Land Under Rule 34.

Form 51. Request for Admissions Under Rule 36.

Form 52. Report of the Parties' Planning Meeting.

Form 60. Notice of Condemnation.

Form 61. Complaint for Condemnation.

Form 70. Judgment on a Jury Verdict.

Form 71. Judgment by the Court without a Jury.

Form 80. Notice of a Magistrate Judge's Availability.

Form 81. Consent to an Assignment to a Magistrate Judge.

Form 82. Order of Assignment to a Magistrate Judge.

48 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 1

Form 1. Caption.

Form 1. Caption.
(Use on every summons, complaint, answer, motion, or other document.)
United States District Court for the _____ District of _____

A B, Plaintiff v. C D, Defendant v. E F, Third-Party Defendant (Use if needed.)	)))	Civil Action File No. _____

(Name of Document)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 2

Form 2. Date, Signature, Address, E-mail Address, and Telephone Number.

Form 2. Date, Signature, Address, E-mail Address, and Telephone Number.
(Use at the conclusion of pleadings and other papers that require a signature.)
Date: _____

_____

(Signature of the attorney or unrepresented party)

_____

(Printed name)

_____

(Address)

_____

(E-mail address)

_____

(Telephone number)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 3

Form 3. Summons.

Form 3. Summons.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

To name the defendant:

A lawsuit has been filed against you.

Within 21 days after service of this summons on you (not counting the day you received it), you must serve on the plaintiff an answer to the attached complaint or a motion under Rule 12 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. The answer or motion must be served on the plaintiff's attorney, _____, whose address is _____. If you fail to do so, judgment by default will be entered against you for the relief demanded in the complaint. You also must file your answer or motion with the court.

Date: _____

_____

Clerk of Court

(Court Seal)

(Use 60 days if the defendant is the United States or a United States agency, or is an officer or employee of the United States allowed 60 days by Rule 12(a)(3).)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 4

Form 4. Summons on a Third-Party Complaint.

Form 4. Summons on a Third-Party Complaint.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

To name the third-party defendant:

A lawsuit has been filed against defendant _____, who as third-party plaintiff is making this claim against you to pay part or all of what [he] may owe to the plaintiff _____.

Within 21 days after service of this summons on you (not counting the day you received it), you must serve on the plaintiff and on the defendant an answer to the attached third-party complaint or a motion under Rule 12 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. The answer or motion must be served on the defendant's attorney, _____, whose address is, _____, and also on the plaintiff's attorney, _____, whose address is, _____. If you fail to do so, judgment by default will be entered against you for the relief demanded in the third-party complaint. You also must file the answer or motion with the court and serve it on any other parties.

A copy of the plaintiff's complaint is also attached. You may--but are not required to--respond to it.

Date: _____

_____

Clerk of Court

(Court Seal)

52 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 5

Form 5. Notice of a Lawsuit and Request to Waive Service of a Summons.

Form 5. Notice of a Lawsuit and Request to Waive Service of a Summons.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

To (name the defendant--or if the defendant is a corporation, partnership, or association name an officer or agent authorized to receive service):

Why are you getting this?

A lawsuit has been filed against you, or the entity you represent, in this court under the number shown above. A copy of the complaint is attached.

This is not a summons, or an official notice from the court. It is a request that, to avoid expenses, you waive formal service of a summons by signing and returning the enclosed waiver. To avoid these expenses, you must return the signed waiver within (give at least 30 days or at least 60 days if the defendant is outside any judicial district of the United States) from the date shown below, which is the date this notice was sent. Two copies of the waiver form are enclosed, along with a stamped, self-addressed envelope or other prepaid means for returning one copy. You may keep the other copy.

What happens next?

If you return the signed waiver, I will file it with the court. The action will then proceed as if you had been served on the date the waiver is filed, but no summons will be served on you and you will have 60 days from the date this notice is sent (see the date below) to answer the complaint (or 90 days if this notice is sent to you outside any judicial district of the United States).

If you do not return the signed waiver within the time indicated, I will arrange to have the summons and complaint served on you. And I will ask the court to require you, or the entity you represent, to pay the expenses of making service.

Please read the enclosed statement about the duty to avoid unnecessary expenses.

I certify that this request is being sent to you on the date below.

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 6

Form 6. Waiver of the Service of Summons.

Form 6. Waiver of the Service of Summons.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

To name the plaintiff's attorney or the unrepresented plaintiff:

I have received your request to waive service of a summons in this action along with a copy of the complaint, two copies of this waiver form, and a prepaid means of returning one signed copy of the form to you.

I, or the entity I represent, agree to save the expense of serving a summons and complaint in this case.

I understand that I, or the entity I represent, will keep all defenses or objections to the lawsuit, the court's jurisdiction, and the venue of the action, but that I waive any objections to the absence of a summons or of service.

I also understand that I, or the entity I represent, must file and serve an answer or a motion under Rule 12 within 60 days from _____, the date when this request was sent (or 90 days if it was sent outside the United States). If I fail to do so, a default judgment will be entered against me or the entity I represent.

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

(Attach the following to Form 6.)

Duty to Avoid Unnecessary Expenses of Serving a Summons

Rule 4 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure requires certain defendants to cooperate in saving unnecessary expenses of serving a summons and complaint. A defendant who is located in the United States and who fails to return a signed waiver of service requested by a plaintiff located in the United States will be required to pay the expenses of service, unless the defendant shows good cause for the failure.

"Good cause" does not include a belief that the lawsuit is groundless, or that it has been brought in an improper venue, or that the court has no jurisdiction over this matter or over the defendant or the defendant's property.

If the waiver is signed and returned, you can still make these and all other defenses and objections, but you cannot object to the absence of a summons or of service.

If you waive service, then you must, within the time specified on the waiver form, serve an answer or a motion under Rule 12 on the plaintiff and file a copy with the court. By signing and returning the waiver form, you are allowed more time to respond than if a summons had been served.

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 7

Form 7. Statement of Jurisdiction.

Form 7. Statement of Jurisdiction.

a. (For diversity-of-citizenship jurisdiction.) The plaintiff is [a citizen of Michigan] [a corporation incorporated under the laws of Michigan with its principal place of business in Michigan]. The defendant is [a citizen of New York] [a corporation incorporated under the laws of New York with its principal place of business in New York]. The amount in controversy, without interest and costs, exceeds the sum or value specified by 28 U.S.C. § 1332.

b. (For federal-question jurisdiction.) This action arises under [the United States Constitution, specify the article or amendment and the section] [a United States treaty, specify] [a federal statute, __ U.S.C. § __].

c. (For a claim in the admiralty or maritime jurisdiction.) This is a case of admiralty or maritime jurisdiction. (To invoke admiralty status under Rule 9(h) use the following: This is an admiralty or maritime claim within the meaning of Rule 9(h).)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 8

Form 8. Statement of Reasons for Omitting a Party.

Form 8. Statement of Reasons for Omitting a Party.

(If a person who ought to be made a party under Rule 19(a) is not named, include this statement in accordance with Rule 19(c).)

This complaint does not join as a party name who [is not subject to this court's personal jurisdiction] [cannot be made a party without depriving this court of subject-matter jurisdiction] because state the reason.

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 9

Form 9. Statement Noting a Party's Death.

Form 9. Statement Noting a Party's Death.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

In accordance with Rule 25(a), name the person, who is [a party to this action] [a representative of or successor to the deceased party] notes the death during the pendency of this action of name, [describe as party in this action].

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 10

Form 10. Complaint to Recover a Sum Certain.

Form 10. Complaint to Recover a Sum Certain.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

1. (Statement of Jurisdiction--See Form 7.)

(Use one or more of the following as appropriate and include a demand for judgment.)

(a) On a Promissory Note

2. On date, the defendant executed and delivered a note promising to pay the plaintiff on date the sum of $_____ with interest at the rate of _____ percent. A copy of the note [is attached as Exhibit A] [is summarized as follows: _____.]

3. The defendant has not paid the amount owed.

(b) On an Account

2. The defendant owes the plaintiff $_____ according to the account set out in Exhibit A.

(c) For Goods Sold and Delivered

2. The defendant owes the plaintiff $_____ for goods sold and delivered by the plaintiff to the defendant from date to date.

(d) For Money Lent

2. The defendant owes the plaintiff $_____ for money lent by the plaintiff to the defendant on date.

(e) For Money Paid by Mistake

2. The defendant owes the plaintiff $_____ for money paid by mistake to the defendant on date under these circumstances: describe with particularity in accordance with Rule 9(b).

(f) For Money Had and Received

2. The defendant owes the plaintiff $_____ for money that was received from name on date to be paid by the defendant to the plaintiff.

Demand for Judgment

Therefore, the plaintiff demands judgment against the defendant for $_____, plus interest and costs.

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 11

Form 11. Complaint for Negligence.

Form 11. Complaint for Negligence.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

1. (Statement of Jurisdiction--See Form 7.)

2. On date, at place, the defendant negligently drove a motor vehicle against the plaintiff.

3. As a result, the plaintiff was physically injured, lost wages or income, suffered physical and mental pain, and incurred medical expenses of $_____.

Therefore, the plaintiff demands judgment against the defendant for $_____, plus costs.

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 12

Form 12. Complaint for Negligence When the Plaintiff Does Not Know Who Is Responsible.

Form 12. Complaint for Negligence When the Plaintiff Does Not Know Who Is Responsible.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

1. (Statement of Jurisdiction--See Form 7.)

2. On date, at place, defendant name or defendant name or both of them willfully or recklessly or negligently drove, or caused to be driven, a motor vehicle against the plaintiff.

3. As a result, the plaintiff was physically injured, lost wages or income, suffered mental and physical pain, and incurred medical expenses of $_____.

Therefore, the plaintiff demands judgment against one or both defendants for $_____, plus costs.

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 13

Form 13. Complaint for Negligence Under the Federal Employers' Liability Act.

Form 13. Complaint for Negligence Under the Federal Employers' Liability Act.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

1. (Statement of Jurisdiction--See Form 7.)

2. At the times below, the defendant owned and operated in interstate commerce a railroad line that passed through a tunnel located at _____.

3. On date, the plaintiff was working to repair and enlarge the tunnel to make it convenient and safe for use in interstate commerce.

4. During this work, the defendant, as the employer, negligently put the plaintiff to work in a section of the tunnel that the defendant had left unprotected and unsupported.

5. The defendant's negligence caused the plaintiff to be injured by a rock that fell from an unsupported portion of the tunnel.

6. As a result, the plaintiff was physically injured, lost wages or income, suffered mental and physical pain, and incurred medical expenses of $_____.

Therefore, the plaintiff demands judgment against the defendant for $_____, and costs.

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 14

Form 14. Complaint for Damages Under the Merchant Marine Act.

Form 14. Complaint for Damages Under the Merchant Marine Act.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

1. (Statement of Jurisdiction--See Form 7.)

2. At the times below, the defendant owned and operated the vessel name and used it to transport cargo for hire by water in interstate and foreign commerce.

3. On date, at place, the defendant hired the plaintiff under seamen's articles of customary form for a voyage from _____ to _____ and return at a wage of $_____ a month and found, which is equal to a shore worker's wage of $_____ a month.

4. On date, the vessel was at sea on the return voyage. (Describe the weather and the condition of the vessel.)

5. (Describe as in Form 11 the defendant's negligent conduct.)

6. As a result of the defendant's negligent conduct and the unseaworthiness of the vessel, the plaintiff was physically injured, has been incapable of any gainful activity, suffered mental and physical pain, and has incurred medical expenses of $_____.

Therefore, the plaintiff demands judgment against the defendant for $_____, plus costs.

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

62 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 15

Form 15. Complaint for the Conversion of Property.

Form 15. Complaint for the Conversion of Property.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

1. (Statement of Jurisdiction--See Form 7.)

2. On date, at place, the defendant converted to the defendant's own use property owned by the plaintiff. The property converted consists of describe.

3. The property is worth $_____.

Therefore, the plaintiff demands judgment against the defendant for $_____, plus costs.

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

63 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 16

Form 16. Third-Party Complaint.

Form 16. Third-Party Complaint.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

1. Plaintiff name has filed against defendant name a complaint, a copy of which is attached.

2. (State grounds entitling defendant's name to recover from third-party defendant's name for (all or an identified share) of any judgment for plaintiff's name against defendant's name.)

Therefore, the defendant demands judgment against third-party defendant's name for all or an identified share of sums that may be adjudged against the defendant in the plaintiff's favor.

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

64 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 17

Form 17. Complaint for Specific Performance of a Contract to Convey Land.

Form 17. Complaint for Specific Performance of a Contract to Convey Land.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

1. (Statement of Jurisdiction--See Form 7.)

2. On date, the parties agreed to the contract [attached as Exhibit A] [summarize the contract].

3. As agreed, the plaintiff tendered the purchase price and requested a conveyance of the land, but the defendant refused to accept the money or make a conveyance.

4. The plaintiff now offers to pay the purchase price.

Therefore, the plaintiff demands that:

(a) the defendant be required to specifically perform the agreement and pay damages of $_____, plus interest and costs, or

(b) if specific performance is not ordered, the defendant be required to pay damages of $_____, plus interest and costs.

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 18

Form 18. Complaint for Patent Infringement.

Form 18. Complaint for Patent Infringement.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

1. (Statement of Jurisdiction--See Form 7.)

2. On date, United States Letters Patent No. _____ were issued to the plaintiff for an invention in an electric motor. The plaintiff owned the patent throughout the period of the defendant's infringing acts and still owns the patent.

3. The defendant has infringed and is still infringing the Letters Patent by making, selling, and using electric motors that embody the patented invention, and the defendant will continue to do so unless enjoined by this court.

4. The plaintiff has complied with the statutory requirement of placing a notice of the Letters Patent on all electric motors it manufactures and sells and has given the defendant written notice of the infringement.

Therefore, the plaintiff demands:

(a) a preliminary and final injunction against the continuing infringement;

(b) an accounting for damages; and

(c) interest and costs.

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 19

Form 19. Complaint for Copyright Infringement and Unfair Competition.

Form 19. Complaint for Copyright Infringement and Unfair Competition.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

1. (Statement of Jurisdiction--See Form 7.)

2. Before date, the plaintiff, a United States citizen, wrote a book entitled _____ _____.

3. The book is an original work that may be copyrighted under United States law. A copy of the book is attached as Exhibit A.

4. Between date and date, the plaintiff applied to the copyright office and received a certificate of registration dated _____ and identified as date, class, number.

5. Since date, the plaintiff has either published or licensed for publication all copies of the book in compliance with the copyright laws and has remained the sole owner of the copyright.

6. After the copyright was issued, the defendant infringed the copyright by publishing and selling a book entitled _____ _____, which was copied largely from the plaintiff's book. A copy of the defendant's book is attached as Exhibit B.

7. The plaintiff has notified the defendant in writing of the infringement.

8. The defendant continues to infringe the copyright by continuing to publish and sell the infringing book in violation of the copyright, and further has engaged in unfair trade practices and unfair competition in connection with its publication and sale of the infringing book, thus causing irreparable damage.

Therefore, the plaintiff demands that:

(a) until this case is decided the defendant and the defendant's agents be enjoined from disposing of any copies of the defendant's book by sale or otherwise;

(b) the defendant account for and pay as damages to the plaintiff all profits and advantages gained from unfair trade practices and unfair competition in selling the defendant's book, and all profits and advantages gained from infringing the plaintiff's copyright (but no less than the statutory minimum);

(c) the defendant deliver for impoundment all copies of the book in the defendant's possession or control and deliver for destruction all infringing copies and all plates, molds, and other materials for making infringing copies;

(d) the defendant pay the plaintiff interest, costs, and reasonable attorney's fees; and

(e) the plaintiff be awarded any other just relief.

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 20

Form 20. Complaint for Interpleader and Declaratory Relief.

Form 20. Complaint for Interpleader and Declaratory Relief.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

1. (Statement of Jurisdiction--See Form 7.)

2. On date, the plaintiff issued a life insurance policy on the life of name with name as the named beneficiary.

3. As a condition for keeping the policy in force, the policy required payment of a premium during the first year and then annually.

4. The premium due on date was never paid, and the policy lapsed after that date.

5. On date, after the policy had lapsed, both the insured and the named beneficiary died in an automobile collision.

6. Defendant name claims to be the beneficiary in place of name and has filed a claim to be paid the policy's full amount.

7. The other two defendants are representatives of the deceased persons' estates. Each defendant has filed a claim on behalf of each estate to receive payment of the policy's full amount.

8. If the policy was in force at the time of death, the plaintiff is in doubt about who should be paid.

Therefore, the plaintiff demands that:

(a) each defendant be restrained from commencing any action against the plaintiff on the policy;

(b) a judgment be entered that no defendant is entitled to the proceeds of the policy or any part of it, but if the court determines that the policy was in effect at the time of the insured's death, that the defendants be required to interplead and settle among themselves their rights to the proceeds, and that the plaintiff be discharged from all liability except to the defendant determined to be entitled to the proceeds; and

(c) the plaintiff recover its costs.

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 21

Form 21. Complaint on a Claim for a Debt and to Set Aside a Fraudulent Conveyance Under Rule 18(b).

Form 21. Complaint on a Claim for a Debt and to Set Aside a Fraudulent Conveyance Under Rule 18(b).
(Caption--See Form 1.)

1. (Statement of Jurisdiction--See Form 7.)

2. On date, defendant name signed a note promising to pay to the plaintiff on date the sum of $_____ with interest at the rate of _____ percent. [The pleader may, but need not, attach a copy or plead the note verbatim.]

3. Defendant name owes the plaintiff the amount of the note and interest.

4. On date, defendant name conveyed all defendant's real and personal property if less than all, describe it fully to defendant name for the purpose of defrauding the plaintiff and hindering or delaying the collection of the debt.

Therefore, the plaintiff demands that:

(a) judgment for $_____, plus costs, be entered against defendant(s) name(s); and

(b) the conveyance to defendant name be declared void and any judgment granted be made a lien on the property.

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 30

Form 30. Answer Presenting Defenses Under Rule 12(b).

Form 30. Answer Presenting Defenses Under Rule 12(b).
(Caption--See Form 1.)

Responding to Allegations in the Complaint

1. Defendant admits the allegations in paragraphs _____.

2. Defendant lacks knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief about the truth of the allegations in paragraphs _____.

3. Defendant admits identify part of the allegation in paragraph _____ and denies or lacks knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief about the truth of the rest of the paragraph.

Failure to State a Claim

4. The complaint fails to state a claim upon which relief can be granted.

Failure to Join a Required Party

5. If there is a debt, it is owed jointly by the defendant and name, who is a citizen of _____. This person can be made a party without depriving this court of jurisdiction over the existing parties.

Affirmative Defense--Statute of Limitations

6. The plaintiff's claim is barred by the statute of limitations because it arose more than _____ years before this action was commenced.

Counterclaim

7. (Set forth any counterclaim in the same way a claim is pleaded in a complaint. Include a further statement of jurisdiction if needed.)

Crossclaim

8. (Set forth a crossclaim against a coparty in the same way a claim is pleaded in a complaint. Include a further statement of jurisdiction if needed.)

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 31

Form 31. Answer to a Complaint for Money Had and Received with a Counterclaim for Interpleader.

Form 31. Answer to a Complaint for Money Had and Received with a Counterclaim for Interpleader.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

Response to the Allegations in the Complaint

(See Form 30.)

Counterclaim for Interpleader

1. The defendant received from name a deposit of $_____.

2. The plaintiff demands payment of the deposit because of a purported assignment from name, who has notified the defendant that the assignment is not valid and who continues to hold the defendant responsible for the deposit.

Therefore, the defendant demands that:

(a) name be made a party to this action;

(b) the plaintiff and name be required to interplead their respective claims;

(c) the court decide whether the plaintiff or name or either of them is entitled to the deposit and discharge the defendant of any liability except to the person entitled to the deposit; and

(d) the defendant recover costs and attorney's fees.

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 40

Form 40. Motion to Dismiss Under Rule 12(b) for Lack of Jurisdiction, Improper Venue, Insufficient Service of Process, or Failure to State a Claim.

Form 40. Motion to Dismiss Under Rule 12(b) for Lack of Jurisdiction, Improper Venue, Insufficient Service of Process, or Failure to State a Claim.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

The defendant moves to dismiss the action because:

1. the amount in controversy is less than the sum or value specified by 28 U.S.C. § 1332;

2. the defendant is not subject to the personal jurisdiction of this court;

3. venue is improper (this defendant does not reside in this district and no part of the events or omissions giving rise to the claim occurred in the district);

4. the defendant has not been properly served, as shown by the attached affidavits of _____; or

5. the complaint fails to state a claim upon which relief can be granted.

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 41

Form 41. Motion to Bring in a Third-Party Defendant.

Form 41. Motion to Bring in a Third-Party Defendant.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

The defendant, as third-party plaintiff, moves for leave to serve on name a summons and third-party complaint, copies of which are attached.

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 42

Form 42. Motion to Intervene as a Defendant Under Rule 24.

Form 42. Motion to Intervene as a Defendant Under Rule 24.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

1. name moves for leave to intervene as a defendant in this action and to file the attached answer.

(State grounds under Rule 24(a) or (b).)

2. The plaintiff alleges patent infringement. We manufacture and sell to the defendant the articles involved, and we have a defense to the plaintiff's claim.

3. Our defense presents questions of law and fact that are common to this action.

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

[An Intervener's Answer must be attached. See Form 30.]

74 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 50

Form 50. Request to Produce Documents and Tangible Things, or to Enter onto Land Under Rule 34.

Form 50. Request to Produce Documents and Tangible Things, or to Enter onto Land Under Rule 34.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

The plaintiff name requests that the defendant name respond within _____ days to the following requests:

1. To produce and permit the plaintiff to inspect and copy and to test or sample the following documents, including electronically stored information:

(Describe each document and the electronically stored information, either individually or by category.)

(State the time, place, and manner of the inspection and any related acts.)

2. To produce and permit the plaintiff to inspect and copy--and to test or sample--the following tangible things:

(Describe each thing, either individually or by category.)

(State the time, place, and manner of the inspection and any related acts.)

3. To permit the plaintiff to enter onto the following land to inspect, photograph, test, or sample the property or an object or operation on the property.

(Describe the property and each object or operation.)

(State the time and manner of the inspection and any related acts.)

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 51

Form 51. Request for Admissions Under Rule 36.

Form 51. Request for Admissions Under Rule 36.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

The plaintiff name asks the defendant name to respond within 30 days to these requests by admitting, for purposes of this action only and subject to objections to admissibility at trial:

1. The genuineness of the following documents, copies of which [are attached] [are or have been furnished or made available for inspection and copying].

(List each document.)

2. The truth of each of the following statements:

(List each statement.)

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 52

Form 52. Report of the Parties' Planning Meeting.

Form 52. Report of the Parties' Planning Meeting.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

1. The following persons participated in a Rule 26(f) conference on date by state the method of conferring:

(e.g., name representing the plaintiff.)

2. Initial Disclosures. The parties [have completed] [will complete by date] the initial disclosures required by Rule 26(a)(1).

3. Discovery Plan. The parties propose this discovery plan:

(Use separate paragraphs or subparagraphs if the parties disagree.)

(a) Discovery will be needed on these subjects: (describe.)

(b) Disclosure or discovery of electronically stored information should be handled as follows: (briefly describe the parties' proposals, including the form or forms for production.)

(c) The parties have agreed to an order regarding claims of privilege or of protection as trial-preparation material asserted after production, as follows: (briefly describe the provisions of the proposed order.)

(d) (Dates for commencing and completing discovery, including discovery to be commenced or completed before other discovery.)

(e) (Maximum number of interrogatories by each party to another party, along with dates the answers are due.)

(f) (Maximum number of requests for admission, along with the dates responses are due.)

(g) (Maximum number of depositions for each party.)

(h) (Limits on the length of depositions, in hours.)

(i) (Dates for exchanging reports of expert witnesses.)

(j) (Dates for supplementations under Rule 26(e).)

4. Other Items:

(a) (A date if the parties ask to meet with the court before a scheduling order.)

(b) (Requested dates for pretrial conferences.)

(c) (Final dates for the plaintiff to amend pleadings or to join parties.)

(d) (Final dates for the defendant to amend pleadings or to join parties.)

(e) (Final dates to file dispositive motions.)

(f) (State the prospects for settlement.)

(g) (Identify any alternative dispute resolution procedure that may enhance settlement prospects.)

(h) (Final dates for submitting Rule 26(a)(3) witness lists, designations of witnesses whose testimony will be presented by deposition, and exhibit lists.)

(i) (Final dates to file objections under Rule 26(a)(3).)

(j) (Suggested trial date and estimate of trial length.)

(k) (Other matters.)

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

77 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 60

Form 60. Notice of Condemnation.

Form 60. Notice of Condemnation.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

To name the defendant.

1. A complaint in condemnation has been filed in the United States District Court for the _____ District of _____, to take property to use for purpose. The interest to be taken is describe. The court is located in the United States courthouse at this address: _____.

2. The property to be taken is described below. You have or claim an interest in it.

(Describe the property.)

3. The authority for taking this property is cite.

4. If you want to object or present any defense to the taking you must serve an answer on the plaintiff's attorney within 21 days [after being served with this notice] [from insert the date of the last publication of notice]. Send your answer to this address: _____.

5. Your answer must identify the property in which you claim an interest, state the nature and extent of that interest, and state all your objections and defenses to the taking. Objections and defenses not presented are waived.

6. If you fail to answer you consent to the taking and the court will enter a judgment that takes your described property interest.

7. Instead of answering, you may serve on the plaintiff's attorney a notice of appearance that designates the property in which you claim an interest. After you do that, you will receive a notice of any proceedings that affect you. Whether or not you have previously appeared or answered, you may present evidence at a trial to determine compensation for the property and share in the overall award.

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 61

Form 61. Complaint for Condemnation.

Form 61. Complaint for Condemnation.
(Caption--See Form 1; name as defendants the property and at least one owner.)

1. (Statement of Jurisdiction--See Form 7.)

2. This is an action to take property under the power of eminent domain and to determine just compensation to be paid to the owners and parties in interest.

3. The authority for the taking is _____.

4. The property is to be used for _____.

5. The property to be taken is (describe in enough detail for identification--or attach the description and state "is described in Exhibit A, attached").

6. The interest to be acquired is _____.

7. The persons known to the plaintiff to have or claim an interest in the property are: _____. (For each person include the interest claimed.)

8. There may be other persons who have or claim an interest in the property and whose names could not be found after a reasonably diligent search. They are made parties under the designation "Unknown Owners."

Therefore, the plaintiff demands judgment:

(a) condemning the property;

(b) determining and awarding just compensation; and

(c) granting any other lawful and proper relief.

(Date and sign--See Form 2.)

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 70

Form 70. Judgment on a Jury Verdict.

Form 70. Judgment on a Jury Verdict.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

This action was tried by a jury with Judge _____ presiding, and the jury has rendered a verdict.

It is ordered that:

[the plaintiff name recover from the defendant name the amount of $_____ with interest at the rate of _____%, along with costs.]

[the plaintiff recover nothing, the action be dismissed on the merits, and the defendant name recover costs from the plaintiff name.]

Date: _____

_____

Clerk of Court

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 71

Form 71. Judgment by the Court without a Jury.

Form 71. Judgment by the Court without a Jury.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

This action was tried by Judge _____ without a jury and the following decision was reached:

It is ordered that [the plaintiff name recover from the defendant name the amount of $_____, with prejudgment interest at the rate of _____%, postjudgment interest at the rate of _____%, along with costs.] [the plaintiff recover nothing, the action be dismissed on the merits, and the defendant name recover costs from the plaintiff name.]

Date: _____

_____

Clerk of Court

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 80

Form 80. Notice of a Magistrate Judge's Availability.

Form 80. Notice of a Magistrate Judge's Availability.

1. A magistrate judge is available under title 28 U.S.C. § 636(c) to conduct the proceedings in this case, including a jury or nonjury trial and the entry of final judgment. But a magistrate judge can be assigned only if all parties voluntarily consent.

2. You may withhold your consent without adverse substantive consequences. The identity of any party consenting or withholding consent will not be disclosed to the judge to whom the case is assigned or to any magistrate judge.

3. If a magistrate judge does hear your case, you may appeal directly to a United States court of appeals as you would if a district judge heard it.

A form called Consent to an Assignment to a United States Magistrate Judge is available from the court clerk's office.

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 81

Form 81. Consent to an Assignment to a Magistrate Judge.

Form 81. Consent to an Assignment to a Magistrate Judge.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

I voluntarily consent to have a United States magistrate judge conduct all further proceedings in this case, including a trial, and order the entry of final judgment. (Return this form to the court clerk--not to a judge or magistrate judge.)

Date: _____

_____

Signature of the Party

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VI Trial and Judgment
APPENDIX TO CHAPTER 26 APPENDIX OF FORMS OFFICIAL FORMS FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE
APPENDIX OF FORMS

3 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure Form 82

Form 82. Order of Assignment to a Magistrate Judge.

Form 82. Order of Assignment to a Magistrate Judge.
(Caption--See Form 1.)

With the parties' consent, it is ordered that this case be assigned to United States Magistrate Judge _____ of this district to conduct all proceedings and enter final judgment in accordance with 28 U.S.C. § 636(c).

Date: _____

_____

United States District Judge

84 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VII Appeal
CHAPTER 27 GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF APPEAL

3-27 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure 27.syn

§ 27.syn Synopsis to Chapter 27: GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF APPEAL

§ 27.01 Review of Decisions Made By Lower Courts in Federal System

§ 27.02 Final Judgment Rule

[1] Only Final Judgments Generally Appealable

[2] Purpose of Final Judgment Rule

[3] Finality of Decision

[a] "Final Judgment" Defined

[b] Court's Retention of Power to Revise Decision Destroys Finality

[c] Technical Requirements for Judgment Do Not Control Appealability

[4] Judgment Disposing of Less Than All Claims or Less Than All Parties

[5] Exceptions to Final Judgment Rule

[a] Collateral Order Doctrine

[b] Doctrine of Practical Finality

[c] Pragmatic Finality Doctrine

[6] Application of Final Judgment Rule in Particular Situations

[a] Pretrial Orders

[i] Discovery Orders

[ii] Orders Regarding Security

[iii] Orders Regarding Class Actions

[iv] Orders Granting or Denying Intervention

[b] Postjudgment Motions and Orders

[i] Effect of Postjudgment Motions

[ii] Appealability of Postjudgment Orders

§ 27.03 Interlocutory Orders Appealable as of Right

[1] Statutory Framework

[2] Appealable Interlocutory Orders Involving Injunctions

[a] Order Granting Injunction

[b] Order Changing or Extending Injunction

[c] Order Denying Injunction

[3] Orders Related to Injunctions That are Not Appealable

[a] Temporary Restraining Order Is Not Appealable

[b] Orders of Case Management Not Appealable

[4] Interlocutory Orders Involving Receiver

[5] Interlocutory Orders Regarding Admiralty

[a] Interlocutory Admiralty Order Appealable

[b] Admiralty Order Must Determine Rights and Liabilities

[c] Order of Admiralty Case Management Not Appealable

§ 27.04 Interlocutory Orders Appealable by Permission

[1] Availability of Discretionary Interlocutory Appeal

[2] Statutory Criteria for Discretionary Appeal

[a] Certification by District Court

[b] Controlling Question of Law

[c] Appeal Involves Substantial Difference of Opinion

[d] Appeal Required to Advance Disposition of Litigation

[3] Request for Certification to District Court

[4] Petition to Circuit Court for Permission to Appeal

[a] Time Limit for Filing Petition

[b] Contents of Petition

[5] Review by Circuit Court

§ 27.05 General Considerations When Taking Interlocutory Appeals

[1] Appellate and Trial Court Jurisdiction Related to Interlocutory Appeals

[2] No Obligation to Take Interlocutory Appeal

[3] No Supplemental Appellate Jurisdiction

§ 27.06 Stay of Proceedings to Enforce Judgment Pending Appeal

[1] Automatic Period of Stay

[2] Right to Stay of Injunction

[3] Stay Pending Appeal

[a] Right to Stay

[b] Relaxation of Bond Requirement

[c] Motion for Stay

[4] Stay Involving Multiple Claims or Multiple Parties

§ 27.07 Extraordinary Writs

[1] Writs Afford Relief from Final Judgment Rule

[2] Types of Writs Available

[3] Writs May be Used at All Levels of Federal Judiciary

[4] General Requirements for Extraordinary Writs

[5] Use of Writ of Mandamus

[6] Extraordinary Writ Used to Review Non-appealable Interlocutory Orders

§ 27.08 Amendment of Pleadings

§ 27.09 Fees, Costs, and Damages for Delay

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VII Appeal
CHAPTER 27 GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF APPEAL

3-27 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 27.01

§ 27.01 Review of Decisions Made By Lower Courts in Federal System

When a lower federal court makes a decision, the appellate courts in the federal court system, including the circuit courts of appeal and the United States Supreme Court may review the decision by only two methods: appeal to the higher court under the authority of a statute, or by application for extraordinary writ. The most common method of review is appeal. For appeals, there are two general types of decisions that are appealable: final decisions n1 and certain appealable nonfinal decisions known as interlocutory orders. n2 The "All Writs Act" enables federal courts to issue any writs that are necessary or appropriate in the aid of the jurisdiction given to the courts by the Constitution or by statute. n3 Under the All Writs Act, a court may issue an extraordinary writ in order to review nonfinal orders and other actions that do not constitute an appealable order. n4

In addition to review of lower courts, several statutes provide for the judicial review of decisions and actions of federal administrative agencies and government officials. These statutes and rules are discussed in the chapters applicable to the particular appellate court: Ch. 28, Appeal to Court of Appeals, and Ch. 29, Appeals to the Supreme Court.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesWritsAll Writs ActCivil ProcedureAppealsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. See § 27.02.

(n2)Footnote 2. See §§ 27.03, 27.04.

(n3)Footnote 3. See 28 U.S.C. § 1651.

(n4)Footnote 4. See § 27.07.

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VII Appeal
CHAPTER 27 GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF APPEAL

3-27 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 27.02

§ 27.02 Final Judgment Rulen*

[1] Only Final Judgments Generally Appealable

The courts of appeals generally have jurisdiction of appeals only from decisions of the district courts of the United States that are final. n1 This rule is known as the "final judgment rule," and it ordinarily bars consideration of non-dispositive rulings during ongoing judicial proceeding in the trial court, so that appellate proceedings do not interfere with the the trial proceedings. n2 However, the final judgment statutes do not precisely define the term final judgment, n3 nor do they specify when there has been a final decision. Consequently, interpretation of the term has been developed by case precedent. n4 Appeals to the Supreme court are also covered by the final judgment rule. n5

There are exceptions to the final judgment rule, and these exceptions allow appeals from certain decisions even though the decisions have not disposed of the entire action. n6 These decisions are known as interlocutory orders, and interlocutory appeals from these orders are allowed only in particular limited circumstances specified in the Judicial Code, n7 or in situations when the interlocutory order is covered by one of several common-law doctrines that define orders as final, even though the orders do not end the action in total or in part. n7.1

[2] Purpose of Final Judgment Rule

The primary purpose of the final judgment rule is to benefit both the judicial process and the litigants by preventing piecemeal appeals that interrupt and increase the cost of trial litigation. n8 The final judgment rule prevents many issues that might otherwise be raised in an interlocutory appeal from even reaching the appellate court, because a favorable final decision removes the incentive to appeal an order that might otherwise have been appealed at an earlier time. n9 The final judgment rule also benefits litigants because it reduces the ability of litigants to harass opponents in bad faith by making them respond to a succession of costly and time consuming appeals. n10 Finally, the final judgment rule acknowledges the discretion that the trial judge has under the federal rules and emphasizes the deference that appellate courts owe to the trial judge as the individual initially called on to decide the many questions of law and fact that occur in the course of a trial, n11 especially procedural matters. n12

[3] Finality of Decision

[a] "Final Judgment" Defined

For purposes of appealability, a "final judgment" is generally defined as a decision by the district court that ends the litigation on the merits and leaves nothing for the court to do but execute the judgment. n13 However, there is no definitive formula that determines in all cases whether a decision is final. n14 The label the court gives its decision does not necessarily control whether it is final for purposes of appealability. n15 The Supreme Court has also stated that a final judgment within the meaning of the final judgment rule does not necessarily mean the last order possible to be made in a case; because of the difficulty of making a decision in some cases the requirement of finality is to be given a practical, rather than a technical construction. n16 Thus, absolute finality is not a requirement, and even though a collateral question remains to be decided, an order that ends the litigation on the merits is appealable as long as the collateral question would not alter the order or moot or revise decisions embodied in the order. n17

[b] Court's Retention of Power to Revise Decision Destroys Finality

One of the absolute requirements of finality is the loss of power by the court to revise the order or decision. Thus, even if an order or decision is otherwise final, its finality is destroyed if the court retains power to revise the order or decision. n18 Nevertheless, courts recognize that if the requirements of finality are otherwise met for a particular decision, the finality of the decision is not destroyed by the power of the court to grant a further decision related to the parties provided that the potential decision does not encompass the earlier decision that constitutes final judgment. n19 In the most common example, if a court retains jurisdiction over the parties until they have complied with the terms of an injunction it has included in a judgment, the judgment is a nevertheless a final, appealable judgment. An order or judgment granting injunctive relief is final for purposes of appeal provided that it resolves all substantive issues on the merits and effectively ends the litigation. n20 Similarly, the finality of a judgment is not affected by the reservation of the determination of costs, including attorney's fees, unless the attorney's fees are an integral part of the action's merits. n21

[c] Technical Requirements for Judgment Do Not Control Appealability

The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure specify three technical requirements that must be accomplished at the time the court enters a judgment. However, because the final judgment rule is to be given a practical, rather than a technical construction, these technical requirements generally do not control finality with respect to the issue of appealabilty. n22 Rather than making an order a final judgment, the technical requirements set the time from which an appeal must be taken. An appeal cannot be untimely unless the requirements have been satisfied and the statutory period has elapsed; however, an appeal may be commenced without meeting the requirements. n23

The three technical requirements are:

1. The court must set out the judgment in a separate document. n24 However, the court or clerk's failure to set forth a judgment or order on a separate document when required by Rule 58(a) does not affect the validity of an appeal from that judgment or order. n25 Therefore, although the appealability of a district court's judgment is not determined by whether it is set forth in a separate document, the time when judgment is set forth in a separate document and entered by the clerk does determine when the deadline for appeal begins to run. n26

2. A judgment is not effective until the clerk has entered the judgment on its docket pursuant to Rule 79. n27 While some courts have held that the absence of a notation of entry of judgment on the docket sheet technically deprives the circuit court of appellate jurisdiction, n28 a notice of appeal filed after the court announces a decision or order but before entry of judgment is nevertheless treated as filed on the date and after the entry. n29 On the other hand, a docket entry of a judgment does not in and of itself confer jurisdiction on a circuit court. If no final judgment has in fact been rendered, the fact that there is a docket notation suggesting otherwise is jurisdictionally irrelevant. n30

3. Generally a judgment is not final unless it describes the relief to which the prevailing party is entitled. However, a final judgment for money need only specify the means for determining the amount. n31 Thus, a judgment is still appealable, even if it fails to specify a particular amount of damages, if the amount can be determined by a mechanical and uncontroverted method. n32

[4] Judgment Disposing of Less Than All Claims or Less Than All Parties

Courts have liberally interpreted the final judgment statute n33 in conjunction with Rule 54 to permit a party to appeal an order that ends the litigation on the merits, even though issues regarding some claims or parties may remain, provided the district court states that there is no reason to delay finality for the orders decided. Thus, in an action involving multiple claims or multiple parties, a district court may enter a final judgment as to fewer than all of the claims or determine the rights of fewer than all of the parties. However, such an order is appealable only if it has been certified by the district court under Civil Rule 54(b). n34 To qualify for certification under Civil Rule 54(b), a judgment must dispose of at least a one substantive claim, n35 and that the substantive claim must be separable from the remaining claims. n35.1

The courts have not defined the term "separable," and no exact test exists to determine whether a claim is a distinct claim for relief. However, courts generally concentrate on two factors: whether there is a factual overlap between the claims disposed of and the remaining claims and whether the claims disposed of and the remaining claims seek separate relief. n36

To certify an order as a Rule 54(b) final judgment, a district court must state that the action is final as to specified claims or parties and that there is no just reason for delay. n36.1 In making a determination of whether a claim qualifies under Rule 54(b), the district court must consider judicial administrative interests, as well as the equities between the parties. The judicial administrative interests include whether the claims under review are separable from the remaining claims, and whether the circuit court would have to decide the same issue more than once if certification is granted. The absence of one of these factors does not, however, necessarily preclude certification. The reason for considering these interests is to maintain the federal policy against piecemeal appeals. n37

A court may certify an order that disposes of a claim against one party even if identical claims exist against the remaining parties. n38 However, a partial or interlocutory adjudication of a claim is insufficient, regardless of whether the district court makes the requisite express determination that there is no just cause for delay. n39

[5] Exceptions to Final Judgment Rule

[a] Collateral Order Doctrine

The collateral order doctrine provides that the courts may deem certain types of district court orders appealable because they completely dispose of important issues collateral to the merits, even though the orders are not technically "final orders" under section 1291. n40 Under the doctrine, an order is appealable if it is a final disposition of a claimed right that is not an ingredient of the cause of action and does not require consideration with the cause of action. n41 To be within the collateral order doctrine, the type of order must meet all three of the following requirements: n42

1. The order must conclusively determine a disputed question;

2. The order must resolve an important issue separate from the merits of the action; and

3. The order must be effectively unreviewable on an appeal from a final judgment.

The first requirement, that the order conclusively determine a disputed question, means that the district court has clearly made its last statement about the subject. n43 The second requirement, that the order resolve an important issue separate from the merits of the action, means that the order must present a serious and unsettled question of law n44 and must involve an important right that would be probably be irreparably lost if review had to await final judgment. n45

The Supreme Court has emphasized that the collateral order doctrine only applies to orders that cover an entire class of claims; when considering the doctrine, the court should not engage in an individualized jurisdictional inquiry regarding the factual nature of one order on a particular claim. For example, the court could consider the doctrine with respect to all orders that involve waiver of privilege. n46

The collateral order doctrine is a narrow doctrine, and the courts must never allowed it to swallow the general rule that a party is entitled only to a single appeal that should be deferred until final judgment has been entered. n47 Thus, the following orders have been held appealable as collateral orders under the doctrine:

- An order approving class action settlement; n48
- An order absolutely denying intervention; n49
- An order preventing a father from appearing pro se on behalf of his minor son; n50
- An order quashing writs of attachment or garnishment; n51
- An order imposing sanctions on an attorney not a party to the action.

In contrast, the following types of orders have been held not immediately appealable:

- An order declining to enforce a contractual forum selection clause; n52
- An order denying a motion to dismiss based on immunity when the immunity derives from a private settlement agreement; n53
- Disclosure orders adverse to the attorney-client privilege. n54

[b] Doctrine of Practical Finality

The doctrine of practical finality is another exception to the final judgment rule. The doctrine of practical finality permits appellate review of an order that is not technically final but that resolves all issues that are not purely ministerial. For example, a finding of liability that does not also specify damages is generally not a final decision. However, if damages are based on a precise mathematical formula, the inputs to the formula are all undisputed facts, and the only issues remaining before the district court are purely ministerial, the appellate court may take jurisdiction over the appeal. n55

The practical finality doctrine is also applicable in cases involving property contests. n56 Under the doctrine, a judgment requiring immediate delivery or sale of property, while further proceedings in the action continue, is final for purposes of appellate review. n57 The doctrine is limited to cases in which the appellant would be irreparably harmed if appellate review were delayed until conclusion of the action. n58 The doctrine has also been applied in cases involving payment of interim attorney's fees when the prospect of collection is uncertain. n59 n60-61

[c] Pragmatic Finality Doctrine

The pragmatic finality doctrine is a judicially created doctrine n62 which provides another very narrow exception to the final judgment statute. n63 The court applies the doctrine if the danger of injustice by delaying appellate review outweighs the inconvenience and costs of piecemeal review. This exception is reserved only for unique and special circumstances. To take advantage of the doctrine, a party must establish four factors: (1) the order is a marginally final order, (2) the order disposes of an unsettled issue of significance, (3) review would implement the same policy Congress sought to promote in Section 1292(b), and (4) the finality issue would not be presented to the appellate court until argument on the merits, thereby ensuring that policies of judicial economy would not be served by remanding the case with an important unresolved issue. n64

[6] Application of Final Judgment Rule in Particular Situations

[a] Pretrial Orders

[i] Discovery Orders

A party generally may not appeal a discovery order. n65 Although a discovery order may come within the "collateral order doctrine" exception, n66 it will not usually satisfy one of its prerequisites: that the order be effectively unreviewable on appeal from a final judgment. This is because a party may gain the right of appeal from a discovery order by defying it, being held in contempt, and then appealing from the contempt order, which would be a final judgment as to that party. n67

A discovery order may be appealable in certain situations. For example, a discovery order is appealable if part of a final decision disposing of the merits. n68 In some cases, discovery orders are appealable in ancillary proceedings brought in other districts. n69 For example, an order quashing a subpoena in an ancillary proceeding generally is final and appealable because the party seeking to enforce the subpoena has no other effective means of review. n70 Courts have also generally permitted immediate appeals from orders which restrict access to judicial proceedings, such as protective orders and orders sealing documents. These cases may arise when a party seeks access to the protected material, n71 or when an individual wishes to disseminate material to the government or the media. n72

[ii] Orders Regarding Security

The exception to the final judgment rule under the collateral order doctrine n73 arose from an order requiring prejudgment security. The exception may also apply to an order denying security. n74 Thus, an order denying security may be appealed immediately under the collateral order doctrine, whether or not the trial judge mistakenly believed that he or she lacked the power to grant the requested relief, particularly when the appeal presents an important question of law whose resolution will guide courts in other cases. n75 Additionally, some courts have held that the an order granting, denying, or vacating an attachment comes within the collateral order doctrine and is appealable. n76

[iii] Orders Regarding Class Actions

If the district court enters an order that an action is not maintainable as a class action under Civil Rule 23, n76.1 the decision is generally not a "final decision," is not appealable as a matter of right, and may only be reviewed either on appeal from a final judgment in the action or if it comes within an appropriate exception to the final judgment rule. The Supreme Court reached this decision in a class action involving allegations of violations of federal securities laws, in which the district court certified the class and then, after further proceedings, decertified it. n77 The Court held that an order deciding a request for class certification does not come within the "collateral order" exception of the final-judgment rule. n78 An order denying class certification or decertifying an existing class does not meet the criteria of the collateral-order exception because the order is subject to revision in the district court under Civil Rule 23(c)(1); the class determination is generally intertwined with the merits of the action; and an order denying class certification can be effectively reviewed after final judgment at the behest of the class representative or intervening class members. n79

Notwithstanding this general rule of non-appealability, the collateral order doctrine n80 has occasionally been successfully invoked to obtain immediate review of other nonfinal orders in class actions. For example, in one case the Supreme Court granted immediate review of an order imposing on the defendant 90 percent of the costs of giving notice in a class action suit. n81 A court of appeals has also invoked the doctrine to hear an appeal by objecting class members from the district court's approval of a subclass settlement. n82

A court of appeals may permit an appeal from an order granting or denying class-action certification under this rule if a petition for permission to appeal is filed with the circuit clerk within 14 days after such an order is entered. An appeal does not stay proceedings in the district court unless the district judge or the court of appeals makes a stay order. n83

[iv] Orders Granting or Denying Intervention n*

If a court makes an order that grants a motion to intervene, the order is not appealable. An order granting intervention is interlocutory and not within one of the statutory exceptions. n84

On the other hand an order denying intervention may be appealed in some situations, generally depending on the nature of the intervention as either of right or permissive. In a case that predates the enactment of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure generally, and Rule 24 specifically (governing intervention), the Supreme Court stated that when an application for intervention was addressed to the discretion of the district court, the order denying intervention was not of the final character which furnishes the basis for appeal. n85 In a later case, the Court held that its jurisdiction to consider an appeal from an order denying intervention depended on the nature of the applicant's right to intervene. If the right is absolute, the order is appealable; but if the matter is one within the discretion of the trial court and if there is no abuse of discretion, the order is not appealable; n85.1 in other words, appellate jurisdiction depends on the nature of the right to intervene in each particular instance. n86

In light of these Supreme Court rulings, and the subsequent enactment of the federal Rules, the majority of circuits hold that the denial of a motion to intervene as of right under Civil Rule 24(a) is an appealable final decision within meaning of Judicial Code Section 1291. n87 Some courts have also held that appealability does not depend on whether intervention is of right under Rule 24(a), or is permissive under Rule 24(b). n88

[b] Postjudgment Motions and Orders

[i] Effect of Postjudgment Motions

If a party makes any of certain postjudgment motions, the motion divests the circuit court of jurisdiction until it is disposed of, in effect, rendering the final judgment temporarily nonfinal for appellate purposes. These motions are:

1. A motion for judgment as a matter of law or a motion for a new trial under Rule 50(b). n89

2. A motion to amend or make additional findings of fact under Rule 52(b), whether or not granting the motion would alter the judgment. n90

3. A motion to alter or amend the judgment under Rule 59(e). n91

4. A timely motion for attorney's fees under Rule 54(d)(2), provided that prior to the time any notice of appeal has been filed, the district court decides that under Rule 58, that motion for attorney's fees will be treated as a motion under Rule 59, which has the effect of tolling the time limit for appeal. n92

5. A motion for a new trial. n93

6. A motion for relief under Rule 60 if the motion is filed no later than 28 days after the entry of judgment. n94

The running of the time for appeal is terminated by a timely motion made under the rules listed above. In such instances, the full time for appeal commences to run from the entry of the order denying a new trial or granting or denying any other such motion. n95

For example, with respect to item 1, if a Rule 50(b) motion for judgment is granted, the result is a final judgment: an original one if a judgment has not already been entered and a superseding one if a judgment was previously entered. If a judgment was entered and a motion for judgment under Rule 50(b) is denied, the finality of the judgment is restored. If no judgment on the verdict was entered, the denial of the Rule 50(b) motion presumably will be followed by the entry of a final judgment on the verdict, unless the trial court grants a motion for new trial under Civil Rule 59.

Motions under Rule 60, listed as item 6 above, should be distinguished from the other listed motions under Rules 50(b), 52(b), and 59. However, a motion under Rule 60(b) deals with obtaining substantial relief from a judgment, and for certain grounds must be made no more than one year after entry of the judgment or order. n96 Furthermore, unless a motion for relief under Rule 60(b) is filed no later than 28 days after the entry of judgment, the motion does not affect the finality of a judgment, nor suspend its operation. n96.1

[ii] Appealability of Postjudgment Orders

If a postjudgment order is ministerial in that it is designed merely to effectuate the final judgment, the order is not appealable. n97 On the other hand, all postjudgment orders that are more than ministerial may be appealed. n98 With respect to finality, courts generally apply less rigorous standards to find a postjudgment order final and appealable than for a prejudgment order because the policy against and the probability of avoidable piecemeal review are less likely to be decisive after judgment than before. n99

Orders issued that decide Rule 60 motions for relief from a judgment or order must be distinguished from other post judgment orders, in that the Rule 60 orders relate directly to the final judgment and not to other issues. A motion under Rule 60 filed within 28 days after judgment renders a final judgment nonfinal for appellate purposes until the motion is decided. n100 However, if the motion is made more than 28 days after the judgment has been entered, the underlying judgment and the later decision on the Rule 60 motion require separate appeals. n101

An order granting or denying a motion under Rule 60(b) is appealable, n102 unless other issues remain in the case. n103 Similarly, if the district court grants a motion under Rule 60 and orders a new trial or other further proceedings, the order is generally not appealable. n104 However, there is an exception to this general rule, and an appeal has been allowed when the district court was without jurisdiction to enter the order. For example, if the district court grants relief from a judgment under Rule 60(b)(1) for mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect on a motion filed more than one year after judgment has been entered, despite the language in the rule specifically limiting to one year the time within which the relief may be sought, an immediate appeal is permissible. n105

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionCollateral Order DoctrineCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionFinal Judgment RuleCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionInterlocutory Orders

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 19 Moore's Federal Practice, § 202.02 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See 28 U.S.C. § 1291; see also 28 U.S.C. § 1295 (appeals to federal circuit court of appeals.

(n3)Footnote 2. See Cunningham v. Hamilton County, 527 U.S. 198, 203-204, 119 S. Ct. 1915, 144 L. Ed. 2d 184 (1999) .

(n4)Footnote 3. See 28 U.S.C. §§ 1291, 1295.

(n5)Footnote 4. Eisen v. Carlisle & Jacquelin, 417 U.S. 156, 170, 94 S. Ct. 2140, 40 L. Ed. 2d 732 (1974) (Supreme Court has recognized problem of determining whether a judgment, decree, or decision is "final" for appeal purposes); see [3], below.

(n6)Footnote 5. See Jefferson v. City of Tarrant, 522 U.S. 75, 80-82, 118 S. Ct. 481, 139 L. Ed. 2d 433 (1997) .

(n7)Footnote 6. Cunningham v. Hamilton County, 527 U.S. 198, 203-204, 119 S. Ct. 1915, 144 L. Ed. 2d 184 (1999) .

(n8)Footnote 7. 28 U.S.C. § 1292; see §§ 27.03, 27.04.

(n9)Footnote 7.1. See [5], below.

(n10)Footnote 8. Swint v. Chambers County Comm'n, 514 U.S. 35, 45, 115 S. Ct. 1203, 131 L. Ed. 2d 60 (1995) .

(n11)Footnote 9. Cheng v. Commissioner, 878 F.2d 306, 310 (9th Cir. 1989) .

(n12)Footnote 10. Johnson v. Jones, 515 U.S. 304, 309, 115 S. Ct. 2151, 2154, 132 L. Ed. 2d 238 (1995) .

(n13)Footnote 11. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. v. Risjord, 449 U.S. 368, 374, 101 S. Ct. 669, 66 L. Ed. 2d 571 (1981) .

(n14)Footnote 12. Johnson v. Jones, 515 U.S. 304, 309, 115 S. Ct. 2151, 2154, 132 L. Ed. 2d 238 (1995) (interlocutory appeals may make it more difficult for trial judges to do their basic job of supervising trial proceedings and may threaten those proceedings with delay, added costs, and diminished coherence).

(n15)Footnote 13. Pause Tech. LLC v. TiVo Inc., 401 F.3d 1290, 1292-1293 (Fed. Cir. 2005) .

(n16)Footnote 14. Eisen v. Carlisle & Jacquelin, 417 U.S. 156, 170, 94 S. Ct. 2140, 40 L. Ed. 2d 732 (1974) .

(n17)Footnote 15. Samco Global Arms, Inc. v. Arita, 395 F.3d 1212, 1213 (11th Cir. 2005) (citing Moore's Federal Practice, when court labels its dismissal as without prejudice, label is not controlling for purposes of finality).

(n18)Footnote 16. Gillespie v. United States Steel Corp., 379 U.S. 148, 152, 85 S. Ct. 308, 13 L. Ed. 2d 199 (1964) .

(n19)Footnote 17. Budinich v. Becton Dickinson and Co., 486 U.S. 196, 199, 108 S. Ct. 1717, 100 L. Ed. 2d 178 (1988) .

(n20)Footnote 18. Behrens v. Pelletier, 516 U.S. 299, 305, 116 S. Ct. 834, 133 L. Ed. 2d 773 (1996) .

(n21)Footnote 19. See In re UAL Corp., 411 F.3d 818, 822 (7th Cir. 2005) ; University Life Ins. Co. v. Unimarc, Ltd., 699 F.2d 846, 849 (7th Cir. 1983) , superseded by statute as stated in Holt v. Shalala, 35 F.3d 376 (9th Cir. 1994).

(n22)Footnote 20. Tyler v. City of Manhattan, 118 F.3d 1400, 1402 n.1 (10th Cir. 1997) .

(n23)Footnote 21. White v. New Hampshire Dep't of Employment Security, 455 U.S. 445, 451 n.13, 102 S. Ct. 1162, 71 L. Ed. 2d 325 (1982) .

(n24)Footnote 22. Gillespie v. United States Steel Corp., 379 U.S. 148, 152, 85 S. Ct. 308, 311, 13 L. Ed. 2d 199, 203 (1964) .

(n25)Footnote 23. Bankers Trust Co. v. Mallis, 435 U.S. 381, 386, 98 S. Ct. 1117, 55 L. Ed. 2d 357 (1978) (noting also that three technical requirements described above may also be waived).

(n26)Footnote 24. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(a).

(n27)Footnote 25. Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(7)(B); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(a)(1); see also Bankers Trust Co. v. Mallis, 435 U.S. 381, 383-385, 98 S. Ct. 1117, 55 L. Ed. 2d 357 (1978) .

(n28)Footnote 26. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(c)(2)(A); Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(7)(A)(ii); see also Kunz v. DeFelice, 538 F.3d 667, 673, 680 (7th Cir. 2008) (starting of clock on deadline for time to appeal).

(n29)Footnote 27. Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(c); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 79(a); Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(7)(A); see also Taumoepeau v. Mfrs. & Traders Trust Co. (In re Taumoepeau), 523 F.3d 1213, 1216 (10th Cir. 2008) .

(n30)Footnote 28. Sauter v. Ross Restaurants, Inc., 674 F.2d 194, 196 (3d Cir. 1982) (court dismissed matter for lack of jurisdiction where docket sheet did not reflect entry of judgment pursuant to Rule 58).

(n31)Footnote 29. Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(2).

(n32)Footnote 30. C.I.T. Financial Service v. Yeomans, 710 F.2d 416, 417 (7th Cir. 1983) (entry on docket sheet is merely ministerial act performed by court clerk pursuant to Civil Rule 79(a) and is not judicial act of adjudication.).

(n33)Footnote 31. United States v. F & M Schaefer Brewing Co., 356 U.S. 227, 232-233, 78 S. Ct. 674, 2 L. Ed. 2d 721 (1958) .

(n34)Footnote 32. Semtner ex rel Semtner v. Group Health Serv., Inc., 129 F.3d 1390, 1392 (10th Cir. 1997) (failure to specify amount of damages was clerical error that could be corrected under Civil Procedure Rule 60(b) without affecting finality of judgment, and therefore circuit court had jurisdiction to hear appeal).

(n35)Footnote 33. See 28 U.S.C. § 1291.

(n36)Footnote 34. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b); see McBeth v. Himes, 598 F.3d 708, 721 (10th Cir. 2010) .

(n37)Footnote 35. See Penn-Am. Ins. Co. v. Mapp, 521 F.3d 290, 294 (4th Cir. 2008) .

(n38)Footnote 35.1. Marseilles Hydro Power, LLC v. Marseilles Land & Water Co., 518 F.3d 459, 464 (7th Cir. 2008) (even if two claims arise from same event or occurrence, they are separable for Rule 54(b) purposes if they rely on entirely different legal entitlements yielding separate recoveries, rather than different legal theories aimed at same recovery).

(n39)Footnote 36. Jordan v. Pugh, 425 F.3d 820, 827 (10th Cir. 2005) (citing Moore's Federal Practice); Sussex Drug Products v. Kanasco, Ltd., 920 F.2d 1150, 1154 (3d Cir. 1990) (alternative theories on same facts not separable).

(n40)Footnote 36.1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b).

(n41)Footnote 37. Curtiss-Wright Corp. v. General Elec. Co., 446 U.S. 1, 8, 100 S. Ct. 1460, 64 L. Ed. 2d 1 (1980) .

(n42)Footnote 38. National Metalcrafters v. McNeil, 784 F.2d 817, 821 (7th Cir. 1986) .

(n43)Footnote 39. Brandt v. Bassett, 69 F.3d 1539, 1547 (11th Cir. 1995) (judgment must possess requisite finality to be certified under Rule 54(b) by disposing of at least one substantive claim).

(n44)Footnote 40. Berrey v. Asarco Inc., 439 F.3d 636, 647 (10th Cir. 2006) .

(n45)Footnote 41. Cohen v. Beneficial Industrial Loan Corp., 337 U.S. 541, 546, 69 S. Ct. 1221, 93 L. Ed. 1528 (1949) (doctrine applicable to relatively rare class of decisions that finally determine claims of right separable from and collateral to, rights asserted in action and that are too important to be denied review).

(n46)Footnote 42. Mohawk Indus. v. Carpenter, ___ U.S. ___, ___, 130 S. Ct. 599, 175 L. Ed. 2d 458, 465-466 (2009) ; Will v. Hallock, 546 U.S. 345, 126 S. Ct. 952, 163 L. Ed. 2d 836 (2006) .

(n47)Footnote 43. See United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Arch Ins. Co., 578 F.3d 45, 55 (1st Cir. 2009) (order must provide complete resolution of issue, and not constitute order that is unfinished or inconclusive); Bradshaw v. Zoological Society of San Diego, 662 F.2d 1301, 1306 (9th Cir. 1981) (criteria of finality is satisfied when district court has said last word on subject and indicates that order was not tentative).

(n48)Footnote 44. Baldridge v. SBC Communs., Inc., 404 F.3d 930, 931 (5th Cir. 2005) .

(n49)Footnote 45. Cunningham v. Hamilton County, Ohio, 527 U.S. 198, 119 S. Ct. 1915, 144 L. Ed. 2d 184 (1999) (order imposing sanctions on attorney for attorney's discovery abuses solely pursuant to Rule 37 was not covered by doctrine because order did not resolve important questions separate from merits).

(n50)Footnote 46. Mohawk Indus. v. Carpenter, ___ U.S. ___, 130 S. Ct. 599, 175 L. Ed. 2d 458, 467 (2009) .

(n51)Footnote 47. Mohawk Indus. v. Carpenter, ___ U.S. ___, 130 S. Ct. 599, 175 L. Ed. 2d 458, 466 (2009) .

(n52)Footnote 48. In re General Motors Corp. Engine Interchange Litig., 594 F.2d 1106, 1117-1118 (7th Cir. 1979) , cert. denied, 444 U.S. 870 (1979) .

(n53)Footnote 49. Arney v. Finney, 967 F.2d 418, 421 (10th Cir. 1992) .

(n54)Footnote 50. Devine v. Indian River County Sch. Bd., 121 F.3d 576, 579 (11th Cir. 1997) .

(n55)Footnote 51. American Oil Co. v. McMullin, 433 F.2d 1091, 1096 (10th Cir. 1970) .

(n56)Footnote 52. Lauro Lines S.R.L. v. Chasser, 490 U.S. 495, 498, 109 S. Ct. 1976, 104 L. Ed. 2d 548 (1989) .

(n57)Footnote 53. Digital Equipment Corp. v. Desktop Direct, Inc., 511 U.S. 863, 884, 114 S. Ct. 1992, 128 L. Ed. 2d 842 (1994) . The courts of appeals for two circuits have also held that orders denying federal sovereign immunity are not immediately appealable, because the federal government's entitlement to federal sovereign immunity can be effectively and more efficiently reviewed on appeal of any final judgment in the action. Alaska v. United States, 64 F.3d 1352, 1355-1357 (9th Cir. 1995) ; Pullman Constr. Indus. v. United States, 23 F.3d 1166, 1169 (7th Cir. 1994) .

(n58)Footnote 54. Mohawk Indus. v. Carpenter, ___ U.S. ___, 130 S. Ct. 599, 175 L. Ed. 2d 458, 471 (2009) .

(n59)Footnote 55. Vitale v. Latrobe Area Hosp., 420 F.3d 278, 281 (3d Cir. 2005) .

(n60)Footnote 56. Devine v. Indian River County Sch. Bd., 121 F.3d 576, 579 n.8 (11th Cir. 1997) .

(n61)Footnote 57. Radio Station WOW, Inc. v. Johnson, 326 U.S. 120, 126, 65 S. Ct. 1475, 89 L. Ed. 2092 (1945) .

(n62)Footnote 58. Republic Natural Gas Co. v. Oklahoma, 334 U.S. 62, 68, 68 S. Ct. 972, 92 L. Ed. 1212 (1948) .

(n63)Footnote 59. People Who Care v. Rockford Bd. of Educ. Dist. No. 205, 921 F.2d 132, 135 (7th Cir. 1991) (interim fee award compels mid-litigation payment).

(n64)Footnote 60-61. [Reserved]

(n65)Footnote 62. Belli v. Temkin (In re Belli), 268 B.R. 851, 857 (9th Cir. 2001) .

(n66)Footnote 63. See 28 U.S.C. § 1291.

(n67)Footnote 64. Way v. County of Ventura, 348 F.3d 808, 811 (9th Cir. 2003) ; see 28 U.S.C. § 1292(b).

(n68)Footnote 65. Church of Scientology of Cal. v. United States, 506 U.S. 9, 18 n.11, 113 S. Ct. 447, 121 L. Ed. 2d 313 (1992) (district court's order enforcing discovery request is not generally "final order" subject to appellate review).

(n69)Footnote 66. See [5][a], above.

(n70)Footnote 67. In re Sealed Case, 141 F.3d 337, 339-340 (D.C. Cir. 1998) ; Bennett v. City of Boston, 54 F.3d 18, 20 (1st Cir. 1995) .

(n71)Footnote 68. Corporacion Insular de Seguros v. Garcia, 876 F.2d 254, 256-257 (1st Cir. 1989) (discovery orders are not generally subject to immediate review unless they constitute final orders, collateral orders, or are appealable as injunctions).

(n72)Footnote 69. Solarex Corp. v. Arco Solar, Inc., 870 F.2d 642, 643 (Fed. Cir. 1989) .

(n73)Footnote 70. Republic Gear Co. v. Borg-Warner Corp., 381 F.2d 551, 554 (2d Cir. 1967) .

(n74)Footnote 71. In re Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press, 773 F.2d 1325, 1330 (D.C. Cir. 1985) .

(n75)Footnote 72. In re Rafferty, 864 F.2d 151, 154 (D.C. Cir. 1988) .

(n76)Footnote 73. See [5][a], above.

(n77)Footnote 74. United States ex rel. St. Paul A.M.E., 541 F.2d 463, 464 (4th Cir. 1976) .

(n78)Footnote 75. Result Shipping Co., Ltd. v. Ferruzzi Trading USA, Inc., 56 F.3d 394, 398 (2d Cir. 1995) .

(n79)Footnote 76. Britton v. Howard Savings Bank, 727 F.2d 315, 320-322 (3d Cir. 1984) (denial of writ of attachment was appealable as a collateral order, since destruction of the security before final judgment would make a subsequent appeal meaningless).

(n80)Footnote 76.1. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(c)(1)(A); Harper v. Sheriff, 581 F.3d 511, 514 (7th Cir. 2009) .

(n81)Footnote 77. Coopers & Lybrand v. Livesay, 437 U.S. 463, 468-469, 98 S. Ct. 2454, 57 L. Ed. 2d 351 (1978) .

(n82)Footnote 78. See [5][a], above.

(n83)Footnote 79. Coopers & Lybrand v. Livesay, 437 U.S. 463, 468-469, 468, 98 S. Ct. 2454, 57 L. Ed. 2d 351 (1978) .

(n84)Footnote 80. See [5][a], above.

(n85)Footnote 81. Eisen v. Carlisle & Jacquelin, 417 U.S. 156, 170-172, 94 S. Ct. 2140, 40 L. Ed. 2d 732 (1974) .

(n86)Footnote 82. In re General Motors Corp. Engine Interchange Litigation, 594 F.2d 1106, 1117-1118 (7th Cir. 1979) , cert. denied, 444 U.S. 870, 100 S. Ct. 146, 62 L. Ed. 2d 95 (1979) .

(n87)Footnote 83. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(f); see Teamsters Local 445 Freight Div. Pension Fund v. Bombardier, Inc., 546 F.3d 196, 200-201 (2d Cir. 2008) .

(n88)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 6 Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 24, Intervention (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n89)Footnote 84. Brown v. New Orleans Clerks and Checkers Union Local No. 1497, 590 F.2d 161, 164 (5th Cir. 1979) ; Ionian Shipping Co. v. British Law Ins. Co., Ltd., 426 F.2d 186, 188 (2d Cir. 1970) .

(n90)Footnote 85. City of New York v. Consolidated Gas Co., 253 U.S. 219, 221, 40 S. Ct. 511, 64 L. Ed. 870 (1920) .

(n91)Footnote 85.1. See Davis v. Butts, 290 F.3d 1297, 1299-1300 (11th Cir. 2002) .

(n92)Footnote 86. Brotherhood of R. Trainmen v. Baltimore & Ohio R.R. Co., 331 U.S. 519, 524-525, 67 S. Ct. 1387, 91 L. Ed. 1646 (1947) .

(n93)Footnote 87. League of United Latin Am. Citizens v. Wilson, 131 F.3d 1297, 1302 (9th Cir. 1997) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 24(a); see also 28 U.S.C. § 1291.

(n94)Footnote 88. See, e.g., New York News, Inc. v. Kheel, 972 F.2d 482 (2d Cir. 1992) ; Shea v. Angulo, 19 F.3d 343, 345 (7th Cir. 1994) ; Estate of Dixon, 666 F.2d 386, 388 (9th Cir. 1982) ; but see Meek v. Metropolitan Dade County, Fla., 985 F.2d 1471, 1476 (11th Cir. 1993) (order denying permissive intervantion is neither final nor appealable because such order does not substantially affect rights of movant).

(n95)Footnote 89. Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4)(A)(i); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 50(b).

(n96)Footnote 90. Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4)(A)(ii); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 52(b).

(n97)Footnote 91. Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4)(A)(iv); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(e); see also Arthur v. King, 500 F.3d 1335, 1343 (11th Cir. 2007) (grounds for granting motion to alter or amend).

(n98)Footnote 92. Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4)(A)(iii); Fed. R. Civ. P. 58(e); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2), 59(b); see also Robinson v. City of Harvey, 489 F.3d 864, 868 (7th Cir. 2007) .

(n99)Footnote 93. Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4)(A)(v); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(a); see also Brown v. Wilshire Credit Corp. (In re Brown), 484 F.3d 1116, 1122 (9th Cir. 2007) .

(n100)Footnote 94. Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4)(A)(vi); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(a), (b).

(n101)Footnote 95. Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4)(A).

(n102)Footnote 96. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(c)(1).

(n103)Footnote 96.1. See Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4)(A)(vi).

(n104)Footnote 97. Blossom v. Milwaukee & Chicago R.R. Co., 68 U.S. 655, 657, 17 L. Ed. 673 (1864) (appellant may not appeal process of executing final decree).

(n105)Footnote 98. See Friends for Am. Free Enters. Ass'n v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 284 F.3d 575 (5th Cir. 2002) (for example, district court's postjudgment order denying Rule 11 sanctions is not ministerial and is therefore properly appealable final order).

(n106)Footnote 99. Plymouth Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Illinois Mid-Continent Life Ins. Co., 378 F.2d 389, 391 (3d Cir. 1967) .

(n107)Footnote 100. See Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4)(A)(vi).

(n108)Footnote 101. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(c)(2); Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4)(A)(vi).

(n109)Footnote 102. SEC v. Van Waeyenberghe, 284 F.3d 812, 814 (7th Cir. 2002) .

(n110)Footnote 103. Stubblefield v. Windsor Capital Group, 74 F.3d 990, 993-994 (10th Cir. 1996) .

(n111)Footnote 104. Jones & Guerrero Co. v. Sealift Pacific, Inc., 650 F.2d 1072, 1073 (9th Cir. 1981) .

(n112)Footnote 105. Fuller v. Quire, 916 F.2d 358, 360 (6th Cir. 1990) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VII Appeal
CHAPTER 27 GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF APPEAL

3-27 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 27.03

§ 27.03 Interlocutory Orders Appealable as of Rightn*

[1] Statutory Framework

Section 1292(a) of the Judicial Code gives the courts of appeals jurisdiction over interlocutory appeals from the following orders (even though the orders are not final):

> 1. Interlocutory orders of the district courts of the United States or of the judges thereof, granting, continuing, modifying, refusing or dissolving injunctions, or refusing to dissolve or modify injunctions, n1 except when a direct review may be had in the Supreme Court. n2 The rule also applies to orders of the United States District Court for the District of the Canal Zone, the District Court of Guam, and the District Court of the Virgin Islands. n3 These interlocutory orders are discussed in [2], below.
>
> 2. Interlocutory orders appointing receivers, or refusing orders to wind up receiverships or to take steps to accomplish the purposes thereof, such as directing sales or other disposals of property. n4 These interlocutory orders are discussed in [4], below.
>
> 3. Interlocutory decrees of such district courts or the judges thereof determining the rights and liabilities of the parties to admiralty cases in which appeals from final decrees are allowed. n5 These interlocutory orders are discussed in [5], below.

Under 28 U.S.C. Section 1292(c), the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit has jurisdiction over analogous interlocutory appeals in any case over which that court would have jurisdiction under Section 1295, and also over appeals from judgments in actions for patent infringement which would otherwise be final and appealable except for an accounting. n6

[2] Appealable Interlocutory Orders Involving Injunctions

[a] Order Granting Injunction

A party has a right to an immediate, interlocutory appeal from an order that expressly grants injunctive relief. n7 Furthermore, a party has an immediate right of appeal of an order which has the "practical effect" of granting an injunction if the order also threatens serious or irreparable consequences. n8 An order has the practical effect of an injunction for purposes of appeal if the order is directed to one or more of the parties, is coercive and equitable in nature, is enforceable by contempt, and grants at least some of the relief that is sought in the litigation. n9 Note, however, that when an order merely has the effect of an injunction, it is appealable only if it threatens serious or irreparable harm to the enjoined party. n10 On the other hand, if the district court's order expressly grants an injunction, the order is appealable without regard to whether the appellant is able to demonstrate serious or irreparable consequences. n11

As stated above, to have the practical effect of an injunction, an order must meet all three of the following requirements:

1. The order must be directed to one or more of the parties. n12 Thus, an order directing a nonparty to perform an act is not appealable. n13

2. The order must be coercive and equitable in nature, and enforceable by contempt. n14 Therefore, a ruling on a motion for summary judgment that does not award any coercive relief is not appealable. n15 However, an order that immediately prescribes or prohibits certain actions is appealable, even if the order is subject to later modification. n16 On the other hand, an injunction that is not enforceable by its terms is not appealable. n17

3. The order must grant substantive relief. Thus, an order to produce a witness for a deposition is not appealable, because no substantive rights are involved. n18

[b] Order Changing or Extending Injunction

Generally if a new order affects the application of an injunction already in existence, the new order is immediately appealable under Judicial Code Section 1292(a)(1). n18.1 Thus, the following orders are appealable: n19

1. An order modifying an injunction. A district court's order modifying an existing injunction is immediately appealable. n20 Additionally, an order refusing to modify an injunction is immediately appealable, provided that there has been a showing of changed circumstances between the time of entry of the injunction and the filing of the motion. n21 On the other hand, an order that merely interprets an existing injunction is not immediately appealable. n22 For example, an interpretation that the appointment of a master is required to monitor compliance with a previously issued injunction does not necessarily constitute an immediately appealable modification. n23 In distinguishing between a modification and an interpretation, the focus of the inquiry is whether the provisions of the district court's subsequent order are implicit in the terms of the original injunction. n24 Another order that is not considered an immediately appealable modification is an order that does not modify an injunction but merely changes the legal basis or rationale of an injunction. This may occur, for example, when the subsequent order only narrows the grounds on which the injunction is based. n25

2. An order extending an injunction. An interlocutory appeal may be taken from a district court's order that continues an injunction previously entered. An order continues an injunction within the meaning of this provision only if it actually extends the duration of the time imposed by the original injunction. n26 The denial of a motion to dissolve an injunction is similarly appealable if the effect is to extend an injunction. n27 Furthermore, a postponement of a ruling on a request to dissolve an injunction may be deemed an appealable order extending the injunction if the district court states that the injunction will continue in effect regardless of the outcome of the issue. n28 On the other hand, a postponement is not an appealable order when it is made to allow discovery necessary for the court to rule. n29

3. An order that dissolves an existing injunction. An interlocutory appeal may be taken from an order of dissolution of an injunction. n30 The question of whether an order constitutes the dissolution of an injunction is determined by its substantive effect rather than its form. n31 An order directing that an injunction be dissolved if certain conditions are not satisfied is appealable because it expressly provides for termination of the injunction. n32

[c] Order Denying Injunction

An interlocutory district court order that expressly denies a motion for a preliminary or permanent injunction is an appealable interlocutory order. n33 Furthermore, an interlocutory order that has the practical effect of denying an injunction is also appealable. n33.1 Determining whether the relief denied would be injunctive in nature involves the same criteria as those used to determine whether an order has the effect of granting an injunction. n34 Also, in the same way as for an order granting an injunction, an order having the practical effect of denying an injunction is not appealable unless serious or irreparable consequences may result n34.1 and unless the order could not be reviewed effectively on appeal from the final judgment. n35 On the other hand, the express denial of a motion for an injunction is appealable, even without a showing of irreparable harm to the appellant. n36

[3] Orders Related to Injunctions That are Not Appealable

[a] Temporary Restraining Order Is Not Appealable

An order which grants or denies a temporary restraining order is not appealable. n37 The rationale for this rule is that a motion for a temporary restraining order is often heard ex parte; the order is of short duration; a hearing on a motion for a preliminary injunction usually follows within a brief period of time; and the TRO is likely to become moot before the appeal can be heard. n38 However, because appealability is always a matter of substance rather than form, a temporary restraining order that effectively grants an injunction is appealable under Section 1292(a)(1). n39 If a temporary restraining order remains in effect beyond the time limits set forth in Rule 65(b), n40 the duration is a significant factor in determining whether to treat the order as an appealable injunction. n41 However, it is not the only relevant consideration. A restraining order that has serious or irreparable consequences may be appealable even if relatively short in duration. n42

[b] Orders of Case Management Not Appealable

The court has inherent power to control the progress of a civil action, and may make many types of administrative orders requiring a party or parties to perform certain acts or not take certain acts that are not related to the merits of a claim. Even though some of these "case management orders" are enforceable by contempt, n43 they are generally not appealable: n43.1

1. Orders regarding discovery. Even though a discovery order may compel a party to perform certain actions, and usually is enforceable by contempt, n44 such an order is not appealable because it is not injunctive in nature in that it does not grant or withhold substantive relief. n45 For the same reasons, a protective discovery order is not appealable. n46

2. Order granting or denying a stay. Generally, a stay of proceedings in an action does not involve a determination of a substantive issue and, therefore, is not appealable as an injunction. n47 However, there is a situation in which a stay is appealable. Under the abstention doctrine, the stay of a federal suit (pending resolution of state-court case) is appealable if it effectively acts like a dismissal, because it puts the plaintiff out of federal court by forcing the plaintiff to rely on the state-court judgment. n48 The denial of a stay is generally viewed as an order regarding the internal progress of litigation and, therefore, is not appealable as the denial of an injunction. n49

3. An order determining the sequence in which issues are to be tried is not appealable as an injunction because it does not grant or deny any substantive relief. This is true even if the district court's decision to try an equitable defense in advance of a jury trial of the plaintiff's legal claims has the effect of an injunction barring prosecution of the legal claim pending resolution of the defense. n50

4. Orders regarding transfer. Thus, an order transferring an action to another district is not appealable. n51 The denial of a motion for transfer is also not an appealable injunction. n52

5. Orders regarding removal. Thus, a refusal to remand a removed action is not appealable as an injunction. n53 An order of remand, even if it could be characterized as an injunction because it deprives the plaintiff of a federal forum, is also not appealable, under the provisions of Judicial Code Section 1447(d). n54

6. An injunction enjoining prosecution of a civil action in another court. There is a split of authority whether an injunction precluding a party from prosecuting a co-pending civil action in another court is immediately appealable. Some circuits hold that such an injunction is appealable as any other injunction. Other circuits hold that the injunction is not appealable because it is a case management order, equivalent to a venue determination. n54.1

[4] Interlocutory Orders Involving Receiver

The circuit courts have jurisdiction to hear an appeal from several types of orders related to the use of a receiver. n55 This statutory exception is entirely separate from the exception regarding injunctions, n56 and applies to the appointment of equity receivers or their equivalent, rather than someone appointed to act as a bankruptcy trustee. n57 Under this provision, the circuit court has jurisdiction to hear an appeal from the following types of orders: n57.1

1. Appointing a receiver. An appeal may be taken from an interlocutory order appointing a receiver even if the district court has not yet named a particular individual. The right to appeal is based on the order appointing a receiver, not from the appointment of any one individual. n58 While an order appointing a receiver is appealable, as is an order modifying the powers of a receiver who has already been appointed, n59 an order refusing to appoint a receiver is not appealable. In addition, a motion to vacate the appointment of a receiver is also not appealable, because an order vacating the appointment of a receiver has the same effect as an order refusing to appoint one. n60

2. Refusing to wind up a receivership. n61 As with the provision granting authority to hear an appeal from an order appointing a receiver, the reverse is not true: an order winding up a receivership is not appealable. n62

3. Refusing to take steps to accomplish the purposes of the receivership, such as directing the sale or other disposition of property. As with the provision granting authority to hear an appeal from an order appointing a receiver, the opposite is not true: an order taking steps to accomplish the purposes of a receivership is not appealable. Thus, the many types of administrative orders that a district may make in the course of overseeing a receivership are not appealable. n63

As with other appeals of interlocutory orders, a party is not obligated to seek immediate review of a district court order under Judicial Code Section 1292(a)(2). If no appeal is taken, a challenge to the order is not foreclosed but is subject to review on appeal from the final judgment. n64 If an appeal of an interlocutory order is taken, however, the circuit court will disturb the district court's decision only if the court abused its discretion. n65

[5] Interlocutory Orders Regarding Admiralty

[a] Interlocutory Admiralty Order Appealable

The courts of appeal have jurisdiction to hear appeals from interlocutory decrees which determine the rights and liabilities of the parties to any admiralty cases in which an appeal from a final decree is allowed. n66 The reference to "admiralty cases" in Judicial Code Section 1292(a)(3) means admiralty and maritime claims as defined by Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 9(h). n67 Consequently, interlocutory appeals are allowed in cases that include a claim: n68 (1) which is cognizable in admiralty or maritime jurisdiction; or (2) that has been specifically designated by the pleader as an admiralty or maritime claim, even if the claim is within the court's subject matter jurisdiction on some ground other than admiralty or maritime, such as diversity of citizenship. n68.1

[b] Admiralty Order Must Determine Rights and Liabilities

The common practice in admiralty cases is to try the issue of liability first, and if liability is found, to then determine damages. The statutory provision for interlocutory appeals permits an appeal from a decree fixing liability before a determination of damages is made. n69 Therefore, as a prerequisite for bringing an interlocutory appeal the district court order must determine the rights and liabilities of the parties to the action. n70 Any interlocutory order determining the merits of a claim or defense in the action may be appealed. For example, an interlocutory order approving a settlement is immediately appealable because the settlement agreement imposes liability on a party, n71 and an order directing or confirming the judicial sale of a vessel is immediately appealable because it terminates the defendant's rights of title and possession. n72 Furthermore, while an appealable order must conclusively determine the merits of a claim or defense, the order need not dispose of all of the claims involved in the action or proceeding. A determination on the merits of a separate claim is appealable even if the order leaves other claims between the same parties pending. n73

[c] Order of Admiralty Case Management Not Appealable

An order that merely disposes of theories of liability without determining the issue of liability is not appealable under Judicial Code Section 1292(a)(3). n74 Therefore, any procedural order that does not finally determine the substantive rights and liabilities of the parties to an action is not appealable under Section 1292(a)(3) even though it may have important dispositive consequences in the proceedings. n75 Thus, for example, no immediate appeal under Section 1292(a)(3) lies from:

1. An order refusing to dismiss an insurance carrier from a suit arising out of a collision, when the order does not determine the carrier's liability. n76

2. An order regarding the amount of security that must be filed in the case. n77

3. An order transferring an action to another district. n78

4. A pretrial order construing the Carriage of Goods by Sea Act as limiting damages. n79

As is the case with interlocutory appeals generally, Section 1292(a)(3) does not require that a party appeal from an interlocutory district-court order. A party may decline to seek an interlocutory appeal under Section 1292(a)(3) and later challenge the district court's order on appeal from the final judgment. n80

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionInterlocutory Orders

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 19 Moore's Federal Practice, § 203.10 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 1292(a)(1).

(n3)Footnote 2. See Ch. 29, Appeal to Supreme Court.

(n4)Footnote 3. 28 U.S.C. § 1292(a)(1).

(n5)Footnote 4. 28 U.S.C. § 1292(a)(2).

(n6)Footnote 5. 28 U.S.C. § 1292(a)(3).

(n7)Footnote 6. 28 U.S.C. § 1292(c). In addition, the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit has exclusive jurisdiction of an appeal from an interlocutory order of a district court of the United States, the District Court of Guam, the District Court of the Virgin Islands, or the District Court for the Northern Mariana Islands, granting or denying, in whole or in part, a motion to transfer an action to the United States Claims Court. 28 U.S.C. § 1292(d)(4)(A).

(n8)Footnote 7. 28 U.S.C. § 1292(a).

(n9)Footnote 8. McLaughlin v. Miss. Power Co., 376 F.3d 344, 352 (5th Cir. 2004).

(n10)Footnote 9. HBE Leasing Co. v. Frank, 48 F.3d 623, 632 (2d Cir. 1995) .

(n11)Footnote 10. Carson v. American Brands, Inc., 450 U.S. 79, 83-84, 101 S. Ct. 993, 67 L. Ed. 2d 59 (1981) (order has injunctive effect only if threat of serious harm is shown); Korea Shipping Corp. v. New York Shipping Ass'n, 811 F.2d 124, 126 (2d Cir. 1987) (even if order had injunctive effect, it was not appealable because no threat of irreparable consequences was shown to exist).

(n12)Footnote 11. MAI Basic Four, Inc. v. Basis, Inc., 962 F.2d 978, 981 (10th Cir. 1992) .

(n13)Footnote 12. HBE Leasing Co. v. Frank, 48 F.3d 623, 632 (2d Cir. 1995) .

(n14)Footnote 13. Santana Prods., Inc. v. Compression Polymers, Inc., 8 F.3d 152, 154 (3d Cir. 1993) , cert. denied, 510 U.S. 1196 (1994) .

(n15)Footnote 14. Etuk v. Slattery, 936 F.2d 1433, 1440 (2d Cir. 1991) .

(n16)Footnote 15. United States v. Pan American Management Co., 789 F.2d 632, 636 (8th Cir. 1986) .

(n17)Footnote 16. Dunn v. New York State Dep't of Labor, 47 F.3d 485, 488 (2d Cir. 1995) (order requiring defendant to submit more extensive reports concerning its compliance with previous injunction was itself appealable as injunction because it imposed significant additional burden).

(n18)Footnote 17. Zucker v. Maxicare Health Plans Inc., 14 F.3d 477, 483 (9th Cir. 1994) .

(n19)Footnote 18. Allendale Mut. Ins. Co. v. Bull Data Sys., Inc., 32 F.3d 1175, 1178 (7th Cir. 1994) .

(n20)Footnote 18.1. See McLaughlin v. Miss. Power Co., 376 F.3d 344, 352-353 (5th Cir. 2004).

(n21)Footnote 19. See 28 U.S.C. § 1292(a)(1).

(n22)Footnote 20. Lorain NAACP v. Lorain Board of Educ., 979 F.2d 1141, 1147-1148 (6th Cir.) , cert. denied, 509 U.S. 905 (1993) (modification of desegregation consent decree to increase financial obligation of state education department for magnet schools program was injunctive).

(n23)Footnote 21. Favia v. Indiana Univ. of Pa., 7 F.3d 332, 338-339 (3d Cir. 1993) .

(n24)Footnote 22. In re Ingram Towing Co., 59 F.3d 513, 516 (5th Cir. 1995) .

(n25)Footnote 23. Thompson v. Enomoto, 815 F.2d 1323, 1327 (9th Cir. 1987) .

(n26)Footnote 24. Wilder v. Bernstein, 49 F.3d 69, 72 (2d Cir. 1995) .

(n27)Footnote 25. Sierra Club v. Marsh, 907 F.2d 210, 213 (1st Cir. 1990) (original order enjoined construction until defendants had complied with several environmental statutes; subsequent order narrowed injunction to require only compliance with environmental impact statement, if statement required).

(n28)Footnote 26. Sierra Club v. Marsh, 907 F.2d 210, 213 (1st Cir. 1990) .

(n29)Footnote 27. Hudson v. Barr, 3 F.3d 970, 973 (6th Cir. 1993) (denial of motion to dissolve temporary restraining order that in effect was injunction).

(n30)Footnote 28. United States v. Board of Sch. Comm'rs, 128 F.3d 507, 509-510 (7th Cir. 1997) .

(n31)Footnote 29. United States v. Michigan, 134 F.3d 745, 748-749 (6th Cir. 1998) .

(n32)Footnote 30. Brandon, Jones, Sandall, Zeide, Kohn, Chalal & Musso, P.A. v. Medpartners, Inc., 312 F.3d 1349, 1358 (11th Cir. 2004) (even if there has been no "final judgment" in district court case, order that dissolved injunction order is immediately appealable under Section 1292(a)(1)); Self-Realization Fellowship Church v. Ananda Church of Self-Realization, 59 F.3d 902, 905 (9th Cir. 1995) .

(n33)Footnote 31. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Sahlen, 999 F.2d 1532, 1535 (11th Cir. 1993) .

(n34)Footnote 32. Continuum Co. v. Incepts, Inc., 883 F.2d 333, 334-335 (5th Cir. 1989) (order that injunction would be dissolved if plaintiff did not increase amount of injunction bond).

(n35)Footnote 33. Shee Atika v. Sealaska Corp., 39 F.3d 247, 248-249 (9th Cir. 1994) .

(n36)Footnote 33.1. McLaughlin v. Miss. Power Co., 376 F.3d 344, 352 (5th Cir. 2004) .

(n37)Footnote 34. Sherri A.D. v. Kirby, 975 F.2d 193, 203-204 (5th Cir. 1992) ; see [a], above.

(n38)Footnote 34.1. McLaughlin v. Miss. Power Co., 376 F.3d 344, 352 (5th Cir. 2004) (order that explicitly denies injunctive relief is immediately appealable as of right, even without a finding of a threat of immediate or irreparable injury; however, order that has practical effect of denying injunction is immediately appealable only if it also threatens serious or irreparable consequences).

(n39)Footnote 35. United States v. City of Hialeah, 140 F.3d 968, 973-974 (11th Cir. 1998) ; see [a], above.

(n40)Footnote 36. Cable Holdings, Inc. v. Cooke, 764 F.2d 1466, 1471-1472 (11th Cir. 1985) .

(n41)Footnote 37. In re Lorillard Tobacco Co., 370 F.3d 982, 985-986 (9th Cir. 2004) ; Geneva Assurance Syndicate, Inc. v. Medical Emergency Servs. Assocs., 964 F.2d 599, 600 (7th Cir. 1992) .

(n42)Footnote 38. Board of Governors v. DLG Financial Corp., 29 F.3d 993, 1000 (5th Cir 1994) , cert. denied, 513 U.S. 1140 (1995) .

(n43)Footnote 39. Nordin v. Nutri/System, Inc., 897 F.2d 339, 342 (8th Cir. 1990) (TRO of indefinite duration was in effect injunction).

(n44)Footnote 40. Fed. R. Civ. P. 65(b)(2) (providing for duration of 14 days, plus discretionary 14 day extension for good cause).

(n45)Footnote 41. See, e.g., United States v. Crawford (In re Crim. Contempt Proceedings Against Crawford), 329 F.3d 131, 136-138 (2d Cir. 2003) (if district court extends temporary restraining order beyond period specified by Fed. R. Civ. P. 65(b)(2), temporary restraining order becomes preliminary injunction, including for purposes of appealability).

(n46)Footnote 42. Romer v. Green Point Savings Bank, 27 F.3d 12, 15 (2d Cir. 1994) .

(n47)Footnote 43. Nixon v. Coeur D'Alene Tribe, 164 F.3d 1102, 1107 (8th Cir. 1999) .

(n48)Footnote 43.1. Torres v. Puerto Rico, 485 F.3d 5, 9 (1st Cir. 2007) .

(n49)Footnote 44. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(b)(2)(D).

(n50)Footnote 45. Allendale Mut. Ins. Co. v. Bull Data Sys., Inc., 32 F.3d 1175, 1177 (7th Cir. 1994) .

(n51)Footnote 46. Nosik v. Singe, 40 F.3d 592, 596 (2d Cir. 1994) .

(n52)Footnote 47. In re TWA, 18 F.3d 208, 213-214 (3d Cir. 1994) .

(n53)Footnote 48. Michelson v. Citicorp Nat'l Servs., Inc., 138 F.3d 508, 512-517 (3d Cir. 1998) ; see Moses H. Cone Memorial Hosp. v. Mercury Constr. Co., 460 U.S. 1, 11-13, 103 S. Ct. 927, 74 L. Ed. 2d 765 (1982) .

(n54)Footnote 49. Gulfstream Aerospace Corp. v. Mayacamas Corp., 485 U.S. 271, 277-278, 108 S. Ct. 1133, 99 L. Ed. 2d 296 (1988) .

(n55)Footnote 50. Gulfstream Aerospace Corp. v. Mayacamas Corp., 485 U.S. 271, 287, 108 S. Ct. 1133, 99 L. Ed. 2d 296 (1988) .

(n56)Footnote 51. Nixon v. Coeur D'Alene Tribe, 164 F.3d 1102, 1107 (8th Cir. 1999) .

(n57)Footnote 52. Hershey Foods Corp. v. Hershey Creamery Co., 945 F.2d 1272, 1278 (3d Cir. 1991) .

(n58)Footnote 53. Polyplastics, Inc. v. Transconex, Inc., 713 F.2d 875, 880 (1st Cir. 1983) .

(n59)Footnote 54. 28 U.S.C. § 1447(d).

(n60)Footnote 54.1. Lab. Corp. of Am. Holdings v. Chiron Corp., 384 F.3d 1326, 1329 (Fed. Cir. 2004) (citing Moore's Federal Practice); see [2][a], above.

(n61)Footnote 55. 28 U.S.C. § 1292(a)(2).

(n62)Footnote 56. Dunn v. Savage (In re Saffady), 524 F.3d 799, 804 (6th Cir. 2008) (citing Moore's Federal Practice; even though order regarding receiver may implement stay affecting receivership assets, that order is not appealable injunction under 1292(a)(1); rather, provisions of 1292(a)(2) apply).

(n63)Footnote 57. See In re Klein, 940 F.2d 1075, 1077 n.2 (7th Cir. 1991) .

(n64)Footnote 57.1. 28 U.S.C. § 1292(a)(2); Ibeto Petrochemical Indus. v. M/T Beffen, 475 F.3d 56, 61-62 (2d Cir. 2007) (one of narrowly-drawn exceptions to finality requirement that allows appeal to be taken from interlocutory order).

(n65)Footnote 58. Sriram v. Preferred Income Fund III, L.P., 22 F.3d 498, 501 (2d Cir. 1994) .

(n66)Footnote 59. IIT v. Vencap, Ltd., 519 F.2d 1001, 1020 (2d Cir. 1975) .

(n67)Footnote 60. Hartigan v. Peters, 861 F.2d 164, 165-166 (7th Cir. 1988) .

(n68)Footnote 61. SEC v. Lincoln Thrift Ass'n., 577 F.2d 600, 602 (9th Cir. 1978) (order refusing to wind up receivership appealed).

(n69)Footnote 62. Dunn v. Savage (In re Saffady), 524 F.3d 799, 804 (6th Cir. 2008) (citing Moore's Federal Practice; order vacating receivership not immediately appealable); SEC v. American Principals Holdings, Inc., 817 F.2d 1349, 1351 (9th Cir. 1987) (order dissolving receivership not immediately appealable).

(n70)Footnote 63. IIT v. Vencap, Ltd., 519 F.2d 1001, 1020 (2d Cir. 1975) .

(n71)Footnote 64. Retired Chicago Police Ass'n, 7 F.3d 584, 608 & n.29 (7th Cir. 1993) .

(n72)Footnote 65. SEC v. American Bd. of Trade, 830 F.2d 431, 436 (2d Cir. 1987) , cert. denied sub nom. Economou v. SEC, 485 U.S. 938 (1988) .

(n73)Footnote 66. 28 U.S.C. § 1292(a)(3).

(n74)Footnote 67. Doyle v. Huntress, Inc., 419 F.3d 3, 7 (1st Cir. 2005) .

(n75)Footnote 68. Fed. R. Civ. P. 9(h)(3).

(n76)Footnote 68.1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 9(h)(1); see Marmac, LLC v. Reed (In re Marmac, LLC), 232 F.R.D. 409, 413 (M.D. Fla. 2005) (election by pleader to designate claim as admiralty).

(n77)Footnote 69. Noble Drilling, Inc. v. Davis, 64 F.3d 191, 194 (5th Cir. 1995) .

(n78)Footnote 70. Kingstate Oil v. M/V Green Star, 815 F.2d 918, 921 (3d Cir. 1987) .

(n79)Footnote 71. Noble Drilling, Inc. v. Davis, 64 F.3d 191, 195 (5th Cir. 1995) .

(n80)Footnote 72. Isbrandtsen Marine Servs. v. M/V Inagua Tania, 68 F.3d 1315, 1316 (11th Cir. 1993) .

(n81)Footnote 73. Martha's Vineyard Scuba Club Headquarters, Inc. v. Unidentified Wrecked and Abandoned Steam Vessel, 833 F.2d 1059, 1063-1064 (1st Cir. 1987) .

(n82)Footnote 74. Bergeron v. Koninklijke Luchtvaart Maatschappij, N. V., 299 F.2d 78, 79 (2d Cir. 1962) .

(n83)Footnote 75. Francis v. Forest Oil Corp., 798 F.2d 147, 150 (5th Cir. 1986) .

(n84)Footnote 76. Hollywood Marine v. M/V Artie Jones, 755 F.2d 414, 415-416 (5th Cir. 1985) .

(n85)Footnote 77. Bancroft Navigation Co. v. Chadade S.S. Co., 349 F.2d 527, 529-530 (2d Cir. 1965) .

(n86)Footnote 78. Arrowhead Co. v. The Aimee Lykes, 193 F.2d 83, 84 (2d Cir. 1951) .

(n87)Footnote 79. Bucher-Guyer Ag v. The M/V Incotrans Spirit, 868 F.2d 734, 735 (5th Cir. 1989) .

(n88)Footnote 80. Farbwerke Hoeschst A. G. v. M/V "Don Nicky", 589 F.2d 795, 797 (5th Cir. 1979) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VII Appeal
CHAPTER 27 GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF APPEAL

3-27 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 27.04

§ 27.04 Interlocutory Orders Appealable by Permissionn*

[1] Availability of Discretionary Interlocutory Appeal

If an interlocutory order is not otherwise appealable as of right under Judicial Code Section 1292(a), n1 a party may nevertheless immediately appeal the order provided that n2 (1) the district judge who entered the order issues a written statement n3 that the order involves a controlling question of law n4 as to which there is substantial ground for a difference of opinion, n5 and that an immediate appeal from the order may materially advance the ultimate termination of the litigation n6 and (2) the circuit court permits the appeal to be taken. n7

The statutory provision for discretionary appeal of an interlocutory order applies only to a civil case in which the order is not otherwise appealable as of right under Section 1292(a). This would include, for example, an interlocutory order in an admiralty case that is not appealable under Section 1292(a)(3). n8

[2] Statutory Criteria for Discretionary Appeal

[a] Certification by District Court

A litigant must obtain a certification from the district court before the litigant may file a petition in the appellate court for permission to appeal an interlocutory order. The district judge must certify: n9 (1) that the order involves a controlling question of law, (2) that there is substantial ground for a difference of opinion regarding the question of law, and (3) that an immediate appeal from the order may materially advance the ultimate termination of the litigation. All three of the requirements must be fulfilled for permissive interlocutory appeal to be granted. n10

[b] Controlling Question of Law

A discretionary interlocutory appeal must pertain to a "controlling question of law." If resolution of the question being challenged on appeal will terminate the action in the district court, it is clearly controlling. However, the phrase does not mean that resolution of the question has to resolve the action entirely. Controlling questions of law include the question of whether a claim exists as a matter of law, n11 the question of whether a particular defense is available to defeat the claim, n12 and a question concerning subject matter jurisdiction n13 proper venue, n14 or standing to maintain the action n15 and whether an action should be certified as a class action. n16

[c] Appeal Involves Substantial Difference of Opinion

Even if an action presents a controlling question of law whose resolution will dispose of the litigation in the district court or materially advance its termination, the question must be one "as to which there is substantial ground for difference of opinion." n17 If the law is clear and there is no question that the district court's order is correct as a matter of law, there is no purpose in appealing the ruling. n18 For example, if there can be no plausible difference of opinion about whether a party is entitled to a jury trial, no discretionary appeal may be taken on the grounds that a party was denied the right to a jury trial. n19

[d] Appeal Required to Advance Disposition of Litigation

A question of law need not completely dispose of litigation in order to be "controlling." However, because all three elements must be present for a discretionary interlocutory appeal, courts require a "controlling" question that has the potential to substantially advance the disposition of the litigation. In other words, a court will require that the appeal present a controlling question of law on an issue whose determination may materially advance the ultimate termination of the case. n20 However, the appeal must present a clear-cut question of law against a background of established facts. An interlocutory review is not appropriate when the facts must be more fully developed so that the appellate court can make a precise decision on a precise record, and not an abstract answer to an abstract question. n21 Thus, whether an order would materially advance the disposition of the litigation depends on whether it would resolve an issue that is necessary to reach an ultimate result on the elements of a claim. n22 Based on all of the requirments of 1292(b), an interlocutory appeal is not authorized merely because an appeal might or possibly could advance the proceedings in the district court. n22.1 Therefore, matters such as pretrial rulings on the admissibility of evidence and matters entrusted to the district court's discretion are not ordinarily certifiable, even though they technically advance the proceedings. n23

[3] Request for Certification to District Court

A party may file a discretionary interlocutory appeal of a district court order only if the district judge provides a written opinion that the order involves a controlling question of law as to which there is substantial ground for difference of opinion and that an immediate appeal from the order may materially advance the ultimate termination of the litigation. n24 The district court has discretion whether to grant or deny the certification for appeal n25 and may certify on its own initiative. n26 However, the court is not required on its own to take action when an appeal is certifiable, so an adversely affected party should make the request for certification when necessary. n27

The required certification for a discretionary interlocutory appeal should be in writing and it should be included in the order. n28 Although there is no required form of certification, the district court should state the grounds for certification. n29

[4] Petition to Circuit Court for Permission to Appeal

[a] Time Limit for Filing Petition

Provided that the district court has certified its order as appropriate for an immediate discretionary interlocutory appeal, n30 the petitioner must then file a petition in the circuit court for permission to appeal. n31 The district court's certification does not itself make the order appealable; the certification only permits a party to request permission from the circuit court to appeal the district court's order. n31.1 The circuit court has discretion to grant or deny permission to appeal. n32 A petition to the circuit court for permission to appeal must be filed with the circuit clerk within 10 days after entry of the challenged order that contains the district court's certification. n33 This 10-day time limit is jurisdictional, and the circuit court may not waive a party's failure to comply. A notice of appeal does not qualify as a petition for permission to appeal which must be filed within the 10-day period. n33.1 The petitioner must also file proof of service on all other parties to the action. n34 Merely filing a notice of appeal in the district court is not sufficient. n35

[b] Contents of Petition

Even after obtaining certification, the petitioner has the burden of persuading the appellate court that exceptional circumstances justified departure from the basic policy of postponing appellate review until after entry of the final judgment n36 and must present the circuit court with a statement of the facts necessary to understand the controlling question of law, a statement of the question itself, a statement showing why a substantial basis exists for a difference of opinion on the question, and why an immediate appeal will materially advance the termination of the litigation. n37 The petition must also include, or attach as an exhibit, a copy of the order from which the appeal is sought and of any findings of fact, conclusions of law, and opinions relating to the order. n37.1 An adverse party may file an answer in opposition to the petition within seven days of its service. The entire proceeding in the circuit court is submitted on the papers without oral argument unless otherwise ordered. n38 For a complete discussion of the requirements of the petition, see Ch. 28, Appeal to Court of Appeals.

[5] Review by Circuit Court

When a party takes an interlocutory appeal, the circuit court must review the order specified in the appeal certification. However, the scope of review by the circuit court is broader than the specific issues the district court has designated for appellate review. The appellate court may address any issue fairly included within the certified order because it is the order that is appealable and not the controlling question identified by the district court. n39 In other words, the circuit court must consider all the legal issues necessary to dispose of the certified order, including other orders and questions that underlie and that are inextricably involved with the certified order. n40 Thus, the circuit court may even review a matter that the district court expressly declined to certify for appeal, if it is material to the order that has been certified by the district court. n41 However, the circuit court may not reach beyond the certified order to address other orders made in the case. n42 If the party opposing the appeal wants to assert issues that increase the opposition's own rights or lessen the rights of the appealing party as stated in the order appealed from, the opposing party must cross appeal or the assertions are not preserved for appeal. n43

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionCertified QuestionsCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionInterlocutory Orders

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 19 Moore's Federal Practice, § 203.30 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See § 27.03; 28 U.S.C. § 1292(a).

(n3)Footnote 2. 28 U.S.C. § 1292(b); see Belt v. Emcare, Inc., 444 F.3d 403, 406-407 (5th Cir. 2006) .

(n4)Footnote 3. See [2][a], below.

(n5)Footnote 4. See [2][b], below.

(n6)Footnote 5. See [2][c], below.

(n7)Footnote 6. See [2][d], below.

(n8)Footnote 7. See [4], below.

(n9)Footnote 8. Linton v. Great Lakes Dredge & Dock Co., 964 F.2d 1480, 1483 (5th Cir. 1992) (appeal pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1292(b) will lie for question of whether cause of action is one in admiralty under exclusive federal jurisdiction).

(n10)Footnote 9. 28 U.S.C. § 1292(b).

(n11)Footnote 10. Krangel v. General Dynamics Corp., 968 F.2d 914, 915-916 (9th Cir. 1992) ; see Caterpillar, Inc. v. Lewis, 519 U.S. 61, 74 n. 10, 117 S. Ct. 467, 136 L. Ed. 2d 437 (1996) .

(n12)Footnote 11. Caterpillar, Inc. v. Great American Ins. Co., 62 F.3d 955, 959 (7th Cir. 1995) (denial of summary judgment reviewed); Chan v. City of New York, 1 F.3d 96, 101 (2d Cir. 1993) (motion to dismiss reviewed in civil rights case).

(n13)Footnote 12. South v. Saab Cars U.S.A., Inc., 28 F.3d 9, 11 (2d Cir. 1994) (statute of limitation defense reviewed).

(n14)Footnote 13. Ministry of Defense of Islamic Republic of Iran v. Gould, Inc., 969 F.2d 764, 768 (9th Cir. 1992) .

(n15)Footnote 14. Effron v. Sun Line Cruises, Inc., 67 F.3d 7, 9 (2d Cir. 1995) .

(n16)Footnote 15. Harris v. Evans, 20 F.3d 1118, 1120 (11th Cir. 1994) .

(n17)Footnote 16. Kirkpatrick v. J.C. Bradford & Co., 827 F.2d 718, 721 (11th Cir. 1987) , cert. denied sub nom. Robinson Humphrey/American Express, Inc. v. Sanders, 485 U.S. 959 (1988) (denial of class certification reviewed).

(n18)Footnote 17. 28 U.S.C. § 1292(b).

(n19)Footnote 18. Burrell v. Board of Trustees of Georgia Military College, 970 F.2d 785, 789 (11th Cir. 1992) , cert. denied, 507 U.S. 1018 (1993) .

(n20)Footnote 19. Howard v. Parisian, Inc., 807 F.2d 1560, 1567 (11th Cir. 1987) .

(n21)Footnote 20. In re Cement Antitrust Litig., 673 F.2d 1020, 1026 (9th Cir. 1982) , aff'd without opinion, 459 U.S.1190 (1983) .

(n22)Footnote 21. Paschall v. Kansas City Star Co., 605 F.2d 403, 407 (8th Cir. 1979) .

(n23)Footnote 22. In re Prempro Prods. Liab. Litig., 230 F.R.D. 555, 570-571 (E.D. Ark. 2005) .

(n24)Footnote 22.1. Chappell & Co. v. Frankel, 367 F.2d 197, 200 & n.4 (2d Cir. 1966) .

(n25)Footnote 23. Coursen v. A.H. Robins Co., 764 F.2d 1329, 1342 (9th Cir. 1985) .

(n26)Footnote 24. 28 U.S.C. § 1292(b).

(n27)Footnote 25. United States v. Moats, 961 F.2d 1198, 1201 (5th Cir. 1992)

(n28)Footnote 26. Sissoko v. Rocha, 440 F.3d 1145, 1153 (9th Cir. 2006) .

(n29)Footnote 27. Executive Software N. Am., Inc. v. United States, 24 F.3d 1545, 1550 (9th Cir. 1994) .

(n30)Footnote 28. 28 U.S.C. § 1292(b); Fed. R. App. P. 5; In re Hamilton, 122 F.3d 13, 14 (7th Cir. 1997) .

(n31)Footnote 29. In re Hamilton, 122 F.3d 13, 14 (7th Cir. 1997) (helpful to appellate court if district court explains why it believes case satisfies statutory criteria).

(n32)Footnote 30. See [3], above.

(n33)Footnote 31. 28 U.S.C. § 1292(b); Fed. R. App. P. 5(a).

(n34)Footnote 31.1. Rodriguez v. P.R. Fed. Affairs Admin., 435 F.3d 378, 381 (D.C. Cir. 2005) .

(n35)Footnote 32. Fed. R. App. P. 5(b); see Plata v. Davis, 329 F.3d 1101, 1107 (9th Cir. 2003) ; Manshack v. Southwestern Elec. Power Co., 915 F.2d 172, 173 (5th Cir. 1990) .

(n36)Footnote 33. 28 U.S.C. § 1292(b); Fed. R. App. P. 5(a).

(n37)Footnote 33.1. Fed. R. App. P. 5(b); see Plata v. Davis, 329 F.3d 1101, 1107 (9th Cir. 2003) .

(n38)Footnote 34. Fed. R. App. P. 5(a).

(n39)Footnote 35. Inmates of the Allegheny County Jail v. Wecht, 873 F.2d 55, 57 (3d Cir. 1989) .

(n40)Footnote 36. In re Prudential Lines, Inc., 59 F.3d 327, 332 (2d Cir. 1995) .

(n41)Footnote 37. Fed. R. App. P. 5(b); see In re Hamilton, 122 F.3d 13, 14 (7th Cir. 1997) .

(n42)Footnote 37.1. Fed. R. App. P. 5(b); see Plata v. Davis, 329 F.3d 1101, 1107 (9th Cir. 2003) .

(n43)Footnote 38. Fed. R. App. P. 5(b).

(n44)Footnote 39. Rivera v. NIBCO, Inc., 364 F.3d 1057, 1063 (9th Cir. 2004) (citing Moore's Federal Practice).

(n45)Footnote 40. Kroger Co. v. Malease Foods Corp., 437 F.3d 506, 510 (6th Cir. 2006) (citing Moore's Federal Practice); Steering Comm. v. United States, 6 F.3d 572, 575-576 (9th Cir. 1993) .

(n46)Footnote 41. Schlumberger Techs., Inc. v. Wiley, 113 F.3d 1553, 1557 n.6 (11th Cir. 1997) .

(n47)Footnote 42. Steering Comm. v. United States, 6 F.3d 572, 576 (9th Cir. 1993) .

(n48)Footnote 43. Sikes v. Teleline, Inc., 281 F.3d 1350, 1367 (11th Cir. 2002) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VII Appeal
CHAPTER 27 GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF APPEAL

3-27 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 27.05

§ 27.05 General Considerations When Taking Interlocutory Appeals

[1] Appellate and Trial Court Jurisdiction Related to Interlocutory Appeals

The filing of a timely and sufficient notice of appeal transfers jurisdiction over matters involved in the appeal from the district court to the court of appeals, and the district court may not take any action with regard to the matter properly appealed except to aid the appeal. n1 However, while an interlocutory appeal is in process, the district court retains its jurisdiction to proceed with the case on matters not involved in the appeal. n2

[2] No Obligation to Take Interlocutory Appeal

Section 1292 gives a litigant either the right or the option to request an immediate appeal from the orders described in the statute. n3 The litigant need not exercise the right to an interlocutory appeal, however, and in general the party is under no obligation to take an interlocutory appeal. n4 If no interlocutory appeal is taken from the district court's order on an injunction, for example, the decision may be reviewed on appeal from the final judgment, n5 or on appeal from a later order regarding the injunction. n6

[3] No Supplemental Appellate Jurisdiction

The United States Supreme Court has rejected a proposed principle referred to as "pendant appellate jurisdiction," by confirming the traditional rule that courts of appeals generally may not exercise jurisdiction over nonappealable interlocutory orders merely because they already have jurisdiction over other, appealable interlocutory orders in the case. The Court emphasized that there might be rare situations in which an appellate court with jurisdiction over one order might also validly consider the propriety of other, related orders, at least when the orders are inextricably intertwined with each other. However, the Court made it clear that courts of appeals should not consider other interlocutory orders that are not independently appealable as a matter of course or when such orders are unrelated. n7 In Swint, the Court noted that allowing pendent appellate jurisdiction over otherwise unappealable interlocutory orders largely undermines Section 1292(b). n8 The Court also noted that although Congress had amended the Rules Enabling Act to permit the Supreme Court to promulgate rules defining interlocutory appealability under Sections 1291 and 1292, that power could be employed only through the rule-making process, not by judicial decision. n9

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionCertified QuestionsCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionInterlocutory Orders

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. Henry v. Farmer City State Bank, 808 F.2d 1228, 1240-1241 (7th Cir. 1986) (citing Moore's, while appeal was pending, district court lacked jurisdiction to enjoin state action based on same facts as dismissed action).

(n2)Footnote 2. Shevlin v. Schewe, 809 F.2d 447, 450-451 (7th Cir. 1987) (citing Moore's, district court properly dismissed action because district court retained jurisdiction to proceed with merits of action without interfering with interlocutory appeal, even though intervenor had filed interlocutory appeal from grant of preliminary injunction).

(n3)Footnote 3. 28 U.S.C. § 1292.

(n4)Footnote 4. Sierra Club v. Robertson, 28 F.3d 753, 756 n.3 (8th Cir. 1994) .

(n5)Footnote 5. Balla v. Idaho St. Bd. of Corrections, 869 F.2d 461, 468 (9th Cir. 1989) (appealable interlocutory order that is not appealed merges with final judgment).

(n6)Footnote 6. Favia v. Indiana Univ. of Pa., 7 F.3d 332, 337 (3d Cir. 1993) .

(n7)Footnote 7. Swint v. Chambers County Commission, 514 U.S. 35, 50-51, 115 S. Ct. 1203, 131 L. Ed. 2d 60 (1995) .

(n8)Footnote 8. 28 U.S.C. § 1292(b).

(n9)Footnote 9. Swint v. Chambers County Commission, 514 U.S. 35, 45-50, 115 S. Ct. 1203, 131 L. Ed. 2d 60 (1995) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VII Appeal
CHAPTER 27 GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF APPEAL

3-27 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 27.06

§ 27.06 Stay of Proceedings to Enforce Judgment Pending Appeal

[1] Automatic Period of Stay

The federal rules generally impose an automatic 14-day stay of execution or enforcement of a judgment. n1 The purpose of this stay is to give the losing party time to prepare for appeal or other method of review of the judgment. n2 However, there are two exceptions to the automatic stay. Unless the court orders otherwise, an interlocutory or final judgment is not stayed during the period after its entry and until an appeal is taken or during the pendency of an appeal for the following: (1) an interlocutory or final judgment in an action for an injunction or a receivership; n3 or (2) a judgment or order that directs an accounting in an action for patent infringement. n3.1 The automatic stay applies only to orders of the district court in ordinary proceedings and not to special orders. For example, Rule 62 does not apply to an order of the district court upholding an order of a state regulatory commission. n4 The filing of an appeal alone, without a request for a stay, will not protect the appealing party from execution or enforcement during the pendency of the appeal. n5

A 14-day automatic stay begins to run from the date of entry of the judgment. n6 After 14 days has elapsed from the date of entry, the prevailing party may proceed to enforce or execute the judgment, unless the losing party takes some form of additional action to stay enforcement or execution, n7 such as by making one or more post judgment motions, n8 or by taking an appeal from the judgment. n8.1

[2] Right to Stay of Injunction

An interlocutory or final judgment in an action for an injunction or a receivership is not subject to the automatic 14-day stay provision, n9 and there is no stay in the event of an appeal. n10 Therefore, a district court judgment involving an injunction is generally immediately enforceable by the winning party against the losing party. n10.1 However, the court may in its discretion suspend, modify, restore, or grant an injunction during the pendency of an appeal from an interlocutory or final judgment granting or denying an injunction, and also has the discretion to require the posting of a bond or some other form of security to protect the rights of the adverse party. n11 This provision codifies the court's inherent power to preserve the status quo when the circumstances warrant the preservation. Maintaining the status quo means that a controversy will still exist once the appeal is heard. The district court may not divest the court of appeals of its jurisdiction over the matter by eliminating the controversy prior to the hearing of the appeal. n12 Furthermore, the district court may not adjudicate any of the parties' substantive rights, unless absolutely necessary to preserve the integrity of the appeal. n13 Furthermore, while the district court may suspend, modify, restore, or grant an injunction pending appeal, it does not have the power to dissolve an injunction. n14

In exercising its discretion to stay an injunction, the district court considers essentially the same criteria used in assessing the propriety of a preliminary injunction: the likelihood of success on the merits, the irreparable harm that will be suffered by the applicant if the injunction is not granted, the harm that will be suffered by other interested parties if the injunction is granted, and whether the public interest will be served by the injunction. n15 An appellate court should not overturn the decision of the district court pursuant to Civil Rule 62(c) unless there has been an abuse of discretion. n16

[3] Stay Pending Appeal

[a] Right to Stay

If a party takes an appeal of a judgment for claims other than an injunction or an accounting in a patent infringement case, and files a supersedeas bond with the court, the party is entitled to a stay of enforcement as a matter of right. n17 However, if there is no right to appeal, the district court has no duty to grant a stay on the filing of a supersedeas bond. For example, an interlocutory order may be appealable not of right but at the discretion of the court. n18 In such a case, the filing of a supersedeas bond will not automatically entitle the appellant to a stay. When the right to appeal is at the discretion of the court, the appellant's proper course of action is to request a stay in the district court, and then in the circuit court if the district court refuses the stay. n19

[b] Relaxation of Bond Requirement

Although the posting of a bond provides the litigant with a stay as of right, n20 it is not required in every case. The party seeking the stay may request that the court (1) waive the bond requirement, n21 (2) set the bond for less than the amount of judgment, n22 or (3) permit an alternate form of security. n23 When the United States, or one of its agencies, is the appellant, no security is required. n24

[c] Motion for Stay

A stay pending appeal must first be sought from the district court. However, a motion for stay may be made in the court of appeals on a showing that an application to the district court for the relief sought is not practicable or that the district court has denied an application or has failed to afford the relief the applicant requested. n25 Furthermore, until the court of appeals issues its mandate, the district court retains the power to grant a stay under Civil Rule 62(d) or to otherwise enforce its judgment. n26 On the other hand, even though the district court retains jurisdiction for stay purposes, Rule 62 does not in any way limit the power of the court of appeals. Thus, the appellate court has the power: n27 (1) to stay proceedings, or to suspend, modify, restore, or grant an injunction while an appeal is pending; n27.1 or (2) to issue an order to preserve the status quo or the effectiveness of a judgment the court of appeals will enter. n27.2

[4] Stay Involving Multiple Claims or Multiple Parties

If a district court has a case involving multiple parties or claims, the court may enter a judgment against fewer than all of the parties or on fewer than all the claims. n28 Furthermore, in such a cases the court may stay enforcement of any judgment and may prescribe any conditions necessary to secure the benefit of the judgment to the party in whose favor it was entered, until the entering of a subsequent judgment or judgments. n29

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsStays Pending AppealsMoney JudgmentsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsStays Pending AppealsNonmoney JudgmentsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsStays Pending AppealsSupersedeas BondsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsStays of ProceedingsAutomatic StaysCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsStays of ProceedingsMultiple Claims & Parties

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote 1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62(a).

(n2)Footnote 2. Jazz Photo Corp. v. United States, 353 F. Supp. 2d 1327, 1357 (Ct. Int'l Trade 2004) (construing former time periods); see United States v. One 1962 Ford Galaxie Sedan, 41 F.R.D. 156, 157 (S.D.N.Y. 1966) (citing Moore's Federal Practice; automatic stay period affords litigant opportunity to invoke stay protection of Rule 62; construing former time periods).

(n3)Footnote 3. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62(a)(1); see [2], below.

(n4)Footnote 3.1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62(a)(2).

(n5)Footnote 4. Illinois Bell Telephone Co. v. Worldcom Technologies, Inc., 157 F.3d 500, 502 (7th Cir. 1998) (Rule 62 could not be used to stay order of district court upholding Illinois Commerce Commission order).

(n6)Footnote 5. MacMann v. Titus, 819 F.2d 8, 9-10 (1st Cir. 1987) .

(n7)Footnote 6. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62(a).

(n8)Footnote 7. See Garrick v. Weaver, 888 F.2d 687, 695 (10th Cir. 1989) (construing former time period).

(n9)Footnote 8. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 62(b); see also Ch. 26, Post-Judgment Procedures.

(n10)Footnote 8.1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62(d); see [3], below.

(n11)Footnote 9. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62(a)(1).

(n12)Footnote 10. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62(d).

(n13)Footnote 10.1. Duncan v. Farm Credit Bank, 940 F.2d 1099, 1103 (7th Cir. 1991) ; see Fed. R. Civ. P. 62(a)(1).

(n14)Footnote 11. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 62(c).

(n15)Footnote 12. Coastal Corp. v. Texas E. Corp., 869 F.2d 817, 820-821 (5th Cir. 1989) .

(n16)Footnote 13. Ortho Pharmaceutical Corp. v. Amgen, Inc., 887 F.2d 460, 464 (3d Cir. 1989) .

(n17)Footnote 14. Coastal Corp. v. Texas E. Corp., 869 F.2d 817, 820 (5th Cir. 1989) .

(n18)Footnote 15. Drummond v. Fulton County Dep't of Family & Children's Servs., 532 F.2d 1001, 1002 (5th Cir. 1976) .

(n19)Footnote 16. Robbins v. Pepsi-Cola Metropolitan Bottling Co., 800 F.2d 641, 643 (7th Cir. 1986) .

(n20)Footnote 17. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62(d); see Strong v. Laubach, 443 F.3d 1297, 1299 (10th Cir. 2006) (filing of bond is to obtain stay, and does not affect right of appeal).

(n21)Footnote 18. See §§ 27.03, 27.04.

(n22)Footnote 19. Law v. NCAA, 134 F.3d 1025, 1030-1031 (10th Cir. 1998) ; see Fed. R. App. P. 8.

(n23)Footnote 20. See [a], above.

(n24)Footnote 21. Dillon v. Chicago, 866 F.2d 902, 904-905 (7th Cir. 1989) (enumerates five criteria required to waive posting of bond).

(n25)Footnote 22. Miami Int'l. Realty Co. v. Paynter, 807 F.2d 871, 873-874 (10th Cir. 1986) (court did not err in granting stay without full supersedeas bond; escrow of lesser amount than full judgment plus injunction against transfer of assets was sufficient security).

(n26)Footnote 23. Olympia Equip. Leasing Co. v. Western Union Tel. Co., 786 F.2d 794, 796 (7th Cir. 1986) .

(n27)Footnote 24. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62(e); 28 U.S.C. § 2408.

(n28)Footnote 25. Fed. R. App. P. 8(a); Rakovich v. Wade, 834 F.2d 673, 675 (7th Cir. 1987) (where district court erroneously denied stay on ground that it lacked jurisdiction, such denial was not on merits and district court was afforded another chance to rule on motion).

(n29)Footnote 26. Rakovich v. Wade, 834 F.2d 673, 674 (7th Cir. 1987) (notice of appeal does not deprive district court of jurisdiction over motion for stay of its judgment).

(n30)Footnote 27. See Global NAPs, Inc. v. Verizon New Eng., Inc., 489 F.3d 13, 20-21 (1st Cir. 2007) (Rule 62 power of district and appellate courts to preserve status quo and effectiveness of judgment).

(n31)Footnote 27.1. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62(g)(1).

(n32)Footnote 27.2. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62(g)(2).

(n33)Footnote 28. Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b).

(n34)Footnote 29. Fed. R. Civ. P. 62(h); Schieffelin & Co. v. Valley Liquors, Inc., 823 F.2d 1064, 1066 (7th Cir. 1987) (district court did not abuse discretion in entering immediate judgment when defendant failed to move for a stay of judgment under Rule 62(h)).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VII Appeal
CHAPTER 27 GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF APPEAL

3-27 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 27.07

§ 27.07 Extraordinary Writsn*

[1] Writs Afford Relief from Final Judgment Rule

The final judgment rule n1 provides that a judgment must be final before a litigant may appeal it. n2 The purposes of the rule are to preclude piecemeal appeals and to show deference to district-court rulings. If always applied strictly, however, the final judgment rule may result in injustice to the parties n3 or may interfere with proper administration of the federal judicial system. n4 Therefore, Congress has provided the All Writs Act, n5 which the courts may use for flexibility to address the exceptional circumstances in which it is necessary to review an order that is neither a final judgment nor an interlocutory order that is appealable either by right or by permission. Thus, to meet the demands of justice in individual cases, discretionary review is preferable to enlarging by judicial interpretation the categories of interlocutory orders that are appealable as of right. n6

Under the All Writs Act, n6.1 the Supreme Court and the courts of appeals may issue an appropriate writ, such as mandamus, prohibition, common-law certiorari or injunction in aid of the respective court's appellate jurisdiction. Appellate jurisdiction need not have attached prior to the issuance of an extraordinary writ because the purpose of the writ is to aid the court's exercised, existing, or prospective appellate jurisdiction. n7 However, a statute that specifically addresses the particular appellate issue at hand governs the procedure that must be followed, and the court may not issue an extraordinary writ under the All Writs Act to resolve the dispute. n8 For example, if an interlocutory district court order is immediately appealable under Judicial Code Section 1292(a)(1), n9 the extraordinary writ of mandamus is not available to review the interlocutory order, and the party's only method of obtaining review is to file an interlocutory appeal under the statute. n10

[2] Types of Writs Available

The federal courts may issue all writs necessary or appropriate in aid of their jurisdiction. n11 The statutory term "all writs" includes the common-law writs of certiorari, injunction, prohibition, mandamus, and all other writs that are necessary and appropriate in aid of the court's jurisdiction. The most frequently used and perhaps most potent writ is the writ of mandamus. n12 Mandamus in a general sense means an order directing a public official to perform a duty prescribed by law. n13 In the context of the federal judiciary, mandamus is ordinarily used to prevent district judges from exceeding their authority. It is, however, a limited and extraordinary remedy that should not be used to undermine the final judgment rule or to replace the ordinary appeals process. n13.1 If a party petitions for review by writ, the label that the party gives to the petition is not controlling. n14 A party need not petition for one writ to the exclusion of any other; in effect a single petition may request different writs alternatively or concurrently. n15

[3] Writs May be Used at All Levels of Federal Judiciary

The All Writs Act expressly provides that the Supreme Court is a court that may issue all writs necessary or appropriate in aid of its jurisdiction: both its original jurisdiction and its appellate jurisdiction. n16 The Supreme Court has the power to issue an appropriate writ to any court over which it has jurisdiction, n17 although issuance of the writ is discretionary. n18

The All Writs Act also applies to all courts established by act of Congress. n19 The Act therefore applies to the circuit courts of appeals because the circuit courts are established by Congress. It applies in aid of the circuit courts' appellate jurisdiction. n19.1 As in the case of the Supreme Court, a circuit court has the power to issue an appropriate writ to any court over which it has jurisdiction, n20 although issuance of the writ is discretionary. n21 Appellate Rule 21governs petitions for a writ of mandamus or prohibition to a court, and to petitions for other extraordinary writs. It describes the content requirements for a petition, and the procedures for filing, serving, and docketing a petition, as well as the procedures for responding to a petition. n22 Like the circuit courts, the federal district courts are established by an act of Congress. Thus the All Writs Act also applies to the district courts. n23 At the district court level, the writ of mandamus procedure has been abolished and replaced by procedures under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Appropriate relief equivalent to the writ of mandamus is still available in the district court but must be granted through motion or other action under the rules. n24

[4] General Requirements for Extraordinary Writs

A court may not grant an extraordinary writ if a direct appeal is available n25 or if there are other adequate means to obtain relief. n26 The writ will not be granted merely because review is sought of an order that is not appealable. n27 There is no precise time within which a writ must be sought. However, the grant of an extraordinary writ is governed by equitable considerations, and laches may bar a petition if the petitioner has slept on his or her rights, especially if the delay has been prejudicial to the other party or to the rights of other persons. n27.1 Any delay in seeking a writ should be explained in the petition, because delay is enough to warrant denial. n28

[5] Use of Writ of Mandamus

The courts resort to the extraordinary writ of mandamus reluctantly n29 and reserve mandamus for the most exceptional cases in which the lower court has taken an action it has no power to take or has so abused its discretion that the action is a usurpation of power that justifies granting the writ. n30 Three conditions must be satisfied before it may issue: (1) the party seeking the writ must have no other adequate means to attain the relief requested; (2) the moving party must satisfy the burden of showing that the right to issuance is clear and indisputable; and (3) even if the first two prerequisites have been met, the issuing court, in the exercise of its discretion, must be satisfied that the writ is appropriate under the circumstances. n31

If the petitioner meets the requirements to obtain the writ of mandamus, the writ has proven to be effective in instances when a court exceeds the limits of its authority. n32 For example, mandamus may be used to require a judge to withdraw from a case, n33 to allow amendments to the pleadings, n34 to vacate an order limiting the government's use of peremptory challenges, n35 or to vacate a protective order deemed a prior restraint violative of the First Amendment. n36 The adequacy of a postponed review and related factors should be weighed against the general policy of finality so that the grant or denial of a writ will truly rest on a wisely exercised discretion. n36.1

Mandamus has also been granted in exceptional circumstances to decide novel and important questions of law. The Second Circuit, for example, vacated a discovery ruling stating that the publication of a book by one of the defendant's attorneys acted as a waiver of privilege, not only of discussions referred to in the book, but to all discussions between defendant and his attorney concerning subjects raised in the book. n37

[6] Extraordinary Writ Used to Review Non-appealable Interlocutory Orders

The district courts have broad discretion and authority to procedurally manage the cases they hear. Therefore, pretrial discovery orders are not usually appealable. However, a litigant may have review of such orders by extraordinary writ under extraordinary circumstances, which the reviewing court of appeals must specifically enumerate in its written opinion. n38 For example, one circuit court has developed a three-part test that the court uses before it will issue a writ of mandamus to review a claim of privilege during discovery: (1) the claim must raise an issue of importance and of first impression; (2) the privilege would be lost in the particular case if review were to await a final judgment; and (3) the immediate resolution must avoid the development of discovery practices or doctrines that undermine the privilege. n39

After a motion to dismiss is denied by a district court, there is no procedural device left to prevent a trial. Mandamus ordinarily is not appropriate in this instance, because review may be obtained by direct appeal to the circuit court. n40 However, if a direct appeal would not provide an adequate remedy, mandamus may be appropriate. n41

Other procedural orders that may be reviewed by writ in extraordinary circumstances include the following:

1. Orders transferring actions. An order transferring an action is interlocutory and not appealable. However, under exceptional circumstances, a transfer order may be reviewed by mandamus. n42 If a district court enters an order transferring an action without a hearing, for example, the circuit court will generally grant mandamus. If transfer is from one circuit to another, mandamus will be appropriate because mandamus issues in aid of appellate jurisdiction, and transfer from one circuit to another deprives the circuit court of its proper jurisdiction. n43

2. Orders of consolidation or severance. An order granting or denying consolidation, ordering separate trials, or refusing to consolidate or sever, is interlocutory and not generally appealable except by certification of the district court. n44 However, in a case in which extraordinary circumstances are present, the order may be reviewed on petition for mandamus. n45

3. Orders denying temporary restraining orders. The denial of a temporary restraining order generally is not appealable. However, in extraordinary circumstances, review may be appropriate on a petition for a writ of mandamus. For example, one circuit court reviewed a denial of a temporary restraining order because the petitioner claimed irreparable harm would result from disposition of the goods involved. n46

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesWritsAll Writs ActCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionFinal Judgment Rule

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 19 Moore's Federal Practice, § 204.02 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See § 27.02.

(n3)Footnote 2. Will v. United States, 389 U.S. 90, 96, 88 S. Ct. 269, 19 L. Ed. 2d 305 (1967) .

(n4)Footnote 3. In re Balsimo, 68 F.3d 185, 187 (7th Cir. 1995) (extraordinary writ granted when judicial act could not be remedied by appeal from final judgment).

(n5)Footnote 4. Union Carbide Corp. v. U.S. Cutting Serv., Inc., 782 F.2d 710, 713 (7th Cir. 1986) .

(n6)Footnote 5. See 28 U.S.C. § 1651.

(n7)Footnote 6. Financial Servs. Inc. v. Ferrandina, 474 F.2d 743, 746 n.7 (2d Cir. 1973) (citing Moore's for proposition that in compelling circumstances mandamus may be appropriate vehicle to make appeal of order).

(n8)Footnote 6.1. See Wis. Right to Life, Inc. v. FEC, 542 U.S. 1305, 1306, 125 S. Ct. 2, 159 L. Ed. 2d 805 (2004) .

(n9)Footnote 7. See Cheney v. United States Dist. Court, 542 U.S. 367, 378-379, 124 S. Ct. 2576, 159 L. Ed. 2d 459 (2004) (deadlines for notice of appeal inapplicable to mandamus petition under the All Writs Act).

(n10)Footnote 8. Cheney v. United States Dist. Court, 542 U.S. 367, 380-381, 124 S. Ct. 2576, 159 L. Ed. 2d 459 (2004) (extraordinary writ may not be used as a substitute for the regular appellate process).

(n11)Footnote 9. See 28 U.S.C. § 1292(a)(1).

(n12)Footnote 10. Calderon v. United States Dist. Ct., 137 F.3d 1420, 1421-1422 (9th Cir. 1998) (if petition for writ of mandamus is filed within time for filing notice of appeal, circuit court may treat mandamus petition as notice of appeal; however, if party could have pursued ordinary appeal, but instead filed mandamus petition after expiration of time for appeal, circuit court lacks jurisdiction to review order).

(n13)Footnote 11. 28 U.S.C. § 1651(a).

(n14)Footnote 12. See Cheney v. United States Dist. Court, 542 U.S. 367, 124 S. Ct. 2576, 2587, 159 L. Ed. 2d 459 (2004) .

(n15)Footnote 13. Corrugated Container Antitrust Litig. v. Mead, 614 F.2d 958, 962 (5th Cir. 1980) ; Split Family Support Group v. Moran, 232 F. Supp. 2d 1133, 1135 (D. Mont. 2002) .

(n16)Footnote 13.1. See Cheney v. United States Dist. Court, 542 U.S. 367, 124 S. Ct. 2576, 2587, 159 L. Ed. 2d 459 (2004) .

(n17)Footnote 14. United States v. Santtini, 963 F.2d 585, 594 (3d Cir. 1992) ("the appropriate inquiry under the All Writs Act is whether extraordinary remedy is available, not which").

(n18)Footnote 15. Ex parte Peru, 318 U.S. 578, 585-586, 63 S. Ct. 793, 87 L. Ed. 1014 (1943) .

(n19)Footnote 16. 28 U.S.C. § 1651(a).

(n20)Footnote 17. Chandler v. Judicial Council of Tenth Cir., 398 U.S. 74, 112, 90 S. Ct. 1648, 26 L. Ed. 2d 100 (1970) .

(n21)Footnote 18. Sup. Ct. R. 20.1; see Ch. 29, Appeal to Supreme Court.

(n22)Footnote 19. 28 U.S.C. § 1651(a).

(n23)Footnote 19.1. See Cheney v. United States Dist. Court, 542 U.S. 367, 124 S. Ct. 2576, 2585-2586, 159 L. Ed. 2d 459 (2004) .

(n24)Footnote 20. Thermtron Prods., Inc. v. Hermansdorfer, 423 U.S. 336, 353, 96 S. Ct. 584, 46 L. Ed. 2d 542

(1976) .

(n25)Footnote 21. See Ch. 28, Appeal to Court of Appeals.

(n26)Footnote 22. Fed. R. App. P. 21; see Ch. 28, Appeal to Court of Appeals.

(n27)Footnote 23. 28 U.S.C. § 1651(a).

(n28)Footnote 24. Split Family Support Group v. Moran, 232 F. Supp. 2d 1133, 1135 (D. Mont. 2002) .

(n29)Footnote 25. Cheney v. United States Dist. Court, 542 U.S. 367, 124 S. Ct. 2576, 2587, 159 L. Ed. 2d 459 (2004) ; see [1], above.

(n30)Footnote 26. See [2], above.

(n31)Footnote 27. Will v. United States, 389 U.S. 90, 104, 88 S. Ct. 269, 19 L. Ed. 2d 305 (1967) .

(n32)Footnote 27.1. Cheney v. United States Dist. Court, 542 U.S. 367, 124 S. Ct. 2576, 2586, 159 L. Ed. 2d 459 (2004) .

(n33)Footnote 28. NBS Imaging Sys., Inc. v. United States Dist. Court for E. Dist. of Cal., 841 F.2d 297, 298 (9th Cir. 1988) .

(n34)Footnote 29. Kmart Corp. v. Aronds, 123 F.3d 297, 300 (5th Cir. 1997) (mandamus ordinarily is not available concerning matter that is within discretion of district court).

(n35)Footnote 30. Mallard v. United States Dist. Court for S. Dist. of Iowa, 490 U.S. 296, 309, 109 S. Ct. 1814, 104 L. Ed. 2d 318 (1989) .

(n36)Footnote 31. Cheney v. United States Dist. Court, 542 U.S. 367, 124 S. Ct. 2576, 2587, 159 L. Ed. 2d 459 (2004) .

(n37)Footnote 32. In re Scott, 709 F.2d 717, 721 (D.C. Cir. 1983) .

(n38)Footnote 33. United States v. Ritter, 540 F.2d 459 (10th Cir. 1976) .

(n39)Footnote 34. Richardson Greenshields Sec., Inc. v. Lau, 825 F.2d 647, 652-653 (2d Cir. 1987) (when district court failed to afford timely conference at which defendant could amend answer to include counterclaim, court of appeals directed district court to allow amendment, indicating that it would otherwise issue writ of mandamus).

(n40)Footnote 35. United States v. Newman, 549 F.2d 240, 250-251 (2d Cir. 1977) .

(n41)Footnote 36. Rodgers v. United States, 536 F.2d 1001, 1006 (3d Cir. 1976) .

(n42)Footnote 36.1. Cheney v. United States Dist. Court, 542 U.S. 367, 124 S. Ct. 2576, 2587, 159 L. Ed. 2d 459 (2004) .

(n43)Footnote 37. Von Bulow v. Von Bulow, 828 F.2d 94, 97 (2d Cir. 1987) (issuance of writ of mandamus would act as guide to courts in future cases of similar nature; moreover, writ was essential to defendant because there was no other adequate remedy at law, in that discovery orders are not generally immediately appealable).

(n44)Footnote 38. Will v. United States, 389 U.S. 90, 106-107, 88 S. Ct. 269, 19 L. Ed. 2d 305 (1967) .

(n45)Footnote 39. In re Steinhardt Partners, L.P., 9 F.3d 230, 233 (2d Cir. 1993) (request for writ to overrule order compelling production of memorandum was one of rare circumstances permitting use of mandamus).

(n46)Footnote 40. Helstoski v. Meanor, 442 U.S. 500, 506, 99 S. Ct. 2445, 61 L. Ed. 2d 30 (1979) .

(n47)Footnote 41. Credit Suisse v. United States Dist. Court., 130 F.3d 1342, 1345-1346 (9th Cir. 1997) (mandamus was appropriate in case involving Swiss banks, because waiting for direct appeal would have forced banks to choose between being in contempt of district court and violating confidentiality requirements of Swiss banking law.

(n48)Footnote 42. In re Food Lion, Inc., 73 F.3d 528, 532 n.10 (4th Cir. 1996) (mandamus ordering transfer may issue to achieve orderly and efficient administration of justice).

(n49)Footnote 43. Roofing & Sheet Metal Servs., Inc. v. La Quinta Motor Inns Inc., 689 F.2d 982, 988 (11th Cir. 1982) .

(n50)Footnote 44. 28 U.S.C. § 1292(b); see § 27.04.

(n51)Footnote 45. See, e.g., Garber v. Randell, 477 F.2d 711, 715 n.2 (2d Cir. 1973) .

(n52)Footnote 46. In re Vuitton et Fils, S.A., 606 F.2d 1, 3-4 (2d Cir. 1979) .

92 of 157 DOCUMENTS

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VII Appeal
CHAPTER 27 GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF APPEAL

3-27 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 27.08

§ 27.08 Amendment of Pleadings

Judicial Code Section 1653 permits a party to amend defective allegations of jurisdiction with court approval. Amendments may at any time be made in the trial or appellate courts, including the Supreme Court. n1 Section 1653's liberal amendment rule permits a party who has not alleged that diversity exists to amend the pleadings even as late as on appeal. If the amended allegations are not contested and nothing bars jurisdiction, jurisdiction is deemed proper, despite the plaintiff's usual burden of alleging and proving jurisdiction. n2

Despite the presumption against federal jurisdiction, when an action has resulted in a final judgment in the district court despite an unnoticed jurisdictional defect, the interests of justice, fairness, and judicial economy require an additional opportunity to cure the pleading defects, if possible. However, one court has refused to allow the plaintiff to amend its complaint to add omitted jurisdictional facts under Section 1653 at the appellate stage, because the record contained evidence that opposing parties were not diverse. The court declined to consider the possible evidentiary dispute, holding that the district court is the proper forum to determine if a curative amendment could be made. n3 This reasoning conforms with the general rule that Section 1653 may be used to cure defective jurisdictional allegations and not defective jurisdictional facts themselves. n4

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAmended PleadingsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAmended PleadingsLeave of CourtCivil ProcedureAppealsRecords on Appeal

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. 1653; Penteco Corp. v. Union Gas System, 929 F.2d 1519, 1523 (10th Cir. 1991) .

(n2)Footnote 2. Dist. of Columbia v. Transamerica Ins. Co., 797 F.2d 1041, 1044 (D.C. Cir. 1986) .

(n3)Footnote 3. Penteco Corp. v. Union Gas System, 929 F.2d 1519, 1523 (10th Cir. 1991) .

(n4)Footnote 4. Newman-Green, Inc. v. Alfonzo-Larrain, 490 U.S. 826, 831, 109 S. Ct. 2218, 104 L. Ed. 2d 893 (1989) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VII Appeal
CHAPTER 27 GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF APPEAL

3-27 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 27.09

§ 27.09 Fees, Costs, and Damages for Delay

Several provisions of the Judicial Code authorize the courts to impose fees, costs, or damages for delay. n1 Appellate Rules 38 and 39, discussed in Ch. 28, Appeal to Court of Appeals, also authorize the courts to impose damages and costs as sanctions. n2 The Supreme Court is authorized to establish fees to be charged by its clerk and to tax those fees against litigants. n3 The current fees are set forth in Supreme Court Rule 38, n4 discussed in Ch. 29, Appeal to Supreme court. If a judgment is affirmed by a court of appeals or the Supreme Court, the court may award the prevailing party just damages for the delay, and single or double costs. n5 Additionally, all courts of the United States may tax excess costs against an attorney personally, when the attorney has multiplied proceedings to the extent that it increases costs unreasonably and vexatiously. n6 That sanction, however, is highly unusual and requires a clear showing of bad faith. n7

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAppealsCosts & Attorney FeesCivil ProcedureAppealsFrivolous Appeals

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. 28 U.S.C. § 1920 (general statutory authority).

(n2)Footnote 2. Fed. R. App. P. 38, 39.

(n3)Footnote 3. 28 U.S.C. § 1911; Sup. Ct. R. 38.

(n4)Footnote 4. Sup. Ct. R. 38.

(n5)Footnote 5. 28 U.S.C. § 1912; see Sup. Ct. R. 43.

(n6)Footnote 6. 28 U.S.C. § 1927.

(n7)Footnote 7. Estate of Washington v. United States, 53 F.3d 1173, 1176 (10th Cir. 1995) ; Barnd v. City of Tacoma, 664 F.2d 1339, 1342-1343 (9th Cir. 1982) .

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VII Appeal
CHAPTER 28 APPEAL TO COURT OF APPEALS

3-28 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure 28.syn

§ 28.syn Synopsis to Chapter 28: APPEAL TO COURT OF APPEALS

§ 28.01 Appellate Procedure in Lower Federal Courts

[1] Applicability of Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure

[2] When There Is No Controlling Procedural Law

§ 28.02 Promulgation of Appellate Rules

[1] Supreme Court Promulgation of Appellate Rules

[2] Court of Appeals Promulgation of Local Appellate Rules

§ 28.03 Construction of Appellate Rules

[1] Liberal Construction

[2] Procedural Nature of Appellate Rules

§ 28.04 Suspension of Rules of Appellate Procedure

[1] Grounds for Suspension of Rules

[2] Suspension of Rules Regarding Time

§§ 28.05through 28.09 [Reserved]

§ 28.10 Appeal As of Right

[1] Manner of Appeal of Right

[a] Standing of Person to Appeal as of Right

[i] Requirements of Standing

[ii] Party of Record

[iii] Party Is Aggrieved

[b] Matters Appealable as of Right

[c] Contents of Notice of Appeal

[i] Summary of Requirements

[ii] Parties

[iii] Designation of Subject of Appeal

[iv] Designation of Court of Appeal

[d] Filing Notice of Appeal

[i] Requirement of Filing

[ii] Process of Filing

[iii] Effect of Proper Filing

[e] Service of Notice of Appeal

[f] Payment of Fees

[g] Joinder of Appeals

[h] Consolidation of Appeals

[2] Time for Appeal of Right

[a] Time Periods Start on Entry of Judgment

[b] Ordinary Rule for Civil Cases

[c] When Party is United States or United States Officer or Agency

[d] Effect of Certain Motions Filed in District Court

[e] Appeal by Inmate Confined in Institution

[f] Effect of Filing Notice of Appeal Before Entry of District Court Decision

[g] Time for Filing Multiple Appeals

[h] Extension of Time for Filing Appeal

[i] Motion for Extension Based on Excusable Neglect or Good Cause

[ii] Motion To Reopen Time to File Appeal On Grounds of Lack of Notice

§ 28.11 Appeal By Permission

[1] Introduction

[2] Procedure to File Petition for Permission to Appeal

[3] Contents of the Petition

[4] Response to Petition

[5] Procedure on Circuit Court's Grant of Permission to Appeal

§ 28.12 Appeal In Bankruptcy Cases

[1] Appeal From Decision of District Court Exercising Original Jurisdiction in Bankruptcy Case

[2] Appeal From Decision of District Court or Bankruptcy Appellate Panel Exercising Appellate Jurisdiction in Bankruptcy Case

[a] Applicability of General Appellate Rules

[b] Additional Applicable Rules

[i] Additional Rules Applicable to Appeals from Courts Exercising Appellate Jurisdiction in Bankruptcy Case

[ii] Motion for Rehearing

[iii] Record on Appeal

§ 28.13 Bond for Costs on Appeal

[1] District Court May Require Bond in Civil Case

[2] Amount of Bond

[3] Bond Generally Need Not Cover Attorney's Fees

[4] Effect of Failure to File Bond

[5] Filing of Bond Submits Surety to Jurisdiction of Court

§ 28.14 Stay or Injunction Pending Appeal

[1] Introduction

[2] Initial Motion for Stay Must Be In District Court

[3] Motion for Stay In Appellate Court

[4] Security for Stay or Other Relief

§ 28.15 Record on Appeal

[1] Purpose of Record on Appeal

[2] Composition of Record on Appeal

[a] Items Included in Record

[b] Original Papers

[c] Exhibits

[d] Transcript of Proceedings

[i] Transcript in Existence is Included in Record

[ii] Duty of Appellant to Order Transcript

[iii] Appellant Urging Unsupported Finding or Conclusion

[iv] Partial Transcript

[v] Payment for Transcript

[vi] Statement of Evidence When Transcript Unavailable

[e] Certified Copy of Docket Entries

[3] Agreed Statement of Record on Appeal

[4] Correction or Modification of the Record

[5] Forwarding the Record

[a] Appellant's Duties

[b] Reporter's Duties

[c] District Clerk's Duties

[d] Record Retained Temporarily in District Court for Use by Parties in Preparing Appeal

[e] Record Copied or Retained by Order of Court

[f] Record Retained by Stipulation of the Parties

[g] Portion of Record Forwarded for Use in Court of Appeals

§ 28.16 Docketing Appeal and Filing Record In Court of Appeals

[1] Docketing Appeal

[2] Filing Representation Statement

[3] Filing Record

§ 28.17 Remand to District Court on Indicative Ruling

[1] Circumstances for Use of Indicative Ruling

[a] Pending Appeal May Preclude Grant of Motion for Relief by District Court

[b] Federal Rules Codify Procedure for Indicative Ruling

[c] Coordination of Procedure Between District Court and Court of Appeals

[2] Indicative Ruling Procedure in Appellate Court

[a] Notification of Court of Appeals That District Court Would Grant Motion or that Motion Creates Substantial Issue

[b] Determination by Court of Appeals Whether to Remand

[c] Procedures After Remand

§§ 28.18through 28.29 [Reserved]

§ 28.30 Applicability of Rules Governing Procedure in Court of Appeals for Review of Tax Court Decision

§ 28.31 Procedure for Appealing Decision of Tax Court

[1] Timely Filing of Notice of Appeal Required to Commence Appeal

[2] Method of Filing Notice of Appeal

[3] Service of Notice of Appeal

§ 28.32 Content of Notice of Appeal From Tax Court

§ 28.33 Record on Appeal From Tax Court

[1] Composition of Tax Court Record

[2] Transmittal of Record from Tax Court to Appellate Court

[3] Filing Tax Court Record in Appellate Court

§ 28.34 Standard of Review for Tax Court Decisions

§§ 28.35through 28.39 [Reserved]

§ 28.40 Rules Governing Procedure for Review or Enforcement of Administrative Order

§ 28.41 Nature of Proceedings for Review or Enforcement of Administrative Order

[1] Types of Agency Orders Subject to Review

[2] Standard of Judicial Review of Agency Order

[3] Reversal of Agency Order Generally Requires Remand to Agency

§ 28.42 Petition for Review of Administrative Agency Order

[1] Filing Petition to Commence Review

[2] Contents of Petition

§ 28.43 Application for Enforcement of Administrative Agency Order

[1] Filing Application for Enforcement and Answer

[2] Contents of Application for Enforcement

§ 28.44 Service of Petition or Application

§ 28.45 Intervention

§ 28.46 Payment of Fees

§ 28.47 Record on Review or Enforcement of Agency Order

[1] Composition of Record

[2] Omissions From or Misstatements in Record

[3] Filing of Record

[a] Agency Responsible for Filing Record

[b] Documents Required to be Filed

§ 28.48 Stay of Order Pending Review

[1] Motion Must Initially be Made to Agency

[2] Subsequent Motion to Court of Appeal

[a] Contents of Motion

[b] Filing and Consideration of Motion

[c] Filing of Bond or Other Security

§ 28.49 Judgment Enforcing an Agency Order in Part

§§ 28.50through 28.59 [Reserved]

§ 28.60 Introduction to Extraordinary Writs

§ 28.61 Petition for Writ of Mandamus or Prohibition

[1] Procedure for Filing Petition

[2] Contents of Petition

[3] Answer to Petition

[4] Proceedings

[5] Decision on Petition for Writ

§ 28.62 Application for Extraordinary Writ Other Than Mandamus or Prohibition

§§ 28.63through 28.69 [Reserved]

§ 28.70 Introduction to Proceedings on Appeal in Forma Pauperis

[1] Nature of Proceeding

[2] Restrictions on Certain Prisoners

§ 28.71 Prior Approval of Status In District Court Obviates Need for Motion on Appeal

§ 28.72 District Court Motion for In Forma Pauperis Status for Appeal

[1] Filing Motion

[2] Requirements for Motion

[3] Decision on Motion

[a] Factors Considered in Determination of Motion

[b] Effects of Determination

§ 28.73 Motion in Court of Appeals for In Forma Pauperis Status

[1] After Denial of Motion for In Forma Pauperis Status in District Court

[2] Motion to Proceed in Forma Pauperis on Appeal or Review of Administrative Order or Tax Court Decision

[3] Decision on Motion

§§ 28.74through 28.79 [Reserved]

§ 28.80 Filing and Service

[1] Filing Papers

[a] General Method of Filing with Clerk

[b] Filing Brief or Appendix

[c] Filing by Inmate

[d] Filing by Electronic Means

[e] Filing Motion With Individual Judge

[f] Clerk May Not Refuse Filing of Documents

[g] Privacy Protection for Electronic Filings on Appeal

[2] Service of Papers

[a] Methods of Service

[b] Completion of Service

[c] Proof of Service

[3] Number of Copies Required by Local Rule or Court Order

§ 28.81 Computation and Extension of Time Periods

[1] Introduction

[2] Computation of Time Periods

[a] Terminology Used in Calculation of Deadlines

[b] Deadline Calculation For Period Stated in Days or Longer Unit

[c] Deadline Calculation For Period Stated in Hours

[d] Effect of Inaccessibility of the Clerk's Office

[3] Court Ordered Extension of Time Period for Good Cause

[4] Circumstances in Which Court May Not Grant Extension

[5] Additional Time Based on Service Date

§ 28.82 Corporate Disclosure Statement

[1] Required Disclosure Statement

[2] Time for Filing

[3] Filing of Original and Copies

§ 28.83 Motions

[1] Motion Consists of Written Application for Relief

[2] Contents of a Motion

[a] Required Contents

[b] Documents Prohibited or Not Required

[3] Response

[a] Time to File

[b] Request for Affirmative Relief

[4] Reply to Response

[5] Disposition of Motion for Procedural Order

[6] Power of Single Judge to Entertain Motion

[7] Format

[a] Physical Requirements

[b] Page Layout

[c] Typeface and Typestyle Requirements

[8] Page Limits

[9] Number of Copies

[10] Oral Argument

§ 28.84 Briefs

[1] Contents of Appellant's Brief

[2] Contents of Appellee's Brief

[3] Reply Brief

[4] [Reserved]

[5] Briefs in Case Involving Multiple Appellants or Appellees

[6] References and Citations

[a] References to Parties

[b] References to Record

[c] Reproduction of Statutes, Rules, Regulations and Other Laws

[d] Citation of Supplemental Authorities

[7] Form of Briefs

[a] Conformance to Format Requirements

[b] Reproduction

[c] Cover

[d] Binding

[e] Page Layout

[f] Typeface

[g] Type Styles

[h] Length Limitation

[i] Page Limitation

[ii] Type-Volume Limitation

[iii] Certificate of Compliance

[7A] Contents and Format of Briefs in Cross-Appeals

[a] Unique Briefing Rule Controls

[b] Designation of Parties in Cross-Appeals

[c] Types of Briefs in Cross-Appeals

[d] Contents of Briefs in Cross-Appeals

[e] Colors and Contents of Covers in Cross-Appeals

[f] Length of Briefs in Cross-Appeals

[g] Deadlines for Service and Filing Briefs in Cross-Appeals

[8] Brief of Amicus Curiae

[a] Leave of Court Required Except for Government Entities

[b] Motion for Leave to File

[c] Contents and Form

[d] Length

[e] Time for Filing

[f] Court's Permission Required to File Reply Brief or Participate in Oral Argument

[9] Appendix to Brief

[a] Appellant's Responsibility

[i] Contents of the Appendix

[ii] Excluded Material

[iii] Time to File Required Number of Copies

[b] Responsibilities of All Parties

[i] Determining Contents of Appendix

[ii] Costs of Appendix

[c] Deferred Appendix

[i] Deferral Until After Briefs Are Filed

[ii] References to the Record

[d] Format of the Appendix

[e] Reproduction of Exhibits

[f] Appeal on the Original Record Without an Appendix

[g] Form of Appendix to Brief

[10] Serving and Filing Brief

[a] Time to Serve and File Brief

[b] Number of Copies

[c] Consequence of Failure to File Brief

§ 28.85 Form of Papers Other Than Motion, Brief, or Appendix

§ 28.85A Citation Permitted to Unpublished or Non-precedential Opinions and Other Written Judicial Dispositions

[1] Courts May Not Prohibit Citation to Unpublished or Non-precedential Judicial Dispositions

[2] Party Must Provide Copies When Citing to Unavailable Opinions or Judicial Dispositions

§ 28.86 Appeal Conferences

§ 28.87 Oral Argument

[1] Right to Oral Argument

[2] Oral Argument Procedure

§ 28.88 En Banc Determination

[1] Order for Hearing or Rehearing En Banc

[2] Petition for Hearing or Rehearing En Banc

[a] Contents of Petition

[b] Petition Procedures

§ 28.89 Entry and Notice of Judgment

[1] Entry of Judgment

[2] Notice of Judgment

§ 28.90 Interest on Judgment

[1] Interest Accrual When Court Affirms Judgment

[2] Interest Accrual When Court Reverses

[3] Rate of Interest

§ 28.91 Sanctions for Frivolous Appeal

[1] Award of Damages and Costs to Appellee

[2] Determination of Frivolousness

[3] Imposition of Sanctions

§ 28.92 Costs

[1] Persons Subject to Assessment of Costs

[2] Costs of Document Duplication

[3] Bill of Costs

[4] Costs on Appeal Taxable in the District Court

§ 28.93 Petition for Panel Rehearing

[1] Time to File Petition

[2] Contents and Length of Petition

[3] Answer

[4] Action by Court Granting Petition

§ 28.94 Mandate Issued by Court of Appeals

[1] Contents of Mandate

[2] Mandate Effective When Issued

[3] Stay of Mandate

[a] Stay on Petition for Rehearing or Motion

[b] Pending Petition for Certiorari

§ 28.95 Voluntary Dismissal

[1] Voluntary Dismissal in District Court

[2] Voluntary Dismissal in Court of Appeals

§ 28.96 Substitution

[1] Substitution on Death of Party

[a] After Notice of Appeal Is Filed

[b] Before Notice of Appeal Is Filed

[i] Substitution of Potential Appellant Before Notice of Appeal Is Filed

[ii] Substitution of Potential Appellee Before Notice of Appeal Is Filed

[2] Substitution for Reason Other Than Death

[3] Public Officers

[a] Identification of Party

[b] Automatic Substitution of Officeholder

§ 28.97 Constitutional Cases Not Involving United States as Party

§ 28.98 Clerk's Duties

[1] Qualifications of Clerk

[2] Time Court Is Open

[3] Duties With Respect to Records

[4] Notice of Order or Judgment

§ 28.99 Attorneys' Federal Appellate Practice

[1] Admission to Bar of Court of Appeals

[a] Eligibility

[b] Application

[c] Admission Procedures

[2] Suspension or Disbarment

[3] Other Discipline

§ 28.100 Promulgation of Local Rules by Courts of Appeals

[1] Enactment of Local Rules

[2] Regulation of Procedure When There Is No Controlling Law

§ 28.101 Masters

[1] Appointment and Powers of Master

[2] Compensation

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VII Appeal
CHAPTER 28 APPEAL TO COURT OF APPEALS
PART I. APPLICATION OF APPELLATE PROCEDURAL RULES IN FEDERAL COURTS

3-28 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 28.01

§ 28.01 Appellate Procedure in Lower Federal Courtsn*

[1] Applicability of Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure

The formal rules that govern the procedure for all appeals taken to the United States courts of appeal n1 are designated as the "Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure." n2 These rules are referred to in this publication as the "Appellate Rules," to distinguish them from the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. A federal court of appeals is a court that has jurisdiction to review a decision made by an inferior court in the federal system. In the federal court system, the circuit courts of appeals have jurisdiction to review decisions from all district courts of the United States. n3 The Appellate Rules were originally promulgated by the Supreme Court in 1968 to govern appellate procedure in the circuit courts, as well as the procedure for transfer of jurisdiction of an appealed case from the district courts to the circuit courts. The Appellate Rules are promulgated under the authority granted by Congress in the United States Code. n4 The Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure do not apply to appeals or any other proceedings in the United States Supreme Court, because procedures in Supreme Court Proceedings are governed by that Court's own rules, known as the Supreme Court Rules. n5

Although the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure always govern the procedure in the federal circuit courts of appeal, use of the Appellate Rules is not limited to appellate courts. n6 In several circumstances, the Appellate Rules provide for procedures in the district courts, such as extensions of time to appeal when necessary for the district court to determine post-judgment motions. For example, the Appellate Rules provide that the parties must, or may initially, seek relief from the district courts, such as relief regarding judgment, requests for attorney's fees, extensions of time for filing a notice of appeal, applications for a stay or injunction pending appeal, review of an order regarding release after conviction, requests for a transcript of the pleadings, corrections of the record, transfers of custody pending review, and leave to proceed in forma pauperis. n7

In some circumstances, appellate procedure in the district court is provided for in the applicable Appellate Rule. n8 In others, the procedure is not specified. n9 Although the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure strictly apply only in the district courts, when necessary they apply equally to the courts of appeals. n10 Thus, when the Appellate Rules provide for filing a motion or other document in the district court, the procedure must comply with the practice of the district court. n11

[2] When There Is No Controlling Procedural Law

In situations when there is no Appellate Rule, Civil Rule, or statute that specifies the controlling appellate procedural law, a court of appeals has the discretion to regulate practice in any manner consistent with federal law, federal rules, and local rules of the circuit. However, the court may not impose any sanction or other disadvantage for noncompliance with any requirement not in federal law, federal rules, or the local rules unless the alleged violator has been furnished in the particular case with actual notice of the requirement. n1

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAppealsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 20 Moore's Federal Practice, § 301.10 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. App. P. 1(a)(1).

(n3)Footnote 2. See Fed. R. App. P. 1(c).

(n4)Footnote 3. See 28 U.S.C. § 1294.

(n5)Footnote 4. See 28 U.S.C. §§ 2072, 2075, former 18 U.S.C. §§ 3771, 3772; see also § 28.02[1].

(n6)Footnote 5. See Sup. Ct. R. 48.2.

(n7)Footnote 6. See, e.g., Fed. R. App. P. 1(a)(2) (appellate rules may require or provide for filing motion or other document in district court).

(n8)Footnote 7. See Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(4), 4(a)(5), 7, 8, 9(b), 10(b), 10(e), 23(a), 24.

(n9)Footnote 8. See, e.g., Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(5) (district court may extend time for party to file notice of appeal if party makes timely motion or shows excusable neglect or good cause).

(n10)Footnote 9. See, e.g., Fed. R. App. P. 10(b) (appellant's duty to order transcript).

(n11)Footnote 10. Balgowan v. New Jersey, 115 F.3d 214, 216-217 (3d Cir. 1997) (provision of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 21 that parties may be dropped or added by order of court on motion of any party or of its own initiative at any stage of action and on such terms as are just, has been relied on by appellate courts to both dismiss and add parties for jurisdictional purposes).

(n12)Footnote 11. Fed. R. App. P. 1(a)(2).

(n13)Footnote 1. Fed. R. App. P. 47(b); see § 28.100[2].

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VII Appeal
CHAPTER 28 APPEAL TO COURT OF APPEALS
PART I. APPLICATION OF APPELLATE PROCEDURAL RULES IN FEDERAL COURTS

3-28 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 28.02

§ 28.02 Promulgation of Appellate Rules

[1] Supreme Court Promulgation of Appellate Rules n*

The Supreme Court has the ultimate power to promulgate nationally applicable rules of practice, procedure, and evidence for the federal courts, including the courts of appeal. This rulemaking power is specified by the Rules Enabling Act, n1 which states that the Supreme Court may promulgate rules based on recommendations from the Judicial Conference of the United States. n2 The Judicial Conference is the entity responsible for drafting and recommending rules that promote simplicity in procedure, fairness in administration, the just determination of litigation, and the elimination of unjustifiable expense and delay. The Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court is the chair of the Judicial Conference of the United States. n3 The federal rules promulgated by the Supreme Court are designed to establish an essentially uniform, national practice in the federal courts. Nevertheless, they authorize individual courts to prescribe legitimate local variations in practice and procedure through local court rules that are not inconsistent with the national rules. n4

[2] Court of Appeals Promulgation of Local Appellate Rules n*

Every circuit court of appeals has discretion to make and amend rules governing its own procedure, provided that each such rule: n1 is consistent with, but not duplicative of, Acts of Congress or procedural rules promulgated by the Supreme Court; n2 conforms to any uniform numbering system prescribed by the Judicial Conference of the United States; and has been enacted by a majority of judges after giving appropriate public notice and opportunity for comment. Additionally, any generally applicable direction to a party or an attorney regarding practice before a court must be in the form of a local rule, rather than an internal operating procedure or standing order. Local rules adopted by a court of appeals must be approved by a majority of the circuit judges in regular active service. n3 Once local rules have been promulgated or amended, the clerk of each court must send a copy of the new rule or an internal operating procedure to the Administrative Office of the United States Courts. n4

The circuit courts' local rulemaking power is not unrestricted. A circuit court may not enforce a local rule imposing a requirement of form in any manner that causes a party to lose substantive rights provided that the failure to comply with the requirement was not willful. n5 This prohibition is narrowly drawn and does not cover violations that were willful or violations involving local rules directed to matters of form. Furthermore, the rule is not intended to limit the power of a circuit court to impose substantive penalties on a party if it or its attorney stubbornly or repeatedly violates a local rule, even one involving merely a matter of form. n6

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAppealsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsAuthority to AdjudicateGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 20 Moore's Federal Practice, § 301.40 et seq. (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. See 28 U.S.C. §§ 2071-2077.

(n3)Footnote 2. 28 U.S.C. § 2072(a).

(n4)Footnote 3. See 28 U.S.C. § 331.

(n5)Footnote 4. See 28 U.S.C. § 2071; see also [b], above.

(n6)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 20 Moore's Federal Practice, § 301.31 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n7)Footnote 1. Fed. R. App. P. 47(a)(1).

(n8)Footnote 2. See 28 U.S.C. § 2072.

(n9)Footnote 3. Fed. R. App. P. 47(a)(1); Horner Equip. Intl., Inc. v. Seascape Pool Ctr. Inc., 884 F.2d 89, 94 (3d Cir. 1989) (circuit court guidelines requiring transcripts to be ordered through district court clerk were not effective when not adopted in accordance with requirements of local rulemaking).

(n10)Footnote 4. Fed. R. App. P. 47(a)(1).

(n11)Footnote 5. Fed. R. App. P. 47(a)(2).

(n12)Footnote 6. See Fed. R. App. P. 47(a)(2), Committee Note to 1995 Amendments; see also In re Grand Jury Proceedings, 662 F.2d 532, 534 (9th Cir. 1981) (strict compliance was required with local appellate rule requiring counsel to notify court of appeals immediately of pendency of recalcitrant witness' appeal).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VII Appeal
CHAPTER 28 APPEAL TO COURT OF APPEALS
PART I. APPLICATION OF APPELLATE PROCEDURAL RULES IN FEDERAL COURTS

3-28 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 28.03

§ 28.03 Construction of Appellate Rules

[1] Liberal Construction

All courts must give the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure liberal construction in light of a Congressional intent to promote simplicity in procedure, fairness in administration, the just determination of litigation, and the elimination of unjustifiable expense and delay. n1 The decisions under Rule 1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure that explain the liberal construction that must be given to the Civil Rules also apply in construction of the Appellate Rules. n2

One or more Committee Notes accompanies each of the Appellate Rules and their amendments, and the notes usually specify matters such as the history and purpose of the rule. A Committee Note accompanying a rule or an amendment is analogous to the legislative history of a statute and is equally persuasive as a guide to interpretation. n3

[2] Procedural Nature of Appellate Rules

Generally, the Appellate Rules govern only procedure, because the purpose of the Appellate Rules is to expedite completion of the appeal of litigation and to discourage dilatory tactics. n1 They encompass all the steps incident to the taking, processing, and disposition of an appeal or other form of review. They regulate those steps in considerable detail, from the filing of the notice of appeal, petition for review, or other initiating paper, to the issuance of the mandate of the circuit court. n2

A former provision of the Appellate Rules expressly stated that the Appellate Rules could not be construed in a manner to either extend or limit the jurisdiction of the circuit courts. n3 However, that provision was abrogated because two enactments to the United States Code make it possible and even probable that one or more of the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure could substantively extend or limit the jurisdiction of the courts of appeals. In this regard, Congress has amended the Rules Enabling Act to give the Supreme Court authority to use the federal rules of practice and procedure to define when a ruling of a district court is "final" for purposes of appealability of the ruling. n4 Additionally, Congress has also amended a statute to give the Supreme Court authority to use the federal rules of practice and procedure to provide for appeals of new types of interlocutory decisions. n5 The former provision of the Appellate Rules has been abrogated because these amendments both involve indisputably jurisdictional statutes, and as soon as any Appellate Rule is amended to define finality for purposes of appeal, or to authorize new types interlocutory appeals, such a rule, would "extend or limit the jurisdiction of the courts of appeals," making the former provision obsolete. n6

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAppealsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. See 28 U.S.C. § 331; see also In re Orbitec Corp., 520 F.2d 358, 362 (2d Cir. 1975) .

(n2)Footnote 2. See Fishbaugh v. Armour & Co., 185 F.2d 541, 541 (4th Cir. 1950) .

(n3)Footnote 3. Maryland Casualty Co. v. Conner, 382 F.2d 13, 16 (10th Cir. 1967) (Committee Notes are entitled to weight in ascertaining meaning of rules); see Scott-Harris v. City of Fall River, 134 F.3d 427, 433-34 (1st Cir. 1997) (decision that adequate notice of entry of judgment specified in Appellate Rule 4(a)(6) must have been in writing partly based on weight of Committee Notes).

(n4)Footnote 1. See In re Orbitec Corp., 520 F.2d 358, 362 (2d Cir. 1975) .

(n5)Footnote 2. See Fed. R. App. P. 3 through 41.

(n6)Footnote 3. See former Fed. R. App. P. 1(b).

(n7)Footnote 4. 28 U.S.C. § 2072(c); see 28 U.S.C. § 1291; In Re: Flat Glass Antitrust Litig., 288 F.3d 83, 87-91 (3d Cir. 2002) (extensive analysis of finality rule for purposes of appeal).

(n8)Footnote 5. See 28 U.S.C. § 1292(e).

(n9)Footnote 6. Fed. R. App. P. 1, Committee Notes to 2002 Amendments.

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VII Appeal
CHAPTER 28 APPEAL TO COURT OF APPEALS
PART I. APPLICATION OF APPELLATE PROCEDURAL RULES IN FEDERAL COURTS

3-28 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 28.04

§ 28.04 Suspension of Rules of Appellate Proceduren*

[1] Grounds for Suspension of Rules

To expedite its decision or for other good cause, a court of appeals may suspend any provision of the appellate rules in a particular case and order proceedings as it directs. The court may make an order suspending an appellate rule either on its own or on a party's motion. n1 Thus, Appellate Rule 2 authorizes the court of appeals to suspend the Appellate rules to provide relief to a party when adverse consequences of the rules would otherwise result in manifest injustice. n2 In this regard, the courts may liberally construe the rules to prevent injustice. n3 A court may accept an appeal that is not technically in compliance with the rules of procedure if it deems that a party has met the "functional equivalent" of the rule requirements. n4 For example, a court may exercise appellate jurisdiction to review an order that is not specifically identified in the notice of appeal, provided that the language of the notice of appeal clearly indicates the appellant's intention to appeal that order. n5 However, a court may not dispense with mandatory requirements of the rules, such as jurisdictional requirements for appeals, even for "good cause shown." For example, an appellate court has no jurisdiction to consider an issue not identified by the appellant in the notice of appeal. n6

[2] Suspension of Rules Regarding Time

The primary purpose of Appellate Rule 2 is to allow the court to expedite the determination of cases when time is of the essence to the public interest or to the party. n1 Therefore, a common example of the suspension power under Appellate Rule 2 is when a circuit court expedites proceedings by making shorter time limits in cases where the prescribed time periods are greater than necessary. In such cases, the circuit court may either make a shorter time period or eliminate them entirely, n2 because the Rules of Appellate Procedure were adopted to ensure efficient and expeditious handling of routine matters in the circuit courts. n3

In contrast to expediting a case, Appellate Rule 2 does not control the grant or denial of an extension of time, because requests for extensions of time are specifically controlled by Appellate Rule 26(b). n4 Under Appellate Rule 26(b), an appellate court is authorized to grant an extension of time on motion and for good cause shown, except that the court may not enlarge the time for filing a notice of appeal, a petition for allowance, or a petition for permission to appeal. n5 Consequently, a court of appeals has no power under Appellate Rule 2 to permit an appeal to be sought or taken after the expiration of the time fixed by statute or rule. n6

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAppealsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 20 Moore's Federal Practice, §§ 302.10, 302.11 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. App. P. 2.

(n3)Footnote 2. Fed. R. App. P. 2, Original Committee Note; see Owens v. Keeling, 461 F.3d 763, 776 (6th Cir. 2006) .

(n4)Footnote 3. Houston v. Lack, 487 U.S. 266, 270-271, 108 S. Ct. 2379, 101 L. Ed. 2d 245 (1988) .

(n5)Footnote 4. Taylor v. Johnson, 257 F.3d 470, 474-475 (5th Cir. 2001) ; see Torres v. Oakland Scavenger Co., 487 U.S. 312, 317, 108 S. Ct. 2405, 101 L. Ed. 2d 285 (1988) .

(n6)Footnote 5. Malone v. Vasquez, 138 F.3d 711, 715 (8th Cir. 1998) , cert. denied, 525 U.S. 953 (1998) .

(n7)Footnote 6. Brandt v. Schal Assoc., Inc., 854 F.2d 948, 954 (7th Cir. 1988) .

(n8)Footnote 1. Fed. R. App. P. 2, Original Committee Note; see Owens v. Keeling, 461 F.3d 763, 775-776 (6th Cir. 2006) (purpose of Rule 2 is to ensure that justice is not denied on basis of mere technicality).

(n9)Footnote 2. Singleton v. Jackson Mun. Separate Sch. Dist., 419 F.2d 1211, 1222 (5th Cir. 1969) , rev'd on other grounds, 396 U.S. 290 (1970) (Appellate Rule 2 invoked in school desegregation cases to suspend Appellate Rules and order school desegregation to commence as quickly as possible).

(n10)Footnote 3. See Fed. R. App. P. 2, Committee Note; see also Torres v. Oakland Scavenger Co., 487 U.S. 312, 316-317, 108 S. Ct. 2405, 101 L. Ed. 2d 285 (1988) ; Lucky v. Calderon, 86 F.3d 923, 926 (9th Cir. 1996) (court's interest in expediting decision justified overlooking procedural error by habeas corpus petitioner's failure to file amended notice of appeal).

(n11)Footnote 4. Fed. R. App. P. 2; see Fed. R. App. P. 26(b)(1); Main Drug, Inc. v. Aetna United States Healthcare, Inc., 475 F.3d 1228, 1231 (11th Cir. 2007) .

(n12)Footnote 5. Fed. R. App. P. 26(b).

(n13)Footnote 6. See Griggs v. Consumer Discount Co., 459 U.S. 56, 61, 103 S. Ct. 400, 74 L. Ed. 2d 225 (1982) . The Supreme Court stated that the grant of discretion contained in Appellate Rule 2 is limited by Appellate Rule 26(b), which prohibits the appellate courts from enlarging the time for filing a notice of appeal; Main Drug, Inc. v. Aetna United States Healthcare, Inc., 475 F.3d 1228, 1231 (11th Cir. 2007) (Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure explicitly forbid appellate court from suspending time requirements in Rule 5 for permission to appeal, even for good cause).

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VII Appeal
CHAPTER 28 APPEAL TO COURT OF APPEALS
PART I. APPLICATION OF APPELLATE PROCEDURAL RULES IN FEDERAL COURTS

3-28 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure §§ 28.05through 28.09

[Reserved]

§§ 28.05[Reserved]

Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure

Copyright 2011, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

PART VII Appeal
CHAPTER 28 APPEAL TO COURT OF APPEALS
PART II. RIGHTS AND DUTIES OF APPEAL FROM PARTICULAR TYPES OF ADJUDICATIONS
A. APPEAL FROM DISTRICT COURT JUDGMENT OR ORDER

3-28 Moore's Manual--Federal Practice and Procedure § 28.10

§ 28.10 Appeal As of Right

[1] Manner of Appeal of Right

[a] Standing of Person to Appeal as of Right n*

[i] Requirements of Standing

Only particular persons have standing to make a direct appeal as a matter of right from a district court to a circuit court. Appellate Rule 3 governs the method for an appeal as a matter of right. Generally, a person with standing may take an appeal simply by filing an appropriate notice of appeal and the specified number of copies of the notice with the district clerk. n1 Appellate Rule 3 governs all appeals, civil and criminal, from the district courts to the circuit courts, except permissive appeals under 28 U.S.C. § 1292(b), which are governed by Appellate Rule 5, and appeals in proceedings in bankruptcy, which are governed by Appellate Rule 6. n2

To have standing to appeal as of right, a person must meet two prerequisites: (1) the appellant must generally have been a party of record at the time the order or judgment appealed from was entered; n3 and (2) the appellant must have been aggrieved by the order or judgment. n4

[ii] Party of Record

To have standing to appeal as of right, a person must generally have been a party of record at the time the order or judgment appealed from was entered. n5 Note that the appellant need not have necessarily been a party to the suit at of the time the complaint was filed; an appeal may also be taken by a party who entered the original suit by intervention. n6 Similarly, if a party is substituted under Civil Rule 25 while the case is pending in the district court, the party substituted stands in the same position and has the same standing to appeal as the party replaced. n7 In addition, a party who enters the case through third-party practice may appeal an adverse judgment on either the third-party claim or the main claim. n8 A person who is a party to an action in an official capacity only, ceases to be a party on leaving office and, therefore, does not have standing to appeal an adverse judgment. The right to appeal passes to the successor in office. n9

With respect to intervention, a court may allow intervention after a judgment for the purposes of appeal when the court deems intervention necessary to protect the interest of a person whose rights were represented by others before the district court. n10 Postjudgment intervention is permitted in these circumstances because a represented person has no reason to seek intervention before judgment. In fact, if the representation had been adequate, the person has no right to intervene. n11 The failure of the representative to appeal, however, has been found to create the inadequacy of representation necessary to warrant intervention at the postjudgment stage. n12 The denial of a motion to intervene as of right is itself appealable. n13

If the circuit court reverses the order denying intervention and a notice of appeal from judgment in the case has been filed, the circuit court will simply proceed with the merits of the appeal. n14 If the court affirms the denial of intervention, however, the appeal will be dismissed for lack of standing. n15

There are exceptions to this "party of record" rule. In certain limited circumstances, persons who were never parties of record at the time of judgment may be deemed to have standing to appeal. If the following three requirements are met, a nonparty has standing to appeal, even though the nonparty has not intervened: (1) the nonparty actually participated in the lower court proceedings, (2) the equities balance in favor of hearing the appeal, and (3) the nonparty has a personal stake in the outcome. n16 For example, standing has been recognized for a nonparty against whom an injunction was issued, for purposes of appealing the jurisdiction of the court to enter the injunction. n17 Another example of a nonparty with standing to appeal is an attorney who has been sanctioned under Civil Rule 11. n18

[iii] Party Is Aggrieved

The second requirement for standing to appeal is that the appellant must have been aggrieved by the order or judgment. n19 A party is considered "aggrieved" by a decision only if the party has a direct interest that is affected by the decision. n20 Thus, a party who has fully prevailed in litigation may not usually appeal a judgment on the ground that the court has made an adverse finding; however, an appellate court may recognize standing to appeal if the lower court decision could form the basis for collateral estoppel on the issue in later litigation. n21 However, this rarely occurs because a finding may form the basis for collateral estoppel only if it is necessary to the judgment, and a finding adverse to an otherwise fully prevailing party will rarely be necessary to the judgment. n22 Another basis for a prevailing party to be considered "aggrieved" is when the party retains a sufficient stake in the continuing litigation. n23

Conversely, a party may lose its status as an aggrieved party, and therefore the right to appeal, by estoppel or waiver. For example, a party may not ordinarily appeal if the party has agreed to a settlement or consented to the entry of a judgment. n24 A plaintiff who accepts a remittitur to avoid a new trial waives the right to appeal from the judgment for the reduced sum. n25 Even if the defendant appeals from the judgment, a plaintiff who has accepted a remittitur may not cross-appeal, asking the appellate court to restore the full amount of the verdict. n26 The plaintiff may, however, attack the propriety of a new-trial order for the limited purpose of defending the remitted judgment. n27 Waiver does not automatically occur when a judgment creditor pays a judgment pending appeal in lieu of posting a supersedeas bond. Such a judgment creditor is entitled to the return of the money if the judgment is reversed, and the payment does not moot the appeal unless the appellant has specifically relinquished the right to seek repayment in the event the appeal is successful. n28

[b] Matters Appealable as of Right n*

A party in a civil case may take an appeal as of right to the circuit court any final decision of the district court, n29 except those decisions that are appealable directly to the Supreme Court. n30 Appeals as of right may also be taken from some interlocutory orders, such as: n31

1. An order granting, continuing, modifying, or refusing to grant an injunction. n32

2. Certain orders in receivership proceedings. n33

3. An interlocutory decree that determines a right and liability of the parties to an admiralty case. n34

4. Judgments in actions for patent infringement that are final except for accounting. n35

When an interlocutory order is not appealable as of right, it may nonetheless be immediately appealed if the party obtains permission of the circuit court. n36 In order to obtain permission, the party must have the district judge certify that the order involves a controlling question of law as to which there is a substantial ground for difference of opinion, and that an immediate appeal may materially advance the ultimate termination of the litigation. n37 The procedure for requesting permission to appeal is governed by Appellate Rule 5. n38

[c] Contents of Notice of Appeal n*

[i] Summary of Requirements

The Appellate Rules require that a notice of appeal must specify three things: (1) the party or parties taking the appeal, n39 (2) the judgment, order or part thereof appealed from, n40 and (3) the name of the court to which the appeal is taken. n41 The simplest way to ensure that all the requirements of Appellate Rule 3 are met is to follow the Notice of Appeal form provided in the Appendix of Forms to the Appellate Rules. n42 A notice of appeal need not contain an assignment of errors. n43 Furthermore, although a notice of appeal should be signed according to the mandate of Civil Rule 11(a) n44 a signature is not a jurisdictional requirement to an appeal, because the signature requirement is not among Appellate Rule 3(c)(1)'s specifications. n45

Courts should not strictly interpret the Appellate Rules which specify the required contents of the notice of appeal, especially in cases involving pro se parties and cases when the appellee has not been prejudiced. n46 Therefore, even though substantial compliance with Appellate Rule 3 is jurisdictional and mandatory, the courts will liberally construe those requirements in favor of the appellant. n47 Thus, informality of form or designation of a notice of appeal does not provide grounds for dismissal of the notice of appeal by the court of appeals. n48 For example, the Supreme Court has held that when the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996 applied to a habeas corpus case on appeal, under Appellate Rule 22(b) the Court of Appeals should have treated a notice of appeal as an application for a certificate of appealability. n49 However, the Supreme Court has stated that permitting imperfect but substantial compliance with a technical notice requirement is not the same as waiving the requirement altogether, and that a court may not waive jurisdictional requirements. n50 In this regard, Appellate Rule 3's requirements are jurisdictional in nature, and complete noncompliance with the rule is fatal to an appeal. n51

The appellate courts have developed a "functional equivalent" notice of appeal doctrine to reflect the fact that Appellate Rule 3 is to be liberally interpreted. n52 Under this doctrine, the requirement that the appellant must file a notice of appeal may be satisfied with papers that are technically at variance with the rule, but which serve as a "functional equivalent" of the notice of appeal. n53 The document in question must be filed within the time required by Appellate Rule 4 and must specifically indicate the party's intention to appeal and provide sufficient notice of that intention to the other parties and to the court. If the document meets these requirements it does not matter that the appellant intended it to serve some other function. n54 For example, The following types of documents are among those that have been found to be "functional equivalents" of a notice of appeal, provided that the document gives notice of three elements required by Appellate Rule 3(c)(1):

1. An appellate brief. n55

2. A timely motion under Appellate Rule 4 for extension of time to a file notice of Appeal. n56

3. A docketing statement. n57

4. A letter sent to the court. n58

5. A filing of a motion to appeal. n59

[ii] Parties

A notice of appeal must state the party or parties taking the appeal by naming each one in the caption or body of the notice. n60 However, the court may not dismiss an appeal for failure to name a party whose intent to appeal is otherwise clear from the notice. n61 In a class action, whether or not the class has been certified, the notice of appeal is sufficient if it names one person qualified to bring the appeal as representative of the class. n62 A pro se notice of appeal is considered filed on behalf of the signer, and the signer's spouse and minor children if they are parties, unless the notice clearly indicates otherwise. n63

The party designation requirement does not mean that every individual appellant must be designated by name. To prevent the loss of a right to appeal through inadvertent omission of a party's name, and based on the liberal construction of the Appellate Rules, an attorney representing more than one party has the flexibility to indicate which parties are appealing without naming them individually. For example, an attorney representing more than one party may describe those parties with such terms as "all plaintiffs," "the defendants," "the plaintiffs A, B, et al.," or "all defendants except X." The test established by the rule for determining whether such designations are sufficient is whether it is objectively clear that a party intended to appeal. n64 However, a complete failure to identify the party taking the appeal deprives the appellate court of jurisdiction. n65 The complete failure to designate a party in a notice of appeal is more than excusable informality; it constitutes a failure of that party to appeal. n66

A person or persons taking an appeal need not name in the notice the names of the appellees. n67 Furthermore, the fact that the judgment does not refer to the appellees by name does not prevent an appeal with respect to those appellees. Provided that the notice of appeal specifies the party taking the appeal, the judgment or order from which the appeal is being taken, and the court to which the appeal is taken, that notice is sufficient to bring up all of the appellant's claims with respect to that judgment. n68 If a party does decide to name the appellees, the mere fact that the appellant errs in naming an appellee does not justify dismissal of the appeal. n69 When an appellant uses Appellate Form 1 as recommended, the clear implication is that all opposing parties are made potential appellees. Therefore, use of the form is the preferred course, rather than attempting to name the appellees in a multiparty case and failing to name all the intended parties. Such practice will avoid unnecessary questions. This is because if a notice of appeal specifically names some potential multiple appellees and fails to name others, jurisdiction over the omitted parties may be denied if the non-named parties reasonably relied on the fact that they were not named and prejudice would result from their later inclusion. n70

[iii] Designation of Subject of Appeal

A notice of appeal must contain a designation of the judgment, order, or part of the judgment or order, that is being appealed. n71 This requirement is particularly important in a case in which the appellant wishes to appeal only one part of the judgment or order, because it informs the appellate court of the issues that will be presented in the appeal. n72 However, because mere technicalities will not prevent an appellate court's consideration of the merits, the court will not refuse an appeal under Appellate Rule 3(c) merely because of failure to designate the judgment or a part of the judgment if the intent to appeal from the judgment complained of may be inferred from the notice and if the appellee has not been misled by the defect. n73 For example, although a notice did not specifically designate that the appellant was appealing from a summary judgment on the particular grounds of mootness, it was sufficient because the inference could be readily drawn from the text of the notice, and the appellee was not misled by the notice. n74

If a party specifically notices appeal from a particular order, all of the claims disposed of by the order are covered by the notice of appeal. n75 However, a notice of appeal designating a particular judgment or order is effective only for those matters preceding the designated judgment or order. Thus, when a notice of appeal is filed prior to the district court's order disposing of a postjudgment motion, the notice ordinarily does not bring that order up on appeal. n76 On the other hand, if a postjudgment motion covered the same issues decided in an underlying judgment and the district court relied on its underlying judgment in ruling on the postjudgment motion, the issues decided in underlying judgment are properly before the circuit court on appeal from the postjudgment order. n77

As with other required contents of the notice of appeal, the requirement to designate the order or judgment appealed from has been liberally construed by the courts. n78 An appeal will not be dismissed for mere technicalities if the intent to appeal from a specific ruling can be fairly inferred, and the opposing party is not prejudiced. n79 To determine the intention of the appellant, the court may look beyond the notice of appeal to the record as a whole. n80

Despite the liberal construction of the notice requirement, the appellant should avoid the following pitfalls regarding designation of the judgment or order appealed. The designation in the notice of appeal of the final order or judgment does not usually include any orders that are entered after the final judgment. A second notice of appeal is required to raise these later issues. n81 If the judgment appealed from contains several independent or separable determinations, and the notice of appeal designated only specific parts of the judgment rather than the judgment as a whole, the appellate court may not review the parts of the judgment that were not named, unless the appellant has cured the defect by otherwise indicating a clear intent to include those parts in the appeal. The court is less likely to find the necessary clear intent when the parts of the judgment are truly independent. n82 Similarly, if more than one judgment is involved, a notice of appeal that refers to only one judgment does not raise issues that were decided in any other judgment. n83

[iv] Designation of Court of Appeal

A notice of appeal must name the court to which the appeal is taken. n84 Although designation of the court to which the appeal is taken is a mandatory requirement under Appellate Rule 3(c), the defect will not preclude consideration of the appeal, n85 provided that the intention to appeal to a certain court may be inferred from the notice and the defect has not prejudiced the appellee. n86 For example, a notice is not fatally defective on the grounds of court misdesignation when the appellant's intent to appeal to a court is evidenced by the fact that a particular court is the only court to which the appellant could have appealed and the appellee has not shown that the appellee was misled by the failure to make an explicit designation. n87

In most cases in which a misdesignation of court has occurred the court may remedy the mistake. When an appeal is improperly noticed to a court that lacks jurisdiction, that court may nevertheless transfer the appeal to the proper court, as long as the notice would have been timely if filed in the proper court. n88 This situation may arise in a case that properly belongs in the Federal Circuit, because the jurisdiction of the Federal Circuit depends on the subject matter of the appeal, rather than the location of the district court, and the likelihood of making a mistake as to the proper appellate court is greater than in other cases. If the subject matter of an appeal properly belongs in the Federal Circuit, the case may be transferred by the circuit court improperly designated in the notice of appeal. n89

[d] Filing Notice of Appeal n*

[i] Requirement of Filing

An appellant taking an appeal as of right must initiate the appeal by filing a written notice of appeal with the district court clerk. n90 The timely filing of a sufficient notice of appeal is mandatory; when an appeal is not properly filed, the circuit court lacks jurisdiction over the appeal. n91 The notice of appeal must ordinarily be filed within 30 days after the judgment appealed from is entered. n92 However, any mistake in filing is not jurisdictionally fatal to the notice of appeal. Thus, although the notice of appeal must be filed with the district court clerk, n93 if the appellant mistakenly files a timely notice in the circuit court, the notice will be treated as if it had been properly filed in the district court. If a notice of appeal is mistakenly filed in the circuit court, the circuit clerk will note the date of receipt and forward the notice to the district clerk. The notice will then be treated as if it had been filed in the district court on the date noted. n94

[ii] Process of Filing

There are several steps required to complete the process of initiating an appeal by filing. An appellant must sign the notice of appeal in handwriting n95 and file sufficient copies with the clerk. n96 However, an appellant's failure to take any step other than the timely filing of a notice of appeal does not affect the validity of the appeal but is grounds only for the court of appeals to act as it considers appropriate, including dismissing the appeal. n97 Rather than dismissing, the appellate court also has the option to impose sanctions short of dismissal for the appellant's failure to take the necessary steps for appeal. For example, the court may impose costs on the violating party n98 or directly on counsel. n99 The attorney for the appellant should make sure to sign the notice of appeal in handwriting and to include the attorney's address and phone number, as is required of all documents filed in the district court. n100 However, the lack of a handwritten signature is not jurisdictional, and the defect may be cured by signing the notice after it has been filed; n101 on the other hand, the court of appeals may dismiss such a notice of appeal for lack of a signature. n102

At the time of filing a notice of appeal, the appellant must furnish the clerk with sufficient copies of the notice of appeal to enable the clerk to comply promptly with the service requirements of Appellate Rule 3(d). n103 In order to supply sufficient copies, the appellant's counsel must furnish enough copies for the district clerk to serve counsel of record for all parties other than the appellant, to send a copy to the circuit clerk, and, in an appeal by a defendant in a criminal case, to serve the defendant. While a failure to furnish the clerk with a sufficient number of copies at the time of filing does not affect the validity of the appeal, it could subject the appellant to dismissal if the copies are not eventually supplied. Therefore, the prudent course is to supply the clerk with all necessary copies at the time of filing. n104

[iii] Effect of Proper Filing

When a notice of appeal is filed in a timely manner, n105 and adequately contains the necessary information, n106 jurisdiction vests in the court of appeals. n107 Such a filing has the effect of immediately "transferring jurisdiction" from the district court to the court of appeals; however, the district court is divested of jurisdiction only with respect to the judgment brought up for review by the appeal. n108 Here the use of the term "transfer of jurisdiction" does not mean that the district court loses jurisdiction under the jurisdictional statutes or from the rules. It means that, under a judge-made doctrine designed to promote judicial economy and avoid the confusion and inefficiency that might flow from putting the same issue before two courts at the same time, n109 the district court loses power to take any further action in the proceeding, n110 except: to act in aid of the appeal; n111 to correct clerical errors in the judgment pursuant to Civil Rule 60(a); n112 or to aid in the execution of a judgment that has not been superseded. n113

However there are several exceptions to the rule of transfer of jurisdiction. Thus, jurisdiction is not transferred, and a district court may proceed with the action, if an appeal is filed from a non-appealable order. n114 Also, the district court retains authority to enforce a judgment that has not been stayed. In other words, an appeal taken from a judgment that does not finally determine the entire action does not prevent the district court from proceeding with matters not involved in the appeal. n114.1 For example, the district court is not divested of jurisdiction to award costs as to matters that are not involved in the appeal. n115 Furthermore, an appeal from an order granting or denying a preliminary injunction does not divest the district court of jurisdiction to proceed with the action on the merits. n116 Similarly, an appeal from a partial judgment that is appealable by the certification of the district court under Civil Rule 54(b) does not prevent the district court from adjudicating the remaining claims. n117

[e] Service of Notice of Appeal n*

An appellant is not required to serve the notice of appeal on the other parties to the action. n118 Rather, the appellant is required to furnish the district clerk with sufficient copies of the notice of appeal to enable the clerk to serve it in the manner specified in Appellate Rule 3(d). n119 The particular number of copies required will vary, depending on the number of parties and whether they are represented by separate counsel. n120

The district clerk must serve notice of the filing of a notice of appeal by mailing a copy to each party's counsel of record (excluding the appellant's) or, if a party is proceeding pro se, to the party's last known address. The clerk must also promptly send a copy of the notice of appeal and of all current and future docket entries to the clerk of the court of appeals named in the notice. The district clerk must note on each copy the date when the notice of appeal was filed. n121 The clerk must note on the docket the names of the parties to whom the clerk mails copies, with the date of mailing. n122 If an inmate confined in an institution has filed a notice of appeal in accordance with Appellate Rule 4(c), the district clerk must also note the date when the clerk docketed the notice. n123

The validity of an appeal is not impaired if the district clerk fails to serve a notice of appeal. n124 However, if an appellee has received no notice of an appeal, the appellee's interests may be adversely affected by the appeal. Therefore, when an appellee has received no notice of an appeal, but would be affected by the appeal, the circuit court should not determine the appeal before the appellee is given actual notice of the appeal. n125 On the other hand, an appeal may proceed if the court of appeals determines that the appellee received actual notice from a source other than the clerk. n126 In the same way that failure of service on appellees does not affect the validity of an appeal, the failure of the clerk to transmit the required documents to the circuit court does not defeat the validity of the appeal. n127

After proper service has been initiated, service is sufficient despite the death of a party or the party's counsel. n128 Thus, service of a notice of appeal is valid notwithstanding the death of an appellee after judgment but before service. In this situation, the appellant may proceed as if the death had not occurred and then effect substitution in the circuit court. If a party entitled to appeal dies before appealing, the notice of appeal should be filed by the deceased's personal representative, but if there is none, the appeal may be taken by the deceased's attorney of record. n129

[f] Payment of Fees n*

When filing a notice of appeal, the appellant must pay the district clerk all required fees; the district clerk receives the appellate docket fee on behalf of the court of appeals. n130 In effect, Appellate rule 3(e) requires that an appellant who files a separate or joint notice of appeal from a judgment or order rendered in the district court, must pay to the district clerk all fees established by federal statute n131 as well as the appellate docket fee prescribed by the Judicial Conference of the United States. n132 The fees for filing the notice of appeal and for docketing the appeal are taxable as costs, which an appellant or appellee who prevails on the appeal will ordinarily recover. n133 Although the clerk may refuse to accept papers for filing unless they are accompanied by the required fees, failure to pay fees at that time does not affect the validity of the appeal, although it may be a basis for dismissal if the fees are not eventually paid. n134

[g] Joinder of Appeals n*

If two or more parties are entitled to appeal from a district-court judgment or order, and their interests make joinder practicable, they may file a joint notice of appeal. They may then proceed on appeal as a single appellant. n135 Only a person who has filed a timely notice of appeal may join in an appeal. Joint appellants may file a joint notice of appeal, n136 or may join after filing separate timely notices of appeal. n137 However, a party who has not filed a timely notice of appeal may not become an appellant by joining the appeal of a party who has filed a timely notice. n138

The Appellate Rules do not provide any formal device for effecting joinder. However, because it is in the interest of judicial efficiency to encourage joint appeals, courts will not allow technicalities to prevail over substance in the allowance of joint appeals. It is clear that a simple notice of joinder served and filed in the court which has the record is sufficient. However, the mere expression of the intent of the parties to proceed jointly may also suffice. n139 For example, the parties might indicate their intent to join by filing a joint designation of the parts of the transcript to be included in the record, n140 or a joint brief in the circuit court.

When filing a joint notice of appeal, the parties must ensure that they name the multiple appellants with specificity. The rule directs that the attorneys name each party in the caption or body of the notice, of if an attorney is representing more than one party, the attorney may describe those parties with such terms as "all plaintiffs," "the defendants," "the plaintiffs A, B, et al.," or "all defendants except X." n141 An attorney who files a notice of appeal representing more than one party must also name each party in the statement that must be filed with the circuit clerk within 14 days after filing the notice of appeal. n142

After two or more parties effectively join in an appeal, either by filing a joint notice of appeal or by joining in appeal after filing separate timely notices of appeal, they may then proceed on appeal as a single appellant. n143 Thus, they may jointly perform any acts that the rules require of a single appellant. As examples, they may serve a single designation of parts of the transcript to be included in the record on appeal, and, if necessary, a single statement of the issues to be presented on the appeal; n144 they may jointly seek an extension of time for transmitting the record and docketing the appeal; n145 and they may join in a single application for intermediate relief pending the appeal. n146 Once in the circuit court, they may file a joint brief and appendix and may offer a single argument. In fact, the court may require that parties who join in an appeal to seek the leave of the circuit court if they wish to argue separately. n147

[h] Consolidation of Appeals n*

If multiple parties have filed separate timely notices of appeal, the appeals may be joined or consolidated by the court of appeals. n148 Consolidated appeals are different from joint appeals because in consolidated appeals the separate appeals do not merge into one, and the parties do not proceed as a single appellant. Furthermore, a court order is required for consolidation even if the parties stipulate to consolidation. n149

The decision of whether to consolidate appeals is in the discretion of the court of appeals. For example, a court may order consolidation if the court concludes that it will serve the interests of justice. n150 The court must have jurisdiction over each matter appealed before the court may consolidate the matters on appeal. In most circumstances, the goal of promoting judicial efficiency and economy is served by placing all related issues before the circuit court at one time, such as if both appeals present common questions of law and fact. n150.1 Consolidation may be appropriate even when severance of the appeals might save the parties time and expense and possibly reduce the workload of the circuit court. For example, in one case the court of appeals denied plaintiff's motion to sever its appeal with respect to a third defendant, because the appeals had common origin, arose out of a single trial, and were taken from a single judgment. n151

There are several circumstances when consolidation of appeals is appropriate. A court may order consolidation if the issues presented for appeal are the same. n152 A court may also order consolidation when a single party has two appeals pending in the same cause of action, or if a party is an appellee in several separate appeals involving the same question. For example, a court may order consolidation when a party files an appeal from an order resolving a postjudgment motion, after the final judgment has been appealed. n153 Similarly, when a district court enters its final decision on the merits while an interlocutory appeal is pending, the two appeals may be consolidated. n154

[2] Time for Appeal of Right n*

[a] Time Periods Start on Entry of Judgment

All of the deadlines for filing an appeal are based on the entry of the judgment or order that is the subject of the appeal. n1 A determination of when a judgment or order is "entered" for these purposes depends on whether the judgment is of the type that requires a separate document. n2 If Civil Rule 58(a) does not require a separate document, n3 entry occurs when the judgment or order is entered in the civil docket under Civil Rule 79(a). n4 On the other hand, if Civil Rule 58(a) does require a separate document, n5 entry occurs when both: n6 (1) the judgment or order is entered in the civil docket under Civil Rule 79(a); n7 and (2) when the earlier of one of the following events occurs: the judgment or order is set forth on a separate document, n8 or 150 days have run from entry of the judgment or order in the civil docket under Civil Rule 79(a). n9 Thus, entry is effected always by writing, and it is the entry of the judgment itself that commences the time running for the filing of a notice of appeal, not a notification of judgment entry. n10

Compliance with appeal deadlines is determined as of the date the notice of appeal is filed with the district court clerk. n11 If an appellant has mistakenly filed a notice of appeal in the court of appeals rather than in the district court, the clerk of the appellate court must note on the notice the date when it was received and send the notice to the district court clerk. The notice is then considered "filed" in the district court on the date so noted. n12

[b] Ordinary Rule for Civil Cases n*

In a civil case, the notice of appeal required by Appellate Rule n13 must be filed with the district clerk within 30 days after the judgment or order appealed from is entered. n14 The term "civil case" is not defined in Appellate Rule 4, but has been interpreted to mean any case which is not a "criminal case," which is construed narrowly to encompass only a prosecution brought by the government to secure a sentence of conviction for criminal conduct. n15 Conversely, the term "civil case" in Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(1) generally is construed broadly to include any action that is not a criminal prosecution. As a result, proceedings that essentially are civil in nature are deemed to be civil cases, even though they derive from a prior criminal prosecution. n16 For example, a proceeding under the provision of criminal forfeiture statute dealing with third-party interests in forfeited property is a civil case, and the appellate procedure rule establishing time for appeal in civil case applies. n17

Exceptions to the 30-day rule apply when the United States or its officer or agency is a party, n18 when certain motions have been filed, n19 or when the appeal is by an inmate confined in an institution. n20 Additionally, in certain circumstances, the district court may extend the time for a party to file a notice of appeal if the party shows excusable neglect or good cause. n21 Failure to comply with the 30-day deadline for filing a notice of appeal precludes appeal by that party. n22

[c] When Party is United States or United States Officer or Agency

If the United States or an officer or agency of the United States is a party in a civil case, a notice of appeal must be filed with the district clerk within 60 days after entry of the order or judgment appealed from. n23 Once the United States or an officer or agency of the United States becomes a party in the district court, the 60-day appeal period applies under Appellate Rule 4(a)(1)(B), even if the United States or one of its officers or agencies is not participating in the appeal. Thus, any party to an action in which the United States is a party may avail itself of the 60-day appeal period. n24 On the other hand, although the United States may have an interest in many lawsuits, it is a "party" to litigation for purpose of the federal rules only if has formally become a party, either as one by or against whom a lawsuit is brought, or as an intervenor. n25 Furthermore, if the United States has withdrawn as a party during the course of the district court proceedings, the remaining parties may not be able to take advantage of the 60-day period to appeal from an order or judgment. n26

[d] Effect of Certain Motions Filed in District Court n*

If a party in the district court files any of the following six motions in a timely manner under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the time to file an appeal begins to run for all parties from the entry of the order disposing of the last such remaining motion: n27

1. Motion for judgment under Civil Rule 50(b). n28

2. Motion to amend or make additional factual findings under Civil Rule 52(b), whether or not granting the motion would alter the judgment. n29

3. Motion for attorney's fees under Civil Rule 54, provided that the district court has extended the time to appeal pursuant to Civil Rule 58(e). n30

4. Motion to alter or amend the judgment under Civil Rule 59. n31

5. Motion for a new trial under Civil Rule 59. n32

6. Motion for relief from judgment under Civil Rule 60, provided that the motion is filed no later than 28 days after the judgment is entered. n33

If a party files a notice of appeal after the court announces or enters a judgment, but before it disposes of any of the six motions listed above, the notice becomes effective to appeal a judgment or order when the order disposing of the last such remaining motion is entered. n34 If a party intends to challenge an order disposing of any of the six motions listed above, or a judgment altered or amended on such a motion, the party must file a notice of appeal, or an amended notice of appeal, in compliance with Appellate Rule 3(c), within the time prescribed by Appellate Rule 4, measured from the entry of the order disposing of the last such remaining motion. n35 Such a party need not pay an additional appellate docket fee to file an amended notice of appeal. n36 If a party or the court initiates a rehearing on one of the motions listed above, the time for filing an appeal is delayed until the motion for rehearing is resolved, provided that the reason for the ruling goes to the propriety of the initial judgment and is not entered merely as a substitute to grant a proper extension of time to appeal by giving a party a second chance to file a timely notice of appeal. n37

The substance of a post-decision motion, not the label given to the motion by the moving party, determines whether the motion operates to delay the start of the appeal period. For example, if party files a post judgment "motion for reconsideration" within 28 days after the entry of judgment, the filing tolls the beginning of the 30 day period for filing an appeal until after the denial of the motion, because the motion could qualify as either a motion to alter or amend the judgment under Civil Rule 59(e), or a motion for relief under Civil Rule 60. n38 A motion under one of the Civil Rules enumerated above must be timely filed in order to terminate the running of time for filing a notice of appeal. n39 Furthermore, a post-decision motion that is defective or does not set forth any grounds on which it is based does not toll the running of the time for appeal. n40 However, if an otherwise timely post-decisional motion provides the general reasons in support of the motion, it will be effective to terminate the time for appeal. n41

[e] Appeal by Inmate Confined in Institution n*

If an inmate confined in an institution files a notice of appeal in either a civil or a criminal case, the notice is deemed timely if it is deposited in the institution's internal mail system on or before the last day for filing, n42 regardless of when actually received by the district court clerk. n43 If an institution has a system specifically designed for legal mail, the inmate must use that system to receive the benefit of this rule. n44 Otherwise, the inmate must use any prison mail system that is in existence and that documents the time of deposit. If there is no formal prison formal mail system that documents the time, the inmate has the option of documenting the time of deposit by filing either an appropriate declaration or a notarized statement, in addition to filing the inmate's notice of appeal. n45 This mailbox rule may be used by an inmate whether or not the inmate has been or is represented by an attorney. n46

Timely filing may be shown by a declaration in compliance with 28 U.S.C. § 1746 or by a notarized statement that states the date of deposit and that first-class postage has been prepaid. n47 Appellate Rule 4(c)(1) is a codification a Supreme Court decision that held that a pro se prisoner's notice of appeal was "filed" when it was delivered to prison authorities for forwarding to the district court. n48 If there is no prison mailing system, the inmate must file an affidavit or notarized statement specifying the precise date on which he or she left the notice of appeal with prison authorities. n49 The issue of whether an inmate submitted the notice of appeal to prison authorities before the filing deadline is a factual issue that must be determined by the district court. n50

If an inmate files the first notice of appeal in a civil case as specified above, the 14-day period provided in Appellate Rule 4(a)(3) for another party to file a notice of appeal runs from the date when the district court dockets the first notice. n51

[f] Effect of Filing Notice of Appeal Before Entry of District Court Decision n*

If a party files a notice of appeal after the district court announces a decision or order, but before the entry of the judgment or order, the notice of appeal is treated as filed on the date of and after the entry. n52 In other words, a premature notice of appeal from a verbal announcement of a final judgment may ripen into a valid notice of appeal if the final written judgment has been entered by the time the appeal is heard. n53 The Supreme Court has stated that this rule permits a notice of appeal from a verbal decision to operate as a valid notice of appeal from a final judgment only when a district court announces a decision that would have been appealable if it had been immediately followed by the entry of the written judgment. In such circumstances, an appellant's confusion about when to file a notice of appeal is understandable, and permitting the notice of appeal to become effective when judgment is entered does not take the appellee by surprise. n54 A premature notice of appeal is not valid as to any issues that are not determined as part of the decision announced by the district court prior to entry of final judgment. n55

[g] Time for Filing Multiple Appeals

If one party timely files a notice of appeal, any other party may file a notice of appeal within 14 days after the date when the first notice was filed, or within the 30 days of entry of the judgment or order as prescribed by Appellate Rule 4(a), whichever period ends later. n56 Thus, any party to the district court proceeding whether named as an appellee in an initial appeal or not may within 14 days after the filing of the initial notice of appeal, file its own notice of appeal. n57

The purpose of this provision, which allows additional time for an appeal that is taken after an initial appeal, is simply to permit each party to a judgment to decide on the advisability of an appeal with full knowledge of the intentions of all other parties with respect to an appeal. n58 The rule is applicable even if the first appeal was filed by a party that ultimately does not have standing to appeal. n59 The rule is important in that in federal appellate practice only a party who has formally requested review within the prescribed time may seek vacation or alteration of a judgment. This principle applies equally to appeals, whether from the district court to the court of appeals, n60 or directly to the Supreme Court. n61

[h] Extension of Time for Filing Appeal n*

[i] Motion for Extension Based on Excusable Neglect or Good Cause

The district court has discretion to extend the time to file a notice of appeal if a party makes a motion no later than 30 days after the time prescribed by Appellate Rule 4(a) expires. n62 Additionally, the district court may allow an extension even if the party makes a motion for extension more than 30 days after the time prescribed by Appellate Rule 4(a) expires, but only if the moving party shows excusable neglect or good cause. n63 A motion for extension filed before the expiration of the time for taking an appeal prescribed in Appellate Rule 4(a)(1) or (3) may be ex parte unless the court requires otherwise. If the motion is filed after the expiration of the prescribed time, notice of the motion must be given to the other parties in accordance with local rules. n64

The Supreme Court has stated that a determination of "excusable" neglect is an equitable one, taking account of all relevant circumstances surrounding the party's omission. These include the danger of prejudice to the nonmovant, the length of the delay and its potential impact on judicial proceedings, the reason for the delay, including whether it was within the reasonable control of the movant, and whether the movant acted in good faith. The proper focus is on whether the neglect of both the party and counsel was excusable. n65 For example a "simple case of miscalculation" regarding deadlines is not a sufficient reason to extend time. n66 The four factors in the excusable neglect test do not carry equal weight; the most important is the reason given for the late filing. While prejudice, length of delay, and good faith might have more relevance in a closer case, the reason for delay factor is always critical to the inquiry. n67 This unequal weight is based on the Supreme Court's position that inadvertence, ignorance of the rules, or mistakes construing the rules do not usually constitute excusable neglect. n68

The second standard allowing an extension of time is for good cause. n69 The "good cause" standard is more lenient than the "excusable neglect" standard. It provides the district court with discretion to grant the extension in those circumstances that are unsuited to traditional excusable neglect analysis. The good cause standard thus applies in situations in which there is no fault, excusable or otherwise. n70 In such situations, the need for an extension of time is usually occasioned by something that is not within the control of the moving party, such as misdelivery of mail. n71

If the district court decides to grant an extension in the time for appeal, the extension may not exceed 30 days after the prescribed time or 14 days after the date when the order granting the motion is entered, whichever is later. n72 The district court lacks authority to grant an extension of longer duration, and if the district court attempts to grant such an extension, the appeal must be dismissed by the circuit court for lack of jurisdiction. n73

[ii] Motion To Reopen Time to File Appeal On Grounds of Lack of Notice

The appellate rules provide a method for a party to make a motion that the court reopen the time to appeal if the party did not receive timely notice of the entry of the court's judgment or order. Under this provision, the district court may reopen the time to file an appeal for a period of 14 days after the date when its order to reopen is entered, provided that all three of the following conditions are satisfied: n74

1. The court finds that the moving party did not receive service under Rule 77(d) n75 of the entry of the judgment or order sought to be appealed within 21 days after entry; n76

2. The motion is filed within 180 days after the judgment or order is entered or within 14 days after the moving party receives service under Rule 77(d) n77 of the entry, whichever is earlier; n78 and

3. The court finds that no party would be prejudiced. n79 "Prejudice" means some adverse consequences in addition to the cost of having to oppose the appeal and encounter the possibility of reversal of the judgment, which are consequences that are present in every appeal. n80

Once the three requirements are met the court has discretion to reopen, but is not required to reopen the time to appeal. n81 If the court does grant the motion to reopen, the court does not apply the usual 30-day or 60-day time periods for appeal under Appellate Rule 4(a)(1). Rather, the time to appeal is limited to 14 days after the date on which the order to reopen is entered. n82 The Supreme Court has held that this 14-day limit on the length of the reopening period was imposed by statute, n83 and therefore is mandatory and jurisdictional. Consequently, the district court has no power to extend that 14-day period. n84 This purpose of this provision is to afford a limited opportunity for a party to reopen the time to appeal and is a balancing of the inequity of preventing appeals by parties who do not receive actual notice of a dispositive order against the need to protect the finality of judgments. n85

Appellate Rule 4(a)(6) has been amended to make clear that reopening is possible unless the moving party has received formal notice of the judgment or order under Rule 77(d). Thus, informal notice is insufficient (1) to bar a motion to reopen the time to appeal (if the notice is received within 21 days after entry), or (2) to trigger the 14-day period for filing a motion to reopen (if the notice is received more than 21 days after entry). The amendment also establishes that verbal communication of notice of entry of judgment alone is insufficient to prevent application of the rule. n86 When a movant denies that the movant has received notice, the district judge must then weigh the evidence and make a considered factual determination concerning receipt. n87

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAppealsGeneral Overview

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *. For a more complete discussion, see 20 Moore's Federal Practice, § 303.10 (Matthew Bender 3d ed.).

(n2)Footnote 1. Fed. R. App. P. 3(a).

(n3)Footnote 2. See §§ 28.11, 28.12.

(n4)Footnote 3. Karcher v. May, 484 U.S. 72, 77-80, 108 S. Ct. 388, 98 L. Ed. 2d 327 (1987) (parties entitled to appeal include those who become parties through intervention, substitution, or third-party practice); see [ii], below.

(n5)Footnote 4. United States v. Good Samaritan Church, 29 F.3d 487, 488 (9th Cir. 1994) .

(n6)Footnote 5. SEC v. Wozniak, 33 F.3d 13, 14 (7th Cir. 1994) (nonparty whose motion to intervene was denied could not wait until entry of final judgment to seek appellate review of denial of motion).

(n7)Footnote 6. United States v. Alcan Aluminum, Inc., 25 F.3d 1174, 1185 (3d Cir. 1994) (right to appeal adverse judgment where right to intervene upheld).

(n8)Footnote 7. See United States v. LTV Corp., 746 F.2d 51, 53 (D.C. Cir. 1984) (parties to the record include original parties and those who have become parties by intervention, substitution, or third-party practice).

(n9)Footnote 8. Kicklighter v. Nails by Jannee, Inc., 616 F.2d 734, 738 (5th Cir. 1980) (on issue of third-party liability, when only third-party defendant appealed verdict, court found no error in holding third-party defendant liable to defendant (third-party plaintiff) for damages to plaintiff).

(n10)Footnote 9. Karcher v. May, 484 U.S. 72, 79-81, 108 S. Ct. 388, 98 L. Ed. 2d 327 (1987) (appeal dismissed for lack of jurisdiction where appellants intervened and participated in the action in their official capacities only; after they no longer held offices, right to pursue appeal had passed under Fed. R. App. P. 43(a)(1) to their successors, who had withdrawn appeal).

(n11)Footnote 10. United Airlines, Inc. v. McDonald, 432 U.S. 385, 394-395, 97 S. Ct. 2464, 53 L. Ed. 2d 423 (1977) (permitting intervention by member of putative class, in action brought as class action but later decertified after final judgment, for purpose of appealing decertification order); Heckethorn v. Sunan Corp., 992 F.2d 240, 241 (9th Cir. 1993) (plaintiff's former attorney could appeal district court order conditioning plaintiff's voluntary dismissal on former counsel's payment of attorney's fees to defendant).

(n12)Footnote 11. Fed. R. Civ. P. 24(a).

(n13)Footnote 12. Nuesse v. Camp, 385 F.2d 694, 704 n.10 (D.C. Cir. 1967) (failure to appeal from adverse judgment may introduce element of inadequacy sufficient for interested person to intervene after judgment).

(n14)Footnote 13. United States v. Alcan Aluminum, Inc., 25 F.3d 1174, 1179 (3d Cir. 1994) .

(n15)Footnote 14. Romasanta v. United Airlines, Inc., 537 F.2d 915, 918 (7th Cir. 1976) , aff'd on other grounds sub nom. United Airlines, Inc. v. McDonald, 432 U.S. 385 (1977) (intervention timely where sought as soon as apparent that plaintiff would not appeal final order).

